Chairman's Message

I am happy to see the 4th edition of e-compendium compiled by the Office of CC(AR), CESTAT, Delhi. In the past, 3 compendium have been made available by the CESTAT for the benefit of all concerned in the CBIC formations. These compendia proved very useful in taking informed decisions and reducing further litigation.

The present compendium will also feature case laws which support the revenue cause. The officers should go through them with a broader view of understanding the nuances of law pertaining to various issues and not only with a view of pro-revenue bias. Many of the judgments set out standards of ratios which are very useful in clarifying the underlying issues.

I am more than happy to congratulate CC(AR) and his entire team of officers from all its zones, who put in lots of efforts in compiling the compendium in addition to ably representing the Department before the CESTAT Benches in the interest of Revenue. I wish them all the best for their future endeavors.

Member (Legal) Message

It gives me great pleasure to inform that the 4th edition of e-compendium of pro-revenue decisions from different CESTAT benches, covering the period from August, 2023 to January, 2024, is ready for circulation.

2. A wide range of topics relevant to the Customs, Central Excise, and Service Tax domains are covered by the case laws, which would be useful for the officers in discharge of their day-to-day work including adjudication, investigation and effective defense of departmental cases.

3. The compendium is quite user friendly as it has a search facility feature that makes it simple to retrieve case laws based on the issues involved. I am confident that the field formations will find great value in this e-compendium.

4. I want to compliment the Office of the Chief Commissioner (AR) and his team who have put in sincere efforts to ensure compilation of this e-compendium.

Editor in Chief-Preface to 4th Edition of e-Compendium

Greetings Colleagues, as we all know, the doctrine of judicial precedent involves an application of the principle of stare decisis i.e. "stand by the decision already made". In practice, this means that inferior courts are bound to apply the legal principles set out by superior courts in earlier cases. This provides consistency and predictability in the law.

Based on the above principle, the e-Compendium is a resource that is produced with the aim of providing guidance to Authorized Representatives' in representing cases and assisting Court proceedings. The same will also be very helpful to all the field formations in decision making as it would be helpful in proper understanding and interpretation of the act, law and rules etc.; relevant to a specific subject and topic, setting out ratios that are applicable to many similar issues.

The office of the CC(AR) has been compiling the compendia of case laws which in the instant context means cases decided by the CESTAT in its Principal Bench and the zonal Benches. These case laws which are essentially pro-revenue in nature have been taken up to provide a necessary framework guidance for day to day working of field formations be it assessment, adjudication, review or investigations.

Previously, 3 compendiums had been compiled and uploaded on the CBIC website as a link and proved to be very useful for the field formations. Therefore, in order to continue the trend set by the office of the CC(AR), the 4th compendia is compiled and uploaded on the CBIC website.

These compendiums are not straight jacketed to make the officer to think in a single direction based on the assumption that the case quoted pre-dominantly favours the revenue. The important part of the case laws, the spirit of the decisions which is called the ratio decidendi along with the facts needs to be looked upon by the officer concerned.

The Hon'ble Chairperson of the CBIC and Member (Legal) have been a force of great encouragement and guidance, especially the present Chairperson also released the 3rd compendium in his chamber in the presence of all the Hon'ble Members.

Any sizeable effort which brings all around good is not without sacrifices and hard work by the officers who are associated with the compilation of the compendia. In this regard, I would like to mention certain officers namely, S/Shri S.K. Rehman, PC(AR), Reyaz Ahmed, Commr.(AR), Ranjan Prakash, Commr.(AR), Rajiv Agarwal, Commr.(AR), Nagendra Yadav, ADC(AR), Rakesh Agarwal, JC (AR), Rohit Issar, AAD (AR). Apart from these officers, I also appreciate other contributors from Hqrs./Zones, who contributed for the success of this compendium.

As a CC(AR), I am immensely happy to present a very useful compendium for the benefit of field formations and I am sure they will make use of it for the purpose it is meant for and became a part of meaningful appropriate legal decisions.

1. Sanjay Prabhakar Vs Commissioner of Customs, Airport & General

Final Order No. 51158/2023 dated 05.09.2023)

Issue:- Whether the appellant CHA who was not in knowledge of the mis-declaration of the export goods 42,00,000 number of Gutkha pouches – a prohibited item as against the declared pan masala shall be liable for revocation of his Customs broker License.

Held:- It is an admitted fact that the documents such as the invoice and the packing list was prepared by the appellant in his office. This is corroborated by Sh. Shubham Garg, the IEC holder. The export consignment was packed and stuffed in the presence of the representative of the appellant. This has been corroborated by others in their respective statements. The appellant was aware that the IEC of Shubham Garg of M/s Navrang Jewel and Export was being used by Salim Dola for export of Gutka, which is a prohibited item. It has to be concluded that the appellant was very much aware of the nature of the consignment and aware of the fact that the IEC did not belong to the actual exporter of the consignment. He had indulged in this offence for monetary gains.

2. Sumridhi Aluminium (P) Ltd. Vs The Commissioner of Customs ICD Patparganj, Delhi.

Final Order No._51191-51282/2023 dated 13.09.2023)

Issue:- Whether the aluminium scraps imported by the aluminium alleged to be undervalued and the method and enhanced value as suggested by the Department of re valuation accepted in writing by the appellant is hit by the ratio of the decision of the Supreme court in Sanjivani Non-ferrous metals or not.

The assessing officer enhanced the assessable value on the basis of contemporaneous imports data, which value was accepted by the appellant in writing with a further statement that the appellant would not want a speaking order to be issued nor it would require any show cause notice to be issued or opportunity of personal hearing to be granted. The appellant also deposited customs duty on the enhanced value accepted by the appellant and thereafter out of charge order was also issued by the department.

Held:- That In Sanjivani Non-Ferrous Trading, the Supreme Court observed that it was necessary for the assessing officer to give reasons as to why the transaction value declared in the Bills of Entry was rejected. This decision would not come to the aid of the appellant for the reason that in the present case the appellant had accepted the enhanced value of the imported goods. The enhanced value once accepted in writing under Section 17(5) of the Customs Act, 1962 shall be deemed to be the transaction value.

3. Sunlight Overseas vs Commissioner, Customs-New Delhi (ICD TKD)

Final Order no. 51328-51331 /2023 dated 20.09.2023)

Issue:- It is case of mis-declaring of value and quantity of import of furniture. Although the quantity in numbers was found as declared Goods were examination gross mis-declartion in weight of furniture were found. The value was enhanced as per weight found and the same was accepted by importer during assessment. Also there was request for waiver of SCN in the matter.

Held:- The Hon'ble CESTAT held that, since a unique quantity code (UQC) is fixed for each type of goods and the importer is required to indicate the quantity in that code. For furniture, it is weight in kg. Therefore, the adjudicating authority was fully justified in rejecting transaction value and re-determining it.

This appeal is against re-assessment in which the appellant waived, in writing, the SCN and personal hearing and in which it had not even disputed that the goods which were imported were much more than what was declared. By waiving the SCN and also the personal hearing, the appellant made it both unnecessary and impossible for the department to show the basis of re-determining the value of the goods. Accordingly, the party appeal was dismissed upholding differential duty, fine and penalty.

4. Bright Metal India Pvt. Ltd. vs Commissioner of Customs, Central Excise, Jaipur.

Final order nos.51371 /2023 dated 26.09.2023)

Issue:- Whether the brass scrap PALLU imported by the appellant were rightly classified under ITC HSN 74 being originated from Sharjah Port or should be re classified under CTH HSN 980060000 being originated from Pakistan and should be treated as restricted/ prohibited goods. Whether the goods should be allowed re export without RF/ penalty

Held:- The Honble tribunal has held that that the country of origin of the containers in question is Pakistan and therefore, the same are classifiable under the Notification No.5/2019 as per CTH 980060000. Since the goods have been imported on the basis of fake PSIC, they are liable to be confiscated in terms of Section 111(m). relief of re-export, in the facts of the case, needs to be affirmed on payment of redemption fine and also enhanced penalty both under Section 112 (a)(ii) and Section 114AA of the Act

5. Sanjay Porwal, Director of Bright Metal India Pvt. Ltd., Jaipur, Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Excise and CGST, Jaipur

Final Order No.51372 /2023 dated 26.09.2023.)

Issue:- Whether the brass scrap PALLU imported by the appellant were rightly classified under ITC HSN 74 being originated from Sharjah Port or should be re classified under CTH HSN 980060000 being originated from Pakistan and should be treated as restricted/ prohibited goods. Whether the goods should be allowed re export without RF/ penalty

Held:- The Hon'ble tribunal has held that that the country of origin of the containers in question is Pakistan and therefore, the same are classifiable under the Notification No.5/2019 as per CTH 980060000. Since the goods have been imported on the basis of fake PSIC, they are liable to be confiscated in terms of Section 111(m). relief of re-export, in the facts of the case, needs to be affirmed on payment of redemption fine and also enhanced penalty both under Section 112 (a)(ii) and Section 114AA of the Act

6. Commissioner of Customs (A&G), New Delhi Vs. Aradhya Export Import Consultants PVT. LTD

Final Order No. 51380/2023 dated 03.10.2023.

Issue:- The present appeal filed by the department was against order-in-original No. 83/MK/Policy/2020 dated 05.10.2020 passed by the Commissioner wherein the suspension of the CB licence was revoked despite of the fact that the CB had filed 8 shipping bills despite of the fact that the exporter was not existing at the address mentioned in the IEC and facilitated the fraudulent exports to avail ineligible IGST refund / drawbacks.

Held:- In the present case from the above discussion it has come on record that M/s Fine Overseas is a firm existing only on the papers which was created in the name of Shri Sirajul Kallu. The exporter was not existing at the address mentioned in the IEC. The IEC and bank accounts were obtained for facilitating the fraudulent exports to avail ineligible IGST refund / drawbacks.

In the light of the obligations conferred upon the CB by the Regulations CBLR, 2018 and the proven fraudulent act and conduct of CB on record, we hold that suspension of his licence is quite a proportionate penalty. The order under challenge is upheld to this extent. In the light of the entire above discussion, holding that there is no violation of Regulation 10(e) has been set aside but violation of Regulation 10(n) of CBLR, 2018 by the appellant has been confirmed with confirmation that CB licence, in given circumstances is proportionate penalty. Hence, the appeal stands party allowed and cross-objections stands allowed, consequently licence stands suspended.

7. Vaibhav Global Ltd. vs Commissioner of Central Excise and Customs, CGST, Jaipur I

Final Order No. 51442/2023 dated 04.10.2023.)

Issue:- Whether the appeal filed in the year 2018 should be dismissed for want of prosecution as well as presence since the appellant has not been represented for long.

Back

Held:- The Hon'ble Tribunal has observed that the There is no presence for the appellant w.e.f. July, 2019. Several notices of hearing subsequently have also been served upon the appellant. On the last date of hearing i.e. 12.09.2023, the appellant was warned with the last opportunity to cause its presence.

8. Planet Green Retail vs Principal Commissioner of Customs (Preventive)

Final Order No. 51390/2023 dated 04.10.2023

Issue:- It is a case of gold smuggling in machinery. The gold bars were concealed in Machines. Importer did not file B/E and the goods the machines were ready for disposal by auction. The case was investigated by SIIB before auction and gold bars were recovered. The gold was ordered for absolute confiscation and penalty was imposed on the person against whom IGM and Bill of Lading were issued.

Held:- The Hon'ble CESTAT vide said order has upheld the order passed by the department and penalty imposed on appellant and has observed as under:

The manifest dated 28.02.2015 showing that consignee in both the AWBs was M/s Planet Green Retail, and that the value of the consignment was declared as "NVD means No value declared. .The appellant did not respond to the said CELEBI notice it did not respond to the show cause notice issued under Section 124 the appellant also fail to respond three notices of personal hearing where after the impugned order was passed ex-parte.

During investigation it was revealed that the address mentioned on both AWB is belongs to the appellant which is also corroborative with IEC. Thus it becomes clear that the registered person of that IEC i.e. Shri Sumeet Jain the Proprietor of present appellant is the only person connected to the impugned AWB. He has not produced any evidence to show that the IEC has been forged in his name without his knowledge. The department has made sufficient compliance of Section 123 of Customs Act, 1962.Resultantly we hereby upheld the said order. Consequent thereto, the appeal stands dismissed.

9. Globe Impex and Shri Gagan Uppal vs Commissioner of Customs (Imports), ICD, Tughlakbad, New Delhi.

Issue:- Case of determination of classification of "Scented Sweet Supari" under CTH 21069030 (where 100% BCD exemption by the virtue of Notification no. 96/2008 SI. No.1) instead of CTH 08028090 (where eligible for 60% BCD exemption by the virtue of Notification no. 96/2008). Also to determine whether goods are liable for confiscation or otherwise and importer is liable for penal action or otherwise? Whether demand in the case of previous Bill of Entry is sustainable or otherwise?

Held:- The goods held classifiable under chapter Heading 0802. Consequently, the benefit of Notification No 96/2008 dated 13.8.2008 of 100% exemption from BCD is not available to the appellant. The goods were held liable for absolute confiscation under Section 111(d), 111(m) and 111(o) of the Act. Consequently, the appellant is liable to pay the differential duty of Rs.46,95,133/- along with interest. Importer M/s. Globe Impex and also Shri Gagan Uppal held liable to penalty under Section 112(a)(i) of the Act. Accordingly, the appeals dismissed.

10. Container Corporation of India Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Exports), ICD, Tughlakbad, New Delhi

Final Order No. 51422/2023 dated 10.10.2023

Issue:- Whether in view of the Regulation 6 HCCAR, 2009 and section 45 of Customs Act, 1962, the Custodian is liable to pay duty in case of pilferage of goods in customs bonded area.

Held:- All the allegations as fastened against the custodian are under Regulation 6 HCCAR, 2009 and section 45 of Customs Act, 1962 i.e. against the approved by custodian, who is none but CONCOR, the appellant. As per section 45 (2) (b) of Customs Act, 1962, the custodian is duty bound to not to permit such goods to be removed from the customs area, except under and in accordance with written permission of proper officer or otherwise dealt with. Admittedly, there was no such permission with CONCOR for removal of the goods. As per section 45, the custodian is burdened with the responsibility of safe custody of imported goods unless and until those goods cleared either for home consumption or for being warehoused. Admittedly, the goods got pilfered and container seal found tempered when the goods were not still cleared. Resultantly, we do not find any reason to absolve the appellant from the responsibility fastened upon him and violation confirmed.

11. Decor Rubber Industries Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Air Cargo Complex (Export)

Final Order No 51494/2023 dated 03.11.2023

Issue:- whether the alleged undervaluation solely based on the market enquiry and overseas investigation where in the report were in Chinese and without any authentication can be relied to prove the said undervaluation. The goods were found to be rolls of branded Reflective Sheets of brand name "Sablite". The value submitted before the Chinese Customs for the goods was different than the value in the invoices presented before the Indian Customs Authorities for the same goods in the same consignments. Demand under Sec 28 and Penalty under Sec 114A and Sec 114AA on the appellant importer.

Held:- The Tribunal has held that- the Bill of Lading numbers, names of the vessels, container numbers, etc. corresponding to what was declared before Chinses Customs match with what was shown before Indian Customs which showed that the values declared in the four Bills of Entry were low and the actual values were declared by the exporter in the declarations before the Chinese authorities. Accordingly, the rejection of the declared transaction value in respect of these four Bills of Entry under Rule 12 and redetermination of it based on the actual transaction value in respect of the four Bills of Entry is confirmed. Consequently, the demand of differential duty of customs under section 28. And Penalty under Sec 114A and Sec 114AA is also confirmed.

12. SKH Freight Logistics Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, (Airport & General)

Final Order No.51504/2023 dated 06.11.2023.

Issue:- The allegations of the department is the offence of availing undue drawback by means of fraudulent exports. Department formed the opinion that M/s Linwood Sales Pvt. Ltd., Kolkata was involved in fraudulent export under drawback scheme to avail huge undue drawback amount. The Customs Broker who facilitated the fraudulent export is M/s. SKH Freight Logistics Pvt. Ltd was charged with revocation of his license under CBLR 2018 for violating Regulations 1(4), 10(a), 10(b), 10(d), 10(k) 10(n) and 13(12) of Custom Broker Licensing Regulation, 2018 (hereinafter referred as CBLR, 2018) erstwhile Regulation 10, 11(a), 11(b), 11(d), 11(k), 11(n) and 17(9) of CBLR, 2013.

Held:- The Hon'ble Tribunal has held that Apparently no authorization letter in favour of the appellant from M/s. Linwood Sales could be produced on record. Hence, we do not find any infirmity when violation of Regulation 10 (a) of CBLR has been confirmed against the appellant. Similarly no verification was undertaken and the provisions of the CBLR 2018 was violated/ not adhered to. CB was liable for revocation of his license and forfeiture of security deposits and penalty.

13. Durga Link Logistics (Pvt.) Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General), New Delhi

Final Order No. 51507/2023

Issue:- Revocation of appellant's customs broker license - forfeiture of security deposit and imposition of penalty affirmed Revocation of license set aside -

A dispute where in the weight of pan masala mentioned on invoice cum packing list was much higher than the actual weight thereof found during examination - an opportunity of cross-examination not provided - no finding has been given with respect to the submissions made by the appellant - violation of principles of natural justice

Held:- Violation of Regulations 10(a), 10(b), 10(d) 10(e), 10(j), 10(k) and 10(q) of CBLR, 2018 was examined and the Hon'ble Tribunal has held that - the appellant is held guilty of the violations under Regulation 10(a), 10(b) and 10(e) but these are not so grave as to justify the revocation of the customs license. These violations are observed to be the consequence of negligence on part of the appellant custom broker. Depriving him of his livelihood is held to be disproportionate in the light of given findings. Revocation order set aside.

14. Javeria Impex India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs (ICD) TKD, New Delhi

Customs Appeal NO. 3 OF 2011.
Final Order No. 51525-51526 /2023 dated 08.11.2023

Issue:- Whether the differential duty demanded on the goods imported for Live BOEs (hereinafter called current Bills of Entry) and five past Bills of Entry are correct ;

Whether the goods imported under the current Bills of Entry were confiscated but were allowed to be redeemed on paying redemption fine is right ; and whether penalties imposed on the Firm is correct or not.

Held:- The Hon'ble Tribunal has held that M/s. Jhaveria Impex is partly allowed by upholding the re-assessment of duty in the impugned order in respect of the two current Bills of Entry filed on 9.2.2009 and 17.2.2009 and confiscation of the goods imported under these two Bills of Entry and the redemption fines imposed.

15. Mohd. Qasim Khan Authorized Representative of javeria Impex India Pvt Ltd. Vs. Commissioner Of Customs (ICD) New Delhi, Tughlakbad, New Delhi

Final Order No. 51525-51526 /2023 dated 08.11.2023.

Issue:- Whether the differential duty demanded on the goods imported for Live BOEs (hereinafter called current Bills of Entry) and five past Bills of Entry are correct ;

whether the goods imported under the current Bills of Entry were confiscated but were allowed to be redeemed on paying redemption fine is right ; and whether penalties imposed on the Firm is correct or not. Also whether the appellant Shri Mohd. Qasim Khan , authorised representative of the importer assailing the Penalties by filing the Customs Appeal No. 4/2011 assailing the personal penalty of Rs. 15,00,000/- imposed on him by the impugned order is correct or not.

Held:- The Honble Tribunal has held that -Shri Qasim is the person most directly connected with the filing of the two Bills of Entry and the values of the goods in these did not match the imported goods which rendered the goods liable to confiscation under section 111(m). Therefore, Shri Qasim squarely falls under Section 112(a) and is liable to penalty under it.

16. Windlass Online Stores Pvt. Ltd. vs Commissioner of Customs, Air Cargo Complex (Import)

Final Order No. 51524/2023 dated 08.11.2023

Issue:- The appellant imported "Replica Fire Arms" convertible into Fire Arms" classifiable under CTH 93040000, which was restricted as per ITC (HS) Import Policy, without any license or authorization from the DGFT and also imported "daggers" and "swords" with blade size more than 9" without fulfilment of the requirements specified in the MHA Notification No.S.O.667(E) dated 12.09.1985 and Notification No.S.O.831 (E) dated 02.08.2002 and thereby contravened the provisions of para 2.08 of FTP 2015 - 2020 read with Section 11 (1) of the Foreign Trade (Development) and (Regulation) Act, 1992 (as amended).

Held:- Neither the applicability of the legal provisions particularly with reference to the Arms Act and the Rules and various notifications have been considered nor any reasoning has been given with reference thereto by the Commissioner (Appeals) though being the first appellate authority. The impugned order is therefore unsustainable and deserves to be set aside with a direction to the appellate authority to consider the appeal and decide the same giving proper and substantive reasoning in support thereof. Accordingly, matter remanded to the Commissioner (Appeal).

17. Shree Shyam Enterprises Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Import) ICD

Final Order No.51546/2023 dated 14.11.2023

Issue:- Whether the Adjudicating authority has rightly enhanced the value of the goods under rule 7 of CVR, 2007 and having the same accepted and cleared the goods, the importer has left has right to further challenge the same.

Back

Held:- We feel that the resorting the valuation under Rule 7 of the Customs Valuation Rules by the Department is legally sustainable in the facts and circumstances of this case as narrated above. While holding the above view, we take shelter of the decision of this Tribunal in the case of Commissioner of Customs (Import), ICD, TKD, New Delhi Vs. Sodagar Knitwear reported in 2018 (362) E.L.T. 819 (Tri. Del.) which has also been confirmed by Hon'ble Apex Court in its decision reported under 2018 (362) E.L.T. A213 (S.C.).

18. Nitesh Shekatkar, Proprietor Aashavi Enterprises Vs. Commissioner of Customs

Final Order No. 51569/2023 dated 15.11.2023

Issue:- The appeal was filed against imposition of penalty of Rs. 25,00,000/- on co-noticee. The appellant stated that 7.5% of the penalty amount of Rs. 25,00,000/ - had been deposited, but neither the challan number nor the date was mentioned. A copy of the challan enclosed with the appeal also does not give the challan number or date or the bank name the same could not be verified by respective Commissionerate.

Held:- Although the appeal was listed for hearing, CESTAT held that the statutory requirement of pre-deposit has not been made the appeal has to be dismissed and is dismissed.

19. Commissioner Of Customs, New Delhi (Airport and General), Vs. Air Logix solutions

Final Order No. 51591/2023 dated 29.11.2023

Issue:- It is about Courier licence. In the OIO only penalty was been imposed Dept. filed appeal for revocation of licence Held:- The Hon'ble CESTAT has allowed Dept. appeal and passed Final Order dt. 29-11-23 giving directions for Revocation of licence. In the instant case same KYC was used for multiple importers.

20. L.G. Electronics India Private Limited Vs. Principal Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi

Final Order No. 51585/2023 dated 30.11.2023

Issue:-It is about classification of Hybrid Smart watch (smart watch with additional analog function) under CTH CTH 8517(smart watch) or CTH 9102 (analog watch). The Hon'ble CESTAT has issued Final Order dt 30-11-23 concluding that Hybrid smart watch is classifiable under CTH 8517 as a smart watch.

The said goods under CTH 91021900 was self-assessed with basic customs duty at the rate of 'NIL' BCD after claiming the benefit of entry serial no. 955 of Notification No. 152/2009-Cus whereas the CTH 8517 was not covered under Notification 152/2009-Cus. Resultantly, short payment of customs duty amounting to Rs.86,62,852/-

Held:- It is held by the Hon'ble CESTAT that since appropriate CTH is 8517 and the same was not covered under claimed Notification even the COO was issued with the CTH 8517. The CTH 8517 was covered under Notification 151/2009 under the same Rules of Origin however the same was not claimed at the time of assessment.

21. Holyland Marketing Pvt Ltd Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Import) ICD, Tughlakbad, New Delhi

Final Order No. 51574 /2023 Dated 30.11.2023

Issue:- The main issue to be decided in the matter was whether the impugned imported goods viz "canned pineapple slices" is classifiable under CTH 20082000 or 08119010, as self-assessed by the appellant or under CTH 8043000, as proposed in the SCN. The appellant had claimed the benefit of Exemption Notification No. 46/201 Cus. dated 01. 06.2011, by classifying the said goods under CTH 20082000 or 08119010, which resulted in 'NIL' Basic Customs Duty (BCD). However, the benefit of the Exemption Notification No. 46/201 Cus dated 01. 06.2011 is not available under CTH 0804 3000, as proposed by the department.

Held:- The subject goods (canned pineapple slices) held classifiable under CTH 0804, wherein the benefit of said notification in not available and the appellant is required to pay merit duty. However, the Hon'ble

Back

CESTAT held that the demand for differential duty is limited to the normal period only. The interest would accordingly be reduced proportionately. The penalty under section 114A is set aside. Since the Department itself had classified the said goods under different headings, in view of the prevailing circumstances, the Hon'ble CESTAT held that the extended period cannot be invoked in the instant case.

22. C.L. International Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Import), New Delhi

Final Order No. 51597/2023 dated 05.12.2023

Issue:- Benefit of Merchandise Export from India Scheme (MEIS) - Seeking provisional release of goods - Mis-declaration of goods - Conditions imposed on the provisional release of the impugned seized goods - quantum of bond and the bank guarantee

Held:- As per the settled position of law there is no absolute right to claim provisional release and the same is subject to conditions that may be imposed by the competent authority, though the conditions that may be imposed cannot be arbitrary and capricious.

23. Vijay Kumar Sharma, Rohit Shakhuja and others Vs. Commissioner of Customs (General), New Delhi

Customs Appeal No. 51151-51153, 51942-51944, 52504 ,52514-52515 of 2015.
Final Order No. 51610-51620/2023 dated 06.12.2023

Issue:-It is a case of clandestine removal of import consignments of Air-conditioners and Refrigerant Gas, Cigarettes. Duty involved is Rs. 2.25 Crore.

Investigation was done by Directorate of Revenue Intelligence. It was found that the said container along with other containers had moved out from ICD, Tughlakbad (hereinafter referred to as "TKD"). On verification, investigating team observed that the container was removed on 25.05.2012 without filing any Bill of Entry but by using manual customs gate pass.

Held:- The Hon'ble CESTAT vide said order upheld the order passed by the department and penalty imposed on all appellants and has observed as under:

Investigation, of DRI and recorded statement of 120 persons and collected record, searched and examined by the DRI on 30.05.2012, 31.05.2012 and 7.6.2012. Searches lead to the recovery of such number of cylinders of R-22 gas, cigarettes and air-conditioners as has been tabled meticulously by the adjudicating authority. Rohit Sakuja and Ajit Chadha acknowledged being dummy proprietor of the company opened by them for illegally importing and clandestinely removing the goods from Customs area on the basis of forged customs gate passes. The observations about evidence collected these are sufficient to hold that there is meticulous investigation wherein voluminous documents obtained which corroborated testimony recorded during investigation proving the correctness of adjudication. Thus, we hold that we have no different opinion than the finding of original adjudicating authority while confirming allegation levelled against them and confirming proportionate liability.

Hon'ble CESTAT held that We have no reason to differ from the finding of the adjudicating authority. There is sufficient evidence even against shipper, K Line Singapore Pvt. Ltd. for colluding and abetting the impugned illegal import of goods consequently thereto all the appeals of the party were dismissed.

24. Asfaque Abubaker Naviwala Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Export) (ICD, TKD

Final Order No. 51635 /2023 dated 12.12.2023

Issue:- Whether non-mentioning of penalty proposition in the SCN would vitiate the impugned Order confirming Penalty. The present appeal has been filed to assail the order of the Commissioner Customs. Sh. Naviwala (hereinafter referred to as the appellant) has challenged the imposition of penalty of Rs.10,00,000/- (Rupees ten lakh only) under section 114(iii) of the Customs Act, 1962 and of Rs.20,00,000/- (Rupees twenty lakhs only) under Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962. It is case of overvaluation of export of garments to claim illegal Drawback by the exporter. The appellant, a partner of the overseas buyer, was involved in the abetment of the said forged exports Held:- The Hon'ble Tribunal has held that - it is a settled position of law that wrong mention or non-mention of a rule in the show cause notice does not vitiate the proceedings. The Supreme Court in the case Fortune Impex vs Commissioner [2004(167) ELT A 134(SC)] has held that non mentioning a particular section of Customs Act, 1962 would not vitiate the proceedings when the allegations and charges against all the appellants were mentioned in clear terms in the show cause notice.

Back

It was also held that when importation or exportation of goods are subjected to certain prescribed conditions to be fulfilled either before or after clearance of the goods, and if those conditions are not fulfilled, the said goods would be considered as prohibited goods and Sections 2(23), 11 and 113(d) of the Customs Act, 1962 would come into play and the exporters would be liable for penalty.

25. Global Diamond Pvt Ltd Vs Pr. Commissioner of Customs, Noida and Customs

Final Order No. 51652-51653/2023 dated: 15.12.2023

Issue:- The appellant is a manufacturing unit in the NOIDA Special Economic Zone. It imports gold duty free and manufactures and exports gold jewellery. Goods manufactured in the EPZ should only be exported. But they were being removed and sold in India (Domestic Tariff Area). Thus Central Excise Duty equivalent to the Customs duties leviable on such goods as if they are imported is demanded
The Central Excise officers caught some goods being clandestinely removed in a car from the assessee's factory and they seized them. The demand was made for goods caught as well as previously removed goods.

Held:- The basis on which duty demanded is on the basis of entries in WIP , on the basis of delivery challans of their related unit and on the basis of Rishu exercise book and Priya Exercise Book recovered from Shri Subhash Sharma Mumbai, their employee . The demand is upheld by CESTAT

26. Daxen Agritech India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Principal Commissioner of Customs

Final Order No. 51678/2023 dated 20.12.2023

Issue:-Whether the confirmation of classification of goods i.e. "Bulk Reishi Gano Powder-100% Ganoderma and Bulk Ganocelium Powder 100% Gano Mycelium" and confiscation of the goods and the consequent demand of differential duty, interest and penalty, as proposed in the show cause notice. It appeared that they were mis-declaring these goods as Ayurvedic proprietary Medicine and consequently wrongly classifying the same under CTH 30039011 instead of correct CTH 21069099 of food supplements thereby evading payment of appropriate customs duty.

Held:- The Hon'ble tribunal has held that- a) The goods in question are re-classified as food preparations under CTH 2106 9099. Re classification as proposed by revenue is confirmed.

b) Demand for extended period should not be invoked.

c) The demand of differential duty is limited to the normal period, i.e. 03.07.2013 to 19.05.2015 and the same may be computed accordingly.

d) The interest under the provisions of section 28AA of the Act is also to be charged and recovered from the appellant for not paying the due customs duties in respect of the normal period of demand. Confiscation and Penalty not invoked. Matter remanded.

27. Shankar Lal Goyal Appellant. Vs Commissioner of Customs, New Customs House, New Delhi.

Final Order No.51685/2023 dated 22.12.2023.

Issue:-The appellant has assailed the Order-in-Appeal No. CC(A)CUS/DII/Prev./NCH/640/2019-20 dated 19.09.2019 passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals) affirming absolute confiscation of the seized gold of foreign marking and penalty under Section 112(b) of the Customs Act, 1062 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Act') Whether gold foreign origin would fall under prohibited category u/s 2(33) of the Act and can be imported on payment of Customs duty. Whether seizure, confiscation, imposition of penalty are rightly invoked.

Held:- Gold town seizure case :-

While affirming the findings of the Adjudicating Authority the Hon'ble Tribunal has held as under :- (a) gold seized (foreign origin) would fall under the definition of 'Prohibited goods' as per Section 2(33) of the act.

(b) gold being dutiable goods can only be imported on payment of customs duty under the Act.

(c) as per the admission of the appellant himself, the transaction in the present case has to be treated as smuggling as defined in Section 2(39) of the Act.

(d) the gold seized is liable for confiscation under Section 111(d) of the Act.

(e) the adjudicating authority rightly did not invoke Section 110 A read with Section 125 of the Act and ordered for absolute confiscation.

(f) the appellant is liable to penalty under Section 112(b) of the Act.

28. Suresh Bhonsle and Mohd. Wajid @ Bunty vs Commissioner of Customs (Preventive)

Final Order No. 50015-50017/2024 dated 04.01.2024)

Issue:- Gold smuggling Town seizure. Absolute confiscation of 10 Kg Gold and imposition of Penalty under Sec 112 of the Act

Held:- The factum of recovery of such large quantity of 10 kgs. of gold concealed under the shirt speaks for itself and the appellant being the owner thereof was unable to provide any licit document of procuring the gold, justifies the confiscation under Section 111(b) and 111(d). Taking note of the fact that the appellant had indulged in such illegal gold transactions in the past, the absolute confiscation needs to be affirmed and therefore the gold seized cannot be provisionally released in terms of section 110A read with Section 125 of the Act - in the present case the appellant neither adduced any evidence to show that he had legally procured the gold by following requisite conditions of payment of customs duty and other charges nor did he produce any documents for having purchased the said gold within India and therefore the gold recovered were in violation of the prohibition imposed by DGFT and RBI apart from the provisions of the Customs Act hence was liable for confiscation under section 111 of the Act. Once liable for Confiscation Penalty under 112 has rightly been imposed.

29. Rakesh Luthra, S/o Krishan Lal, Sunita Luthra, D/o Mangat Rai and Sonia Luthra, D/o Puran Parkash Nischal Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General)

Issue:- Smuggling of Gold by four passengers through Green Channel, Commissioner of Customs (Gen) vide OIO dated 16.02.2020 allowed the gold recovered from them to be redeemed on payment of redemption fine or permitted for re-export and penalties were imposed on the three of the appellants and duty was demanded for earlier visits wherein they admitted to bring gold. Three of the appellant being aggrieved by said OIO filed appeal before Hon'ble CESTAT and the Department has also filed appeals against the decision of the adjudicating authority to permit Rakesh Luthra to redeem the gold, and the permission to re-export gold given to Sonia and Mamik Luthra.

Held:- Hon'ble CESTAT rejected the appeals filed by the three appellants and upheld the OIO also in case of departments appeal Hon'ble CESTAT held that goods are liable for absolute confiscation and allowed the department appeal

30. HBS Logistics Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General), New Customs House

Final Order no. 50030 /2024 dated 09.01.2024)

Issue:- The present appeal filed by party to Challenge the order-in-original no.63/MK/Policy/2019 dated 10.05.2019 whereby the Commissioner Customs revoked the Customs Brokers License, forfeited the security amount of Rs.5 lakh and imposed penalty of Rs.50,000/- for contravention of the provisions of Regulation 10(j) and 13(12) of the CBLR, 2018.

Held:- From the facts of the case, we find that the same is distinguishable as contravention related to Regulations 11(a), 11(b), 11(n), 11(e) of CBLR, 2013 whereas in the present case regulation 10(j) of CBLR, 2018 has been invoked for forging/ fabricating the document whereby the first print page of the docket showed, "Examination has not been prescribed for this B/E" and also added the name of two officers from appraising Group-4 which gives an impression that the B/E has already been assessed by the group and examination is not required. This was just 13 to avoid the shed appraiser who keeps vigil over undervaluation cases in RMS and the present B/E was found to be undervalued. On the contrary the system entry showed, "Assessment and Examination has not been prescribed for this B/E." In other words, it amounts to fraud and the principle is that fraud vitiates all actions. In the circumstances no indulgence is required to set aside the order of revocation of Customs Broker License.

We are, therefore, of the considered view that the punishment imposed in the present case by the impugned order does not call for any interference and is hereby upheld. The appeal, is accordingly dismissed.

31. Surendra Electricals Vs Commissioner of Customs (Exports)

Customs Appeal No. 50938 of 2020.
Final Order no. 50033/2024 dated 10.01.2024

Issue:- Whether the Department has rightly re-determined the value of the imported goods under Rule 5 of CVR, 2007 and rightly demanded differential duty and whether the penalties have rightly been imposed on the Importer

Held:- We are of the view that the present case being of mis-declaration which has been detected only on examination of the goods, it was justified for the department to reject the transaction value and re determine the same in terms of the Customs Valuation Rules which has been done as per Rule 5. The appellant has contravened the provisions of Section 17 and 46(4) of the Act by intentionally filing wrong declarations and by their acts of omissions and commissions had rendered the goods liable for confiscation under Section 111(l) and 111(m) of the Act. The appellant filing the Bill of Entry under self-assessment was duty bound to submit true and correct details. No interference is called for in the quantum of redemption fine and the same is within the prescribed limit as prescribed under Section 125 which provides that the amount of redemption fine shall not exceed the market value of the goods. Suffice it to say that the appellant is a habitual defaulter importing goods by mis-declaring both on account of quantity and 6 value is liable to penalty under Section 112(a)(ii) and section 114AA of the Act.

We accordingly, uphold the impugned order and dismiss the appeal.

32. Vijendra Singh Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General)

(Customs Appeal No. 50097 of 2020.
Final Order No. 50035/2024 dated 10.01.2024)

Issue:- Revocation of CHA License Forfeiture of Security and Penalty.

Held:- In terms of the aforesaid provisions of regulation 10(n) it is an admitted position that KYC norms were not verified before filing the bill of entry. Shri Shashikant Maruti Pol also admitted that he did not know the IEC holder of M/s. Pacific Imports as the work of import clearances were accepted from Shri Mehul Shah without even knowing him. Therefore, there is a clear violation by the Customs broker to know the antecedents, correctness of the IEC number, the identity and functioning of his client at the declared address as per the obligation cast on him under regulation 10(n). Even at the time of revocation of the suspension order, the Commissioner had also observed that there is prima-facie contravention of the provisions of Regulation 11(n) of CBLR, 2013. The appellant along with his representation dated 22.02.2017, had supplied copies of documents, KYC, reflecting the identity and antecedents of the importer, procured by the client and some of the documents such as authorisation letter dated 1.11.2016 for appointment of CHA, by the importer, M/s Pacific Imports, IEC copy of the importer, TIN, registration of the importer (State), TIN registration of the importer(Central) and proprietor's PAN was submitted at the time of personal hearing on 1.06.2019. The regulations provide for various penalties which can be imposed on the customs broker for violation of the provisions thereof. Regulation 17 provides for revocation of the license of a customs broker and for forfeiture of whole or part of the security. Regulation 18 provides for imposing penalty on the customs broker not exceeding Rs.50,000/-. The punishment of revocation of license has been held to be a very harsh punishment as it takes away the livelihood of a person on absolute basis. The Commissioner in the impugned order has taken a very fair and balanced view in refraining to order for revocation of licence and merely ordered for forfeiture of the security amount and imposing penalty of Rs.50,000/-, which would act as a deterrent to the appellant to be more cautious and diligent in executing his work.

The impugned order does not call for any interference and deserves to be upheld - Appeal dismissed.

33. Global Links Vs. Commissioner of Customs (A&G), New Delhi.

Final Order No. 50049/2024 dated 15.01.2024.)

Issue:- The present appeal filed by CB was against order-in-original No. 28/ZR/Suspension-Confirmation/Policy/2023 dated 09.05.2023 passed by the Commissioner wherein the suspension of the CB licence was confirmed for the violation of Regulations 10(d), 10(e) and 10(m) of the CBLR.

Held:- CESTAT held that that once a violation of CBLR Regulations is admitted, the Revenue has to follow the discipline governing the Customs House Agents and as such, the Commissioner of Customs is empowered to revoke the license of Customs House Agent and also to forfeit his security if such agent fails to comply with the provisions of Regulation or gets involved in the Act which would amount to misconduct/offence under the Act. Hence, there is no irregularity committed by the Adjudicating Authority while revoking the license of the appellant and imposing the consequential punishments under the Regulations. We do not find any infirmity in the impugned order. Consequently, the appeal stands dismissed.

34. Jain Wooltex Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Inland Container Depot

Final Order No. 50052/2024 dated 15.01.2024.

Issue:- It is a case of import of worn clothing in un-mutilated form. Briefly stated, the appellant filed the Bill of Entry for clearance of goods imported and declared as "Old Original Completely Pre-Mutated and Fumigated Mixed Hosiery Rags" and classified them under CTH 63109010.

The old un-mutialted mixed hosiery clothing classifiable under Tarrif item 63090000 is a restricted item as per 4 (ITC) (HS), 2017 notified under FTDR. read with paragraph 2.01 of the Foreign Trade Policy, 2015– 2020. As per para 2.08 of the Foreign Trade Policy, restricted items are permitted under an import License/Authorisation/Permission granted by the DGFT. The appellant has not submitted any such license and evaded duty.

Held:- CESTAT held that the goods imported were restricted goods and was imported without DFT Licence and the goods were mis-declared in respect of description, weight and value. Thus, the same are liable for confiscation and penalty under Section 112(a) of the Act for his act of omissions and commissions. The redemption fine imposed on the appellant of Rs.4,50,000/- is commensurate with the assessable value of the goods of ₹22, 90, 920/ and hence requires no interference.

35. Air Impex Cargo Agency vs Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General)

Final Order No. 50131/2024 dated 30.01.2024.)

Issue:- The appeal filed by CB was against revocation of Customs Broker license, forfeiture of security deposit and imposition of penalty. M/s Air Impex Cargo Agency, was instrumental and had actively connived with the main player by suggesting the description of the goods in the export documents and received extra amount in cash for clearance of the cargo of unscrupulous traders/exporters in export of carpet.

Held:- CESTAT held that the facts and circumstances of the case as discussed above are sufficient to establish the mensrea of the appellant. Accordingly, it is held that the adjudicating authority has not committed any error in holding that the Custom Broker Firm/appellant have failed in the compliance of the responsibilities cast upon them as per Regulation 10(a), (d), (e) and (n) of the Customs Broker Licensing Regulation, 2018, and 22 C/50499/2021 the consequent action for revoking the CB license, forfeiting the security deposit and imposing penalty.

36. Freight Logistics vs Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General)

Final order no. 50161/2024 dated 02/02/24

Issue:-In a case of an attempt to export masks or fabric of mask to China by the exporter M/s Ala Foodstuff Pvt. Limited, wherein despite being declared as "packing material for pouches," the goods were actually found as "non-woven fabrics", potentially used in mask manufacturing, prohibited for export according to DGFT Notification No. 52/2015-2020 dated 19.03.2020, the Custom Broker, M/s Freight Logistics, was issued a SCN for violation of Regulation 10(a), 10 (e) & 10 (n) of CBLR, 2018. Further, while adjudicating the case, the adjudicating authority refrained from revoking the license but ordered forfeiture of security deposit and imposed a penalty of Rs. 50,000/- in terms of CBLR, 2018. The Custom Broker, M/s Freight Logistics, appealed this decision, leading to the current proceedings.

Held:- It is held that applying the doctrine of proportionality the forfeiture of security deposit is far beyond proportion and imposition of penalty of Rs. 50,000/- is sufficient. Accordingly, the impugned order is modified to the extent that forfeiture of the security deposit needs to be set aside and only the order whereby the penalty has been imposed is affirmed. Therefore, the appeal, filed by the appellant customs broker is partly allowed.

37. R.P. Cargo Handling Services Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General)

Customs Appeal no. 50490/2019.
Final Order no. 50160/2024 dated 02/02/24

Issue:-Whether the Adjudicating Authority has rightly revoked the CB License, forfeited security deposit and imposed penalty.

Back

Held:- Hon'ble CESTAT has held that on the issue of proportionality of imposing the punishment, we are again guided by the decision of the Delhi High Court in D.S. Cargo (supra) where the Court took note of the fact that the revocation of the license came into effect on 4.2.2019 and more than 4 1/2 years had lapsed which itself is a severe punishment and will serve as a reprimand to the appellant to conduct its affairs with more alacrity, the same order needs to be maintained. In the present case also, the order of revocation came into effect on 4.2.2019 and almost more than five years have lapsed since the appellant has been out of work on that account and which is a sufficient punishment for him to be cautious in future. In the facts of the present case, the punishment by way of revocation of license and forfeiture of security deposit is too harsh.

Therefore, relying on the judgment of Hon'ble Delhi High Court in D.S. Cargo, Hon'ble CESTAT has only upheld penalty on the CB and set aside the revocation of CB licence and forfeiture of security deposit.

38. Ananya Exim vs Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General)

Customs Appeal no. 52773/2019.
Final order no. 50224/2024 dated 09/02/24

Issue:-Revocation of Customs Brokers licence of the appellant - forfeiture of security deposit - Levy of penalty - violation of Regulations 10(a), 10(d), 10(e), 10(m) and 10 (n) of CBLR.

Held:- The appellant would have been correct if it had obtained the documents from the importer M/s. Angel Corporation. Obtaining the documents from some other person and filing benami Bills of Entry to clear mis-declared cargo, which in this case, happens to be a psychotropic substance banned under NDPS Act cannot, in our view, constitute fulfilment of Regulation10(n) - the Commissioner was correct in holding in the impugned order that the appellant had violated Regulations 10(a), 10(d) and 10(n). A Customs Broker is expected to behave and operate responsibly and he cannot simply file benami Bills of Entry which, in this case, resulted in import of a psychotropic substance. Filing of Benami Bills of Entry, if condoned, can have severe consequences. Customs procedures are based on trust and selective controls based on risk assessment. If Customs Brokers start filing Benami Bills of Entry, in the name of any importer, it can open the floodgates for free import of any contraband including, drugs, arms and explosives. Since examination is on selective basis, chances are that the contraband may not be detected (especially if mis-declared as a low risk import good) - filing Benami Bills of Entry is a serious violation and calls for toughest action.

There are no reason to interfere with the impugned order and uphold it. The appeal is, accordingly, rejected.

39. Subhrabrata Chattaraj vs Commissioner of Customs, Indore

Customs Appeal no. 52684/2019.
Final Order no. 50249/2024 dated 15/02/2024

Issue:-Whether the Appellant is liable for penalty under section 112 (a) of the Customs Act, 1962 ?

Held:- Hon'ble CESTAT has held that facts apparent on record are sufficient to hold that appellant was intentionally aiding Kirit and all his associates to let them commit illegal imports. Hence, it was held that there are sufficient ingredients for commission of offence by the appellant. It is clear that the Appellant was well aware about the proxy imports of Ajay and Kirit which were being cleared from a non-EDI port which was under the Appellant's control. Being the in charge of the customs port it was his duty to discourage this fraudulent practice. However, he not only kept mum but also encouraged the proxy importers to undertake such proxy imports from his port and even facilitated such proxy importers which clearly show his connivance in promoting the fraudulent practices Cross-examination is vital for meeting out the allegations but when there is sufficient corroboration to those allegations, denial of cross-examination cannot be held prejudicial.

40. Bhalinder Singh Mann, Rohit Sharma, Container Corporation of India Limited Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Import)

Customs Appeal no. 51911,52193, 52419/2018.
Final Order 54487-54489 /2024 dated 26/2/24

Issue:- Mis-declaring the imported goods as "glass beads with holes"- mis-declaring the nature of goods - Imported goods were found to be glass chatons – confiscation under Sec 111 - imposition of penalty under Sec 112 and 114AA of the Customs Act,1962. For being hand in gloves in the whole episode.

Back

Held:- Admittedly, Shri Rohit Sharma made a categorical statement under section 108 of the Customs Act before the Superintendent that he was the Manager of M/s Nomita International and that he had obtained the documents related to the import from owner of M/s Nomita International and handed them to Shri Bhatt for further processing and filing the Bill of Entry, and that he aware of the undeclared chatons which were seized by the customs authorities. This statement was made on 21.11.2014 and has not been retracted. All the material facts which were indicated in the statement such as the address of M/s Nomita International and the nature of its business matched with the facts available on record. We, therefore, find no reason to believe that the statement was made incorrectly or and under pressure or coercion. We also find that there was no retraction of the statement since November, 2014 until the issue of the show cause notice more than a year later. Any person who makes a statement under threat or coercion retracts it once the threat or coercion is removed. In this case, the appellant claims that he had left the service of Shri Bhatt in November, 2014 itself. That being the case, there was no scope for Shri Bhatt to exert any pressure on the appellant after that date. That we find no reason to interfere with the impugned order. The impugned order is upheld and the appeal is rejected in so far as Shri Rohit Sharma is concerned.

41. Mahalaxmi Valves Pvt Ltd Vs. The Commissioner of Customs (Import)

Customs Appeal no. 50198 of 2024.
Final Order 54525/2024 dated: 27/2/24

Issue:-Denial of Cross Examination

Held:- Though, learned counsel for the appellant contended that denial of cross-examination would prejudice the case of the appellant, but in our opinion it would always be open to the appellant to raise this issue once the final order is passed by the Principal Commissioner. It would not be appropriate, at this stage, when the Principal Commissioner is in the process of adjudicating the show cause notice, to examine this issue.

The appeal is, accordingly, dismissed with liberty to the appellant to raise the issue of denial of cross-examination before the Tribunal after the Principal Commissioner decides the matter. The miscellaneous application and the early hearing application also stand disposed of.

42. Kashi Kumar Aggarwal Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Appeals)

Customs Appeal no. 50536 of 2022.
Final Order 50105/2024 dated: 30/01/24

Issue:-Whether the Tribunal Delhi may adopt the findings of the coordinate bench in deciding another appeal under rule 41 of the CESTAT Procedure Rules, 1982 when the matter has been preferred in appeal by both sides before the Hon'ble High Court, Delhi.

Held:- Applicant has filed this miscellaneous application, seeking implementation of the order dated 23 March 2023 passed by this Tribunal in Appeal No. C/50536 of 2022 – CU (DB). On perusal of the case records, we find that both sides have filed appeal against the order dated 23 March 2023 before the Hon'ble Delhi High Court. Since, the said order passed by the Tribunal has been assailed by way of filing appeal before the higher judicial forum, it cannot be said that the order passed by the Tribunal has attained finality. Therefore, we are of the view that the present application filed under Rule 41 of the CESTAT Procedure Rules, 1982 cannot be acted upon at this juncture, for passing of an order for implementation of the same. Accordingly, the miscellaneous application filed by the applicant is dismissed.

43. Harish Choudhary Vs. Commissioner of Customs Export, New Delhi

Dated: 26/02/24

Issue:- Whether the drawback amount that was appropriated against the liability of some other person and not the appellant can be considered as pre deposit under Sec 129E of the Customs Act, 1962.

Held:- The appellant has not made the pre-deposit. As the law relating to pre-deposit has been settled by the Supreme Court in Narayan Chandra Ghosh vs. UCO Bank and Others, Chandra Shekhar Jha etc and the High Courts in Dish TV India Limited vs. Union of India & Ors. And in M/s Vish Wind Infrastructure LLP v/s Additional Director General (Adjudication), New Delhi4 the appeal would have to be dismissed for non-compliance of the statutory mandatory requirement.

44. Ingram Micro India Private Limited Vs. Commissioner of Customs, ACC (Imports

Final Order 50266/2024 dated: 23/01/24

Issue:- Jurisdiction-power of Deputy Commissioner to re-assess the goods u/s 17(5) after the goods have been cleared for home consumption - Rejection of self-assessment by the importer of the imported goods whether the refund application can be entertained unless the assessment order has been challenged under sec 128 of the Customs Act, 1962. Whether the amendment application filed under sec 149 can be directed to be expedited.

Held:- It is not in dispute that in respect of eight Bills of Entry the appellant had not filed any appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals) for re-assessment. In this view of the matter, the Commissioner (Appeals) was justified in holding that the refund applications would not be maintainable in view of the decision of the Supreme Court in ITC. Decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court. It would, therefore, be appropriate that in case the application under sec 149 has already not been decided, it should be decided expeditiously and preferably within a period of three months from the date of filing of this order before the Deputy Commissioner.

45. Glanbia Performance Nutrition India Pvt Ltd Vs. CC, Mundra

Final Order No. A/11846-11874/2023 Dtd. 01.09.2023

Issue:- The appellant argued that Ld. Commissioner and Ld. AC have failed to consider the nature and composition of the impugned goods and simplistically reclassified the impugned goods under residual tariff heading 2106 of customs tariff.

Held:- It is clear that in instant case classification in favor of 2106 can be decided without resort to Explanatory Notes which in any case do not part of the legal provisions of the harmonized system. The matter can be decided with the help of statutory provisions of the Indian Customs tariff Act, 1975. While arriving at the above conclusion support is also drawn from the decision in the matter of Collector of Central Excise vs Frozen Food P.L reported in 1992.

46. Reliance Industries Ltd Vs. CC, Jamnagar

Final Order No. A/12380/2023 Dtd. 31.10.2023

Issue:- Short payment of Custom Duty and erroneous refund as the assessment of bill of entry was erroneously finalized by taking into consideration bill of lading quantity instead of Ship's Ullage Survey Report.

Held:- The matter is no longer res-integra as the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of M/s Mangalore Refinery and Petrochemicals Limited-2015 ELT 435(SC) has already decided the matter and the impugned order-in-appeal is legally tenable.

47. Amardeep Exports Vs. CC, Jamnagar

Final Order No. A/10267-10272/2023 Dtd. 30.01.2024

Issue:- The appellants were importing mix Brass scarp for manufacture for their final products in terms of Notification 52/2003 -CUSTOM dated 31.03.2003. The imported mix Brass scrap was first subjected to segregation and as a result non foundry scrap and foundry scrap were obtained. The foundry scrap was utilized in the manufacture of finish goods went for export. The dispute in the instant case is if the appellant has utilized raw material in excess of that prescribed - in the input/ output norms. It was alleged that appellants have utilized has excess imported raw material for the purpose as compare to the quantity eligible for manufacture of the finished goods.

Held:- Hon'ble Bench find that all the customs appeals the facts are practicably identical. We do not find any merit in appeals filed by the appellant the same are dismissed.

48. Isgec Heavy Engineering Ltd Vs. CC, Ahmedabad

Final Order No. A/11897/2023 Dtd. 11.09.2023

Issue:- The clearance of the capital goods under EPCG was allowed under provisional assessment as per the provision of SEZ Act/Rules. The Department case was that appellant has not exited from SEZ and they are not eligible for clearing the capital goods under prevailing EPCG scheme as removal of goods is only available as per the Rule 74(4) of the SEZ Rules, 2006.

Held:- Stipulation of one time availment of EPCG Scheme at the time of exit cannot be read as permitting availment of EPCG Scheme under Rule 34 of SEZ Rule 2006 particularly under expression “on License” appearing in that Rule. Export promotional schemes since 1994 after existence of W.T.O are being made by member countries as complaint to the W.T.O provisions requiring no element of subsidy to be allowed even entering through procedural mechanism.

49. Bhatia Shipping Pvt Ltd Vs. CC, Kandla

Final Order No. A/11665/2023 Dtd. 04.08.2023

Issue:-Imposition of penalty for failure to properly perform the duty of CHA. A penalty has been imposed under Section 114 (iii) for violation of provisions of Section 34, 40 and 51 of the Customs Act.

Held:- The claim of the appellant is that the goods are liable for confiscation under Section 113 and therefore no penalty can be imposed. The goods were allowed to be loaded without let export order of the Custom officer. It is duty of the CHA to ensure that proper procedure is followed. In these circumstances. Hon’ble Bench do not find any merit in the appeal. The same is dismissed.

50. M M Trading Company Vs. CC, Mundra

Final Order No. A/11695/2023 Dtd. 14.08.2023

Issue:-the appellant filed Bill of Entry No.7032841 dated 02.07.2018 for clearance of 198.32 Mts of "Industrial Composite Mixture" classifying the goods under CTH 27101990. As per the test report, the imported goods were found "Light Oil, and not "Industrial Composite Mixture". The adjudicating authority found that the imported goods are classifiable under tariff heading 27101290 i.e. 'Other of sub heading Light Oils and Preparations'. The adjudicating authority also found that goods falling under tariff heading 27101290 are allowed to be imported through State Trading Enterprises (STE) only as per Policy condition-5 of Chaptr-27 of ITC (HS), Schedule-1. However, the appellant is neither STE nor they have submitted any documents showing grant of such rights by the DGFT to import or export any of the goods notified for exclusive trading through STES, therefore, they have violated the policy conditions of Foreign Trade Policy.

Held:- Party have accepted the classification and the nature of goods without seeking any re-test of the sample, we find that the present appeal is devoid of merits both on classification issue as well as violation of ITC policy and penalties imposed.

51. Asia World Export Vs. CCE, Ahmedabad

Issue:- . They imported "Glass Beads Chatons" and sought classification under Heading 70181020. The goods were examined by Government approved valuer on 06.02.2014, and he certified the goods as "Glass Chatons" and described the goods as conical shaped stones resembling artificial diamonds without any piercing/ hole. This according to the revenue was not confirming the definition of "Beads", but appeared to be confirming to the "Chatons”.

Held:- It is apparent that the custom tariff itself was different when decision of Tribunal in the case of M/s. Art Beads Pvt Ltd was given and the same was the condition when the decision of Hon'ble High Court of Bombay was given in the case of M/s Starlite Corporation. In both these cases the classification was not being examined under the new custom tariff and in both these cases the explanatory notes given in HSN were not brought to the knowledge of the Courts.

52. Ply Point Vs. Commissioner of Customs Cochin

Issue:- Whether there was under-valuation in the import of Medium Density Fibre (MDF) Boards and Particle Boards from Malaysia

Held:- Based on the statements of the Country Manager of supplier, documents retrieved from his computer and the statement of the importer, the tribunal came to a conclusion that the Commissioner was right in determining the value of the goods under Rule 4 of the Customs Act, 1962. Accordingly, the differential duty demanded under Proviso to Section 28(1) of the Customs Act along with interest was upheld. It was also held that the goods were liable for confiscation and confiscation was upheld. Since Penalty imposed under Section 114A was upheld, penalty imposed on the importer under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act, 1962 was set aside.

53. American Power Conversion India (P) Ltd Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, Customs & ST, Bangalore (South)

Issue:- The appellants had imported Enviro-Tuff Liner packing material classifying the product under CTH 39232990 and claimed the benefit of Notification No. 52/2003. The issue was whether the impugned goods could be considered to be packing material and the benefit of notification extended.

Held:- The Tribunal held that all second hand goods were restricted for import. The appellants had violated the provisions of Foreign Trade Policy and hence the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) was correct. The duty demand along with interest was confirmed and redemption fine & penalty was reduced to 10% and 5 % respectively.

54. Elite Green Pvt. Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Customs- Cochin

Issue:- Refund claim of SAD@4% paid through Debit in the DEPB/ REWARD Scheme Script.

Held:- Appeal rejected on account of Appellant making 4% SAD payment by debiting in the DEPB/ REWARD Scheme Script and claiming refund, which is found to be violation of time limit fixed 30th Sep. 2013 (last fixed Deadline) as per Circular 18/2013-Cus dated 29.04.2013.

55. Hikoki Power Tools India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Customs (City Customs) Bangalore

Issue:- Classification of Brush cutters. The appellant wanted to classify under CTH 84322990 since that were used for Agricultural purpose. Department wanted to classify the same under CTH 84678990 since the said goods are hand held and HSN explanatory notes clearly mention Brush cutters under CTH 84678990

Held:- The Tribunal held that a plain reading of tariff entries and the HSN Notes make it clear that CTH 8467 refers to hand held tools whereas CTH 8432 and CTH 8433 refer to machines that are used in place of hand held tools. The Tribunal also clarified that the purpose for which the tools are used is not the criteria to determine the classification. The Tribunal relied on Hon'ble Apex Court's decision in the case of M/s O.K. Play (India) Ltd. Vs. CCE-2005 (180)ELT 300.

56. IBM India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Customs (City Customs) Bangalore

Issue:-The appellant made import of Goods viz. SPO FOR 5691XXX CATIA HYBRID DESIGN vide BoE 276457 dated 27.11.2009. The said goods were cleared upon assessment and due payment of Customs duty. However, Post clearance of said Goods, the appellant came up with a request for amendment of BoE to change the Value of Goods based on purported PO/ amended PO bearing lesser Value on which said Goods were assessed and OOC given by the Customs officer. Upon examination the Provisions under Section 149 of Customs Act, 1962 it was held to be not applicable Held:- The Hon'ble Tribunal held that the Provision of Section 149 of the Customs Act, 1962 cannot be held applicable in the fact of the case. With goods already been cleared on payment of appropriate duty, based on the Value as per PO, the Document which stood existed. Seeking amendment under Section149 of the Customs

Act, 1962, on the basis of Documents viz. Amended PO not found/ made available at the time of Assessment, that too they being ACP client, with No Examination of Goods as such, cannot be legally Tenable. Thus, appeal stands rejected by the Tribunal, upholding the Commissioner (Appeals) order.

57. ABB Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Customs, ACC- Bangalore

Issue:- Classification of 'Frequency Converter' (Variable Speed Drive) : Whether under Heading 9032 8990 as claimed by the Appellants or under Heading 8504 4010 as classified by the Department Held:- These drives primary function as conversion of the current from DC to AC and also functions as inverters. Chapter 85 includes all machinery and 8504 specifically includes electric inverter and the drives fall under either Chapter 84 or 85 and they have nothing to do with Chapter 9032. Admittedly, the principal function of the imported item is of an inverter and it is also not under dispute that these drives are being used in those machinery which are classifiable under Chapter 84 or 85 Therefore based on the Section Notes there is no confusion as to the classification of the product. It also says that the machine refers to the machines classifiable under Chapter 84 or 85 so the question of classifying the product under Chapter 90 does not arise. The WCO also for which India is a member decided the classification of the 'frequency converter' under Chapter 8504. Accordingly, in view of the Technical Literature submitted by the appellant and based on the relevant Section Notes, Chapter Notes, HSN Explanatory Notes, General Rules for the Interpretation of Import Tariff and the WCO decision, the products are rightly classifiable under Chapter Heading 8504 as against the classification under Chapter Heading 9032 as claimed by the appellant.

58. The Commissioner of Customs, City Customs- Bangalore Vs. Kronos Systems India Ltd.

Issue:- Classification of Kronos 4500 Touch ID terminal chips with an integrated badge reader.

Held:- The device captures the data from the employee's card or the data of the particular employee who key in the PIN into the device. The device does not do anything except for collecting the data at the time of entry or exit and this data is transmitted to a central server for further processing like marking the attendance, preparation of payroll or for other purposes. Based on the General Rules of Interpretation and the Chapter Notes, the item needs to be classified in the heading akin to it or where the specific description is provided. In this case, the data collection device is nothing but a card reader working in conjunction with the server. Thus, this device functions such as proximity readers /badge readers, which are specifically classified under Chapter Heading No.8543. Hence the product is rightly classifiable under chapter 8543.

59. Glass House Vs. The Commissioner of Customs, Cochin

Issue:-As per the Notification No.4/2009 Cus. dated 06.01.2009, the imported goods "Dark Green Reflective Float Glass" imported from China were liable for anti-dumping duty.

Held:- In the present case, since Reflective Glass is not found in the Notification No.4/2009- Cus. dated 06.01.2009 for exempting them from anti-dumping duty, question of extending the benefit does not arise. The Appeal is dismissed.

60. The Commissioner of Customs, City Customs- Bangalore Vs. Larson & Tuobro

Issue:- Import of G-24 PL 001 GSM Chipset Wavecom (modem) classified under 8517 6230.The Original Authority classified under Chapter Heading 8537 1000.

Held:- Rightly classifiable under Chapter Heading 8537. Consequently, the impugned order is set aside and the appeal filed by the Revenue is allowed.

61. Woodtech Consultants (P) Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Bangalore (West)

Issue:- Under invoicing the imported goods f wood working machines to the extent of 40%. Demand was confirmed by enhancing the assessable value to Rs.1,56,71,221/- with interest; imposed penalty of Rs.14,97,179/- and equal interest under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962; also, he has imposed penalty of Rs.3,00,000/- on Shri T. Gopi, Managing Director and Rs.2,00,000/- on Shri D. Madan Raj under Section 112(b) of the Customs Act, 1962.

Held:- Appeal filed by the appellant-company is dismissed and the appeals of other appellants are partially allowed to the extent that the penalty imposed on Shri T. Gopi, Managing Director is reduced to Rs.2,00,000/- (Rupees Two Lakhs Only) and the penalty imposed on Shri D. Madan Raj, Marketing Director is reduced to Rs.1,00,000/- (Rupees One Lakh Only) under Section 112(b) of the Customs Act, 1962.

62. ABB Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Customs, City Customs- Bangalore

Issue:- The appellant had filed Bill of Entry No.860886 dated 19.9.2008 declaring goods as inverter unit – frequency converter classifying the same under CTH 9032 9000 and claiming concessional rate of duty. The Department has reclassified the product under CTH 8504 4010 as 'inverter'. Aggrieved by the said assessment, they filed appeal before the learned Commissioner (A), who in turn upheld the order of the adjudicating authority and rejected their appeals Held:- Hon'ble CESTAT has ordered that they do not find any reason in not following the said order of the Tribunal. Consequently, the product in question merits classification under CTH 8504 instead of CTH 9032 as claimed by the appellant. Consequently, the appeal is dismissed.

63. The Commissioner of Customs, City Customs- Bangalore Vs. Bosch Ltd.

Issue:- M/s. Bosch Limited imported Smartra Immobilisers classifying the same under Chapter Heading 8536 5090 as automatic regulating and controlling instrument and apparatus. From the catalogue submitted by the respondent, the C/1774/2010 Page 2 of 15 imported item vehicle immobiliser system consisted of key head with transponder, antenna, Smartra, and engine management system. From the various features of the imported items, it was found that it was an optional item to be fitted to vehicle engine for better security. The engine of the vehicle would not start if any improper starting of the vehicle was attempted and thus, prevented theft. It was an antitheft device and accordingly, the item was classified under chapter heading 8708 9900 as accessories of vehicles by the original authority. However, on appeal, the Commissioner (Appeals) observed that Smartra components are made up of digital circuit with the character interface and the device directs electronic signals between the engine management system and the transponder and once the car engine is stopped the EMS immobilises the vehicle by disabling control of the spark ignition circuit and fuel supply. Going by the Australian Customs Authority's classification, the Commissioner (Appeals) classified the said item under 8536 5090. The department is in appeal against this impugned order.

Held:- Since the Smartra immobiliser is only a security device to prevent a vehicle from being stolen it is rightly classifiable under Chapter Heading 8708 as parts of motor vehicle. When the primary evidences and criteria for classification as discussed supra do not allow classifying the items under Chapter Heading 8536, the question of following the Tariff Advice which is only a persuasive value does not arise. The impugned order is set aside and the appeal is allowed.

64. Enterprise Software Solutions Lab Vs. The Commissioner of Customs, City Customs- Bangalore

Final Order No. 21438/2023 dated 22.12.2023

Issue:- M/s. Enterprise Software Solutions Lab Ltd., Bangalore, had imported T4 Fingerprint Time & Attendance System and K200 Proximity Time & Attendance System under Customs Tariff Heading 8471 4190. The assessing authority C/255/2012 Page 2 of 10 classified them under 8543 and aggrieved by this order the appellant filed an appeal before commissioner appeals who classified them under 8471. The revenue filed an appeal before this Tribunal and the Tribunal vide Final Order dated 11.8.2010 had remanded the matter to re-examine the issue

Back

Held:- This Tribunal, recently, in the case of Commissioner of Customs, Bangalore vs. M/s. Kronos Systems India Pvt. Ltd. vide Final Order No.21155 of 2023 dated 20.10.2023, in an identical issue held the product to be rightly classifiable under Chapter 8543. 12. Hence, based on the above discussions and by following the decisions of this Bench, we find that the product is rightly classifiable under Chapter 8543.

65. Fobin Poly Glass Vs. The Commissioner of Customs, City Customs- Bangalore

Issue:- This is a case of mis-declaration and undervaluation of the goods imported. The authorities below found that the imported item was A-15 Tender Rigid Inflatable Boat of APEX making which was mis-declared as A-15 Open Rigid Inflatable Boat vide Bill of Entry No.2825505 dated 22.2.2011. Shri Harish J Padmanabh, Proprietor of M/s. Forbin Poly Glass (the Appellant) in his statement had clearly admitted that he was not aware of the model as there was no purchase order and hence, accepting the mis-declaration requested vide letter dated 26.3.2011 to adjudicate the case without issuance of show-cause notice and also requested the authorities to take a lenient view.

Held:- There is nothing placed on record to disprove either the mis-declaration or undervaluation of the goods that were imported. In view of the admitted facts on mis- declaration and undervaluation, we find that the redemption fine is only Rs.1,00,000 and penalty imposed is only Rs25,000/- which is 10% of the duty liability, which is reasonable. Therefore, we find no reason to interfere with the impugned order. Consequently, the impugned order is upheld and the appeal is dismissed.

66. Sree Rayalaseema Hi Strength Hypo Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Customs- Cochin

Issue:- The appellant used to export Chlorine content more than 60" and as per International Maritime Dangerous Goods Code, it was difficult to export the goods under same heading. Thus goods were exported as "Calcium Hypocloride Hydrated". Due to change of description as stated above, the benefit of DEPB denied to be appellant. Thereafter appellant approached DGFT and DGFT issued Public Notice No.96 dated 05.04.2006 for amending description of the product as "Calcium Hypochlorite Hydrated". After issuing amendment, appellant made a request before the respondent to amend the shipping bill for converting free shipping bill to DEPB shipping bill. To support the claim, appellant also produced certificate from "Indian Institute of Chemical Technology" to prove that both the description are one and the same. However adjudicating authority denied the request by this impugned order. Aggrieved by the same, present appeal is filed before this Tribunal Held:- Though it is admitted that the circular No.36/2010 dated 23.09.2010 fixing time limit of 3 Months is not proper, as held by C/1294/2012, Hon'ble High Court of Delhi in the matter of E.S.LIGHTING TECHNOLOGIES PVT. LTD. (Supra), merely because no time limitation is prescribed under Section 149 for the purpose of seeking amendment/conversion, it does not follow that a request in that regard could be made after passage of any length of time. The request by the appellant was to convert shipping bill from free to advance license shipping bill. The Respondent cannot entertain such request for conversion without examination of the records. It is not fair to expect the department to consider the request for such amendment after 5 long years. Thus there is no infirmity in the impugned order rejecting the request for amending shipping bill for converting free shipping bill to DEPB shipping bill 6 years after export of goods. Considering the above facts, appeal is rejected.

67. Cochin Shipyard Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Customs- Cochin

Issue:- The refund claim filed by the appellants was rejected on grounds of unjust enrichment. The appellant claimed that the amount received from the buyer was to be paid back on receipt of the refund and shown in balance sheet as such.

Held:- In the present case it is clear that the duty burden was passed on to the buyer. It is settled law that unless and until the importer proves that incidence of duty has not been passed on to the buyer, the question of refund does not arise. The Tribunal relied on the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Union of India Vs. Pesticide Pvt. Ltd. 2000 (116) E.L.T. 401 (S.C.).

The appeal was dismissed.

Back

68. Lovable Lingerie Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Customs (City Customs) Bangalore

Final Order No. 20041/2024 dated 10.01.2024

Issue:- The present appeal is regarding the classification of the goods 'Bra Cups' imported by the appellant during the period from 25.02.2010 to 14.07.2010. The appellant claimed classification under CTH 3926 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 as against the classification by the Revenue in the impugned order under CTH 6212.

Held:- We uphold the classification of the imported goods under CTH 6212 and consequently, impugned order is upheld as far as classification is concerned and appeal is remanded to the adjudicating authority to recalculate the duty taking into consideration the unit price for pairs as a single unit price.

69. The Commissioner of Customs Mangalore Vs. RMKS Minerals Exports (P) Ltd.

Issue:- What would be the relevant date for payment of duty in case of export of goods. The Original Authority had rejected the refund claim on the ground that the relevant date would be the date of 'Let Export Order'. Commissioner (Appeals) had allowed the refund taking date of loading of goods in the vessel as the relevant date.

Held:- The Tribunal held that the relevant section to determine the rate of duty is Section 16 read with Section 50 of the Customs Act ,1962. As per Section 16, the date of 'let export order' is the date for determining the rate of duty. The reliance placed by the Commissioner (Appeals) on Section 18 & 19 of the Customs Act, 1962 is irrelevant as they relied on the Order of on'ble High court of Bombay in the case of Narayan Bandekar & Sons Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commr. of Cus. & C. EX, Goa 2010 (259) E.L.T. 362 and C. EX., CUS. & S.T., BBSR- I Vs. Kashvi Power & Steel (P) Ltd. 2018 (364) E.L.T. 332 The impugned order was set aside & Revenue Appeal allowed.

70. The Commissioner of Customs City Customs- Bangalore Vs. Snom Technology India Ltd.

Issue:- Classification of Fingerprint Reader- Whether under CTH 8476050 as part of Automatic Data Processing Machines or under CTH 85437099

Held:- The Tribunal observed that the issue was decided in cases of CC vs. Kronos Systems India Pvt. Ltd. Final Order No. 21155/2023 dated 20.10.2023 & Commissioner of Customs, Bangalore vs. Scatia: 2019 (370) ELT 703. Since the specific function of the imported item is to mark attendance hence it is excluded from Chapter 84 by virtue of Chapter Note 5(e) to Chapter 84. Hence the Departmental Appeal was allowed.

71. Nuance Group (India) Pvt. Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Customs (ACC) Bangalore

Issue:- The appellant was operating Private Bonded Warehouse and Duty free shop at Bangalore International Airport under Section 58 of the Customs Act, 1962, under such conditions as specified in Trade facility No. 50/2005 dated 05.04.2005 issued by Bangalore Customs. The appellant had launched a promotional offer for sale of Johnnie Walker and Smirnoff Brand liquor in terms of " Buy JW centurians 3 for 2, buy JW Black 3 for 2" without any prior information to Customs Authorities. The Appellant had sold one extra bottle of liquor, without payment of duty and thereby violated the provisions of Section 72 of the Customs Act, 1962 and Trade facility No. 50/2005. Admittedly accepting the lapse, the appellant paid duty of Rs. 14,21,751/-. The Original Authority confirmed the demand along with interest and imposed penalty of Rs. 50,000/-. Subsequently, the appellant disputed the duty liabilities on the ground that the duty needs to be collected from the passengers.

Held:- The Hon'ble Tribunal observed that the appellant is bound by the provisions under Section 58 and Section 72 of the Customs Act, 1962 and that permission for running the DFS was granted with the strict conditions that the import of goods such as liquor were allowed duty free only for the purpose of selling the same to the International Passengers and subject to maintenance of specified records. Observing that the license of DFS is liable to pay if the provisions of Sections and Procedures laid down therein are violated, the Hon'ble Tribunal held that the question of passengers paying duty does not arise. Therefore, Hon'ble Tribunal has upheld the duty confirmed, with interest, however, penalties imposed has been set aside.

72. UDL Logistics (P) Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Customs- City Bangalore

Final Order No. 20036/2024 dated 09.01.2024

Issue:- The DRI officers intercepted export consignments pertaining to M/s. TEAC Engineers where the products were declared as "Ductile Industrial Pipes" but on examination of the consignment, it contained red sanders logs which are prohibited items for export. Since the appellant had filed these shipping bills and had violated the Customs Brokers Licensing Regulations (CBLR) 2018 and therefore, they were issued with show-cause notice which culminated into impugned order wherein the Commissioner revoked the license and ordered for forfeiture of entire security deposit and imposed penalty of ₹50,000/-. The appellant is in appeal against this impugned order.

Held:- The Tribunal held that we find no reason for revoking the license of the appellant and for forfeiture of the security deposit. Therefore, we set aside the revocation of license and forfeiture of the security deposit. However, the fact remains that the goods that were declared as 'Industrial Ductile Pipes' were found to be 'red sander logs' and the shipping bills were filed by the appellant. For having violated the Regulations of CBLR in not verifying the genuineness of Mr. Satish Kumar who claims to the authorised representative of the exporter will warrant penalty under CBLR 2018. Accordingly, we uphold the penalty of Rs50,000/- (Rupees Fifty Thousand Only). The appeal is allowed partly.

73. Saraswati Knitwear Pvt. Ltd. vs Commissioner of Customs Ludhiana

Issue:-Interest on refund filed under section 18 and 27A of the Customs Act, 1962

Held:-The refund was granted within 3 months as prescribed under Section 18 (4) of the Act. Therefore, the appellant is not entitled to any interest.

74. Safe Cargo Clearing Services vs. C. C. Ludhiana

Issue:--Revocation of Custom Broker License under Regulation 17 of CBLR 2018.

Held:-Held that revocation of custom broker license of the appellant is not warranted. The revocation was set aside. As far as the imposition of penalty and forfeiture of security deposit are concerned, the Bench was of the opinion that the imposition of penalty of Rs. 50,000/- and forfeiture of security are justified in the facts and circumstances of the case. Adjustment of excess payment of service tax of one period towards the liability of the other period. Appeal dismissed.

75. Narayan Sharma Pardeep Saini Sreet Saini Vaibhav Rai Rakesh Rai Vs. C. C. Amritsar

Issue:--Recovery of 999.5 gram of smuggled gold at airport, confiscation thereof, and further duty, and penalty imposed.

Held:-Held that
-Absolute confiscation of gold bar weighing 995.5 grams valued at Rs 32,98,350/-, seized, under section 111(d), 111(1), 111(1) and 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962 was upheld.
- dropped the demand of duty of Rs 11,80,872 under section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962 and order its recovery from Sh. Narayan Sharma.
- the order of the Ld. Commissioner regarding absolute confiscation of Indian currency of Rs 2.20 lacs of Sh. Pardeep Saini, under Section 121 of the Customs Act, 1962 was upheld.
- the penalty on Sh. Pardeep Saini and Shri Rakesh Rai was reduced from Rs. 15,00,000/- to 5,00,000/- under Section 112 of the Customs Act, 1962;
- the penalty of Rs. 1,00,000/- on Sh. Narayan Sharma, under Section 112 of the Act read with section 114 of the Act was upheld.
- The penalty of Rs.5,00,000/- on Sh. Vaibhav Rai, under Section 112 of the Customs Act, 1962 was upheld.
-The penalty of Rs. 50,000/- on Smt. Sreet Saini, under Section 117 of the Act was upheld.

76. C. C. New Delhi (Import & General) vs Namo Alloys Pvt Ltd

Issue:--Import: Value loading of aluminium scrap

Held:-Held that in the case of C. C. (Import), ICD, TKD, New Delhi vs. M/s Sodagar Knitwear Pvt. Ltd. where the Tribunal has held that once the importer voluntarily accepted the enhancement then he is precluded from challenging the same. This judgment of the Tribunal has been upheld by the Hon'ble Apex Court as reported in 2018 (362) ELT A213 (S.C.).

In view of above, the Bench was of the considered view that the impugned order is not sustainable in law and therefore, the same was set aside by allowing the appeals of the department.

77. Royal International Vs Commr. Of Customs, Amritsar

Issue:- imposition of penalty of Rs. 1,00,000/- under Section 114(i) of the Customs Act, 1962.

Held:- I was held that under Section 114(i) of the Customs Act under which penalty has been imposed in this case, does not require intend to be proved and the only condition that has to be satisfied is that the goods should be liable for confiscation which is clearly satisfied in the present case. In view of this, I do not find any infirmity in the impugned order which I uphold subject to the reduction of the penalty to the extent of Rs. 50,000/-.

78. Nanda Agency House Shipping Service Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Chennai-II

Final Order No.40715/2023

Issue:- Re-assessment of imported "Glass Bottom Boat Looker 350" under CTH. 89011030 at 'Nil' rate of duty. Claim of refund of Customs duty Rs.93,47,327/-paid on 01.09.2015. Delay of 253 days in grant of refund .Demand for interest at higher rate at 9% instead of Notified rate of 6%.

Held: There are no circumstances in the present case warranting to grant increased rate of interest to the appellant. The impugned order is sustained. Appeal is dismissed as being devoid of merits.

79. 1. Ghazzali Trading. 2. N.Akbar Proprietor, Ghazzali Trading Vs. Commissioner of Customs , Chennai Air

Customs Appeal No.42310 of 2013 & 42311 of 2013
Final Order No.40868-40869 of 2023 dt.05.10.23

Issue:- Based on the allegation of misuse of IEC and filing of Bills of Entry under self-clearance, a show Cause Notice dated 28.06.2013 was issued proposing confiscation of goods imported as per bills-of-entry nos. 8761027, 8713098 and 8695651.It was also proposed in the Show Cause Notice as to imposition of penalty under Section 112 (a) of the Customs Act, 1962 on both the assessee as well as his manager.

Held: It is held that the assessee has not proved beyond reasonable doubt that the goods in question imported under the air way bills/bills-of-entry in dispute were in fact filed by him and hence the only natural corollary available to the Revenue is the confiscation of the same. For this, the Revenue need not prove the owner of the goods; when a claimant does not prove that the goods in question belongs to him, it is not for the Revenue to thereafter establish a certain actual owner of the goods. The assessee made the Revenue believe his words, which resulted in the initiation of investigation and thereafter, he also claimed that he was the actual owner of the goods imported. Hence, it is of the opinion that the assessee could be held to be 'any person' within the meaning of Section 112 of the Customs Act, 1962 and therefore, the Revenue is justified in imposing penalty on the assessee- Appellant.

80. HLG Trading Vs. Chief Commissioner, Chennai-IV

Final Order No. 40902-40915 OF 2023 dt. 12.10.23

Issue:- Whether the appellants are entitled to the benefit of Notification No. 34/2015-C.E. dated 17.07.2015 and Notification No.37/2015-C.E. dated 21.07.2015?

Back

Held:- At the outset, given the undisputed facts, we do not find any reasons at all to interfere with the impugned Orders-in-Appeal since we find that the Hon'ble High Court of Judicature has analysed the law and the change brought about by subsequent Notification Nos. 34/2015 and 37/2015 ibid has been followed. Though the vires of amended Notification Nos.34/2015-C.E. dated 17.07.2015 and 37/2015-C.E. dated 21.07.2015 were challenged before the Hon'ble jurisdictional High Court, the Hon'ble High Court has held that there are no merits in the writ petitions. We also note that in the case of Commissioner of Cus. (Exports), Chennai v. Prashray Overseas Pvt. Ltd. [2016 (338) E.L.T. 44 (Mad.)], the very Hon'ble jurisdictional High Court had gone into the very same issue and allowed the revenue appeal. The Ld. first appellate authority has only followed the binding decision of the Hon'ble High Court (supra) and therefore, we do not find any fault with the impugned orders. In view of the above, we do not find any merit in the contentions of the appellants.

81. Aditya International Ltd. Vs. CC(Air Cargo) , Ch-VII

Final Order No. 40902-40915 of 2023 dt. 12.10.23

Issue:- whether the appellants are entitled to the benefit of Notification No. 34/2015-C.E. dated 17.07.2015 and Notification No.37/2015-C.E. dated 21.07.2015?

82. Micro Labs Limited Vs. Commissioner of Customs

Final Order No. 40916 of 2023 dt. 12.10.23

Issue:- whether the appellant/assessee was right in its claim for nil rate of CVD in terms of the Notification No. 12/2012-C.Ex Sl. No. 105, List 1 Sl. No.11

Held: The appellant's claim after clearance of goods from Customs charge that since it imported Hydrocortisone which has a specific entry in List 1, the same attracts 'nil' ate of duty, does not sound to be correct, since the description at Column No. (3) has to be read in full, along with the explanation provided thereunder and, according to us, it is the explanation which controls the 'description of goods' for eligibility for rate of duty at 'nil'. Admittedly, the appellant/assessee has nowhere demonstrated that the goods imported by it did conform to the standards specified under the explanation nor are the goods available for testing as they were cleared from Customs control before making the claim for exemption. We do not have any hesitation in holding the authorities below were absolutely correct in rejecting the claim of the Appellant and thereby the appeal stands dismissed.

83. Balaji Building Technologies (P) Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Imports), Chennai

Final Order No. 41121 OF 2023 dt. 13.12.2023

Issue:- Mis-declaration of Clear Float Glass made by the Appellant to avoid anti-dumping duty

Held: Even if the duty paid by the appellant were more than what was demanded, it would not in any way affect the classification as such. There was a fundamental dispute as regards classification since clear float glass attracted Anti-Dumping Duty; the Revenue went by the first check/personal inspection of the cargo and the description label on the goods. The same was adopted since it was never challenged. The appellant, by raising a ground that the duty was paid for Extra Clear Glass, is indirectly trying to justify its classification which cannot be permitted. When there were clearly no doubts in the minds of the Revenue as to what was imported was float glass, then necessary consequences ought to follow, inasmuch as the liability to ADD cannot be overlooked just because the appellant has been magnanimous in remitting more duty. If the said theory is accepted, then the same would affect the classification itself. Hence, the theory of the appellant cannot be accepted as the same lacks any merit.

84. Tamilnadu Dyes and Chemicals Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Tuticorin

Final Order No. 41124 OF 2023 dt. 14.12.2023

Issue:- Mis-declaration of imports of Superior Kerosene Oil as Low Aromatic White Spirit (LAWS). Whether remand by Commissioner (Appeals) sustainable?

Held: In the light of the above discussion, we do not find any piece of evidence to take a contrary view to the finding of the first appellate authority as to the classification of the imported goods as 'Superior Kerosene Oil' by rejecting the uncorroborated classification as LAWS by the appellant. Hence, as objected to by the appellant, we are also of the view that the Commissioner (Appeals) should have closed the case instead of remanding the matter back to the file of the original authority, which is against the amended provisions of Section 128A of the Customs Act, 1962, which has withdrawn the power of the Commissioner (Appeals) to remand the case for fresh adjudication except for those issues mentioned at Section 128A (3) (b), which does not cover the impugned issue. In that view of the matter, we dismiss the appeal filed by the appellant, however, setting aside that part of the impugned order whereby the first appellate authority has remanded the matter back to the file of the original authority. In the result, the order of the original authority is restored.

85. Commissioner of Customs-IV Vs. Gamesa Wind Turbines Pvt. Ltd.

Final Order No. 40947 OF 2023 dt. 20.10.23

Issue:- The importer had imported parts of Wind Operated Electricity Generators but failed to submit a Certificate from Ministry of Non-Renewable Energy to claim exemption of SAD Notification No.21/2014-Cus. dated 11.07.2014 and hence refund claim of Special Additional Duty (S.A.D) was rejected by the department

Held:- The facts narrated above show that one of the conditions for availing the benefit of the exemption from S.A.D at the time of import of the impugned goods is that the importer has to produce a certificate from the Ministry of New and Renewable Energy, Govt. of India. The respondent has not furnished the certificate while filing the Bills of Entry. There is nothing stated in the notification that the said condition can be condoned even if the respondent does not have the required certificate and have furnished only an office memorandum issued by the Ministry of Non-Renewable Energy(MNRE). We therefore find that the order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals)is not legal and proper. The direction to remand the matter so as to recall and reassess the bills of entry cannot therefore sustain. The impugned order is set aside. The order passed by the original authority is restored. The appeal filed by the Department is allowed.

86. Premier Enterprises Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise & Customs, Coimbatore

Final Order No. 40077 / 2024 dt. 24.01.24

Issue:- Licence renewal by CHA-Misconduct- Regulations of the CBLR.

Held: In the light of our above observations and discussions, we do not find any irregularity or illegality committed by the Commissioner, Regulations of the CBLR authorize the Commissioner to check if there is anything adverse against a firm or company seeking fresh licence and to grant renewal of the same if there are no instances of any complaints of misconduct. Hence, we do not find any merit in the appeal filed by the appellant, for which reason the appeal is dismissed.

87. IQDS Dental India Private Limited Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Chennai-VII

Final Order No. 40075 / 2024 dt. 23.01.24

Issue:- Enhancement of value of Fingertip Pulse Oximeter Blue Colour in terms of Rule 5 of the Customs Valuation Rules, 2007.

Held: Insofar as the enhancement of value of Fingertip Pulse Oximeter is concerned, no specific arguments were advanced before us. Even from the grounds-of appeal as well as the synopsis filed during the course of arguments, we do not find any specific ground to this effect questioning the enhancement of transaction value insofar as the oximeter is concerned. Therefore, the appeal insofar as the enhancement of value of the oximeter is concerned, is dismissed.

Appeal No. C/75462/2014 Final order No. 75087/2024

Issue:--- The appellant exported their goods but rejected by the overseas importer, these goods were re-imported in india and the appellant opted to get the benefit of notification No.27/2002-Cus dated 01/04/2002. As per this notification the re-imported goods have to be re-exported within six months or one year (extended time), but the appellant re-exported the goods after three years. On this ground, the show cause notice was issued and the lower authorities confirmed the demands.

Held:-- Since Notification No. 27/2002-Cus dated 01/04/2002 is a conditional Notification, the conditions specified therin have to be fully complied with by the importer in order to enjoy the exempted benefit. It is seen that the appellant has re-exported the goods after three years, therefore the demand was confirmed.

89. Pankaj Kumar Sharma vs Commr. of Customs, Patna

Issue:-The OIO dated 09/07/2013 was delivered to the appellant on 15/07/2013 by speed post and the same was informed to the appellant by a letter on 05/11/2013. The appellant submitted that the impugned order was received by them on 29/11/2014 and he filed the appeal on 23/01/2014 after 198 days.

Held:-- After going through the said letter and statement made by the postal authorities it was found that the order in question was dispatched to the appellant by registered post and delivered on 15/07/2013.

90. Saleh Ahmed Vs. Commr. of Customs (Prev), Kolkata, Sanowar Ali Vs. Commr. of Customs (Prev) Kolkata

Appeal No. C/75162/2019 C/75163/2019
Final order No.77722-77723/2023

Issue:-A vehicle having registration no.WB-20z-7017 intercepted by DRI, Shillong at Ghoshpukur toll gate. The three occupants of the intercepted car are Md. Abdul Hannan (Driver), Md. Saleh and Sanowar Ali. On searching the intercepted car four packets wrapped in white cloth each containing 30 pcs of yellow metal(Gold) in biscuit form recovered.

Held:- On going through the investigation, the appellants themselves have admitted that one Ayub bhai has told them that the vehicle is carrying 120 pcs of gold but at the time of interception they have made statement that they were not carrying any contraband goods which shows the malafides of the appellants. Hence they have been imposed penalties of Rs. 10 lakhs and 1 lakh respectively.

Issue:-The appellant used to export the silk mixed fabrics in guise of old and used garments. On examining the export consignment the goods have been misdeclared and the manufacture found non- existence during the course of investigation.

Held:- As the appellant were actively involved in the export consignment the redemption fine was imposed and penalties on all the appellants were imposed.

92. Suparna Karmakar vs Commr. of Customs (Prev), Kolkata

Issue:-The adjudication order was passed on 31/07/2019 and the appellant filed an appeal before the Id. Commissioner (appeals) on 28/11/2019. The Id. Commissioner dismissed the appeal as the appeal has been filed beyond the prescribed period u/s 128(1) of customs act 1962.

Held:- The appellant showed the order of the Hon'ble High court of Calcutta where it is stated that the Hob'ble High court condone the delay in filing the appeal. On going through the order it was found that the Hon'ble High court has never condoned the delay in filing the appeal and only observation is that he is entitled to take alternative remedy against the impugned order.

93. Manoj Baid vs Commr. of Customs (Port) Kolkata

Issue:-The appellant was importing Cigarettes of Indonesian origin inside a consignment declared as dining sets. It was alleged that the appellant has misused name, stamp and signature of a CHA firm in clearance of the said consignment.

Held:- As it was observed that the appellant has deployed his employees to look after the clearance of the import consignment and he also admitted that they have assisted the CHA in clearance of the consignment. He was charged a personal penalty of Rs. 100,000/- in the impugned order in original dated 26/12/2014.

Issue:-The appellant Shri Raj kumar was seized with 1000grams of gold worth Rs 29 lakhs. The gold is of foreign origin with clear marking "The perth mint Australia". The appellant submitted that he was not directly involved but one Mr. Depender Ji had given the packet to him.

Held:- Under section 112(b) of Customs Act, 1962, Shri Raj kumar was penalized with Rs. 20,000/-. As Mr. Dipender Ji was the mastermind in the entire transaction he was penalized with Rs.5 lakhs.

95. India Potteries Ltd. Vs. Commr. of Customs (Port), Kolkata

Issue:-The appellant imported second hand machinery from Germany. They filed the Bill of entry No. 168061 dated 11/11/2010 enclosing therewith commercial invoice raised by the foreign supplier showing the value of the second hand machinery as Euro 15506. After scrutiny the department enhanced the value to Euro 28280.

Held:- In case of second hand machinery the maximum allowable limit of depreciation is 70%. The adjudicating authority has followed the circular and arrived at the enhanced value to Euro 28280.

96. Shri Madan Kumar Vs. Commr. of Customs, Patna

Issue:-At Chhapwa which is place between Raxaul and Motihari a truck was intercepted with a consignment of 3420 kgs of betelnut valued at Rs. 342000/-. The learned adocated submits that the authorities relied upon some circumstantial evidence which at best may arouse some doubts but cannot be applied to say that the goods are of foreign origin.

Held:- The appellant failed to answer why the truck has proceeded in the north direction towards Chappwa when Patna was located to the south of Mothihari. The appellant has failed to discharge the onus placed on him.

97. Opel Exports Vs. Commr. of Customs (Port) Kolkata

Issue:-The facts of the case are that initially after importation on filing of the Bill of entry, the goods were seized and the respondent sought the release of the goods provisionally u/s 110A of the Customs Act 1962. The said request were rejected by Deputy Commissioner of Customs, this letter was issued with the approval of customs (Port). The challenged the letter before the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) and he allowed provisional release.

Held:- As the said letter has been issued to the respondent with the approval of the Ld. Commissioner of customs(port), the Ld. Commissioner(appeals) has no power to entertain the appeals against the order passed by Ld. Commissioner of Customs(port).

98. Beximco International Vs. Commr. of Central Excise & Customs, Bolpur

Issue:-In this case the appellant had filed the Bill of entry stating that the goods are of Chinese origin. On physical inspection of the consignment it was found that the shoes were of Chinese, Italian and Austrian origin. The lower authorities adjudicated fairly and confirmed the demand against the appellant.

Back

Held:- After going through the OIO passed by the Adjudicating authority it is found that the adjudicating authority has gone into considerable details of the consignment imported and has passed a very considered order justifying all his findings. Since the demand upheld.

99. Container Corporation of India Ltd. Vs Commissioner of Customs, Nhava Sheva

Issue:-A Shipping Bill No.5807023 dated 05.06.2013 was filed by an export M/s. Krish Exports, Mumbai, before JNCH Customs for export of "household articles of stainless steel, SS Utensils" to Hong Kong. On examination it was found that as against the declared goods of `7454 Kgs, of stainless steel household articles' mentioned in the said Shipping Bill, the goods present in the containers actually were found to be the 'Red Sanders of 12695 Kgs.,' which are prohibited for export.

Held: We find that Section 117 of Customs Act, 1962 provide for imposition of penalty on any person who contravenes any provision of the said Act or abets any such contravention or who fails to comply with any provision of this Act with which it was his duty to comply, where no express penalty is elsewhere provided for such contravention or failure, to be liable to a penalty not exceeding four lakhs rupees. The maximum amount of penalty prescribed under Section 117 initially at Rs. One lakh was revised upwards to Rs. Four lakhs, with effect from 01.08.2019. The detailed discussions in the preceding paragraphs clearly prove that the appellants not only failed to fulfil the conditions and to abide by the responsibilities reposed on them as CCSP, but also failed to rectify the situation as one another attempt was Trade again for illegal removal of seized red sanders, which was identified by SIIB Customs on 14.08.2014. Hence there are clear violations of the HCCAR and Section 141 (2) of the Customs Act, 1962 by the appellant and thus we do not find any infirmity in the impugned order imposing penalty under section 117 ibid on the appellants.

100. Shashi Dhawal Hydraulics Pvt Ltd Vs Commissioner of Customs (Import), Mumbai

Issue:- M/s. Shashi Dhawal Hydraulics Pvt Ltd was proceeded against by notice dated 26th September 2006 for recovery of Rs. 20,31,302/- that had allegedly been short paid on import of 'David Brown Hydraulic Pumps' between December 2001 and April 2003 from M/s. S&H Universal, UK upon enhancement of assessable value from GBP 90 to GBP 212 apiece by adopting the value in imports effected by M/s. Shashi Charu Hydraulics Pvt Ltd , a sister concern of the appellant, from the manufacturer themselves.

Held:- The legislative intent of compartmentalization of the two is evident in the incorporation of Section 114A in Customs Act, 1962 that empowered imposition of penalty in consequence of such 'suppression/misrepresentation' and explicitly excluding recourse to the penalty consequential to mis-declaration in proceedings for recovery of 'short paid' duty. We, therefore, find ourselves unable to accept the submission of the appellant that relief from confiscation amounts to relief from being subjected to the 'extended period' for recovery of duty under section 28 of Customs Act, 1962.

101. Srinivas Clearing & Shipping (I) Pvt. Ltd. Vs Commissioner of Customs (General), Mumbai

Issue:- The facts of the case are that the appellants herein is a Customs Broker (CB) holding a regular CB license issued by the Mumbai Customs under Regulation 7(2) of Customs Brokers Licensing Regulations (CBLR), 2018. A specific intelligence was developed by Directorate of Revenue Intelligence (DRI), Mumbai Zonal Unit (MZU), Mumbai regarding smuggling of red sanders for illegal export out of the country in an export consignment in container No. DRYU 2306380 to Jabel Ali Port on the basis of forged documents at Jawaharlal Nehru Customs House (JNCH.

Held:- On the basis of the judgement of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of K.M. Ganatra supra, the appellants did not fulfil their obligation as a Customs Broker for exercising due diligence in terms of the various obligations given to them. The facts brought out in the DRI investigation and the findings in the impugned order, clearly demonstrate that when the documents relating to the export goods were fabricated and declared goods of 'Fabric glue/carpets' was substituted with prohibited 'Red Sanders', a clear attempt to smuggle the goods in an illegal manner in violation of the Customs Act, 1962 and Foreign Trade Policy

1. Agarwal Aluminiums, Varanasi Vs. Commissioner, Central GST & Central Excise Commissionerate

Final Order 51171/2023 dated 12.09.2023

Issue:- The case of the Revenue is that the appellant had purchased an industrial furnace with accessories from M/s Macro Engineers, Himachal Pradesh under invoice dated 26.03.2010. This consignment crossed the border into Uttarakhand only on 29.03.2010 and therefore it could not have been brought into the factors, installed, commissioned, tested and production commenced by 31.03.2010 An intimation was served upon the Deputy Commissioner of Central Excise and the Range Superintendent of letter dated 29.03.2010 without indicating date of start of commercial production.

Held:- It is also the case of the appellant that the industrial furnace was brought in and installed and used prior to 31.03.2010 and the first invoice for final product was issued on 31.03.2010. An intimation was served upon the Deputy Commissioner of Central Excise and the Range Superintendent of letter dated 29.03.2010.

The date on which the option shall be exercised is indicated as "from the date of start of commercial production (shall be intimated separately)". Since this letter was served upon the Deputy Commissioner on 30.03.2010 and on the Range superintendent on 31.03.2010, it is evident that the appellant had not begun commercial production until 31.03.2010 nor was it able to indicate by then the date on which the commercial production would begin. Therefore, the appellant mentioned that the date will be intimated separately. For this reason itself, the invoice dated 31.03.2010 issued by the appellant for aluminium sections does not appear to be correct or pertain to products manufactured by it. Further, the industrial furnace acquired for manufacturing aluminium ingots from scrap itself was purchased by invoice dated 26.03.2010 and it crossed into the State of Uttarakhand on 29.03.2010. We find it unthinkable that such an industrial furnace with accessories would have reached the factory on the same date and would have been installed, commissioned, tested, trials completed and commercial production also completed and the first invoice for commercially produced goods could have been raised on 31.03.2010 i.e. within two days.

In the absence of any contrary evidence, we accept Revenue's contention that it was impossible for appellant to have produced 430 kg. of sections by consuming 136 kg. of aluminium scrap. Therefore, on the facts of the case we are not convinced that any commercial production was commenced on or before 31.03.2010.

As submitted by the learned Authorized Representative for the Revenue that as per the standard input/out norms notified by the DGFT to manufacture 1 kg. of aluminium extruded products 1.05 kg. of aluminium scrap is required. The consumption of aluminium scrap as per the record is only one-third of the final product manufactured.

It needs to be pointed out that the electricity consumption as per the electricity authorities was nil prior to April, 2010 and we find it hard to believe that the production could have taken place without any electricity at all. The appellant claimed that it had a diesel generator set for a few days, but was unable to provide any evidence to support its claim.

Final Order 51297-512987/2023 dated 15.09.2023

Issue:- The refund of duty paid is to be governed by provisions of Section 11C of Section 11 of Central Excise Act, 1944. In view of retrospective exemption granted to Heena Powder/Paste levy of Exciesa Duty during the priod 01.10.2007 to 01.03.2023 U/s 11C(1) of CEA Notification No 11/2017-CE(NT) dated 24.04.2017.

Held: - Proviso to sub-section (2) of section 11C only refers to the form contemplated in sub-section (1) of section 11B and not to the time period prescribed in sub-section (1) of section 11B. The time limit for making the application is provided in the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 11C and it provides that the application for refund has to be made before the expiry of the six months from the date of issue of the Notification.

Addendum to mean "something to be added, esp. to a document; a supplement". The Law Lexicon Dictionary, 3rd Edition defines Addendum to mean "a thing that is added or is to be added". It is true that the two show cause notices that were issued to the respondent did not state that the refund applications were liable to be rejected for the reason that they were not filed within six months from the date of issue of the notification, but the Addendums that were subsequently issued did specifically allege that the refund applications were time barred because they were filed after the expiry of six months from the date of issue of the Notification. The Addendum, as noticed above, was issued to add something to the already issued show cause notices. The show cause notices did mention the issuance of the Notification. The Addendums are based on the facts mentioned in the show cause notices and had only called upon the respondent to show cause as to why the refund application should not be rejected as it was filed beyond the time prescribed under the proviso to section 11C(2).

3. Rajeev Agnihotri, Director, Socrus Pharmaceuticals Ltd., Pithampur, MP Vs. Pr. Commissioner, CEGST, Indore

Defect Misc. Order 2418/2023 dated 13.10.2023

Issue:- Application filed by Sh. Rajeev Agnihotri, Director, M/s Socrus Pharmaceuticals Ltd. For condoning the delay of about 6 years against imposing a penalty of Rs. 25 lakhs upon him.

Held: - When the appellant is the Director of the Company and he had signed the appeal filed by the Company, there is no good reason as to why the appe4llant should not have taken proper steps at the relevant time to tile the present appeal to assail the imposition of penalty that a separate appeal should be filed, that steps were taken to file the appeal. A general and a casual statement has been made, for it does not even indicate the date on which the appellant was advised that a separate appeal should be filed. The delay that has occurred is about 6 years and 6 months. Such a huge delay cannot be explained by merely stating that when the appellant was advised that a separate appeal should be filed, the present appeal was filed.

In any case, a Director of the Company, the appellant cannot claim ignorance of the fact that a separate appeal was required to be filed by him to assail the imposition of penalty.

Though it is correct that each day's delay is not required to be explained, but when the delay is of more than 6 years it was imperative for the appellant to explain circumstances to the satisfaction of the Tribunal that he was prevented by sufficient cause from filing the appeal within the stipulated time.

Therefore, no good reason to condone the delay.

4. R N Alloys, Haridwar, Vs. Commissioner of Central Goods & Service Tax.

Final Order 51509/2023 dated 06.11.2023

Issue:- The two issues arise for consideration are:
(i) whether the process of conversion of metal into Engine Components carried out by the appellant amounts to manufacture and if so whether he is entitled to avail exemption from payment of duty under the job work Notification No. 214/86-CE dated 25.30.1986.
(ii) whether the appellant can avail Cenvat credit on the basis of debit notes which are not the prescribed document under Rule 9 of the CCR, 2004.

Held: - We have no issue that Notification No 214/86 grants exemption to job workers from payment of duty, however, the same is subject to the condition of filing of the undertaking by the principle manufacturer.

The principal manufacturer - M/s Rockman supplied the raw material/inputs to the job worker, the appellant herein, as per the challan under Rule 4 (5) (a) of CCR, 2004. If the appellant had to avail the benefit of the exemption from payment of duty under the notification, then it was incumbent upon them to ensure that the principal manufacturer gives an undertaking in terms of the notification that the said goods shall be removed on payment of duty for home consumption from his factory, which they failed to do. There is no dispute that the principal manufacturer had neither given any such undertaking nor paid the excise duty. Consequently, the appellant cannot escape the liability to pay the excise duty on the goods manufactured by them on job work basis.

5. Rai Bahadur Narain Singh Sugar Mills Ltd., Saharanpur (UP) Vs. Commissioner of Central GST, Dehradun

Final Order 51568/2023 dated 29.11.2023

Issue:- The issue is as the appellant, having opted for full exemption under area-based exemption notification no. 50/2003, cannot also avail the CENVAT credit on the Capital Goods and input services used in setting up the distillery unit which is also part of the same factory. According to the appellant, the distillery unit is a separate unit and it had paid Central Excise Duty on the denatured alcohol and Carbon-dioxide produced in the distillery unit and therefore, it was entitled to the CENVAT credit.

Held:- In our considered opinion, the treatment of a unit depends on the laws which apply. For instance, if a manufacturer has several factories located across the countries and has its head office in Mumbai, under the Income Tax Act, it will have a single Permanent Account Number and it will be assessed to corporate tax as one entity in Mumbai. On the other hand, every individual manufacturing facility across the country will have a separate central excise registration and will be assessed separately.

In short, various facilities of the company are treated as separate units under some laws and as one by some other laws and the concerned agencies deal with them accordingly. Merely because a separate licence was issued by the State Excise, Pollution Control, etc. for the distillery does not make it a different unit under the Central Excise. In this case, the appellant had obtained a single Central Excise Registration for the sugar factory and set up the distillery plant within its premises. Further, it also filed single returns with the excise department covering both the sugar plant and the distillery. We, therefore, find that the sugar factory and the distillery are one unit as far as the Central Excise is concerned. Central Excise Act, Rules and notifications should be applied accordingly.

6. Total Oil India Pvt Ltd., Rohat, Pali, Raj. Vs Commissioner of Central Excise, Jaipur-II.

Final Order 51572-51573/2023 dated 30.11.2023

Issue:- (1) Adjudicating authority had not verified whether the refund was clear from principle of unjust enrichment.

(2) Can Commission (Appeals) remand the matter to the adjudicating authority?

Held: - Unjust enrichment does not apply to the refund claim in the impugned appeal. Unjust enrichment will not apply to refund claim where duty was paid under protest. Hence the refund is allowed.

7. Forward Minerals & Metals Pvt Ltd., Delhi Vs. Directorate General of GST Intelligence, (Adjudication Cell), New Delhi.

Defect Misc. Order 2852023 dated 15.11.2023

Issue:- The issue is appeal filed without making statutory pre-deposit contemplated under Section 35F of the Central Excise Act, 1944.

Held: - The Hon'ble Tribunal referred to a decision of Hon'ble Delhi High Court in Dish TV India Ltd. Vs Union of India & Ors., wherein the requirement of pre-deposit under section 129E of the Customs Act, 1962, which is pari-materia to section 35F of the Central Excise Act, came up for consideration. The High Court held that when the Statue itself has provided waiver of pre-deposit to the extent of 90% or 92.5% of the duty amount and has made it mandatory to deposit 7.5% or 10% of duty amount, as the case may be, the Court cannot waive this requirement of deposit.

Appeal No. 51111/2019
Final Order 50398/2023 dated 22.12.2023

Issue:- The issue is ROM filed by appellant seeking rectification of mistake.

Held: - It needs to be pointed out that while demands for extended period of limitation cannot be confirmed where there is no fraud, collusion, wilful misstatement or suppression of fact, demand for a short period of say, one year, can be confirmed even when these elements of fraud, collusion, wilful misstatement or suppression of facts, etc., are present. Nothing prevents confirmation of demands for shorter period even if these elements are present. Having found that these elements were present in the case (as recorded by the Commissioner and reproduced in the appeal), if demands are raised or confirmed for a shorter period, it does not mean that these elements are not established.

9. Dinesh Irrigation Pvt Ltd., Vs. Commissioner of Central Goods and Service Tax, Central Excise, Jaipur.

Final Order 50003/2024 dated 03.01.2024

Issue:- The point of dispute is Cenvat credit on the Service Tax paid on the insurance services which it could not vivisect into the dutiable and exempted products as insurance was a common service.

Held:- Once the disputed Cenvat credit on the insurance service which was used both for dutiable and exempted goods has been reversed, nothing survives in the demand which is the assailed in this appeal because the case of the Revenue is that the appellant had taken Cenvat credit on common input services and had not maintained separate accounts.

10. Progressive Alloys (India) Pvt Ltd., Delhi Vs Commissioner of Central Goods & Service Tax, New Delhi.

Misc. Order 02/2024 dated 01.01.2024

Issue:- The issue is of delay of sixty days in filing appeal before the Hon'ble Tribunal.

Held:- The delay condonation application states that the mother-in-law of the ld. Counsel who had to file the appeal was hospitalized from May 04 to May 19, 2023. If that be so, the appeal could still have been filed soon after May 19, 2023 but it was filed on July 11, 2023. The delay after May 19, 2023 has also not ben explained in the application. However, taking into account the facts and circumstances of the case and in the interest of justice, we condone the delay but on imposing a cost of Rs. 2,000/- (Rupees Two Thousand only) upon the applicant, which the applicant shall deposit within a period of four week from today in the Prime Minister's CARE Fund.

11. Principal Commissioner of Central Goods & Service Tax, New Delhi Vs Som Global Zarda Pvt Ltd., New Delhi

Final Order 51138/2023 dated 21.08.2023

Issue:- The issue is as appellant was not paying NCCD and deposited under protest alongwith interest. Later file refund claim on the NCCD paid.

Held:- The decision of the Commissioner (Appeals) is based solely on the decision rendered by the Supreme Court in Bajaj Auto has been held to be per incuriam and the Supreme Court has held that simply because one kind of duty is exempted, other kinds of duties automatically fall cannot be accepted. Therefore, NCCD shall continue to be levied despite the Notification exempting the payment of excise duty.

The impugned order dated November 15, 2019 passed by the Commissioner (Appeals), therefore, cannot be sustained and is set aside.

12. Honda Motorcycle and Scooter India Pvt Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of CGST, Alwar.

Final Order 51568/2023 dated 29.11.2023

Issue:- The appellant had availed the input Service Tax credit of Service Tax paid on inland handling charges/transport charges for the transportation of export goods from inland container freight station to sea port of loading. The service of transporting the goods from ICD Garhi Harsaru (Haryana) to sea port (Pipavav) are the service availed beyond the place of removal. The service utilized after granting Let Export hence shall not be covered under Rule 2(1) of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004.

Held:- Decision relied upon by the appellant are not applicable to the get given set of facts and circumstances as these are based on the Circular which have no bearing in light of the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Ispat Industries Ltd. (supra). Also, for the reason that there is no evidence produced by the appellant that the appellant continued possession even after the Let Export Order as that of inspection or of handling of goods in any other manner. However, Ispat Industries Ltd. decisions falsifies there criteria also.

With this observation, the Hon'ble CESTAT held that the Inland haulage charges were the charges for the service received beyond the place of removal, hence, the appellant has rightly been disallowed the availment of Cenvat credit thereupon. Finding no infirmity in the order under challenge, the same is hereby upheld. As a consequence, the appeal is hereby dismissed.

13. The Divisional Forest Officer, Rishikesh Vs. Commissioner of CGST, Dehradun.

Final Order 51515-55118/2024 dated 27.02.2024

Issue:- The appellants, who are Divisional Forest Officers in the Government of Uttarakhand, collected Raw Pine Resin from pine trees through contract labour and sold the same to processing units by public auction. It needs to be noted that Exemption Notification No. 24/2005, exempted Resin manufactured without the aid of power from payment of duty, but by a Notification dated 01.03.2006 the said exemption given to Resin manufactured without the aid of power was withdrawn. The appellant thereafter obtained registration and paid central excise duty.

However, two buyers filed Writ Petitions in the Uttarakhand High Court challenging the levy of excise duty. A learned Judge of the Uttarakhand High Court allowed the Writ Petitions by a detailed judgment dated 02.08.2011 and held that that the imposition of Central Excise duty on "Raw Pine Resin" collected and sold by the Uttarakhand Forest Department to the processing units is arbitrary and illegal.

The department filed Special Appeals before the Division Bench of the Uttarakhand High Court. The Uttarakhand High Court allowed the Special Appeals and declare that extraction of Oleo Resin from Pine trees, by the Forest Department of the Government of Uttarakhand, involves human endeavor. Such extraction would amount to "production" of goods on which Central Excise Duty, under Section 3(1)(a) of the Excise Act, can be levied.

Held:- The grounds raised in the Memo of Appeal have been perused and the submissions made by the learned authorised representative appearing for the department have also been considered.

The three basic issues that have been raised by the appellants are as follows:

"(a) Whether an assessee can be made to bear the brunt of duty with interest due to change in order of the High Court or not?
(b) Whether the appellant is required to discharge the burden of duty with interest on clearance of Resin, effected during the period under dispute, because the High Court has now held that the activity pertaining to extraction of Resin from pine trees is production of goods eligible to central Excise Duty?
(c) Whether the appellant is liable for penalties also in such a situation, wherein the appellant has been dragged because of the divergent verdicts of High Court and there is no fault of the appellant?"

It has been stated in paragraph 2.5 of the Memo of Appeal that the appellant has been dragged into a situation where huge 6 demands of central excise duty with interest and penalty have been confirmed "just because the appellant followed the verdict of the Hon'ble High Court".

Back

As is clear from the statement of facts contained in the Memo of Appeals, once the Notification dated 01.03.2006 was issued withdrawing the exemption earlier granted to manufacture Resin without the aid of power from central excise duty, the appellant obtained registration and paid central excise duty. However, Writ Petitions were filed by two buyers before the Uttarakhand High Court challenging the levy of central excise duty on Resin, which Writ Petitions were dismissed by the Uttarakhand High Court by judgment dated 18.09.2006, but in view of the statement made by the learned counsel appearing for both the parties before the Supreme Court, the matter was remitted to the High Court to decide the Writ Petitions afresh. A learned Judge of the Uttarakhand High Court, by judgment dated 02.08.2011, allowed the Writ Petitions but the Government preferred Special Appeals which were initially admitted and the operation of the judgment passed by the learned Judge was also stayed. The Special Appeals were ultimately allowed by judgment dated 10.07.2019.

The contention of the appellant raised in the Memo of Appeal is that they had stopped collecting central excise duty because of the order passed by a learned Judge of the Uttarakhand High Court on 02.08.2011 and so the appellant should not be asked to pay excise duty. As noted above, Special Appeals were filed by the department and judgment of the learned Judge was stayed. There is, therefore, no reason as to why the appellants should have 7 stopped collecting the excise duty. Ultimately the Special Appeals were also allowed. In any case, the appellant had obtained registration and was paying central excise duty as it believed that excise duty was payable when the exemption notification was withdrawn.

The High Court merely interpreted the provisions of law and it cannot be urged by the appellant that because of the judgment of the learned Judge allowing the Writ Petitions it was not obliged to collect central excise duty. This position is very clear from the judgment of the Supreme Court in Asstt. Commr., Income Tax, Rajkot vs. Saurashtra Kutch Stock Exchange Ltd.3 and the relevant paragraphs are reproduced below:

“42. In our judgment, it is also well-settled that a judicial decision acts retrospectively. According to Blackstonian theory, it is not the function of the Court to pronounce a ‘new rule’ but to maintain and expound the ‘old one’. In other words, judges do not make law, they only discover or find the correct law. The law has always been the same. If a subsequent decision alters the earlier one, it (the later decision) does not make new law. It only discovers the correct principle of law which has to be applied retrospectively. To put it differently, even where an earlier decision of the Court operated for quite some time, the decision rendered later on would have retrospective effect clarifying the legal position which was earlier not correctly understood.

43. Salmond in his well-known work states;
“(T) he theory of case law is that a judge does not make law; he merely declares it; and the overruling of a previous decision is a declaration that the supposed rule never was law. Hence any intermediate transactions made on the strength of the supposed rule are governed by the law established in the overruling decision. The overruling is retrospective, except as regards matters that are res judicate or accounts that have been settled in the meantime.”

In this view of the matter when it has been settled that central excise duty would be leviable as Resin is produced, there is no reason to interfere with the impugned orders passed by the Commissioner. The four appeals are, accordingly, dismissed.

14. Suncity Synthetics Ltd., Jodhpur Vs. The Additional Director General (Adj.), New Delhi.

Final Order 55132/2024 dated 12.03.2024

Issue:- Strict interpretation of exemption Notification No. 08/2014-CE dated 11.07.2014.

Held:- Considering the principle of law that a person who claims exemption or concession has to establish that he is entitled to that exemption or concession, we are of the view that the appellant has failed to substantiate the same. Also, if exemption is available on complying with certain conditions, the said conditions have to be complied with and as per the discussion above, it cannot be said that the appellant has complied with the mandatory conditions of the notification. We also reject the contention of the learned Counsel that the terms ‘plastic waste’ in the notification is not specific but is of general nature. The wordings of the condition provided in the notification are absolutely clear and unambiguous and leaves no manner of doubt.

Learned Authorised Representative for the Revenue reiterated the findings of the Adjudicating Authority and relied on the decision of the Supreme Court in Commissioner of Customs (Import), Mumbai Vs. Dilip Kumar and Company and Others - 2018 (361) ELT 577 (SC) and State of Gujarat Vs. Arcelor Mittal Nippon Steel India Ltd. – (2022) 6 SCC 459 to say that the notification granting the benefit of concessional rate of duty is subject to the conditions, which has to be strictly complied with and no word can be added or subtracted in the contents of the notification. Since in the present case, the appellant has not complied with the conditions specified in the notification, he is not eligible to avail the benefit of the concessional rate of duty and hence, the appeal needs to be rejected.

We do not find any strong and compelling reasons to differ from the impugned order, which deserves to be upheld. The appeal, is accordingly dismissed.

15. Ruchi Soya Industries Ltd Vs. CCE, Rajkot

Issue:- Whether the appellant is entitled for the refund claim over and above the percentage by which restriction was imposed vide amendment Notification No. 16/2008-CE (NT) dated 27.03.2008 and amendment Notification No. 33/2008-CE dated 10.06.2008 amending the original Notification No. 39/2001-CE dated 31.07.2001

Held:- In the view of Hon'ble Supreme Court Judgement in case of UOI Vs VVF Ltd the appellant are not entitled for the refund rejected by the original authority and upheld by the Commissioner(Appeals).

16. Karimbhai Nanjibhai Shah Vs. CCE, Ahmedabad-II

Issue:-Evasion of excise duty of the manufacturing of "Chhakkdo Rickshaw" by suppressing the production data and making clandestine clearance and imposition of penalty under Rule 26 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002.

Held:- The appellant was fully aware that the goods are getting cleared without proper invoices and manufactures were not having required ARAI registration. The appellant has conscientious by providing his ARAI registration to the manufacturer/buyers of non-duty paid Rickshaw for getting the same registered with RTO.

17. Birla Cellulosic Ltd Vs. CCE, Surat-II

Issue:-The appellant paid duties in terms of Serial No. 2 of Notification No. 23/2003-CE dated 31st March, 2003 under Section 3 of the Central Excise Act 1944. As per the department, the appellant was required to avail CENVAT credit on the procurement as per formula given under sub Rule 7 of Rule 3 of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004. Also ineligible CENVAT credit of the CVD which has been taken in the prescribed formula and Rule 3 (7) (a) of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 by the assessee also included the elements of Education Cess and Secondary Education Cess in it.

Held:- Hon'ble Bench find it wrong on the part of appellant to have re- credited debited amount of the CENVAT Credit on their own and therefore their appeal on this account is being rejected. In view of above we hold that the demand of wrong availment of the CENVAT Credit under formula provided as per Rule 3(7) (A) of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 is concerned. We find that the impugned Order-In-Original is without any merit and therefore we set aside the same and appeal in this regard is allowed. The appeal pertaining to the suo-moto re-credit of the CENVAT Credit is concerned an explained in preceding para, same is dismissed.

18. Hitachi Life & Solution India Ltd Vs. CCE, Ahmedabad-III

Issue:-the appellant during the period 10.05.2012 claimed having paid Excise Duty, sought refund from the department as abatement percentage permitted on their product under Notification No. 26/2012 dated 10.05.2012 was varied from 25% to 35%.

Held:- In MRP based assessment, refund of non-claim of abatement cannot be purely treated as a refund of excise duty paid in excess only as per Section 11B. Such information as to what all taxes went into working of abatement is woefully lacking. Party has also not produced the same by procuring the same under R.T.I or otherwise. Further, there is nothing on record from the party as to what happened beyond depot and whether apart from itself, all retailers and wholesaler paid higher tax which was the component of higher abatement or whether consumer was less charged by reducing M.R.P, by way of a discount.

19. Prafful Overseas Pvt Ltd Vs. CCE, Vadodara-II

Final Order No. A/12007/2023 Dtd. 12.09.2023

Issue:-Whether the appellant is entitled for Refund of Education Cess and Secondary aand Higher Education Cess paid against CVD portion of Customs duty.

Held:- The identical issue in the appellant's own case has been decided vide order No. A/10536-10538/22 dtd. 20.05.2022. The issue is settled against the appellant. Accordingly following the decision of this Tribunal, we are of the view that the impugned order is correct and legal hence the same is sustainable. The appeal is dismissed.

20. PGP Glass Pvt Ltd Vs. CCE, Surat-I

Final Order No. A/11739-11740/2023 Dtd. 23.08.2023

Issue:- Whether the charges of molds separately recovered by the appellant from their customers, amount flowing of additional consideration to the appellant and should have formed part of transaction value for levy of excise duty or not.

Held:- The mold charges recovered from the buyers need to be included in the assessable value and therefore, The Hon'ble Bench do not find any legal lacunae in the impugned OIO and thus, there is no merit in the appeals. The appeals are dismissed.

21. Sonic Chain Pvt Ltd Vs. CCE, Rajkot

Issue:- Issue involved is whether the appellant is eligible for SSI exemption under Notification No. 08/2003-CE dated 01.03.2003.

Held:- The exemption notification shall not apply to specified goods bearing the brand name or trade name that were registered or not of another person. In the present case there is no dispute that the goods namely bracelet manufactured by the appellant bears the brand name which are owned by another person, therefore the appellant is not eligible for exemption Notification No. 08/2003-CE.

22. Universal Comfort Products Ltd Vs. CCE, Vapi

Final Order No. A/11831/2023 Dtd. 30.08.2023

Issue:- Matter relates to supplies made to SEZ by DTA unit, specially to SEZ developers, the Cenvat credit was sought to be denied to the supplier under Rule 6 (6) of the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 on the ground that during the material time no exemption was available to the appellant and they were required to reverse the credit to the extent the supplies made to SEZ developers.

Held:- Notification No. 50/2008-CE (NT) specifically provided benefit to SEZ, came into existence only on 31.12.2008 and there was no way having its retrospective application. The Court find no merit in the appeal.

23. Sagar Rolling Mills Pvt Ltd Vs. CCE, Ahmedabad-II

Final Order No. A/11829-11830/2023 Dtd. 30.08.2023

Issue:- Abatement of duty under compounded levy scheme pertaining to cold rolling iron and steel machines. The appellants, for the part of the period had no operations on certain machines and the same remained idle or dismantled in the factory. The department has denied the abatement of duty under Notification No. 17/2007-CE dated 01.03.2007.

Held:- The issue is no more res-integra and has been decided in the case SS Strips Pvt. Limited vs. CCE, Ahmedabad-II in order No. A/11629-11630/2018 dated 01.08.2018 by the Division Bench of CESTAT Ahmedabad. Having chosen the option of availing the concession on the basis of number of machines installed, the appellants cannot now claim that the benefit of machines which they have declared to have not been used during certain period."

24. Special Prints Ltd Vs. CCE & ST-Surat-I

Final Order No. A/11841/2013 Dtd. 31.08.2023

Issue:- The short issue involved in the matter is that there were certain refunds due to the appellant and same had been adjusted by the department against dues confirmed in adjudication in another matter by the authorities below despite matter being agitated in Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, but stated to be without stay against such confirmed dues.

Held:- Court finds this order of Commissioner(Appeals) is proper in the absence of any stay having been granted against the demand confirmed and being agitated at present before the Hon'ble High Court of Gujarat.

25. DLM (P) Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, Customs & ST, Mysore

Final Order No. 20906/2023 dated 18.08.2023

Issue:-Rejection of refund:-Appellant had filed refund application one year from the date of Hon'ble CESTAT's Order.

Held:- It is clear from Section 11B (5)(B) (ec), which reads as: "(ec) in case where the duty becomes refundable as a consequence of judgment, decree, order or direction of appellate authority, Appellate Tribunal or any Court, the date of such judgment, decree, order or direction". Therefore, in this case the appellant had filed a refund application on 28/02/2020 but that is after one year from the date of Hon'ble CESTAT's Order dated 28/01/2019. Hence, the rejection of refund on this ground is legally tenable.

26. Elvina Pharmaceuticlas Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise- Belagavi

Final Order No. 21191/2023 dated 30.08.2023

Issue:-Valuation of physician sample.

Held:- Relying upon then Hon'ble Supreme Court in Medley Pharmaceuticals and Tribunal Bangalore's order in the case of Amazon drug the bench held that physician samples cleared adopting Rule 8 of the Central Excise (Valuation) Rules, 2000 is contrary to the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court and the correct method of valuation is under Section 4 of Central Excise Act, 1944 read with Rule 4 of the Central Excise (Valuation) Rules, 2000.

27. Kurlon Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise & ST- Bangalore (South)

Issue:- The appellant, M/s. Kurlon Ltd., is the manufacturer of Rubberised Coir products (RCP) and foam products. Apart from the clearance of foam and foam products, they also captively consume foam products in the manufacture of rubberised coir mattresses. From 01.03.2011, the appellant availed the benefit of Notification No. 1/2011 which enabled them to pay duty at the rate of 1% on coir products as against the standard rate of duty of 5% / 6% subject to the condition that no CENVAT credit was availed on the inputs and input services. The appellant had availed CENVAT credit on the inputs and input services used for manufacture of rubberised coir mattress and products and accordingly, notice was issued to deny the benefit of Notification No.1/2011 dated 1.3.2011.

Held:- The law is well settled that a person who claims exemption or concession has to establish that he is entitled to that exemption or concession. With regard to invoking Proviso to Section 11A, it is obvious that the appellant was knowing very well that they are not eligible for availing CENVAT credit for the goods that are cleared on concessional rate of duty but still they have availed CENVAT credit for almost three years i.e., from 2011 to 2013. Hence, having suppressed the facts, the Commissioner was right in invoking the Proviso to Section 11A.

28. BEML Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Mysore

Issue:-It has been alleged that, besides manufacturing they were also engaged in the activity of repacking and relabeling of imported and indigenously procured spare parts of Dumpers (Mechanical Drive and Electrical Drive), Water Sprinklers and Motor Graders at their marketing division. The said activity in terms of Section 2(f) of the Central Excise Act, 1944, read with Sl. No 100 of Third Schedule of the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 result into "manufacture" and its value for the purpose of excise duty to be determined as per Section 4A after allowing an abatement of 33.5% on the maximum retail price as per Notification No.11/2006 CE (NT) dated 29.5.2006, but it was cleared/sold to various customers without payment of duty.

Held:- Sl. No. 100 of the Third Schedule shall not be applicable to parts and spares of Dumpers repacked and relabeled by the Appellant for the period from January 2008 to February 2010. Also, the said activities do not fall within the scope of 'manufacture' under either clause (i) or (ii) of Section 2(f) of CEA, 1944, hence, not leviable to excise duty. However, for the period from March 2010 to March 2011, the said activities be considered to be 'deemed manufacture' being covered under the amended entry at S. No.100 of the Third Schedule. We do not find reason in not following the judgment of the Tribunal in appellant's own case more or less for a similar period and show-cause notice issued in the same month i.e., April 2013. In the result, invoking of extended period of limitation is bad in law. Accordingly, the demand be confined to the normal period of limitation.

29. Elvina Pharmaceuticals Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise- Belagavi

Issue:- The appellants are manufacturers of P & P Medicines falling under Chapter Sub Heading 3003.10.00 of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. They E/1665/2011 Page 2 of 4 manufacture the said goods on loan license basis for M/s. Wallace Pharmaceuticals Ltd. During the relevant period i.e. from October 2007 to May 2008, they cleared physician samples by discharging duty @ 110% of the cost of production. Alleging that the method of valuation adopted by the appellant is not correct as the said physician samples cleared attracts valuation under Section 4/4A of Central Excise Act, 1944. Show-cause notices were issued on 20.10.2008 for the period from October 2007 to May 2008 demanding differential duty of Rs. 7,33,036/- with interest and proposal for penalty. On adjudication demands were confirmed. Aggrieved by the said order, they filed appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals).

Held:- The short issue for determination is, whether the valuation of physician sample be in accordance with Rule 8 or Rule 4 of the Central Excise (Valuation) Rules, 2000. We find that the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Medley Pharmaceuticals case (supra) has laid down the principle as follows: "41. Now coming to the valuation of the physician samples for the purpose of levy of excise duty, in our view, this issue need not detain us long in view of the decision of this Court in the case of Commissioner of Central Excise v. M/s. Bal Pharma [Civil Appeal No. 1697 of 2006] [2010 (259) E.L.T. 10 (S.C.)]. This Court has upheld the conclusion of the Tribunal that the physician's samples have to be valued on pro-rata basis. The Tribunal, while arriving at the aforesaid conclusion, had relied upon its earlier decision in the case of Commissioner of Central Excise, Calicut v. Trinity Pharmaceuticals Pvt. Ltd., reported as 2005 (188) E.L.T. 48, which has been accepted by the department. Therefore, we hold that physician samples have to be valued on pro-rata basis for the relevant period." This principle has been followed by this Tribunal in Amazon Drugs Pvt. Ltd. We do not find any reason not to follow the judgment of this Tribunal in Amazon Drugs Pvt. Ltd's case. Consequently, following the said judgment, the impugned order is upheld and the appeal being devoid of merit, accordingly is dismissed.

30. Flexifoil Packaging (P) Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Bangalore (West)

Issue:-The appellant are engaged in manufacture of Aluminum Foils falling under Chapter Heading 76071995 of the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. During the course of audit, it was noticed that the appellant had not paid duty on packaging charges amounting to Rs. 24,586/-
; not maintained records as per Rule 16 of Central Excise Rules, 2002 and also, they have cleared Aluminum Foils discharging concessional rate of duty under Notification No. 9/2003- CE dt. 01.03.2003 @9.6% instead of 16% during the period January, 2004 to May, 2004; further since the processes carried out in respect of Aluminum Foils does not amount to manufacture, they were required to reverse the amount equivalent to credit taken in respect of inputs used therein and the differential duty calculated as Rs. 2,30,887/-.

Held:- The authorities below has confirmed the demand of Rs. 24,586/- on packaging charges being part of the value but no duty was paid claiming it as freight charges. Analyzing the evidences, the adjudicating authority after scrutiny of the relevant invoices placed on record, recorded the findings that even though the appellant have claimed that these are transport charges and not handling charges, however, supporting transport receipt has not been produced. Since no evidence has been produced by the appellant before the lower authorities nor before this Tribunal, thus, duty of Rs. 24,586/- payable on packaging charges is confirmed. Regarding the CENVAT Credit of Rs. 44,469/- on rejected/returned goods, demand was confirmed as the appellant failed to produce the evidences ie. Proper account of receipt and disposal of the same. CESTAT has also found that the appellant had not enclosed any evidences in this regard, thus it is clear that they had not maintained proper records of receipt goods, processes carried out and disposal of the said goods under Rule 16 of CER,2002 on which credit availed; hence, the said demand is also confirmed. From the grounds of appeal mentioned by the appellant, it is found that the processes carried out by the Appellant on the Aluminum Foils received in the factory are described as foil wash and thereafter subjected to nitro cellulose and then slit into different sizes as per requirements of customers. It is not a simple process of merely cutting the foils into different sizes but other processes are involved which would definitely satisfy the definition of manufacture pertaining Section 2(f) of Central Excise Act, 1944. Besides, the appellant have been discharging duty on finished goods treating the said process as manufacture. Hence, denying CENVAT Credit on the inputs, contrary to the principle of law laid down in several cases and relying on the Hon'ble Bombay High Court in the case of Commissioner of Central Excise, Pune-III Vs. Ajinkya Enterprises - 2013 (294) ELT 686 (Bom.), the demand of Rs.2,30,887/- is set aside

31. Maini Precision Products (P) Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Bangalore (North-West)

Issue:-The appellants are engaged in manufacturing of Fork lift truck parts, components for machinery, automobile parts etc. falling under Chapter 84 & 87 of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 (in short 'CETA'). During the period from 01.4.2004 to 31.3.2006 the appellant availed CENVAT Credit of Rs. 2,40,75,746/- on the goods received in their factory and subjected to various processes like blackening, buffing, final inspection, packing etc. which were subsequently exported on the Letter of undertaking without payment of duty and also availed suo moto credit of Rs.28,700/- on the rejected inputs. It is alleged that the goods were received by the appellant on which CENVAT Credit was availed were in the nature of finished goods and the processes carried out by the appellant do not result into 'manufacture' in terms of Section 2(f) of Central Excise Act, 1944; hence credit availed is inadmissible to them. Also, it is alleged that the appellants have wrongly availed the CENVAT Credit of Rs. 28,700/- suo moto in respect of rejected goods.

Held:- The processes undertaken by the appellant are necessary to put the product in marketable condition as per the requirement of the customers; the appellants, on the other hand, adduced evidence in the form of rejection letters of the customers rejecting the goods supplied by the Appellant as it did not meet their requirement as per the order placed. Hence, in our opinion various processes blackening, buffing, final inspection, packing etc. carried out on the inputs be considered as processes amounting to manufacture. It was found that more or less similar principle has been laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Flex Engineering Ltd. Therefore, the processes carried by the appellant in their premises result into manufacture and accordingly, CENVAT Credit availed on the duty paid on inputs received is admissible to the appellant. On the issue of suo moto credit we find that credit of Rs. 28,700/- is irregular in view of the judgment of Larger Bench of this Tribunal in the case of BDH Industries Ltd vs. CCE, Mumbai – 2008 (229) ELT 364 (Tri. L.B.). In the result, the impugned Order is modified to the extent of setting aside demand of CENVAT credit of Rs.2,40,75,746/- with interest and penalty, however, the recovery of suo moto credit of Rs.28,700/- with interest and penalty is confirmed.

32. Praxair India (P) Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Bangalore (East)

Issue:-The appellants are manufacturers of Industrial gases viz., oxygen, nitrogen, argon gases falling under Chapter Heading 28 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1985. During the relevant period, they entered into an agreement with M/s. Tata Steel Ltd. to build, own and operate 'Air Suspension Plant' at the site of M/s. Tata Steel Ltd. for manufacture and supply of oxygen, nitrogen and argon gases to M/s. Tata Steel Ltd. subject to the conditions stipulated in the said agreement. They have also entered into similar agreement with other customers during the period from November 2006 to October 2007. The learned advocate for the appellant submits that the demand confirmed in relation to clearances to M/s. Tata Steel Ltd. i.e., Rs.1,09,20,900/- has been paid by them with interest. He submits that this amount is not contested in the present appeal. However, the clearances made to other customers, the agreement with them being not in accordance with the agreement entered with M/s. Tata Steel Ltd., therefore, they contest the duty on such facility charges and escalation charges.

Held:- Appellant has not contested inclusion of said charges in the value of the gases in the case of M/s. Tata Steel Ltd.; they have discharged applicable duty with interest. However, they are contesting the payment of duty on facility charges recovered from other customers claiming that the agreements are different. However, they could not place agreements before the original authority nor before us even though sufficient opportunities have been accorded to them. Therefore, we proceed with the case based on the documents available on record. We find that the issue is no more res integra and the issue is covered by the judgment of this Tribunal in the case BOC India Ltd. (supra) which was decided after taking note of the Board Circular dated 10.11.2014 and 24.4.2014. CESTAT did not find any reason not to follow the aforesaid judgment of this Tribunal. Hence, the facility charges, escalation charges, etc., collected from all customers are includable in the value of gases sold/supplied to their customers. However, in the facts and circumstances of the case, CESTAT do not find any reason to confirm the penalty imposed on the appellant. Consequently, the impugned order is modified to the extent of setting aside the penalty of Rs.5,00,000/- under Rule 25 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 and duty amount confirmed along with interest is upheld.

33. MRO TEK Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Bangalore (North)

Issue:- Appeal filed against Order-in-Appeal No.202/2011-CE (de novo proceedings) dated 15.7.2011 passed by Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals-I). Upheld the OIO. Issue is division of the total value of Modem viz. value of hardware and value of software separately. Allegation that bifurcation of value is with intention to evade payment of duty as the software was invoiced as "software for PC"

Held:- The appellant who has knowingly split the value of modem artificially as value of Hardware and value of Software so as to evade payment of duty. The impugned OIA is upheld and the appeal is dismissed.

34. MTR Foods Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Bangalore (South)

Issue:-Manufacture and clearance of "Badam Milk Drink - Ready to Drink" at „Nil" rate of duty from October 2007 onwards, classifying under Chapter Sub-Heading 0402 9990.Department has classified the item under Chapter Sub-heading 2202 9030.

Held:- Following the ratio of the decision in Ernakulum Regional Co-operative Milk Producers Union Ltd. (cited supra) of this Tribunal, we do not find any reason to interfere with the impugned order. Hence the appeal filed by the appellant is unsustainable and is rejected.

35. 3M India Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Bangalore (South)

Issue:-During the period September 2006 to December 2007, they have availed cenvat credit amounting to Rs.1,56,29,750/- on the service tax paid on reverse charge mechanism for receiving 'Management Consultancy Service' from foreign service provider. Subsequently, on the basis of audit of their records, a show-cause notice was issued to them on 08.04.2009 for recovery of the said credit with interest and penalty; an amount of Rs.79,22,225/- paid along with interest of Rs.15,38,789/- proposed to be appropriated. On adjudication, the demand of Rs.79,22,225/- and interest of Rs.15,38,789/- attributable to trading activities and demand of Rs.15,83,168/- being credit availed at Bangalore pertaining to manufacturing units located at Ahmedabad and Pune was confirmed with a penalty of Rs.95,05,393/- without having ISD registration. Hence the present appeal Held:- The impugned order is modified to the extent of confirming inadmissible cenvat credit of Rs.79,22,225/- attributable to trading activity and applicable interest of Rs.15,38,789/- paid on the said credit amount; since the cenvat credit and applicable interest is paid much before the issuance of show-cause notice, the appellant is entitled for the benefit of 25% of penalty imposed under Section 11AC of the Central Excise Act read with Rule 15(4) of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004.

The demand of cenvat credit of Rs.15,83,168/- confirmed with interest and equivalent penalty before ISD registration is hereby set aside.

36. Fouress Engineering (I) Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Bangalore (North-West)

Final Order No. 21480/2023 dated 08.12.2023

Issue:-The appellant are engaged in manufacture of different types of industrial valves falling under Chapter Heading 84 of CETA, 1985. On the basis of the audit of the records for the period June 2005 to August 2006, show cause notice was issued to the appellant alleging that they have wrongly availed the Cenvat Credit of Rs.76,528/- on security services, Rs.66,420/- on mobile phones provided to the employees and Rs.11,202/- on GTA outwards transportation service; also, it is alleged that they have failed to discharge the duty of Rs.5,126/- on additional testing charges and also the inputs short received involving duty of Rs.61,640/- during the said period. On adjudication, the demand was confirmed with interest and penalty. Against the order of adjudicating authority, the appellant filed appeal before the ld. Commissioner (Appeals), who in turn, rejected their appeal.

Held:- The appeal is partly allowed to the extent of setting aside the confirmation of demand on testing charges; and recovery of Cenvat Credit availed on mobile phones and GTA outwards transportation service. The remaining amount of demands on account of credit on security services, input short received with interest are upheld. However, penalty imposed on the appellant is set aside

37. Karnataka Agro Chemicals Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Bangalore (West)

Issue:-The facts of the case are that the appellant, a partnership firm, are engaged in manufacture of micronutrients fertilizers for soil application and also for foliar application. The appellants have been granted necessary license by the Karnataka State Government under the Fertilizer (Control) Order, 1985 to manufacture and market micronutrient fertilizers in various states. During the relevant period, the appellant had manufactured and cleared micronutrients fertilizers without payment of duty claiming its classification as "other fertilizers" under Chapter Heading 3105 of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. On the basis of intelligence and investigation initiated in the year 2000, and on completion of the same, show cause notice was issued to the appellant alleging that the product micronutrient is classifiable as "Plant Growth Regulator" (PGR in short) falling under chapter sub-heading 3808.20 of CETA, 1985 and duty with interest demanded invoking extended period. On adjudication, demands were confirmed with interest and penalty. Aggrieved by the said orders, the appellant approached the Tribunal. E/1364/2010 with 23 others Page 6 of 33 This Tribunal vide Final Order No. 341-347/2007 dated 26.02.2007 set aside the adjudication order and allowed the appeals. The Revenue challenged the said order before the Hon'bles Supreme Court and vide its order dated 15.05.2008, the Hon'ble Supreme Court setting aside invoking the extended period, remanded the matter to the adjudicating authority for de novo adjudication. In de novo proceeding, the learned Commissioner re-examined the issue and concluded the classification under chapter sub-heading 3808.20 as "PGR" and confirmed the demands for the normal period. Also, periodical show cause notices issued from time to time for normal period have also been confirmed with interest and penalty in the novo proceeding.

Held:- The finding of the Ld. Commissioner that the impugned goods merit classification under CSH 3808.20 (38089340) of CETA, 1985. Consequently, confirmation of demands with interest is also upheld. Since the issue relates to classification and interpretation of law, imposition of penalty under Rule 25 on the company and personal penalty under Rule 26 CER, 2002 on the Appellant Shri Mahesh G Shetty is unwarranted and accordingly set aside. The impugned orders are modified and the appeals filed by the Company are partly allowed to the extent mentioned above and Appeals filed by Shri Mahesh G Shetty are allowed

38. KEMS Forgings Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Bangalore (East)

Issue:-During the course of audit, it was noticed that they had short paid the total of Rs.5,71,053/- as per the relevant provisions i.e. Rule 3(5) of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004. Consequently, they paid the entire amount by reversing CENVAT Credit of Rs.3,24,982/- and the balance amount of Rs.2,46,071/- through PLA; also they paid Rs.3,16,880/- as interest by debiting the PLA Account on 25.05.2012. A show cause notice was issued to the appellant proposing penalty and appropriation of the amount paid. After adjudication, the amount paid, has been appropriated. Penalty confirmed. This appeal is for challenging the levy of penalty.

Held:- The show cause notice proposing appropriation of the amount and penalty was adjudicated and penal proceedings dropped. Subsequently, on the basis of the audit objection in 2012, they reversed the CENVAT Credit with interest for normal period of limitation. In these circumstances, imposition of penalty on the appellant under Section 11AC of the Central Excise Act, 1944 read with Rule 15(2) of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 is unsustainable in absence of suppression or mis-declaration facts with intent to evade payment of duty. Consequently, the impugned order is modified and imposition/confirmation of penalty is set aside. Appeal is partly allowed to the extent mentioned as above. Miscellaneous application disposed off.

39. Poduval Industries Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Cochin

Issue:-The appellants are engaged in the manufacture of Diesel Generating sets (DG sets) falling under Chapter sub-heading 8502 90 of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. On the basis of intelligence and subsequent investigation, a show-cause notice was issued to the appellant on 29/01/2004 alleging that they have manufactured "Acoustic Enclosures" in their factory during the period from 01/04/2000 to 04/06/2002 and cleared the same without payment of duty in the guise of trading of the same, thereby evaded Central Excise duty of Rs.10,52,892/-; it is proposed to recover the said duty with interest and penalty. the appellants are engaged in the manufacture of Diesel Generating sets (DG sets) falling under Chapter sub-heading 8502 90 of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. On the basis of intelligence and subsequent investigation, a show-cause notice was issued to the appellant on 29/01/2004 alleging that they have manufactured "Acoustic Enclosures" in their factory during the period from 01/04/2000 to 04/06/2002 and cleared the same without payment of duty in the guise of trading of the same, thereby evaded Central Excise duty of Rs.10,52,892/-; it is proposed to recover the said duty with interest and penalty.

Held:- We find that the submissions advanced by the appellant are of general in nature and devoid of rebuttal of evidences brought on record indicating procurement of raw materials, processing of the same in the factory premises, stock of the glass wool etc. used in the manufacture of acoustic enclosures found in their factory, low conversion charges reflected Excise Appeal No.185 of 2008 in the invoice of job-worker etc. overwhelmingly indicate that the acoustic enclosures were manufactured and cleared without payment of duty from their factory. In the result, the appeal of the appellant is rejected and order of the Commissioner(Appeals) is upheld. (Pronounced in open court.

40. Rakon India (P) Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Bangalore (North)

Issue:-M/s. Rakon India Pvt. Ltd., appellant, is a 100% EOU who manufacture and export 'Crystal and Oscillators'. They filed a refund claim of unutilized cenvat credit on input and input services. The original authority granted refund partly and rejected the balance amount on the ground that the shipping E/20486/2022 Page 2 of 9 bills were not filed along with the claim.The appellant filed an appeal against this rejection before the Commissioner (Appeals). Since the shipping bills were produced before the Commissioner (Appeals), vide Order-in- Appeal No.375/2017-CT dated 27.10.2017, he remanded for verification of copies of the shipping bills for calculation of the eligible amount of refund. The appellant vide letter dated 01.07.2019 requested for verification of documents and processing of the refund claim by submitting copies of shipping bills on 15.7.2019. The original authority rejected the refund claim on the ground that it was filed beyond the time limit from the date of issue of Order-in- Appeal in accordance with Explanation B(ec) to Section 11B. The Commissioner (Appeals) upheld this order vide the impugned order on which the appellant is in appeal before this Tribunal.

Held:- In view of the decision in their own case by the Tribunal in the case of Rakon India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commr. of Central Tax, Bangalore North: 2021 (54) G.S.T.L. 183 (Tri. - Bang.) (which was refund under Section 142(2) of CGST Act) had requested to remand the case. However, The facts are clearly distinguishable in as much as that was not a case of Rule 5 refund; while the present appeal is under Rule 5 of the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 and hence the question of refund under Section 142 does not arise. Moreover, as per Section 142, any claim for refund of CENVAT credit is fully or partially rejected, the amount so rejected shall lapse as seen from clause (3) of Section 142 reproduced below: "(3) Every claim for refund filed by any person before, on or after the appointed day, for refund of any amount of CENVAT credit, duty, tax, interest or any other amount paid under the existing law, shall be disposed of in accordance with the provisions of existing law and any amount eventually accruing to him shall be paid in cash, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained under the provisions of existing law other than the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944 (1 of 1944): Provided that where any claim for refund of CENVAT credit is fully or partially rejected, the amount so rejected shall lapse, 8. In view of the above discussions, the appeal is dismissed.

41. Ultra Tech Cements Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Belagavi

Issue:-The appellants are engaged in the manufacture of cements of various grades falling under Chapter heading 2523 10 00 of the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. The appellant captively consume clinker for manufacture of cement in their factory, clear the same to other units of the appellant and also sell some quantity of the same to independent customers (unrelated buyers). In clearing the clinkers to their own sister units, the appellant had determined the cost of the product as per CAS-4 method and accordingly the assessable value as 110% of the cost of the production in accordance to Rule 8 of the Central Excise Valuation (Determination of Price of Excisable Goods) Rules, 2000 (Central Excise Valuation Rules, 2000 for short). Since independent sale to other buyers are also available, show-cause notice was issued to the appellant demanding differential duty by computing the assessable value of clinkers cleared to sister units in terms of Rule 4 read with Rule 11 of Central Excise Valuation Rules, 2000 for the period from March 2011 to November 2013. The differential duty computed accordingly for the said period amounting to Rs.78,17,68,586/- was demanded with interest and penalty by issuing show-cause notice dated 30.01.2014 invoking extended period of limitation. On adjudication, the demand was confirmed by the learned Commissioner with interest and penalty of equal amount under Section 11AC of Central Excise Act, 1944 read with Rule 25 of Central Excise Rules, 2002; further, the amount of Rs.4,93,93,806/- paid by the appellant was appropriated against the said demand. Assailing the impugned order, the present appeal is filed before this Tribunal.

Held:- The impugned order is accordingly modified and appeal is partly allowed setting aside demand for the extended period of limitation and remand the matter to the adjudicating authority to re-determine the assessable value applying the principle of Rule 4 read with Rule 11 of Central Excise Valuation (Determination of Price of Excisable Goods) Rules, 2000 and compute the differential duty, interest

42. IFB Industries Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise & ST, Bangalore (East)

Issue:-The issue under dispute was whether clearance of electrical motors captively used are required to be followed in terms of Rule 8 of Central Excise (Valuation) Rules, 2000 or in terms of Rule 4 of Central Excise (Valuation) Rules, 2000 adopting the price cleared at the time of removal from the factory. From the amended Rule, the value to be adopted should be the value on which the goods were sold at the nearest time of removal and therefore, for captive consumption also the appellant should have adopted the price at which they had sold to the various customers either in the service centres or as warrant replacement. In view of the above, invoking the proviso to Section 11A, the demand was confirmed under proviso to Section 11A imposing penalty under Section 11AC equivalent to the amount of duty in addition to penalty of Rs.2,000/- under Rule 25. Aggrieved by this order, the appellants are in appeal before us.

Held:- The learned counsel on behalf of the appellant submits that 5 show-cause notices were issued proposing to re-determine the value of motors removed for captive consumption and warranty replacement under Rule 4 of the Central Excise (Valuation) Rules, 2000 adopting the price of motors removed for spares market. It is submitted that in view of the Larger Bench decision in the case of Ispat Industries Ltd. Vs. CCE, Raigad: 2007 (209) ELT 185 (Tri.- LB) the appellant accepts the demand and challenges only on the ground of limitation and allowing computation of duty. In view of the fact that all the assemblies were made on payment of duty and disclosed in their monthly ER-1 returns and the clearances to the spares market was known to the Revenue, the question of wilful suppression cannot be alleged. The benefit of cum-duty which is already a settled issue is also to be extended to the appellant. In view of the decision of the Larger Bench, demands in all the Show cause notices are upheld only to the extent of normal period. Penalty imposed under Section 11AC is set aside. The matter is remanded to the original authority to recomputed the duty by following the above observations.

43. The Himalaya Drug Company Vs. The Commissioner, Central Excise & Service Tax-Bangalore (North-West)

Issue:-Classification of Liv 52 Protec- Whether under Chapter 2309 as Animal feed Supplement or under Chapter 3004 as Ayurvedic P or P Medicine.

Held:- Tariff heading 23099010 cover preparation of a kind used in Animal feeding and under other it cover Compounded Animal feed. Tariff Heads 30049011 cover Medicaments mixed or unmixed for therapeutic or prophylactic use and under other- Ayurvedic, Unani, Siddha, Homeopathic or Biochemical systems medicaments, put up for retail sale. The contents of the impugned product have therapeutic or prophylactic properties. Liv 52 Vet Liquid is marketed as Drugs. The contents of the two products are similar except for certain herbs. Animal feed supplements are mixture which provide extra vitamin and minerals to the animals whereas this product does not have any such vitamin or minerals hence cannot be called animal feed supplement. Further 23099010 cover compounded animal feed therefore this is not covered under Chapter 23. It is also a fact that the product is being marketed as Ayurvedic medicine in some media channels. The Tribunal held that the product is rightly classifiable under Chapter 300339 upto February, 2005 and Chapter 30049011 from March, 2005 onward. Demand for normal period was upheld. Being a classification matter and also that the department was fully aware of the practice of assessment of the appellant demand for extended period was disallowed.

44. Minerva Mills Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise & ST, Bangalore (West)

Issue:-The appellant undertakes processing of their own cloth and also receives grey fabrics from other units of NTC for processing like bleaching/dyeing and mercerizing on job work basis. For the goods received on job work basis from Karnataka Handloom Development Corporation (KHDC) a state government undertaking the appellant adopted selling price declared by KHDC while returning the processing cloth to KHDC. However, the Department observed that the value adopted by the appellant was incorrect and therefore, it needs to be re- determined by including the landed cost of the raw materials, processing charges, and all other relevant charges as per Section 4 of the Central Excise Act, 1944.

Back

Held:- As per the Supreme Court's decision in the case of Ujagar Prints and based on CBEC circular No.619/10 /2002 -CX dated 19.2.2002 and No. 643/34/2002-CX dated 1.7.2002, it is a settled issue that the job worker has to discharge duty based on the landed cost and the processing charges and therefore, on merits the demand is upheld. Since the facts were known to the department and there is no evidence placed on record for wilful evasion of duty with intent to evade, the question of invoking proviso to Section 11A does not arise. The impugned order is allowed to the extent of confirmation of duty only for the normal period. The appeal is allowed partially.

52. Innasimuthu Vs. Commissioner of GST & C.EX, Madurai

Issue:-Manufacture of Matches by packaging of Machine made dipped Splints in Match Boxes.

Held:- By judicial discipline, following the decision in the appellant's own case in appeal Nos.E/41197,41147,41148/2013 vide Final Order Nos. 40172-40174/2023 dated 17.03.2023 it is of the considered opinion that the impugned order does not require any interference. In the result, the appeal is dismissed.

53. Ankit Ispat Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of GST & C.Ex, Trichy

Issue:-The appellant had taken credit on imported shredded scrap to the tune of Rs.24,01,371/- on the basis of photocopies of Bills of Entry. It appeared that the aforesaid documents were not eligible and valid documents to avail CENVAT credit in terms of Rule 9(1) of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004. After due process of law, the original authority confirmed the demand of Rs.24,01,371/- for the above period along with interest and imposed equal penalty. The appellant preferred appeals before Commissioner (Appeals) who vide the impugned order rejected the appeals on the ground of time-bar.

Held:- Unlike the Appellants claim of ignorance of receipt of the impugned documents the Commissioner (Appeals) has shown that all the SCN's were issued prior to the closure of the Appellants factory. Factual details and circumstances show the service of the impugned orders on the Appellant. The inaction on their part bars the Appellant from claiming a remedy of filing an appeal almost a decade after the receipt of the earliest Order in Original No 06/2011–C.Ex. dated 16/03/2012, as evidenced by postal acknowledgement card, there by wrongly alleging non-receipt of orders and violation of the natural justice. Hence the judgment of the Hon'ble Bangalore Tribunal in the case of Venkateswara Power Projects Ltd. Vs. CCE, Central Excise Appeal No. 20007 of 2021 dated 18/01/2021, is also distinguished. From the discussion above the Appellants pleadings fails both on facts and law. The impugned order merits to be upheld and is so ordered. The appeals are dismissed.

54. 1.Vaibhav Metals 2.Bothra Metals and Alloys Pvt. Ltd. 3. Yash Industries 4. Shree Padmavathi Metals 5. Shrinivas Impex Vs. Commissioner of GST & C. Ex, Coimbatore

Issue:- Illegal availment of CENVAT credit of CVD paid on the imported goods by the manufacturers of aluminium products without physically receiving the goods i.e. imported aluminium scrap allegedly purchased from the traders on high sea sales basis into their factory.

Held:- M/s Bothra Metals and Alloys Pvt. Ltd. and Yash Industries imported scrap on high sea sales basis and had sold aluminium scrap to Vaibhav Metals by high sea sales through M/s Shree Padmavati Metals. When confronted with documents they agreed that the goods had been diverted. Hence M/s. Bothra Metals and Alloys Pvt. Ltd. and Vaibhav Metals were fully aware of the clandestine activity and its consequences. Shri Padmavathi Metals was trading in scrap purchased locally and importer and had diverted imported scrap in the guise of sale to Vaibhav Metals. .M/s Shrinivas Impex was engaged in the trading of scrap of aluminium, copper, brass, zinc etc. They had sold aluminium scrap to Vaibhav Metals on high seas basis. When confronted with documents he agreed that the goods had been diverted. The discussion in the impugned order has established the role and knowledge of the appellants in the clandestine activity designed to misuse CENVAT credit.

55. M/s Avail Printers private limited Vs. Commissioner of CGST & Excise, Kolkata North

Final Order No. 75055/2024

Issue:-Whether the appellant is entitled to take Cenvat credit on various dutiable products i.e. Box, Tag, Book cover etc. and non dutiable products i.e. poster, Leaflet, etc. The appellant claimed that they have taken the credit on the inputs received for the manufacture of the said goods and were paying duty as applicable.

Back

Held:- The appellant did not produce necessary documents as required under the provisions of Rules 6(1), 6(2) and 6(3) of the cenvat credit Rules 2004. The documentary evidence tendered in the matter is for the period 01-04-2014 onwards, while the instant case pertains to the period from 2009-10 to February 2014.

56. Asha Engineering Works Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Kolkata-II

Issue:-The appellant were engaged in job work amounting to manufacture in terms of section 2(f)(i) of central Excise Act on behalf of M.s Usha martin Ltd. excise duty was demanded as they were affixing the brand name of m/s usha martin Ltd. in the goods manufactured by them.

Held:- The appellants have been undertaking job-work for M/s Usha Martin Ltd. It is further seen that they are affixing the brand name of M/s Usha Martin Ltd. in the goods manufacture by them in the course of job work. Accordingly, the order-in-original passed is sustained.

57. Klar Sehen pvt Ltd. Vs. Commr. of Central Excise, Kolkata

Issue:-The department is for the view that the valuation of the impugned goods should have been determined under Rule 4 of the valuation Rules, 2000. However, the appellant cleared the impugned goods by determining the value under Rule 8 of the valuation Rules 2000 and paid duty accordingly. Held:- Relying on the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the matter of Mafatlal Industries v. Union of India - 1997 (89) E.L.T. 247 (S.C.) = 1996 (9) SCALE 457 which has been followed constantly by the various courts and tribunal, held that the refund claims filed beyond statutory period of limitations prescribed by the statute (Section 11 B of Central Excise Act,1944 or Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962) are barred by limitation.

Held:- Citing the example in case of Commissioner of Central Excise and Customs, Surat Vs Sun pharmaceuticals Inds ltd and drug manufacturers vs UOI reported in 2008, it has been decided that the valuation of physician samples is to be done as per Rule 4 of the valuation Rules 2000.

58. Bharat Roll Industries Private Ltd. Vs. Commr. of Central Excise, Kolkata IV

Issue:-The appellants have two units namely unit I and unit II. During the course of audit of unit II, the appellant has cleared the goods from their factory to their other factory. The Id. Authorised representative of the appellants submits that the appellant has cleared the goods on transaction value which is 115% of the cost but the appellants did not give any CAS-4.

Held:- Rule 8 of the Central Excise valuation Rules 200 the whole of the production has been cleared to sister unit then the same is to be determined by paying duty on the cost of the articles at 115% of the cost of production or manufacture of such goods. Admittedly the appellant has not done so. The appellant is required to pay duty in terms of provisions of section 4(1)(b) of the central Excise act 1944 at the rate of 115% of the cost of production or manufacture of such goods.

59. Sri Sai Krishna Health Care Products Vs. Commissioner of Central Tax, Medchal - GST

Issue:-Appellants are engaged in manufacture and supply of mosquito coils to two parties. These mosquito coils were being cleared under the brand name "STOP" and "TODAY". Hence, the SSI exemption benefit under Notification No 08/2003-CE dt.01.03.2003 is denied as they were not meeting the condition No.4 of the notification. The condition No.4 of the said notification provided that the exemption contained in the notification shall not apply to specified goods bearing a brand name or trade name, whether registered or not, of another person.

Held:- It is not disputed that (i) the goods were being manufactured by the Appellant and cleared in packed form; (ii) on packing materials certain details like brand name/trade name etc., were imprinted; (iii) the names of brand owners were appearing as "marketed by" even though the names of the Appellants were also appearing as "manufactured by". It is on the record that the department has recorded the statements of both Appellants as well as brand name owners and has also relied on certain documents including advertisements, trademark application, etc., to establish that the brands viz., "STOP" and "TODAY" were linked to SRCPL and Farmax respectively. The statements have clearly linked that these companies were in the business of both manufacturing and trading and were using these brands in respect of a variety of products. The market was already aware of the identity of these brand names, even though they might be in relation to some other products. There is sufficient evidence on record by way of statements and other relied upon documents to the effect that these brand names/trade names were belonging to SRCPL and Farmax and not to the appellants.Further, there is nothing on record to establish that the Appellants were perceived to be the brand name owner for "STOP" and "TODAY" in the market. Hence SSI benefit rightly denied.

60. JSW Steel (Salav) Ltd. Vs. Commr of Central Excise & Service Tax, Raigad

Issue:-Recovery of Cenvat Credit of Rs. 1,21,36,223/- taken under Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 that he applicant was held not entitled to: The appellant, who operates a jetty for captive use at Salav on the banks of Revdanda creek under a thirty year lease agreement with the Maharashtra Maritime Board (MMB) for unloading iron ore lumps and iron ore pellets at last stage of transportation to their factory, had, in order to ensure availability of sufficient depth in the creek, for vessels carrying the raw materials from ships at anchorage to conveniently berth at jetty, been getting the creek bed dredged regularly and, against invoices issued by provider of the service, availed credit to extent of tax on such service.

Held:- It is common ground that the waters, which had been deepened by dredging for approach of barges, did not belong to the appellant. Nor do the waters belong to any particular owner other than the Republic of India. The administrative control over such waters is vested with the Maharashtra Maritime Board (MMB) and any improvement, or enhancement of capability, would render the Maharashtra Maritime Board (MMB) to be recipient of service irrespective of the source of payment for such service. This is an aspect that the appellant has not been able to controvert and it is on this aspect that the eligibility of CENVAT credit must rest for, otherwise, rule 3 of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 would be rendered superfluous. It is only by reading definitions into the framework of the scheme, permitting the recipient of the service to avail of credit, that the integrity of the scheme can be maintained; the appellant has not been able to provide any precedent decision which would alter such construct of the CENVAT scheme. In re JSW Jaigarh Port Ltd, the issue for consideration was the entitlement for credit by the port operator that rested upon the area of the port being under the control of the appellant therein. In re JSW Steel (Salav) Ltd, the dispute pertains to the services availed for setting up of, and operation, of the jetty which was under undisputed lease to the appellant. The tax discharged on services performed on such leased property, while the waters and 'creek bed' were not, does conform to the secondary qualification of being the recipient of the service entitling availment of credit of tax paid on 'taxable service' that conform to threshold eligibility by inclusion in definition. The decision of the Tribunal in re Ultratech Cement Ltd arose in similar circumstances of claim by recipient of service and, hence, would not apply to the resolution of the present dispute.

Issue:-Penalty equivalent to the duty confirmed under Section 11AC of the Central Excise Act should be imposed.

Held:- where demand has been confirmed invoking extended period of limitation penalty equivalent to duty evaded needs to be imposed and there is no discretion to any authority as held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Union of India V/s M/s Rajasthan Spinning &Weaving reported as 2009 (238) E.L.T. 3 (S.C.).

62. Mamta Steel India Pvt. Ltd., and Lal Padmakar Singh, Director, Vs. CCE, Lucknow

Issue:-Appellants were engaged in manufacture of MS Ingots, falling under Tariff Item No.72061090 of schedule to Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. Visit was made by the Central Excise Officers, during visit shortage of finished goods was found. On scrutiny of records, it was observed that appellants have been clearing the goods against the same invoice, number of times to various customers and thus clandestinely remove the excisable finished goods and thus was evading central excise duty.

Held:- The Tribunal held that allegation of clandestine removal is sustainable on the basis of statements of various persons and as the appellants have been clearing the goods against the same invoice, number of times to various customers. Penalty on the director is also sustainable due to his active involvement.

63. Sachdeva Holdings Pvt. Ltd., Vs CX and CGST, Noida

Issue:-Refund of excess payment of service tax.

Held:- The Tribunal after relying on the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the matter of Mafatlal Industries v. Union of India - 1997 (89) E.L.T. 247 (S.C.) = 1996 (9) SCALE 457 which has been followed constantly by the various courts and tribunal, held that the refund claims filed beyond statutory period of limitations prescribed by the statute (Section 11 B of Central Excise Act,1944 or Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962) are barred by limitation.

64. Simbhaoli Sugar Ltd., Vs CCE, Noida

Final Order No. 70116/2023 dated 11.10.2023

Issue:-Disallowed the CENVAT Credit in respect of the printer and cartridges used in office.

Held:- The Tribunal Held that credit is not admissible in respect of the printer and cartridges used in office, as they fall within the exclusion clause of the definition. Further upheld the demand of interest and penalty in respect of credit disallowed.

65. Shri Pintu Tyagi Vs CCE, Ghaziabad

Issue:-Manufacture and clearance of excisable Goods without obtaining registration and without paying duty.

Held:- The entire activities undertaken in the factory were done clandestinely and no formal records were maintained about the operation. The Tribunal Held that demand is sustainable on the basis of statements of the appellant and other persons and in view of the evidences adduced by the Department and also upheld penalties on persons for their active involvement in clandestine activity.

66. Sumit Nagrath Vs. Commissioner (Appeals) Customs, CGST, Noida

Issue:-Refund of Service Tax paid by mistake.

Held:- Tribunal held that dispute between the appellant and the builder, two contracting parties. This dispute has to be resolved between two parties to the contract and no refund can be made treating the disputed amount as tax which was never paid to the exchequer. Refund claim for the reason above is not maintainable.

Issue:- - The demand of service tax for constructing educational institutes as has been confirmed by the authority below on the ground that for any organisation or institutions to qualify as having been established solely for educational, religious, charitable, help, sanitation or philanthropic purposes, for non-commercial status, it is required that same fulfils the condition of being run without any profit making. None of the educational Institutes were observed to have a non-commercial status. We have no reason to differ from these findings because there is no denial apparent on record that the educational institutions for whom appellant constructed the complex, were charging fees from the students. None of these educational Institutes are Government owned institutes. Also there is no evidence to prove that despite collection of fee, there was no profit to these institutes and that these educational institutes were non-profit driven. Hence we confirm the demand of service tax pertaining to construction of educational institute activity.

Held: - The demand of service tax for constructing educational institutes as has been confirmed by the authority below on the ground that for any organization or institutions to qualify as having been established solely for educational, religious, charitable, help, sanitation or philanthropic purposes, for non-commercial status, it is required that same fulfils the condition of being run without any profit making. The value for legal and professional services the same is very much taxable, as it qualifies to be called as service for post negative list period it is not covered under the exclusion clause of section 66 D of Finance Act. Hence, we do not find any infirmity while the demand on this count.

2. Agriculture Produce Marketing Committee V/s Commissioner (Appeals-I) Central Tax/GST Delhi

Final Order 51133/2023 dated 23.08.2023

Issue: -In the present case, admittedly, the order dated 30.01.2017 of the adjudicating authority was received by the appellant on 06.02.2017, but the appeal was presented before the Commissioner on 27.07.2017. It was clearly not presented within the period of two months nor within the extended period of one month. The Commissioner (Appeals) dismissed the appeal after placing reliance on the decision of Supreme Court in Singh Enterprises

Held:-The provisions of section 35 of the Central Excise Act, 1944 relating to appeals before Commissioner (Appeals) had come up for consideration before the Supreme Court in Singh Enterprises. Section 35 of the Central Excise Act provides that any person aggrieved by any decision or order passed under the Act, may appeal to the Commissioner (Appeals) within sixty days from the date of the communication to him of such decision or order provided that the Commissioner (Appeals) may, if he is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from presenting the appeal within the aforesaid period of sixty days, allow it to be presented within a further period of thirty days. The provisions of section 35 of the Central Excise Act are paramateria with section 85(3A) of the Finance Act. The Supreme Court held that the period upto which the prayer for condonation can be accepted is limited by the proviso to sub section (1) of section 35 of the Central Excise Act and the position is crystal clear that the appellate authority has no power to allow the appeal to be presented beyond the period of thirty days after the expiry period of sixty days. In other words, the appellate authority can entertain the appeal by condoning the delay only upto 30 days beyond the 5 ST/50931/2018 normal period for preferring the appeal, which is 60 days.

3. Carry Fast Agency Vs Pr. Commissioner, CE & GST, Indore

51302/2023 dated 15.09.2023

Issue:- Assessee-respondent is engaged in providing "Clearing and Forwarding Agents Services"and has been registered for the same. During the course of audit of their record for the period from2011-12 to 2014-15, it was observed that while discharging the tax liability of C & F Agent Service, the assessee-respondent has not included the freight value received by him in the taxable value account.

Held: -The conclusion which stands finalized to our understanding is that for the service of clearing and forwarding agent to be taxable, the activities of clearing as well as forwarding shall be performed by one and the same agent. To put it otherwise, the service of clearing and forwarding agent will not be taxable if:

(i) The agent outsources the activity of forwarding to a goods transport agency.
(ii) The principle himself hires the GTA to perform forwarding activity and the clearing and forwarding agent is engaged only to perform the clearing activities.

In both the situations the service provider for the forwarding activity since is a person different from C&F agent that the value of freight forwarding shall not be included in the value of taxable C&F Agent Service. If fact, service cannot be taxed as C&F Agent Service.

From these clauses of both the agreements, it is clear that respondent is admitted to be the C&F agent. As already observed above respondent only is providing clearing as well as forwarding service. Hence it is not open to respondent to say that service provided by him is different from C&F Agent Service. Irrespective there are two separate contracts executed by the principle but for appointing one and the same person i.e. respondent to render carrying as well as forwarding service. This fact distinguishes the present case from Kulcip Medicines (supra). Thus, we hold that both the activities rendered by respondent shall constitute one synchronized service of C&F agent. Hence respondent is liable to levy under Section 65(25) of the Finance Act. More so for the reason that appellant is registered as C&F agent and not as GTA. Thus we answer the above question in negative by holding that when one and the same person is providing service of clearing as well as forwarding irrespective under two separate contracts, it shall not amount to be the bifurcation of C&F Service. The agent has to be assessed for rendering C&F Service 65(25) and 65(105) of the Finance Act.

4. Nagar Parishad Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise & C.G.ST – Udaipur

51493/2023 dated 03.11.2023

Issue:- Assessee-respondent is engaged in providing service namely 'Renting of Immovable Property Services.' It came to the notice of the department that local authorities like appellant are not paying service tax in respect of the charges collected under various heads which are covered under Renting of Immovable Property.

Held:-From the decision as relied upon by learned DR, we observe that initially this Tribunal vide its Final Order No. 53436- 53500/2017 dated 25.05.2017 in the case of M/s. Krishi Upaj Mandi Samiti has decided the issue of taxability. The relevant para is as follows:

"14. We have examined the scope of entry in the negative list along with various clarifications issued by the Government. On harmonious construction of all material facts on record, we find that the appellants are not liable to service tax on shops/ sheds/platforms/land leased out in the notified market area for traders for temporary storage of agricultural produce traded in the market. In respect of shops, premises, buildings, etc. rented/leased out for any other commercial purpose other than with reference to agricultural produce (like bank general shop etc.), the same shall not be covered by the negative list and the appellants shall be liable to service tax."

This decision has been upheld by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Krishi Upaj Mandi Samiti (supra) of Year 2022. Otherwise also, it is observed that the appellant had admitted their tax liabilities. In view of the said settled provision and the admission of the appellant for his liability, we do not find any infirmity in the order confirming the impugned demand. Since the appellant had never declared the fact of the income received by renting of immovable property which was purely and admittedly for the purposes of commerce, we do not find any infirmity in the order imposing penalties under Section 75, 76, 77 and 78 of the Finance Act. Though the appellant claimed the benefit under Section 80 but we do not find any reasonable cause with the appellant justifying the non-payment of service tax on the income which was being received for a long period of 5 to 6 years from renting of immovable properties, also the amount of service tax as confirmed against the appellant was not paid along with the interest in full within the stipulated time. Hence, we do not find any reason to extend the benefit of Section 80 of the Act to the appellant. With these findings, we uphold the order under challenge. Resultantly, the appeal stands dismissed.

5. Export Inspection Agency, Delhi, Vs Commissioner of Service Tax, Delhi-I

Issue:-The appellant is a body created under Section 7 of Export (Quality Control and Inspection) Act, 1963 and works under the administrative and technical control of Export Inspection Council. The appellant is the field organisation of Export Council under Free Trade Agreement executed between India and foreign nation‟s products, eligible for Certificate of Origin required for preferential treatment in exporting country. This was subject to the said product being certified by certifying authority approved by both the countries. In pursuance to the said FTA, the appellant has been recognised as certificating authority for different food products. The Department alleged that the service provided by the appellant were exigible to service tax. Two show cause notices dated 17.04.2014 and 17.04.2015 3 were issued for the period 2008-09 to November 2013 wherein service tax of Rs. 11,01,17,328/- was demanded.

Held:-In order to understand whether the appellant is discharging sovereign function, it is important to understand the nature of the appellant. It is accepted that the appellant is a body created under Section 7 of Export (Quality Control and Inspection) Act, 1963. The Export Inspection Agency is under the administrative and technical control of the Export Inspection Council. The appellant is the certifying authority for different food products which are to be exported to other countries as per the Free Trade Agreements executed between India and other nations. The appellant collects a fee for the purpose of examination, quality control or inspection. The structure of the fees for testing is fixed by Central Government. However, we note that as per section 10(3) of Export (Quality Control and Inspection) Act, 1963, the Council has its own fund which consist of income and receipts of the Council from other sources and all such money belonging to the fund of the Council is to be deposited in scheduled banks. From the above, we note that though the quantum of fee charged by the appellant is fixed by the Central Government, however the same is not deposited in the Government Treasury. Consequently, this clearly takes the functions of the appellant out of the ambit of para 2 of the aforesaid circular to para 3 of the said circular, which is „provision of service‟. Though the appellant‟s function is essential for inspection of export goods, but the usage of the term „may‟ in Section 3 of the Export (Quality Control and Inspection) Act, 1963, for the establishment of the Export Inspection Council, thus making it NOT a mandatory statutory duty activity of the Government. Consequently, it cannot be said that the appellant is discharging mandatory/statutory obligation.We find that our conclusion is buttressed by the judgement of the Supreme Court in the case of Krishi Upaj Mandi Samiti, Alwar, Vs Commissioner of Central Excise and Service Tax, Alwar [2022 (2) TMI1113- Supreme Court].

6. Berkowits Hair & Skin Clinic Vs. Principal Commissioner of GST & Central Excise, Delhi South Commissionerate

Issue:- On limitation issue the Commissioner has held that these two services were not hit by limitation as these were not undertaken by the appellant at the time of the audit for the financial year 2009-10 to 2013-14.

Held:- the invocation of the extended period under Section 73 of the Finance Act, 1994 is justified and is upheld.

7. Archna Traders Vs. CCE, Surat-I

Issue:- Denial of benefit of VCES Scheme to the appellant by invoking Section 106 of the Finance Act, 2013.

Held:- The summons was issued to the appellant much prior to the cut off for availing the benefits i.e 01.03.2013 and demand SCN was also issued in the same proceedings.

8. Natural Petrochemicals Pvt Ltd Vs. CCE, Rajkot

Final Order No. A/12059/2023 Dtd. 18.09.2023

Issue:- Non payment of Service Tax under the category of goods Trasport agency, business Auxiliary Service and commission received .

Held:- The appellant had not declared the said income in their monthly returns. Even if the appellant believe that the said income was exempted from service tax, they should have declared the same as exempted income. The appellant have also submit that they have not paid the service tax due to financial Hardship. we find that the appellant are fully aware of their liability and choose not be paid service tax on account of financial Hardship or otherwise.

9. Cadila Pharmaceuticals Ltd Vs. CST, Ahmedabad

Issue:- Whether the payment of fees paid to USFDA for approval of their medicaments can be treated as service as per Finance Act, 1994 and consequently liable to Service Tax on reverse charge basis under Section 66A or otherwise.

Held:- The Hon'ble Bench find that the activity is a service or otherwise that depends on the issue that whether the USFDA should be treated as Government in terms of 'Negative List' under Section 65B(37). Therefore, the activity is service or otherwise is a consequential to the decision, whether the Service provider to the government or other then the Government. Therefore, we do not agree with the appellant that the decision of the activity as service attained finality as per original order, which was not challenged by the department before the Commissioner (Appeals). Accordingly, we do not find any infirmity in the impugned order in appeal whereby the matter was remanded to the commissioner (Appeals). The appellant is at liberty to raise any of the issue in their defence before the Adjudicating authority. Therefore, the remand is not prejudicial to the interest of the appellant. Hence, we are of the view that the impugned order is clearly sustainable and the appeal has no substance. Therefore, the impugned order is upheld and the appeal filed by the appellant is dismissed.

10. Mann & Hummel Filter (P) Ltd. Versus The Commissioner of Central Excise, Customs & ST, Bangalore (North-West)

Issue:- The appellants availed services of some of the employees from their parent Company from Germany but did not pay Service Tax on reverse charge basis under the category of Manpower Recruitment or Supply Agency Services.

Held:- It was held that the issue is covered by the judgement of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of M/s Northern Operating Systems Pvt Ltd – 2022 (61) GSTL 129. The demand on merits was upheld for the normal period. The demand for extended period and penaltyunderSection78wassetaside.

11. Ocean Polymers Versus The Commissioner of Central Excise, Customs & ST, Thiruvananathapuram

Issue:- The appellant has filed a refund claim under Section 104 of the Finance Act, 1994, inserted by Finance Act 2017, which was not allowed on the grounds that it was filed beyond the stipulated period of six months, there is no nexus between challans filed with the claim, the work sheet showing service tax payments were not authenticated by M/s. Kerala Industrial Infrastructure Corporation Ltd. (KINFRA) and that the disclaimer certificate from KINFRA is not original copy but a Xerox copy.

Back

Held:- Section 104 of the Finance Act, 1994 inserted by Finance Act, 2017 is a special provision and all the conditions prescribed therein need to be strictly followed and there isno scope for any other interpretation. In this regard in the case of Commr. of C. Ex & S.T., Rajkot Vs. Essar Bulk Terminal Salaya Ltd., reported as 2018 (363) E.L.T. 262 (Tri.-Ahmd.) the Tribunal has held that the ld. Commissioner (Appeals) has erred in condoning the delay in filing there fund claim by the respondent. Since the reason express provision in Section 104(3) of the Finance Act, 1994 prescribing a specific timeline for filing of the refund that time limit need to be strictly adhered respective of what so ever reason may be the cause for delay in filing the refund claim.

12. Holifaith Builders & Developers Pvt. Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, Customs & ST, Cochin

Issue:- The assesse are engaged in providing taxable service under the category of 'Construction of Residential Complex Service' and 'Works Contract Service'. Taking Note of the Circular No. 108/02/2009 dated 29.01.2009, they have filed a refund claim for Rs. 1,39,86,203/- on 17.02.2009 being the service tax paid on 'Construction of Residential Complex Service' and 'Works Contract Service' along with relevant enclosures. On adjudication, refund claim was rejected by the Deputy Commissioner after scrutiny of the few agreements for construction dated 20.11.2006 executed between the respondent and the clients, on the ground of limitation and issue of unjust enrichment. Aggrieved by the said order, the Respondent filed an appeal before the ld. Commissioner (Appeals), who has allowed their appeal;

Held:- The order of the ld. Commissioner (Appeals) is not a reasoned one, inasmuch as ld. Commissioner (Appeals) has not recorded detailed reasoning on the admissibility of refund claim by analysing the relevant agreements considered by the adjudicating authority in rejecting the refund claim. Also, the ld. Commissioner (Appeals) has not recorded any findings on the issue of limitation and detailed reasoning on the issue of unjust enrichment. In these circumstances, we are of the view that the order of ld. Commissioner (Appeals) cannot be sustained.

Issue:- The appellant is engaged in implementing the ongoing Upper Krishna multipurpose irrigation projects and other related irrigation projects entrusted to it by the Government of Karnataka. They were registered with the Service Tax Department w.e.f. 17/05/2013 for providing 'works contract service' and also discharging service tax under reverse charge mechanism, namely, manpower supply, legal services, rent-a-cab service and director's sitting fee etc. Also, they have separate service tax registration for the activities carried out at Almatti Dam site and Bheemarayanagudi project within jurisdictional Central Excise/Service Tax authorities. It was noticed that though the Appellant paid guarantee commission to the Government of Karnataka for providing unconditional and irrevocable guarantee for raising funds from debt market however, they failed to discharge service tax on the said guarantee commission under reverse charge mechanism and also had not declared the said guarantee commission in the periodical ST-3 returns filed. Consequently, show cause notice was issued to the Appellant for recovery of service tax amount of Rs. 16,31,36,263/- for the period from 01.07.2012 to 30.06.2017 with interest and penalty, which stood confirmed on adjudication.

Held:- It is also not in dispute that post 01.04.2016 to 30.06.2017, the appellant accepting the said services as taxable service discharged service tax on the same and does not dispute the same in the present appeal. However, for the period 01.07.2012 to 31.03.2016, they resisted levy of service tax on the ground that definition of "support service" under Section 65B(49) of the Finance Act, 1994 does not cover the service of guarantee received by the Appellant from Government of Karnataka for raising funds from the debt market. CESTAT do not find merit in the argument of the appellant, in as much as reading the definition of " service" and "support service" in juxtaposition, it is clear that the said definition of 'support service' is exhaustive and takes in its fold all activities of infrastructural, operational, administrative, logistic, marketing or any other support of any kind comprising functions that entities carry out in ordinary course of operations themselves but may obtain as services by outsourcing from others for any reason whatsoever and shall include advertisement and promotion, construction or works contract etc. Thus, raising of finance for day-to-day operations by the appellant is a 'service' in the ordinary course of business operation, squarely falls within the scope of the definition of 'support service'. Therefore, the appellant is liable to discharge service tax on the Guarantee commission paid to Government of Karnataka during the period 01.07.2012 to 31.03.2016 for providing unconditional and irrevocable guarantee in raising funds from the debt market. The impugned order is modified and the demand is confirmed for the normal period of limitation with interest. Penalties imposed are set aside.

14. Bangalore Housing Development & Investments Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Bangalore (North)

Issue:- The appellant had short paid interest on the delayed payment of service tax. They had claimed that the interest rate would be 15% whereas the department claimed that it is 24%

Held:- The appellant have been disputing the said allegation of Revenue at all levels. On being inquired during the course of hearing to place the invoices under which rent was collected from the tenants, the ld. Advocate for the appellant expressed inability to produce a single copy of the invoices. Thus, the appellant could not establish that service tax was not collected earlier, hence could not be deposited before the due date. In these circumstances, I do not find merit in the contention of the ld. Advocate that their case falls under Sl. No. 2 of Notification No. 3/2016-ST dated 01.03.2016. On the other hand, the applicable interest would be @24% on the service tax amount paid belatedly even though collected from service receivers.

15. The Commissioner of Central Excise, & ST- Thiruvananthapuram Vs. Kerala State Electricity Board

Issue:- 'Consulting Engineer Service' from overseas firm and paid consultancy charges to them. The Appellants paid the tax but went on appeal up to Supreme Court. Supreme Court rejected the appeal. Paralley appellant had preferred refund claim. Refund claim was rejected in OIO but allowed in OIA. Hence, this appeal.

Held:- The Supreme Court Dismissed their appeal as well as the review application filed by the respondent. Thus, the Order of the adjudicating authority confirming the demand of service Tax merged with the Order of the Hon'ble Supreme Court. OIA is set aside and the order of adjudicating authority is restored. Revenue's appeal is allowed.

16. Embassy Property Developments Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise, Customs & ST- Bangalore (North)

Issue:- Appellant during the period 2004-05 to 2007-08, provided certain services to M/s. Golf Links Software Park Pvt. Ltd. and M/s. Manyata Promoters Pvt. Ltd. The appellant claimed that the services provided by them are not Management Consultancy Services since they are executory in nature.

Held:- The appellants are required to manage overall implementation of the project viz., the Software Technology Park for which the agreement had been entered between the appellant and M/s. Manyata Promoters Pvt. Ltd. It states and reveals their obligation and function is implementation of the project and not execution of the project. On a close reading of few stipulations/clauses of the Agreement, in the said context of the recitals, we find that the Appellants are required to supervise and coordinate all aspects of the development, use of reasonable means to see that the development is completed in accordance with plans and specifications, cash management of the project by providing cash flow charts and estimate charts to M/s. Manyata Promoters Pvt. Ltd., approach Municipality and any other authorities in obtaining approvals; Analysing the stipulations of the said Agreement dated 31.3.2005, it cannot be said that the arrangement between the appellant and M/s. Manyata Promoters Pvt. Ltd. for execution of the project as a whole; on the contrary, it reveals that appellant has been engaged to advise/assist M/s. Manyata Promoters Pvt. Ltd. In implementation and completion of the project. the judgment referred by the learned Authorised Representative for the Revenue in the case of Jubilant

Enpro (supra), the interpretation referred to the definition of 'Management Consultancy Service' can safely be adopted to the present case. Besides the statements of various persons recorded from time-to-time, reveal that the activities by the appellant acknowledge to be in the nature of managerial service rendered to M/s. Manyata Promoters Pvt. Ltd. Besides, we find that the appellant had collected Service Tax as per Clause

5.2.1 of the Agreement in few instances from M/s. Manyata Promoters Pvt. Ltd. but not paid the same to the department. Thus, the Project Development Management Fee collected by the Appellant squarely fall under the category of 'Management Consultancy Service' and taxable service during the period under dispute. Invocation of extended period and imposition of penalty under Section 78 is also upheld by the Tribunal.

17. IBP Auto Service Vs. The Commissioner of Central Excise & ST, Calicut

Issue:- Condonation of delay

Held:- In view of the principle laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Singh Enterprises (supra), the ld. Commissioner (Appeals) could not have condoned the delay beyond 90 days, nor this Tribunal has jurisdiction also to condone the delay occurred beyond the said period. In the result, the impugned order is upheld and the appeal is dismissed.

18. The Kerala Minerals & Metals Ltd. Vs. The Commissioner of Customs (Prev.) Cochin

Issue:- Classification of 'Huy glass1105 M-Membrane Bags' (Filter Bags)- Whether under CTH 5911909 or under CTH 8421.

Held:- The filter bags are made of 100% fibre glass material. Section Note 1(r) to Section (XI) (Textile & Textile Articles), exclude such articles. Chapter 8421 specifically includes air purifiers. Hence the goods are rightly classifiable under Chapter 8421 as per the view of the Department. However, the demand was set aside on limitations.

19. The Commissioner, Central Excise & Service Tax- Belagavi Vs. Vicat Sagar Cement Ltd.

Issue:- Whether Cenvat Credit is available on GTA outward in case of clearance of Cement when the transaction value is determined under Section 4(1) (a) of Central Excise Act, 1944. The demand had been dropped by the adjudicating authority basing on Range Officer's report that the sales are on FOR Basis. Department filed the appeal on the ground that in there cases the transaction value did not include freight outwards, hence the order was not correct.

Held:- The appeal was allowed by way of remand with a direction to the adjudicating authority to ascertain the place of removal in accordance with the observation of Larger Bench of Tribunal in case of The Ramco Cements Limited Vs. CCE, Puducherry.

20. Lovely Autos vs Commissioner of Central Excise, Ludhiana

Issue:-Demand of Service Tax on "Lovely Service Club" subscription fees of Rs. 474/-.

Held:- The demand of duty is confirmed along with interest and penalty under Section 78. Penalty imposed under Sections 76 and 77are set aside. The extended period is rightly invoked.

21. General Manager Punjab Roadways vs. C. CE & ST Ludhiana

Issue:-Condonation of delay in filing the application before the Commissioner (Appeals)

Back

Held:- Commissioner (Appeals) has power to condone the delay upto maximum period of three months whereas in the present case, the appeal was filed on 29.05.2014 after the delay of more than one and half years. Hence, tribunal finds that there is no infirmity in the impugned order passed by the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) which we uphold by dismissing the appeal of the appellant. Tribunal relied upon Singh Enterprises vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Jamshedpur – 2008 (221) ELT 163 (S.C.)

22. Laxmi Pipes Ltd. vs. C. CE & ST, Rohtak

Issue:-Demand of Service tax on Commission and Brokerage service under "Business Auxillary Service.

Held:- An agreement, oral or written, is the source to understand the type of service rendered. In the instant case, it is understood from the contracts or the offer letter that the appellants rendered services with reference to the main work of their principals i.e. provision of support for logistics. This being the case, tribunal is not inclined to accept the argument of the appellant that the services rendered were “Business Support Service”. Therefore, Appeal Dismissed.

23. Competent Constructions vs. C. CE & ST Chandigarh

Issue:-Adjustment of excess Service tax paid in subsequent period.

Held:- Appellant contention that the service tax liability for 01.07.2012 to 31.03.2013 was discharged in the year 2013-14 is not tenable as the service tax return for the financial year 2013-14 filed by the appellant has never been challenged nor the revise return was filed by the assessee. Further, if the contention of the appellant is accepted that they have paid excess service tax in the returns filed for the period 2013-14 then the only course left to him is to seek refund of the same. There is no provision of adjustment of excess payment of service tax of one period towards the liability of the other period. Appeal dismissed.

24. H B Securities Ltd vs. C. CE & ST Delhi-IV

Issue:-The appellants have not paid service tax on the transaction charges recovered, from their clients along with brokerage, from their customers.

Held:- That transaction charges are payable by the Stock Brokers in terms of the Regulations issued by SEBI andthese are not any fee or statutory levy that is payable by the customers of the Stock Brokers. In effect, the Stock Broker/Appellants are recovering the fee or charges payable by them to SEBI for the conduct of business and are paying the same to SEBI.
We are of the considered opinion that these charges recovered from the customers are in the nature of consideration towards the taxable service rendered by the appellant as far as the customers are concerned. Tribunal has already goneinto the issue of the includability of transaction charges in the service tax in the case of Sriram Insight Share Brokers Ltd.- 2019 (26) GSTL231 (Tri. Kolkata). No case made by appellants. Hence appeal rejected.

25. Canon India Private Limited vs. C. CGST Gurgaon-I

Issue:-Whether the expenses incurred towards payment of gross amount to expats by the appellant to the foreign company, were taxable under category of “Manpower recruitment & supply Agency Service” (Upto 30.06.2012) and thereafter with effect from 01.07.2012 under Service as defined under 65B(4) of the Finance Act, 1994.

Held:- The matter referred to third member due to difference in opinion and the third member upheld that the expats are the employees of the foreign company and the appellant is liable to pay Service Tax under reverse charge mechanism on the salary paid to expats in foreign currency.

26. Goodyear India Limited Vs CCEx & ST Delhi

Issue:-Commission paid by the appellants is chargeable to service tax under the Reverse Charge Mechanism for engaging commission agents abroad.

Held:- We find no infirmity in the findings of the OIO and OIA to the extent that the appellants have received services from foreign agents who have procured order outside India against which they had supplied the goods and thus have rendered themselves liable to pay service tax on Reverse Charge Mechanism in terms of Section 66A of Finance Act, 1944 and the Taxation of Service (Provided from Outside India and Received in India) Rules, 2006. Extended period cannot be invoked to this extent. Both the appeals are partially allowed to the extent of limitation.

27. GS Promoters an Developers Vs Comm. of CGST Ludhiana

Issue:-Demand of Interest on Refund by Appellant, Rate of interest and time from which interest is to be calculated..

Held:- When a statute prescribes a certain rate of interest, it is not free for the Courts and Tribunals to increase the same. The provisions regarding interest as provided in the Central Excise Act prevail and this Tribunal cannot intervene as regards the date from which the interest is payable or as regards the rate of interest, so far as refunds under Central Excise Act, 1944 are concerned. Accordingly, I reject the appeal.

28. Sigma Moulds Nad Stampings Pvt Ltd vs Gurgaon II.

Issue:-Refund of service tax paid on the specified services used for export of goods.

Held:- I find that admittedly, the appellant has filed the refund claim beyond the stipulated period of one year as prescribed under the law and consequently, the Original Authority as well as the Appellate Authority have rejected the refund claim only on the ground of limitation. Further, I find that both the Notification No. 52/2011-ST dated 30.12.2013 and the subsequent Notification No. 41/2012-ST dated 29.06.2012 clearly provides that the refund claim shall be filed within one year from the date of export of goods and in the present case, admittedly, the refund has been filed after the limitation period is over. The prayer of the Learned Counsel for the appellant that he may be allowed to take the cenvat credit at this stage, cannot be entertained because it would amount to allowing rebate which is not provided in the notification.

29. Coswain Technologies Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Chennai-III

STA. No. 41567 of 2013 Final Order 40651/2023

Issue:-Suppression and Mis-representation of the facts of providing broadcasting service by deliberately declaring it as unlinking facility and also resorting to misclassification of the service as 'Business Support Service' with an intention to evade payment of service tax.

Held:- The appellant has totally suppressed facts and has tried to create confusion so as to escape the liability to pay tax. The agreement entered by M/s. Coxswain Technologies Ltd. with M/s Fortune Media Pvt. Ltd. and M/s. Mindscape Creations Pvt. Ltd. has to be considered as a sham document to cover up the 'broadcasting service' rendered by the appellant. Proceedings before quasi-judicial authority is not tied up in the heavy shackles of Procedures and Evidence Act. The same should not be taken advantage by parties to misrepresent facts and furnish fabricated and sham documents. Taking note of these aspects into consideration, it is viewed that the demand invoking extended period and imposition of penalties are legal and proper. In the result, the impugned order is upheld. Appeal is dismissed.

30. Surin Automotive Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Chennai-III

Final Order 40652/2023

Issue:- Whether the Bill Discounting Facility rendered by the appellant was amenable to Service Tax under the category of 'banking and other financial services' within the meaning of Section 65(12)(a)(ix) ibid?

Held:- From the definition of Banking and Financial Services, it is found that sub-clause (ix) covers even 'bill discounting facility' and as such, the appellant being a limited company, is also covered under the said definition. The definition makes it clear that such bill discounting facility could be offered not only by a banking company or a financial institution, but also by a body corporate. We find that our above view is supported by the decision in the case of M/s. Hind Filters Ltd. In view of the above discussions there is no justifiable reasons to interfere with the impugned order and hence appeal is dismissed.

31. Upshot Utility Services Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Chennai-III

Issue:- Appellants availed exemption to an extent of Rs.43,12,932/- from the gross amount received towards the services rendered by them to the units located inside the SEZ and have short-paid service tax demand of Rs.4,44,232/- for the month of March 2009.

Held:- The demand of duty and interest made in the impugned order is as per law. We have also set aside the penalty for reasons stated. However, with regard to the issue of time bar as per the normal time limit i.e. the matter regarding the receipt of Show Cause Notice by the appellant within normal time or whether time-barred alone is remanded to the Original Authority to be decided after giving sufficient opportunity to the appellant.

Final Order 40688/2023

Issue:- Demand of Service Tax on Royalty and Technical Knowhow fees. Whether interest chargeable on the Service Tax?
Held: The appellant, admittedly, has not challenged the levy of tax, but only questioned the interest which, according to us, does not merit consideration. We find that interest under Section 75 is necessarily linked to the duty payable, such liability arises automatically by operation of law, as held by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Commissioner of Central Excise, Pune v. M/s. SKF India Ltd. [2009-TIOL-82-SC-CX], which is also applicable to belated payment of interest even under the Service Tax Act. In view of the above, we do not find any merit in the appellants case and the same is dismissed.

33. Tamil Nadu Medical Services Corporation Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of GST & Central Excise, Chennai North Commissionerate

Final Order 40784/2023

Issue:- The appellant who is a State Government Public Limited Company engaged in procurement and distribution of drugs and medicines for Tamil Nadu State Government Hospitals failed to pay Service Tax on Storage and Warehousing Services and Cargo handling Services.

Held:- We are of the opinion that in the absence of a specific notification by the Central Government exempting their activities from service tax, like that issued by the State Government in the case of sales tax reproduced above, the appellant will not be eligible to claim exemption from service tax citing the 'sovereign function' principle. To decide the issue of 'Cargo Handling Services' only, matter is remanded to the Original authority. The impugned order is otherwise upheld except for the matter remanded.

34. KRSS Manpower Service Vs. Commissioner of GST & Central Excise, Salem

Final Order 40782/2023

Issue:- Non-payment of Service Tax on work of collection, cleaning, segregation and stacking of blasted raw magnesite within the mining area.

Held:- Held that the activity of collection, cleaning, segregation and stacking of blasted raw magnesite is classifiable under the category 'Mining Services' classifiable under section 65(105)(zzzy) of the Finance Act, 1994 and the demand is restricted to the period from 01/06/2007 onwards. Duty and interest may be worked out accordingly. Since duty was payable only from 01/06/2007 late fee and penalties are set aside.

35. M/s. International School for Management Studies Vs. Commissioner of Service Tax, Chennai-600035.

Issue:- Non-payment of Service tax under the category of "commercial training or coaching centre".

Held:- In view of the findings in the judgement of the Larger Bench in Sri Chaitanya Educational Committee, there is no merits in the appeal filed by the assessee and the same is dismissed.

36. Kaveri Warehousing Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of GST & Central Excise, Chennai

Final Order 40797 /2023

Issue:- Non-Payment of Service Tax on storage and Warehousing Services - Part- Payment of Service Tax by debit of Cenvat Credit account irregular as the Appellant did not receive the service.

Held:- The subjective satisfaction of the adjudicating authority cannot be interfered with as the impugned order is not shown to be demonstratively perverse based on no evidence or misreading of evidence or which a reasonable person could not form. The penalty imposed is mandatory in nature and as held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in UOI Vs. Dharmendra Textile Processors (2008) 13 SCC 369, the section prescribing mandatory penalty should be read as penalty for a statutory offence and the authority imposing penalty has no discretion in the matter in such cases and was duty bound to impose penalty equal to the duties so determined. Having regard to the discussions above the impugned order merits to be upheld and is so ordered.

37. International Seaport Dredging Limited Vs. Commissioner of GST & Central Excise, Chennai

Final Order No. 40803-40806/2023 dt.15.09.2023

Issue:-(i)Whether the services offered to Dredging Corporation of India was „Dredging Services‟ or „Supply of Tangible goods‟ service?
ii. Whether the services offered to Dhamra Port Company were „Dredging Services‟ or otherwise?
iii. Whether ISDL were liable to pay service tax for maintenance, repair services rendered by Foreign Service provider? And
iv. Whether service tax was payable on manpower supply services received from M/s. Bellsea?"

Held:- By judicial discipline, we follow the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of M/s. Northern Operating Systems Pvt. Ltd. (supra) and hold that the demand under this category is sustainable, and uphold the same. The demand of Service Tax on anpower Recruitment and Supply Agency services is upheld along with interest.

38. Orient Flights Pvt. Ltd.Vs. Commissioner of Service Tax, Chennai

Final Order No. 40864 OF 2023 dt. 04.10.23

Issue:-The assesse had leased an aircraft to M/s SG Air Leasing Ltd.for their exclusive use. On perusal of the copy of invoice raised it was observed that the assessee had not charged any tax either VAT or Service Tax. Not charging of tax under VAT, according to the Revenue, implied that there was no transfer of legal right of possession and effective control, but however, the description in the invoice was "towards charter flight charges". This was understood by the Revenue as aircraft having been leased out to M/s. SG Air Leasing Ltd. for their exclusive use and not just for transportation of passengers which activity prompted the Revenue to assume that there was 'supply of tangible goods for use' service and a demand notice was issued.

Held:- It is clear from the very fact that the appellant is contesting the issue of invoking larger period of limitation, that the rendering of service under the 'supply of tangible goods' is accepted; but for survey, persuasion, etc., by the officials, the tax would have remained unpaid ,amounting to evasion of duty. The other fact that the rendering of service and the receipt is not shown in the ST-3 return thus clearly amounts to suppression of facts; and hence, it is a clear case of suppression of facts with intent to evade tax payment. In view of the above, we do not see any justifiable reasons to interfere with the invocation of extended period of limitation and hence, the same is held to be in order, for which reason we dismiss the appeal.

39. Green House Promoters Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of GST & C.Ex, Chennai South Commissionerate

Final Order No. 40658 dated 08.08.23

Issue:- A) Whether on the land purchased outright by the appellant from the landowners and where site formation etc. is done after purchasing the land but before selling it, service tax is payable under the classification heading 'Site formation and clearance' service.
B) Whether on the land sold by the appellant as per the GPA obtained from the landowners and where site formation etc. is done after obtaining GPA but before selling the land, service tax is payable under the classification heading 'Site formation and clearance' service.

Held: A) Hence, when land is purchased outright by the appellant from the landowners and where it is self-developed by site formation etc. after purchasing the land but before selling it, and the development work is not done for or on behalf of any person involving a consideration being collected, service tax is not payable by the landowner. The judgements cited by the appellant are in accordance with the views stated above
B) Based on the discussions above it is held that, even on the land sold by the appellant as per the GPA obtained from the landowners and 24 ST/40955/2014 where site formation etc. is done after obtaining GPA but before selling the land, service tax is payable under the classification heading 'Site formation and clearance' service. It is now well settled that fraud vitiates all solemn acts. Any advantage obtained by practicing fraud is a nullity. Hence the extended period of time has been rightly invoked in this case. Moreso the very process of using GPA to claim principle-to-principle sale is a fraudulent act as highlighted in the Apex Court's judgment in Suraj Lamp & Industries Pvt. Ltd. (supra). Hence not only has the extended period been correctly invoked so also has penalty been correctly imposed. In the circumstances the imposition of penalty is justified as per law.With regard to the discussions above, we hereby reject the appeal filed by the appellant and uphold the impugned order.

40. N.M. Zackriah & Co. Vs. Commissioner of Service Tax, Chennai-III

Issue:-The appellant had filed Form EXP-1 dated 20.11.2009 to avail exemption from payment of Service Tax relating to two specified services, under Notification No. 18/2009-S.T. dated 07.07.2009. The appellant filed Form EXP-2 dated 31.12.2010, based on which they claimed exemption from payment of Service Tax. The Revenue appears to have noticed that the appellant had claimed exemption from payment of Service Tax in respect of 52 shipping bills, out of which 51 shipping bills related to the period from 08.12.2009 to 31.03.2010 for which the details were submitted only on 31.12.2010 instead of the due date i.e., 15.10.2010. The Revenue also appears to have noticed that the appellant had not complied with the stipulated condition that original documents reflecting actual payment of commission along with a copy of the contract must be enclosed in terms of paragraph 4 under Col. (4) of Sl. No. 2 of the said Notification. The same thus resulted in the issuance of Show Cause Notice dated 11.08.2011.

Held:- Neither from the pleadings before the lower authorities nor before us, either in the statement of facts or in the grounds of appeal, do we see any effort being made by the appellant to dislodge the above factual findings of the original authority. Though they have contended inter- alia that the details of exemption paid could not be furnished within the time-limit prescribed for filing EXP-2 return, the issue was only procedural factor and no exporter can fulfil the above condition, the exemption was claimed on Service Tax payable on commission paid to foreign commission agents, etc., the fact however remains that the production of shipping bills showing commission paid, agreement with such foreign agents and original documents, which were necessary documents, are not filed by the appellant. It is therefore clear that the appellant has not fulfilled the conditions of the exemption Notification. In this regard, following the observations of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Dilip Kumar & Company and based on the above discussions we do not find any merit in the appellant's case and consequently, the appeal is dismissed.

41. King Network Vs. Commissioner of CGST & C.EX, CGST, Salem

Final Order Nos. 40036-40037 / 2024 dated 10.01.24

Issue:- Whether invocation of extended period in terms of proviso to Section 73(1) of the Finance act, 1994 is maintainable or not considering the facts of the case?

Held:- The non-payment of Service Tax collected along with the link charges from the cable operators had resulted in undue financial accommodation and therefore the suppression indulged has all necessary elements to be considered as having been resorted to with intent to evade payment of Service Tax. In such a situation extended proviso is rightly invokable as held by the CESTAT, Mumbai in the case of M/s. Safe & Sure Marine Service Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Service Tax, ST/40232&42699/2014Mumbai [2012 (28) STR (Tri.-Mumbai)] wherein it was held interalia "that the appellant, after having collected the tax from their customers, have never informed the Department of the same and have suppressed facts from the Department and, therefore, the extended period of time has been rightly invoked in the instant case. The above ratio is squarely applicable in this case". Considering the facts and circumstances of this case and relying upon the above decision, we have no hesitation to hold that the extended period of limitation in terms of the proviso to Sub-Section (1) of Section 73 of Chapter V of the Finance Act, 1994 is rightly invokable in this case.

Back

42. Aban Offshore Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of CGST, Chennai North

Final Order NO. 40078 to 40081/2024 dt. 24.01.24

Issue:-Non-payment of Service Tax on engineering consultancy, management consultancy, testing & inspection and banking service. (i) Jurisdiction of ADG DGCEI to issue SCN (ii)Consulting Engineering Services Vs.Manpower Recruitment Service(iii) Management Consultancy Services Vs.Intellectual Property Service(iv) Banking and Financial Service Held:- Whether DGCEI officers are "Central Excise Officers" or not was examined by the Hon'ble Madras High Court in M/S. Redington (India) Limited (supra). It was held that without doubt, the officers from the Directorate are "Central Excise Officers" as they have been vested with the powers of Central Excise officers. The Appellants action cannot be said to be caused by a bonafide dispute, on technical grounds because the sections are clear and the appellant is also one who has been availing of legal and consultative advice in various matters and have not shown that they were in receipt of contrary advice not to pay tax or sought clarification from the department. Hence we do not find any demerit in the impugned order covering the extended period of demand and imposition of penalty.

43. Panjab National Bank vs Commr. of CGST & CX, Patna

Issue:- The appellant claimed refund of Rs. 405934/-. As per them they were recovering telephone and courier charges from customs and have paid service tax on such receipts. They submitted that they are of not required to pay service tax on such amounts.

Held:- As the appellant did not file documentary evidence in support of their refund claim and not been able to satisfy the fact that the service tax in question was not passed on to their clients.

Issue:-The facts of the case are that the appellant is a service provider under the category of 'Clearing and Forwarding agency service' was issued a show cause notice for short payment of service tax. The case of the revenue is that the appellant is required to pay service tax at the time issuance of bill for the service provided by the appellant irrespective of the amount received.

Held:- On going through the records the bench is of the view that the appellant was required to pay service tax at the time of issuing invoice to the service recipient not on the receipt basis.

45. Nizam Club Vs. CCE & STax, Hyderabad - II

Final Order No. A/30280/2023 dtd. 13.09.2023

Issue:-The Appellant is a club. Demand is on account of (i) letting out space for advertisement and hoardings; and (ii) On account of receiving rental income from the shop leased out for commercial purpose – Rs.29,775/-.

Held:- Demand on account of hoarding services and on account of renting of immovable property services is upheld. These amounts are required to be paid along with interest.

46. Chaitanya Industrial Service Vs. Commissioner of Central Tax Visakhapatnam – II

Final Order No. A/30287/2023 dtd. 22.09.2023

Issue:-Manpower Supply Services - Demand on a registered Society - Extended Period.

Held:- As per the definitions relating to Manpower Recruitment or Supply Agency Services, the manpower supply services provided by a commercial concern are liable to service tax during the period 16.06.2005 to 30.04.2006 and services provided by 'a person' are liable to service tax with effect from 01.05.2006. The word 'Person' in the context of taxation refers to a juristic person. Relied on MN Dastur and Co. Ltd. vs Union of India (2006 (4) STR 3 (Cal)). Section 3(42) of the General Clauses Act, 1897 defines that a "person" "shall include any company or association or body of individuals, whether incorporated or not". In the present case, the co-operative society being a registered body and a juristic person, it would be falling within the meaning of' person' for the purpose of taxation as defined under the provisions chapter V of the Finance Act, 1994. Also, the society is providing the services on commercial basis at commercially agreed upon terms and conditions. Also, the invocation of extended period is upheld.

Issue:-Appellant is providing service of 'renting of immovable property' and maintenance of common areas of the building under separate Agreements. Demand is on amounts collected by the Appellant towards - electricity, diesel charges for DG sets, water and parking charges under the category of 'Management, Maintenance or Repair Service'.

Held:- The amount collected towards water, electricity and diesel are in the nature of reimbursable expenses and therefore, not liable for inclusion in the taxable value towards provision of Management, Maintenance or Repair services by the Appellant. The Appellants were required to provide parking space and it's clearly part of maintenance service. Hence the amount collected also needs to be included in the gross value. Also, the same cannot be treated as reimbursable expenses.

48. Adani Gangavaram Port Ltd Vs. Commissioner of Central Tax, Visakhapatnam – II

Issue:-Appellant had taken credit during the period April 2007 to September 2007, which was reversed by the Appellant in the month of April 2008. Demand for interest is in issue.

Held:- Appellant urges that there has been subsequent amendment in Rule 14, wherein it has been provided that interest is chargeable on Cenvat credit taken and utilized. This amendment was brought vide Finance Act 2012 w.e.f. 17.03.2012. He relies on the ruling in Bill Forge Pvt Ltd [2012 (26) STR 204 (Kar.)]. On the other hand, AR relies on the ruling of Hon'ble Chattisgarh High Court in CCE & C vs Vandana Vidyut Ltd [2016 (331) ELT 231 (Chattisgarh)], wherein, after considering the ruling of Hon'ble Karnataka High Court in Bill Forge Pvt Ltd. (supra) and the ruling of the Hon'ble Apex Court in Ind-swift Laboratories Ltd [2011 (265) ELT 3 (S.C.)], it was held that interest is payable even when the credit is taken and reversed prior to the utilization of the same. Considering the Apex Court ruling, demand of interest is upheld.

49. Akash Engineering Services Vs. Commissioner of Central Tax, Visakhapatnam – I

Final Order No. IO/25/2023 dtd. 10.11.2023

Issue:-Whether sub-contractor is liable to pay Service Tax under Works Contract Service when the main contractor has paid the same.

Held:- It is held that the Appellant/sub-contractor is liable to pay service tax under the head 'Works Contract Service' in spite of the fact that the main contractor has paid service tax on the whole contract value including the turnover achieved by this Appellant/sub-contractor.

50. BNG Contractors Pvt. Ltd., Vs CCE, Lucknow

Issue:-Condonation of Delay

Held:- The Tribunal after relying the decision of Singh Enterprises V/s CCE Jamshedpur reported in 2008 (221) ELT 163 (SC) of the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the delay before the First Appellate Authority beyond the condonable period cannot be condoned by the Tribunal.

51. M/s Origin Advertising Pvt. Ltd., Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise & Service Tax, Lucknow

Issue:-Appellants are engaged in providing "Advertising Agency Services" to the clients which falls under the taxable category as defined under Section 65(105)(e) read with Section 65(3) of the Finance Act, 1994.

Held:- Demand of service tax on services provided by the appellant as sub-contractor to the contractor on which service tax liability has been discharged by the contractor, is sustainable.

52. Patanjali Yogpeeth Trust, VS. Commissioner of Central Excise, Meerut-I

Final Order No. 70104/2023 dated 05.10.2023

Issue:-Health and Fitness Services - teaching yoga and meditation by way of organizing Yoga Camp.

Held:- Appellant has in fact collected the entry fee to event organized as Yoga camp - both residential and non-residential from the participants, disguising it as "Donation". They issued the entry ticket of various denominations. The holder of the ticket was granted different privileges depending on the denomination of the ticket. In return the appellant provided the person entry to camp where, Swami Baba Ramdev would give instructions in respect of Yoga and Meditation. Hon'ble Tribunal held that the amounts received by the appellant as donation, was nothing but the consideration for the provision of service taxable under the category of Health and Fitness services and upheld the demand of Service Tax. Further held that the appellant has suppressed the fact that they have received consideration for the provision of these services and collected the same from the participants in residential and non-residential camps by reflecting the same as donation on the receipts and the book of accounts. This suppression was clearly with the intent to evade payment of service tax. Also upheld interest as well as penalties.

Issue:-Invoking the extended period-no misrepresentation nor there is any evidence proving same.

Held:- No relevant documents provided by the appellant. No reason has been brought on record by the appellant nor has been submitted by making submissions even today about the delay on part of the appellant and about the reason as to why none of those documents were never been provided, The delay for the entire period is held to be appellant's fault. Hence benefit cannot be extended in favour of the appellant for the said fault.

2. VKV Exports Pvt Ltd Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Delhi)

Final Order No. 50046/2024 dated 11.02.2024

Issue:-Imposition of redemption fine and penalty

Held:- In this case the main allegation against the appellant is that export goods are of inferior quality and highly over valued goods. To ascertain the value of goods, the Revenue has done marked survey in the presence of the representative of the appellant and in the market survey, it was found that the export goods are overvalued and the appellant has accepted the same.

3. Petro Lubes India Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Delhi

Final Order No. 51655/2023 dated 15.12.2023

Issue:-Applicability of Test Reports whether samples been tested on all parameter- mis-declaration of description of goods in Bill of Entries reg

Held:- The controversy that the goods have not been tested on all 21 parameters would not really make any difference and even on the basis of limited parameters the identity of goods stand established in view of cogent and substantive evidence in the form of test reports by the two independent Government laboratories. The issue is squarely covered by the decision of the High Court of Gujrat in the case of Raj Kumar Industries-2022 (2) TMI 264, where after detailed discussion, it was observed that testing even on limited parameters by three laboratories independently clearly established that the goods were nothing but HSD. Absolute confiscation of goods and imposition of penalty under both sections 112(a) and Section 114A of Customs Act, 1962, upheld. Shri Sumit Nagrath Vs. 4. Lupin Limited Vs. Commr. Customs Indore

Issue:-Whether the goods removed from SEZ to DTA (initially procured from DTA) are chargeable to custom duties in terms of section 30 of SEZ Act, 2005 read with rule 47 of SEZ Rules,200- Refund request of the same was denied.

Held:- Section 30 specifically provides for clearance of goods from SEZ to DTA on payment of customs and other duties, the submission sought to be made by the appellant that rule 48(3) carves out a deeming fiction of non leviability of BCD and SWS on the imported goods is not correct on the simple principle that the rules cannot go contrary to the substantive provisions of the Act. When section 30 in clear terms says that goods cleared from SEZ units shall be chargeable to duties of customs etc., and though the same are subject to the conditions specified in the rules made by the central Govt. in that regard, yet the interpretation given by the appellant is unsustainable. However appellant has raised contention that he has been wrongly denied exemption notification No. 45/2017-Cus. The appellate authority has failed to examine this issue of exemption notification. Therefore appeal is partly dismissed and matter is remanded to consider the issue of exemption notification.

Date of Decision: 05.09.2023

FINAL ORDER NO. 51158/2023

HEMAMBIKA R. PRIYA

This appeal has been filed to assail the order in original dated26.03.2019 passed by the Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi

2. The present appeal is being preferred by Sanjay Prabhakar, GH-1/142, Paschim Vihar, New Delhi, a Customs Broker (hereinafter referred to as the appellant) against Order-in-Original No. 49/MK/REVOCATION/POLICY/2019 dated 26.03.2019 passedby the learned Commissioner of Customs, (Airport & General).

3. The appellant is a Customs Broker and is engaged in customsclearance of export and import of goods. During his usual course ofbusiness, appellant filed a Shipping Bill No. 7549865 dated 24.07.2017 in the name of M/s Navrang Jewel and Export at the port ICD Loni wherein goods were declared as Pan Masala andother house hold products such as comb, sofa, broom brush etc. The goods were examined and Let Export Order was passed by the proper officer and goods were thereafter dispatched from ICD Loni to Gateway port of Pipavav for further export. However, on information, DRI stopped and further examined the goods at Pipavav, wherein as against the declared pan masala, DRI allegedlyfound 42,00,000 number of Gutkha pouches – a prohibited item. During the course of investigation, appellant in his statement dated06.08.2017 stated that on the instructions of Shri Mehmood (a middleman) and Shri Shubham Garg (the exporter), appellant prepared invoice and other documents and filed the said Shipping Bill, that he had agreed to clear the goods on payment of Rs.5,000/- as clearing charges while other logistic charges were separate and that appellant was not informed by said Shri Mehmood and Shri Shubham Gard, that the goods being exported contained Gutkha and thus the appellant was not in the knowledge of real content of the consignment. It is claimed that since the saidstatement dated 06.08.2018 was not as per wishes of DRI, they detained the appellant and pressurized and threatened him of dire consequences. Under the pressure caused by DRI, appellant in his later statement dated 07.08.2017 stated that during their meeting, Shri Shubham Garg and Shri Mehmood had told him that they wanted to export Gutkha and other house hold items to Kuwait andthus appellant knew that there was Gutkha in the consignment which was being cleared from customs by his firm. Similar statement was given by appellant on 08.08.2017.

4. Upon completion of inquiry, DRI issued a show cause notice on 05.02.2018 proposing penal action against the appellant. Taking into account the said show cause notice of DRI to be an offence report, Commissioner (Airport & General) suspended the licence of the appellant and issued a show cause notice on 08.10.2018 proposing to hold the appellant responsible for contravention of various provisions under Regulation 10 of CustomsBrokers Licensing Regulations, 2013 (hereinafter referred to asCBLR, 2013) and revocation of their Customs Broker (C.B.) licence, forfeiture of security and penalty under Regulation 18 of CBLR, 2013. An Inquiry Officer was appointed to enquire into the matter. The appellant vide his letter dated 17.12.2017 requested the Inquiry Officer for cross examination of certain persons relying upon whose statements, the appellant was implicated in the matter. However, the said request of the appellant was not accededto by the Inquiry Officer. A detailed reply to the show cause notice was filed negating all the charges levelled against the appellant, but the impugned order dated 26.03.2019 was passed based on thefindings in the report of the Inquiry Officer. The CB licence of the appellant which was valid till 29.12.2021 was revoked, his security deposit of Rs. 75,000/- was forfeited and a penalty of Rs. 50,000/- was imposed on the appellant.

5. The learned counsel submitted that the impugned order is biased and had relied on the report of Inquiry Officer. The appellant had requested for granting cross examination of Shri Shubham Garg, the exporter, Mehmood @ Guddu, Shri Manoj Srivastava, Inspector and Shri Dayashankar, Superintendent, to bring to the fore true and correct facts of the case. However, the same was denied on the ground that appellant was adopting the dilatory tactics. He submitted that the aforesaid persons were involved in the said smuggling offence, and had implicated the appellant to avoid punishment. It is pertinent to mention that the appellant had requested for cross examination on 17.12.2018 wherein the due date for completion of inquiry was 07.01.2019.This indicates that the Inquiry Officer had sufficient time to permit cross examination of the said persons. The Inquiry Officer instead finalised the inquiry report on 01.01.2019 in haste. He submitted that in this manner, the Inquiry Officer had contravened the provisions of Regulation 17(4) of CBLR 2018.

6. He further submitted that Shri Shubham Garg, the exporter, in his statement dated 18.08.2017 has accepted the fact that he along with Shri Mehmood alias Guddu (a middleman) met theappellant in 1st week of July 2017 at Karol Bagh, to seek details of documents required for export. He once again met the appellant around 16/17th July, 2017 to furnish documents asked for by appellant for export. The appellant was fully aware as to who was the real exporter and that there is a middleman also. It was Shri Shubham Garg, the exporter who had signed the Shipping Bill. He relied on the CESTAT judgment in K.S. Sawant & Co. Vs. Commissioner of Customs (General), Mumbai – 2012 (284) ELT 363 (Tri.-Mumbai), wherein it was held that "signing of import documents by importer, amounts to authorization." Further,in the matter of Dominic & Co. Vs. Commissioner of Customs (General), Mumbai – 2013 (296) ELT 494 (Tri.-Mumbai) CESTAT has held that "if authorization not asked for by thecustoms officers at the time of clearance and Bills of Entry duly signed by CHA, authorization by importer implied." He stated that the appellant had obtained an authorization from the exporter and had therefore not contravened the provisions of Regulation 10(a) ofCBLR, 2018 (erstwhile 11(a) of CBLR, 2013). He added that the appellant had advised the exporter to comply with the provision of the Customs Act, 1962. In his statement dated 06.08.2018, the appellant had in unequivocal terms, stated that at the time of filing the Shipping Bill, that he had no knowledge about the presence of Gutkha in the export consignment. He was informed by the exporter and Shri Mehmood that goods being exported were Pan Masala. In this context, he relied on the judgment in Dominic & Co. (supra), wherein CESTAT has held that "as no discrepancy found in the documents filed, so question of advice does not arise". In view of aforesaid, appellant had advised his client to comply withthe provisions of the Act and had not contravened the provision of Regulation 10(d) of CBLR, 2018 (erstwhile 11(d) of CBLR, 2013).

7. The learned Counsel submitted that the appellant"s statementdated 15.12.2017 was obtained by the DRI by force which had been duly retracted. Further, the appellant had no prior knowledgeas to presence of Gutkha in the instant export consignment. In this regard, the counsel relied on Kunal Travels (Cargo) Vs. CC (I&G), IGI Airport, New Delhi– 2017 (354) ELT 447 (Del.),of the Tribunal, wherein it was held that "if goods did not corroborate with declaration in Shipping Bills, it cannot be deemed to be mis- declaration by Customs House Agent." The statements dated 07.08.2017, 08.08.2017 and 15.12.2017 of the appellant are contrary to that of his statement dated 06.08.2017. He submitted that contradictory and retracted statements have no evidentiary value. He stated that the appellant had duly verified the antecedents of the exporter and IEC number before taking up the assignment of impugned goods. He had obtained the PAN and IEC documents from the exporter and had duly verified the same on thesites of Income Tax Department and Directorate General of Foreign Trade. It is a matter of record that the exporter had used the said address for the purpose of correspondence and obtaining of IEC. Besides, the exporter Shri Shubham Garg in the present case was duly found to be existent and appeared before the Customs authorities and it is not a case of the Department that his credentials were found to be wrong. He relied on Tribunal‟s decisionin the matter of Setwin Shipping Agency Vs. CC (General), Mumbai – 2010 (250) ELT 141 (Tri.-Mumbai)which held that there is no requirement for the CHA (Customs Broker) to verify physically the premises of importer/exporter. In the matter of HimLogistics Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi – 2016 (338) ELT 725 (Tri.-Del.),the Tribunal held that there is no stipulation or legal requirement for physically verifying business or residential premises of importer. The CB cannot be held responsible for fraudulent IEC by importer. Once the CB has carriedout verification as per KYC norms, the extreme punishment of revocation of licence was not sustainable. The said order of the CESTAT has been upheld by the Hon‟ble High Court of Delhi – 2017 (348) ELT 625 (Del.). He relied on the following decisions where similar view was taken:

(i) Global Linkerz United Agencies Vs. CC, New Delhi – 2009 (238) ELT 76;

(ii) ThawerdasWadhoomal Vs. CC, Mumbai – 2008 (221) ELT252;

(iii) R.N. Lall & Bros. Vs. CC, Calcutta – 2001 (137) ELT 723;

(iv) J.G. Exports Vs. CC, New Delhi – 2000 (121) ELT 754.

In view of aforesaid appellant had verified the antecedents of the exporter and, therefore, had not contravened the provisions of Regulation 10(n) of CBLR, 2018 (erstwhile 11(n) of CBLR, 2013). The Ld Counsel submitted that since the beginning of his businessof customs clearance in 2012, the appellant had never been issued show cause notice on account of any violation of any provisions of Customs Act, 1962. Therefore, the revocation of the CB license wasvery harsh punishment.

8. The learned authorised representative submitted that the appellant had not followed the requirements as per Clause 10(a) of CBLR, 2018. He stated that the fabricated documents were prepared in the office of the F card holder. It is on record that Sh. Shubham Garg had sublet his IEC for monetary consideration and the Customs broker was aware of the same. The appellant failed to inform the customs authorities about this and had contravened the provisions of CBLR. Such wilful omission on part of the F card holder to verify the authenticity having a prior knowledge of verifying the genuineness of the importer/exporter, address, identity proves beyond doubt the circumstantial evidence of the connivance of the appellant. In his statement the appellant had categorically accepted that he had connived out of greed for easy money and had been paid ₹ 1.5 lakh. He further submitted that the appellant had violated the provisions of Clause 10(b) of the CBL Regulation as it was revealed that during stuffing of the goods atan unspecified place and during examination, the customsclearances were attended by a person authorised by the appellant. This has also been accepted by the appellant in his statement. Thus, when proper authorisation was not obtained as per Clause 10(a), the question of exercising due diligence under Clause 10(e) and advising his clients about the provisions of the Act and Rules asper Clause 10(d) is not satisfied. The appellant had violated the provisions of Clause 10(f) as he had knowingly withheld the information that the IEC had been sublet and counterfeit prohibited goods were attempted to be exported. The appellant did not undertake any KYC verification of the exporter by using reliable independent authentic documents, data or information and thuswas involved in submitting fabricated documents before the customs authorities. The appellant had connived with fraudsters and had failed his duties as a customs broker required under CBLR, 2018. There was no infirmity in the order of the Commissioner in revoking the customs broker license. The authorised representativerelied on the following decisions in support of his arguments:

(i) Bhaskar Logistic Services Vs UOI [2016 (340) ELT-17 (Pat)]

(ii) Commissioner of Customs Vs K.M. Ganatra [2016 (332) ELT- 15(SC)

(iii) Jasjeet Singh Marwaha Vs UOI [2009 (239) ELT-407(Del)

(iv) M/s Falcon India Vs Commissioner of Customs, Delhi [2022 (3)TMI-CESTAT-NEW

9. We have heard the learned counsel for the appellant and the learned authorised representative for the Department. The issue before us for decision is whether there were sufficient grounds for the adjudicating authority to revoke the CB license of the appellant.

10. We find that the learned counsel for the appellant has laid emphasis on the fact that the appellant had retracted his three statements, and therefore the same will not have any evidentiary value. However, we find that there are statements of others, which corroborates the involvement of the appellant in the current case.In this regard we find that the adjudicating authority has clearly held that the confessional statements of the appellant clearly indicate that he was aware that actual exporter was Shri Salim Dolawhereas the IEC being used was in the name of Shri ShubhamGarg, proprietor of Navrang Jewel and Exports. Sh. Garg in his statement accepted that he had allowed Mehmood, alias Guddu to use his IEC for ₹50,000 per consignment. Mehmood, alias Guddu inhis statement also accepted that Sh Salim Dola had offered him rupees one lakh to export viz., Shubham Garg, Mehmood alias Guddu, Salim Ismail Dola, Shri Jaibir etc. Vimal Gutka to Kuwait. Inorder to complete the customs formalities, he contacted the appellant for the same. Therefore, the obligation of obtaining the authorisation from the actual exporter was not discharged by the appellant. This is corroborated by the statements of others involved in this smuggling endeavour. Thus there is sufficient corroboration to the confessional statement of the appellant. Therefore mere retraction of his statement cannot negate the action of the appellant. Otherwise also, the confessional statement was recorded by the Custom officer which is different from the police officer. In this context, we note that the Apex Court in its judgment in the case of Surjeet Singh Chhabra Vs UOI [1997(89) ELT 646 (SC)] held as follows:

"3. It is true that the petitioner had confessed that he purchased the gold and had brought it. He admitted that he purchased the gold and converted it as a Kara. In thissituation, bringing the gold without permission of the authority is in contravention of the Customs Duty Act and also FERA. When the petitioner seeks for cross-examination of the witnesses who have said that the recovery was made from the petitioner, necessarily an opportunity requires to be given for the cross- examination of the witnesses as regards the place at which recovery was made. Since the dispute concerns the confiscation of the jewellery, whether at conveyor belt or at the green channel, perhaps the witnesses wererequired to be called. But in view of confession made by him, it binds him and, therefore, in the facts and circumstances of this case the failure to give him the opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses is not violative of principle of natural justice. It is contended that the petitioner had retracted within six days from theconfession. Therefore, he is entitled to cross-examine thepanch witnesses before the authority takes a decision on proof of the offence. We find no force in this contention. The Customs officials are not policeofficers. The confession, though retracted, is anadmission and binds the petitioner. So there is no need to call panchwitnesses for examination and cross-examination by the petitioner."

In view of the above, we hold that the retraction by the appellant cannot negate the evidentiary value of his confessional statements.Further, the denial of request for cross examination, in the face of the said statement of the appellant, cannot be a violation in view ofthe above. It is also interesting to note that other than the appellant, none of the others investigated in this offence have retracted their statements.

11. The learned counsel has submitted before us that the appellant was not aware of the nature of the consignment that was being exported. We find that this contention is not correct, as Shri Salim Dola in his statement dated 07.08.2017 recorded underSection 108 of the Customs Act, 1962 has admitted that the container no. MRKU6319529 was stuffed with Vimal Gutka forexport at the rented premises of Kanjhawala, Delhi under thesupervision of Jaibir, Mehmood alias Guddu, himself and one representative of the CHA. This clearly establishes that the appellant was fully aware of the contents of the container. He wasalso aware that there was no factory/godown stuffing permission accorded to this unit. It is also established that the invoice and the packing list were prepared in the appellant"s office. Shri Shubham Garg in his statement dated 08.09.2017 has categorically stated that he had never authorised any person to sign and submit on his behalf the invoice cum packing list no. NJE/EXP/17-18/001 and the same had been fabricated by Mehmood alias Guddu and the appellant.

The contention of the learned counsel that the appellant had duly verified the correctness of the IEC and other KYC documents is negated by the statement of the appellant himself. The appellant has stated that the customs clearance work of Navrang Jewel and Export was received through a forwarding firm Atlas, Noida and Mr Mehmud and Shubham Garg. The KYC documents of Navrang Jewel and Export were provided by ShriGarg but the dealing was done by Mehmood who advised the appellant to file free Shipping Bills for export. The appellant had fullknowledge that the IEC of Shubham Garg was being used by Salim Dola for export of Gutka and other household items to Kuwait. It is apparent that the appellant had failed to verify the antecedent, correctness of the IEC, the identity of his client and functioning of his client and had in fact facilitated in the attempt to smuggle counterfeit Vimal Gutka in plastic pouches. It is very clear that the customs broker had contravened the provisions of CBLR, 2018 and erstwhile CBLR, 2013. We note that the Commissioner, in theimpugned order has discussed in great detail each and every violation of the appellant, along with all the evidence tosubstantiate each of these violations. We do not find any reason to differ from that.

12. We find that the Delhi High Court in the case of Jasjeet Singh Marwaha (supra) has held that the CHA can be held responsible for the violation of the Customs Act, and not only the violation of CHALR (now referred to as CBLR). The relevant para of the judgment is reproduced herein below:

"6.3 The provisions referred to hereinabove make it clear that an owner or importer can act through an agent. In theinstant case, the appellant who is admittedly the CHA of the importers, both filed as well as filled up the contents ofthe bill of entry, a fact which is not denied, on behalf of thethree importers referred to hereinabove. In view of these facts and the provisions referred to hereinabove, it cannot be said that the agent cannot be held to be liable for violation of the provisions of the Act. The purpose of providing for appointment of an accredited agent, that is, an agent who has been issued a licence under the Regulations framed under the Act, is not only to facilitate the clearance of goods, but in doing so, to hold either one of them or both accountable for the actions which they take, based on which the clearance of goods imported into the country is brought about. The contention that the licence of a CHA can be suspended only for violation of the Regulations framed under the Act i.e., CHALR, 2004 is clearly untenable given the purpose for which the licence is issued and the provisions of the Act."

13. The Tribunal in M/s Falcon India Vs Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi held as under:
"33. The above decisions lay down that the Customs Broker (or Custom House Agent) is a very important person in the transactions in the custom House and it is appointed as an accredited broker asper the regulations and is expected to discharge all its responsibilities under them. Violations even without intent are sufficient to take action against the appellant. While it is true, as has been decided on a number of cases, that the customs broker is not expected to do the impossible and is not expected to physically verify the premises of the importer or doughty documents issued by various governmentalauthorities for KYC, it is equally true that the Customs Broker is expected to act with great sense ofresponsibility and take care of the interests of both the client and the Revenue. It is expected to advise the client to follow the laws and the client is not complying,it is obligated under the regulations to report to theAsst Commissioner of the Deputy Commissioner.Fulfilling such obligations is a necessary condition forthe CB license and cannot be termed as „spying for the Department" as argued by the appellant before us. It has also been argued that if it spies for the department,it will lose its business. It is evident from the facts of this case that the appellant was not only aware of the benami Bills of Entry but has actually filed them with the full knowledge that they were benami and they were filed by Anil after case of under evaluation has been booked by DRI against him. It is afraid of losing business because it has built its more business model on violators, who it does not want to upset by reportingto the department. Therefore we find no reason toshow any leniency to as the appellant. At any rate,once violation is noticed, it is not for the Tribunal to interfere with the punishment meted out by the disciplinary authority, viz., the Commissioner unless it shocks our conscience. In this case, it does not."

14. We agree with the submissions of the learned AR that forgerynullifies everything. It is an admitted fact that the documents such as the invoice and the packing list was prepared by the appellant inhis office. This is corroborated by Sh Shubham Garg, the IECholder. The export consignment was packed and stuffed in the presence of the representative of the appellant. This has been corroborated by others in their respective statements. The appellant was aware that the IEC of Shubham Garg of M/s Navrang Jewel and Export was being used by Salim Dola for export of Gutka,which is a prohibited item. It has to be concluded that the appellantwas very much aware of the nature of the consignment and aware of the fact that the IEC did not belong to the actual exporter of the consignment. He had indulged in this offence for monetary gains. The Apex Court in Commissioner of Customs Vs Aafloat Textiles (P) Ltd., [2000 (235) ELT 587] held on principle that fraud and collusion vitiated even the most solemn proceedings in any civilised system of jurisprudence. We note that similar views have been expressed by the Supreme Court in Munjal Showa Ltd Vs Commissioner of Customs and Central Excise wherein it held,

"16. In that view of the matter and on principle that fraud vitiates everything in such forged or fake DEPB licenses/Scrips are void ab initio, it cannot be said that the department acted illegally in invoking the extended period of limitation. In the facts and circumstances, thedepartment was absolutely justified in invoking the extended period of limitation."

15. In view of the aforesaid facts and circumstances, we find no reason to interfere with the findings in the impugned order. The appeal is accordingly dismissed.

APPEARANCE:

Shri N.L. Jangir, Advocate for the appellant

Shri Rakesh Kumar, Authorized Representative of the Department

CORAM:

HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA, PRESIDENT HON'BLE MR. P.V. SUBBA RAO, MEMBER (TECHNICAL)

DATE OF DECISION: 13.09.2023 JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA

M/s Sumridhi Aluminium (P) Limited, Palwal[1] imported various kinds of scrap of aluminium like zorba, tally and twitch during the period from June 2018 to October 2018 and filed 92 Bills of Entry. The assessing officer enhanced the assessable value on thebasis of contemporaneous imports data, which value was accepted by the appellant in writing with a further statement that the appellant would not want a speaking order to be issued nor it would require any show cause notice to be issued or opportunity of personal hearing to be granted. The appellant also deposited customs duty on the enhanced value accepted by the appellant and thereafter out of charge order was also issued by the department. It is thereafter that the appellant filed appeals before the Commissioner (Appeals) challenging the enhancement by the assessing officer of the value mentioned by the appellant in the Bills of Entry. These appeals have been dismissed by the Commissioner (Appeals) by four separate orders namely the order dated15.11.2018 covering 39 appeals; the order dated 07.12.2018 covering 15 appeals; the order dated 15.11.2018 covering 27 appeals; and the order dated 07.12.2018 covering 11 appeals. The Commissioner (Appeals) has upheld the order of reassessment and rejected the appeals primarily for the reason that the appellant had accepted the re-determined enhanced value of the imported aluminium scrap in writing and thereafter cleared the imported goods after paying duty on the enhanced value. The Commissioner (Appeals) also found as a fact that the re-determined value had been arrived at in accordance with internationally accepted London Metal Exchange prices with reasonable discounts. It is these four orders passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) covering 92 appeals that have been assailed by the appellant.

2. Shri N.L. Jangir, learned counsel appearing for the appellant made the following submissions:

i. The assessing officer has not given any specific instance of contemporaneous import wherein the declared value ofaluminium scrap is higher than the value declared by the appellant in the Bills of Entry;

ii. The assessing officer did not elaborate the reasons for rejecting the declared value and, therefore, there was no occasion to enhance the value of goods declared by appellant on the basis of contract price or commercial invoice under section 14 of the Customs Act 1962[2];

iii. The value declared by the appellant did not fall under the exceptions provided under the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules 2007[3] and , therefore, could not have rejected under rule 12 of Valuation Rules;

iv. The appellant had not submitted letters of acceptance ofthe enhanced value nor the appellant had submitted any letter stating that show cause notice should not be issued or a speaking order should not be passed;

v. In support of the contentions, learned counsel for the appellant placed reliance upon a decision of the Supreme Court in C.C.E & S.T., Noida vs Sanjivani Non-Ferrous Trading Pvt. Ltd.[4] and other cases to which reference shall be made at the appropriate stage.

3. Shri Rakesh Kumar, learned authorized representative appearing for the Department made the following submissions:

i. The Assessing Officer had reason to doubt the accuracy of the value declared in the Bills of Entry submitted by the importer as they were grossly undervalued as compared to the contemporaneous import data and since the importer had submitted letters clearly stating that it agreed for enhancement of the value and did not require any personal hearing or a speaking order, the Assessing Officerenhanced the value. Thus, once having accepted the value of the goods in writing and cleared the goods on payment of duty it was not open to the importer to subsequently challenge the value of the goods;

ii. The finding of the Commissioner (Appeals) that the importer had accepted the enhanced value does not suffer from any illegality as it is based on records and the appellant has made an incorrect statement that lettersaccepting the enhanced value were not submitted by the appellant;

iii. The out of charge was given only after the appellant had deposited customs duty on the enhanced value and all the appeals have been filed by the appellant before the Commissioner (Appeals) after the out of charge order was given; and

iv. The submission of the appellant that the valuation of the cleared goods has to be first rejected under rule 12 of the Valuation Rules is not correct in the facts and circumstances of the present case.

4. The submissions advanced by the learned counsel appearing forthe appellant and the learned authorized representative appearing for the Department have been considered.

5. Section 14 of the Customs Act deals with „Valuation of Goods" and is reproduced below:

"Section 14. Valuation of goods. - (1) For the purposes of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975), or any other law for the time being in force, the value of the imported goods and export goods shall be the transaction value of such goods, that is to say, the price actually paid or payable for the goods when sold for export to India for delivery at the time and place of importation, or as the case may be, for export from India for delivery at the time and place of exportation, where the buyer and seller of the goods are not related and price is the sole consideration for the sale subject to such other conditions as may be specified in the rules made in this behalf:

6. It would be seen that section 14 of the Customs Act provides that the transaction value of goods shall be the price actually paid orpayable for the goods when sold for export to India where the buyer and the seller of the goods are not related and the price is the sole consideration for the sale, subject to such other conditions as may be specified in the rules made in this behalf. The Valuation Rules have been framed in exercise of the powers conferred by section 14 of the Customs Act. Rule 12 deals with rejection of the declared value and is reproduced below:

"Rule 12. Rejection of declared value. - (1) When the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to any imported goods, he may ask the importer of such goods to furnish further information includingdocuments or other evidence and if, after receiving such further information, or in the absence of a response of such importer, the proper officer still has reasonable doubt about the truth or accuracyof the value so declared, it shall be deemed that the transaction value of such imported goods cannot be determined under the provisions of sub-rule(1) of rule 3.

(2) At the request of an importer, the proper officer, shall intimate the importer in writing the grounds for doubting the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to goods imported bysuch importer and provide a reasonable opportunity of being heard,before taking a final decision under sub-rule

Explanation.-(1) For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that:-

(i) This rule by itself does not provide a method for determinationof value, it provides a mechanism and procedure for rejection of declared value in cases where there is reasonable doubt that the declared value does not represent the transaction value; where the declared value is rejected, the value shall be determined by proceeding sequentially in accordance with rules 4 to 9.

(ii) The declared value shall be accepted where the proper officer issatisfied about the truth and accuracy of the declared value after the said enquiry in consultation with the importers.

(iii) The proper officer shall have the powers to raise doubts on the truth or accuracy of the declared value based on certain reasons which may include –

(a) the significantly higher value at which identical or similar goods imported at or about the same time in comparable quantities in a comparable commercial transaction were assessed;

(b) the sale involves an abnormal discount or abnormal reduction from the ordinary competitive price;

(c) the sale involves special discounts limited to exclusive agents;

(d) the misdeclaration of goods in parameters such as description, quality, quantity, country of origin, year of manufacture or production;

(e) the non declaration of parameters such as brand, grade, specifications that have relevance to value;

(f) the fraudulent or manipulated documents."

7. Rule 12 provides that when the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to any imported goods, he may ask the importer of such goods to furnish further information including documents or other evidence and if, after receiving such further information, or in the absence of a response of such importer, the proper officer still has reasonable doubt about the truth or accuracy of the value so declared, it shallbe deemed that the transaction value of such imported goods cannot be determined under the provisions of rule 3(1). Explanation (iii) to rule 12 provides that the proper officer shall have the powers to raise doubts on the truth or accuracy of the declared value based on certain reasons, which may include any of the six reasons contained therein, one of which is that there is a significantly higher value at which identical or similar goods imported at or about the same time in comparable quantities in a comparable commercial transaction were assessed.

8. It would also be useful to reproduce the relevant portion of section 17(5) of the Customs Act and it is as follows:

"Section 17. Assessment of duty.- (1) An importer entering any imported goods under section 46, or an exporter entering any export goods under section 50, shall, save as otherwise provided insection 85, selfassess the duty, if any, leviable on such goods.

(2) The proper officer may verify the entries made under section 46or section 50 and the self-assessment of goods referred to in sub- section (1) and for this purpose, examine or test any imported goods or export goods or such part thereof as may be necessary. Provided that the selection of cases for verification shall primarilybe on the basis of risk evaluation through appropriate selection criteria.

(3) For the purposes of verification under subsection (2), the proper officer may require the importer, exporter or any other person to produce any document or information, whereby the duty leviable on the imported goods or export goods, as the case may be, can be ascertained and thereupon, the importer, exporter or such other person shall produce such document or furnish such information.

(4) Where it is found on verification, examination or testing of the goods or otherwise that the self-assessment is not done correctly,the proper officer may, without prejudice to any other action which may be taken under this Act, re-assess the duty leviable on such goods.

(5) Where any re-assessment done under subsection (4) is contraryto the self-assessment done by the importer or exporter and in cases other than those where the importer or exporter, as the case may be, confirms his acceptance of the said re-assessment inwriting, the proper officer shall pass a speaking order on the re- assessment, within fifteen days from the date of re-assessment of the bill of entry or the shipping bill, as the case may be.

9. It would be seen that though in a case where re-assessmenthas to be done under sub-section (4) of section 17 of the Customs Act, the proper officer is required to pass a speaking order on the re-assessment, but if the importer or exporter confirms his acceptance of the re-assessment, a speaking order is not required tobe passed.

10. Though the learned counsel for the appellant submitted thatthe appellant had not submitted any letter accepting the enhanced value on the basis of the contemporaneous NIDB data or that it did not require any speaking order on the reassessment or any show cause notice or personal hearing to be provided, but the learned authorized representative appearing for the Department has placed such letters of the appellant accepting the enhanced value in respectof all the appeals, except a few.

11. The letters submitted by the appellant which have been produced by the learned authorized representative appearing for thedepartment are similarly worded and one such letter dated 21.06.2018 submitted by the appellant to the Deputy /Assistant Commissioner of Customs signifying acceptance of value in respect of goods covered by Bill of Entry number 6791989 dated 14.06.2018is reproduced below:-

To,

The Deputy/Assistant Commissioner of CustomsICD Palwal

Sir,

Subject: Acceptance of value in respect of goods covered vide Bill of entryno. 6791989 Dtd. 14.06.2018 regarding.

We M/s Sumridhi Aluminium Pvt. Ltd have imported Twitch (code/grade of Aluminum scrap) Aluminum scrap under bill of lading no MSCUWK710587 dtd 28.04.2018 and have filed a bill of entry no 6791989 dtd 14.06.2018 for clearance of the same declaring value therein @1475/mt(CIF/CSF/CI). We were shown the contemporarious Import ofthe said Aluminum scrap from the NIDB date and LME price of prime Aluminum for the corresponding period @/mt Having taken intoconsideration factors like insurance, freight, landing charges etc, to arriveat the assessable value of said Twitch (code/grade) Aluminum scrap a discount of 25% on the said LME price of prime Aluminum is correct and appropriate. Accordingly, in view of the said contemporarious NIDB date and discount from LME price of prime Aluminum, we voluntarily accept the assessable value of the said@$ 1801/mt.

2. Since we are voluntarily accepting the price of said Twitch (code/grade) Aluminum scrap, we do not want any speaking order on the re-assessment of the same. We also do not want any Show Cause Notice and opportunity of personal hearing as provided under Section 124 of the Customs Act 1962.

3. It is requested to urgently release our consignment at the above mentioned rate.

Yours faithfullyCont. no. 011 46570835

12. The aforesaid letter clearly mentions that though the appellant had filed the said Bill of Entry for clearance of twitch grade aluminium scrap by declaring the value as 1475 dollars per MT but on being shown the contemporaneous import data of the aluminium scrap from the NIDB data and Lucknow Metal Exchange Price, the appellant has voluntarily accepted the assessable value of the goodsat the rate of 1801 dollars per MT. The letter also specifically states that the appellant would not want any speaking order to be passed on the re-assessment nor would the appellant require a show cause notice to be issued or opportunity of personal hearing to be provided. In fact, the appellant also requested that the consignmentshould be released urgently at the above mentioned rate.

13. It is not possible to accept the bald submission made by learned counsel for the appellant that the appellant had not submitted the letters. The Commissioner (Appeals) has recorded a categorical finding of fact that the appellant had accepted the redetermined and enhanced value in the letters submitted by the appellant and the finding recorded by the Commissioner (Appeals) isas follows:-

5.9 In addition, it is on record that the appellant have from time to time accepted the re-determination and enhanced values of the impugned Bills of Entry and cleared the imported goods after paying duty on enhanced values. Vide letters submitted to the jurisdictional Asstt./Deputy Commissioner of Customs, the appellant have agreed for accepting the values of the goods as re- determined by the Department and voluntarily relinquished their right to issuance of Show Cause Notices and personal hearings too. Thus, it is evident that the appellant have accepted the method of re-determination of value and also the enhanced prices for purpose of assessment.

14. This finding has not been challenged in the appeals since such a ground has not been taken in the memo of appeal. It is also seen that it is only after the submission of such letters by the appellant and after payment of customs duty on the enhanced value accepted by the appellant that the out of charge orders were issued and the goods were cleared. The appeals were filed by the appellant before the Commissioner (Appeals) much after the out of charge orders were issued. If the appellant had actually not submitted the letters there was no reason for the appellant to pay customs duty on the enhanced value that was accepted by the appellant. It is more than apparent that after having accepted the enhanced value and after having paid customs duty and after having received the out of charge orders and after having cleared the goods, that the appellantfiled the appeals before the Commissioner (Appeals) to challenge the enhancement of the value of the goods.

15. As noted above, it is because of the letters submitted by the appellant that the goods were cleared after the appellant deposited the requisite customs duty on the enhanced value. There was no reason for the appellant to pay the customs duty on the enhanced value if the appellant was actually contesting the enhanced value and had not submitted any letters accepting the enhanced value.

17. It is seen from a perusal of section 17(4) of the CustomsAct that the proper officer can re-assess the duty leviable, if it is found on verification, examination or testing of the goods or otherwise that the self-assessment was not done correctly.Subsection (5) of section 17 provides that where any re-assessmentdone under sub-section (4) is contrary to the self-assessment done by the importer, the proper officer shall pass a speaking order on the re-assessment, except in a case where the importer confirms hisacceptance of the said re-assessment in writing.

18. In the present case, as noticed above, the proper officer doubted the truth or accuracy of the value declared by the appellantfor the reason that contemporaneous data had a significantly higher value. It was open to the appellant to require the proper officer to intimate the grounds in writing for doubting the truth or accuracy of the value declared and seek a reasonable opportunity of beingheard, but the appellant did not do so. On the other hand, the appellant submitted in writing that though it had declared the value of the imported goods at a particular price, but on being shown contemporaneous data, it agreed that the value of the goods shouldbe enhanced to that value indicated by the proper officer. Theappellant also specifically stated that it did not want any show cause notice to be issued or personal hearing to be provided or a speaking order to be passed on the Bills of Entry. It needs to be noted that section 124 of the Customs Act provides for issuance of ashow cause notice and personal hearing, and section 17(5) of the Customs Act requires a speaking order to be passed on the Bills of Entry, except in a case where the importer/exporter confirms the acceptance in writing.

19. It is no doubt true that the value of the imported goods shall be the transaction value of such goods when the buyer and theseller of goods are not related and the price is the sole consideration, but this is subject to such conditions as may be specified in the rules to be made in this behalf. The Valuation Rules have been framed. A perusal of rule 12(1) indicates that when the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of the valueof the imported goods, he may ask the importer to furnish further information. Rule 12(2) stipulates that it is only if an importer makes a request that the proper officer shall, before taking a final decision, intimate the importer in writing the grounds for doubting the truth or accuracy of the value declared and provide a reasonableopportunity of being heard. To remove all doubts, Explanation 1(iii)(a) provides that the proper officer can have doubts regarding the truth or accuracy of the declared value if the goods of a comparable nature were assessed at a significantly higher value at about the same time.

20. Explanation (1)(i) to rule 12 of the Valuation Rules, however, provides that the rule only provides a mechanism and procedure for rejection of declared value and does not provide a method for determination of value and if the declared value isrejected, the value has to be determined by proceeding sequentially in accordance with rules 4 to 9.

21. In Century Metal Recycling Pvt. Ltd. vs Union of India[5], the Supreme Court summarized the provisions of rule 12 of the Valuation Rules and the observations are as follows :
"15. The requirements of Rule 12, therefore, can be summarisedas under :

(a) The proper officer should have reasonable doubt as to the transactional value on account of truth or accuracy of thevalue declared in relation to the imported goods.
(b) Proper officer must ask the importer of such goods further information which may include documents orevidence.
(c) On receiving such information or in the absence of response from the importer, the proper officer has to apply his mind and decide whether or not reasonable doubt as to the truth or accuracy of the value so declared persists.
(d) When the proper officer does not have reasonable doubt, the goods are cleared on the declared value.
(e) When the doubt persists, sub-rule (1) to Rule 3 is not applicable and transaction value is determined in terms of Rules 4 to 9 of the 2007 Rules.
(f) The proper officer can raise doubts as to the truth or accuracy of the declared value on certain reasons whichcould include the grounds specified in clauses (a) to (f) in clause (iii) of the Explanation.
(g) The proper officer, on a request made by the importer, has to furnish and intimate to the importer in writing the grounds for doubting the truth or accuracy of the valuedeclared in relation to the imported goods. Thus, the proper officer has to record reasons in writing which have to be communicated when requested.

16. Proper officer can therefore reject the declared transactional value based on certain reasons to doubt the truth or accuracy of the declared value in which event the proper officer is entitled to make assessment as per Rules 4 to 9 of the 2007 Rules. What is meant by the expression grounds for doubting the truth or accuracy of the value declared has been explained and elucidated in clause (iii) of Explanation appended to Rule 12 which sets out some of the conditions when the reason to doubt exists. The instances mentioned in clauses (a) to (f) are not exhaustive but are inclusive for there could be other instanceswhen the proper officer could reasonably doubt the accuracy or truth of the value declared."

22. Despite the specific requests made by the appellant in the letters submitted by it, it was sought to be contended by the learned counsel for the appellant that the transaction value of the imported goods alone should have been treated to be the value of the goods, as provided for under rule 3(1) of the Valuation Rules, since none of the conditions stipulated in the proviso to sub-rule (2) of rule 3 were attracted and in any case, if the declared value could not be determined under sub-rule (1) of rule 3, it wasrequired to be determined by proceeding sequentially through rules4 to 9.

23. Rule 3 of the Valuation Rules is, therefore, reproducedbelow:

"Rule 3. Determination of the method of valuation.-

(1) Subject to rule 12, the value of imported goods shall be the transaction value adjusted in accordance with provisions ofrule 10;

(2) Value of imported goods under sub-rule (1) shall be accepted: Provided that –

(a) there are no restrictions as to the disposition or use of thegoods by the buyer other than restrictions which –

(i) are imposed or required by law or by the publicauthorities in India; or

(ii) limit the geographical area in which the goods may beresold; or

(iii) do not substantially affect the value of the goods;

(b) the sale or price is not subject to some condition orconsideration for which a value cannot be determined in respect of the goods being valued;

(c) no part of the proceeds of any subsequent resale, disposalor use of the goods by the buyer will accrue directly or indirectly to the seller, unless an appropriate adjustment can be made in accordance with the provisions of rule 10 of these rules; and

(d) the buyer and seller are not related, or where the buyer and seller are related, that transaction value is acceptable for customs purposes under the provisions of sub-rule (3) below:

(3) If the value cannot be determined under the provisions of sub- rule (1), the value shall be determined by proceeding sequentiallythrough rule 4 to 9."

24. The very fact that the appellant had agreed for enhancement of the declared value in the letters submitted to the assessing authority, itself implies that the appellant had not accepted the value declared by it in the Bills of Entry. The value declared in the Bills of Entry, therefore, automatically stood rejected. Further, once the appellant had accepted the enhanced value, it was really not necessary for the assessing authority to undertake the exercise of determining the value of the declared goods under the provisions of rules 4 to 9 of the Valuation Rules. This is for the reason that it is only when the value of the imported goods cannot be determined under rule 3(1) for the reason that the declared value has been rejected under sub rule 2, that the valueof the imported goods is required to be determined by proceeding sequentially through rules 4 to 9. As noticed above, the appellant had accepted the enhanced value. There was, therefore, no necessity for the assessing officer to determine the value in the manner provided for in rules 4 to 9 of the Valuation Rules sequentially.

25. The aforesaid views find support from the decision of the Tribunal in Commissioner of Customs, Delhi vs Hanuman Prasad & Sons[6].

26. In this connection, it would also be useful to refer to a decision of this Tribunal in Advanced Scan SupportTechnologies vs Commissioner of Customs, Jodhpur[7], whereinthe Tribunal, after making reference to the decisions of the Tribunalin Vikas Spinners vs Commissioner of Customs, Lucknow[8] and Guardian Plasticote Ltd. vs CC (Port), Kolkotta[9] , held that as the appellant therein had expressly given consent to the value proposed by the Revenue and stated that it did not want any show cause notice or personal hearing, it was not necessary for theRevenue to establish the valuation any further as the consented value became the declared transaction value requiring no further investigation or justification. Paragraph 5 of the decision is reproduced below:

"5. We have considered the contentions of both sides. We find that whatever may be the reasons, the appellant expressly gave its consent to the value proposed by Revenue and expressly stated that it did not want anyShow Cause Notice or personal hearing. Even the duty was paid without protest. By consenting to enhancement of value and thereby voluntarily foregoing the need for a Show Cause Notice, the appellant made it unnecessary for Revenue to establish the valuation any further as the consented value in effect becomes the declared transaction value requiring no further investigation or justification. To allow the appellant to contest the consented value now is to put Revenue in an impossible situation as the goods are no longer available for inspection and Revenue rightly did not proceed to further collect and compile all the evidences/basis into a Show Cause Notice as doing so, in spite of the appellant having consented to the enhancement of value and requested for noShow Cause Notice, could/would have invited allegation of harassment and delay in clearance of goods. When Show Cause Notice is expressly foregone and the valuation is consented, the violation of principles of natural justice cannot be alleged. In the present case, while value can be challenged but such a challenge would be of no avail as with the goods not being available and valuation earlier having been consented, the onus will be on the appellant to establish that the valuation as per his consent suffered from fatal infirmity and such onus has not been discharged. Further, valuation of such goods requires their physical inspection and so reassessment of value in the absence ofgoods will not be possible. The case of Eicher Tractors v. Union of India (supra) cited by the appellant is not relevant here as in that case there was no evidence that the assessee had consented to enhancement of value."

27. In Vikas Spinners, the Tribunal dealing with a similarsituation, observed as under :

"7. In our view in the present appeal, the question of loading of the value of the goods cannot at all be legally agitated by the appellants. Admittedly, the price of the imported goods declared by them was US $ 0.40 per Kg. but the same was not accepted and loaded to US $ 0.50 per Kg. This loading in the value was done in consultation with Shri Gautam Sinha, the Representative and Special Attorney of the appellants who even signed an affirmation acceptingthe loaded value of the goods on the back of the Bill of Entry dated 7-5-1999. After loading of the value, the appellants produced the special import licence and paid the duty on thegoods accordingly of Rs. 4,22,008/- on 19-5-1990. Having once accepted the loaded value of the goods and paid duty accordingly thereon without any protest or objection they are legally stopped from taking somersault and to deny the correctness of the same. There is nothing on record to suggest that the loaded value was accepted by them only for the purpose of clearance of the goods and that they reserved their right to challenge the same subsequently. They settled their duty liability once for all and paid the duty amount on the loaded value of the goods. The ratio of the law laid down by the Apex Court in Sounds N. Images, (supra) is not at all attracted to the case of theappellants. The benefit of this ratio could be taken by them only if they had contested the loaded value at the time when it was done,but not now after having voluntarily accepted the correctness of loaded value of the goods as determined in the presence of their Representative/Special Attorney and paid the duty thereon accordingly."

28. In Guardian Plasticote., the Tribunal after placing reliance on the decision of the Tribunal in Vikas Spinners, also observed as follows :

"4. The learned Advocate also cites the decision of the Tribunal in the case of M/s. Vikas Spinners v. C.C., Lucknow[10] - in supportof his arguments. We find that the said decision clearly holds that enhanced value once settled and duty having been paidaccordingly without protest, importer is stopped from challenging the same subsequently. It also holds that enhanced value uncontested and voluntarily accepted, and accordingly payment of duty made discharges the burden of the department to establish declared value to be incorrect. In view of the fact that the Appellants in this case have not established that they had lodged any protest and on the contrary their letter dated 21-4-1999 clearly points to acceptance of the enhanced value by them, the cited decision advances the cause of the department rather than that of the Appellants contrary to the claim by the learned Counsel."

29. In BNK Intrade (P) Ltd. vs Commissioner of Customs,Chennai[11] , the Tribunal observed as follows :

"2…..... It is also to be noted that the importer had also agreed for enhancement of the price based on contemporaneous prices available with the Department. We, therefore, find no merit in the contention raised in the appeal challenging the valuation andseeking the refund of the differential duty paid by the appellants on enhancement."

30. The following position emerges from the aforesaid decisionsof the Tribunal:

(i) When an importer consents to the enhancement of value, it becomes unnecessary for the revenue to establish thevaluation as the consented value, in effect, becomes the declared transaction value requiring no further investigation;

(ii) When an importer accepts the loaded value of the goods without any protest or objection, the importer cannot be permitted to deny its correctness; and

31. What, therefore, follows is that once the appellant had accepted the enhanced value it was not necessary for the revenue to determine the valuation as the consented value, in effect, became the declared transaction value. Further, once the appellant accepted the enhanced value it would not be open to the appellant to now contend that the procedure as contemplated under rule 12of the Valuation Rules should have been complied with.

32. Learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon certain decisions.

33. In Sanjivani Non-Ferrous Trading, the Supreme Court observed that it was necessary for the assessing officer to give reasons as to why the transaction value declared in the Bills ofEntry was rejected. This decision would not come to the aid of the appellant for the reason that in the present case the appellant had accepted the enhanced value of the imported goods.

34. In Century Metal Recycling Pvt. Ltd. vs Union of India[12], the Supreme Court again emphasized what was stated in Sanjivani Non-Ferrous Trading.

35. In Guru Rajendra Metalloys India Pvt. Ltd. vs C.C.- Ahmedabad, Gujarat[13], the enhancement that was made was found to be not in consonance with the consent letter given bythe appellant. This decision would also, therefore, not come tothe aid of the appellant.

36. In M/s Sunland Alloys vs C.C.,- Ahmedabad[14], theTribunal found that the assessing authority had reassessedthe Bills of Entries by enhancing the value not on the basis of the any material evidence but on the basis of Director Generalof Valuation guideline letter dated 15.11.2018. The Tribunal held that the assessing officer should have followed the provisions of the Valuation Rules and should not have made the reassessment only on the basis of the Director General of Valuation guideline. The reason would, therefore, not help theappellant.

37. There is, therefore, no good reason to interfere with the orders passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) upholding the ordersof reassessment. All the aforesaid 92 appeals filed to assail the order dated 15.11.2018 covering 39 appeals; the order dated 07.12.2018 covering 15 appeals; the order dated 15.11.2018 covering 27 appeals; and order dated 07.12.2018 covering 11appeals are, accordingly, dismissed.

Date of Hearing : 21/08/2023

Date of Decision: 20/09/2023

P V SUBBA RAO:

1 M/s. Sunlight Overseas filed these four appeals to assail the Order in Appeal[1] dated 28.8.2019 passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals) Delhi whereby he rejected the appellant's appeals and upheld two orders in original[2] dated 13.1.2017 and two Orders in original dated 8.2.2022 passed by the Joint Commissioner.

1. The appellant had filed four Bills of Entry No. 7732792 dated 05.12.2017, 7831426 dated 15.12.2016, 8216202 dated 17.01.2017 & 8216204 dated 17.01.2017 self-assessing the dutyin the Indian Customs Electronic Data Interface System[3]to clear imported "Misc. Furniture of Different Types etc" imported from M/s Hong Kong Overseas, China. The details of consignments areas under

2. Receiving specific intelligence that the quantity of the goods was mis-declared in these four Bills of Entry, the Directorate of Revenue Intelligence[4] placed an alert, acting on which, the assessing officer ordered first check examination, i.e., directed the goods to be examined first before assessing the Bills of Entry. It was specifically indicated that the weight of the goodsmust be checked. Examination of the goods revealed mis-declaration of the quantity of the goods in terms of weight as indicated above.

3. Through its Customs Broker, the appellant submitted letters dated 23.12.2016 and 02.02.2017 stating that it did not want any show cause notice or personal hearing in the matterand that it was ready to pay re-determined Customs duty as wellas fine and penalty.

4. Accordingly, the Joint Commissioner, Inland Container Depot, Tughlakabad, passed OIOs rejecting the transaction value under Rule 12 of the Customs Valuation(Determination of Valueof imported goods) Rules, 2007[5]and re-determining the value on the basis of contemporaneous imports of similar goods under Valuation Rule 5. He demanded the differential duty, confiscated the goods under section 111(l) and 111 (m) for mis-declaration, allowed their redemption on payment of fine under Section 125 and imposed penalties. The details of the duty fine and penalties in the OIOs were as follows.

8216202 dated 17.1.2017	15,17,826	7,55,197	5,00,000	3,00,000

On appeal, the Commissioner (Appeals) passed theimpugned order upholding the four OIOs passed by the Joint Commissioner.

5. Aggrieved, the appellant filed this appeal. We have heard learned counsel for the appellant and the learned authorised representative for the Revenue and perused the records. The fourquestions to be answered in these four appeals are:

(a) Can the rejection of the declared transaction value and re- determination of the duty by the original authority and its affirmation in the impugned order be sustained?

(b) Can the confiscation of the imported goods in the four Bills of Entry under section 111(l) and (m) on the ground of mis-declaration of the quantity and their release on payment of redemption fine be sustained?

(c) If the confiscation of the goods is sustained, are the amounts of redemption fine imposed correct or excessive?

(d) Are the amounts of penalty imposed under section 112 correct or excessive?

Rejection of transaction value under Rule 12 of the Valuation Rules and its re-determination under Rule based on the NIDB data

6. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted as follows:

(a) the imported goods were furniture which are not traded by weight but by number;

(b) the appellants had themselves approached the customsauthorities for first check, i.e., requested the authorities to first examine the goods and so it cannot be alleged that there was mis-declaration or suppression of the descriptionor weight of the imported goods;

(c) the Customs authorities failed to verify if the number of pieces imported were the same as in the invoice, which was possible even though the imported goods were insemi-knocked down (SKD) condition;

(d) the allegation of mis-declaration therefore fails and any excess weight found during examination does not change the value declared by the appellant;

(e) it was wrong on the part of the assessing officer to reject the transaction value under Rule 12; for this purpose they place reliance on:

(i) Abhiman Impex vs CC (Import) Nhava Sheva[6]

(ii) Nilkamal Ltd. vs Commissioner of Customs (Import) Nhava Sheva[7]

(f) since the appellant had filed the Bills of entry as per the invoices and other documents, no mis-declaration can be alleged on its part and they place reliance on:
Scorpian International vs CC[8]

CC Excise vs Akshay Aluminum Alloys Pvt Ltd.[9]

(g) there is no evidence of any undeclared flow-back to the exporter or any evidence of underhand payment and therefore, there is no reason to discard the transaction value;

(h) the appellant was forced to apply for waiver of show cause notice as they had suffered huge warehousing & shipping line demurrages and could not afford to continue the goodsin custom warehouse and wanted to avoid these damages;

(i) the assessment was done on the basis of the weight reflected in the weighment slip issued by the CONCORwhich is against the statute;

(j) the decision of this Tribunal in Final Order dated 20.10.2020 in the case of Hanuman Prasad & Sons is not applicable to this case because in that case, the importer accepted the enhancement and in this case, there was no acceptance of undervaluation by the appellant; the values of the contemporaneous imports under NIDB were not shown by the proper officer;

(k) the very act of filing of an appeal against an order imposingcustoms duty is a protest against the duty assessed as heldin

(i) Principal Commissioner of Customs vs CiscoSystems India Pvt. Ltd.[10]

(ii) Mafatlal Industries vs Union of India[11]

(iii) Mohan Textile Mills vs Commissioner[12]

(iv) Commissioner of Customs vs Ganesh Trading Company[13]

(v) Bayshore Glass Trading Pvt. Ltd. vs CC Kolkata[14]

(vi) S&H Gears Pvt. Ltd. vs Commissioner[15]

(l) in UOI vs Kamlakshi Finance Corporation Ltd.[16]it has been held by the Hon'ble Apex Court that Departmentshould pay utmost regard to judicial discipline and give effect to orders of higher authorities which are binding on them.

7. Learned authorised representative for the Revenue submitted that the quantity of the imported goods was checked in terms of weight in this case for the reason that the unique quantity code (UQC) prescribed for furniture is weight. He explained that the quantity of any consignment of goods can be indicated in variety of ways- kg, tons, litres, number, running length, etc. depending on the nature of the goods. Often, the quantity of the same goods can be indicated in more than one ways and commercial transactions can be on any terms. However, in order for ICES to make meaningful compilation of the data and comparison of values and the customs Risk Management System[17] to determine the risk, a unique quantity code is necessary. For this reason, a unique quantity code (UQC) is fixed for each type of goods and the importer is required to indicate the quantity in that code. For furniture, it is weight in kg.The appellant grossly mis-declared the quantity of the goods and the excess quantity found was between 50 and 70% of thedeclared quantity in the four bills of entry. Therefore, the adjudicating authority was fully justified in rejecting the transaction value and re-determining it.

8. On the question of the appellant itself requesting for a first check, i.e., requesting for the goods to be examined first before assessment, he asserts that this submission of the appellant is not true. While filing the Bills of Entry, the importer has an optionto request for first check and the importer can get the goods examined before self- assessing the bills of entry and the appellant had not opted for it but self-assessed the Bills of Entry mis-declaring the quantity of the goods.

9. DRI received specific intelligence that the appellant had mis-declared the quantity of goods and put an alert in the system and accordingly, the assessing officer directed the examining officer to conduct 100% examination of the goods which exposed the mis-declaration.

10. When confronted with the examination report, the appellant had not disputed either the mis-declaration or that the value should accordingly be re-determined. It had also not contested the re-determination of value in any manner. It had, infact, waived the SCN and the personal hearing thereby precluding the possibility of the proper officer indicating how he proposed to re-determine the duty before issuing the OIO. The appellant undertook to pay the differential duty and fine and penalty.

11. Having accepted the re-assessment of the Bills of Entry,the appellant cannot now contest it. The appellant's contention that it was forced to accept the re-assessment to avoid demurrages has no force because nothing in its letters indicated that it was accepting the re-assessment only to avoid demurrages. He places reliance on Hanuman Prasad

12. We have considered the submissions on both sides. As per section 17(1), the importer is required to self-assess duty on the imported goods and as per section 17(4), the proper officer can re-assess it. As per section 12, the value for assessing the dutyis the transaction value subject to some conditions. However, there are situations in which the transaction value can be rejected and the value can be re-determined as per Rule 12 ofthe Valuation Rules by the proper officer. It reads as follows:

"Rule 12. Rejection of declared value. –

(1) When the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to any importedgoods, he may ask the importer of such goods to furnish furtherinformation including documents or other evidence and if, after receiving such further information, or in the absence of a response of such importer, the proper officer still has reasonable doubt about the truth or accuracy of the valueso declared,it shall be deemed that the transaction value of such imported goods cannot be determined under the provisions of sub-rule(1) of rule 3.

(2) At the request of an importer, the proper officer, shall intimate the importer in writing the grounds for doubting the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to goods imported by such importer and provide a reasonable opportunity of being heard, before taking a final decision under sub-rule (1).

(i)This rule by itself does not provide a method for determination of value, it provides a mechanism and procedure for rejection of declared value in cases where there is reasonable doubt that the declared value does not represent thetransaction value; where the declared value is rejected, the value shall be determined by proceeding sequentially in accordance with rules 4 to 9. The declared value shall be accepted where the proper officer is satisfied about the truth and accuracy of the declared value after the said enquiry in consultation with the importers.

(ii) The proper officer shall have the powers to raise doubts on the truth or accuracy of the declared value based on certain reasons which may include –

(a) the significantly higher value at which identical or similar goods imported at or about the same time in comparable quantities in a comparable commercial transaction wereassessed;

(b) the sale involves an abnormal discount or abnormal reduction from the ordinary competitive price;

(c) the sale involves special discounts limited to exclusive agents;

(d) the misdeclaration of goods in parameters such as description, quality, quantity, country of origin, year of manufacture or production;

(e) the non-declaration of parameters such as brand, grade, specifications that have relevance to value;

(f) the fraudulent or manipulated documents."

13. As can be seen, as per Valuation Rule 12, if the proper officer, has reason doubt the truth or accuracy of the value declared, he can call for information and if no information is provided by the importer or after receiving the information, if he still has a reasonable doubt, then it shall be deemed that the value cannot be determined as per the transaction value. Thus, in the first stage, it is sufficient if the officer has some reason to doubt to call for information but at the second stage to reject thetransaction value, he should have reasonable doubt. No restrictions have been placed on the proper officer in this Rule onraising doubts. However, explanation 1(iii) to the Rule lays down six conditions, which may be the reason for the officer to doubt the transaction value. However, the use of the words "raise doubts on the truth or accuracy of the declared value based on certain reasons which may include" in this explanation shows that the officer's power to raise doubts is not limited to the six conditions listed therein and can raise doubts for other reasonsas well. One of the six reasons listed is the misdeclaration of goods in parameters such as description, quality, quantity, country of origin, year of manufacture or production. In this case, there was a specific intelligence that the quantity of the goods were mis-declared in these consignments to evade duty. Due diligence required the officer to check the consignment. On examination, it was indeed, found that the quantity of the goods in terms of weight (which is the unique quantity code for furniture) was mis-declared. The proper officer, therefore, had very good reason to doubt the transaction value because what was imported was 50% to 70% more than what was declared in the Bill of Entry, invoice and other documents.

14. Having found the mis-declaration, the proper officer could call for information from the appellant. No specific method has been prescribed for calling for the information- it could be in writing or across the counter. The appellant submitted two lettersin which it nowhere disputed that the quantity of the goods imported was more than what was declared. It also did not dispute that the value should therefore, be re-determined. It hadalso not provided any documents or explanation for the excess quantity of the goods found. On the contrary, it agreed to paythe differential duty and fine and penalty. Under such circumstances, the proper officer had a reasonable doubt about the transaction value and therefore, he correctly rejected the transaction value under Valuation Rule 12.

15. Having rejected the transaction value, the proper officer re-determined the value based on the value of contemporaneous imports of similar goods. Since the appellant had also waivedboth the Show Cause Notice and Personal hearing, neither was an SCN issued with the relied upon documents indicating how theduty was proposed to be re-determined nor was a personalhearing held in which the appellant could have put forth its defence orally or in writing. We find that the goods which were imported were miscellaneous furniture and therefore, assessmentof the value as per the value of contemporaneous imports of similar goods is fair and proper.

16. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that determination of the quantity of the goods based on the weight taken at the CONCOR was not proper. She also argued that since furniture is not sold by weight but by numbers, the quantity should have been determined as per the number of articles, which, even though the imported goods were in SKD condition, was possible. Neither of these arguments can be accepted. If the appellant had any doubt or reservation about the weight taken, itcould have asked the weight to be re-checked on another weigh bridge but the appellant had not done so. If the appellant wantedto contest that the quantity of the goods was the same even ifthe weight was more, it could have said so and these factual aspects could have been verified. It could also have been ascertained as to why the weight was more-whether it wasbecause more furniture was imported or stronger and heavier furniture was imported while invoices were issued for lighter furniture. Insofar as this case is concerned, the fact that excess quantity of 50 to 70% was imported in the Bills of Entry was not disputed. Therefore, the assertion of the learned counsel that thequantity of the goods was not more in the Bills of Entry cannotbe accepted.

17. Learned counsel also argued that even if the excess quantity is imported, it makes no difference to the value and the transaction value should have been accepted. This submission cannot be accepted. When the transaction value shown in the invoice and other documents was for a certain quantity and what was actually imported was 50% to 70% more, the value in the documents cannot be treated as the value for the total quantity actually imported. While it is true that generally furniture is sold by pieces and not by weight, it is equally true that heavier and stronger furniture costs more than lighter and weaker ones.Therefore, there was no error in the transaction value being rejected. Learned counsel placed reliance on Abhiman Impex and Nilkamal Ltd. Both these cases are distinguishable inasmuch as there is nothing in either of these cases to indicate that the importer had accepted the quantity of the goods was more as is it in the present case.

18. Learned counsel also submitted that there is no evidence ofany undeclared flow-back to the exporter or any evidence or any evidence or underhand payment and therefore, there is no reason to discard the transaction value. However, to rejecttransaction value under Rule 12, what is required is the reasonable doubt of the officer. Evidence of flow back to exporteror underhand payment are not necessary.

19. Learned counsel for the appellant also stated that theywere forced to apply for waiver of show cause notice as they had suffered huge warehousing & shipping line demurrages and couldnot afford to continue the goods in custom warehouse to avoid these damages. This submission cannot be accepted since, in thefirst place, there is no evidence of the appellant being forced to waive the SCN or personal hearing. Secondly, the argument is inherently contradictory. Demurrages are generally steep and arelevied by the custodian (Port Trust or CFS, etc.) to discourage the imported goods blocking the space which can be used by other importers. Goods in the Customs warehouse, however, do not suffer any demurrages and all one is required is to pay the rent to the warehouse keeper. Often, importers keep their goods in the Customs bonded warehouse for months or years. If the goods in these cases were in the Customs bonded warehouse, there cannot be any demurrages at all.

20. Learned counsel also submitted that the very act of filing ofan appeal against an order imposing customs duty is a protest against the duty assessed. Reliance was placed on Cisco Systems India Pvt. Ltd., Mafatlal Industries, Mohan Textile Mills, Ganesh Trading Company, Bayshore Glass Trading Pvt. Ltd. vs CC Kolkata, and S&H Gears Pvt. Ltd.We find that all these decisions were in the context of refund of duty paid but which was, on appeal, set aside, could be denied on the ground that the assessee had not paid it under protest. These do not carry the case of the appellant any further.

21. This appeal is against re-assessment in which the appellantwaived, in writing, the SCN and personal hearing and in which it had not even disputed that the goods which were imported were much more than what was declared. The question is whether the appellant can, after the goods have been cleared after paying duty, fine and penalty, now dispute the assessment of duty on facts which are now impossible to recheck but which could have easily be re-checked before clearance. We find that similar case up before this Tribunal in the case of Hanuman Prasad. Relevant extracts of this order are below:

2. The records indicate that Hanuman Prasad had submitted 27 Bills of Entry declaring the value of the goods at 1.2 USD per kg and Niraj Silk had submitted 9 Bills of Entry declaring the value of the goods at 1.2USD per kg. The Assessing Officer believed that he had reason to doubt the accuracy of the value so declared, since it was lesser than the contemporaneous export data. On being confronted with such data, both Hanuman Prasad and Niraj Silk submitted identical letters in connection with the Bills of Entry. Hanuman Prasad specifically stated that though it had declaredthe value of the goods at 1.2 USD per kg but on contemporaneous data having been shown, it agrees forenhancement of the value to 1.80 USD per kg and thatit did not want any show cause notice to be issued to it or personal hearing to be provided, nor did it want any speaking order to be passed on the aforesaid Bills of Entry. It further stated that it was voluntarily relinquishing the rights provided to it under sections 124 and 17(5) of the Customs Act, 19625. The letter written by Niraj Silk is identically worded, except for agreeing to the enhancement of the value of the declared goods to 1.94 USD per kg.

5. The value of the declared goods was thereafterenhanced by the Assessing Officer to 1.80 USD per kg. in the case of Hanuman Prasad and to 1.94 USD per kg.in the case of Niraj Silk.

6. However, Hanuman Prasad and Niraj Silk challenged the order passed by the Assessing Officer on the Bills of Entry by filing 36 appeals before the Commissioner (Appeals).

42. It has to be noted that the two importers, HanumanPrasad and Niraj Silk, had not made any statement thatthey have accepted the value of the goods proposed by the Revenue to save demurrage charges nor did they state in the letter that the value was being accepted by them under protest and they would agitate the matterin appeal. It is only in this appeal that it has been suggested that the value was accepted to save demurrage charges, perhaps prompted by theobservations made by the Tribunal in Artex Textile Private Limited.

43. Learned Counsel for the Respondent also reliedupon the decision of the Tribunal in Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi (ICD TKD) vs M/s UniexcelPolychemPvt. Ltd. The Tribunal observed that:

4. On the merit of enhancement of value, we are in agreement with the findings in the impugned order. No detailed reason has been given by the Original Authority for rejection of the transaction value. Apparently he was guided only by DRI alert whichformed basis of enhancement of value. It has been repeatedly held by this Tribunal as well as Hon'ble High Courts that the transaction value cannot be rejected mechanically based on suspicion or general alert without supporting evidence to the effect that the invoice value does not reflect the transaction valuerequired for assessment. In the present case, we find that no evidence of any nature has been brought out or discussed before such enhancement. Evencontemporaneous value of similar or identical goodshave not been examined and discussed"

44. This decision also does not indicate that the importers had accepted the value of the goodsproposed by the Revenue in writing or that the importers had waived their right to a speaking order. Infact, it was the DRI alert that formed the basis ofenhancement of value.

45. The Supreme Court observed in Eicher Tractors Ltd., which decision has also been relied upon by the learned counsel for the Respondent, that it is only whenthe transaction value under rule 4 of the ValuationRules is rejected that the transaction value is required to be determined by proceeding sequentially through rules 5 to 8. The decision of the Supreme Court in Century Metal Recycling also holds that if the declared transaction value is rejected, then it has to be determined in accordance with the procedure prescribedin rules 4 to 9. These decisions of the Supreme Court, for the reasons stated above, do not help therespondent.

46. Learned counsel for the respondent has also emphasized that NIDB data cannot be the sole basis to reject the transaction value without any cogent reasons. As seen above, the importers had in writing accepted the transaction value and it is perhaps for this reason that they did not require any show cause notice to be issued to them or a personal hearing to be granted to them. The respondent is, therefore, not justified in asserting that the transaction value has beendetermined on the basis NIDB data. It was their acceptance of the value that formed the basis for determination of the value. The decisions relied upon bythe respondent to support the contention sought to be raised are, therefore, of no benefit to them.

47. The general observations made the Commissioner (Appeals) in the impugned order that the value declaredin the Bills of Entry were being enhanced uniformly by the Department for a considerable period of time was uncalled for. The Commissioner (Appeals) completely failed to advert to the crucial aspect that the importers had themselves accepted the enhanced value. The Commissioner (Appeals) in fact, proceeded to examine the matter as if the assessing officer had enhanced the declared value on the basis of other factors and not on the acceptance by the importers. This casual observation is not based on the factual position that emerges from the records of the case.

48. Thus, for all the reasons above, the Commissioner (Appeals) was not justified in setting aside the orders passed by the assessing officer on the Bills ofEntry.Recycling also holds that if the declared transaction value is rejected, then it has to be determined in accordance with the procedure prescribedin rules 4 to 9. These decisions of the Supreme Court, for the reasons stated above, do not help therespondent.

48. Thus, for all the reasons above, the Commissioner (Appeals) was not justified in setting aside the orders passed by the assessing officer on the Bills of Entry.

22. The only difference between this appeal and the one in Hanuman Prasad is that in this case, the re-valuation had to bedone because more goods were imported than what were declared which fact has been accepted by the appellant and which it had not disputed during assessment whereas in the caseof Hanuman Prasad the re-assessment became necessary because the declared value was much lower than the contemporaneous values and the enhanced value itself was accepted by the importer. In Hanuman Prasad, after accepting the enhanced value and clearing the goods for home consumption, the importer assailed the re-assessment. In this case, after not disputing mis-declaration of the quantity of goods imported, the appellant did not even ask as to on what value the goods would be assessed or the basis for taking that value. By waiving the SCN and also the personal hearing, the appellant made it both unnecessary and impossible for thedepartment to show the basis of re-determining the value of the goods. The assessing officer, having rejected the value under Valuation Rule 12, re-determined it on the basis of contemporaneous imports of similar goods based on the information available in the National Import Database (NIDB). The appellant, having waived the SCN, personal hearing, and having paid the re-assessed duty and clearing the goods forhome consumption cannot now ask for the evidence or basis for re-assessment all of which it had waived, thus, putting the department in an impossible situation.

23. Learned counsel submitted that the appellant had not violated any provisions of customs law and even assuming that the differential duty as adjudicated in the impugned orders was correct, there was no case to confiscate the goods under section

111. It is her submission that since the appellant filed the Bills ofEntry as per the invoices and other documents, no mis- declaration can be alleged. It is also her submission that the appellant itself had sought first check of the consignment. Therefore, there was no mis-declaration in the Bills of Entry.

26. According to the learned authorised representative, theappellant had not sought first check of the consignment althoughsuch a facility was available in the ICES. First check was undertaken along with 100% examination of the consignment forthe reason that there was a specific alert in the system by DRI regarding the mis-declaration of the quantity of the goods in this case. The appellant had self-assessed duty as per its declaration in the Bills of Entry. The actual quantity of goods imported was much more than what was declared and hence confiscation undersection 111(m) was fully justified.

27. We have considered the submissions on this aspect. It is not possible to accept the submission of the learned counsel that so long as the declaration in the Bills of Entry is as per the invoices, no mis-declaration can be alleged. The charge of dutyof Customs and all the restrictions and prohibitions are on the goods imported into India and NOT on the goods said to be imported into India in the invoices or other documents. Usually, the documents match the goods actually importedand it provides a convenient way of assessing and clearinggoods. However, in case of differences, what is important is the goods which are actually imported and not just what have been indicated in the invoices. Relevant legal provisionsare reproduced below:

" Section 11. Power to prohibit importation orexportation of goods.-

(1) If the Central Government is satisfied that it is necessary so to do for any of the purposes specified in sub-section (2), it may, by notification in the Official Gazette, prohibit either absolutely or subject to such conditions (to be fulfilled before or after clearance) as may be specified in the notification, the import or exportof goods of any specified description.

Section 12. Dutiable goods. -

(1) Except as otherwise provided in this Act, or any other law for the time being in force, duties of customs shall be levied at such rates as may be specified under the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975), or any other law for the time being in force, on goods imported into, or exported from, India.

(2) The provisions of sub-section (1) shall apply in respectof all goods belonging to Government as they apply in respect of goods not belonging to Government.

Section 111. Confiscation of improperly imported goods, etc. -
The following goods brought from a place outside India shall be liable to confiscation: -

(m) any goods which do not correspond in respect ofvalue or in any other particular with the entry made under this Act or in the case of baggage with the declaration made under section 77 in respect thereof, or inthe case of goods under trans-shipment, with thedeclaration for trans-shipment referred to in the proviso tosub-section (1) of section 54;"

Thus, it is the goods which must correspond to the declaration and if they do not, they will be liable to confiscation undersection 111(m). The declaration in the Bills of Entry matching theinvoices, bills of lading, etc. is of no avail. The importer isresponsible for what is imported and how much is imported.

28. Reliance was placed by the appellant on Scorpian International vs Commissioner of Customs[18]and Commissioner of Central Excise vs Aluminium Alloys Pvt. Ltd.[19]. In Scorpian International, a learned Member of the Tribunal held as follows:

" 8. We find that in this case during the course of physical verification, the goods were not found as declared. Therefore,the appellant contended that it is an inadvertent mistake of the supplier of the goods. In that circumstances, the revenue has alleged that it is an afterthought. We find that in that such situation, the mala fide intention of the appellants are missing. As the appellant has placed order to the foreign supplier and he has filed the bills of entry as per the packing list and declaration made by the supplier in invoices. The appellant is not known about the correct declaration, description, quantity and value of the goods. It is a fact on record that the appellant has declared the description, quantity and value of the goods as per the invoice/packing list, therefore, the benefit of doubtgoes in favour of the appellant that it is an inadvertent mistake of the supplier by non- supplying the goods as per the invoice/order/packing list. In that circumstances, the goods cannot be held liable for confiscation and consequently, the penalty is not imposable on the appellant.

In Aluminum Alloys Pvt. Ltd., a learned Member of this Tribunal held as follows:

6. In this case, it is a fact on record that respondent has purchased the impugned goods on high seas sale basis from M/s. Sage Global, New Delhi. As per the Packing List, Pre- Inspection Report, Bill of Lading, Invoice, Bill of Entry &Description of Goods are shown as "Aluminium Scrap". In that circumstance, it cannot be alleged against the respondent that he had deliberately misdeclared the goods. Moreover, from any stretch of means it is impossible to ascertain the goods contained in the container are not such goods as declared in the documents."

29. We respectfully disagree with the learned Member's findingthat if the declaration was as per the invoice, packing list, etc. and the goods actually imported were different, no mis-declaration can be alleged. If it is held that it is sufficient if the declaration in the Bills of Entry match the invoices or Bills of Lading even if it does not match the goods which are actually imported, it will open the floodgates for smuggling and mis- declaration. For instance, one can get an invoice for say, paracetamol and file a Bill of Entry accordingly and actually import heroin and claim that he has not mis-declared. One can get an invoice for iron and actually import gold. One can get an invoice for and declare, in the Bill of Entry, say 100 kg and actually import 1000 kg. The importer is responsible for what he has imported and it is not sufficient if he files Bills of Entry corresponding to the documents. The declaration in the Bills of Entry must match with the goods actually imported. We therefore, find no infirmity in the confiscation of the imported goods in this case. It also needs to be pointed out that the appellant had not contested before the adjudicating authority that the goods were liable for confiscation. In fact, it had, in writing agreed to pay the redemption fine.

30. Learned counsel submitted that even if the confiscation is upheld, the quantum of redemption fine was excessive and not proportionate to the alleged mis-declaration. Learned authorised representative for the Revenue asserted that the quantum of redemption fine is fair and proper. The value of the goods confiscated and the redemption fine and penalties imposed in thefour Bills of Entry was as follows.

31. Section 125 does not prescribe how much redemption fine must be imposed but only places the upper limit of market value of the goods. It reads as follows:

"Section 125. Option to pay fine in lieu ofconfiscation. -

(1) Whenever confiscation of any goods is authorised bythis Act, the officer adjudging it may, in the case of anygoods, the importation or exportation whereof is prohibited under this Act or under any other law for the time being in force, and shall, in the case of any other goods, give to the owner of the goods or, where such owner is not known, the person from whose possession or custody such goods have been seized,] an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the said officer thinks fit:

Provided that where the proceedings are deemed to beconcluded under the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 28 or under clause (i) of sub-section (6) of that section in respect of the goods which are notprohibited or restricted, no such fine shall be imposed:

Provided further that, without prejudice to the provisions of the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 115, such fine shall not exceed the market price ofthe goods confiscated, less in the case of imported goods the duty chargeable thereon.

(2) Where any fine in lieu of confiscation of goods is imposed under sub-section (1), the owner of such goods or the person referred to in sub-section (1),shall, in addition, be liable to any duty and charges payable in respect of such goods.

(3) Where the fine imposed under sub-section (1) is notpaid within a period of one hundred and twenty days from the date of option given thereunder, such option shall become void, unless an appeal against such order is pending.
Explanation .-For removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that in cases where an order under sub-section

(1) has been passed before the date on which the Finance Bill, 2018 receives the assent of the President and no appeal is pending against such order as on that date, the option under said sub-section may be exercised within a period of one hundred and twenty days from the date on which such assent is received."

32. Thus, in terms of the second proviso to Section 125, themaximum redemption fine in case of imported goods shall be the market value of the goods minus the duty chargeable thereon. The redemption fine imposed in each of the four Bills of Entry is way below this limit. In the factual matrix of this case, we find that amount of redemption fine imposed is fair and proper and calls for no interference.

33. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that even ifthe demand of differential duty and confiscation of the goods is upheld, the penalties imposed upon the appellant are excessive. Learned authorised representative for the Revenue supports the penalties imposed in the impugned order. Considering the factualmatrix of this case, we find that the penalties under section 112 are a small fraction of the market value of the goods confiscated which is fair and proper and calls for no interference.

34. The impugned orders are upheld and the four appeals are dismissed.

APPEARANCE:

Shri S.L. Poddar and Shri J.P. Singh, Advocates for the assessees.Shri Rakesh Kumar, Authorised Representative for the Revenue.

CORAM:

2. That as the Customs officials alleged that the goods originated from Pakistan instead of UAE, the importer company had submitted applications dated 20.12.2021, 02.03.2022 and 30.12.2022 to the customs authoritiesto cancel the bill of entry under Section 149 of the Customs Act, 1962 and they may be allowed to re-export the goods back to the UAE at the earliest to avoid any detention/demurrage/ground rent charges.

3. On scrutiny of the Bills of Entries submitted by the appellant in respect of the past imports, it was found that same modus operandi was adopted as the container tracking on PICT divulged that the containers had actually originated from Pakistan, the details of 6 Bills of Entries filed and cleared is as under :-

S. N	B.E. No.	BE date	Total Ass.Value
1.	2643706	06.02.202	8985522
2.	2797226	17.02.2021	8747005
3.	5063295	16.08.2021	8808842
4.	5173059	24.08.2021	7412945
5.	5407130	11.09.2021	7443238
6.	6430842	27.11.2021	8715980

4. That in follow-up action, premises of Mr. Abdul Kader Bombaywala, Indenter of the importer company was searched and statements of Mr.Abdul Kader and Shri Kailash Vittal Mhatre, Sr. Manager, M/s. Hub and Links India Pvt., Ltd. were recorded. As the Importer Company was found tohave mis-declared the country of origin as UAE instead of Pakistan with intent to evade customs duty and mis-classified the goods under CTH 74040022 instead of 98060000, the goods imported were seized by the Customs officers under Section 110 of the Customs Act, 1962 (the Act). Accordingly, show cause notice dated 15.06.2022 was issued to the ImporterCompany and its Directors, which was duly replied by them.

5. Having examined the matter, the Adjudicating Authority passed the order-in-original dated 24.02.2023, whereby the imported goods were confiscated under Section 111(m) and the Importer Company was allowed to redeem the goods for re-export on payment of redemption fine of Rs.10 lakhs under Section 125 of the Act and also imposed penalty of Rs.3 lakh each under Section 112(a)(ii) and Section 114 AA of the Act on the ImporterCompany. Penalty of Rs.1,50,000/- each under Section 112 (a)(ii) andSection 114 AA of the Act imposed on Shri Sanjay Porwal, Director of the Company. Penalty of Rs.3 lakh each was imposed on Mr. Abdul Kadir under Section 112(a)(ii) and 114 AA of the Act. Similarly penalty of Rs. 3 lakh eachwas imposed on M/s. Hub and Links India Pvt. Ltd. under Section 112 (a)(ii)and Section 114 AA of the Act. The said order was challenged, both by the Revenue as well as by the Importer Company and its Directors. TheCommissioner (Appeals) affirmed the order of confiscation, allowing of redemption of the goods for re-export of payment of redemption fine of Rs.10 lakh. However, the penalty amount was enhanced on the Importer Company from Rs.3 lakh to Rs.10 lakh under Section 112 (a)(ii) and Rs.3 Lakh to Rs.15 Lakhs under Section 114 AA of the Act. Penalty on Shri Sanjay Porwal was enhanced from Rs. 1,50,000/- to Rs.5 Lakh under Section 112 (a)(ii) and from Rs.1,50,000/- to Rs.15 Lakh under Section 114AA of the Act. Hence, the present appeals have been filed before this Tribunal both by the Revenue as well as by the Importer Company and its Director.

6. We have heard Shri Rakesh Kumar, Authorised Representativefor the Revenue and the learned Counsel for the appellant, Shri S.L. Poddar.

We have examined the records of the case and the legal provisions, as interpreted in catena of judgements.

7. Since we are considering the appeal filed by the ImporterCompany as the lead matter, we would refer to the contentions raised by them, which are as under:-

(a) Investigation and inquiry were inadequate andincomplete as no investigation was conducted with theirsupplier in UAE or the original supplier in Pakistan.

(b) There is no allegation in the show cause notice that therewas acute shortage of Brass Scrap in the international market at the material time or they have purchased at less than the prevailing price in the international market forcing them to procure the goods from Pakistan. In other words, there is no allegation that there was incentive for the company to import the goods of Pakistan origin. Thus, there is no evidence that the Importer Company knowingly and intentionally mis-declared the country of origin.

(c) That all the relevant documents, as submitted by their suppliers in UAE were duly filed by them before the CustomsAuthorities.

(d) The information obtained from PICT website is not authentic and reliable and relied on the decision of the ApexCourt in M/s. Hewlett Packard India Pvt. Ltd. – 2023 (1) TMI 700, which says that online sources such as Wikipedia should be used with due caution to support the conclusion of the investigation.

(e) Re-exporting the goods would serve the purpose sought to be achieved by the Government of India in imposing BCDat 200% on the goods originating in Pakistan and referred tothe decision in M/s. Raj Grow Impex LLP & Ors. – 2021 (377) ELT 145, whereby the Apex Court allowed re-export of the imported beans, peas and pulses, though they were held to be prohibited. The redemption fine and penalty in case of re-export of the goods is not imposable.

(f) The goods are not liable to confiscation under Section111 (m) of the Act.

(g) Penalty under Section 112(a)(ii) and Section 114 AA of the Act are not sustainable.

8. The learned Authorised Representative for the Revenue has seriously challenged the decision of the lower authorities both on account of allowing re-export of the goods on payment of meagre amount of redemption fine as well as on the quantum of penalty under section 112 (a) and 114AA being not commensurate with the gravity of the case or in terms of the provisions thereof. The submission in this regard is that prerequisite for the import of unshredded metal scrap is restricted by the condition of proper Pre Shipment Inspection Certificate and therefore the goods have to be treated as 'restricted goods'. In the present case the goods have been imported on the basis of fake PSIC certificate which means import is without any certificate. The other limb of the argument is that in the show cause notice there is no proposal for re-export of the impugned goods and therefore the adjudicating authority had no jurisdiction to order re-export. The proposal of re-export are separate from the adjudication proceedings. Referring to the provisions of section 112 (a) (ii)of the Act the learned AR contended that the penalty recommended therein is not exceeding 10% of the duty sought to be evaded whereas the amount of duty, which is sought to be evaded here is Rs. 2,97,73,709/ and therefore maximum penalty was imposable. Similarly, the penalty under section 114AA has to be five times the value of the goods and the value of the declared consignment was Rs. 1,14,15, 967/- and, therefore, penalty imposed by the authorities does not commensurate with that.

(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)
"9806 0000	All goods originating from the Islamic Republic of Pakistan	--	200%

Country of Origin:

10. The first and the foremost question to be considered is whether the goods in question originated in or were exported from Pakistan. The goods in question were shipped in container No. SVWU9892740/40. On the basis of the information from the Additional Director General, National Customs Targeting Centre (NCTC), New Delhi that the said container was at high risk as it had originated from Pakistan investigations were carried out. Accordingly, the container No SVWU9892740/40 with seal No. 017410 relating to Bill of Entry No. 6601963 dated 9.12.2021 was verified from the website of Pakistan International Container Tracking Portal (PICT) https:/pict.com.pk/en/online-Tracking and it revealed that the seal No. affixed on the said container was the same as originated from Pakistan. Further, on physical examination of the goods some worn and torn PP bags filled with brass scrap were found on which the words Karachi, Pakistan, Government of Punjab, Korangi Industrial Area etc. were found printed. Coupled with this, the tracking details also revealed the actual arrival date of the said container, i. e. the B/L from Karachi to JEBEL ALI wasissued on 18.11.2021 at Karachi and B/L from JEBEL ALI to Nhava Shevawas issued on 28.11.2021 and the container was found to be intact with the same seal throughout from Pakistan to India. This only reflects that there could not have been any inspection at Sharjah, UAE as per the PSIC Certificate dated 13.11.2021 issued by PSIA and therefore the necessary corollary is that the PSIC was fake and forged. This also points to the fact that the container in question originated from Pakistan.

11. We also find that statement of Shri Kailash Vitthal Mhatre, Senior Manager, M/s HUB & Links Logistics (I) Pvt. Ltd., the delivery agent, was recorded wherein he explained the container wise chart as:

Column No. 1 gives the details of container number.

Column No. 3 refers to the container seal number at Karachi.

Column No. 4 gives the name of goods as perB/L and quantity.

Column No. 5 shows destination as per B/L issued at Karachi.

Column No.6 provides name of the vessel and reaching at destination as per B/L issued at Karachi.

Column No.9 gives the name of goods and quantityas per B/L issued at JEBEL ALI.

The aforesaid container wise chart details clearly show that the initial details pertain to Karachi and it is the later ones which relates to JEBEL ALI. This itself proves that the country of origin of the containers is Pakistan andnot UAE where the containers have been shown to have arrived later on withthe sole object of misleading the country of origin. This conclusion of ours gets further fortified by the earlier six imports managed by the importer company by following similar modus-operandi that the goods in question were loaded in these containers in Karachi Port and were then transported toJEBEL ALI and from there it was transported to Indian ports. The goods onceloaded at Karachi were not unloaded from the containers at JEBEL ALI and only B/L date of these containers were changed and all other details, i.e.,B/L No., description of the goods, quantity, container number and seal number remained the same. There is no reason to disprove and disregardthe aforesaid modus-operandi mentioned in the statement of Shri Kailash Vitthal Mhatre recorded under section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962. The documents showing the movement of the container with goods from Karachi to JEBEL ALI, container wise sheet, container wise tracking details obtained from PICT website clearly indicated that the containers originated from Pakistan. We also do not agree with the reliance placed by the learned Counsel for the appellant on the decision of the Apex Court in Hewlett Packard (supra) which is clearly distinguishable from the facts of the presentcase. The department having found that the goods originated from Pakistan was not wrong in re-classifying the goods under CTH 98060000 asper Notification No. 5 /2019-Cus dated 16.2.2019. Nothing further was required to be done at the end of the department as pleaded by the importer company. The justification or non-justification of procuring thegoods i. e., Brass scrap

"Pallu" from Pakistan was on the importer company which they failed to substantiate by any valid supporting evidence. The burden was exclusively on the importer company and not on the revenue to place on record positive evidence in support of their submissions. Responsibility of the Importer Company:

12. Having determined the country of origin of the containers in question we would now examine the defence taken by the learned Counsel for the appellant that they had no knowledge about the country of origin being Pakistan and that they have no connection with the supplier in Pakistan and therefore they have neither mis-declared nor misled the department. In fact the importer company had gone to the extent of saying that they have no means to find out the country of origin of the goods as they do not directly deal with the suppliers rather there are intermediary agents / indenters who process the imports. We do not agree with the submissions of the appellant for the simple reason that the appellant claims to be a very reputed company in the business of manufacturing of brass and copper items for which they have been importing raw material namely, brass/copper scrap from different places outside India. The importer company on the one hand is claiming to be a 'one star export house' and on other hand is pleading ignorance of such basic facts. Declaring the Countryof Origin is an essential part of the Bill of Entry and the assessment, inter alia, depends on the Country of Origin. Duty could be exempted or increased (as in this case) depending on the Country of Origin. Restrictions on imports and exports could also depend on the Country of Origin. The Country of Origin Certificate also has to be obtained from the authorized agency of that country. Pre-shipment inspection certificates have to be obtained from the agency, which is authorized to issue such certificate in the country, where they are exported from. Thus, it is impossible that any importer would not know both the Country of Origin and the Country of Export of every single consignment. The appellant being an importer, who seems to be well versed with the import-export policy is responsible for the import and is answerable for any violation of the statutory provisions, mis-declaration or any issues relating to the nature, quantum or valuation of the goods, factum of country of origin etc. and cannot plead ignorance thereof. The appellant has attributed the burden of mis-declaration of the country of origin as UAE on the supplier or theindenter, however the same is not believable as the appellant is a regular importer of these goods and during the investigation of the live consignmentthe past imports were also unearthed which were also routed in similarfashion.

"2.56 Responsibility and Liability of PSIA, Importerand Exporter

13. The next contention of the appellant is that they have submittedall the requisite documents showing the country of origin as UAE. As noted above, there is complete discrepancy as the PSI Certificate dated 13.11.2021shows the date of inspection as 11.11.2021 at Sharjah, UAE whereas the containers itself departed from Pakistan on 18.11.2021 as per the B/L from Karachi to JEBELALI, therefore the only logical conclusion is that the certificate is fake or has been forged and no inspection was actually conducted at Sharjah, UAE. We find that the authorities below have rightly observed that in terms of Para 2.32 of FTP 2015-2020 read with para 2.54 of Handbook of Procedures, such PSI Certificate is not valid and no reliance can be placed thereon.

Confiscation of Goods:

14. We now come to the issue whether goods are liable to confiscation under section 111 (m) of the Act. Having considered in extenso that the country of origin of the containers in question is Pakistan, the same are covered by the notification No. 05/2019, specifically issued to provide high rate of duty for all goods originating in or exported from the Islamic Republic of Pakistan. As discussed above, the PSI Certificate submitted bythe appellant having been found to be fake, the import is violative of the Foreign Trade Policy and Rule 13 of the Rules which makes it mandatory to submit the pre shipment inspection certificate for clearance of the brass scrap, however in the present case there is no valid PSIC in respect of the imports in question. The issue needs to be examined in the light of the provisions of section 46 under which the appellant had filed the bill of entry for home consumption as the provisions thereof makes it obligatory on the part of the importer to make a declaration as to the truth of the contents of such bill of entry and shall in support of the same produce to the proper officer the invoice relating to the goods under import. The appellant has submitted commercial invoices along with bill of lading etc showing the country of origin of the goods as UAE, however as discussed above, country of origin of the goods herein is Pakistan. In that view, the goods are liable for confiscation under section 111 (m) of the Act, which categoricallyprovides any goods which do not correspond in respect of value or 'in any other particular' with the entry made under this Act. Thus the order of confiscation passed by the authorities is held to be in accordance with law.

Penalty under Section 112 (a)(ii) and 114AA of the Act:-

15. Both the importer company and its Director has challenged the levy of penalty under section 112 (a) (ii) and 114 AA of the Act on the ground that they were neither aware of the origin of the goods from Pakistannor had any intent to import the goods having their origin in Pakistan and hence they cannot be penalised. We are afraid we do not agree with this submission in view of the entire discussion above which prima-facie points to the acts of omission and commission on the part of the importer, M/s. Bright Metal (India) Pvt. Ltd., who imported the goods vide bill of entry No. 6601963 dated 9.12.2021 and Sanjay Porwal being the active director of theimporter company who looks after all the work of import of the goods and was fully responsible for purchase of the said goods and its clearance thereof, are liable to penalty under section 112 (a) (ii) and 114AA of the Actfor contravention of the provisions of the Customs Act, 1962 read with FTP 2015-20. The conclusions arrived at by us gain support from the decision in Collector of Customs, Bombay Vs. M/s Elephanta Oil & Industries 2003 (152) ELT 257 (SC), wherein the Apex Court distinguishing the provisions of section 112 (a) imposing penalty and section 125 providing for redemption fine, upheld the imposition of penalty under section 112 of the Act, observing :

16. We are also of the view that the quantum of penalty imposed by the impugned order is justifiable. Section 112 (a)(ii) provides for dutyrelated penalty, i.e., penalty not exceeding ten percent of the duty sought tobe evaded. Thus the outer limit or the maximum amount of penalty that could be levied could not be more than ten percent of the duty. Similarly,the penalty under section 114AA is value related, i.e., penalty not exceeding five times the value of goods. Here also the Commissioner has proportionallyincreased the penalty and we find no reason to interfere with the same. Normally, the principle in levying penalty by way of punishment has to commensurate in terms of the provisions providing the penalty. As against the penalty imposed by the adjudicating authority, the appellate authority has considerably increased the penalty amount on all counts both against the importer company and also its director which is not only sufficient to penalise them but would also act as a deterrent in future. Henceno interference is called for by us. The reliance placed by the Revenue on the decision of the Apex Court in CC, Mumbai Vs. Mansi Impex - 2011(270) ELT 631 is of no assistance in the present case, where the Court dealt with the levy of redemption fine and penalty without determination of the market price of the goods confiscated and therefore reduction of the same by the Tribunal was not interfered with.

Re-export & Redemption Fine with Penalty:

17. We find that immediately after the seizure of the goods on19.12.2021 the appellant on the very next day made an application dated 20.12.2021 requesting to re-export the goods back to UAE. The appellant repeated the request on 2.03.2022 and subsequently on 30.12.2022. Accordingly, the adjudicating authority vide order in original dated 24.04.2023 confiscated the goods under Section 111(m) and gave an optionto the appellant to redeem the goods and re-export them on payment of redemption fine under section 125 of the Act. The said order has been maintained by the Commissioner (Appeal) by the impugned order relying on the decisions of the Supreme Court and the Tribunal holding that request of the importer for re-export is in consonance with the underline object of issuing the notification dated 16.02.2019 under section 8A of the Customs Tariff Act. We may now consider whether the request of re-export has been rightly allowed by the authorities below as well as on the issue of imposition of redemption fine when the goods are allowed to be re-exported back. The department has raised an objection that permission for re-export on arequest made by the importer company is not within the purview of the adjudication proceedings in view of the decision of the Tribunal in Hemant Bhai R. Patel V Commissioner of Customs 2003 (153) ELT 226 (Tri. - LB). We find that the goods declared as Brass Scrap "Pallu" are neither restricted nor prohibited goods and are freely available for import. We wouldlike to refer to the relevant part of Para 2.54 of Handbook of Procedures 2015-2020, which reads as :-

“2.54 Import of Metallic Waste and Scrap Import

Import of any form of metallic waste, scrap will be subject to the condition that it will not contain hazardous, toxic waste, radioactive contaminatedwaste / scrap containing radioactive material, any typeof arms, ammunition, mines, shells, live or used cartridge or any other explosive material in any form either used or otherwise.

(a) Import of following types of metallic waste and scrap will be free subject to conditions detailed below:

Sl. o.	Exim Code	Item description
9.	74040010	Copper Scrap
10.	74040022	Brass scrap

The show cause notice proposed confiscation of these goods under section 111(m) of the Act on the ground that the country of origin has been mis-declared by the importer company as UAE instead of Pakistan andconsequently mis-classified the goods under CTH 7404 0022 instead ofcorrect classification in terms of the notification as CTH 9806 0000 by submitting false and incorrect documents. It is only after the proposed charge is made for confiscation of goods, the provisions of section 125 of theAct comes into play whereby the adjudicating authority is empowered tooffer an option to the owner of the goods to pay fine in lieu of confiscation. Therefore, proposal in the show cause notice is restricted to confiscation of goods under the respective provisions and it is then within the jurisdiction of the adjudicating authority to order confiscation and at the same time exercising its powers under Section 125 allowing the importer to redeem the goods on payment of fine as ordered. At the stage of issuing the show cause notice, it is not within the jurisdiction of the department to invoke the provisions of section 125 of the Act but that does not restrict the powers of the adjudicating authority to impose redemption fine in terms of section 125 of the Act. Once the goods are ordered to be confiscated they vest in the Central Government as per section 126 of the Act, however, if the importer exercises the option to redeem the goods on payment of fine as ordered by the adjudicating authority in terms of section 125 of the Act and a request ismade for re-export, as noticed by this Tribunal in K & K Gems V Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai-I 1998 (100) ELT 70 (Tribunal), such re-export is a post redemption facility allowed to the importer at his request. Further, with reference to section 125, Tribunal observed that, "the fine envisaged thereunder is only to get over the order of confiscation irrespective of whether the goods are cleared for home consumption or for re-export."

18. The learned Authorized Representative vehemently opposed the permission for re-export granted by the authorities below, however, we havealready held that the same cannot be accepted. We, in arriving at the conclusion that the appellant having paid the redemption fine is entitled to redeem the goods and it is permissible to seek re-export thereof, aresupported by the decisions of this Tribunal as well as of the superior Courts.

"5. The other contention is not of any significance to the fact of the present case. By applying the ratio of thedecision in Padia Sales Corporation v. C.C. all that would happen is that the permission granted for re- export to be set aside. The goods in other words would have to be cleared on payment of fine for home consumption. We are however told that the goods have already been exported. Apart from this, we do not findit possible to say that there is no provision in the law to permitting goods to be re-exported subsequent to their confiscation.

6. Section 125 of the Act does not specifically provide that an option may be given to redeem the goods for re-export. It empowers an adjudicating officer in case ofgoods the import of which is not prohibited and directing him, in the case of other goods, to give the owner of the goods, or where the owner is not known tothe person from whose possession or custody the goods have been seized, an option to pay in lieu ofconfiscation such fine as the said officer thinks fit. The section applies equally to export goods as well as imported goods. Where goods which have been tendered for export are ordered to be confiscated and an option to redeem them is given under that section, itwould follow that option is for the export of the goods. This is no doubt different from re-export. However, re- export is a facility permitting export of goods which have already been permitted to be imported. Except in cases where export is prohibited by any law, thosegoods which have been imported may be permitted to be exported. The formal procedure of filing a shipping bill and observing other formalities relating to export of goods would have to be followed. There is nothing in the law prohibiting the Collector from permitting re- export of goods. This long standing practice only simplifies the procedural requirement of a complex and time consuming requirement. Therefore, when anadjudicating authority after ordering confiscation of imported goods permits their re-export the goods he is in effect first ordering the redemption for home consumption and thereafter permitting them to be re- exported. Each of these two actions is permitted by law.An order whereby both are combined therefore is not contrary to law."

In addition, we would like to point out the objections raised by the department in the case Hemant Bhai R. Patel (supra), which clearly reflects that the department accepts re-export as an option. The relevant paras from the decision in Hemant Bhai R. Patel (surpa) are as under:-

"6. The learned DR would on the other hand submit that a permission granted for re-export is irrelevant for exercise of the power to impose redemption fine when goods are confiscated. Once the goods are confiscated unless the importer redeems the goods by paying redemption fine he is not reacquiring the ownership of the goods which would entitle him either to clear for domestic consumption or for re-export.

Similarly, the case law referred by the Revenue of Preeti Exim Vs. CC, New Delhi – 2007 (214) ELT 555 (Tribunal-Delhi), wherein the contention of the Revenue was that importer has to first redeem the goodsby paying redemption fine and, thereafter, the customer can re-export the goods. The Tribunal observed as under:-

"5. I find that the issue raised by the appellant whether the imported goods are liable for fine and penalty in case the order regarding re-export was granted is answered by the Larger Bench of the Tribunal in the case of A.K. Jewellers (supra), after relying upon the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Collector v. Elephanta Oil & Industries Ltd. reported in 2003 (152) E.L.T. 257 held that power to levy the penalty under Section 112 of Customs Act for improper importation of goods is different from the power of confiscation of goods under Section 125 of Customs Act. The same view istaken by the Tribunal in the case of Hemant Bhai R. Patel (supra)."

24. In MJ Exports Ltd., V CEGAT 1992 (60) ELT 161, the revenue had raised an objection that law does not permit an import just for the purposes of export and goods once imported can be only for home consumption or warehousing. The Apex Court rejected the contention of the revenue and held:

"17. The above general consideration apart, there are other indications in the statute which show that the Act does not prohibit the export of imported goods. TheAct provides that goods which are cleared from the customsarea for warehousing can be cleared from the warehousefor home consumption (S. 68) or exportation (S. 69). At first blush, this may seem to support the Revenue's interpretation that clearance for exportation and clearance for home consumption are two different things. It is indeed suggested by State counsel that, if an importer intends to export the imported goods, he should clear them for warehousing and then proceed in terms of S. 69. But a littlethought would show this interpretation cannot be correct. In the first place, where an importer, even at the time of the import purchase has decided to sell the goods in another country (as in the present case), he may, as pointed out earlier, easily ask the goods to be transmitted or transhipped to the country of sale and thus avoid any necessity for their being at all cleared in India. But where, for one reason or other, he wants to import the goods into India and then sell them to the foreign country or wherethe importer decides on an export sale only after he has arranged for the import of the goods into India, the Act prescribes no form of a Bill of Entry under which he can clear such goods intended for re-export. It would not be correct to insist that he must clear them for warehousing and then export them by clearing from the warehouse. Whether to deposit the goods in a warehouse or not is an option given to the importer. If he is able to pay the import duties and has his own place to stock the goods, he is entitled to take them away. But, where he has either some difficulty in payment of the duties or where he has no ready place to stock the goods before use or sale, he cannot clearthe goods from the customs area. The warehouse is only a place which the importer, on payment of prescribed charges, is permitted to utilise for keeping the goods wherehe is not able to take the goods straightaway outside the customs area. There is nothing in the provisions of the Act to compel an importer even before or when importing the goods, to make up his mind whether he is going to use or sell them in India or whether he proposes to re-export them. Again, there may be cases where he has importedthe goods for use or sale in India but subsequently receivesan attractive offer which necessitates an export. It would make export trade difficult to say that he cannot accept theexport offer as the goods, when imported, had been clearedfor home consumption. S. 69, therefore, should be only read as a provision setting out the procedure for export of warehoused goods and not as a provision which makes warehousing an imperative pre-condition for exporting the imported goods. The second reason for not reading Ss. 68 and 69 as supporting the Revenue's interpretation is even more weighty. That interpretation would mean thatimported goods can be re-exported after being warehousedfor some time (even a day or few hours) but that they cannot be exported otherwise. Such an interpretation has no basis in logic or sense and makes mincemeat of the broader principle contended for by the Revenue that imports are intended for use in the country and not for export. Incidentally, we may observe that even this principle contended for by Revenue may itself be of doubtful validity as it is based on an erroneous assumption that a re-export of imported goods will always be detrimental to the country. It is true that, in the present case, the appellant has been criticised for having utilised valuable hard currency for the purchases and reselling the goods only for rupee consideration. But, conceivably, there may be cases where an importer is able to import goods from a soft-currency area and sell them in a hard-currency area earning foreign exchange for the country. It is also possible to think of cases where, though economically unremunerative, the re-exports can be justified on considerations of international amity and goodwill such as for example, where the goods are exported to a country which is in dire need of help and assistance. The principle isalso non-acceptable on the ground of vagueness as to the extent of its application to exports made after an interval orafter changing several hands inside the country by way of sale. We are, therefore, unable to read Ss. 68 and 69 as supporting the Revenue's contention.

18. On the other hand, there are provisions which indicate that export of imported goods is very much envisaged under the statute. The provisions contained in S.74 fully reinforce this interpretation. Indeed S. 74 would beredundant if the Department's stand that imported goods cannot be exported were to be accepted as correct. As pointed out by counsel for the appellant, para 174(1) of thePolicy which reads :

"No REP benefits are admissible in the case of imported goods which are re-exported in the same State without undergoing any processing or manufacturing operations in India."

24. In K & K Gems (supra), the Tribunal while considering the issuethat redemption fine cannot be levied for re-export as section 125 does not empower such a levy, distinguished the fine under section 125 as a conditionfor re-export and fine in lieu of confiscation under section 125 referring tothe earlier decision in Allen Bradley India V Collector 1992 (58)ELT 268, where the Tribunal held that the goods need not have been subjected to confiscation and levy of fine in lieu of confiscation in view of clear findings that wrong goods had been shipped because of suppliers mistake and the importer had disclosed the fact to the department even before the examination of the goods. Thus, fine in lieu of confiscation has been found tobe in consonance with the provisions of section 125 of the Customs Act,1962 as an option to the importer to redeem the goods which have been confiscated and has not been made as a condition for re-export which had been allowed in response to the request made by the appellant therein.

25. The Apex Court in Elephanta Oil and Industries (supra) rejected the contention of the appellant therein that once the imported article is re-exported there is no question of levying any penalty or redemption fine holding that confiscation of goods and thereafter permitting the respondent to re-export the same would not mean that penalty under section 112 of the Act cannot be levied. Following the said decision of the Apex Court, the Larger Bench of the Tribunal in A.K. Jewellers V Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai, 2003(155)ELT 585 dealt with similar issue:-

"10. After going through the provisions of Section 125 of the Customs Act, we find that provisions of this section do not specifically provide that an option may be given to redeem the goods for re-export. It empowers an adjudicating authority in case of goods the import or export of which is prohibited under Customs Act or under any law in force, to grant an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the said authority thinks fit. The provisions of this section equally apply to the goods to be exported as well as imported goods. Where the goods which have been tendered for export are ordered to be confiscated and an option to redeem the goods on payment of fine, it would follow that option is for the export of the goods. This is no doubt different from re-export. Re-export isa facility permitting export of goods which have already been permitted to be imported. Except in cases where import is prohibited by any law, those goods which have been imported may be permitted to be exported. The formal procedure of filing a shipping bill and observing other formalities relating to exportof goods would have to be followed. There is no prohibition on the adjudicating authority from permitting re-export of the goods. When an adjudicating authority after ordering confiscation ofimported goods permits their re-export, he is in effect first ordering the redemption of the goods on payment of fine and thereafter permitting them to be re- exported. Each of these two actions is independent andis permitted by law. An order whereby both are combined, therefore, is not contrary to law.

and redemption fine isnot justifiable, this will make the provisions of Section 125 of the Customs Act redundant which specifically empowers the adjudicating authority to exercise his powers in respect of prohibited goods. As confiscation and redemption fine in lieu of confiscation and re-export are two independent actions, hence the view taken that in case the assessee is allowed to re-export,the confiscation and redemption fine is not justified, is not a correct view. Further, we find that this view is also taken by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of C.C. v. Elephanta Oil & Industries Ltd. reported in2003 (152) E.L.T. 257 (S.C.) rejected the contention ofthe importer that once the imported article is re- exported as directed by the department, there is no question of levying any penalty or redemption fine. The Hon'ble Supreme Court held that power to levy thepenalty under Section 112 of the Customs Act for improper importation of goods is different from the power of confiscation of goods under Section 125 of the Customs Act. The question of law referred to the Larger Bench is answered accordingly."

24. Another Larger Bench of this Tribunal in Hemant Bhai R Patel V Commissioner of Customs, Ahmedabad (supra)distinguished the decisions of the Apex Court in Siemens Ltd V Collector 1999 (113) ELT 776 on the ground that the issue whether redemption fine could be imposed when goods are liable to be confiscated even when re-export is permitted was not an issue before the Apex Court. Agreeing with the decision in K & K Gems (Supra), Escorts Herion Ltd V Commissioner 1999(107) ELT 599, Kothari Filaments V Commissioner 2002 (144) ELT 80 and Smt. Kusumbhai Dahyabhai Patel V Collector 1995 (79) ELT 292, and alsoon the decision of the Apex Court in M. J. Exports (supra) the Tribunal decided the issue in affirmative holding that it is open to the adjudicating authority to impose redemption fine as well as penalty even when permissionis granted for re-exporting the goods. The Department has relied on the observations of the Tribunal in the case of Hemant Bhai R. Patel (supra) that, " A permission granted for re-export on the basis of a request made by the owner of the goods is outside the purview of the adjudication proceedings, as mentioned above". We are of the view that the issue before the Tribunal was not whether the Adjudicating Authority had power to order for re-export or not rather the issue formulated for their reference related to power under Section 125 to impose redemption fine when confiscation is established and permission for re-export is granted. Therefore, the aforesaid observations relied on by the Department is erroneous as it amounts to obiter dicta and is, therefore, not binding. Moreover, once the Tribunal agrees with the view taken in the cases of K & K Gems, etc. (referred above), the logical conclusion is that it upholds the view that option to the importer to redeem the confiscated goods on payment of fine is in consonance with the provisions of Section 125 and is not a condition for re- export. In so far as the decision of the Apex Court in C.C., Kolkata Vs. Grand Prime Ltd. – 2003 (155) ELT 417 referred by the Revenue is clearly distinguishable as the goods were imported on the condition of re- export of finished/semi-finished goods qua the imports made.

Thus the issue is no longer res integra and hence we are of the considered view that re-export of the goods is permissible and both redemption fine as well as the penalty under section 112 and 114AA of the Act are leviable even if the goods on redemption are allowed to be re-exported.

25. The learned Counsel for the appellant has placed on record the latest decision of the Delhi High Court in Ajay Kumar Gupta vs Commissioner ofCustoms 2023 (5) TMI 207, inter-alia observing, that there is no provision under the Customs Act which entitles the revenue to retain the goods after the concerned party has paid the redemption fine as well as the penalty as determined. The Court further held that merely because the revenue seeks to challenge the order passed by the appellate authority is no ground for non compliance of the said orders.

Here, the appellant hassubmitted that pursuant to the order in original, they have paid the redemption fine of Rs. 10,00,000/- and penalty of Rs. 6,00,000/-towards penalty on 3.04.2023, however the department has not permitted them to re-export the goods. In view of the decision in Ajay Kumar Gupta (supra) we have no hesitation in directing the department to allow the appellant to re-export the goods once they deposit the enhanced amount of penalty as directed in the impugned order. The importer company, namely M/s Bright Metal (India) Pvt. Ltd., and its Director, namely Sanjay Porwal may deposit the balance of the enhanced amount towards penalty under section 112 (a)(ii) and under section 114AA of the Act in terms of the impugned order within a period of three weeks and on such deposit being made, the department shall forthwith release the goods for the purpose of re-export.

26. We would now like to refer to the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Union of India versus Raj Grow Impex LLP – 2021 (377) ELT 145 (SC), which has been referred to both by the learned Counsel for the appellant as well as by the revenue. One of the issue considered was whether the exercise of discretion for absolute confiscation was justified. TheCourt while appreciating the relevant considerations and the principles for exercise of such discretion observed as :

"82. The sum and substance of the matter is that as regards the imports in question, the personal interests of the importers who made improper imports are pitted against the interests of national economy andmore particularly, the interests of farmers. This factor alone is sufficient to find the direction in which discretion ought to be exercised in these matters. Whenpersonal business interests of importers clash with public interest, the former has to, obviously, give wayto the latter. Further, not a lengthy discussion is required to say that, if excessive improperly imported peas/pulses are allowed to enter the country's market, the entire purpose of the notifications would be defeated. The discretion in the cases of present nature, involving far-reaching impact on national economy, cannot be exercised only with reference to the hardship suggested by the importers, who had made such improper imports only for personal gains. The imports in question suffer from the vices of breach of law as also lack of bona fide and the only proper exercise of discretion would be of absolute confiscation andensuring that these tainted goods do not enter Indian markets. Imposition of penalty on such importers; and rather heavier penalty on those who have been able to get some part of goods released is, obviously, warranted.

84. Hence, on the facts and in the circumstances of the present case as noticed and dilated hereinabove, the discretion could only be for absolute confiscation with levy of penalty. At the most, an option for re-export could be given to the importers and that too, on payment of redemption fine and upon discharging other statutory obligations. This option we had already left open in the order dated 18-3-2021, passed during the hearing of these matters."

27. Considering the aforesaid decision, we are of the considered opinion that the exercise of discretion both by the adjudicating authority as well asby the appellate authority in not ordering absolute confiscation and allowing the importer to redeem the goods on payment of redemption fine and penalty with permission to re-export the goods is in consonance with the object and purpose with which the notification was issued, i.e. to dissuade commercial transactions with Pakistan byimposing extremely high penalty of 200%.

28. Suffice it to say, that Notification No 05/ 2019 dated 16.2.2019in simple words provides that the goods imported having country of origin as Islamic Republic of Pakistan shall be classified under the new entry CTH 98060000 and BCD @200% shall be applicable on them. It nowhere says thatsuch goods shall not be allowed to be re-exported. It is a settled principle of law that the words of the notification has to be read as they are and the contents thereof cannot be added or expanded by way of implication. Since there is no express bar for re-export of such goods in the notification, we uphold the impugned order allowing the appellant to re-export the goods.

Conclusion

29. We, therefore conclude that the country of origin of the containers in question is Pakistan and therefore, the same are classifiable under the Notification No.5/2019 as per CTH 980060000. Since the goods have been imported on the basis of fake PSIC, they are liable to be confiscated in terms of Section 111(m). In the event of confiscation, the redemption fine under Section 125 has been rightly levied. As the importer company and its directorare responsible for the import having been made in violation of the statutory provisions and FTP 2015-2020, they are liable to penalty both under Section 112 (a)(ii) and also under 114 AA. We are also in agreement with the quantum of penalty levied on the importer company and its director under the impugned order. In view of our findings, the appeals filed by the importer company and its director are devoid of any merits. The consequential relief of re-export, in the facts of the case, needs to be affirmed on payment of redemption fine and also enhanced penalty both under Section 112 (a)(ii) and Section 114AA of the Act. Thus, the appeals filed by the Department also deserves to be dismissed.

30. We do not see any reason to interfere with the impugned order.

Accordingly, all the four appeals filed by the department as well as the appeals filed by the importer company and its director needs to be dismissed. The miscellaneous application and the applications for stay standdisposed of.

31. The appeals stand dismissed. [Order pronounced on 26.09.2023]

DATE OF HEARING:27.07.2023 DATE OF DECISION:26.09.2023

BINU TAMTA:

All the six appeals, four filed by the Department and the remaining two by the importer company and its Director, arise out of the common order, being Order-in-appeal No.22-24(RLM)CUS/JPR/2023 dated 15.05.2023. The parties are referred to in their capacity as in Appeal No.54929 of 2023, titled as M/s. Bright Metal (India) Pvt. Ltd., Jaipur Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Central Excise and CGST, Jaipur.

2. The facts of the present case are that the importer company had imported Brass Scrap "Pallu" for its business vide Bill of Entry (BOE) No.6601963 dated 09.12.2021, which was filed at ICD (Inland Containers Depot), Concor, Kanakpura, Jaipur under the provisions of Section 46 of the Customs Act, 1962 through Kodiak Containers Lines Pvt. Ltd., Code No.AADCK2481PCH001 having assessable value of Rs.90,23,371/- as the tariff value fixed for Brass Scrap (all grades) under CTH 74040022 @ 5691 USD/MT vide Notification No.95/2021 – Customs (N.T.) dated 30.11.2021 and classification of the same was made under CTH (Customs Tariff Heading) 74040022 and duty was self-assessed BCD(Basic Customs duty) @ 2.5% + SWS (Social Welfare Surcharge) @ 10% + IGST @ 18%.

3. The importer company had uploaded documents regarding its BOE No.6601963 i.e. Bill of Lading bearing reference no.SASLNH21715 dated 28.11.2021, Container No.SVWU9892740/40, Seal No.017410, Port of Lading JEBEL ALI (UAE) along with Pre-Shipment Inspection Certificate (PSIC) issued by Pre-Shipment Inspection Agency (PSIA) bearing certificate No.WFZE/SHJO/9959/2021 dated 13.11.2021, which duly mentioned type of scrap – unshredded, Country of Origin – UAE, Place of Inspection – Sharjah and duly enclosed Commercial Invoice, Packing List, Sales Contract, Certificate of Origin and Form 6 (Transboundary movement document) mentioning country of import/export as UAE issued by M/s. Aden Scrap Trading (LLC), UAE.

4. The said BOE was given first check by faceless assessing officer and received on the port, i.e. ICD, Concor, Kanakpura for examination first. However, the container tracking on PICT (Pakistani International Container Terminal) divulged that the container had actually originated from Pakistan as the seal numbers mentioned for the container on PICT matched with those mentioned in the Indian Customs EDI (Electronic Data Interface) Systems (ICES).

5. The importer company submitted to the officers of the Customs that they had imported the goods from UAE with complete documents (as required for import) and that they had no knowledge about the discrepancy of goods as the importer company has no connection with the supplier in Pakistan. They further submitted that the importer company had never contacted any person in Pakistan for importing brass scrap or any other commodity and they always imported the goods through middleman
i.e. Indenter, and the goods mentioned in BOE No.6601963 was imported through Indenter Mr. Abdul Kader Bombaywala, who is based in Surat. However, the Customs Officers were not convinced about the averments made by the importer company that time and thereafter seized the goods vide BOE 6601963 vide seizure memo dated 19.12.2021.

6. That as the Customs officials alleged that the goods originated from Pakistan instead of UAE, the importer company had submitted applications dated 20.12.2021, 02.03.2022 and 30.12.2022 to the customs authorities to cancel the bill of entry under Section 149 of the Customs Act, 1962 and they may be allowed to re-export the goods back to the UAE at the earliest to avoid any detention/demurrage/ground rent charges.

7. On scrutiny of the Bills of Entries submitted by the appellant in respect of the past imports, it was found that same modus operandi was adopted as the container tracking on PICT divulged that the containers had actually originated from Pakistan, the details of 6 Bills of Entries filed and cleared is as under :-

S. No.	B.E. No.	BE date	Total Ass.Value
1.	2643706	06.02.202	8985522
2.	2797226	17.02.2021	8747005
3.	5063295	16.08.2021	8808842
4.	5173059	24.08.2021	7412945
5.	5407130	11.09.2021	7443238
6.	6430842	27.11.2021	8715980

8. That in follow-up action, premises of Mr. Abdul Kader Bombaywala, Indenter of the importer company was searched and statements of Mr. Abdul Kader and Shri Kailash Vittal Mhatre, Sr. Manager, M/s. Hub and Links India Pvt., Ltd. were recorded. As the Importer Company was found to have mis-declared the country of origin as UAE instead of Pakistan with intent to evade customs duty and mis-classified the goods under CTH 74040022 instead of 98060000, the goods imported were seized by the Customs officers under Section 110 of the Customs Act, 1962 (the Act). Accordingly, show cause notice dated 15.06.2022 was issued to the Importer Company and its Directors, which was duly replied by them.

9. Having examined the matter, the Adjudicating Authority passed the order-in-original dated 24.02.2023, whereby the imported goods were confiscated under Section 111(m) and the Importer Company was allowed to redeem the goods for re-export on payment of redemption fine of Rs.10 lakhs under Section 125 of the Act and also imposed penalty of Rs.3 lakh each under Section 112(a)(ii) and Section 114 AA of the Act on the Importer Company. Penalty of Rs.1,50,000/- each under Section 112 (a)(ii) and Section 114 AA of the Act imposed on Shri Sanjay Porwal, Director of the Company. Penalty of Rs.3 lakh each was imposed on Mr. Abdul Kadir under Section 112(a)(ii) and 114 AA of the Act. Similarly penalty of Rs. 3 lakh each was imposed on M/s. Hub and Links India Pvt. Ltd. under Section 112 (a)(ii) and Section 114 AA of the Act. The said order was challenged, both by the Revenue as well as by the Importer Company and its Directors. The Commissioner (Appeals) affirmed the order of confiscation, allowing of redemption of the goods for re-export of payment of redemption fine of Rs.10 lakh. However, the penalty amount was enhanced on the Importer Company from Rs.3 lakh to Rs.10 lakh under Section 112 (a)(ii) and Rs.3 Lakh to Rs.15 Lakhs under Section 114 AA of the Act. Penalty on Shri Sanjay Porwal was enhanced from Rs. 1,50,000/- to Rs.5 Lakh under Section 112 (a)(ii) and from Rs.1,50,000/- to Rs.15 Lakh under Section 114 AA of the Act. Hence, the present appeals have been filed before this Tribunal both by the Revenue as well as by the Importer Company and its Director.

10. We have heard Shri Rakesh Kumar, Authorised Representative for the Revenue and the learned Counsel for the appellant, Shri S.L. Poddar.

We have examined the records of the case and the legal provisions, as interpreted in catena of judgements.

11. Since we are considering the appeal filed by the Importer Company as the lead matter, we would refer to the contentions raised by them, which are as under:-

(a) Investigation and inquiry were inadequate and incomplete as no investigation was conducted with their supplier in UAE or the original supplier in Pakistan.

(b) There is no allegation in the show cause notice that there was acute shortage of Brass Scrap in the international market at the material time or they have purchased at less than the prevailing price in the international market forcing them to procure the goods from Pakistan. In other words, there is no allegation that there was incentive for the company to import the goods of Pakistan origin. Thus, there is no evidence that the Importer Company knowingly and intentionally mis-declared the country of origin.

(c) That all the relevant documents, as submitted by their suppliers in UAE were duly filed by them before the Customs Authorities.

(d) The information obtained from PICT website is not authentic and reliable and relied on the decision of the Apex Court in M/s. Hewlett Packard India Pvt. Ltd. – 2023 (1) TMI 700, which says that online sources such as Wikipedia should be used with due caution to support the conclusion of the investigation.

(e) Re-exporting the goods would serve the purpose sought to be achieved by the Government of India in imposing BCD at 200% on the goods originating in Pakistan and referred to the decision in M/s. Raj Grow Impex LLP & Ors. – 2021 (377) ELT 145, whereby the Apex Court allowed re-export of the imported beans, peas and pulses, though they were held to be prohibited. The redemption fine and penalty in case of re-export of the goods is not imposable.

(f) The goods are not liable to confiscation under Section 111 (m) of the Act.

(g) Penalty under Section 112(a)(ii) and Section 114 AA of the Act are not sustainable.

12. The learned Authorised Representative for the Revenue has seriously challenged the decision of the lower authorities both on account of allowing re-export of the goods on payment of meagre amount of redemption fine as well as on the quantum of penalty under section 112 (a) and 114AA being not commensurate with the gravity of the case or in terms of the provisions thereof. The submission in this regard is that prerequisite for the import of unshredded metal scrap is restricted by the condition of proper Pre Shipment Inspection Certificate and therefore the goods have to be treated as 'restricted goods'. In the present case the goods have been imported on the basis of fake PSIC certificate which means import is without any certificate. The other limb of the argument is that in the show cause notice there is no proposal for re-export of the impugned goods and therefore the adjudicating authority had no jurisdiction to order re-export. The proposal of re-export are separate from the adjudication proceedings. Referring to the provisions of section 112 (a) (ii)of the Act the learned AR contended that the penalty recommended therein is not exceeding 10% of the duty sought to be evaded whereas the amount of duty, which is sought to be evaded here is Rs. 2,97,73,709/ and therefore maximum penalty was imposable. Similarly, the penalty under section 114AA has to be five times the value of the goods and the value of the declared consignment was Rs. 1,14,15, 967/- and, therefore, penalty imposed by the authorities does not commensurate with that.

(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)
"9806 0000	All goods originating from the Islamic Republic	--	200%

	of Pakistan

Country of Origin:

14. The first and the foremost question to be considered is whether the goods in question originated in or were exported from Pakistan. The goods in question were shipped in container No. SVWU9892740/40. On the basis of the information from the Additional Director General, National Customs Targeting Centre (NCTC), New Delhi that the said container was at high risk as it had originated from Pakistan investigations were carried out. Accordingly, the container No SVWU9892740/40 with seal No. 017410 relating to Bill of Entry No. 6601963 dated 9.12.2021 was verified from the website of Pakistan International Container Tracking Portal (PICT) https:/pict.com.pk/en/online-Tracking and it revealed that the seal No. affixed on the said container was the same as originated from Pakistan. Further, on physical examination of the goods some worn and torn PP bags filled with brass scrap were found on which the words Karachi, Pakistan, Government of Punjab, Korangi Industrial Area etc. were found printed. Coupled with this, the tracking details also revealed the actual arrival date of the said container, i. e. the B/L from Karachi to JEBEL ALI was issued on 18.11.2021 at Karachi and B/L from JEBEL ALI to Nhava Sheva was issued on 28.11.2021 and the container was found to be intact with the same seal throughout from Pakistan to India. This only reflects that there could not have been any inspection at Sharjah, UAE as per the PSIC Certificate dated 13.11.2021 issued by PSIA and therefore the necessary corollary is that the PSIC was fake and forged. This also points to the fact that the container in question originated from Pakistan.

15. We also find that statement of Shri Kailash Vitthal Mhatre, Senior Manager, M/s HUB & Links Logistics (I) Pvt. Ltd., the delivery agent, was recorded wherein he explained the container wise chart as:

Column No. 1 gives the details of container number.

Column No. 2 provides the details of B/L number and date issued from Karachi.

Column No. 3 refers to the container seal number at Karachi.

Column No. 4 gives the name of goods as per B/L and quantity.

Column No. 5 shows destination as per B/L issued at Karachi.

Column No.6 provides name of the vessel and reaching at destination as per B/L issued at Karachi.

Column No.7 shows B/L number and date issued at JEBEL ALI.

Column No.9 gives the name of goods and quantity as per B/L issued at JEBEL ALI.

Column No.10 shows destination as per B/L issue at JEBEL\ ALI.

Karachi and it is the later ones which relates to JEBEL ALI. This itself proves that the country of origin of the containers is Pakistan and not UAE where the containers have been shown to have arrived later on with the sole object of misleading the country of origin. This conclusion of ours gets further fortified by the earlier six imports managed by the importer company by following similar modus-operandi that the goods in question were loaded in these containers in Karachi Port and were then transported to JEBEL ALI and from there it was transported to Indian ports. The goods once loaded at Karachi were not unloaded from the containers at JEBEL ALI and only B/L date of these containers were changed and all other details, i.e., B/L No., description of the goods, quantity, container number and seal number remained the same. There is no reason to disprove and disregard the aforesaid modus-operandi mentioned in the statement of Shri Kailash Vitthal Mhatre recorded under section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962. The documents showing the movement of the container with goods from Karachi to JEBEL ALI, container wise sheet, container wise tracking details obtained from PICT website clearly indicated that the containers originated from Pakistan. We also do not agree with the reliance placed by the learned Counsel for the appellant on the decision of the Apex Court in Hewlett Packard (supra) which is clearly distinguishable from the facts of the present case. The department having found that the goods originated from Pakistan was not wrong in re-classifying the goods under CTH 98060000 as per Notification No. 5 /2019-Cus dated 16.2.2019. Nothing further was required to be done at the end of the department as pleaded by the importer company. The justification or non-justification of procuring the goods i. e., Brass scrap "Pallu" from Pakistan was on the importer company which they failed to substantiate by any valid supporting evidence. The burden was exclusively on the importer company and not on the revenue to place on record positive evidence in support of their submissions. Responsibility of the Importer Company:

16. Having determined the country of origin of the containers in question we would now examine the defence taken by the learned Counsel for the appellant that they had no knowledge about the country of origin being Pakistan and that they have no connection with the supplier in Pakistan and therefore they have neither mis-declared nor misled the department. In fact the importer company had gone to the extent of saying that they have no means to find out the country of origin of the goods as they do not directly deal with the suppliers rather there are intermediary agents / indenters who process the imports. We do not agree with the submissions of the appellant for the simple reason that the appellant claims to be a very reputed company in the business of manufacturing of brass and copper items for which they have been importing raw material namely, brass/copper scrap from different places outside India. The importer company on the one hand is claiming to be a 'one star export house' and on other hand is pleading ignorance of such basic facts. Declaring the Country of Origin is an essential part of the Bill of Entry and the assessment, inter alia, depends on the Country of Origin. Duty could be exempted or increased (as in this case) depending on the Country of Origin. Restrictions on imports and exports could also depend on the Country of Origin. The Country of Origin Certificate also has to be obtained from the authorized agency of that country. Pre-shipment inspection certificates have to be obtained from the agency, which is authorized to issue such certificate in the country, where they are exported from. Thus, it is impossible that any importer would not know both the Country of Origin and the Country of Export of every single consignment. The appellant being an importer, who seems to be well versed with the import-export policy is responsible for the import and is answerable for any violation of the statutory provisions, mis-declaration or any issues relating to the nature, quantum or valuation of the goods, factum of country of origin etc. and cannot plead ignorance thereof. The appellant has attributed the burden of mis-declaration of the country of origin as UAE on the supplier or the indenter, however the same is not believable as the appellant is a regular importer of these goods and during the investigation of the live consignment the past imports were also unearthed which were also routed in similar fashion.

17. The next contention of the appellant is that they have submitted all the requisite documents showing the country of origin as UAE. As noted above, there is complete discrepancy as the PSI Certificate dated 13.11.2021 shows the date of inspection as 11.11.2021 at Sharjah, UAE whereas the containers itself departed from Pakistan on 18.11.2021 as per the B/L from Karachi to JEBELALI, therefore the only logical conclusion is that the certificate is fake or has been forged and no inspection was actually conducted at Sharjah, UAE. We find that the authorities below have rightly observed that in terms of Para 2.32 of FTP 2015-2020 read with para 2.54 of Handbook of Procedures, such PSI Certificate is not valid and no reliance can be placed thereon.

Confiscation of Goods:

18. We now come to the issue whether goods are liable to confiscation under section 111 (m) of the Act. Having considered in extenso that the country of origin of the containers in question is Pakistan, the same are covered by the notification No. 05/2019, specifically issued to provide high rate of duty for all goods originating in or exported from the Islamic Republic of Pakistan. As discussed above, the PSI Certificate submitted by the appellant having been found to be fake, the import is violative of the Foreign Trade Policy and Rule 13 of the Rules which makes it mandatory to submit the pre shipment inspection certificate for clearance of the brass scrap, however in the present case there is no valid PSIC in respect of the imports in question. The issue needs to be examined in the light of the provisions of section 46 under which the appellant had filed the bill of entry for home consumption as the provisions thereof makes it obligatory on the part of the importer to make a declaration as to the truth of the contents of such bill of entry and shall in support of the same produce to the proper officer the invoice relating to the goods under import. The appellant has submitted commercial invoices along with bill of lading etc showing the country of origin of the goods as UAE, however as discussed above, country of origin of the goods herein is Pakistan. In that view, the goods are liable for confiscation under section 111 (m) of the Act, which categorically provides any goods which do not correspond in respect of value or 'in any other particular' with the entry made under this Act. Thus the order of confiscation passed by the authorities is held to be in accordance with law.

Penalty under Section 112 (a)(ii) and 114AA of the Act:-

19. Both the importer company and its Director has challenged the levy of penalty under section 112 (a) (ii) and 114 AA of the Act on the ground that they were neither aware of the origin of the goods from Pakistan nor had any intent to import the goods having their origin in Pakistan and hence they cannot be penalised. We are afraid we do not agree with this submission in view of the entire discussion above which prima-facie points to the acts of omission and commission on the part of the importer, M/s. Bright Metal (India) Pvt. Ltd., who imported the goods vide bill of entry No. 6601963 dated 9.12.2021 and Sanjay Porwal being the active director of the importer company who looks after all the work of import of the goods and was fully responsible for purchase of the said goods and its clearance thereof, are liable to penalty under section 112 (a) (ii) and 114AA of the Act for contravention of the provisions of the Customs Act, 1962 read with FTP 2015-20. The conclusions arrived at by us gain support from the decision in Collector of Customs, Bombay Vs. M/s Elephanta Oil & Industries 2003 (152) ELT 257 (SC), wherein the Apex Court distinguishing the provisions of section 112 (a) imposing penalty and section 125 providing for redemption fine, upheld the imposition of penalty under section 112 of the Act, observing :

20. We are also of the view that the quantum of penalty imposed by the impugned order is justifiable. Section 112 (a)(ii) provides for duty related penalty, i.e., penalty not exceeding ten percent of the duty sought to be evaded. Thus the outer limit or the maximum amount of penalty that could be levied could not be more than ten percent of the duty. Similarly, the penalty under section 114AA is value related, i.e., penalty not exceeding five times the value of goods. Here also the Commissioner has proportionally increased the penalty and we find no reason to interfere with the same. Normally, the principle in levying penalty by way of punishment has to commensurate in terms of the provisions providing the penalty. As against the penalty imposed by the adjudicating authority, the appellate authority has considerably increased the penalty amount on all counts both against the importer company and also its director which is not only sufficient to penalise them but would also act as a deterrent in future. Hence no interference is called for by us. The reliance placed by the Revenue on the decision of the Apex Court in CC, Mumbai Vs. Mansi Impex - 2011(270) ELT 631 is of no assistance in the present case, where the Court dealt with the levy of redemption fine and penalty without determination of the market price of the goods confiscated and therefore reduction of the same by the Tribunal was not interfered with.

21. We find that immediately after the seizure of the goods on 19.12.2021 the appellant on the very next day made an application dated 20.12.2021 requesting to re-export the goods back to UAE. The appellant repeated the request on 2.03.2022 and subsequently on 30.12.2022. Accordingly, the adjudicating authority vide order in original dated 24.04.2023 confiscated the goods under Section 111(m) and gave an option to the appellant to redeem the goods and re-export them on payment of redemption fine under section 125 of the Act. The said order has been maintained by the Commissioner (Appeal) by the impugned order relying on the decisions of the Supreme Court and the Tribunal holding that request of the importer for re-export is in consonance with the underline object of issuing the notification dated 16.02.2019 under section 8A of the Customs Tariff Act. We may now consider whether the request of re-export has been rightly allowed by the authorities below as well as on the issue of imposition of redemption fine when the goods are allowed to be re-exported back. The department has raised an objection that permission for re-export on a request made by the importer company is not within the purview of the adjudication proceedings in view of the decision of the Tribunal in Hemant Bhai R. Patel V Commissioner of Customs 2003 (153) ELT 226 (Tri. - LB). We find that the goods declared as Brass Scrap "Pallu" are neither restricted nor prohibited goods and are freely available for import. We would like to refer to the relevant part of Para 2.54 of Handbook of Procedures 2015-2020, which reads as :-

"2.54 Import of Metallic Waste and Scrap Import

Import of any form of metallic waste, scrap will be subject to the condition that it will not contain hazardous, toxic waste, radioactive contaminated waste / scrap containing radioactive material, any type of arms, ammunition, mines, shells, live or used cartridge or any other explosive material in any form either used or otherwise.

(a) Import of following types of metallic waste and scrap will be free subject to conditions detailed below:

Sl.No.	Exim Code	Item description
9.	74040010	Copper Scrap
10.	74040022	Brass scrap

The show cause notice proposed confiscation of these goods under section 111(m) of the Act on the ground that the country of origin has been mis-declared by the importer company as UAE instead of Pakistan and consequently mis-classified the goods under CTH 7404 0022 instead of correct classification in terms of the notification as CTH 9806 0000 by submitting false and incorrect documents. It is only after the proposed charge is made for confiscation of goods, the provisions of section 125 of the Act comes into play whereby the adjudicating authority is empowered to offer an option to the owner of the goods to pay fine in lieu of confiscation. Therefore, proposal in the show cause notice is restricted to confiscation of goods under the respective provisions and it is then within the jurisdiction of the adjudicating authority to order confiscation and at the same time exercising its powers under Section 125 allowing the importer to redeem the goods on payment of fine as ordered. At the stage of issuing the show cause notice, it is not within the jurisdiction of the department to invoke the provisions of section 125 of the Act but that does not restrict the powers of the adjudicating authority to impose redemption fine in terms of section 125 of the Act. Once the goods are ordered to be confiscated they vest in the Central Government as per section 126 of the Act, however, if the importer exercises the option to redeem the goods on payment of fine as ordered by the adjudicating authority in terms of section 125 of the Act and a request is made for re-export, as noticed by this Tribunal in K & K Gems V Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai-I 1998 (100) ELT 70 (Tribunal), such re-export is a post redemption facility allowed to the importer at his request. Further, with reference to section 125, Tribunal observed that, "the fine envisaged thereunder is only to get over the order of confiscation irrespective of whether the goods are cleared for home consumption or for re-export."

22. The learned Authorized Representative vehemently opposed the permission for re-export granted by the authorities below, however, we have already held that the same cannot be accepted. We, in arriving at the conclusion that the appellant having paid the redemption fine is entitled to redeem the goods and it is permissible to seek re-export thereof, are supported by the decisions of this Tribunal as well as of the superior Courts.

Our view is substantiated by the decision in Escorts Herion Ltd. – 1997 (107) ELT 599 (Tribunal), referred to by the learned Authorized Representative, where the Tribunal specifically stated –

"5. The other contention is not of any significance to the fact of the present case. By applying the ratio of the decision in Padia Sales Corporation v. C.C. all that would happen is that the permission granted for re- export to be set aside. The goods in other words would have to be cleared on payment of fine for home consumption. We are however told that the goods have already been exported. Apart from this, we do not find it possible to say that there is no provision in the law to permitting goods to be re-exported subsequent to their confiscation.

6. Section 125 of the Act does not specifically provide that an option may be given to redeem the goods for re-export. It empowers an adjudicating officer in case of goods the import of which is not prohibited and directing him, in the case of other goods, to give the owner of the goods, or where the owner is not known to the person from whose possession or custody the goods have been seized, an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the said officer thinks fit. The section applies equally to export goods as well as imported goods. Where goods which have been tendered for export are ordered to be confiscated and an option to redeem them is given under that section, it would follow that option is for the export of the goods. This is no doubt different from re-export. However, re- export is a facility permitting export of goods which have already been permitted to be imported. Except in cases where export is prohibited by any law, those goods which have been imported may be permitted to be exported. The formal procedure of filing a shipping bill and observing other formalities relating to export of goods would have to be followed. There is nothing in the law prohibiting the Collector from permitting re- export of goods. This long standing practice only simplifies the procedural requirement of a complex and time consuming requirement. Therefore, when an adjudicating authority after ordering confiscation of imported goods permits their re-export the goods he is in effect first ordering the redemption for home consumption and thereafter permitting them to be re- exported. Each of these two actions is permitted by law. An order whereby both are combined therefore is not contrary to law."

In addition, we would like to point out the objections raised by the department in the case Hemant Bhai R. Patel (supra), which clearly reflects that the department accepts re-export as an option. The relevant paras from the decision in Hemant Bhai R. Patel (surpa) are as under:-

"6. The learned DR would on the other hand submit that a permission granted for re-export is irrelevant for exercise of the power to impose redemption fine when goods are confiscated. Once the goods are confiscated unless the importer redeems the goods by paying redemption fine he is not reacquiring the ownership of the goods which would entitle him either to clear for domestic consumption or for re-export.

Similarly, the case law referred by the Revenue of Preeti Exim Vs. CC, New Delhi – 2007 (214) ELT 555 (Tribunal-Delhi), wherein the contention of the Revenue was that importer has to first redeem the goods by paying redemption fine and, thereafter, the customer can re-export the goods. The Tribunal observed as under:-

"5. I find that the issue raised by the appellant whether the imported goods are liable for fine and penalty in case the order regarding re-export was granted is answered by the Larger Bench of the Tribunal in the case of A.K. Jewellers (supra), after relying upon the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Collector v. Elephanta Oil & Industries Ltd. reported in 2003 (152) E.L.T. 257 held that power to levy the penalty under Section 112 of Customs Act for improper importation of goods is different from the power of confiscation of goods under Section 125 of Customs Act. The same view is taken by the Tribunal in the case of Hemant Bhai R. Patel (supra)."

24. In MJ Exports Ltd., V CEGAT 1992 (60) ELT 161, the revenue had raised an objection that law does not permit an import just for the purposes of export and goods once imported can be only for home consumption or warehousing. The Apex Court rejected the contention of the revenue and held:

"17. The above general consideration apart, there are other indications in the statute which show that the Act does not prohibit the export of imported goods. The Act provides that goods which are cleared from the customs area for warehousing can be cleared from the warehouse for home consumption (S. 68) or exportation (S. 69). At first blush, this may seem to support the Revenue's interpretation that clearance for exportation and clearance for home consumption are two different things. It is indeed suggested by State counsel that, if an importer intends to export the imported goods, he should clear them for warehousing and then proceed in terms of S. 69. But a little thought would show this interpretation cannot be correct. In the first place, where an importer, even at the time of the import purchase has decided to sell the goods in another country (as in the present case), he may, as pointed out earlier, easily ask the goods to be transmitted or transhipped to the country of sale and thus avoid any necessity for their being at all cleared in India. But where, for one reason or other, he wants to import the goods into India and then sell them to the foreign country or where the importer decides on an export sale only after he has arranged for the import of the goods into India, the Act prescribes no form of a Bill of Entry under which he can clear such goods intended for re-export. It would not be correct to insist that he must clear them for warehousing and then export them by clearing from the warehouse. Whether to deposit the goods in a warehouse or not is an option given to the importer. If he is able to pay the import duties and has his own place to stock the goods, he is entitled to take them away. But, where he has either some difficulty in payment of the duties or where he has no ready place to stock the goods before use or sale, he cannot clear the goods from the customs area. The warehouse is only a place which the importer, on payment of prescribed charges, is permitted to utilise for keeping the goods where he is not able to take the goods straightaway outside the customs area. There is nothing in the provisions of the Act to compel an importer even before or when importing the goods, to make up his mind whether he is going to use or sell them in India or whether he proposes to re-export them. Again, there may be cases where he has imported the goods for use or sale in India but subsequently receives an attractive offer which necessitates an export. It would make export trade difficult to say that he cannot accept the export offer as the goods, when imported, had been cleared for home consumption. S. 69, therefore, should be only read as a provision setting out the procedure for export of warehoused goods and not as a provision which makes warehousing an imperative pre-condition for exporting the imported goods. The second reason for not reading Ss. 68 and 69 as supporting the Revenue's interpretation is even more weighty. That interpretation would mean that imported goods can be re-exported after being warehoused for some time (even a day or few hours) but that they cannot be exported otherwise. Such an interpretation has no basis in logic or sense and makes mincemeat of the broader principle contended for by the Revenue that imports are intended for use in the country and not for export. Incidentally, we may observe that even this principle contended for by Revenue may itself be of doubtful validity as it is based on an erroneous assumption that a re-export of imported goods will always be detrimental to the country. It is true that, in the present case, the appellant has been criticised for having utilised valuable hard currency for the purchases and reselling the goods only for rupee consideration. But, conceivably, there may be cases where an importer is able to import goods from a soft-currency area and sell them in a hard-currency area earning foreign exchange for the country. It is also possible to think of cases where, though economically unremunerative, the re-exports can be justified on considerations of international amity and goodwill such as for example, where the goods are exported to a country which is in dire need of help and assistance. The principle is also non-acceptable on the ground of vagueness as to the extent of its application to exports made after an interval or after changing several hands inside the country by way of sale. We are, therefore, unable to read Ss. 68 and 69 as supporting the Revenue's contention.

18. On the other hand, there are provisions which indicate that export of imported goods is very much envisaged under the statute. The provisions contained in S. 74 fully reinforce this interpretation. Indeed S. 74 would be redundant if the Department's stand that imported goods cannot be exported were to be accepted as correct. As pointed out by counsel for the appellant, para 174(1) of the Policy which reads :

"No REP benefits are admissible in the case of imported goods which are re-exported in the same State without undergoing any processing or manufacturing operations in India."

25. In K & K Gems (supra), the Tribunal while considering the issue that redemption fine cannot be levied for re-export as section 125 does not empower such a levy, distinguished the fine under section 125 as a condition for re-export and fine in lieu of confiscation under section 125 referring to the earlier decision in Allen Bradley India V Collector 1992 (58)ELT 268, where the Tribunal held that the goods need not have been subjected to confiscation and levy of fine in lieu of confiscation in view of clear findings that wrong goods had been shipped because of suppliers mistake and the importer had disclosed the fact to the department even before the examination of the goods. Thus, fine in lieu of confiscation has been found to be in consonance with the provisions of section 125 of the Customs Act, 1962 as an option to the importer to redeem the goods which have been confiscated and has not been made as a condition for re-export which had been allowed in response to the request made by the appellant therein.

26. The Apex Court in Elephanta Oil and Industries (supra) rejected the contention of the appellant therein that once the imported article is re-exported there is no question of levying any penalty or redemption fine holding that confiscation of goods and thereafter permitting the respondent to re-export the same would not mean that penalty under section 112 of the Act cannot be levied. Following the said decision of the Apex Court, the Larger Bench of the Tribunal in A.K. Jewellers V Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai, 2003(155)ELT 585 dealt with similar issue:-

"Whether while passing an order under section 125 of the Customs Act the authorities can direct confiscation of goods and payment of fine in lieu of confiscation together with a direction to re-export the goods.
The Tribunal decided the issue in affirmative as under:-

the goods for re-export. It empowers an adjudicating authority in case of goods the import or export of which is prohibited under Customs Act or under any law in force, to grant an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the said authority thinks fit. The provisions of this section equally apply to the goods to be exported as well as imported goods. Where the goods which have been tendered for export are ordered to be confiscated and an option to redeem the goods on payment of fine, it would follow that option is for the export of the goods. This is no doubt different from re-export. Re-export is a facility permitting export of goods which have already been permitted to be imported. Except in cases where import is prohibited by any law, those goods which have been imported may be permitted to be exported. The formal procedure of filing a shipping bill and observing other formalities relating to export of goods would have to be followed. There is no prohibition on the adjudicating authority from permitting re-export of the goods. When an adjudicating authority after ordering confiscation of imported goods permits their re-export, he is in effect first ordering the redemption of the goods on payment of fine and thereafter permitting them to be re- exported. Each of these two actions is independent and is permitted by law. An order whereby both are combined, therefore, is not contrary to law.

11. If we take up the issue from another angle that where the adjudicating authority allows re-export of the prohibited goods and in such a case, by holding that the order of confiscation and redemption fine is not justifiable, this will make the provisions of Section 125 of the Customs Act redundant which specifically empowers the adjudicating authority to exercise his powers in respect of prohibited goods. As confiscation and redemption fine in lieu of confiscation and re- export are two independent actions, hence the view taken that in case the assessee is allowed to re-export, the confiscation and redemption fine is not justified, is not a correct view. Further, we find that this view is also taken by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of
C.C. v. Elephanta Oil & Industries Ltd. reported in 2003 (152) E.L.T. 257 (S.C.) rejected the contention of the importer that once the imported article is re- exported as directed by the department, there is no question of levying any penalty or redemption fine. The Hon'ble Supreme Court held that power to levy the penalty under Section 112 of the Customs Act for improper importation of goods is different from the power of confiscation of goods under Section 125 of the Customs Act. The question of law referred to the Larger Bench is answered accordingly."

27. Another Larger Bench of this Tribunal in Hemant Bhai R Patel V Commissioner of Customs, Ahmedabad (supra)distinguished the decisions of the Apex Court in Siemens Ltd V Collector 1999 (113) ELT 776 on the ground that the issue whether redemption fine could be imposed when goods are liable to be confiscated even when re-export is permitted was not an issue before the Apex Court. Agreeing with the decision in K & K Gems (Supra), Escorts Herion Ltd V Commissioner 1999(107) ELT 599, Kothari Filaments V Commissioner 2002 (144) ELT 80 and Smt. Kusumbhai Dahyabhai Patel V Collector 1995 (79) ELT 292, and also on the decision of the Apex Court in M. J. Exports (supra) the Tribunal decided the issue in affirmative holding that it is open to the adjudicating authority to impose redemption fine as well as penalty even when permission is granted for re-exporting the goods. The Department has relied on the observations of the Tribunal in the case of Hemant Bhai R. Patel (supra) that, " A permission granted for re-export on the basis of a request made by the owner of the goods is outside the purview of the adjudication proceedings, as mentioned above". We are of the view that the issue before the Tribunal was not whether the Adjudicating Authority had power to order for re-export or not rather the issue formulated for their reference related to power under Section 125 to impose redemption fine when confiscation is established and permission for re-export is granted. Therefore, the aforesaid observations relied on by the Department is erroneous as it amounts to obiter dicta and is, therefore, not binding. Moreover, once the Tribunal agrees with the view taken in the cases of K & K Gems, etc. (referred above), the logical conclusion is that it upholds the view that option to the importer to redeem the confiscated goods on payment of fine is in consonance with the provisions of Section 125 and is not a condition for re-export. In so far as the decision of the Apex Court in C.C., Kolkata Vs. Grand Prime Ltd. – 2003 (155) ELT 417 referred by the Revenue is clearly distinguishable as the goods were imported on the condition of re- export of finished/semi-finished goods qua the imports made.

Thus the issue is no longer res integra and hence we are of the considered view that re-export of the goods is permissible and both redemption fine as well as the penalty under section 112 and 114AA of the Act are leviable even if the goods on redemption are allowed to be re- exported.

28. The learned Counsel for the appellant has placed on record the latest decision of the Delhi High Court in Ajay Kumar Gupta vs Commissioner of Customs 2023 (5) TMI 207, inter-alia observing, that there is no provision under the Customs Act which entitles the revenue to retain the goods after the concerned party has paid the redemption fine as well as the penalty as determined. The Court further held that merely because the revenue seeks to challenge the order passed by the appellate authority is no ground for non compliance of the said orders. Here, the appellant has submitted that pursuant to the order in original, they have paid the redemption fine of Rs. 10,00,000/- and penalty of Rs. 6,00,000/-towards penalty on 3.04.2023, however the department has not permitted them to re-export the goods. In view of the decision in Ajay Kumar Gupta (supra) we have no hesitation in directing the department to allow the appellant to re-export the goods once they deposit the enhanced amount of penalty as directed in the impugned order. The importer company, namely M/s Bright Metal (India) Pvt. Ltd., and its Director, namely Sanjay Porwal may deposit the balance of the enhanced amount towards penalty under section 112 (a)(ii) and under section 114AA of the Act in terms of the impugned order within a period of three weeks and on such deposit being made, the department shall forthwith release the goods for the purpose of re-export.

29. We would now like to refer to the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Union of India versus Raj Grow Impex LLP – 2021 (377) ELT 145 (SC), which has been referred to both by the learned Counsel for the appellant as well as by the revenue. One of the issue considered was whether the exercise of discretion for absolute confiscation was justified. The Court while appreciating the relevant considerations and the principles for exercise of such discretion observed as :

"82. The sum and substance of the matter is that as regards the imports in question, the personal interests of the importers who made improper imports are pitted against the interests of national economy and more particularly, the interests of farmers. This factor alone is sufficient to find the direction in which discretion ought to be exercised in these matters. When personal business interests of importers clash with public interest, the former has to, obviously, give way to the latter. Further, not a lengthy discussion is required to say that, if excessive improperly imported peas/pulses are allowed to enter the country's market, the entire purpose of the notifications would be defeated. The discretion in the cases of present nature, involving far-reaching impact on national economy, cannot be exercised only with reference to the hardship suggested by the importers, who had made such improper imports only for personal gains. The imports in question suffer from the vices of breach of law as also lack of bona fide and the only proper exercise of discretion would be of absolute confiscation and ensuring that these tainted goods do not enter Indian markets. Imposition of penalty on such importers; and rather heavier penalty on those who have been able to get some part of goods released is, obviously, warranted.

84. Hence, on the facts and in the circumstances of the present case as noticed and dilated hereinabove, the discretion could only be for absolute confiscation with levy of penalty. At the most, an option for re-export could be given to the importers and that too, on payment of redemption fine and upon discharging other statutory obligations. This option we had already left open in the order dated 18-3-2021, passed during the hearing of these matters."

30. Considering the aforesaid decision, we are of the considered opinion that the exercise of discretion both by the adjudicating authority as well as by the appellate authority in not ordering absolute confiscation and allowing the importer to redeem the goods on payment of redemption fine and penalty with permission to re-export the goods is in consonance with the object and purpose with which the notification was issued, i.e. to dissuade commercial transactions with Pakistan byimposing extremely high penalty of 200%.

31. Suffice it to say, that Notification No 05/ 2019 dated 16.2.2019 in simple words provides that the goods imported having country of origin as Islamic Republic of Pakistan shall be classified under the new entry CTH 9806 0000 and BCD @200% shall be applicable on them. It nowhere says that such goods shall not be allowed to be re-exported. It is a settled principle of law that the words of the notification has to be read as they are and the contents thereof cannot be added or expanded by way of implication. Since there is no express bar for re-export of such goods in the notification, we uphold the impugned order allowing the appellant to re-export the goods.

Conclusion

32. We, therefore conclude that the country of origin of the containers in question is Pakistan and therefore, the same are classifiable under the Notification No.5/2019 as per CTH 980060000. Since the goods have been imported on the basis of fake PSIC, they are liable to be confiscated in terms of Section 111(m). In the event of confiscation, the redemption fine under Section 125 has been rightly levied. As the importer company and its director are responsible for the import having been made in violation of the statutory provisions and FTP 2015-2020, they are liable to penalty both under Section 112 (a)(ii) and also under 114 AA. We are also in agreement with the quantum of penalty levied on the importer company and its director under the impugned order. In view of our findings, the appeals filed by the importer company and its director are devoid of any merits. The consequential relief of re-export, in the facts of the case, needs to be affirmed on payment of redemption fine and also enhanced penalty both under Section 112 (a)(ii) and Section 114AA of the Act. Thus, the appeals filed by the Department also deserves to be dismissed.

33. We do not see any reason to interfere with the impugned order.

Accordingly, all the four appeals filed by the department as well as the appeals filed by the importer company and its director needs to be dismissed. The miscellaneous application and the applications for stay stand disposed of.

34. The appeals stand dismissed. [Order pronounced on 26.09.2023]

Date of Decision: 03/10/2023

1. Present is the common order for the aforementioned Customs Appeal No. 50241 of 2021 and cross objections filed by the respondent/assessee. The present appeal has been filed, pursuant to Review Order No. 116/2020-21 dated 04.01.2021, assailing the order-in-original bearing no. 83/2020 dated 05.10.2020 vide whichthe order of suspension of the respondent's licence was revoked.

2. The facts relevant for the present adjudication are as follows:

(i) There was an investigation report dated 28.07.2020 prepared by Nhava Sheva Preventive Unit (NSPU), Mumbai against an exporter M/s Fine Overseas having IECNo. BREPS9544C to have fraudulently availed IGST drawback and refund by using bogus manufacturing registration, GST invoice, where no GST duty was being paid to the exchequer but inadmissible refund was being claimed, on the basis of the said bogus invoices which were being disbursed equally to the FOB value of the shipping bill. It was revealed that the said exporterhaving declared IEC address as Barwalan, Shiv Shakti Ganga Mandir, Moradabad-

244001, had filed 08 shipping bills during the period August and September, 2018 with FOB amount of Rs. 2,10,14,834.8/- and claimed the IGST refund of Rs. 54,90,378/- for the export of goods i.e. "Clutch Plates & Glass Items, decor glass". The appellant also got it disbursed from the Government Exchequer.The said amount has been withdrawn to the current bank accounts of appellant with M/s Kotak Mahindra Bank Limited, Muradabad and M/s Allahabad Branch, Civil LinesMuradabad.

(ii) The exporter had two consignees/buyers based in UAE. Itwas also revealed that all the said 8 shipping bills were filed through the Customs Broker, namely, M/s Aradhya Exporter & Import Consultant Pvt. Ltd., the present respondent. The said customs broker was holding a customs broker licence bearing no. 33/2017 issued by New Delhi Customs valid upto 12.04.2027. However,based upon the said licence, he was also issued licence bearing no. 11/2439 to work in Mumbai Customs also. The Mumbai licence was also revoked vide order no. 15/202021 CBS dated 07.09.2020 and pursuant to the said order the Delhi Commissionerate also vide Order No. 73/2020 dated 15.09.2020 had suspended the CB licence No. 33/2017. Subsequently, vide Order-in-Original No.
83 dated 05.10.2020 the said suspension has been revoked and the same was reviewed vide the aforementioned review order. Pursuant to the said order, the impugned appeal has been filed by the Department with the prayer for setting aside the said Order-in-Originaldated 05.10.2020. The respondent CB have also filed theCross Objections in this appeal on 16 March, 2020 prayingfor the dismissal of the Department's appeal.

3. The arguments on both sides have been heard.

4. It is mentioned by Ld. Departmental representative (DR) that the present case is pursuant to a specific intelligence received by NSPU Mumbai about the specific exporter M/s Fine Overseas. When NSPU, Mumbai wrote a letter dated 18.1.2019 to CGST, Meerut requesting to conduct verifications and search at the office premises of the said exporter and also to serve the summons to the Director of the exporter asking him to appear before the NSPU, Mumbai. The Meerut Commissionerate vide letter dated 04.02.2019 responded thatthe exporter, M/s Fine Overseas, was not found existing at the given address and on inquiry about the said addressee, nobody could tell about the present whereabouts. Resultantly, the summons could not be served. It is impressed upon by Ld. DR that the said report was sufficient evidence proving the non-existence of the exporter at the address declared in IEC.

5. Learned DR further impressed upon that as per RBI remittance report, expected realization of exports by M/s Fine Overseas was Rs. 2,10,14,836/- against 8 shipping bills but the remittance of only41,575 USD against one shipping bill was realized, as per the RBI data integrated in ICES. It is impressed upon that these observationswere sufficient to hold that the exports vide the above mentioned shipping bills were made not to realise the export proceeds, but to claim IGST refund by using bogus GST registration, bogus GST invoices and IEC. The exporter had already fraudulently claimedIGST refund, despite the fact that the same was ineligible and moreso because there is non-realization of full amount of export proceeds from the foreign buyer. Investigations have sufficiently proved that the exporter firm was existing only on papers. It was created in the name of one Shri Sirajul Kallu, the IEC was obtained and the bank account was also opened in the name of said Shri Sirajul Kallu, who had never appeared before the authorities. One Shri Zoheb Moin, had appeared for the exporter as its authorized representative and twice his statement was recorded. It is submitted that he could not satisfactorily explain the findings of the investigation report. The customs broker also failed to appear except that his G-Card, Shri Vinay B. Rane appeared and got his statement recorded. Perusal of these statements is sufficient to show that the customs broker has failed to exercise the due diligence and to verify the correctness ofIEC and GSTN. The licence was rightly suspended vide order dated 15.09.2020. The suspension has wrongly been revoked vide the impugned order-in-original dated 05.10.2020. The said order is, accordingly, liable to be set aside for the ground mentioned in the Review Order dated 04.01.2021 and the grounds taken in the impugned appeal.

6. Learned authorized representative has relied upon followingauthorities;

(i) K M Ganatra [2016-TIOL-13-SC-CUS]

(ii) Millenium Express Cargo Pvt Ltd. Vs. Commissioner ofCustoms, New Delhi [2017 (346)ELT 471 (Tri.-Del)]

7. While rebutting these submissions, Ld. Counsel of the respondent CB mentioned that the exporter's authorized representative Shri Zoheb Moin/ the Manager appeared before the Mumbai Customs on 04.04.2019. He tendered his statement along with rent agreement of his firm's premises supplier's tax invoices, supplier's e-way bills and also stated that his firm is regularly filling GST returns.

8. As regard to the remittances, it is impressed upon that remittance of only one shipping bill has been realized. It is very much apparent from the statement of the G-Carg holder of CB Shri Vijay B. Rane that CB got KYC documents from the exporter. Hence, the order dated 15.09.2020 has wrongly held that CB has failed to comply with Regulation 10(e) and 10(n) of CBLR, 2018. Ld. Counsel impressed upon that based on both these statements, the suspension has rightly been revoked vide order dated 15.10.2021 order under challenge.

9. It is submitted that the report of Meerut GST about non-existence of the exporter is a false report which is evident from the letter of Meerut GST dated 25.10.2019 served to the exporter at the same address pursuant whereto exporter appeared before the customs on 04.04.2019. It is impressed upon that otherwise also customs broker is not liable to physically verify the exporter's premises. Learned counsel further brought to the notice the other evidences as were produced by the customs broker before the adjudicating authority during personal hearing as was held in terms ofRegulations 16 (2) of CBLR, 2018. These include the record of postal authorities of delivering customs broker's speed post to the exporter at the same address as mentioned in IEC. Also the proof from Blue Dart courier which picked up a parcel from the said exporter's addressand delivered the same to the customs broker's Delhi address. Otherwise also the respondent CB has taken PAN Card, bank account statement from the exporter which is sufficient KYC, compliance as prescribed in Board Circular No. 09/2010 dated 08.04.2010. It is thus impressed upon that the allegations that CB handled exports of non-existent exporter involving inadmissible IGST refund of morethan Rs. 54.90 lakhs was wrongly been made the basis for suspensionof the CB's licence by the Mumbai Commissionerate. The suspension has rightly been revoked for want of non-involvement of the customs broker who duly complied with the KYC norms and exercised requisite due diligence. Thus, it has rightly been held in the order under challenge that CB has not violated Regulation 10(e) and 10(n) of CBLR, 2018. While relying upon the decision of this Tribunal in the case of Commissioner of Custom, New Delhi vs. M/S CRM Logistics Pvt Ltd. vide Final Order No. 52053-52054/2021 dated03.12.2021 the appeal is prayed to be dismissed.

10. Having heard the rival contentions and perusing the entirerecord, we observe and hold as follows.

11. The question to be adjudicated is:

(i) whether the respondent customs broker M/s Aradhya Export has violated Regulation 10(e) and 10(n) of CBLR, 2018. To adjudicate the same we observe following to be admitted and apparent facts on record;

(ii) Respondent CB was granted licence initially by Delhi Customs under Regulation 9 of CBLR, 2018. Based on the said licence he was issued licence by Mumbai Customs also to function at Mumbai ports.

(iii) The CB has cleared 8 shipping bills for M/s Fine Overseas that too during a short period of August,2018 to September, 2018 with FOB amount of Rs. 2,10,14,836/-

(iv) The IGST refund of Rs. 54,90,378/- with respect to 8 shipping bills has already been claimed and availed from the Government Exchequer.

(v) Remittance of Rs. 41,575 USD against one shipping billwas realized as per RBI data integrated in ICES.

(vi) The exporter could not be served as was not found existing when summons were issued by the Meerut Commissionerate pursuant to the letter dated 18.01.2019 from NSPU Mumbai.

(vii) The director of the exporter Shri Sirajul Kallu hadnever ever appeared before the customs authority.One Shri Zoheb Moin represented himself as the manager of the exporter in Mumbai Customs who appeared on 04.04.2019 and got his statementrecorded on 04.04.2019 and on 12.07.2019 also.

(viii) The proprietor of the customs broker, namely, Shri Rajesh Gupta, also had never appeared either before the Mumbai Customs or before the Delhi Customs. It is only his G-carg holder, namely, Shri Vijay B. Rane who got his statement recorded.

(ix) The G-card holder, Shri Vijay B. Rane stated about receiving the documents of M/s Fine Exports from theiragent Shri Imran Khan who also did not appear before the authorities.

(x) In paragraph 14 of order dated 15.09.2020 it is also found recorded that Mr. Vijay B. Rane acknowledged that he was consciously and intentionally involved in assisting the impugned fraudulent exports in the name of bogus exporter firm to claim ineligible IGST refund amount.

(xi) Based on these apparent/ admitted facts that the licence of respondent CB was suspended vide order dated 15.09.2021 passed under Regulation 16(1) of CBLR, 2018. However, the said suspension has been revoked vide the order under challenge dated 05.10.2021 passed under Regulation 16(2) to CBLR, 2018.

Two obligations of CB are in question in the present case. The obligation under Regulation 10 (e) andobligation under 10(n). In view of above admitted facts Regulation vise findings of ours are as follows:

REGULATION 10 (e)

Regulation 10(e) reads as follows:

12. For the violation of this Regulation what is important to be brought on record is that there was certain information imparted by the customs broker to the exporter and that the said information was incorrect. We do not find from the above facts nor from the other record of the impugned appeal that there was any such information given by the CB to the exporter which was later found false. These observations are sufficient for us to hold that violation of Regulation 10(e) of CBLR, 2018 is not apparent against the CB. The original adjudicating authority in paragraph 25.1.1 of order under challenge has appreciated the reply of the customs broker where it was stated that CB has never imparted any incorrect information to the exporter nor even it is apparent from the statement of the G-card holder of CB that certain information was imparted to the exporter which was later found false. Once there is nothing on record to show not even in the show cause notice as to what information was imparted by CB to the exporter alleging violation of Regulation 10(e) has no meaning. Hence, we have no reason to differ from the findings of the order under challenge with respect to the alleged violation of 10(e) CBLR- 2018. In the cross objections filed by the respondent/assessee it has been conceded that there is no basis for alleged violation of Regulation 10(e) of CBLR. Findings to that extent in the order under challenge are confirmed.

Regulation 10(n) reads as follows:

10(n) verify correctness of importer Exporter Code (IC) number, goods and service tax identification number (GSTIN), identity of his client and functioning of his client at the declared address by using reliable, independent, authentic documents, data or information;

As per Board Circular No. 09/2010-Cus dated 08.04.2010 it is mandatory for the CHA to verify the genuineness of the Exporters/ firms at the declared address by using reliable, independent, authentic documents, data or information by submitting any twodocuments listed in the Annexure of the said Circular.

13. This regulation mandates a vigilant duty upon the customs broker that whosoever the exporter and importer reaches him for facilitating the respective import or export, he is supposed to verify the correctness of their import export code (IEC), Goods and Service Tax Identification number (GSTIN) along with other identity proofs. Additionally he has to ensure that the said importer/exporter is existing at a declared address. No doubt, there have been catena of decisions holding that customs broker is not liable to physically inspect the premises existing at the address given in IEC. But from the above quoted provision & circular, it is clear that the customs broker has to use reliable independent and authentic information to ascertain the correctness of the particulars of IEC more particularly address mentioned therein.

14. As apparent from the above noted facts of this case, it is coming as an admission of CB's, G-card holder about the address as mentioned in IEC that the premises of the exporter was never visited by the customs broker. The documents required for export were also used to be received from the agent of the exporter, namely, Shri Imran Khan. Exporter has never appeared. Said Shri Imran Khan hasnot been produced either by the exporter or by the CB. The onus wasof CB to prove that the exporter was conducting its business through Shri Imran Khan at the premises as mentioned in IEC or at least to prove that he has verified the authority of exporting firm in favour of Shri Imran Khan. Nothing has been produced by CB to prove the same except the postal receipts between the two addresses. Otherwise also merely because CB obtained requisite documents does not tantamount to fulfillment of requirement of the Regulations relating to the features to be verified. The CB has not even claimed that it verified the existence of importer except stating about receiving documents from one Shri Imran Khan. There is apparent violation of Regulation 10(n). We draw our support from the decision of this Tribunal in the case of Millenium Express Cargo Pvt Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs[2017 (346) ELT 471 (Tri.-Del.)].

15. Further, we observe that it is also coming from the apparent admission in the statement of G-card holder of CB that the CB was consciously and intentionally involved in assisting the fraudulent exports, to our opinion the delivery/ the service receipts from or at the address given in IEC has no meaning. It was more so required forCB to bring on record the cogent evidence when so named Shri ImranKhan failed to appear before the investigating agency and Adjudicating authorities. There is no evidence produced by CB to show that Shri Zoheb Moin was ever authorized by M/s Fine overseas or that CB himself was ever in touch with said Shri Zoheb Moin. The statement of G-card holder, as has been taken as basis by the adjudicating authority while revoking the suspension, is also silent about Shri Zoheb Moin to ever been the authorized person of the exporter. Exporter has also not appeared to acknowledge Shri Zoheb Moin as its authorized person. Nor any authority in favour of Shri Imran Khan has been produced by respondent CB. Mere courier receipts to & fro CB and exporter address are not sufficient to prove existence of exporter at the address mentioned in IEC. In such circumstances, communication from Meerut Commissionerate dated 04.02.2019 informing that M/s Fine Overseas is not found existing at the given address not even the director of the firm could be found as none could tell about the name of the units and summons could not be served stands unrebutted. In the absence of the cogent evidence by the CB to prove the verification done at his end as required under Regulation 10(n), we have no reason to differ from the response of the Meerut Commissionerate about M/s Fine Overseas to be a non-existing exporter.

16. We further observe that there is the sufficient admission in statement of Shri Vijay B. Rane that CB had never visited exporter office/ factory located at Muradabad. CB was operating from Delhi as well as from Mumbai, there is nothing to produce on record to show the need as to why an exporter in Muradabad is exporting through Mumbai ports instead of Delhi ports which are much in proximity to the place called Muradabad. Absence of such reasoning is alsosufficient for us to hold that the customs broker was consciously involved in alleged fraudulent exports which otherwise has beenadmitted by his G-Card holder as observed above.

17. The Adjudicating authority while recording the extract of the statement of Shri Zoheb Moin has recorded that M/s Fine Overseas isa merchant exporter who purchased goods from various traders M/s Sai Enterprises, M/s Sai Traders and M/s SD Trading but the authorityhas ignored that the details of these traders have not at all been produced either by the exporter or the custom broker. Paragraph 25.2.5 of the order under challenge is silent to this effect. Once an exporting firm is alleged as fake/ non-existent and the CB is also alleged to have connived, the onus was of CB respondent to bring on record all requisite details to prove a valid chain of supplier, importer,CB and consignees abroad. Absence of such details on recordsupports our opinion to hold that the adjudicating authority has wrongly exonerated the CB from allegations of violating of Regulation 10(n). From the above discussion, we hereby accept all the grounds raised by the respondent/assessee in their cross-objection. We, accordingly, hold that the order under challenge, to that extent, is liable to the set aside.

18. At this stage comes the question of proportionality of punishment as to whether the revocation of customs broker licence will be proportionate punishment to the alleged violation by said CB ofRegulation 10(n).

19. For the purpose it is foremost necessary to appreciate the role of custom broker. Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of K M Ganatra. Hon'ble High Court of Calcutta in the case of Welcome Air Express Pvt Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs. (Airport & Administration)[2022 (380) ELT 544 (Cal) while considering the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Shri Kamashki Agency has hold as follows:

"19. Thus, any contravention of the obligations cast on the CHA even without intent would be sufficient to invite upon the CHA the punishments listed in the Regulations.

20. In Shri Kamakshi Agency the role of the CHA had been set out in the following terms:- The very purpose of grantinga license to a person to act as Custom House Agent is for transacting any business relating to the entry or departure ofconveyance or the import or export of goods at any customs station. For that purpose, under Regulation 9 necessary examination is conducted to test the capability of the person in the matter of preparation of various documents, determination of value procedures for assessment and payment of duty, the extent to which he is conversant with the provisions of certain enactments etc.

Therefore, the grant of licence to act as a Custom House Agent has got a definite purpose and intent. On a reading of the Regulations relating to the grant of licence to act as Custom House Agent, it is seen that while Custom House Agent should be in a position to act as agent for the transaction of any business relating to the entry or departureof conveyance or the import or export of goods at anycustoms station, he should also ensure that he does not act as an Agent for carrying on certain illegal activities of any of the persons who avail his services as Custom House Agent.In such circumstances, the person playing the role of CustomHouse Agent has got greater responsibility. The very prescription that one should be conversant with the various procedures including the offences under the Customs Act to act as a Custom House Agent would show that while actingas Custom House Agent, he should not be a cause for violation of those provisions. A CHA cannot be permitted to misuse his position as a CHA by taking advantage of his access to the Department. The grant of licence to a person toact as Custom House Agent is to some extent to assist the Department with the various procedures such as scrutinizing the various documents to be presented in the course oftransaction of business for entry and exit conveyance or the import or export of the goods. In such circumstances, great confidence is reposed in a Custom House Agent. Any misuse of such position by the Custom House Agent will have far reaching consequences in the transaction of business by the Custom House officials.

20. In the present case from the above discussion it has come on record that M/s Fine Overseas is a firm existing only on the papers which was created in the name of Shri Sirajul Kallu. The exporter was not existing at the address mentioned in the IEC. The IEC and bank accounts were obtained for facilitating the fraudulent exports to avail ineligible IGST refund / drawbacks. From the RBI remittances report regarding accepted realization of exports by M/s Fine Overseas during the relevant period it has come on record that remittance of Rs. 41,575 USD against one shipping bill was realized as against an amount of Rs. 2,10,14,836/- for 8 shipping bills. To our opinion and in light of the unretracted admission of respondents/ CB's G-card Holder about involvement of CB in this transaction we hold that this isa case of not merely the violation of Regulation 10(n) but a case of fraud committed by CB and fraud vitiates everything. The cardinal principal which is enshrined in section 17 of the Limitation Act is that fraud nullifies everything.

21. This Tribunal in the case of M/s Swastic Cargo Agency Limited vs. Commissioner of custom 2023 (2) TM 677(Tribunal-Delhi) has held that this being a case of facilitating the fraudulent exports carried out and it being duly proved during the enquiry proceedings that the exporter were non-existent. CB isrightly held to have failed to verify the correctness of the document thereby violating its obligation as a customs broker even forfeiture of security deposit has rightly been ordered. In the light of the obligations conferred upon the CB by the Regulations CBLR, 2018 andthe proven fraudulent act and conduct of CB on record, we hold that suspension of his licence is quite a proportionate penalty. The order under challenge is upheld to this extent. In the light of the entire above discussion, holding that there is no violation of Regulation 10(e) has been set aside but violation of Regulation 10(n) of CBLR, 2018 by the appellant has been confirmed with confirmation that CB licence, in given circumstances is proportionate penalty. Hence, the appeal stands party allowed and cross-objections stands allowed,consequently licence stands suspended.

DR. RACHNA GUPTA

None is present for the appellant. Perusal of appeal shows that the appeal is pending adjudication since the Year 2018. The authorized counsel for the appellant had once appeared in the Year 2019. There is no presence for the appellant w.e.f. July, 2019. Several notices of hearing subsequently have also been served upon the appellant. On the last date of hearing i.e. 12.09.2023, the appellant was warned with the last opportunity to cause its presence. Today's absence and the above observed circumstances are sufficient for us to hold that the appellant is not interested in pursuing the impugned appeal. Accordingly, the same is ordered to be dismissed for want of prosecution as well as presence.

DATE OF HEARING : 03.08.2023. DATE OF DECISION : 04.10.2023.

RACHNA GUPTA

Present is an appeal assailing the order-in-original bearing No. 16/2016 dated 06.10.2016. The facts, in brief, relevant in the impugned adjudication are as follows :

"The Officers of Customs (Preventive) got a specific information about two Strong Glue Smearing Machines Model "CS 901" to have been lying in the godown of CELEBI, the custodian of import goods, which has been sold as unclaimed and un- cleared in e-auction held by CELEBI on 17 and 18 March 2015, that the machines had gold concealed therein. Pursuant to said information, the said officers, on 25.03.2015, detained both the said machines in CELEBI godown itself vide panchnama of the even date. The machines got unpacked after removal of upper metallic layer and were examined on 06.04.2015 in the presence of the independent witnesses. Some object wrapped in a black adhesive paper was found. It was reveled to be a yellow metal with the inscriptions "EMIRATES Gold, gold 1 kg., 999.9, EGO, Sl. No. 280748. From the other machine similarly wrapped three bars of yellow metal with similar inscriptions were recovered except, different Sr. No. i.e. 260767, 280762 and 270760 were found.

2. Six of metal bars got examined from the jewellery appraisal Mr. Ashok Jherwal who vide his report dated 06.04.2015 confirmed all the bars to be the foreign marked gold bars of 1 kg. each with 999.9 purity collectively valued at Rs. 1,45,99,200/-. The matter was subsequently investigated. Statements of all concerned from CELEBI and even from Air India and from M/s Planet Green Retail, Chattarpur, the consignee in both the airway bills for import were recorded. It was alleged that the six gold bars of foreign origin have been illicitly smuggled without any valid documents. Hence the Customs officers seized all six bars of 1 kg. each vide the panchnama dated 06.04.2015. The show cause notice bearing No. 86/5 dated 03.07.2015 under section 124 of Customs Act, 1962 was served upon the appellant proposing the confiscation of 6 kg. of gold valued at Rs. 1,45,99,200/-, the seizure of machines and of the packing material, which was used for concealing the aforesaid gold and the imposition of penalty upon the appellant. Three opportunities of personal hearing were being given to the appellant who failed to appear. Resultantly the impugned order was passed ex-parte confirming the said proposal.

3. Appellant vide letter dated 03.04.2018 conveyed to the Department about not receiving the copy of order-in-original and requested for the copy of the impugned order-in-original. The copy was made available to the appellant vide letter dated 03.04.2018. Being aggrieved of the said order, the appeal has been filed thereafter.

4. We have heard Ms. Saksham Garg, learned counsel for the appellant and Shri Rajesh Singh, learned authorized representative for the Department.

5. Learned counsel for the appellant has mentioned he had wrongly been roped into the present investigation, he has no connection with the impugned consignment. No document related to the impugned consignment is available with him. The appellant never received any communication as that of show cause notice or notices of personal hearing nor even the order-in-original. It is only after he received the notice of recovery that he applied for the copy of order under challenge and filed the present appeal thereafter. The ex-parte order is prayed to be set aside on this ground itself.

6. Per contra, learned departmental representative has mentioned that appellant had full knowledge of his IEC obtained from DGFT having the said address as was mentioned in IGM and Air Way Bill (AWB). He had never contested that IEC to have been obtained by others on forged KYC of the appellant. As per DGFT record, the IEC has been taken on the registered address mention the address from IEC in the year 2013, whereas the appellant in his statement dated 30.08.2018 has stated that he had left the premises in the year 2005. Based upon the said IEC department passed the opinion it is appellant only who is involved into the import of 6 kg. of gold that too getting it concealed into machines. Apparently none ever appeared in Customs House to claim the import of impugned AWB arrived at IGI import cargo. Consignee for both the consignments is apparently the appellant. It is impressed upon that the Adjudicating Authority has meticulously examined the evidence on record before holding the appellant guilty, penalizing him and before ordering the confiscation of seized machines and the gold which was found concealed in the said machines. Thus there is no infirmity. Learned Departmental Representative relied upon

7. Having heard the rival contentions, we observe and hold as follows :-

The present case is regarding smuggling of 6 kg. gold of purity 999.99 Carat concealed in a machine which was arrived vide Import General Manifest (IGM) No. 562341 dated 28.02.2015 AWB No. 098-76924635 & 098-76824661 from Hong Kong vide flight No. AI317 dated 28.02.2014. The consignee name on the IGM and AWB is M/s Planet Green Retail with address as Shop No. 6, Sharma Complex, Chattarpur, New Delhi – 110 074. This address admittedly belongs to appellant.

The investigation was conducted by Customs Dept. and it was found that the said address i.e. Shop No. 6, Sharma Complex, Chatterpur, New Delhi – 110 074 is the registered address in the IEC of the Appellant, M/s Planet Green Retail and the address of Shri Sumeet Jain – Prop. of the Appellant firm was found as 1480, Sector 21, Gurgaon, Haryana. However, both the said addresses were left by the Appellant in 2014 and 2015. It has came on record that the present address of the appellant is House No. 95, Aaron Ville, Sector – 45, Sohna Road Gurgaon ; Adjudicating Authority observed that as the shipments were not got cleared by the consignee a notice in terms of Section 48 of the Customs Act, 1962 for clearance of un-clear import consignment was issued by CELEBI on 27.03.2014 to consignee through courier M/s First Flight. No Bill of Entry for import of goods under AWB Nos. 098-76824661 and 098-7682635 was filed by the consignee; after receiving no response from consignee, the said two machines were placed for auction under lot No. 48775 and 49069 and e-auctioned on 17 & 18.03.2015 through bid. But Both the machines were detained from CELEBI warehouse on 25.03.2015 during examination whereof revealed the impugned 6 kg. gold allegedly the smuggled gold. At the premises (shop No. 6, Lower Ground Floor, Sharma Complex, Chattarpur, New Delhi – 110 074) of consignee as shown in AWB5 no firm was found in existence in the name & Style of M/s Planet Green Retail. Smt. Indu Sharma was found to be the owner of said property. The son of the owner told that the premises No. 1480, Sector 21, Gurgaon, Haryana belonged to Shri R.K. Grover, resident of C-427, 1st Floor, C.R. Park, New Delhi and the said owner did not rent out the premises of Sh. Sumeet Jain the Prop. of appellant at any time.

8. The above facts it stands clear that the circumstances under which the said six gold bars each weighing 1 kg. were recovered from two machines imported in the name of fictitious and non-existing firm i.e. M/s Planet Green Retail and that none came to claim the said consignment despite that the CELEBI issued a notice for hearing are suo-moto sufficient to accept that the gold has been smuggled getting concealed in two machines imported from Hong Kong.

9. It is apparent from the statement of Manager CELEBI dated 22.04.2015 that he looked after the disposal of un-claimed and un-cleared consignment of cargo; that their system automatically generated the report of un-claimed and un-cleared cargo after 30 days and they immediately on receipt of list of un-claimed and un-cleared cargo sent a notice to the consignee, airline, consolidator and customs disposal section; that if no reply was received within the stipulated period of the notice, an advertisement is given in the daily newspaper under Section 48 of the Customs Act, 1962 and if no claimant came forward to claim the goods, the goods were then got valued from the government approved valuer. After valuation, the list of goods less than one year old was sent to Customs for approval. Port clearance from Customs, goods were put for disposal through e- auction.

10. In the present case the goods detained by the Customs (Preventive) arrived at the Air Cargo (Import) on 28.02.2014 by Air India Flight No. AI-317 from Hong Kong and notice for clearance of un-cleared Import consignment was issued on 27.03.2014 to M/s Planet Green Retail, Lower Ground Floor, Shop No. 6, Sharma Complex, Chattarpur, New Delhi – 110 074 through courier M/s First Flight vide receipt no. 0991B0037570 and 0991B0037571 both dated 28.03.2014 respectively. He also stated that the machines mentioned in Panchnama dated 06.04.2015 were same as mentioned in the list of e-auction and which were taken into custody from the disposal godown of CELEBI Air India Operation Manager provided a photocopy of the manifest dated 28.02.2015 showing that the consignor in both the AWB booked from Hong Kong to New Delhi was M/s Power House International, Ground Floor, Yuet Kwong Buildings, 34, Fui Kok Str., Isuen Wan, Hong Kong and consignee in both the AWBs was M/s Planet Green Retail, Lower Ground Floor, Shop No. 6, Sharma Complex, Chattarpur, New Delhi – 110 074 and that the value of the consignment was declared as "NVD means No value declared.

11. We observe that the appellant did not respond to the said CELEBI notice it did not respond to the show cause notice issued under Section 124 the appellant also fail to respond three notices of personal hearing where after the impugned order was passed ex-parte.

12. We also observe that the recovery notice which is mentioned to be a source of knowledge to the appellant about the impugned proceedings has also been issued on the same address on which were issued the earlier notices including the show cause notice. We observe that during investigation it was revealed that the address mentioned on both AWB is of the premises belonged to one Mrs. Indu Sharma Statement of Shri Saurabh Sharma son of Mrs. Indu Sharma was recorded under section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962 on 09.06.2015 in which he, interalia, stated that said shop was rented out to Shri Sumeet Jain S/o Shri S.C. Jain, resident of 1480 Sector 21, Gurgaon from October 2013 to May 2014 which belonged to Shri R.K. Grover, resident of C-427, 1st Floor, C.R. Park, New Delhi who vide his statement dated 10.06.2015 stated that he was owner of premises 1480, Sector 21, Gurgaon. Shri Subhash Jain was his tenant at his property 1480, Sector 21, Gurgoan from 2003- 2006.

13. These facts when seen with IEC it becomes clear that the registered person of that IEC i.e. Shri Sumeet Jain the Proprietor of present appellant is the only person connected to the impugned AWB. He has not produced any evidence to show that the IEC has been forged in his name without his knowledge. He has not produced any document.

14. Learned Departmental Representative has also placed on record the communication received from Assistant Commissioner of Customs review dated 17.12.2019 showing that the department has made sufficient compliance of Section 123 of Customs Act, 1962. We also observe in paragraph 25 of the order under challenge that the Adjudicating Authority has meticulously summarized the grounds for order absolute confiscation of the gold and the packing machines seized and to order penalty on the appellant. We do not have any reason to differ from those findings. Resultantly we hereby upheld the said order. Consequent thereto, the appeal stands dismissed.

BINU TAMTA:

Separate appeals have been filed by M/s. Globe Impex and Shri Gagan Upal challenging the order-in-appeal no.CC(A)CUS/D-II/Import/ICD/TKD/119- 120/2023-24 dated 2.6.2023, whereby the Commissioner (Appeals) rejected the appeals filed by the importer and upheld the Order-in-Original classifying the products under CTH 08028090 and rejected the classification declared by the importer under 21069030 as "scented sweet supari – Betel Nut".

2. The facts of the case are that the importer had filed bill of entryno.9145367 dated 16.06.2022 for clearance of the goods declared as "Scented Sweet Supari – Betel Nut product known as supari (cutting menthol supari)" under CTH 21069030 at USD 1.5 per kg (Rs.117.75/- per kg. approx.), whereasDGFT vide Notification No.20/2015-20 dated 25.07.2018, as amended, has fixeda Minimum Import Price of Rs.251/- per kg. for Areca Nuts. The said consignment was investigated on the ground that the importer had obtained an advance ruling from the Customs Authority for Advance Ruling, New Delhi (CAAR) regarding classification of betel nut items, whereas self-declaration in the said Bill of Entry was different from the ruling pronounced in CAAR. It was found that the appellant had claimed benefit under the Notification No.96/2008 dated 13.08.2008 providing for 100% exemption from BCD in respect of goods falling under Heading 2106, whereas the exemption benefit under the said notification in respect of the goods falling under CTH 080280 was only 60% of BCD. As M/s. Globe Impex had obtained an Advance Ruling under Section 28 H of the Customs Act, 1962 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act"), the correct classification of the goods was held to be under CTH 080280.

3. In the course of enquiry the statement of Shri Gagan Uppal was recorded, wherein stated that there are two firms with the same name M/s Globe Impex having separate registration of GST, Pan cards and have different IECs. However, both are managed and controlled by Shri Gagan Uppal. He explained the process wherein the product is made after cutting the supari and adding menthol and saccharin.

4. The sample of the product was sent for testing and the report by FSSAI dated 14.07.2022 showed presence of fungus hyphae and moisture percentage of 9.14% and, therefore, the sample was held to be unsafe under section 3 (1) (zz) (x) of the FSSAI Act, 2006. The second report by FSSAI dated 30.08.22 although stated that the sample of Betel Nut pieces scented and sweet does not contravene the standard laid down under the Food Safety and Standard Regulations, 2011 but it does not mention the microscopic examination (for fungal hyphae). Further, there are two reports by CRCL dated 18.10.22 and 26.12.2022, which indicate only the presence of menthol and also say that the goods do not meet the criteria of safety and standards for Betel Nut as perFSSR, 2011.

5. As the appellant was found to have mis-declared the description and classification of the goods, show cause notice dated 09.12.2022 was issued to the appellant as to why the declared classification of the goods imported videbill of entry no. 9145 367 dated 16.06.2022 and 7724532 dated 3.3.2022 underCTH 2106 30 should not be rejected and the same should be reclassified under sub-heading 08028090 and consequently, the benefit of the exemption notification No. 96/2008 should not be rejected and the differential duty of Rs 46,95,133/ should not be recovered from the importer under section 28A (4)of the Act and in respect of BE dated 3.3.2022 along with section 28 AA. Also the confiscation of the goods under section 111 (d), 111(m) and 111(o) and penaltyunder section 112 (a) (ii) and 114A should not be imposed. On adjudication, theproposal in the show cause notice was affirmed. The option to redeem thegoods was not granted to the appellant as they did not conform to the FSSAI standards. Challenging the adjudication order dated 27.2.2023 in appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals), the same was affirmed vide order dated 2.06.2023. Hence the present appeal has been filed by the appellant before this Tribunal.

6. We have heard the learned Counsel for the appellant and also the Authorised Representative for the Revenue and have perused the records.

7. The case of the appellant is that the goods in question are 'Scented Sweet Supari'. He relied upon the test report dated 10.10.2022 from AGSS Analytical and Research Lab Private Limited, Delhi, which shows presence of menthol and saccharine and also absence of Insect Infested Units and Mould Infestation. He also relied upon the CRCL report on the presence of sweetening agent and that the sample is a preparation of betel nut. He seriously refuted theapplicability of the Advance Ruling sought by M/s Globe Impex on the ground that the same was a different entity, i.e. the proprietorship firm and it was not in respect of the product in question. The Counsel also referred to Section 28 J to say that the Advance Ruling is not applicable as there is change in law, referring to the Circular issued after the Advance Ruling that the product in question falls under Chapter 21 and also the DRI alert circular. The learned Counsel sought to distinguish the decision of the Apex Court in Crane Betel Nut Powder Works Vs Commissioner of Customs, Tirupathi - 2007 (210) ELT 171 (SC) as the same was rendered in the context of Central Exciselaw and the provisions were amended in the year 2009 by including Note 6 to chapter 21 of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 to declare certain processes in respect of betel nut, as processes of manufacture and also amendment made in chapter 8 and hence, the judgement in the case of Crane Betel Nut (supra) isnot relevant. The learned Counsel for the appellant has relied on the Circular No. 163/19/2021-GST dated 06.10.2021 issued by CBIC on the applicability of GST on scented sweet supari and flavoured and coated elaichi, whereby they were classified under Tariff Item 2106 9030 as "Betal Nut product" known as "Supari" and the same is applicable to Customs in as much as IGST is payableon the imported goods in terms of Section 3(7) of Customs Tariff Act, 1975. Referring to the Rules of Interpretation, the learned Counsel submitted that specific entry in Chapter 2106 under T.I.9030 clearly provides for classificationof the item in question therein. In terms of Rule 1 itself classification stands determined under T.I. 2106 9030 and going by Rule 3, since 2106 9030 occurslast in numerical order, classification would be preferred under Tarrif Item 2106 9030 instead of Chapter 8. Lastly, the learned Counsel submitted that the demand against the previous consignment under bill of entry no.7724 532 dated3.03.2022 is incorrect as it was allowed after NOC was given by the SIIB and the appellant had paid the Customs duty as assessed and if the department is aggrieved, the same should have been reviewed under section 129D(2) of the Customs Act, 1962 and an appeal should have been filed before the Commissioner (Appeals). Reliance was placed on the decision in ITC Ltd. Vs Commissioner of Central Excise, Kolkatta - 2019 (368) ELT 216 (SC), Axiom Cordages Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Nhava Sheva-II 2020 (9)TMI 478 (CESTAT-Mumbai) and Shri Rumen Dey Vs. Commissioner Customs (PREV.), Shillong - 2023 (7) TMI 70 (CESTAT-Kolkata).

8. The stand of the Revenue is that Areca Nuts are covered under CTH 080280 and further subheadings include whole / split /ground / others. They referred to Note 3 of Chapter 8 which provides that even if nuts are partially rehydrated or treated for preservation or stabilization and if vegetable oil or glucose syrup is added to improve or maintain its appearance and yet the goodsretain the character of dried fruits and nuts, the same would be classifiable under this Chapter. In support of their contention that areca nuts in question do not fall in Chapter 21 as claimed by the appellant, they relied on Supplementary Notes to Chapter 21, which suggests that betel nut preparation resulting in new or distinct product are covered under this chapter and the addition of ingredients like cardamom, copra or menthol does not affect its classification. In so far as the test reports were concerned, the majority of themindicate absence of saccharine and do not meet the standards for betel nuts as per FSSR 2011 and, therefore, the goods are liable for absolute confiscation.The Revenue also relied on the decision of the Apex Court in Crane Betel Nut Powder Works Vs. Commissioner Customs, Tirupati - 2007 (210) ELT 171 (SC), followed by the Tribunal in M/s Azam Laminators Pvt. Vs. Commissioner – 2019 (367) ELT A-22 (Tribunal-Madras). On Advance Ruling obtained in respect of 'flavoured supari' classified under CTH 0802 though related to a different firm, however, the same was owned by Shri GaganUppal and, therefore, the principles laid down therein would also apply to the goods in question, which are identical.

9. The main issue for our consideration is whether the goods "Scented Sweet Supari "is classifible under CTH 2106 9030 as claimed by the importer orunder CTH 08028090, as per the Department and, therefore, would be entitle to the exemption of 100% BCD by virtue of the Notification No. 96 of 2008 or is entitle to exemption to only 60% BCD by virtue of the classification by the Revenue.

10. Before considering the legal submissions made on behalf of both the parties, it is appropriate that the relevant entries along with the relied upon Chapter Notes and the HSN are reproduced below :-

Chapter 8 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975:

0802 Other Nuts, Fresh or Dried, whether or notShelled or peeled

080280	--	Areca nuts:
08028010	--	Whole
08028020	--	Split
08028030	--	Ground
08028090	--	Other

3. Dried fruit or dried nuts of this Chapter may be partially rehydrated, or treated for the following purposes:-

(a) For additional preservation or stabilization (for example, by moderate heat treatment, sulphuring, the addition ofsorbic acid or potassium sorbate);

(b) To improve or maintain their appearance (for example, by the addition of vegetable oil or small quantities of glucose syrup), provided that they retain the character of dried fruit ordried nuts."

HSN Explanatory Notes – Chapter 8

"This head also covers areca (betel) nuts used chiefly as a masticatory, cola (kola) nuts used both as a masticatory and as a base in the manufacture of beverages, and an edible, nutlike, spiny-angled fruit."

Chapter 21 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975:

"Chapter 21 of the Customs Tariff covers goods viz. miscellaneous edible preparations.

2106	Food preparation not elsewhere specified or included.
2106 90 30	Betel Nut product known as Supari.

Supplementary Notes:

1. In this Chapter "Pan Masala" means any preparation containing betel nuts and anyone or more of the following ingredients, namely: lime, katha (catechue) and tobacco whether or not containing any other ingredient, such as cardamom, copra or menthol.

2. In this Chapter "Betel Nut product known as Supari"means any preparation containing Betal Nuts, but not containing any one or ore of the following ingredients, namely;lime, katha an tobacco whether or not containing any other ingredients, such as cardamom, copra or methanol."

11. From Note 3 of Chapter 8, it is clear that if the areca nuts are even partially rehydrated or treated for preservation or stabilization and even if vegetable oil or glucose syrup is added to improve or maintain its appearance the goods retain the character of dried fruits and nuts and hence, the same are classified under this chapter. Also the cutting / crushing / splitting of areca nuts do not change the basic character of betel nuts as these are only basic processes of enhancing the presentation and addition of flavour or sweetening of betel nuts with essential or non-essential oils, menthol, sweetening agents and do not result in any new and distinct product to be classified elsewhere. In the present case, as per the statement of Shri Gagan Uppal no further processes have been undertaken on the raw betel nuts or areca nuts apart from mere breaking / splitting /cutting them and adding menthol.

12. On the contrary, if we see the very heading of Chapter 21, it speaks of "Food preparation not elsewhere specified or included", which denotes exclusionof areca nuts even if they are in the form of Flavoured Supari, from this Chapter. From Supplementary Note 2 to Chapter 21, we find that this Chapter covers 'Betel Nut product known as Supari' which means any preparationcontaining betel nuts and as noticed above the process involved herein is only ofbreaking /cutting /splitting of areca nuts and thereafter, only menthol is added. There is no concept of preparation in the process referred to by the appellant itself and ,therefore, the goods proposed to be imported are not preparation. They are not products of betel nuts but are only betel nuts. On that basis itself,the same are not classifiable under Chapter 21.

13. In view of our discussion regarding the two entries, it would be advisableto refer the judgements, wherein the legal position as to the classification of theproduct in question has been dealt with.

14. The first judgement on the point is M/s Crane Betel Nut Powder Works (supra), where the assessee was engaged in marketing betel nuts in different sizes after processing them by adding essential or non essential oils, menthol, sweetening agent etc. and were clearing them under CTH 2107,however they filed a revised classification under sub-heading 080100contending that the crushing of Betel nuts into smaller pieces and sweetening the cut pieces did not amount to manufacture in view of the fact that mere crushing of betel nuts into smaller pieces did not bring into existence a different commodity, which had a distinct character of its own. The Apex Court observed that the process of manufacture employed by the appellant company did not change the nature of the end product, which in the words of The Tribunal, was that in the end product "the betel nut remains the betel nut". Though the said judgement of the Apex Court was rendered in the context of manufactureunder the central excise, however, the principle laid down therein is still relevant for the present controversy and the same have been followed by the Tribunal in various decisions. The Tribunal in the case of Azam Laminates Pvt Ltd Vs Commissioner (supra) dealt with the issue whether scented betel nut manufactured by cracking of dried betel nut into small pieces and, thereafter, gently heating with adding vanaspati oil and flavouring agents and marketing in small pouches is classified under 8029019 of CET and not under Tariff Item 21069030 as Supari following the decision of the Apex Court in Crane Betel Nut Powder Works (supra).

15. Subsequently, the Chennai Bench in S.T. Enterprises Vs Commissioner of Customs, Chennai 2021 (378) ELT 514, following the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Crane Betel Nut Powder Works (supra), Satnam Overseas Vs Commissioner 2015 (318) ELT 538 (S.C.) and Servo-Med Industries Pvt Ltd Vs Commissioner 2015 (319) ELT 578 (S.C.) decided the issue of classification of betel nut (areca nut) 'whole' under Tariff Item 08028010 of CTA, 1975, referring to the Chapter Notes, it was observed as :

"14. From above Note 3, it can be seen that even if some stage of drying or rehydrating or treatment is done for preservation/stabilization or maintaining the appearance, as long as the nuts retain the character of dried nuts, they fall under Chapter 8. The Counsel for appellants had placed before us samples of dried whole betel nut (without husks) aswell as sample of the imported goods. We were able to see that the imported goods are also whole but more dried.

15. Ld. Counsel for appellants has referred to Chapter Note 2 of Chapter 21 to strongly contend that the goods would fall under CTH 2106 90 30. From the table reproduced earlier, it can be seen that CTH 2106 90 30 takes in the items "betelnut product known as supari". To be more clear what is described therein is 'betel nut product' and not betel nut 'whole' as seen in Chapter 8. Chapter Note 2 of Chapter 21 also speaks about 'betel nut product' and not betel nut 'whole'. As per Chapter Note 2 of Chapter 21 'betel nut product' means any preparation containing betel nut, but not containing lime, katha and tobacco. It may or may not contain cardamom, copra, or menthol. The appellants do not have a case that their goods contain cardamom, copra or menthol or any additives. Counsel for appellants has made much effort to contend that after boiling though 'whole' the betel nut becomes 'betel nut product'. In our view, since betel nut has retained its character of being whole and itdoes not contain any other ingredients such as cardamom, copra or menthol, it cannot be said that impugned goods are 'preparations containing betel nut' or 'betel nut product/supari' so as to fall under Tariff Heading 2106 90
30. (Emphasis laid)."

16. The Chennai Bench in S. T. Enterprises (supra) rejected the contention of the appellant with reference to the decision of the Apex Court in Crane BetelNut Powder Works (supra) that subsequent to the said judgement, an amendment was introduced in Chapter 21, whereby Supplementary Note 2 to Chapter 21 was introduced and also the product known as 'Supari' is excluded from Chapter 8 and, therefore, the judgement of the Apex Court would not haveany bearing as on date on the issue of classification. The Tribunal took the view that even after such amendment the position of law settled by the Apex Court inCrane Betel Nut (supra) would still be applicable, inter-alia observing :

".....The amendment relied upon by the appellants only clarified what 'supari' would be and as such would not be of much help in deciding the classification of impugned goods. Moreover , it can be seen that the impugnedproducts in the case of Crane Betel Nut Powder Works (supra) have undergone much more elaborate processes like cutting into different sizes; adding essential /non- essential oils, menthol, sweetening agents etc. Even whenthe physical appearance undergoes a change, Apex Court held that the processes undertaken do not amount to manufacture "

17. The decision of the Tribunal in S.T Enterprises (supra) has been affirmed by the Apex Court by dismissing the appeal filed by the party, in Ayush Business Overseas Vs. Commissioner - 2021 (378) ELT A142.

18. We may now deal with the submissions made by the importer relying on the CBIC Circular No. 163/19/2021 dated 6.10.2021 to say that IGST is payableon the imported goods in terms of section 3 (7) of Customs Tariff Act, 1975. On the face of it, the said Circular provides for, " Applicability of GST on scented sweet Supari and flavoured and coated elaichi " and would, therefore, not be applicable to the issue at hand. Section 3 of CTA provides for levy of additional duty equal to excise duty, sales tax, local taxes and other charges and clause 7 thereof reads as :

"Section 3(7) -- Any article which is imported into India shall, in addition, be liable to integrated tax at such rate,not exceeding forty per cent. as is leviable under section 5of the Integrated Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017 on alike article on its supply in India, on the value of the imported article as determined under sub-section (8) [9][or sub-section (8A), as the case may be".

The provisions of section 3(7) of CTA does not support the case of the appellant as put forth by him and hence the applicability of the Circular No.163 /19 /2021
– GST dated 6.10.2021 is not sustainable in the present case.

19. On going through the Alert Circular No. 4 of 2022 dated 25.08.2022 issuedby DRI, referred to by the learned Counsel for the appellant, we find that the same has been issued to overcome mis-declaration and mis-classification of areca nuts, which were being imported through several ports under Chapter 21 so as to pay customs duty at lesser rates and to avoid floor price restrictions imposed by DGFT vide notification No. 20/ 2015-2020 dated 25.07.2018 and in that backdrop, the field department was sensitized and asked to exercise due diligence while clearing the import of areca nuts. Referring to the decision of the Supreme Court in M/s Ayush Business Overseas Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Supra), it was stated that only the "preparations of betel nuts" would fall under Chapter

21 and the goods imported as "boiled areca nut" wouldmerit classification under Chapter 8 of the Customs Tariff. We do not find that the said Circular, in any manner, supports the importer and, therefore, on that basis, no reliance can be placed in favor of the appellant.

20. We now deal with the submission relating to the earlier Bill of Entry dated3.03.2022, which according to the appellant, has been assessed and duty is paid. We do not agree with the submissions made by the learned Counsel forthe appellant and we are fully supported by the decision of the Apex Court in ITC Ltd – 2019 (368) ELT 216 (SC), where it accepted the principle laid down in their earlier decision in Priya Blue Industries Ltd Vs. Commissionerof Customs (Prev), that the order of assessment can be reviewed under Section 28 and/ or modified in an appeal. Here the department has exercised this option by issuing show cause notice under Section 28 of the Customs Act. The relevant provisions of section 28 (4) of the Customs Act as well as the relevant paragraph of the judgement in I.T.C. Limited (supra) are quoted below:

"Section 28 (4) -- Where any duty has not been levied or has been short-levied or erroneously refunded, or interest payable has not been paid, part-paid or erroneously refunded, by reason of,—

(a) collusion; or

(b) any wilful mis-statement; or

(c) suppression of facts,

by the importer or the exporter or the agent or employee of the importer or exporter, the proper officer shall, within five years fromthe relevant date, serve notice on the person chargeable with duty or interest which has not been so levied or which has been so short-levied or short-paid or to whom the refund has erroneously been made, requiring him to show cause why he should not paythe amount specified in the notice."

Para 40 of the ITC Ltd. reads as :-

(2005) 10 SCC 433, the Court considered unamended provisionof Section 27 of the Customs Act and a similar submission was raised which was rejected by this Court observing that so long as the order of assessment stands, the duty would be payable as per that order of assessment. This Court has observed thus :

"6. We are unable to accept this submission. Just such a contention has been negatived by this Court in Flock(India) case (2000) 6 SCC 650. Once an order of assessment is passed the duty would be payable as perthat order. Unless that order of assessment has been reviewed under Section 28 and/or modified in an appeal, that order stands. So long as the order ofassessment stands the duty would be payable as per that order of assessment. A refund claim is not an appeal proceeding. The officer considering a refund claim cannot sit in appeal over an assessment made by a competent officer. The officer considering the refund claim cannot also review an assessment order."

The above findings squarely covers the issuance of show cause notice dated 9.12.2022 under section 28(4) read with section 124 of the Customs Act with reference to the bills of entry dated 3.03.2022 and 16.06.2022.

21. Both the sides have referred to various Advance Rulings to support the classification, as claimed by them. We are conscious of the principle of law that the Advance Ruling is binding on the respective parties therein with reference tothe product concerned and cannot be treated as a binding precedent for future cases. However, on examining the Advance Ruling relied upon by the Revenue in respect of the same product, i. e., " Flavoured Supari "classified under CTH 0802, we are of the view that it not only relates to identical goods and though itis in respect of a different company, M/s. Globe Impex being a proprietorship company owned by Shri Gagan Uppal and now it is a partnership company i.e., M/s. Globe Impex, however, the fact is that both the companies not only have the same 'name', M/s Globe Impex, where Shri Gagan Uppal is one of the partners and is responsible for the day-to-day working of the company and is, therefore, fully aware of the classification of the goods in terms of the Advance Ruling sought by him as the Proprietor of the company. The contention of the appellant is limited that the Advance Ruling had been sought by the proprietorship company and is, therefore, not binding on the partnership company, which is a distinct entity but he has nowhere stated as to how the product classified under the Advance Ruling was distinct from the presentgoods. Hence, in the present facts and circumstances, the classification of Flavoured Supari under CTH 0802, as held in the Advance Ruling, would equally apply in the present case.

CONCLUSION

22. The goods imported by the appellant are neither product of betel nut nor preparation containing betel nut but are only betel nuts in cut pieces and are excluded from Chapter Heading 2106 and the same are classifiable under chapter Heading 0802. Consequently, the benefit of Notification No 96/2008 dated 13.8.2008 of 100% exemption from BCD is not available to the appellant.Similarly, in terms of Notification No.20/2015-2020 dated 25.07.2018, the import of areca nuts at less than the minimum price of Rs.251/- per kg. are prohibited goods. Moreover, in view of the test reports (referred above) the areca nuts imported are unsafe according to Section 3 (1)(zz)(x) of FSS Act, 2006 and as they do not conform to the standards prescribed under Food Safety and Standard Regulations, 2011, the same are liable for absoluteconfiscation under Section 111(d), 111(m) and 111(o) of the Act. Consequently,the appellant is liable to pay the differential duty of Rs.46,95,133/- alongwith interest.

23. We agree with the Adjudicating Authority that the appellant had attempted to import areca nuts in guise of betel nut products by mis-declaring and mis-classifying under Chapter 21 so as to avail the benefit of 100% exemption of BCD and thereby evade payment of legitimate customs duty. In view thereof, M/s. Globe Impex and also Shri Gagan Uppal are liable to penalty under Section 112(a)(i) of the Act.

24. We find no reason to interfere with the decision arrived at by the authorities below and the same deserves to be affirmed. Accordingly, the appeals stand dismissed.

Date of Hearing: 03/08/2023 Date of Decision: 10.10.2023

DR.RACHNA GUPTA:

Present appeal is arising out of Order-in-Original No.25/2017 dated 23.11.2017.

2. The brief facts of the case are as follows:

3. M/s.Pico Trading Co. had filed Bill of Entry No.028721 dated 27.10.2011 for the clearance of goods imported in container No.CLHU 8612196. The goods stuffed in different containers were declared as steep glass bowl and deep cut glass bowl with declared valued of Rs.8,12,745.6/- Based on specific intelligence, the container was examined on 02.11.2011/03.11.2011, in the presence of independent witnesses/panchas and Shri Sanjay Arora, proprietor M/s.Pico Trading Co. Representative of CHA, namely, Shri Nandan of Excellent Cargo was also initially present. In addition to declared products, there were found 45 other different kinds of branded products including ladies purses, branded liquor etc., found, the details of which were mentioned in the annexure to panchnama prepared during the said examination. The total value was assessed at Rs.3,24,93,750/-. Since contents of the container were highly misdeclared and undervalued, the examining officer seized the goods of the said container/alongwith the container and handed over the same to the Manager of Container Corporation of India Limited[1](hereinafter referred as CONCOR).

4. After recording the statements of all concerned including that of proprietor of importer, Shipping line personnel, CHA and his representative, officers of CONCOR, overseas enquiries were also made in the matter. Based thereupon show cause notice bearing C.No.VIII/ICD/10/TKD/SHB-

Imp/Inv/31 Cont./111/2012/Pt.III/25266 dated 5.12.2015 was served upon 17 noticees including CONCOR, the present appellant. It has been proposed that the Customs duty amounting to Rs.1,00,36,067/- be recovered from CONCOR in terms section 45 of Customs Act, 1962[2] read with Regulation 6 of Handling of Cargo in Customs Area Regulations,2009[3] (herein after referred as HCCAR,2009) Penalty was also proposed to be imposed on the appellant. With respect to other co-noticees, there were respective several proposals in the show cause notice. The proposal qua appellant has been confirmed vide order under challenge Order-in-Original bearing No.25/2017 dated 23.11.2017. Being aggrieved, the appellant is before this Tribunal.

5. We have heard Shri Usman Khan, ld. Advocate for the appellant and Shri Nagendra Yadav, ld. DR for the Department.

6. It is submitted on behalf of Appellant that the Appellant is a public sector undertaking under administrative control of Ministry of Railways, Government of India, which is engaged in the business of providing Inland transportation of containers having larger undertaking inland container depot[4]. CONCOR, the appellant is the custodian of all goods lying in the import shed Area in terms of section 45 of Customs Act, 1962.

7. While challenging order, in question, ld.Counsel has mentioned that ld. Commissioner has failed to take note of the fact that the appellant is not a party to the panchnama and security of container was the responsibility of Central Industrial Security Force[5] whose personnel were deployed in the ICD Tughlakabad[6]. The appellant had no knowledge of the contents of the container No.CLHU 8612196. Panchnama dated 2.11.2011 does not bear signature of any one on behalf of the CONCOR, as is apparent from the two panchnamas dated 2.11.2011 and 3.11.2011. The appellant's insurance surveyor signed panchnama only on 15.12.2012. The appellant had engaged highly skilled security force i.e. CISF for guarding the area. Once container got handed over to said CISF, its safety and security becomes the duty of CISF. Hence it is CISF who should be held responsible for the alleged movement of container from its original location to another location, without any proper authorization and also for customs' seal to have been found tampered with. In the given circumstance, the responsibility cannot be fastened on CONCUR just for being the custodian under section 45 of Customs Act, 1962.

8. Ld. Counsel also mentioned that the matter was investigated by police and enquiry held by DIG Commissioner and nothing was found against CONCOR. The order under challenge is set aside accordingly prayed to be set aside and appeal is prayed to be allowed.

9. While rebutting the submissions made on behalf of appellant, ld.DR has mentioned that examination of the container No.CLHU 8612196 and contents therein was conducted in the presence of independent witnesses with the representatives of all concerned i.e. the representative from shippingline of CHA of importer. A proper inventory of goods found stuffed into the container was prepared in their presence. The contents were found contrary to the declarations in Bill of Entry. Even second time examination of the said container on 15.10.2012 when customer's seal was found tampered, was also done in presence of all the above mentioned persons in the premises of appellant itself. Such proceedings were sufficient to fix the liability of custodian, CONCOR under Regulation 6 HCCAR,2009 and section 45 of Customs Act, 1962. It is impressed upon that the presence of custodian in examination proceeding is not mandatory except where there is a prior indication or doubt about pilferage of goods. It is brought to the notice that joint survey was conducted in the presence of surveyor of the appellant when seal on the container was found tampered/altered in unauthorized manner and container was found shifted from the original location without permission from proper officer. Till this stage there was no indication about any pilferage from the said container. The goods were found pilfered after the second time examination. However, on being asked the reason for replacement/tampered, customs seal on the container, the appellant not only showed ignorance, but tried to shift their responsibility upon the security agency i.e. CISF, despite statutory mandate of section 45 of the Act.

10. Ld.DR further mentioned that when the goods are unloaded into customs area, these have to remain in custody of approved person, CONCOR is admittedly the approved custodian. In case of any shortage/pilferage of such goods, tampering of seal or even movement of container from its location, liability has to be fastened on the custodian only. It is brought to notice that after first examination of container on 02/03.11.2011 customs new seal No.594385 was affixed and CONCOR was requested to keep the container No.CLHU 8612196 in safe custody. Letter of Superintendent (Admn) (Import Shed) to the Manager, CONCOR dated 02.11.2011 is impressed upon. Though CONCOR, while trying to prove their bonofide, have contended about lodging FIR on 17.10.2012 reporting theft of goods from customs area but the said act also cannot absolve them from their liability of being custodian. With these submissions, it is mentioned that there is no infirmity in the order under challenge and appeal is liable to be dismissed.

11. Having heard rival contentions and perusing the record, we observe following as admitted facts:

(i) The container No.CLHU 8612196 was imported in the name of M/s.Pico Trading Company, proprietor where of is Mr.Sanjay Arora, it was placed for clearance vide Bill of Entry No.5028721 dated 27.10.2011. It was examined by Special Intelligence and Investigation Branch (SIIB) of Customs on 02/03.11.2011.

(ii) Undeclared goods that too of highest brands were found stuffed in the said container. Accordingly undeclared goods valuing Rs.3,24,93,750/- along with container were seized, were destuffed and the container was affixed with Customs seal No.5944385. The said container was handed over to the appellant/CONCOR for safe custody.

(iii) This seizure was disputed by the appellant on the ground that there are two panchnamas of 2.11.2011 and 3.11.2011 which is sufficient to doubt the examination, proceedings and factum of customs seal. Also none of the panchnamas bear signature of appellant nor its representative.

(iv) On 1.6.2012, when the container was found to be affixed with seal No.344378, Department alleged tampering of seal on the container lying in the customs area and also that it was found at different location.

(v) The appellant on 15.10.2012 requested for a joint survey of the said container which was conducted in the presence of the Insurance Surveyor of the Appellant.

(vi) In the joint survey the container was found to contain goods worth of only Rs.2,35,000/- as contrary to such number of variety of goods as were assessed at Rs.3,24,93,750/- on 2.11.2011.

(vii) The inspecting team thus formed an opinion that the remaining goods had been pilfered.

(viii) To safeguard itself the appellant lodged an FIR with Delhi Police on 17.10.2012, reporting loss/theft of goods which were found missing from container.

12. From the above admitted facts, it is apparent that the goods valued more than Rs.3.25 crores were imported in the name of M/s.Pico Trading Co. at behest of Mr.Sanjay Arora, who had misdeclared and undervalued the goods in the Bills of Entry dated 27.10.2011. Resultantly the said container was seized and was handed over to CONCOR, the appellant, custodian.

(viii) The CONCOR had admitted the custody of the goods.

Accordingly, section 45 of Customs Act, 1962 is relevant which reads as under:-

Section 45. Restrictions on custody and removal of imported goods.-

(1) Save as otherwise provided in any law for the time being in force, all imported goods, unloaded in a customs area shall remain in the custody of such person as may be approved by the Principal Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs until they are cleared for home consumption or are warehoused or are transhipped in accordance with the provisions of Chapter VIII.

(2) The person having custody of any imported goods in a customs area, whether under the provisions of sub-section (1) or under any law for the time being in force,—

(a) shall keep a record of such goods and send a copy thereof to the proper officer;

(b) shall not permit such goods to be removed from the customs area or otherwise dealt with, except under and in accordance with the permission in writing of the proper officer.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in any law for the time being in force, if any imported goods are pilferred after unloading thereof in a customs area while in the custody of a person referred to in sub-section (1), that person shall be liable to pay duty on such goods at the rate prevailing on the date of delivery of an import manifest or, as the case may be, an import report to the proper officer under section 30 for the arrival of the conveyance in which the said goods were carried.

13. Regulation 6 of Handling of Cargo in Customs Area Regulations,2009 is also relevant. The relevant regulations thereof are 1(f), 1(i) and 1(q) which reads as under:-

"6. Responsibilities of Customs Cargo Service provider:

(1) The Customs Cargo Service provider shall -

(a) to (e) ----------

(f) not permit goods to be removed from the customs area, or otherwise dealt with, except under and in accordance with the permission in writing of the Superintendent of Customs or Appraiser.

(i) be responsible for the safety and security of imported and export goods under its custody.
(j) to (p) ----------

(q) abide by all the provisions of the Act and the rules, regulations, notifications and orders issued thereunder."

14. Meaning of both these provisions has been discussed by this Tribunal in the case of M/s.Continental Warehousing Corporation (Nhava Seva) Ltd. vs. Principal Commissioner of Customs, Chennai-2021 (12) TMI 745 as under:

"5.4 Section 45 of the Customs Act, 1962, dealing with clearances of imported goods, prescribes restrictions on custody and removal of imported goods. Further, Section 45(1) authorizes the granting of custody of imported goods with such approved person, until the same are cleared, as prescribed. Section 45 (2) prescribes the role of the person who is given the custody of the imported goods, and Section 45 (3) speaks of the consequences in case such imported goods are pilfered while in custody of the approved person, which makes such person liable to pay duty at the prevailing rate. This means that until 29.03.2018 (ie., the date of amendment), the custodian of the imported goods had no authority at all to release the imported goods from its custody. Further, the Regulations in question, i.e., HCCAR, 2009, casts certain responsibilities on the Customs Cargo Service provider (CFS) which is also based on the conditions to be fulfilled before issuing a Public Notice. Regulation 6 (1) interalia mandates that the customs cargo service provider shall not permit goods to be removed from the customs area, or otherwise dealt with, except under and in accordance with the permission in writing of the Superintendent of Customs or Appraiser. When there is a specific embargo prohibiting the custodian from moving the goods, without a specific order in writing is a clear violation of the Regulations."

15. As already observed above, the container was handed over to the custody of the appellant is an admitted fact. When the said admission is seen through the prism of above quoted interpreted provision, it cannot be denied that the said provisions have been violated and that there is lack of diligence towards responsibility of the custodian. However, the appellant though has pleaded its non involvement with panchas at the time of initial inspection when two contradicted panchnamas were prepared and that there was no information of Customs seal bearing No.594385 having been affixed at the time when the container was handed over to appellant, CONCOR and also that the responsibility of the custodian was otherwise given to CISF. But we observe that irrespective there were two panchnamas but both mentions to have been drawn on 2.11.2011, both bear signatures of two panchas, namely, Rajesh Kumar and Shri Anu Sharma and of independent witnesses Shri Kamlesh Kumar alongwith signatures of proprietor of importing company, namely Shri Sanjay Arora.

16. From the perusal of both panchnamas, we do not observe any cogent difference in the contents thereof except that the time of proceeding is slightly different. In panchnama signed on 2.11.2011, proceedings are mentioned to have started at 12.00 hours and to have ended at 23.00 hours. Whereas for panchnama dated 3.11.2011, the proceedings are mentioned to have started at 12.18 hours on 2.11.2011 and to have got concluded at 00.30 on 3.11.2011. Thus, there is not much difference except 15 minutes/ while beginning one and half an hour time duration while ending the proceedings. Since examination ended post midnight, means date got changed by that time. To our opinion, this cannot be the reason to challenge or to doubt the veracity/correctness of the panchnama. We also observe that only one out of the two panchnamas bear signatures of Customs Inspector, namely, Rakesh Kumar. Hence this panchnama can be held as the one drawn at the relevant time. As already observed above that examination which started in afternoon of 2.11.2011 continued till its midnight i.e. early morning of 3.11.2011, the plea taken about date is not at all relevant to doubt the panchnama which bears signatures of all concerned. On perusal of panchnama, it is amply clear that after such inspection of container on 02/03/11.2011 the container was resealed with new Customs seal No.594385 and was handed over to the manager of CONCOR, the appellant for the safe custody. This fact is also coming out from the cross examination of Customs Inspector, Shri Rajesh Kumar. The letter dated 02.11.2011 also corroborates the handing over the container with said seal to CONCOR – appellant. The contention of appellant that it has no knowledge about seal nor any responsibility for the container lying in the customs area/shed is not sustainable.

17. Coming to the issue of objection about Customs seal, we observe that the appellant has not brought to our notice that it was mandatory for the Customs Inspector to cut seal only in the presence of custodian of CONCOR on 2.11.2011. Admittedly, it was case of mis-declaration and undervaluation and till the request of appellant of joint survey on 15.10.2012 no pilferage was at all noticed. It is clear that presence of CONCOR was mandatory neither on 02/03.11.2011 nor even on 15.10.2012. The examination on 15.10.2012 was though, conducted in presence of CONCOR. Hence, we do not find any reason to differ from the finding in the order under challenge that at the time drawing panchnama dated 2.11.2011, Customs seal No.594385 was affixed on the container and the said seal was handed over to the CONCOR. It is coming apparent from the statements of proprietor of company as well as shipping line who was also present at the time of said panchnama drawn and have signed panchnama wherein it is recorded that Customs seal was cut and the container was resealed and handed over to the CONCOR for safe custody. None of them was cross examined by the appellant. Resultantly, there is no evidence produced by the appellant to falsify the contents of panchanma.

18. With respect to the plea about transferring liability to CISF, we observe from above quoted specific section 45 of Customs Act, 1962, that custodian is a person who has been approved by the Commissioner of Customs. Admittedly such approval was given to the appellant/CONCOR. Admittedly, there is no such approval in favour of the CISF. All the allegations as fastened against the custodian are under Regulation 6 HCCAR,2009 and section 45 of Customs Act, 1962 i.e. against the approved by custodian, who is none but CONCOR, the appellant. As per section 45 (2) (b) of Customs Act, 1962, the custodian is duty bound to not to permit such goods to be removed from the customs area, except under and in accordance with written permission of proper officer or otherwise dealt with. Admittedly, there was no such permission with CONCOR for removal of the goods.

19. As already observed above, that there is no denial that the container had shifted from its location within the customs area. Also the seal of the container was found tampered and most of the goods were found pilfered from the said container. As per section 45, the custodian is burdened with the responsibility of safe custody of imported goods unless and until those goods cleared either for home consumption or for being warehoused. Admittedly, the goods got pilfered and container seal found tempered when the goods were not still cleared. Resultantly, we do not find any reason to absolve the appellant from the responsibility fastened upon him and violation confirmed.

20. In the light of entire above discussion, we do not find any reason to differ with findings in the order under challenge. Resultantly, the order is hereby upheld. Consequent thereto the appeal is hereby dismissed.

FINAL ORDER No. 51494/2023DR.RACHNA GUPTA

Present is an appeal assailing the Order in Original bearing

No. 03/2021[1] dated 9th April, 2021. The facts in brief relevant for the appeal are that M/s.Decor Rubber Industries, the appellant, has been importing goods namely unbranded "Reflective Sheets". Acting on an intelligence, the containers covered under bill ofentry No.874293 dated 09.02.2010filed by the appellant through its Customs Broker M/s. Sajeev Kumar were preliminarily examined on 17.02.2010. The imported goods were found to be supplied by M/s. Changzhou Hua R Sheng Reflective Materials Co. Ltd., China. The goods were finally examined on 23.02.2010 by the officers of the Special Intelligence and Investigation Branch (SIIB) of the Commissionerate in presence of two independent witnesses. The goods were found to be rolls of branded Reflective Sheets of brand name "Sablite". Two types of reflective sheets of series TM3200 AB and TM1800 of1219 and 5 rolls respectively were found. The value of these goods declared in the Bill of Entry was Rs.15,41,721.53 (USD 32758.58). The examining officer doubted these values as they were too low. The goods weredetained and a market survey was done on 18.02.2010 in which quotation from M/s. Surya Plastics, Paharganj, New Delhi was obtained which showed that the price of similar Reflective Sheets was Rs.8,000 per roll (Roll size is 1.2 Mtr x 45.7 Mtrs.) and other reflective sheets were priced Rs.36,000/- to Rs.39,000/- per roll. The value declared in the Bill of Entry was Rs.15,41,721.53 which works out toRs.1247/- per roll. Hence it was felt to be very low.

2. During investigation, it was also found that the appellanthad imported the same goods through fourteen other bills ofentries in the past declaring similar prices. It was felt that the goods imported under these past Bills of Entry were also undervalued and were, therefore, liable to confiscation. It was felt that the values declared in these fifteen Bills of Entry totaling Rs.1,29,50,222/- was low and it should be Rs.5,44,86,414/-.

3. In order to investigate the matter further, enquiries were conducted overseas and it was found that there was a vast difference between the prices declared in the Bills of Entry before the Indian Customs by the appellant and the values declared by the exporter to the Chinese Customs authorities. With respect to four containers in Bills of Entry dated 22.04.2018, 30.06.2018, 01.08.2018 and 27.10.2018 tabulated below were compared with the values declared for those very consignments of goods before the Chinese Customs authorities and the values declared in the Trade Declarations before the Chinese Customs were four times the values declared before the Indian Customs. In view of this response department formed the opinion that the importer undervalued their goods at the time of import to evade paymentof customs duties.

Sr. No.	Container No.	Invoice No.		BOE No.	Before Indian Custom (inUSD)	Before Chinese Customs (in USD)
1	TTNU 1398469	HRS-DEC-0801		22.04.2018	12578.1	50528
2	FSCU 3101101	HRS-DEC-0802		30.06.2018	12578.1	50528
4	TLXU 3005360	HRS-DEC-0805		27.10.2018	16378.3	74515

3. On a specific query from the bench as to how the two valueswere correlated as pertaining to the same consignments, learned authorized representative for the Revenue submitted that these can be correlated by the Bill of Lading number and date, the vessel number and date and the container numbers. He further clarified that the Bill of Lading is the document of title issued by the Master of the Vessel or his representative to the exporter indicating the receipt of the goods. This Bill of Lading is received by the importer through banks and is used to claim the goods. Thus, the Bill of Lading is found both in the Shipping Bill or any other export document presented to the Customs by the exporter and it is also found in the Bill of Entry or any other document presented by the Importer before the Customs in the port of import. Further, the Containers are uniquely numbered and notwo containers in the world have the same number. Matching the container numbers in the export and import documents also establishes that what is being referred to is the same container. Ifthe name of the vessel and the date of sailing are also matched with the container number, there can be no manner of doubt that the declarations before the Chinese Customs by the exporter and before the Indian Customs by the importer pertain to the same consignment imported in the same container in the same vesselon the same date.

4. Summons were issued to Shri Varinder Singh Choudhary, Proprietor of the appellant who in his statement dated 15.11.2011recorded under section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962, said thathe has been the Proprietor of M/s. Décor Rubber Industries since its inception in 1986 and the firm is engaged in the activity of import of Automobiles Accessories and Reflecting Sheets for trading thereof. He also admitted that five rolls of the sheetimported were not declared in the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2010 which was filed. He admitted that all the impugned Bills of Entry were filed by his firm and he had signed on the copies of these Bills of Entry in token of having seen the same. The goods imported under the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2010 were seized and later provisionally released.

5. Show Cause Notice bearing (SCN) No.29221 dated 30.08.2012 was served upon the appellant alongwith, inter alia, copies of the Trade Declarations filed by their supplier with the China Customs duly authenticated by the Indian Consulate alongwith their English translations. It was alleged that the importer-appellant had fraudulently suppressed the correct transaction value of the imported goods by fabricating import documents with intent to evade payment of appropriate duties of customs, while importing the same during the period 03.02.2008 to 09.02.2010. Hence the said SCN proposed to reject the declared value of Rs.1,44,91,944/- (Rs.15,41,722/- for Bill ofEntry dated 09.02.2010+ Rs.1,29,50,222/- of 15 Bills of Entry from 03.02.2008 to 09.02.2010) of „Reflective Sheets" imported by appellant during the said period and enhance it to Rs.6,09,72,523/- demand and recover the differential duty under the proviso to section 28(1) of the Act alongwith interest under Sections 28AA and 28AB. The goods imported under Bill of Entry No.87293 dated 09.02.2010 which were detained andprovisionally released were proposed to be confiscated under section 111 (m) of the Customs Act, 1962.Goods imported under the other Bills of Entry were not available for seizure as they werealready cleared but it was still proposed to hold them liable for confiscation due to the observed mis-declaration of value. In addition, penalty was proposed to be imposed on them under section 112 (a), 112 (b), 114A and 114AA of the Act ibid.

5. The proposals in the SCN were confirmed by the impugned order. The operative part of which is as follows:

"(i) I order to reject the declared value of Rs. 15, 41,722/- in respect of Bill of Entry No. 874293 dt. 09.02.2010 under Rule 12 of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007 and re-determine the same to Rs.64,86,108/-under Section 14 of the Act ibid read with rule 3 (4). Rule 4 and Rule 9 of the said rules and further order for confiscation under Section 111 (m) of the Customs Act 1962. However, I give an option to the Importer to redeem the imported goods on paymentof fine of Rs. 5,00,000/- (Rupees Five Lacs Only in terms of Section 125 of the Customs Act, 1962.

(ii) I reject the declared value of Rs.24,88,990/- of Reflective Sheets' pertaining to four Bills of Entry No. 687904 dated 22.04.2008, 706622 dated 30.06.2008, 716536 dated 01.08.2008 and 734013 dated 27.10.2008 imported by M/s. Decor Rubber Industries during the period from 03.02.2008 to 09.02.2010 under Rule 12 of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007 and re- determine the same to Rs. 1,04.78,218/- under Section 14 of the Act ibid read with rule 3(4), Rule 4 and Rule 9 of the said rules.

(iii) I refrain from confiscation of the goods imported in past by M/s. Decor Rubber Industries vide Bills of Entry Nos. 765238 dated 03.02.2008, 687904 dated 22.04.2008, 706622 dated

08.12.2009 and, 865928 dated 13.01.2010, for the reasons stated above, I, however, order confiscation of goods imported vide four Bills of Entry No. 765238 dated 03.02.2008, 687904 dated 22.04.2008, 706622 dated 30.06.2008, 716536 dated

01.08.2008, 734013 dated 27.10.2008 under Section 111 (m) of the Act.

(iv) I demand the differential Customs duty amounting to Rs.37,40,363/- under Section 28 from M/s. Decor Rubber Industries for the goods confiscated as discussed above alongwiththe interest liable thereon under Section 28AA and erstwhile 28ABof the Customs Act, 1962 as amended.

(v) I do not impose penalty under Section 112(a) and 112(b) of the Customs Act, 1962, on M/s. Decor Rubber Industries, A- 114/1, Wazirpur Industrial Area, New Delhi-110052, the Noticee No 1.

(vi) I impose a penalty of Rs.37,40,363/- (Rupees Thirty Seven Lakhs Forty Thousand Three Hundred Sixty Three only) under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962 on M/s. Decor Rubber Industries, A-114/1, Wazirpur Industrial Area, New Delhi-110052,the Noticee No 1.

(vii) I impose a penalty of Rs.10,00,000/- (Rupees Ten Lacs only)under Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962 on M/s. Decor Rubber Industries, A-114/1, Wazirpur Industrial Area, New Delhi- 110052, the Noticee No 1.

(viii) I do not impose any penalty on Sh. Varinder Singh Chaudhary Prop. M/s Decor Rubber Industries, A-114/1. WazirpurIndustrial Area, New Delhi-110052, the Noticee No 2 under Sections 112(a), 112(b), 114(A), 114AA and 117 of the Customs Act, 1962 for the reasons discussed above."

Being aggrieved, the appellant is before this Tribunal.

6. We have heard Mr. Bipin Kumar Sinha, ld. Consultant forthe appellant and Mr. Rakesh Kumar, Authorized Representative for the Department.

7. Ld. Counsel for the appellant submitted that there were two sets of Bills of Entry as follows:

(i) One set of four Bills of entry for which some declarations made by Chinese Exporters have been received.

(ii) Another set of 11 Bills of Entry of which valuation in respect of 10 Bills of Entry had already been accepted except the which is the live Bill of Entry No.874293 dated 09.02.2010.

8. In all these Bills of Entry, the description of goods, overseas supplier and country of origin are identical. The rejection of the values declared in the Bills of Entry and the re-assessment was based on the market enquiry during which a single quotation was obtained from M/s. Surya Plastics and the declarations allegedly made before the Chinese authorities by the exporter.

9. Ld. Counsel submitted that declarations received from the Chinese authorities for the goods cannot be relied as none ofthese bear any signature or stamp. Rejection of transaction value on the basis of such inadmissible documents is liable to be set aside. Also there is no proper market enquiry. The value has been enhanced and re-assessed based on a single quotation whichmentions the retail price of the goods and not the import value. Hence, this report also cannot be the basis for rejecting the transaction value as mentioned in the impugned Bills of Entry. Ld. Counsel has relied upon following decisions to support the above submissions has prayed for setting aside the order under challenge and for the appeal to be allowed.

1. Commissioner of Customs, Calcutta vs. South India Television (P) Ltd. reported in 2007 (214) E.L.T. 3 (S.C.)

2. Eicher Tractors Ltd. vs. Commissioner of Customs,Mumbai reported in 2000 (122) ELT 321.

3. Golden Agro Corporation vs. Commissioner of Customs,Jaipur-I reported in 2017 (354) ELT 655 (Tri.-Del.)

10. Rebutting these submissions, Learned AuthorisedRepresentative for the Revenue submitted that the appellant declared the goods as "Reflective Sheets" without specifying any brand, but on examination, they were found to be of "Sablite" brand. The brand name was suppressed with the sole intention tolower the value of the imported goods. The original value declared before the Chinese Customs for the goods was different than the value in the invoices presented before the Indian Customs Authorities for the same goods in the same consignments. This change is sufficient to prove the forgery committed by the appellant to suppress the original value. Ld. Departmental Representative further submitted that the declarations received from China are authentic and they have been obtained through Consulate General of India alongwith English Translations. These documents sufficiently prove that the price declared before Chinese Customs was much higher than the price declared before the Indian Customs. Not only are these documents/declarations admissible but these are a sound basis for rejecting the transaction value under Rule 12 of the Custom Valuation Rules, 2007. Finally, submitting that the forgery nullifies everything, that the order under challenge is prayed to be upheld and appealis prayed to be dismissed.

11. Ld. Departmental Representative has relied upon the following case laws:-

1. Martwin Electronics vs. Commissioner of Central Exciseand Service Tax, Ahmedabad reported in 2016 (331)
E.L.T. 85 (Tri.- Ahmd.).

2. Chandra Impex Pvt. Ltd. vs. Commissioner of Customs,New Delhi reported in 2008 (224) E.L.T. 583 (Tri. – Del.)

3. Poonam Plastic Industries vs. Collector of Customs reported in 1989 (39) E.L.T. 634 (Trib.).

12. Having heard the rival contentions, the following three issues are framed:

(i) Whether the Export Declarations received from China are genuine documents to be read into evidence.

(ii) Whether appellant mis-declared the goods imported under the Bills of Entry

(iii) Whether in the Bills of Entry the goods were undervalued and if so, whether the re-determination of the value and demand of differential duty and the confiscation of the goods imported under the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2010 and the redemptionfine and the penalties imposed can be sustained.

Issue No.1

13. It is observed that the export declarations received from China contain data including Exporter name, Consignee name, Departure date, Transport mode, Vessel/Aircraft name, Port of discharge, Airway Bill No., Destination country, Destination country code, Marks and Nos., Container No., Number and kind of packages, description of goods, Country of origin, Country code, Quantity, Unit of quantity, FOB Value, Declarations, Signatory"s name, Signature, designation, date, etc. All these details, excepta few particulars that too in few of these documents, tally with the invoices. Thus, prima facie, the documents appear to be genuine. The admissibility of documents is covered under Section
139 of Customs Act, 1962which is reproduced below for better appreciation, reads as follows:-

"Section 139. Presumption as to documents in certain cases. - Where any document -

(i) is produced by any person or has been seized from the custody or control of any person, in either case under this Actor under any other law, or

(ii) has been received from any place outside India in the course of investigation of any offense alleged to have been committed by any person under this Act, and such document istendered by the prosecution in evidence against him or against him and any other person who is tried jointly with him, the Court shall

(a) presume, unless the contrary is proved, that the signature and every other part of such document which purports to be in the handwriting of any particular person or which the Court may reasonably assume to have been signed by, or to be in the handwriting of, any particular person, is in that person's handwriting, and in the case of a documentexecuted or attested, that it was executed or attested by the person by whom it purports to have been so executed orattested;

(b) admit the document in evidence, notwithstanding thatit is not duly stamped, if such document is otherwise admissible in evidence;

(c) in a case falling under clause (i) also presume, unless the contrary is proved, the truth of the contents of such document.

It is observed that the Export Declarations are obtained from the Customs and Excise Department, Hong Kong under the cover of their letter on letterhead and signature, through Commission for India (High Commission/Embassy) in HongKong. It is also stated by Hong Kong Customs that they have no objection for the said 25 Export declarations to be used as evidence in judicial proceedings in India. It is also seen that theExport Declarations are signed by Thomas Chan, Merchandiser and Fradu Wang, Accountant on behalf of the Batshita International Limited. It also contains a declaration that he is the exporter and the particulars given in the declaration are accurate and complete. In view the facts and circumstances of this particular case, we find that these Export Declarations are admissible as evidence, and we hold so."

14. In the present case the declarations obtained from China Customs are the documents in terms of Section 139(ii). The appellant objected to these declarations being used as evidence but it cannot be denied that supplier of the appellant would have filed export declarations before China Customs. The appellant has failed to produce those declarations to demonstrate that the declarations produced by the Department were false. It is the submission of the learned counsel for the appellant that these declarations do not contain and signature or stamp. We do not find any force in this argument. When processing of documents is computerized, the declarations are filed online and they do not contain any signatures and stamps. In fact, even the Bills of Entryfiled by the appellant are also filed online and approved online andthe officer does not sign and stamp the Bills of Entry. Likewise, most of the documents such as invoice, packing list, etc. submitted along with the Bills of Entry are also sent and received through electronic means and not under the signature and stamp. At any rate, the documents filed with the Chinese authorities are as per their procedures and practices and if the declarations are tobe filed online by the exporter with the Chinese authorities, they will be so filed and they cannot be separately stamped and signed and issued to satisfy the appellant.

15. If the appellant wanted to dispute the authenticity of the declarations, he could have procured and produced the correct declarations as the appellant was in a better position to procure those documents from his supplier/exporter. The appellant failed to produce any such declarations. On the other hand, in order to obtain the declarations made before the Chinese authorities, the investigating officer had requested the Consulate General of India through letter No.62/2010 dated 29.11.2010 and subsequent reminders dated 08.06.2010 and 02/02/2011 to get the possible documents for facilitating the overseas inquiry in the import of Reflective Sheets made by M/s. Décor Rubber Industries(appellant).

16. The Consulate General of India, vide their letter bearing No.02/2011 dated 15.09.2011 provided four trade declarations from China Customs in respect of the case being investigated by ICD, Tughlakabad clearly indicating massive undervaluation over 75% of the value by the appellant while importing the „Reflective Sheets" from China. The English translation has been marked on these Chinese Declarations. These, documents were received by DRI Headquarters on 15.09.2011 and by the ICD Tughlakabad on 12.10.2011, based on which acomparative chart was prepared by the department (RUD 5 of the SCN) as below:

17. This chart was provided to the appellant on 15.11.2011.

Copies of declarations received from Chinese Customs were senttothe appellant vide letter dated 23.11.2012. Nothing has been produced by appellant to Show that these documents were incorrect or that the declarations made before the Chinese Authorities were different.

18. The mode of procuring the documents during investigation and the absence of any other Export Declarations with the appellants is therefore sufficient for us to hold that the appellant has failed to rebut the presumption of correctness attached to these documents in terms of section 139 of the CustomsAct. Appellant has not produced any other cogent document to show that price as was declared to the Chinese Customs was different from the price which is mentioned in the export declaration obtained by the department from China through Consulate General of India The Export Declarations as received from China are, therefore, admissible in the evidence.

19. In view of above discussion, there appears no doubt about the authenticity of documents as these were obtained by DRI through the Government channel and were obtained from the concerned Department of the exporting country. We draw our support from the decision in the case of Orson ElectronicsPrivate Ltd. vs. Collector of Customs, Bombay reported in 1996 (82) ELT 499 (Tri. Delhi).

21. The appellant objected the quotation obtained by the Department to be called as the market inquiry report. However, perusal of said quotation reveals that it is about the same product as has been imported by the appellant. The only defense takenby the appellant is that the value quoted in the said quotation is the retail value. But no evidence is placed on record to support this submission. Otherwise also there cannot be a difference of more than 75% in wholesale value and the retail value. The undervaluation in the present case has been noticed to that extent based upon the documents which have already been held admissible in terms of Section 139 of the Customs Act. The quotation from M/s. Surya Plastics is obtained by the competent officers during the course of investigation. Nothing has been produced by the appellant to rebut the presumption of Section 139 of Customs Act even qua the said quotation/market inquiry. We hold that the presumption of correctness was attached to this document, as well.

22. Although only one quotation was obtained during market inquiry, the value mentioned therein is actually in corroboration to the values mentioned in the Chinese Customs declaration. We observe that the adjudicating authority below in para 22.3 of the impugned order has meticulously compared the information of these documents and has cross checked it with the declarations made by the appellant in the five number of Bills of Entry including that of the live consignment which is one of the Bills of Entry among 11 others of past. Hence, we do not find any error when the adjudicating authority has concluded that the comparison makes it clear that for the same Bill of Lading and invoice, the importer declared very less value of transaction in the Bills of Entry as contrast to the value as declared by the exporter in his country for the same invoice. It implies that invoice hasbeen manipulated in between export and import ports and invoice depicting less value was presented to the Indian Customs in order to evade the legitimate duty of customs and the importer succeeded in his intention many times till the documents from overseas came to the notice of the Department. These overseas documents when compared with the details in the import documents it get clearly established that the importer has mis- declared the value of the goods at the time of import by forging the invoice.

23. We also observe that the appellant had admitted the presence of five different rolls of Reflecting Sheets of different series TM 18 100 to have been sent by the exporter as samples, but still had not shown the same in the Bills of entry. Thisadmission corroborates the Department‟s stand that the appellant despite having knowledge of the content of his consignment and the correct/export value of the goods in the said consignment, hasfailed to declare the same.

24. Hence we don‟t find any reason to differ from the findings in the order under challenge with respect to the said quotation. We hold that the quotation of M/s. Surya Plastics has rightly been relied upon for the purpose of market inquiry. The decisions referred by the appellant are therefore held not applicable to the facts of the present case.

25. We also note that vide letter dated 25.02.2010 the Chinese exporter has certified that appellant is their Customer for years for reflective sheets under “Sablite” brand. This document confirms the alleged mis-declaration as the said brand has not been declared in Bill ofEntry. Though the price in said certificate is mentioned to be @ USD
0.48 per Sq. Mtr. but simultaneously the exporter has rescued itself from any responsibility due to any problem with reference to the grade ordered.

26. The defence taken by appellant that Chinese declarations are merely the photocopies is also not acceptable. We rely on thedecision in the case of Chandra Impex Pvt. Ltd. vs. CC, New Delhi reported in 2008 (224) ELT 583 (Tri.-Del.).

27. Thus, we hold that appellant mis-declared the goods while importing them. This issue also stands decided in favour of the Revenue.

Issue No. 3:

28. To adjudicate this issue, we need to examine the legalprovisions relating to valuation in the Customs Act. Duties of customs are levied on goods imported into and exported from India at the rates specified in the Schedules to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975. On some goods, the levy is based on quantity (specific duty) and other goods, it is based on value (ad valorem). If the duty is to be levied based on value, valuation for the purpose has to be done as per Section 14 which reads as follows:

Section 14. Valuation of goods. -

(1) For the purposes of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975), or any other law for the time being in force, the value of the imported goods and export goods shall be the transaction value of such goods, that is to say, the price actually paid orpayable for the goods when sold for export to India for delivery at the time and place of importation, or as the case may be, for export from India for delivery at the time and place of exportation, where the buyer and seller of thegoods are not related and price is the sole consideration for the sale subject to such other conditions as may be specified in the rules made in this behalf*:*

Provided that such transaction value in the case of importedgoods shall include, in addition to the price as aforesaid, any amount paid or payable for costs and services, including commissions and brokerage, engineering, design work, royalties and licence fees, costs of transportation to the place of importation, insurance, loading, unloading and handling charges to the extent and in the manner specified in the rules made in this behalf:

Provided further that the rules made in this behalf may provide for,-

(i) the circumstances in which the buyer and the seller shall be deemed to be related*;*

(ii) the manner of determination of value in respect of goods when there is no sale, or the buyer and the seller are related, or price isnot the sole consideration for the sale or in any other case*;*

(iii) the manner of acceptance or rejection of value declared by the importer or exporter, as the case may be, where the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of such value, and determination of value for the purposes of this section*:*

Provided also that such price shall be calculated with reference to the rate of exchange as in force on the date on which a bill ofentry is presented under section 46, or a shipping bill of export, as the case may be, is presented under section 50.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), if the Board is satisfied that it is necessary or expedient so to do, it may,by notification in the Official Gazette, fix tariff values for any class of imported goods or export goods, having regard to the trend of value of such or like goods, and where any such tariff values are fixed, the duty shall be chargeable with reference to such tariff value.

Explanation . - For the purposes of this section -

(a) rate of exchange" means the rate of exchange -

(i) determined by the Board, or

(ii) ascertained in such manner as the Board may direct, for the conversion of Indian currency into foreign currency or foreigncurrency into Indian currency;

(b) "foreign currency" and "Indian currency" have the meanings respectively assigned to them in clause (m) and clause (q) of section 2 of the Foreign Exchange Management Act, 1999 (42 of 1999)

29. The non-obstante clause in sub-section 2 of section 14 givesthe Board the power to fix tariff values for any class of goods and if fixed, the tariff value will be the value to determine the duty. This sub-section is not relevant to this case. In all other cases, thevalue to be reckoned for calculating the Customs duty shall be thetransaction value subject to five conditions:

a) Buyer and seller are not related.

b) Price is for delivery at the time and place of importation, i.e., all costs up to the point of import are to be included.For instance, if the sale is on Free on Board basis, the costs of transportation to the place of import, transit insurance, etc. will have to be added.

c) Price is the sole consideration for sale.

d) Some amounts indicated in the first proviso to sub-section 1of section 14 must be included.

e) Valuation will be as per any other conditions as may be specified in the Rules.

30. The first proviso to sub-section 1 of section 14 provides for some additions to the transaction value which are not relevant for the present case. The second proviso to this sub-section provides for Rules to be made in this behalf to provide for:

a) the circumstances in which the buyer and the seller shallbe deemed to be related;
b) the manner of determination of value in respect of goods

when there is no sale,

c) the manner of determination of value in respect of goods if the buyer and the seller are related,

d) the manner of determination of value in respect of goods where price is not the sole consideration for the sale;
e) the manner of determination of value in respect of goods in any other case; and

f) the manner of acceptance or rejection of value declared by the importer or exporter, as the case may be, where the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of such value, and determination of value for the purposes of this section.

31. The Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of imported goods) Rules, 2007[2]were framed as per the second proviso to sub-section 1 of section 14. It has 13 Rules in all of which Rules 1 and 2 are Preliminary rules. Rule 3 states that subject to Rule 12, the value shall be the transaction value adjusted according to Rule 10. Rule 10 provides for certain coststo be included in the transaction value. Rule 12 provides for the proper officer to reject the transaction value if he has reason to doubt its truth and accuracy. Thus, unless the proper officer rejects the transaction value under Rule 12, the valuation has to be based on transaction value as per Rule 3 with some additions, if necessary, as per Rule 10.

32. If the transaction value is rejected under Rule 12, then it must be determined sequentially under Rules 4 to 9. Rule 4provides for the valuation to be done on the basis of identical goods. Rule 5 provides for the valuation to be done on the basis of the value of similar goods. Rule 6 states if Rules 4 and 5 cannot determine the value then they must be done as per Rule 7 and thereafter Rule 8 but this sequence can be reversed at the option of the importer. In other words, if the importer so chooses,Rule 8 can be applied directly instead of Rule 7. Rule 7 provides for a deductive method of valuation on the basis of prices of similar or identical goods sold in India and after making some deductions from such prices. Rule 8 provides for a computed value, i.e., based on the cost of raw material, cost of manufacture, reasonable profit, etc. In view of Rule 6, the importer may choose the computed value without examining the feasibility of determining value through deductive methods. Rule9 is a residual method which provides for determining the valuewhere it cannot be determined under Rules 3 to 8. Rule 10, as already discussed, provides for some costs to be added to the transaction value if the valuation is done as per Rule 3. Rule 11 requires the importer to make a declaration. Rule 12 lays downthe provision for rejection of transaction value. Rule 13 provides for interpretative notes for the Rules.

33. To sum up, valuation has to be done sequentially as follows:

a) If a tariff value is fixed by the Board, it is the value (sub- section 2 of Section 14);
b) If no tariff value is fixed by the Board, valuation is as per the transaction value, if necessary, with some additions (as per the first proviso to sub-section 1 ofsection 14 and as per Rule 10);
c) If the transaction value is rejected as per Rule 12 by the proper officer, valuation has to be done as per the value of identical goods (Rule 4);
d) If transaction value is rejected and there is no value of identical goods, then it must be as per the value of similargoods (Rule 5);

e) If transaction value is rejected and there is no value of identical goods or similar goods, value must be determined through Deductive method (Rule 7)

f) If transaction value is rejected and there is no value of identical goods or similar goods and it is not possible to determine value following deductive method, then valuemust be determined through computation (Rule 8)

g) If the importer so chooses, computational method may be adopted without examining the deductive method first (Rule 6).

h) If the transaction value is rejected and there is no value of identical goods or similar goods and if it is also not possible to determine the value through deductive method or computational method, then value may be determined through the residual method by the officer following the above principles (Rule 9).

34. The next question which arises is when can the properofficer reject the transaction value. Rule 12 reads as follows:

12. Rejection of declared value. -

(1) When the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to any imported goods, he may ask the importer of such goods to furnish further information including documents or other evidence and if, after receiving such further information, or in the absence of a response of such importer, the proper officer still has reasonable doubt about the truth or accuracy of the value so declared, it shall be deemed that the transaction value of such imported goods cannot be determined under the provisions ofsub-rule (1) of rule 3.

(2) At the request of an importer, the proper officer, shall intimate the importer in writing the grounds for doubting the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to goods imported by such importer and provide a reasonable opportunity of being heard, before taking a final decision under sub-rule (1).

Explanation*.-(1) For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declaredthat:-*

(i) This rule by itself does not provide a method for determination of value, it provides a mechanism and procedure for rejection of declared value in cases where there is reasonable doubt that the declared value does notrepresent the transaction value; where the declared value is rejected, the value shall be determined by proceeding sequentially in accordance with rules 4 to 9.

(ii) The declared value shall be accepted where the properofficer is satisfied about the truth and accuracy of the declared value after the said enquiry in consultation with the importers.

(iii) The proper officer shall have the powers to raise doubts on the truth or accuracy of the declared value based on certain reasons which may include -

(a) the significantly higher value at which identical or similar goods imported at orabout the same time in comparable quantities in a comparable commercialtransaction were assessed;

(b) the sale involves an abnormal discount or abnormal reduction from the ordinary competitive price;

(c) the sale involves special discounts limited to exclusive agents;

(d) the mis-declaration of goods in parameters such as description, quality, quantity, country of origin, year of manufacture or production;

(e) the non declaration of parameters such as brand, grade, specifications that have relevance to value;

(f) the fraudulent or manipulateddocuments.

35. Thus, if the officer has reason to doubt the truth and accuracy of the transaction value, he can call for information including documents and evidence. If the information and evidence is presented and after examining it or if no informationor evidence as called for is presented, if the proper office has reasonable belief then it shall be deemed that the value cannot be determined as per Rule 3 (i.e., based on transaction value withadditions, if necessary). The grounds on which the proper officer may raise doubts about the truth and accuracy of the transaction value have been illustrated in explanation 1 (iii) to Rule 12. Thelist is inclusive and not exhaustive.

36. While examining the issue No.1 we have already held that the export declarations are admissible into evidence. Similarly, while examining issue No.2, we held that the quotation obtained during market enquiry is admissible as evidence. Of the fifteenBills of Entry, the Commissioner only re-determined the value of the goods in respect of five and did not re-determine the value in respect of the remaining ten Bills of Entry. These five Bills of Entryincluded the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2010 and four past Bills of Entry in respect of which the transaction values could be obtained from the Chinese authorities through Consulate General of India from the declarations made by the exporter to Chinese Customs.

37. As far as the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2010 is concerned, the Commissioner rejected the transaction value, firstly because, while the invoice and the Bill of Entry declared only 1219 rolls of TM 3200, on examination, it was found that there were fiveadditional rolls of TM 1800which were not at all declared in the invoice and in the Bill of Entry. Shri Virendar Singh, owner of the importer firm admitted to having imported but not declaring thesefive rolls in the bill of Entry.Market enquiry was conducted and it was found that the price of TM 3200 was Rs. 8,000/- per roll , the price of TM 1800 (which was not even declared) was Rs. 36,000/- per roll. Further, overseas enquiry into four past Bills of Entry by the appellant also showed that the actual values of identical goodsimported by the appellant declared by the exporter before the Chinese Customs was four times the values declared for the same consignment before the Indian Customs by the appellant. Shri Virendar Singh stated that the goods imported in the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2010 were identical to the goods in the aforesaid four Bills of Entry in respect of which the declarations before theChinese Customs could be obtained.

38. For these reasons, she rejected the transaction value under Rule 12 of the Valuation Rules and re-determined it under Rule 4 in respect of the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2010 taking the value of identical goods imported by the appellant in the past. Thus, as required, having rejected the transaction value under Rule 12, she determined the value on the basis of the contemporaneous imports of identical goods as per Rule 4.

38. As far as the four past Bills of Entry in respect of which the declarations made before the Chinese Customs were obtained are concerned, we find that the Bill of Lading numbers, names of the vessels, container numbers, etc. match which showed that the values declared in the four Bills of Entry were low and the actual values were declared by the exporter in the declarations beforethe Chinese authorities. Accordingly, the Commissioner has in the impugned order, rejected the declared transaction value in respect of these four Bills of Entry under Rule 12 and re-determined it based on the actual transaction value in respect of the four Bills of Entry. Consequently, she confirmed the demandof differential duty of customs under section 28. We are in full agreement with the decision of the Commissioner.

39. The Commissioner has dropped the demand in respect often other Bills of Entry proposed in the SCN in respect of which nodirect evidence in the form of declarations made before the Chinese authorities is available and therefore the issue has attained finality to this extent. Thus, the Commissioner‟s order was very fair and balanced.

40. In the impugned order, the Commissioner confiscated goodsimported under the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2010 which were seizedand provisionally released on execution of a bond under section 111(m) but she refrained from confiscating the goods imported under the past Bills of Entry. Since the undisputed fact is that the goods imported in the Bill of Entry were not fully declared and fiveadditional rolls were imported but not declared and also since we found that the value declared in this Bill of Entry was correctly rejected under Rules 12 and re-determined under Rule 4, we find that there was mis-declaration of the goods both in terms of valueand quantity and the confiscation under section 111(m) must be upheld. The redemption fine of Rs. 5,00,000/- imposed under section 125 on the goods valued at Rs.64, 86,108/- is very fairand reasonable and calls for no interference.

41. In the impugned order, the Commissioner did not impose any penalty on the owner of the appellant. She also did not impose any penalty on the appellant under section 112 but imposed penalties under section 114 A and 114AA.

42. The penalty under section 114A is a mandatory penalty and is equal to the duty sought to be evaded. This section reads as follows:

Section 114A. Penalty for short-levy or non-levy of dutyin certain cases. –

Where the duty has not been levied or has been short-levied or the interest has not been charged or paid or has been part paid or the duty or interest has been erroneously refunded by reason of collusion or any wilful mis-statement or suppressionof facts, the person who is liable to pay the duty or interest,as the case may be, as determined under [sub-section (8)of section 28 shall also be liable to pay a penalty equal to the duty or interest so determined:

43. Since we have upheld the confirmation of demand under section 28, we also uphold the consequential mandatory penalty under section 114A.

44. Penalty under Section 114AA can be imposed for use offalse and incorrect material. It reads as follows:

Section 114AA. Penalty for use of false and incorrect material.

If a person knowingly or intentionally makes, signs or uses, or causes to be made, signed or used, any declaration, statement or document which is false or incorrect in any material particular, in the transaction of any business for the purposes of this Act, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five times the value of goods.

45. The appellant had, undisputedly, mis-declared the quantity of the goods imported in the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2010. Shri Varinder Singh admitted in his statement that he had not declaredfive rolls of a different type which were also imported. Further, in respect of four of the past Bills of Entry, the values declared bythe exporter before the Chinese authorities was much higher than the values declared in the Bills of Entry by the appellant. We, therefore, find that the appellant was liable to penalty undersection 114AA and the penalty of Rs. 10,00,000/- was just and fair in the factual matrix of this case.

46. Resultantly, we are in full agreement with the findings of the adjudicating authority below. Order resultantly, is hereby upheld. Consequent thereto the appeal stands dismissed.

DATE OF HEARING : 11.08.2023DATE OF DECISION: 06.11.2023

FINAL ORDER NO.51504/2023

DR. RACHNA GUPTA

Facts in brief relevant for present adjudication are:-

Intelligence was received by DRI that a syndicate ofunscrupulous persons was engaged in exporting inferior quality of readymade garments by overpricing the same to earn undue amount of Drawback. It was found that M/s Linwood Sales Pvt. Ltd., (IEC No. 0216914418), 12, Sovaram Basak Street, 2nd floor, Kolkata-700007 filed six Shipping Bills for export of Women's Leggings of MMF to Dubai, UAE at a declared FOB value of Rs 5.22 crore under claim of Drawback amounting to Rs.51.19 lakh. The Shipping Bills were filedby Customs Broker, M/s. SKH Freight Logistics Pvt. Ltd. DRI intercepted the consignment of two containers bearing Nos.

TGHU 24041549 and FSCU 3539037. The declared FOB value of these two containers was Rs 5,22,33,258(Five crore twenty two lakh thirtythree thousand two hundred fifty eight) and total drawback claimed was Rs.51,18,864 (Fifty one lakh eighteen thousand eight hundred sixty four).

2. The goods under these containers were examined in the presence of Shri Souvik Guha Sarkar, representative of M/s Linwood Sales Pvt. Ltd., Shri Chandra Sekhar Hore, 'G' card license holder, M/sSKH Freight Logistics Pvt. Ltd., Customs Officers and two independentwitnesses. The FOB value of 1,14,480 pieces of 'Women's Leggings' attempted for exports under 6 Shipping Bills was reassessed and ascertained at Rs.81,60,134/- and Rs.7,99,693/- only.

3. DRI intercepted another three containers bearing Nos. EISU 3799380, EISU 3759475 and EMCU 3684964 which said to contain "Readymade Garments Babies Inner". Nine Shipping Bills were filedby M/S SKH Freight Logistics Pvt. Ltd. on behalf of the exporter M/s Linwood Sales Pvt. Ltd. against these three containers. The total declared FOB value was Rs.5,78,09,000/- (Five crore seventy eight lakh nine thousand). The total drawback claimed was Rs 54, 96, 615/- (Fifty four lakh ninety six thousand six hundred Fifteen). The goods were attempted to be exported through Kolkata Port. Thegoods were found to of inferior quality and were reassessed under Rule 6 of Customs Valuation Rules, 2007 at Rs 1,26,02,304/- (Rupees One crore twenty six lakh two thousand three hundred and four) and the admissible drawback amount was found to be Rs.12,35,206/-only.

4. Statements of all concerned including the G Card Holder of appellant, Shri Chandra Shekhar, the Representative of exporter,namely, M/s.Linwood Sales Pvt. Ltd., Director of the exporter, namelyShri Pradeep Singh alias Anil the supplier of garments namely Murari Ganpat were recorded. It was found that Guha Sarkar was also a Customs Broker whose license was already revoked but he was working as agent for importers/exporters through different customs brokers including the appellants One Mr. Sumit Aggarwal alias Ranjit Agarwal was found to be the master mind of the offence of availing undue drawback by means of fraudulent exports. Department formedthe opinion that M/s Linwood Sales Pvt. Ltd., (IEC No. 0216914418), 12, Sovaram Basak Street, 2nd floor, Kolkata - 700007 was involved in fraudulent export under drawback scheme to avail huge undue drawback amount. The Customs Broker who facilitated the fraudulent export is M/s. SKH Freight Logistics Pvt. Ltd. Show Cause Notice No. DRI/KZU/CFPENQ-01(INT-59)/2017 dated 08.07.2016 was issued by DRI after completion of inquiry into the matter. This SCN has been adjudicated by the Order- in-Original. KOL/ CUS/ COMMISSIONER/ PORT/ 29/ 2018 dated 22.03.2018. Treating the said order as offence report that the license of the appellant was suspended vide order dated 06.07.2018. It is thereafter that the impugned Show Cause Notice No.13/261/2013 dated 27.08.2018 was served upon the appellant proposing that:

a. CB should be held responsible for contravention of various provisions under the Regulations 1(4), 10(a), 10(b), 10(d), 10(k) 10(n) and 13(12) of Custom Broker Licensing Regulation, 2018 (hereinafter referred as CBLR, 2018)erstwhile Regulation 10, 11(a), 11(b), 11(d), 11(k), 11(n) and 17(9) of CBLR, 2013.

b. Their CB license should be revoked and part or whole of the security submitted at the time of issue of their license, should be forfeited from them in terms of Regulation 18 of CBLR, 2018.

c. The said proposal has been confirmed vide order in original No.75/2018 dated 30.11.2018.

d. We have heard Shri Vedprakash Batra, ld Consultant for the appellant and Shri Rakesh Kumar, Authorised Representative for the respondent – Revenue.

e. Ld. Consultant for the appellant has submitted that:

The Appellant was granted Custom Broker license by the Commissioner of Customs (General), New Custom House, New Delhi under regulation 7(1) of CBLR, 2013 on 06.09.2013 bearing No. R- 46-DEL/CUS/2013(PAN: AASCS5286K) which was valid upto 05.09.2023 to transact business at Delhi Customs. The Appellant was permitted to transact the business in Kolkata Customs also from27.10.2016. The DRI after receiving the impugned intelligence recorded the statement of Mr. Chander Sekhar Hore having „G" Card holder of the appellant. Based thereupon the action has been taken against the appellant. It is submitted that the said statement is neither made the RUD to SCN nor the copy of the same was ever supplied to the appellant. Furthermore it is not coming out from the text of the OIO that under which Act and Section it has been recorded.

f. It is further submitted that M/s. Guha Sarkar & Co. was not in operation and he was working as agent for importers/ exportersthrough different Customs broker including M/s.SKH Freight Logistics Pvt. Ltd. It is very much clear from the statement of Mr. Pradip Singh that the signature appearing on six invoices cum packing lists of M/s.Linwood Sales Pvt. Ltd., was not his signatures. He does not know about the alleged fraudulent export with reference to shipping bills Nos. 2800712 and 2088715 both dated 14.12.2016. Letter of Authorisation of M/s. Linwood Sales Pvt. Ltd. issue in favour of Shri Souvik Guha Sarkar was not signed by him."

g. Ld. Counsel further brought to notice that the Appellant closed the operations in Kolkata vide application dated 11.04.2017. TheOrder- in- Original No. KOL/ CUS/ COMMOSSIONER/ PORT/29/2018 dated 22.03.2018 passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Port), Custom House, Kolkata has been received in the office of the Commissioner of Customs (A&G), New Custom House, New Delhi on 22.03.2018. Copy of said order dated 22.03.2018 is not received by the appellant till date. However, copy got provided duringsubmissions.

h. It was also mentioned that Appellant appeared before the enquiry officer on 31.08.2018 for the personal hearing submitted the detailed reply on 31.08.2018 and requested to allow the cross examination of Sh. Chander Sekhar Hore (G-Card Holder), Sh. SouvikGuva Sarkar and all the exporters who were found engaged in the alleged fraudulent exports. The Deputy Commissioner of Customs i.e. the Inquiry Officer without proper appreciation of the reply of the appellants filed to the SCN and without any proper application of mindseconded the allegations made in the show cause notice.

i. Ld. Counsel finally submitted that there is no evidence against appellant having any role in customs clearance of subject goods or that he had any knowledge about the exporters or that the appellant was aware of impugned exports. Also there is no allegation that CB received any consideration in lieu of alleged overvaluation. With these submissions the order under challenge is prayed to be set asideand appeal is prayed to be allowed.

j. Ld. Authorised Representative while rebutting the above submissions has mentioned that present is a case of apparent fraud committed to fraudulently obtain the illeligible duty drawbacks. The duty of CHA while facilitating exports/imports is quite important. It acquires more relevance in case of such fraudulent transactions. It is impressed upon that the custom procedures are complicated and the CB/CHA occupies a very important position in the Custom House. Heis not only the agent of importer/exporter but also the agent of the Department. Hence, he is liable to safeguard the interest of both the importers as well as the customs department. The Department,therefore, poses a lot of trust in the CHA who in turn is responsible to ensure appropriate discharge of such trust.

k. It is impressed upon that in the present case of proven fraud the CHA has not even opted to come forward. Apparently he has allowed his license to be used by someone else at the behest of yet another person. Resultantly, there is no infirmity in the findings in the order under challenge. Ld. Departmental Representative has relied upon the following case laws:-

(i) Decision of Hon‟ble Supreme Court in the case ofCommissioner of Customs vs. K.M. Ganatra & Companyreported in 2016 (332) E.L.T. 15 (S.C.).

(ii) Decision of this Tribunal in the case of Evershine Customs C & F Private Ltd. vs. Commissioner of Customs reported in 2021 (TIOL) 482 – CESTAT, Delhi.

(iii) The earlier decision of the Tribunal in the case of Millennium Express Cargo Pvt. Ltd. vs. Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi reported as 2017 (346) E.L.T. 471 (Tri.-Del).

With these submissions the order under challenge is prayed to beupheld and the appeal is prayed to be dismissed.

l. Having heard the rival contentions and perusing the entirerecord, we observe from the offence report dated 22.03.2018 and theShow Cause Notice issued by DRI dated 27.08.2018 that Shri Sumit Agarwal is held as the mastermind of the impugned offence of availing undue draw-back by means of fraudulent export who plotted the whole scheme with the help of other unscrupulous persons. He persuaded Shri Murari Sabu a supplier of readymade garments, on commission basis, for supply of cheap quality of garments which he attempted to export at highly inflated declared value to avail undue drawback. He only arranged for IEC in the name of a non-existent firm, namely, M/s.Linwood Sale Pvt. Ltd. and even changed the identity of its Director from Shri Anil Singh to Shri Pradeep Singh.Fake documents were used to avail the IEC in the name of said M/s. Linwood. It is apparent from the several statements of Souvik Guha Sarkar who himself was a partner of Customs Broker firm M/s. S. Guha Sarkar & Co. and whose license had already been revoked on earlier several occasions. He deposed that Sumit Agarwal managed to obtain IEC of M/s. Linwood Sales Pvt. Ltd. (the impugned exporter)on the basis of fake documents. The modus operandi has also been acknowledged by Director of the exporter Shri Pradeep Singh aliasAnil Singh in his statement dated 06.01.2017 that he conspired with Shri Sumit Aggarwal for some monitory consideration. Similar reason for conspiring into the fraudulent exports has been given by Murari Sabu. Not only this, the G Card holder of the present appellant Shri Chandra Shekhar Hore in his statement dated 02.01.2017 has acknowledged that the appellant CB was aware about Souvik Guha Sarkar to be a habitual offender who only used to process the transactions on behalf of the appellant. Mr. Hore despite being the G Card Holder of the appellant but has acknowledged to sign on the blank annexures of the shipping bills and to handover them to said Shri Savik Guha Sarkar.

m. With these apparent and corroboratively admitted facts alongwith the absence of the proprietor of the present appellant Shri Ram Pratap, we have no reason to differ from the said findings of the original adjudicating authority that the appellant has transferred his license to Shri Souvik Guha Sarkar to transact the business in appellant‟s name. The said act is highly impermissible in terms of Regulation 1(4) of CBLR, 2018. In the light of absence of appellant to bring evidence to falsify the evidence brought against him or to cross-examine the witnesses who had deposed about using his licenseand authority to facilitate a fraudulent export transaction, the findingsarrived at by the adjudicating authority cannot be faulted.

n. It is the appellant‟s own case, through Shri Chandra Shekhar Hore, that the exporter was not known to them. They had never met with him nor ever visited his premises. Apparently no authorization letter in favour of the appellant from M/s. Linwood Sales could be produced on record. Hence, we do not find any infirmity whenviolation of Regulation 10 (a) of CBLR has been confirmed against theappellant.

o. As already observed above, the business in customs station wastransacted though in the name of the appellant but apparently by Shri Souvik Guha Sarkar though the appellant has argued that they never authorised said Shri Sarkar but simultaneously it is an apparent fact that the impugned export transaction was not transacted in person bythe Custom Broker despite it was processed in its name. The G card holder of the custom broker has admitted that he was signing the blank papers required to transact the business in customhouse and was handing over the same to M/s. Guha Sarkar. These observations since have not been refuted by the appellant who rather opted to remain absent are sufficient for us to confirm the violation of Regulation 10 (b) of CBLR

p. Coming to the allegations confirmed under Regulation 10 (d) of CBLR of 2018, we observe that it is very much on record that one Mr. Sumit Aggarwal was the mastermind behind the fraudulent highly under-valued exports. The G Card Holder of the appellant was aware about Shri Guha Sarkar to transact the fraudulent exports. Since the custom broker is responsible for all acts and means of his employees during their employment as per Regulation 13 (12) of CBLR of 2018, it was mandatory for the appellant to advice the exporter to comply with the provisions of the Customs Act, else to have brought to the notice of the Dy. Commissioner Customs about the non-compliance. But neither the appellant nor his G card holder has ever brought the impugned fraud to the notice of the competent authorities. We have no reason to differ from the findings arrived at against the appellant.

q. With respect to the allegations of violating Regulation 10 (k) and 10 (n) of CBLR of 2018, apparently and admittedly no records have been produced. The onus was upon the appellant CB only to produce the same. He rather opted to remain absent. His agent/hisG Card holder has deposed about not maintaining any record with respect to M/s.Linwood Sales Pvt. Ltd. He also has acknowledged to not to ever verify the correctness of IEC and GSTIN of the exporter. It is otherwise on record that the impugned exporting firm were found to be non-existent. The address as was declared as the address of Directors of M/s. Linwood Sales pvt Ltd in the IEC details was found to be the residential address of Directors/Proprietors of other Companies/ Firms. Though it was noticed that an account was opened in the name of M/s. Linwood Sales Pvt. Ltd in February, 2015 but the Directors shown were Shri Krishan Chandra Dey andShri Dayal Singh. However, the later got substituted by Shri Pradeep Singh alias Anil Singh in August, 2017. The Articles of association of the said company were also found to be forged. No evidence could bebrought on record to falsify these findings. In the circumstances, we have no reason to differ from the findings that the appellant has failedto make the appropriate enquiries of their clients prior transacting thebusiness in customhouse station. Hence, the findings confirming the violation of Regulation 10 (k) and 10 (n) are held sustainable.

r. The appellant has challenged the order in question on theground of it being barred by time. But present is a case of proven fraud of availing false duty draw backs after exporting thecheap/scrap fabric at highly inflated price. Fraud vitiates everything as was observed in the case of Evershine Customs C & F Private Ltd. (supra). The time line otherwise is to avoid the serious repercussions of curtailing the right to carry on the trade or profession by a genuine and diligent custom broker. The object of theRegulations (CBLR) is that it contemplates a timely action but simultaneously contemplates an action against the erring brokers.

s. We draw our support from the decision of this Tribunal in the case of M/s. Swastic Cargo Agency vs. Commissioner of Customs reported as 2023 (2) TMI 677 wherein the decision of Hon‟ble High Court of Madras in the case of M/s. Kamakshi Agency vs. Commissioner of Customs, Madras reported in 2001 (129) ELT 29 (Mad.) has been relied upon. It was held by the Hon‟ble Madras High Court as follows:-

“…….the grant of licence to act as a Custom House Agent has gota definite purpose and intent. On a reading of the Regulationsrelating to the grant of licence to act as Custom House Agent, it is seen that while Custom House Agent should be in a position to act as agent for the transaction of any business relating to the entry or departure of conveyance or the import or export of goods at any customs station, he should also ensure that he does not act as an agent for carrying on certain illegal activities of any of the persons, who avail his services as Custom House Agent. In such circumstances, the person playing the role of Custom House Agent has got greater responsibility. The very prescription that one should be conversant with various procedures, including the offences under the Customs Act to act as a Custom House Agent would show that, while acting as Custom House Agent, he should not be a cause for violation of those provisions. A CHA cannot be permitted to misuse his position as a CHA by taking advantage of the access to the department. The grant of licence to a person to act as Custom HouseAgent is to some extent to assist the department with the various procedures such as scrutinising the various documents to be presented in the course of transaction of business for entry and exit of conveyance or the import or export of the goods. In such circumstances, great confidence is reposed in a Custom House Agent. Any misuse of such position by the Custom House Agent will have far reaching consequences in the transaction of business by the Custom House officials."

t. The recent decision of this Tribunal in the case of M/s Falcon India (Customs Broker) Vs. Commissioner of Customs, (Airport and General) New Delhi in Customs Appeal No. 50934 of 2021 dated21.03.2022, it has been observed:

"33. The above decisions lay down that the Customs Broker (or Custom House Agent) is a very important person in the transactions in the Custom House and it is appointed as an accredited broker as per the Regulations and is expected to discharge all its responsibilities under them. Violations even without intent are sufficient to take action against the appellant. While it is true, as hasbeen decided in a number of cases, that the Customs Broker is not expected to do the impossible and is not expected to physically verify the premises of the importer or doubt the documents issued by various Governmental authorities for KYC, it is equally true that the Customs Broker is expected to act with great sense of responsibility and take care of the interests of both the client and the Revenue. It is expected to advise the client to follow the laws and if the client is not complying, it is obligated under the Regulations to report to the Assistant Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner. Fulfilling such obligations is a necessary condition for the CB licence and it cannot be termed as „spying for the department" as argued by the appellant before us. It has also been argued that if it spies for the department, it will lose its business. It is evident from the facts of this case, that the appellant was not onlyaware of the benami Bills of Entry but has actually filed them with the full knowledge that they were benami and they were filed byAnil after a case of undervaluation has been booked by DRI against him. It is afraid of losing business because it has built its business model on violators who, it does not want to upset by reporting tothe department. Therefore, we find no reason to show any leniency towards the appellant. At any rate, once violation is noticed, it is notfor the Tribunal to interfere with the punishment meted out by the disciplinary authority, viz., the Commissioner unless it shocks our conscience. In this case, it does not."

u. Relying upon these decisions and the above findings, we have no reason to differ with the decision under challenge revoking the licence of the appellant which was otherwise valid up to 05.09.2023 alongwith forfeitures of the security deposit. Consequent thereto the appeal in hand is hereby dismissed.

FINAL ORDER No. 51507/2023DR. RACHNA GUPTA

The present appeal has been filed to assail the Order-in-

Original No. 43/2022 dated 07.07.2022 vide which the revocation ofappellant's customs broker license, forfeiture of security deposit and imposition of penalty of Rs.50,000/- has been ordered. The facts in brief are as follows:

Pursuant to acting on an intelligence, the goods covered by three shipping bills filed by M/s. Batra Enterprises were got examined by the officers of SIIB, ICD (Export), Tughlakabad, New Delhi on 29.01.2021 at ICD Tughlakabad Port. The aforesaid shipping bills were filed through M/s. Durga Link Logistics Pvt. Ltd. i.e. the appellant. When goods are exported, the exporter or its customs broker (the appellant in this case) files the shipping bill online on the Indian Customs EDI System (ICES). He also files the supporting documents such as invoice and packing list on the portal(e-sanchit) and files word copies of these documents which will be kept in a docket in the custom house. The scanned copies of the documents filed on e-sanchit help the officers to process the shipping bill quickly without having to refer to the physical copies inthe docket. In this case, the Customs Broker (the appellant)allowed the freight forwarder M/s. Toshnek International Freight Forwarder to use its credentials to file the documents instead of filing the documents by itself. The freight forwarder uploadeddocuments (invoice and packing list) sharing inflated quantities of pan masala when the actual documents filed in the docket shared lower quantities. This, according to the Revenue was done to claim excess IGST refund. Difference in the weight and the amount declared from the weight and amount in the packing list was observed. Following are the details:

2. Those investigations were received in the Office of Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General), New Delhi through Assistant Commissioner of Customs (SIIB), ICD-Tughlakabad (Exports) on 27.10.2021. Later a copy of Order-in-Original No. 59/2021 dated 26.10.2021 in the matter was also received on02.11.2021. Based upon the observations/findings therein and the statement of Director of appellant dated 02.07.2021 acknowledging them to be responsible for any mistake committed by Shri Pran Shanker Jha who had filed the impugned shipping bills that the Show Cause Notice No. 04/2022 dated 19.01.2022 was servedupon the appellant. It was alleged that the appellant by non-filing of shipping bills of the exporter, by not checking the correctness of information i.e. the mis-declaration of weight of pan masala in all three of the shipping bills, being the custodian of file has neglected its duties by non-uploading the proper documents, has failed to discharge his duties as customs broker. He was alleged to have contravened Regulation 10(a), 10(b), 10(d), 10(e), 10(j), 10(k) and10(q) of Customs Brokers Licensing Regulations, 2018 (herein after referred as CBLR, 2018). Accordingly, the license of the appellant with the validity till 31.03.2031, was proposed to be revoked and the penalty was proposed to be imposed. The said proposal has been confirmed vide the order under challenge. Being aggrieved the appellant is before this Tribunal.

3. We have heard Shri L.B. Yadav, learned Consultant for the appellant and Shri Girijesh Kumar, learned Authorized Representative for the department.

4. Learned counsel for the appellant has mentioned that impugned order has been passed in sheer violation of principles of natural justice as the appellant was not given any opportunity to cross-examine Shri Pran Shanker Jha, also for the reason that no finding has been given with respect to the submissions made by theappellant. It is impressed upon that appellant had always transacted the customs clearance work in the customs station either personally or through his G-card holders (two in number). He out rightly denied transacting any business at customs station through Shri Pran Shanker Jha or anybody else who was not the authorized employee of the appellant. It is mentioned that Shri Pran Shanker Jha had not transacted any business from the customs station. Shri Pran Shanker Jha was filing check lists and shipping bills online from the office of the appellant, stationed at IP Extension, New Delhi, hence there can be no violation of Regulation10(b) of CBLR, 2018.

5. It is further submitted that the exporter had admitted that theclerical error had occurred in invoice cum packing list by the staff ofthe exporter namely, Ms. Aakansha Mishra, CHA cannot be held liable for the same. No question arises for violation of Regulation 10(d) of CBLR, 2018. Nothing has been concealed from the customs authority. The difference of weight in two separate packing lists was not to the notice of the appellant or his representatives. Hence violation of Regulation 10(j) of CBLR, 2018 has wrongly been confirmed. The appellant has duly maintained up to date customs related records and had duly cooperated with the customs authorities. The order confirming violation of Regulation 10(k) and 10(q) of CBLR, 2018 respectively is also alleged to be a wrong finding. With these submissions learned counsel has prayed for setting aside the order under challenge and for the appeal to be allowed.

6. While rebutting these submissions, learned DR has mentionedthat the license of the appellant has rightly been revoked. There is no infirmity while ordering forfeiture of the whole amount of security deposit nor in imposition of penalty of Rs. 50,000/- on the appellant. In view of apparent violation of Regulation 10(b), 10(d), 10(e), 10(j), 10(k) and 10(q) of CBLR, 2018. It is mentioned that there is a sufficient admission that on behalf of the appellant, Shri Pran Shanker Jha was filing the impugned shipping bills. Though hewas employee of the freight forwarder of the exporter but appellant himself had acknowledged his responsibility for any mistake by the said representative of the freight forwarder. The said admission is sufficient to prove that CB/appellant had failed to fulfill his obligation under Section 10(b) of CBLR, 2018.

6.1 It is further submitted that different set of packing list/invoicewas found, one in the docket file and another which was uploaded on e-sanchit to avail the undue export benefits. The appellant/CB was well aware of the same, still failed to bring it to the notice ofthe department. The violation of Regulation 10(d) and 10(e) of CBLR, 2018 has rightly been confirmed. Once there is no denial for the appellant to be the custodian of the docket file, the Regulation 10(j), 10(k) and 10(q) has been violated by the appellant. It is submitted that the appellant has failed to produce any evidence to counter the allegations against him. Though he prayed for cross-examination of Shri Pran Shanker Jha and the same was allowed also. However the cross-examination could not be conducted because Shri Pran Shanker Jha had resigned the office of freight forwarder and was no more available for the purpose. With these submissions, it is impressed upon that there is no infirmity in the order under challenge. Appeal is accordingly prayed to be dismissed.

7. Having heard the rival contentions and perusing the entire records, we observe and hold as follows:

The present case is arising out of basic fact that the appellant, being the customs broker for exporter M/s. Batra Enterprise, had filed their three shipping bills dated 23.01.2021, 11.02.2021 and 16.02.2021 for export of consumer goods including pan masala. During examination it was found that weight of pan masala mentioned on invoice cum packing list was much higher than the actual weight thereof found during examination. Resultantly vide Order-in-Original No. 59/2021 dated 26.10.2021, itwas held that export of goods has been attempted to avail excess/undue export benefits such as IGST refund, than actually applicable, by way of deliberate misdeclaration/inflation of value of goods. Confirming the willful suppression and the said mis- declaration that the penalty was imposed. The impugned show cause notice dated 19.01.2022 has been issued pursuant to the aforesaid order alleging violation of several provisions of Regulation 10 of CBLR, 2018.

8. The sole adjudication in the present appeal is observed as to whether appellant has violated Regulations 10(a), 10(b), 10(d)10(e), 10(j), 10(k) and 10(q) of CBLR, 2018. For this purpose, we adjudicate regulation wise as follows:

8.1 Regulation 10(a) of CBLR, 2018. It reads as follows:

"(a) obtain an authorisation from each of the companies, firms or individuals by whom he is for the time being employed as a Customs Broker and produce such authorisation whenever required by the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissionerof Customs, as the case may be."

It is apparent from the statement of the appellant dated 02.07.2021 that there is an admission of the appellant about his knowledge for the impugned shipping bills to have been filed through the freight forwarder of the exporter. As apparent fromthe above provision, it was obligatory for the appellant to obtain an authorization even from the individuals by whom he is for the time being is employed as customs broker. Appellant has failed toproduce any such authorization from exporter M/s. Batra Enterprises mentioning Shri Pran Shanker Jha, an employee of their freight forwarder (M/s. Toshnek International) to be the authorized representative not only for the exporter but also for the customs house agent. Absence of such authorization is more than sufficient to prove the violation of 10(a) of CBLR, 2018.

8.2 Regulation 10(b) of CBLR, 2018. It reads as follows :

"(b) transact business in the Customs Station either personally or through an authorised employee duly approved by the DeputyCommissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs,as the case may be."

Though it is submitted on behalf of the appellant that no authorized person has ever appeared in customs station for the appellant and that there is no provision under CBLR, 2018 imposingrestrictions on filing on shipping bills from outside of customs station through an outsider. But simultaneously, it has been stated that Shri Pran Shanker Jha had filed the check list and shipping bill not from the customs station but from the office of the appellant stationed at IP Extension. No doubt Section 2(13) of Customs Act, 1962 defines customs station to mean any customs port, customs airport, international courier terminal, foreign post office or land customs station but the intent of Regulation 10(b) is that while transacting business in customs station, the customs broker has to transact either personally or through a authorized employee duly approved by the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs as the case may be. To our opinion the transactions of business in relation to customs house is the idea behind Regulation 10(b). Transaction of business in customs station in case of exports is filing of shipping bills along with the invoice, packing list, checklist and all other requisite documents. In today's era of virtual transactions/online processings, physical presence in customs house for transacting the business is notrequired. However, the intent of the provision remains the same that business has not to be transacted by an unauthorized person i.e. Shri Pran Shanker Jha that too to the notice and knowledge of the appellant. Apparently and admittedly the customs house related transaction of business has been done by an unauthorized person. The same is sufficient to confirm violation of 10(b) of CBLR, 2018.

8.3 Regulation 10(d) of CBLR, 2018. It reads as follows:

In the present case, it is on record that the exporter vide his statement has acknowledged that the invoice cum packing listswere prepared by their staff Ms. Aakansha Mishra, Accountant. Dueto clerical mistake on her part, the exporter also signed the same due to oversight and the documents with the said ignored clerical mistake were forwarded to their CHA (the appellant) for filing the checklist. He also approved the same due to over sightedness. In view of the said statement, we hold that there is nothing on record which may prove that the appellant acquired any knowledge about any intentional change in the documents forwarded by the appellant. We also observe that the order dated 26.10.2021 which is the basis of impugned show cause notice was appealed by the exporter as well as the present appellant. The said appeal has beenallowed vide Order No.765/2022-23 dated 24.06.2022 wherein it has also been held "there is no evidence that the appellant were aware of mismatch between actual quantity of pan masala and still they declared the wrong quantity in shipping bills. The checklist/ based upon documents provided by the exporter, which were filed by the appellant, were also approved by the exporter. Thus, it cannot be held that appellant deliberately or intentionally made a wrong declaration."

As far as the mis-declaration of quantity allegation is concerned, we observe from the said Order-in-Appeal that thegoods were duly sealed by the exporter after obtaining self sealing permission for the department. Hence, the appellant/CB had no occasion to verify the quantity and weight of the goods sealed. Theappellant had no means to verify item wise quantity or weight of the goods and in fact as, customs broker, he is not required to do so. With these findings, the penalty as was imposed upon the appellant under Section 114 (iii) was also set aside. Once there was no knowledge with the appellant about the alleged mis- declaration, once it was a case of clerical mistake and over sightedness while preparing invoice/packing list no question arises for informing anything to the department. Violation of 10(d) therefore is not sustainable. We rely upon the decision in the case of Perfect Cargo & Logistics Vs CC (A&G), New Delhi reported as 2021 (376) ELT 649 (Tri.-Del.) wherein it is held that customs house agent merely processing agent of documents with respect of clearance of goods and not inspector to weigh genuineness of transaction and that if documents submitted to G- card holder, prima facie appear to be authentic, no reason for the card holder to verify contents of documents. In the matter of Jeena and Company vs. Commissioner of Customs, Bangalorereported as 2021 (378) ELT 528 (Tri.-Bang.), it has been held that "No evidence to show that Agent had knowledge of wrong doing of importer and colluded with importer to defraud Revenue- Not appropriate to punish CHA for filing document in good faith and on basis of documents supplied by importer."

We observe that violation of this regulation has been confirmed based on the fact that two set of invoices were found. One in the records with the appellant and another in the docket file with the customs house. But appellant did not make any effort to find out the reason for issuance of different set of invoices for the same shipment. We observe that the appellant has submitted that shipping bills were filed as per the invoice cum packing list providedby the exporter. The mistake has already been acknowledged by the exporter to be a clerical mistake at the end of his Accountant namely, Ms. Aakansha Mishra. The same cannot be attributed to the appellant. We hold that these submissions are insufficient to justify the two packing lists for the same shipment. Irrespective the appellant had no mens rea to support the exporter for availing inadmissible export incentive but the fact remains is that once therecannot be two different documents as that of packing list with different description of the goods, it was the incumbent duty of the customs house agent to diligently check the veracity about the same. There is nothing on record about any such exercise of due diligence by the appellant. Hence, we do not find any infirmity withthe violation of 10(e) has been confirmed against the appellant.

8.5 Regulation 10(j), 10(k) and 10(q) of CBLR, 2018. It reads as follows:

"(j) not refuse access to, conceal, remove or destroy the whole or any part of any book, paper or other record, relating to his transactions as a Customs Broker which is sought or may be sought by the PrincipalCommissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be.

(k) maintain up to date records such as bill of entry, shipping bill,transhipment application, etc., all correspondence, other papers relatingto his business as Customs Broker and accounts including financial transactions in an orderly and itemized manner as may be specified bythe Principal Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs orthe Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be.

It has been observed that the correct invoice/packing list was not uploaded on e-sanchit by the CB but by the freight forwarder who the CB allowed to use his credentials. He could not satisfactorily answer about the change in the invoice, the violation has been confirmed. We observe that there is nothing on record to show that the appellant refused access to or concealed or removed or destroyed the whole or any part of the documents related to impugned shipping bills. There is sufficient evidence on record to show that G-Card holder of the appellant had deposited the docket file to the scanning department of the export shed who otherwise isthe custodian of the said docket file and not the customs broker as has wrongly been alleged. Neither the G-Card Holder nor the F- Card holder of appellant were aware about having different packing list in the file retained in the office of the appellant than the one as was sent to export shed as docket file. There is no allegation in theshow cause notice that up to date records were not being maintained by the appellant.

With respect to his cooperation with the customs authority, it is coming apparent that he only ensured the presence of ShriSaurabh Batra, the partner of the exporter, their employee including Ms. Aakansha Mishra and the freight forwarder i.e. Shri Pran Shanker Jha. He got his authorized representatives ShriPrasanta Kumar Samanta, the F-Card holder and Shri Om Prakash Kashyap, the G Card holder examined not once but on several occasions, Hence we find that violation of regulation 10(j), 10(k) and 10(q) has wrongly been confirmed.

9. In the light of the above discussion, we are not in conformity with the findings as far as Regulation 10(d), 10(j), 10(k) and 10(q) of CBLR, 2018 are concerned. The order under challenge is therefore set aside to this extent. However, the findings in the impugned order with respect to violation of Regulation 10(a), 10(b) and 10(e) are hereby confirmed. The order to this extent is upheld.

10. From the findings as arrived above, we are of the view that though the appellant is held guilty of the violations under Regulation 10(a), 10(b) and 10(e) but these are not so grave as to justify the revocation of the customs license. These violations are observed to be the consequence of negligence on part of the appellant custom broker. Depriving him of his livelihood is held to be disproportionate in the light of given findings. Hence, we are of the opinion that ends of justice would be met if the order offorfeiting security deposit and imposing penalty is upheld and as far as the order of revocation of license is concerned, the same be set aside. We draw our support from the decision of this Tribunal inthe case of R.S.R. Forwarders Vs. Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi reported as 2018 (364) E.L.T. 541 (Tri.-Del.) and also from the decision of N.T. Rama Rao & Co. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Chennai VIII reported as 2020 (371) ELT 789 (Tri.-Chennai). In the light of the above discussion, the order under challenge stands modified to the above discussed extent. The appeal resultantly stands partly allowed.

Date of Hearing : 25/07/2023 Date of Decision : 08/11/2023

P V SUBBA RAO:

These two appeals were originally remanded by this Tribunal by Final Order dated 21.6.2017 along with twenty more appeals to the original authority for a fresh decision in view of the judgment of the Delhi High Court in Mangli Impex Ltd. vs UOI[1] setting aside the retrospective applicability of section 28(11) of the Customs Act, 1962[2] which judgment was stayed by the Supreme Court[3]. The original authority was directed by the Final Order of this Tribunal to maintain status quo until the final decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Mangli Impex and then decide.

2. On Revenue's appeal, Delhi High Court, by its Order dated 27.8.2019, set aside the Final Order of the Tribunal dated 21.6.2017, and remanded this appeal to this Tribunal with direction to decide the matter on merits uninfluenced by the judgment in Mangli Impex. The question before Hon'ble High Court in Mangli Impex was if, by virtue of Section 28(11), the officers of DRI and others were retrospectively empowered to issue notices for demand of duty under section 28. Subsequently, there was another judgment by the Supreme Court in Canon India deciding the question of competence of officers of DRI to issue an SCN under section 28 and the Review Petition filed by the Revenue against the judgment is pending before the Supreme Court. Further, in the Finance Act, 2022, some retrospective amendments were also made to empower officers of DRI and others to issue notices under section 28 of the Customs Act. The vires of these amendments are also said to be challenged before the Supreme Court.

3. However, in this case, both sides wanted to argue the matter only on merits and hence the question of jurisdiction of the officer two issued the Show Cause Notices[4] has not been argued nor are we examining it.

4. M/s. Javeria Impex India Pvt. Ltd.[5], the appellant in Customs appeal no. 3/2011, is aggrieved by the Order in Original[6] dated October 8, 2010 whereby differential duty was demanded on the goods imported by it under two Bills of Entry dated 09.02.2009 and 17.02.2009 (hereinafter called current Bills of Entry) and five past Bills of Entry; the goods imported under the current Bills of Entry were confiscated but were allowed to be redeemed on paying redemption fine; and penalties were imposed on it. Shri Mohd. Qasim Khan[7], authorised representative of the importer filed Customs Appeal No. 4/2011 assailing the personal penalty of Rs. 15,00,000/- imposed on him by the impugned order. The operative part of the impugned order is as follows:

"(a) The declared transaction value amount to Rs.62,64,795/- of imported goods covered under Bills of Entry Nos. 7668815 dated 17.02.09, 766759 dated 09.02.09, 760587 dated 14.01.09, 746857 dated 17.11.08, 725687 dated 30.08.08, 708103 dated 04.07.08 and 698659 dated 28.05.08 is rejected under Section 14 of Customs Act, 1962 read with Rule 12 of Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007 and the same is re-determined at Rs.2,56,48,356/- (Two crore fifty six lacs forty eight thousand three hundred fifty six only) under Section 14 read with Rule 5 of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007.

(b) The seized goods valued at Rs.48,36,860/- pertaining to Bill of Entry No.766759 dated 09.02.09 are confiscated under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962. Since the seized goods have already been provisionally released to the importer on furnishing of bond equal to the value of goods supported by 15% bank guarantee, I impose redemption fine of Rs. 10,00,000/- (Ten lacs only) in lieu of confiscation under Section 125 of Customs Act, 1962. The bank guarantee furnished by the importer stands appropriated towards payment of redemption fine.

(c) The seized goods valued at Rs.63,09,086/- pertaining to Bill of Entry No.768815 dated 17.02.09 are confiscated under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962. However, I give an option to the importer to redeem the same on payment of redemption fine of Rs.12,50,000/- (Rs. Twelve lacs fifty thousand only).

(d) Since the goods covered under Bill of Entry No.766759 dated 09.02.09 have already been provisionally released to the importer on payment of duty of Rs.11,55,761/- (Rs. Eleven lacs fifty five thousand seven hundred sixty one only) on enhanced value, I appropriate the said amount towards payment of duty on the re-determined value.

(e) The goods valued at Rs.1,45,02,410/- (One crore forty five lacs two thousand four hundred ten only) covered under Bills of Entry Nos. 760587 dated 14.01.09, 746857 dated 17.11.08, 725687 dated 30.08.08, 708103 dated 04.07.08 and 698659 dated 28.05.08 are also liable for confiscation under Section 111(m) of Customs Act, 1962. However, as these are not available, I impose redemption fine of Rs.30,00,000/- (Rs. Thirty lacs only) in lieu of confiscation under Section 125 of Customs Act, 1962.

(f) The differential duty amounting to Rs.51,73,595/- pertaining to seven Bill of Entry 7668815 dated 17.02.09, 766759 dated 09.02.09, 760587 dated 14.01.09, 746857 dated 17.11.08, 725687 dated 30.08.08, 708103 dated 04.07.08 and 698659 dated 28.05.08, is hereby confirmed. The importer is directed to discharge duty liability alongwith statutory interest under Section 28AB of Customs Act, 1962.

(g) I impose a penalty of Rs.59,76,148/- (Rs.Fifty nine lacs seventy six thousand one hundred forty eight only) representing equal amount of duty plus interest on M/s.Javeria Impex India Pvt. Ltd., D-21, DDA Colony, West Gorakh Park Extn., New Zafrabad, Shahdara, Delhi under Section 114A of Customs Act, 1962. In case the importer avails the option of payment of duty alongwith interest and penalty as determined under sub-section (2) of section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962 within thirty days from the date of the communication of the order, the amount of penalty liable to be paid shall be twenty-five per cent of the duty or interest.

(h) I impose a penalty of Rs.15,00,000/- (Rs.Fifteen lacs only) on Sh. Mohd. Qasim Khan, authorized signatory of M/s.Javeria Impex India Pvt. Ltd under Section 112(a) of Customs Act, 1962."

5. The importer imported electric motors from China and filed two Bills of Entry dated February 9, 2009 and February 17, 2009 (current Bills of Entry). The Special Intelligence and Investigation[8] of the Custom House, lnland Container Depot, Tughlakabad received intelligence that the motors so imported were under-valued. Acting on this intelligence, they were examined in detail. As declared in the invoice and packing list, the 886 motors were found in the consignment of Bill of Entry dated 09.02.2009 and 408 motors were found in the consignment of Bill of Entry dated 17.02.2009 but their values appeared to be too low. The importer was asked for evidence to support their values but it could not produce anything other than the invoices.

6. The values of these goods were compared with the values of similar goods imported through several ports across the country as available in the National Import Database[9] and it was found that the declared values were quite low. Therefore, a Chartered Engineer Shri Pankaj Gupta was asked to inspect the goods and give his opinion on the value of the goods and he did so. The values determined by the Chartered Engineer were similar to the values found in the NIDB. Model wise details of the Unit value of the motors declared in the Bill of Entry, the value of similar goods available in the NIDB and the value determined by the Chartered Engineer were tabulated and were annexed as Annexure A1 and Annexure B1 to the SCN. For instance, in respect of motor Model Y2 802-4 (0.75KW), the unit value declared in the Bill of Entry dated 09.02.2009 was Rs. 590/- while the value of the similar goods as per NIDB was Rs. 2,470/- and the value determined by the Chartered Engineer is Rs. 2,225/-. Similarly, for Motor Model No. Y 2 225FS-4 (37KW) imported through Bill of Entry dated 17.02.2009 the declared value was Rs. 5,668/- while the value of similar goods in NIDB was Rs. 32,827/- and the value determined by the Chartered Engineer was Rs. 30,000/-. Similar large variations were found in the values of all the other motors.

7. Therefore, the goods imported under the two Bills of Entry were suspected to be undervalued and hence liable to confiscation under the Act and were seized under section 110 of the Act but they were later released provisionally on execution of bonds and bank guarantees.

8. The officers of SIIB also scrutinized five of the past Bills of Entry of similar goods imported by the appellant between 28.5.2008 and 14.1.2009 which had already been cleared and they came to the conclusion that they were also similarly undervalued and accordingly, the values of the goods imported under the five Bills of Entry and the corresponding values of similar goods under the NIDB database were tabulated as Annexures C, D, E,F and G to the SCN.

9. Statements of Shri Qasim were recorded under section 108 of the Act on 24.2.2009,25.2.2009 and 24.3.2209. In his statements with respect to the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2009, he said that the declared value was Rs. 11,85,733/- compared to the value of Rs. 48,36,860/- of contemporaneous imports as per the NIDB data. He made a similar statement with respect to the Bill of Entry dated 17.2.2009. He said that these variations were due to the fact that the motors which it imported were of inferior quality and also because there was recession in the market. He requested that the value may be got assessed by some expert and that he was ready to pay the differential duty and that he wanted to avoid demurrages and did not want any SCN or personal hearing and the matter may be decided at the earliest.

10. Accordingly, the imported goods in the two Bills of Entry were evaluated by Shri Pankaj Gupta, Chartered Engineer. The NIDB data and the evaluation of the imported goods by the Chartered Engineer were explained to Shri Qasim and in his statements dated 25.2.2009 and 24.3.2009, he voluntarily agreed to pay the differential duty and also said that he did not want any SCN or personal hearing. Regarding the past clearances also, he said that he had imported five or six consignments in the past and was ready to pay the differential customs duty on them as well, if any.

11. As per Rule 5(3) of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of imported goods) Rules, 2007[10] of the values of the contemporaneous imports of similar goods available in the NIDB database, the lowest value for each good imported was considered and the differential duty worked out. Although the appellant waived the SCN and the personal hearing with respect to re-assessment of the imported goods, the SCN was issued proposing recovery of differential duty for the two current and five past Bills of Entry, confiscation of the seized goods of the two current Bills of Entry (which were provisionally released) and imposition of penalties.

12. After considering the replies to the SCN, holding personal hearings and allowing the Chartered Engineer to be cross- examined by the appellant, the impugned order was passed.

13. Aggrieved, the appellants filed these appeals. On behalf of the appellants, the following submissions were made:

13.1 The impugned order is illegal, void and not sustainable either on facts or in law.

13.2 After the SCN was issued, the appellant obtained, under the Right to Information Act[11], copies of some Bills of Entry dated 13.5.2009, 29.7.2009, 14.6.2010 and 30.8.2009 under which the goods were cleared at by the department after loading 25% on the declared value. The values at which the goods were assessed by the department in these Bills of Entry were lower than what was proposed in the SCN in this case.

13.3 The Commissioner of Customs wrongly rejected the declared value under Rule 12 and no proof of contemporaneous import of similar goods at higher values was relied upon. The expert opinion is vague and is not based on any proof of similar import at higher values.

13.4 There was no admission of higher values by the appellant in the two statements made. No hawala payment or direct or indirect payment other than the declared value was noticed to substantiate the charge of mis-declaration of value by the department. Therefore, the allegation of mis-declaration is arbitrary and whimsical.

13.5 The adjudicating authority did not produce any evidence showing the alleged relied upon NIDB data. The department did not produce catalogues of the goods imported in the contemporaneous imports whose values were relied upon for re- assessment so that the appellant could compare the specifications.

13.6 In the absence of detailed information such as Bills of Entry, invoices, examination reports, etc. of all the cases whose values were relied upon, re-assessment based on such values is not correct.

13.7 NIDB data is not fool proof evidence as held in

Commissioner of Customs, vs Modern Overseas[12]

13.8 The adjudicating authority did not give any finding on the decision of Inquir Inc vs Commissioner of Customs, Chennai[13] in which the Chartered Engineer's certificate was rejected as it was vague.

13.8 The Commissioner has wrongly confirmed the demand in respect of five past Bills of Entry based on NIDB data relying on the statement of the appellant dated 25.2.2009. In his statement, the appellant had not accepted any value in respect of the past Bills of Entry. He only stated that they had imported some goods in the past under five Bills of Entry but that he did not have the details at that time and that he was willing to pay duty liability, if any, for those goods. The department did not produce any evidence of mis-declaration/suppression of facts in respect of these past Bills of Entry. The SCN dated 21.8.2009 was therefore, wrongly issued invoking extended period of limitation in respect of these five past Bills of Entry. All these five Bills of Entry were assessed by the officers on the basis of declaration by the appellant in the Bills of Entry and the after examination of the goods. In one of the Bills of Entry numbered 760587 dated 14.1.2009, the goods were assessed by enhancing the value by 25%. It is evident that the department had all the NIDB data in its possession at that time. There is now, therefore, no basis to re-assess these Bills of Entry by loading 300% value at this time.

13.9 Since the value of the goods in the current imports should not have been rejected, there is also no case to confiscate them under section 111(m). Consequently, there is no case to impose penalty under sections 114A and 112(a).

13.10 The impugned order may be set aside and the appeal may be allowed with consequential relief to the appellant.

14. On behalf of the Revenue, the following submissions were made:

14.1 The issue pertains to undervaluation of the imported goods.

The values declared in the two current Bills of Entry were compared with the NIDB data and with the reports of an expert report and were found to be quite low. Investigation was initiated and statements of Shri Qasim were recorded on 24.2.2009, 25.2.209 and 24.3.2009 under section 108 of the Customs Act.

In these statements, which have not been retracted till date, the appellant accepted the re-determination of values.

14.2 The values of contemporaneous imports of goods were comparable to the values determined by the Chartered Engineer. The differential duty was calculated accordingly.

14.3 The values of the goods imported under the five past Bills of Entry were also determined accordingly.

14.4 Once the appellant accepted the enhanced value in writing, it was binding on both sides as per section 147. In fact, there was not even a need to issue any speaking order as per section 17(5) of the Act.

14.5 There was no forced acceptance of the valuation based on the NIDB data. If the appellant did not agree to the re- determination of value, it did not have to accept the proposed value or it could have paid duty under protest. If the appellant wanted to get the goods cleared while not accepting the values proposed by the department, it could have also got the goods provisionally assessed pending finalization of assessment. If it wanted to avoid demurrages, it could have got the goods shifted to a Customs bonded warehouse under section 49.

14.6 The appellant's contention that the rejection of the transaction value under Rule 12 was not correct holds no water. The values declared in the Bills of Entry were doubted because they were far lower than the values of the contemporaneous imports available in the NIDB. When these were shown, the appellant accepted valuation on the basis of the NIDB data. Therefore, rejection of the transaction value as per Rule 12 is absolutely correct.

14.7 The appellant's contention that valuation should have been done as per Rule 3 is not correct because, Rule 3 is subject to Rule 12 under which the transaction value can be rejected as has been done in this case.

14.8 As held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Central Excise Madras vs Systems and Components Pvt. Ltd.[14], once valuation has been accepted, it need not be proved.

14.9 The appellant cannot be allowed to play a cat & mouse game with the Revenue as held by the Tribunal in Commissioner vs AR Fabrics[15].

14.10. In Commissioner of Customs vs Hanuman Prasad and sons[16], it was held that once the values determined by the officers have been accepted, they cannot be questioned later.

14.11 In Commissioner of Central Excise, Madras vs Systems & Components Pvt. Ltd.[17], Hon'ble Supreme Court held that It is a basic and settled law that what is admitted need not be proved.

15. Learned departmental representative prayed that the appeals may, therefore, be dismissed.

16. We have considered the submissions on both sides and perused the records. The following issues need to be decided:

a) Is the rejection of the transaction value of the two current Bills of Entry under Rule 12 and its re-determination by the Commissioner and confirmation of the demand of differential duty sustainable?

b) Is the rejection of transaction value and its re-determination and confirmation of demand in respect of the five past Bills of Entry sustainable?

c) Is the confiscation of the goods imported in the two Bills of Entry and their release on payment of redemption fine, sustainable?

d) Is the order holding the goods imported under the five past Bills of Entry liable to confiscation and imposition of redemption fine since they were not available, sustainable?

e) Is the imposition of penalty on the importer under section 114A sustainable?

f) Is the imposition of penalty on Shri Qasim under section 112(a) sustainable?

17. The case of the appellant is that the goods should be valued as per transaction value as per Rule 3 as there is no evidence of any payment through Hawala or any other direct or indirect payment by the importer to the overseas seller and no evidence to this effect was put forth by the Revenue. It is also its case that the appellant accepted the values proposed by the Revenue to avoid demurrages and ensure quick clearance. It is further its assertion that it has not been provided with copies of the Bills of Entry, invoices, catalogues, etc. whose values were used to reject its transaction value and therefore, there is no comparison of the value of the goods. It also asserts that the Chartered Engineer's certificate is vague and should have been rejected.

18. The case of the Revenue is that once the appellant accepted in writing the proposed transaction value based on the NIDB data, it cannot be permitted to play cat and mouse game and now (after goods have been cleared) dispute the very values which it had accepted in writing. It is also the case of the Revenue that what is accepted, need not be proved. In fact, as per Section 17(5), neither an SCN nor even a speaking order was required in this matter insofar as the re-assessment of the goods imported under the current Bills of Entry was concerned. The SCN and the impugned order was issued only because it was also proposed to re-assess the past Bills of Entry and recover differential duty under section 28 and also because goods confiscation of goods and imposition of penalties were considered.

19. We have considered these submissions. Before examining the facts of this case, we examine the relevant legal provisions, viz., Section 14 of the Act and the Rules. Duties of customs are levied on goods imported into and exported from India at the rates specified in the Schedules to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975. On some goods, the levy is based on quantity (specific duty) and other goods, it is based on value (ad valorem). If the duty is to be levied based on value, valuation for the purpose has to be done as per Section 14 which reads as follows:

(1) For the purposes of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975), or any other law for the time being in force, the value of the imported goods and export goods shall be the transaction value of such goods, that is to say, the price actually paid or payable for the goods when sold for export to India for delivery at the time and place of importation, or as the case may be, for export from India for delivery at the time and place of exportation, where the buyer and seller of the goods are not related and price is the sole consideration for the sale subject to such other conditions as may be specified in the rules made in this behalf:

Provided that such transaction value in the case of imported goods shall include, in addition to the price as aforesaid, any amount paid or payable for costs and services, including commissions and brokerage, engineering, design work, royalties and licence fees, costs of transportation to the place of importation, insurance, loading, unloading and handling charges to the extent and in the manner specified in the rules made in this behalf:

Provided further that the rules made in this behalf may provide for,-

(i) the circumstances in which the buyer and the seller shall be deemed to be related;

(ii) the manner of determination of value in respect of goods when there is no sale, or the buyer and the seller are related, or price is not the sole consideration for the sale or in any other case;

(iii) the manner of acceptance or rejection of value declared by the importer or exporter, as the case may be, where the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of such value, and determination of value for the purposes of this section:

Provided also that such price shall be calculated with reference to the rate of exchange as in force on the date on which a bill of entry is presented under section 46, or a shipping bill of export, as the case may be, is presented under section 50.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), if the Board is satisfied that it is necessary or expedient so to do, it may, by notification in the Official Gazette, fix tariff values for any class of imported goods or export goods, having regard to the trend of value of such or like goods, and where any such tariff values are fixed, the duty shall be chargeable with reference to such tariff value.

Explanation . - For the purposes of this section -

(a) rate of exchange" means the rate of exchange -

(i) determined by the Board, or

(ii) ascertained in such manner as the Board may direct, for the conversion of Indian currency into foreign currency or foreign currency into Indian currency;

(b) "foreign currency" and "Indian currency" have the meanings respectively assigned to them in clause (m) and clause (q) of section 2 of the Foreign Exchange Management Act, 1999 (42 of 1999)

20. The non-obstante clause in sub-section 2 of section 14 gives the Board the power to fix tariff values for any class of goods and if fixed, the tariff value will be the value to determine the duty. This sub-section is not relevant to this case. In all other cases, the value to be reckoned for calculating the Customs duty shall be the transaction value subject to five conditions:

a) Buyer and seller are not related.

b) Price is for delivery at the time and place of importation, i.e., all costs up to the point of import are to be included. For instance, if the sale is on Free on Board basis, the costs of transportation to the place of import, transit insurance, etc. will have to be added.

c) Price is the sole consideration for sale.

d) Some amounts indicated in the first proviso to sub-section 1 of section 14 must be included.

e) Valuation will be as per any other conditions as may be specified in the Rules.

21. Thus, the default position is that the valuation has to be done on the basis of the transaction value and not based on any fixed value. The first proviso to sub-section 1 of section 14 provides for some additions to the transaction value which are not relevant for the present case. The second proviso to this sub- section provides for Rules to be made in this behalf to provide for:

a) the circumstances in which the buyer and the seller shall be deemed to be related; the manner of determination of value in respect of goods

when there is no sale,

b) the manner of determination of value in respect of goods if the buyer and the seller are related,

c) the manner of determination of value in respect of goods where price is not the sole consideration for the sale;

d) the manner of determination of value in respect of goods in any other case; and

e) the manner of acceptance or rejection of value declared by the importer or exporter, as the case may be, where the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of such value, and determination of value for the purposes of this section.

22. The Rules were framed as per the second proviso to sub- section 1 of section 14. These are 13 Rules in all of which Rules 1 and 2 are Preliminary rules. Rule 3 states that subject to Rule 12, the value shall be the transaction value adjusted according to Rule 10. Rule 10 provides for certain costs to be included in the transaction value. Rule 12 provides for the proper officer to reject the transaction value if he has reason to doubt its truth and accuracy. Thus, unless the proper officer rejects the transaction value under Rule 12, valuation has to be based on transaction value as per Rule 3 with some additions, if necessary, as per Rule 10.

23. Rule 3 further provides that if the valuation cannot be done under that Rule, i.e., as per the transaction value with additions as per Rule 10, then it must be done sequentially under Rules 4 to 9. Rule 4 provides for the valuation to be done on the basis of identical goods. Rule 5 provides for the valuation to be done on the basis of the value of similar goods. Rule 6 states if Rules 4 and 5 cannot determine the value then they must be done as per Rule 7 and thereafter Rule 8 but this sequence can be reversed at the option of the importer. In other words, if the importer so chooses, Rule 8 can be applied directly instead of Rule 7. Rule 7 provides for a deductive method of valuation on the basis of prices of similar or identical goods sold in India and after making some deductions from such prices. Rule 8 provides for a computed value, i.e., based on the cost of raw material, cost of manufacture, reasonable profit, etc. In view of Rule 6, the importer may choose the computed value without examining the feasibility of determining value through deductive methods. Rule 9 is a residual method which provides for determining the value where it cannot be determined under Rules 3 to 8. Rule 10, as already discussed, provides for some costs to be added to the transaction value if the valuation is done as per Rule 3. Rule 11 requires the importer to make a declaration. Rule 12 lays down the provision for rejection of transaction value. Rule 13 provides for interpretative notes for the Rules.

23. To sum up, valuation has to be done sequentially as follows:

a) If a tariff value is fixed by the Board, it is the value (sub- section 2 of Section 14);

b) If no tariff value is fixed by the Board, valuation is as per the transaction value, if necessary, with some additions (as per the first proviso to sub-section 1 of section 14 and as per Rule 10);

c) If the transaction value is rejected as per Rule 12 by the proper officer, valuation has to be done as per the value of identical goods (Rule 4);

d) If transaction value is rejected and there is no value of identical goods, then it must be as per the value of similar goods (Rule 5);

e) If transaction value is rejected and there is no value of identical goods or similar goods, value must be determined through Deductive method (Rule 7)

f) If transaction value is rejected and there is no value of identical goods or similar goods and it is not possible to determine value following deductive method, then value must be determined through computation (Rule 8)

g) If the importer so chooses, computational method may be adopted without examining the deductive method first (Rule 6).

h) If the transaction value is rejected and there is no value of identical goods or similar goods and if it is also not possible to determine the value through deductive method or computational method, then value may be determined through the residual method by the officer following the above principles (Rule 9).

24. The next question which arises is when can the proper officer reject the transaction value. Rule 12 reads as follows:

12. Rejection of declared value. -

(1) When the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to any imported goods, he may ask the importer of such goods to furnish further information including documents or other evidence and if, after receiving such further information, or in the absence of a response of such importer, the proper officer still has reasonable doubt about the truth or accuracy of the value so declared, it shall be deemed that the transaction value of such imported goods cannot be determined under the provisions of sub-rule (1) of rule 3.

(2) At the request of an importer, the proper officer, shall intimate the importer in writing the grounds for doubting the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to goods imported by such importer and provide a reasonable opportunity of being heard, before taking a final decision under sub-rule (1).

Explanation.-(1) For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that:-

(i) This rule by itself does not provide a method for determination of value, it provides a mechanism and procedure for rejection of declared value in cases where there is reasonable doubt that the declared value does not represent the transaction value; where the declared value is rejected, the value shall be determined by proceeding sequentially in accordance with rules 4 to 9.

(ii) The declared value shall be accepted where the proper officer is satisfied about the truth and accuracy of the declared value after the said enquiry in consultation with the importers.

(iii) The proper officer shall have the powers to raise doubts on the truth or accuracy of the declared value based on certain reasons which may include -

(a) the significantly higher value at which identical or similar goods imported at or about the same time in comparable quantities in a comparable commercial transaction were assessed;

(b) the sale involves an abnormal discount or abnormal reduction from the ordinary competitive price;

(c) the sale involves special discounts limited to exclusive agents;

(d) the mis-declaration of goods in parameters such as description, quality, quantity, country of origin, year of manufacture or production;

(e) the non declaration of parameters such as brand, grade, specifications that have relevance to value;

(f) the fraudulent or manipulated documents.

25. Thus, if the officer has reason to doubt the truth and accuracy of the transaction value, he can call for information including documents and evidence. If the information and evidence is presented and after examining it or if no information or evidence as called for is presented, if the proper office has reasonable belief then it shall be deemed that the value cannot be determined as per Rule 3 (i.e., based on transaction value with additions, if necessary). While the officer can, in the first place call for information and evidence if he has reason to doubt, at the second stage, he should have not just some reason to doubt but a reasonable doubt. If he has such reasonable doubt, then the transaction value can be rejected. The grounds on which the proper officer may raise doubts about the truth and accuracy of the transaction value have been illustrated in explanation 1 (iii) to Rule 12. The list is inclusive and not exhaustive.

26. In this case, the officers received intelligence that the motors imported by the appellant were under-valued. Acting on this intelligence, the goods were examined in detail and they were found as declared in the two Bills of Entry but their values appeared to be too low. The importer was asked for evidence to support their values but it could not produce anything other than the invoices. The declared values were compared with the values of similar goods imported through several ports across the country as available in the NIDB and it was found that the declared values were, indeed, quite low. A Chartered Engineer Shri Pankaj Gupta was asked to inspect the goods and give his opinion on the value of the goods and he did so. The values determined by the Chartered Engineer were similar to the values found in the NIDB.

27. In this factual matrix when the officers had, in the first place, a reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of the transaction value. They called for further information from the importer but it could only supply the invoices to support its claim of the invoice value. Therefore, the officers had correctly crossed the first stage of ‘reason to doubt’ provided in Rule 12.

28. Statements of Shri Qasim were recorded under section 108 of the Act on 24.2.2009, 25.2.2009 and 24.3.2209. With respect to the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2009, he said that the declared value was Rs. 11,85,733/- compared to the value of Rs. 48,36,860/- of contemporaneous imports as per the NIDB data. He made a similar statement with respect to the Bill of Entry dated 17.2.2009. He said that these variations were due to the fact that the motors which it imported are of inferior quality and that there was recession in the market. He requested that the value may be got assessed by some expert and that he was ready to pay the differential duty and that he wanted to avoid demurrages and did not want any SCN or personal hearing and the matter may be decided at the earliest. The goods were got assessed by the Chartered Engineer who also assessed the value of the goods similar to the values found in the NIDB. Therefore, the officers successfully crossed the second stage of 'reasonable doubt' under Rule 12 to reject the transaction value. We also find that in his statements, Shri Qasim specifically agreed to the valuation and agreed to pay the differential duty. In his statement dated 24.2.2009, he, interalia, stated:

… I further state that assessable value worked on the basis of the NIDB data may be correct and my declared prices are already on higher side and in order to arrive at the fair reasonable assessable value I request you that the valuation of my imported goods may also be got done from some expert in this regard as there is a great difference in the prices declared by me and the value compiled on the basis of the NIDB data. I further state that I am ready to pay duty whatever fair assessable value is worked out. I further submit that due to heavy demurrages and other charges my case may be decided at the earliest and a lenient view may be taken and I also submit that I do not want any show cause notice or personal hearing in this matter.

29. The appellant while agreeing to the valuation and waiving the SCN and personal hearing also sought that the goods may also be got examined by an expert. The goods had already been examined by a Chartered Engineer who submitted his report dated 23.2.2009. Another statement of Shri Qasim was recorded on 25.2.2009 in which he was shown the Chartered Engineer's certificate as well as the charts showing the values as per the NIDB data. In his statement, he, inter alia, stated as follows:

.. I have been shown the chart prepared by the Customs officials on the basis of the Chartered Engineer report according to which the value of the imported goods is Rs. 44,01,050 and the Customs duty on this value comes to Rs. 10,51,625/- I have seen the Chartered Engineer certificate Ref no. PG/CRT/424/IMP/2008-09 dated 23.02.2009 and I have signed the same in token of its correctness. I have also been shown the chart prepared by the Customs officers on the basis of NIDB data as per the chart the assessable value of my imported goods i.e., 886 pieces of assorted electrical motors of different KVA vide Bill of Entry No 766759 dated 9.2.09 has been worked out to Rs. 48,36,860/- and the customs duty has been worked out to Rs. 11,56,761/-. I have also signed the statement in token of its correctness.

I further state that the value as per the NIDB chart is correct and I am ready to pay Customs duty on this value as the margin of difference in the NIDB data and Chartered Engineer is very less and according to me the assesseable value of Rs. 48,36,860/- and the duty on this value Rs. 11, 56,761/- is fair assessable value and I will deposit the same within two-three days......

I further state that in the past I have imported the same goods by 2-3 Bills of Entry from China. At present I am not having the details, I am ready to pay Customs duty for the same if any.

30. Another statement was recorded on 24.3.2009 in which Shri Qasim, inter alia, stated as below:

method and basis of enchancement of declared value on the basis of the NIDB data has been explained to me and according to me it is a correct and fair method and I accept the enhanced declared value from Rs. 15,36,473/- to Rs 63,09,086/- for 408 pieces of electric motors of assorted KWs for the Bill of Entry dated 17.2.09, in token of my acceptance I have signed the chart prepared by the Customs officers today on 24.3.09 and I am ready to pay Customs duty. Further, I have been shown the certificate of Shri Pankaj Gupta, Chartered Engineer dated 21.3.09 and as per the valuation of the chartered engineer, the assessable value of the 408 pieces of electric motors works out toRs.61,21,950/- I have also signed the same in respect of B/E No. 768815 dated 17.02.09.

31. Having rejected the declared assessable value under Rule 12, the department sought to re-determine it under Rule 5 based on the contemporaneous value of similar goods imported into the country. It needs to be noted that since the imported goods were miscellaneous motors of various specifications there cannot be identical goods to determine duty as per Rule 4 and hence determining duty on the basis of values of similar goods under Rule 5 is fair and proper. To determine the value of the contemporaneous imports, the relevant data was extracted from the NIDB. The department also referred the matter to a Chartered Engineer to determine the value of the imported goods. In his first statement dated 24.2.2009, Shri Qasim was shown the NIDB data and he requested that the matter may also be referred to an expert to arrive at a fair value. On 25.2.2009, Shri Qasim was shown both the NIDB values and the report of the Chartered Engineer and he made a categorical statement accepting the chart prepared by the Customs officers based on the NIDB data with respect to the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2009 that he accepts the value proposed by the Customs officers and that he was ready to pay the Customs duty accordingly. Further, he had also indicated that he did not want either an SCN or a personal hearing in the matter. He made a similar statement on 24.3.2009 with respect to the Bill of Entry dated 17.2.2009. None of the three statements have been retracted till date.

32. The appellant is now disputing the NIDB data on the ground that the Bills of Entry of the data and the brochures related to the goods imported under them were not provided to him. The appellant is also asserting that the Chartered Engineer's certificate is vague.

33. The appellant cannot be permitted to take this stand at this stage. It is a well-settled legal principle that what is admitted need not be proved. Every case, civil, criminal or otherwise, involves multitude of facts and evidence need not be produced by any side on all such facts. Only such facts which are asserted by one and disputed by the other need to be proved and the party asserting them has to produce evidence. For instance, if A says that he lent a sum of Rs. 1,000/- to B and that B did not returned it and B accepts that A had lent him the money but says that he returned it, the only fact which needs to be determined is if B returned the money or not. The fact that A had lent the money is not disputed and A need not prove it. Section 58 of the Indian Evidence Act,1872 clarifies this position. It reads as follows:

Indian Evidence Act

Section 58. Facts admitted need not be proved.

No fact need be proved in any proceeding which the parties thereto or their agents agree to admit at the hearing, or which, before the hearing, they agree to admit by any writing under their hands, or which by any rule of pleading in force at the time they are deemed to have admitted by their pleadings:

Provided that the Court may, in its discretion, require the facts admitted to be proved otherwise than by such admissions.

34. In this case, since the fact that the goods were undervalued and the correct assessable value for the goods imported under the two Bills of Entry dated 9.2.2009 and 17.2.2009 are as per the charts prepared by the officers as per the NIDB data was not only not disputed but positively accepted, in writing, by the appellant, these facts were not in dispute and neither side needed to produce any evidence. Therefore, there is no force the submissions of the learned counsel for the appellants that the department failed to provide evidence in support. Revenue need not produce any evidence. In fact, it did not have to even issue the SCN or hold a personal hearing insofar as the re-assessment of these two Bills of Entry is concerned because the appellant had waived them in writing.

35. The appellant's contention that it had accepted the value to avoid demurrages also does not hold any water. There is nothing on record to show that its acceptance was not voluntary. On the contrary all three statements explicitly state that the statements were voluntary and none of them have been retracted. If the appellant wanted to avoid demurrages and was not willing to accept the valuation, the appellant could have transferred the goods to a Customs bonded warehouse under section 49 and it would not have had to pay any demurrages but only the rent to the warehouse keeper. The appellant could have, as an alternative, disagreed with the re-assessment but paid duty under protest and asked for a speaking order. The appellant could also have sought provisional assessment. All these alternative methods are routinely used in the Custom houses by the importers.

36. Learned counsel also submitted that the NIDB data is not unquestionable and that the Chartered Engineer's certificate is vague and hence should be rejected. In this case, the NIDB data has not only NOT been questioned but has positively been accepted by the appellant. The Chartered Engineer's certificate was also provided to the appellant and he had not disputed it at all. After seeing both and the chart of valuation prepared by the Customs authorities, the appellant explicitly agreed to the valuation. What is accepted need not be proved. It has been held by the Supreme Court in Systems & Components Pvt. Ltd. as follows:

4. The Collector (Appeals) relied upon a Circular issued by the Board of Central Excise dated 25th September 1986 and held that Receivers, Surge Drums and Flash Vessels were classifiable under Tariff Item 73.11 and the Drain Pot under 73.10. It was held that the oil separator would be classifiable under 84.79 and Base Frame under 7308.90.

5. The Appeal filed by the Department has been disposed of by the Tribunal by holding that the Department has not proved that these parts were specifically designed for manufacture of water chilling plant in question. The Tribunal has noted the Technical details supplied by the Respondents and the letter by the Respondents dated 30th November 1993 giving details of how these parts are used in the Chilling Plant. The Tribunal has still strangely held that this by itself is not sufficient to show that they are specifically designed for the purpose of assembling the Chilling Plant. We are unable to understand this reasoning. Once it is an admitted position by the party itself, that they have no independent use there is no need for the Department to prove. It is a basic and settled law that what is admitted need not be proved.

37. The appellant also submitted that some Bills of Entry of other importers were obtained by it under the RTI Act from the Customs authorities which show that similar goods were cleared at lower values. We have examined this submission and find that the Bills of Entry which the appellant obtained were those which were filed after the disputed two Bills of Entry. It is a well settled legal principle that when goods are assessed based on values of contemporaneous imports, they refer to only imports which have already taken place, i.e., past Bills of Entry and not based on Bills of Entry which may be filed in future. The reason for this is that the assessment can be done based on what is available at the time of filing of the Bill of Entry and not anticipating what may happen in future. Therefore, there is no force in this argument either.

38. The correctness of the values determined by the determined and accepted by the appellant cannot, therefore, be questioned as they were undisputed. In a similar situation, where the importer accepted the re-assessment by the officers and after clearing the goods, filed an appeal questioning the same values which the appellant had accepted, this Tribunal had in Hanuman Prasad & Sons held as follows:

35. The following position emerges from the aforesaid decisions of the Tribunal:

(i) When an importer consents to the enhancement of value, it becomes unnecessary for the revenue to establish the valueaion as the consented value, in effect, becomes the declared transaction value requiring no further investigation;

(ii) When an importer accepts the loaded value of the goods without any protest or objection, the importer cannot be permitted to deny its correctness;

(iii) The burden of the department to establish the declared value to be incorrect is discharged if the enhanced value is voluntarily accepted.

39. The decision in Hanuman Prasad & Sons was followed in several other decisions. We, therefore, answer question (a) framed by us in paragraph 16 in favour of the Revenue and against the appellants.

Re-determination of value and confirmation of demand in respect of the five past Bills of Entry

40. Insofar as the past five Bills of Entry are concerned, the case of the appellant is that the goods were cleared by the officers after examination and in respect of one of the Bills of Entry, the declared assessable value was also enhanced by 25% by the officer re-assessing the Bill of Entry. Therefore, there is no case to allege undervaluation much later and demanding duty under section 28 invoking extended period of limitation alleging suppression.

41. The case of the Revenue is that the appellant had agreed to pay the differential duty in respect of these five Bills of Entry in its statement and it cannot be allowed to renege at this stage. Just like the demand for the two current Bills of Entry, the demand of differential duty for these five Bills of Entry also needs to be upheld.

42. We find strong force in the submissions of the appellant.

Once the goods are cleared for home consumption after examination and assessment, unless there is an evidence to support, demand under section 28 invoking extended period of limitation cannot be raised unless there is evidence of collusion or willful mis-statement or suppression of facts are proven. There is no allegation or evidence in this case of collusion. The reason for invoking extended period of limitation given in the SCN is as follows:

" 12. Whereas, the importer had mis-declared the value of imported goods in the past consignments also and the value appeared to be grossly undervalued. Therefore, it appears that the declared invoice value is not free from doubts and same is not in conformity with section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962. Hence, it gave sufficient reasons to doubt the truth or accuracy of the invoice value declared in relation to the goods imported vide above said 7 Bills of Entry No. 768815 dated 17.02.09, 766759 dated 09.02.2009, 760587

28.05.08. No further information/ documents or any other evidence was provided by the importer to substantiate their declared invoice value."

43. Evidently, the SCN alleges mis-declaration and does not even allege that it was willful, let alone producing any evidence to the effect.

44. Learned authorised representative submitted that the appellant had agreed to pay the differential duty in respect of the past cases also. We have seen the Statement of the appellant given on 25.2.2009 and the relevant portion of it is as follows:

I further state that in the past I have imported the same goods by 2-3 Bills of Entry from China. At present I am not having the details, I am ready to pay Customs duty for the same if any.

45. A plain reading of the above shows that at the time of recording the statement, the appellant could not remember the exact number of Bills of Entry filed before and also did not have the details. All that is stated is that he is ready to pay Customs Duty for the same, if any. Neither were the details of the Bills of Entry nor the goods imported under them, their declared values, corresponding values of goods in the NIDB and why it became necessary to re-open the assessment which were already finalized shown to the appellant nor were they agreed to. This statement does not support the case of the Revenue in any sense.

46. We, therefore, answer the question (b) in paragraph 16 above in favour of the appellant and against the Revenue.

Confiscation of the goods imported in the two Bills of Entry and their release on payment of redemption fine

47. The goods imported under the two Bills of Entry valued at Rs. 48,36,860/- were seized and they were provisionally released on bond and bank guarantee. In the impugned order, they were confiscated under section 111(m) and released on payment of redemption fine of Rs. 10,00,000 under section 125 and the Bank Guarantee given by the appellant was appropriated towards it. Section 111(m) and section 125 read as follows:

111. Confiscation of improperly imported goods, etc.—The following goods brought from a place outside India shall be liable to confiscation:—

(m) any goods which do not correspond in respect of value or in any other particular with the entry made under this Act or in the case of baggage with the declaration made under section 77 in respect thereof, or in the case of goods under transhipment, with the declaration for transhipment referred to in the proviso to sub-section (1) of section 54

125. Option to pay fine in lieu of confiscation.—(1) Whenever confiscation of any goods is authorised by this Act, the officer adjudging it may, in the case of any goods, the importation or exportation whereof is prohibited under this Act or under any other law for the time being in force, and shall, in the case of any other goods, give to the owner of the goods or, where such owner is not known, the person from whose possession or custody such goods have been seized, an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the said officer thinks fit:

Provided that where the proceedings are deemed to be concluded under the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 28 or under clause (i) of sub-section (6) of that section in respect of the goods which are not prohibited or restricted, the provisions of this section shall not apply:

Provided further that, without prejudice to the provisions of the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 115, such fine shall not exceed the market price of the goods confiscated, less in the case of imported goods the duty chargeable thereon.

48. Section 111(m) provides for confiscation of imported goods which do not correspond in value or in any other particular to the entry made. The case of the appellant is that since the re-assessment itself is not sustainable, neither is the confiscation. The case of the Revenue is that the confiscation was done correctly. As we have already found that the goods were correctly re-assessed, section 111(m) squarely applies to the goods in question and therefore, their confiscation needs to be upheld.

49. Once the goods are confiscated, section 125 requires that, unless the goods are prohibited goods, the owner should be given an option to redeem the goods on payment of fine. If they are prohibited goods, the adjudicating authority has the discretion of allowing redemption or not. This section further restricts the quantum of penalty to the market value of the goods. It is not the case of either side that the motors imported by the appellant were prohibited goods. Therefore, they were released on redemption fine. The seized goods imported under Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2009 were valued at Rs. 48,36,860/- and the redemption fine imposed was Rs. 10,00,000/-. The seized goods imported under Bill of Entry dated 17.2.2009 were valued at Rs. 63,09,086/- and the redemption fine imposed was Rs. 12,50,000/. In the factual matrix of this case, the fines imposed are, in our opinion, fair.

50. We, therefore, answer question (c) of paragraph 16 in favour of the Revenue.

Order holding the goods imported under the five past Bills of Entry liable to confiscation and imposition of redemption fine since they were not available.

51. The adjudicating authority also held that the goods imported under the past five Bills of Entry valued at Rs. 1,45,02,410/- were liable to confiscation under section 111(m) and imposed redemption fine of Rs. 30,00,000/-. As we have found that the demand under section 28 re-assessing the duty in respect of these five Bills of Entry is not sustainable, the confiscation of the goods imported under them as well as redemption fine also need to be set aside. Even otherwise, the goods which are not available cannot be either seized or confiscated. This is because, on confiscation, the property vests in the Government and if the importer opts to redeem them, he can pay the redemption fine and get the goods released. If the goods are not available neither can the government take over the goods nor can it return them to the owner or payment of fine. The case of the goods imported under the above two Bills of Entry was different as they were seized and were provisionally released on execution of a bond and bank guarantee. The bond and bank guarantee are meant to cover the redemption fine, if any, imposed if the goods are confiscated and released. We, therefore, answer question (d) of paragraph 16 in favour of the Appellant.

Penalty on the importer under section 114A

52. In the impugned order, penalty of Rs. 59,76,148/- being the importer being the amount equal to the differential duty demanded under section 28 (in respect of the five Bills of Entry) and interest thereon under section 114A of the Act. This section reads as follows:

114A. Penalty for short-levy or non-levy of duty in certain cases.—

Where the duty has not been been levied or has been short- levied or the interest has not been charged or paid or has been part paid or the duty or interest has been erroneously refunded by reason of collusion or any wilful mis-statement or suppression of facts, the person who is liable to pay the duty or interest, as the case may be, as determined under sub-section (8) of section 28 shall, also be liable to pay a penalty equal to the duty or interest so determined:

Provided that where such duty or interest, as the case may be, as determined under sub-section (8) of section 28, and the interest payable thereon under section 28AA, is paid within thirty days from the date of the communication of the order of the proper officer determining such duty, the amount of penalty liable to be paid by such person under this section shall be twenty-five per cent. of the duty or interest, as the case may be, so determined: ******

53. As we have found that the demand of differential duty under section 28 in respect of the past Bills of Entry cannot be sustained, we set aside the penalty under section114A as well. As far as the duty on the two current Bills of Entry are concerned, they are a matter of re-assessment under section 17 and not a case of duty not levied or short levied under section 28. We, therefore, answer question (e) of paragraph 16 in favour of the appellant.

Penalty on Shri Qasim under section 112(a)

54. In the impugned order, penalty of Rs. 15,00,000/- was imposed on Shri Mohd. Qasim Khan under section 112(a) of the Act. This section reads as follows:

112. Penalty for improper importation of goods, etc.— Any person,—

(a) who, in relation to any goods, does or omits to do any act which act or omission would render such goods liable to confiscation under section 111, or abets the doing or omission of such an act, or

(b) who acquires possession of or is in any way concerned in carrying, removing, depositing, harbouring, keeping, concealing, selling or purchasing, or in any other manner dealing with any goods which he knows or has reason to believe are liable to confiscation under section 111, shall be liable,—

(i) in the case of goods in respect of which any prohibition is in force under this Act or any other law for the time being in force, to a penalty 5 [not exceeding the value of the goods or five thousand rupees], whichever is the greater

(ii) in the case of dutiable goods, other than prohibited goods, subject to the provisions of section 114A, to a penalty not exceeding ten per cent. of the duty sought to be evaded or five thousand rupees, whichever is higher:

Provided that where such duty as determined under sub- section (8) of section 28 and the interest payable thereon under section 28AA is paid within thirty days from the date of communication of the order of the proper officer determining such duty, the amount of penalty liable to be paid by such person under this section shall be twenty-five per cent. of the penalty so determined;

(iii) in the case of goods in respect of which the value stated in the entry made under this Act or in the case of baggage, in the declaration made under section 77 (in either case hereafter in this section referred to as the declared value) is higher than the value thereof, to a penalty not exceeding the difference between the declared value and the value thereof or five thousand rupees, whichever is the greater;

(iv) in the case of goods falling both under clauses (i) and (iii), to a penalty not exceeding the value of the goods or the difference between the declared value and the value thereof or five thousand rupees, whichever is the highest;

(v) in the case of goods falling both under clauses (ii) and (iii), to a penalty not exceeding the duty sought to be evaded on such goods or the difference between the declared value and the value thereof or five thousand rupees, whichever is the highest.

55. We have already found that the confiscation of the goods imported under the two current Bills of Entry and their release on payment of redemption fine need to be upheld and we have set aside the confiscation and imposition of redemption fine in respect of the five past Bills of Entry. We have also upheld the re-assessment of duty in the two current Bills of Entry and set aside the demand of duty under section 28 in respect of the five past Bills of Entry. Shri Qasim is the person most directly connected with the filing of the two Bills of Entry and the values of the goods in these did not match the imported goods which rendered the goods liable to confiscation under section 111(m). Therefore, Shri Qasim squarely falls under Section 112(a) and is liable to penalty under it.

56. However, in the impugned order, penalty under section 112(a) has been imposed considering the differential duty confirmed in respect of the two current and five past Bills of Entry. We have already found that the demand in respect of the five past Bills of Entry cannot be sustained. We, therefore, find it proper to reduce the penalty on Shri Qasim also from Rs. 15,00,000/- to Rs. 3,00,000/-

57. In view of the above:

a) Customs Appeal No. 3/2011 filed by M/s. Jhaveria Impex is partly allowed by upholding the re-assessment of duty in the impugned order in respect of the two current Bills of Entry filed on 9.2.2009 and 17.2.2009 and confiscation of the goods imported under these two Bills of Entry and the redemption fines imposed. The demand of duty on the five past Bills of Entry, confiscation of the goods imported under them and imposition of redemption fine in lieu of the confiscation and the fine under section 114A are set aside. The appellant will be entitled to consequential relief, if any.

b) Customs Appeal No. 4/2011 filed by Shri Mohd. Qasim Khan is partly allowed by reducing the penalty imposed on him under section 112(a) from Rs. 15,00,000/- to Rs. 3,00,000/-. The appellant will be entitled to consequential relief, if any.

P V SUBBA RAO:

These two appeals were originally remanded by this Tribunal by Final Order dated 21.6.2017 along with twenty more appeals to the original authority for a fresh decision in view of the judgment of the Delhi High Court in Mangli Impex Ltd. vs UOI[1] setting aside the retrospective applicability of section 28(11) of the Customs Act, 1962[2] which judgment was stayed by the Supreme Court[3]. The original authority was directed by the Final Order of this Tribunal to maintain status quo until the final decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Mangli Impex and then decide.

24. On Revenue's appeal, Delhi High Court, by its Order dated 27.8.2019, set aside the Final Order of the Tribunal dated 21.6.2017, and remanded this appeal to this Tribunal with direction to decide the matter on merits uninfluenced by the judgment in Mangli Impex. The question before Hon'ble High Court in Mangli Impex was if, by virtue of Section 28(11), the officers of DRI and others were retrospectively empowered to issue notices for demand of duty under section 28. Subsequently, there was another judgment by the Supreme Court in Canon India deciding the question of competence of officers of DRI to issue an SCN under section 28 and the Review Petition filed by the Revenue against the judgment is pending before the Supreme Court. Further, in the Finance Act, 2022, some retrospective amendments were also made to empower officers of DRI and others to issue notices under section 28 of the Customs Act. The vires of these amendments are also said to be challenged before the Supreme Court.

25. However, in this case, both sides wanted to argue the matter only on merits and hence the question of jurisdiction of the officer two issued the Show Cause Notices[4] has not been argued nor are we examining it.

26. M/s. Javeria Impex India Pvt. Ltd.[5], the appellant in Customs appeal no. 3/2011, is aggrieved by the Order in Original[6] dated October 8, 2010 whereby differential duty was demanded on the goods imported by it under two Bills of Entry dated 09.02.2009 and 17.02.2009 (hereinafter called current Bills of Entry) and five past Bills of Entry; the goods imported under the current Bills of Entry were confiscated but were allowed to be redeemed on paying redemption fine; and penalties were imposed on it. Shri Mohd. Qasim Khan[7], authorised representative of the importer filed Customs Appeal No. 4/2011 assailing the personal penalty of Rs. 15,00,000/- imposed on him by the impugned order. The operative part of the impugned order is as follows:

"(a) The declared transaction value amount to Rs.62,64,795/- of imported goods covered under Bills of Entry Nos. 7668815 dated 17.02.09, 766759 dated 09.02.09, 760587 dated 14.01.09, 746857 dated 17.11.08, 725687 dated 30.08.08, 708103 dated 04.07.08 and 698659 dated 28.05.08 is rejected under Section 14 of Customs Act, 1962 read with Rule 12 of Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007 and the same is re-determined at Rs.2,56,48,356/- (Two crore fifty six lacs forty eight thousand three hundred fifty six only) under Section 14 read with Rule 5 of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007.

(i) The seized goods valued at Rs.48,36,860/- pertaining to Bill of Entry No.766759 dated 09.02.09 are confiscated under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962. Since the seized goods have already been provisionally released to the importer on furnishing of bond equal to the value of goods supported by 15% bank guarantee, I impose redemption fine of Rs. 10,00,000/- (Ten lacs only) in lieu of confiscation under Section 125 of Customs Act, 1962. The bank guarantee furnished by the importer stands appropriated towards payment of redemption fine.

(j) The seized goods valued at Rs.63,09,086/- pertaining to Bill of Entry No.768815 dated 17.02.09 are confiscated under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962. However, I give an option to the importer to redeem the same on payment of redemption fine of Rs.12,50,000/- (Rs. Twelve lacs fifty thousand only).

(k) Since the goods covered under Bill of Entry No.766759 dated 09.02.09 have already been provisionally released to the importer on payment of duty of Rs.11,55,761/- (Rs. Eleven lacs fifty five thousand seven hundred sixty one only) on enhanced value, I appropriate the said amount towards payment of duty on the re-determined value.

(l) The goods valued at Rs.1,45,02,410/- (One crore forty five lacs two thousand four hundred ten only) covered under Bills of Entry Nos. 760587 dated 14.01.09, 746857 dated 17.11.08, 725687 dated 30.08.08, 708103 dated 04.07.08 and 698659 dated 28.05.08 are also liable for confiscation under Section 111(m) of Customs Act, 1962. However, as these are not available, I impose redemption fine of Rs.30,00,000/- (Rs. Thirty lacs only) in lieu of confiscation under Section 125 of Customs Act, 1962.

(m) The differential duty amounting to Rs.51,73,595/- pertaining to seven Bill of Entry 7668815 dated 17.02.09, 766759 dated 09.02.09, 760587 dated 14.01.09, 746857 dated 17.11.08, 725687 dated 30.08.08, 708103 dated 04.07.08 and 698659 dated 28.05.08, is hereby confirmed. The importer is directed to discharge duty liability alongwith statutory interest under Section 28AB of Customs Act, 1962.

(n) I impose a penalty of Rs.59,76,148/- (Rs.Fifty nine lacs seventy six thousand one hundred forty eight only) representing equal amount of duty plus interest on M/s.Javeria Impex India Pvt. Ltd., D-21, DDA Colony, West Gorakh Park Extn., New Zafrabad, Shahdara, Delhi under Section 114A of Customs Act, 1962. In case the importer avails the option of payment of duty alongwith interest and penalty as determined under sub-section (2) of section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962 within thirty days from the date of the communication of the order, the amount of penalty liable to be paid shall be twenty-five per cent of the duty or interest.

(o) I impose a penalty of Rs.15,00,000/- (Rs.Fifteen lacs only) on Sh. Mohd. Qasim Khan, authorized signatory of M/s.Javeria Impex India Pvt. Ltd under Section 112(a) of Customs Act, 1962."

27. The importer imported electric motors from China and filed two Bills of Entry dated February 9, 2009 and February 17, 2009 (current Bills of Entry). The Special Intelligence and Investigation[8] of the Custom House, lnland Container Depot, Tughlakabad received intelligence that the motors so imported were under-valued. Acting on this intelligence, they were examined in detail. As declared in the invoice and packing list, the 886 motors were found in the consignment of Bill of Entry dated 09.02.2009 and 408 motors were found in the consignment of Bill of Entry dated 17.02.2009 but their values appeared to be too low. The importer was asked for evidence to support their values but it could not produce anything other than the invoices.

28. The values of these goods were compared with the values of similar goods imported through several ports across the country as available in the National Import Database[9] and it was found that the declared values were quite low. Therefore, a Chartered Engineer Shri Pankaj Gupta was asked to inspect the goods and give his opinion on the value of the goods and he did so. The values determined by the Chartered Engineer were similar to the values found in the NIDB. Model wise details of the Unit value of the motors declared in the Bill of Entry, the value of similar goods available in the NIDB and the value determined by the Chartered Engineer were tabulated and were annexed as Annexure A1 and Annexure B1 to the SCN. For instance, in respect of motor Model Y2 802-4 (0.75KW), the unit value declared in the Bill of Entry dated 09.02.2009 was Rs. 590/- while the value of the similar goods as per NIDB was Rs. 2,470/- and the value determined by the Chartered Engineer is Rs. 2,225/-. Similarly, for Motor Model No. Y 2 225FS-4 (37KW) imported through Bill of Entry dated 17.02.2009 the declared value was Rs. 5,668/- while the value of similar goods in NIDB was Rs. 32,827/- and the value determined by the Chartered Engineer was Rs. 30,000/-. Similar large variations were found in the values of all the other motors.

29. Therefore, the goods imported under the two Bills of Entry were suspected to be undervalued and hence liable to confiscation under the Act and were seized under section 110 of the Act but they were later released provisionally on execution of bonds and bank guarantees.

30. The officers of SIIB also scrutinized five of the past Bills of Entry of similar goods imported by the appellant between 28.5.2008 and 14.1.2009 which had already been cleared and they came to the conclusion that they were also similarly undervalued and accordingly, the values of the goods imported under the five Bills of Entry and the corresponding values of similar goods under the NIDB database were tabulated as Annexures C, D, E,F and G to the SCN.

31. Statements of Shri Qasim were recorded under section 108 of the Act on 24.2.2009,25.2.2009 and 24.3.2209. In his statements with respect to the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2009, he said that the declared value was Rs. 11,85,733/- compared to the value of Rs. 48,36,860/- of contemporaneous imports as per the NIDB data. He made a similar statement with respect to the Bill of Entry dated 17.2.2009. He said that these variations were due to the fact that the motors which it imported were of inferior quality and also because there was recession in the market. He requested that the value may be got assessed by some expert and that he was ready to pay the differential duty and that he wanted to avoid demurrages and did not want any SCN or personal hearing and the matter may be decided at the earliest.

32. Accordingly, the imported goods in the two Bills of Entry were evaluated by Shri Pankaj Gupta, Chartered Engineer. The NIDB data and the evaluation of the imported goods by the Chartered Engineer were explained to Shri Qasim and in his statements dated 25.2.2009 and 24.3.2009, he voluntarily agreed to pay the differential duty and also said that he did not want any SCN or personal hearing. Regarding the past clearances also, he said that he had imported five or six consignments in the past and was ready to pay the differential customs duty on them as well, if any.

33. As per Rule 5(3) of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of imported goods) Rules, 2007[10] of the values of the contemporaneous imports of similar goods available in the NIDB database, the lowest value for each good imported was considered and the differential duty worked out. Although the appellant waived the SCN and the personal hearing with respect to re-assessment of the imported goods, the SCN was issued proposing recovery of differential duty for the two current and five past Bills of Entry, confiscation of the seized goods of the two current Bills of Entry (which were provisionally released) and imposition of penalties.

34. After considering the replies to the SCN, holding personal hearings and allowing the Chartered Engineer to be cross- examined by the appellant, the impugned order was passed.

35. Aggrieved, the appellants filed these appeals. On behalf of the appellants, the following submissions were made:

35.1 The impugned order is illegal, void and not sustainable either on facts or in law.

35.2 After the SCN was issued, the appellant obtained, under the Right to Information Act[11], copies of some Bills of Entry dated 13.5.2009, 29.7.2009, 14.6.2010 and 30.8.2009 under which the goods were cleared at by the department after loading 25% on the declared value. The values at which the goods were assessed by the department in these Bills of Entry were lower than what was proposed in the SCN in this case.

35.3 The Commissioner of Customs wrongly rejected the declared value under Rule 12 and no proof of contemporaneous import of similar goods at higher values was relied upon. The expert opinion is vague and is not based on any proof of similar import at higher values.

35.4 There was no admission of higher values by the appellant in the two statements made. No hawala payment or direct or indirect payment other than the declared value was noticed to substantiate the charge of mis-declaration of value by the department. Therefore, the allegation of mis-declaration is arbitrary and whimsical.

35.5 The adjudicating authority did not produce any evidence showing the alleged relied upon NIDB data. The department did not produce catalogues of the goods imported in the contemporaneous imports whose values were relied upon for re- assessment so that the appellant could compare the specifications.

35.6 In the absence of detailed information such as Bills of Entry, invoices, examination reports, etc. of all the cases whose values were relied upon, re-assessment based on such values is not correct.

35.7 NIDB data is not fool proof evidence as held in

Commissioner of Customs, vs Modern Overseas[12]

35.8 The adjudicating authority did not give any finding on the decision of Inquir Inc vs Commissioner of Customs, Chennai[13] in which the Chartered Engineer's certificate was rejected as it was vague.

13.11 The Commissioner has wrongly confirmed the demand in respect of five past Bills of Entry based on NIDB data relying on the statement of the appellant dated 25.2.2009. In his statement, the appellant had not accepted any value in respect of the past Bills of Entry. He only stated that they had imported some goods in the past under five Bills of Entry but that he did not have the details at that time and that he was willing to pay duty liability, if any, for those goods. The department did not produce any evidence of mis-declaration/suppression of facts in respect of these past Bills of Entry. The SCN dated 21.8.2009 was therefore, wrongly issued invoking extended period of limitation in respect of these five past Bills of Entry. All these five Bills of Entry were assessed by the officers on the basis of declaration by the appellant in the Bills of Entry and the after examination of the goods. In one of the Bills of Entry numbered 760587 dated 14.1.2009, the goods were assessed by enhancing the value by 25%. It is evident that the department had all the NIDB data in its possession at that time. There is now, therefore, no basis to re-assess these Bills of Entry by loading 300% value at this time.

13.12 Since the value of the goods in the current imports should not have been rejected, there is also no case to confiscate them under section 111(m). Consequently, there is no case to impose penalty under sections 114A and 112(a).

13.13 The impugned order may be set aside and the appeal may be allowed with consequential relief to the appellant.

36. On behalf of the Revenue, the following submissions were made:

36.1 The issue pertains to undervaluation of the imported goods.

The values declared in the two current Bills of Entry were compared with the NIDB data and with the reports of an expert report and were found to be quite low. Investigation was initiated and statements of Shri Qasim were recorded on 24.2.2009, 25.2.209 and 24.3.2009 under section 108 of the Customs Act.

In these statements, which have not been retracted till date, the appellant accepted the re-determination of values.

36.2 The values of contemporaneous imports of goods were comparable to the values determined by the Chartered Engineer. The differential duty was calculated accordingly.

36.3 The values of the goods imported under the five past Bills of Entry were also determined accordingly.

36.4 Once the appellant accepted the enhanced value in writing, it was binding on both sides as per section 147. In fact, there was not even a need to issue any speaking order as per section 17(5) of the Act.

36.5 There was no forced acceptance of the valuation based on the NIDB data. If the appellant did not agree to the re- determination of value, it did not have to accept the proposed value or it could have paid duty under protest. If the appellant wanted to get the goods cleared while not accepting the values proposed by the department, it could have also got the goods provisionally assessed pending finalization of assessment. If it wanted to avoid demurrages, it could have got the goods shifted to a Customs bonded warehouse under section 49.

36.6 The appellant's contention that the rejection of the transaction value under Rule 12 was not correct holds no water. The values declared in the Bills of Entry were doubted because they were far lower than the values of the contemporaneous imports available in the NIDB. When these were shown, the appellant accepted valuation on the basis of the NIDB data. Therefore, rejection of the transaction value as per Rule 12 is absolutely correct.

36.7 The appellant's contention that valuation should have been done as per Rule 3 is not correct because, Rule 3 is subject to Rule 12 under which the transaction value can be rejected as has been done in this case.

36.8 As held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Central Excise Madras vs Systems and Components Pvt. Ltd.[14], once valuation has been accepted, it need not be proved.

36.9 The appellant cannot be allowed to play a cat & mouse game with the Revenue as held by the Tribunal in Commissioner vs AR Fabrics[15].

14.10. In Commissioner of Customs vs Hanuman Prasad and sons[16], it was held that once the values determined by the officers have been accepted, they cannot be questioned later.

14.11 In Commissioner of Central Excise, Madras vs Systems & Components Pvt. Ltd.[17], Hon'ble Supreme Court held that It is a basic and settled law that what is admitted need not be proved.

37. Learned departmental representative prayed that the appeals may, therefore, be dismissed.

38. We have considered the submissions on both sides and perused the records. The following issues need to be decided:

g) Is the rejection of the transaction value of the two current Bills of Entry under Rule 12 and its re-determination by the Commissioner and confirmation of the demand of differential duty sustainable?

h) Is the rejection of transaction value and its re-determination and confirmation of demand in respect of the five past Bills of Entry sustainable?

i) Is the confiscation of the goods imported in the two Bills of Entry and their release on payment of redemption fine, sustainable?

j) Is the order holding the goods imported under the five past Bills of Entry liable to confiscation and imposition of redemption fine since they were not available, sustainable?

k) Is the imposition of penalty on the importer under section 114A sustainable?

l) Is the imposition of penalty on Shri Qasim under section 112(a) sustainable?

Rejection of transaction value and re-determination of value in respect of the two current Bills of Entry

39. The case of the appellant is that the goods should be valued as per transaction value as per Rule 3 as there is no evidence of any payment through Hawala or any other direct or indirect payment by the importer to the overseas seller and no evidence to this effect was put forth by the Revenue. It is also its case that the appellant accepted the values proposed by the Revenue to avoid demurrages and ensure quick clearance. It is further its assertion that it has not been provided with copies of the Bills of Entry, invoices, catalogues, etc. whose values were used to reject its transaction value and therefore, there is no comparison of the value of the goods. It also asserts that the Chartered Engineer's certificate is vague and should have been rejected.

40. The case of the Revenue is that once the appellant accepted in writing the proposed transaction value based on the NIDB data, it cannot be permitted to play cat and mouse game and now (after goods have been cleared) dispute the very values which it had accepted in writing. It is also the case of the Revenue that what is accepted, need not be proved. In fact, as per Section 17(5), neither an SCN nor even a speaking order was required in this matter insofar as the re-assessment of the goods imported under the current Bills of Entry was concerned. The SCN and the impugned order was issued only because it was also proposed to re-assess the past Bills of Entry and recover differential duty under section 28 and also because goods confiscation of goods and imposition of penalties were considered.

41. We have considered these submissions. Before examining the facts of this case, we examine the relevant legal provisions, viz., Section 14 of the Act and the Rules. Duties of customs are levied on goods imported into and exported from India at the rates specified in the Schedules to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975. On some goods, the levy is based on quantity (specific duty) and other goods, it is based on value (ad valorem). If the duty is to be levied based on value, valuation for the purpose has to be done as per Section 14 which reads as follows:

(3) For the purposes of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975), or any other law for the time being in force, the value of the imported goods and export goods shall be the transaction value of such goods, that is to say, the price actually paid or payable for the goods when sold for export to India for delivery at the time and place of importation, or as the case may be, for export from India for delivery at the time and place of exportation, where the buyer and seller of the goods are not related and price is the sole consideration for the sale subject to such other conditions as may be specified in the rules made in this behalf:

Provided that such transaction value in the case of imported goods shall include, in addition to the price as aforesaid, any amount paid or payable for costs and services, including commissions and brokerage, engineering, design work, royalties and licence fees, costs of transportation to the place of importation, insurance, loading, unloading and handling charges to the extent and in the manner specified in the rules made in this behalf:

Provided further that the rules made in this behalf may provide for,-

(i) the circumstances in which the buyer and the seller shall be deemed to be related;

(ii) the manner of determination of value in respect of goods when there is no sale, or the buyer and the seller are related, or price is not the sole consideration for the sale or in any other case;

(iii) the manner of acceptance or rejection of value declared by the importer or exporter, as the case may be, where the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of such value, and determination of value for the purposes of this section:

Provided also that such price shall be calculated with reference to the rate of exchange as in force on the date on which a bill of entry is presented under section 46, or a shipping bill of export, as the case may be, is presented under section 50.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), if the Board is satisfied that it is necessary or expedient so to do, it may, by notification in the Official Gazette, fix tariff values for any class of imported goods or export goods, having regard to the trend of value of such or like goods, and where any such tariff values are fixed, the duty shall be chargeable with reference to such tariff value.

Explanation . - For the purposes of this section -

(c) rate of exchange" means the rate of exchange -

(i) determined by the Board, or

(ii) ascertained in such manner as the Board may direct, for the conversion of Indian currency into foreign currency or foreign currency into Indian currency;

(d) "foreign currency" and "Indian currency" have the meanings respectively assigned to them in clause (m) and clause (q) of section 2 of the Foreign Exchange Management Act, 1999 (42 of 1999)

42. The non-obstante clause in sub-section 2 of section 14 gives the Board the power to fix tariff values for any class of goods and if fixed, the tariff value will be the value to determine the duty. This sub-section is not relevant to this case. In all other cases, the value to be reckoned for calculating the Customs duty shall be the transaction value subject to five conditions:

f) Buyer and seller are not related.

g) Price is for delivery at the time and place of importation, i.e., all costs up to the point of import are to be included. For instance, if the sale is on Free on Board basis, the costs of transportation to the place of import, transit insurance, etc. will have to be added.

h) Price is the sole consideration for sale.

i) Some amounts indicated in the first proviso to sub-section 1 of section 14 must be included.

j) Valuation will be as per any other conditions as may be specified in the Rules.

43. Thus, the default position is that the valuation has to be done on the basis of the transaction value and not based on any fixed value. The first proviso to sub-section 1 of section 14 provides for some additions to the transaction value which are not relevant for the present case. The second proviso to this sub- section provides for Rules to be made in this behalf to provide for:

f) the circumstances in which the buyer and the seller shall be deemed to be related; the manner of determination of value in respect of goods

when there is no sale,

g) the manner of determination of value in respect of goods if the buyer and the seller are related,

h) the manner of determination of value in respect of goods where price is not the sole consideration for the sale;

i) the manner of determination of value in respect of goods in any other case; and

j) the manner of acceptance or rejection of value declared by the importer or exporter, as the case may be, where the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of such value, and determination of value for the purposes of this section.

44. The Rules were framed as per the second proviso to sub- section 1 of section 14. These are 13 Rules in all of which Rules 1 and 2 are Preliminary rules. Rule 3 states that subject to Rule 12, the value shall be the transaction value adjusted according to Rule 10. Rule 10 provides for certain costs to be included in the transaction value. Rule 12 provides for the proper officer to reject the transaction value if he has reason to doubt its truth and accuracy. Thus, unless the proper officer rejects the transaction value under Rule 12, valuation has to be based on transaction value as per Rule 3 with some additions, if necessary, as per Rule 10.

45. Rule 3 further provides that if the valuation cannot be done under that Rule, i.e., as per the transaction value with additions as per Rule 10, then it must be done sequentially under

Rules 4 to 9. Rule 4 provides for the valuation to be done on the basis of identical goods. Rule 5 provides for the valuation to be done on the basis of the value of similar goods. Rule 6 states if Rules

4 and 5 cannot determine the value then they must be done as per Rule 7 and thereafter Rule 8 but this sequence can be reversed at the option of the importer. In other words, if the importer so chooses, Rule 8 can be applied directly instead of Rule 7. Rule 7 provides for a deductive method of valuation on the basis of prices of similar or identical goods sold in India and after making some deductions from such prices. Rule 8 provides for a computed value, i.e., based on the cost of raw material, cost of manufacture, reasonable profit, etc. In view of Rule 6, the importer may choose the computed value without examining the feasibility of determining value through deductive methods. Rule 9 is a residual method which provides for determining the value where it cannot be determined under Rules 3 to 8. Rule 10, as already discussed, provides for some costs to be added to the transaction value if the valuation is done as per Rule 3. Rule 11 requires the importer to make a declaration. Rule 12 lays down the provision for rejection of transaction value. Rule 13 provides for interpretative notes for the Rules.

58. To sum up, valuation has to be done sequentially as follows:

a) If a tariff value is fixed by the Board, it is the value (sub- section 2 of Section 14);

b) If no tariff value is fixed by the Board, valuation is as per the transaction value, if necessary, with some additions (as per the first proviso to sub-section 1 of section 14 and as per Rule 10);

c) If the transaction value is rejected as per Rule 12 by the proper officer, valuation has to be done as per the value of identical goods (Rule 4);

d) If transaction value is rejected and there is no value of identical goods, then it must be as per the value of similar goods (Rule 5);

e) If transaction value is rejected and there is no value of identical goods or similar goods, value must be determined through Deductive method (Rule 7)

f) If transaction value is rejected and there is no value of identical goods or similar goods and it is not possible to determine value following deductive method, then value must be determined through computation (Rule 8)

g) If the importer so chooses, computational method may be adopted without examining the deductive method first (Rule 6).

h) If the transaction value is rejected and there is no value of identical goods or similar goods and if it is also not possible to determine the value through deductive method or computational method, then value may be determined through the residual method by the officer following the above principles (Rule 9).

59. The next question which arises is when can the proper officer reject the transaction value. Rule 12 reads as follows:

12. Rejection of declared value. -

(3) When the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to any imported goods, he may ask the importer of such goods to furnish further information including documents or other evidence and if, after receiving such further information, or in the absence of a response of such importer, the proper officer still has reasonable doubt about the truth or accuracy of the value so declared, it shall be deemed that the transaction value of such imported goods cannot be determined under the provisions of sub-rule (1) of rule 3.

(4) At the request of an importer, the proper officer, shall intimate the importer in writing the grounds for doubting the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to goods imported by such importer and provide a reasonable opportunity of being heard, before taking a final decision under sub-rule (1).

Explanation.-(1) For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that:-

(i) This rule by itself does not provide a method for determination of value, it provides a mechanism and procedure for rejection of declared value in cases where there is reasonable doubt that the declared value does not represent the transaction value; where the declared value is rejected, the value shall be determined by proceeding sequentially in accordance with rules 4 to 9.

(ii) The declared value shall be accepted where the proper officer is satisfied about the truth and accuracy of the declared value after the said enquiry in consultation with the importers.

(iii) The proper officer shall have the powers to raise doubts on the truth or accuracy of the declared value based on certain reasons which may include -

(a) the significantly higher value at which identical or similar goods imported at or about the same time in comparable quantities in a comparable commercial transaction were assessed;

(b) the sale involves an abnormal discount or abnormal reduction from the ordinary competitive price;

(c) the sale involves special discounts limited to exclusive agents;

(d) the mis-declaration of goods in parameters such as description, quality, quantity, country of origin, year of manufacture or production;

(e) the non declaration of parameters such as brand, grade, specifications that have relevance to value;

(f) the fraudulent or manipulated documents.

60. Thus, if the officer has reason to doubt the truth and accuracy of the transaction value, he can call for information including documents and evidence. If the information and evidence is presented and after examining it or if no information or evidence as called for is presented, if the proper office has reasonable belief then it shall be deemed that the value cannot be determined as per Rule 3 (i.e., based on transaction value with additions, if necessary). While the officer can, in the first place call for information and evidence if he has reason to doubt, at the second stage, he should have not just some reason to doubt but a reasonable doubt. If he has such reasonable doubt, then the transaction value can be rejected. The grounds on which the proper officer may raise doubts about the truth and accuracy of the transaction value have been illustrated in explanation 1 (iii) to Rule 12. The list is inclusive and not exhaustive.

61. In this case, the officers received intelligence that the motors imported by the appellant were under-valued. Acting on this intelligence, the goods were examined in detail and they were found as declared in the two Bills of Entry but their values appeared to be too low. The importer was asked for evidence to support their values but it could not produce anything other than the invoices. The declared values were compared with the values of similar goods imported through several ports across the country as available in the NIDB and it was found that the declared values were, indeed, quite low. A Chartered Engineer Shri Pankaj Gupta was asked to inspect the goods and give his opinion on the value of the goods and he did so. The values determined by the Chartered Engineer were similar to the values found in the NIDB.

62. In this factual matrix when the officers had, in the first place, a reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of the transaction value. They called for further information from the importer but it could only supply the invoices to support its claim of the invoice value. Therefore, the officers had correctly crossed the first stage of 'reason to doubt' provided in Rule 12.

63. Statements of Shri Qasim were recorded under section 108 of the Act on 24.2.2009, 25.2.2009 and 24.3.2209. With respect to the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2009, he said that the declared value was Rs. 11,85,733/- compared to the value of Rs. 48,36,860/- of contemporaneous imports as per the NIDB data. He made a similar statement with respect to the Bill of Entry dated 17.2.2009. He said that these variations were due to the fact that the motors which it imported are of inferior quality and that there was recession in the market. He requested that the value may be got assessed by some expert and that he was ready to pay the differential duty and that he wanted to avoid demurrages and did not want any SCN or personal hearing and the matter may be decided at the earliest. The goods were got assessed by the Chartered Engineer who also assessed the value of the goods similar to the values found in the NIDB. Therefore, the officers successfully crossed the second stage of 'reasonable doubt' under Rule 12 to reject the transaction value. We also find that in his statements, Shri Qasim specifically agreed to the valuation and agreed to pay the differential duty. In his statement dated 24.2.2009, he, interalia, stated:

… I further state that assessable value worked on the basis of the NIDB data may be correct and my declared prices are already on higher side and in order to arrive at the fair reasonable assessable value I request you that the valuation of my imported goods may also be got done from some expert in this regard as there is a great difference in the prices declared by me and the value compiled on the basis of the NIDB data. I further state that I am ready to pay duty whatever fair assessable value is worked out. I further submit that due to heavy demurrages and other charges my case may be decided at the earliest and a lenient view may be taken and I also submit that I do not want any show cause notice or personal hearing in this matter.

64. The appellant while agreeing to the valuation and waiving the SCN and personal hearing also sought that the goods may also be got examined by an expert. The goods had already been examined by a Chartered Engineer who submitted his report dated 23.2.2009. Another statement of Shri Qasim was recorded on 25.2.2009 in which he was shown the Chartered Engineer's certificate as well as the charts showing the values as per the NIDB data. In his statement, he, inter alia, stated as follows:

.. I have been shown the chart prepared by the Customs officials on the basis of the Chartered Engineer report according to which the value of the imported goods is Rs. 44,01,050 and the Customs duty on this value comes to Rs. 10,51,625/- I have seen the Chartered Engineer certificate Ref no. PG/CRT/424/IMP/2008-09 dated 23.02.2009 and I have signed the same in token of its correctness. I have also been shown the chart prepared by the Customs officers on the basis of NIDB data as per the chart the assessable value of my imported goods i.e., 886 pieces of assorted electrical motors of different KVA vide Bill of Entry No 766759 dated 9.2.09 has been worked out to Rs. 48,36,860/- and the customs duty has been worked out to Rs. 11,56,761/-. I have also signed the statement in token of its correctness.

I further state that the value as per the NIDB chart is correct and I am ready to pay Customs duty on this value as the margin of difference in the NIDB data and Chartered Engineer is very less and according to me the assesseable value of Rs. 48,36,860/- and the duty on this value Rs. 11, 56,761/- is fair assessable value and I will deposit the same within two-three days......

I further state that in the past I have imported the same goods by 2-3 Bills of Entry from China. At present I am not having the details, I am ready to pay Customs duty for the same if any.

65. Another statement was recorded on 24.3.2009 in which Shri Qasim, inter alia, stated as below:

…. I have been shown the chart prepared by the Customs officers accordin to the chart the assessable value has been worked out to Rs. 63,09,086/- on the basis of the NIDB data against my declared value of Rs. 15, 36,473/-. THE Customs officer explained me about the NIDB data according to which it is a data of prevalent prices of assessment of similar goods of similar country of origin of same period taken by the Customs at various ports of Customs in India. Further, the method and basis of enchancement of declared value on the basis of the NIDB data has been explained to me and according to me it is a correct and fair method and I accept the enhanced declared value from Rs. 15,36,473/- to Rs 63,09,086/- for 408 pieces of electric motors of assorted KWs for the Bill of Entry dated 17.2.09, in token of my acceptance I have signed the chart prepared by the Customs officers today on 24.3.09 and I am ready to pay Customs duty. Further, I have been shown the certificate of Shri Pankaj Gupta, Chartered Engineer dated 21.3.09 and as per the valuation of the chartered engineer, the assessable value of the 408 pieces of electric motors works out toRs.61,21,950/- I have also signed the same in respect of B/E No. 768815 dated 17.02.09.

66. Having rejected the declared assessable value under Rule 12, the department sought to re-determine it under Rule 5 based on the contemporaneous value of similar goods imported into the country. It needs to be noted that since the imported goods were miscellaneous motors of various specifications there cannot be identical goods to determine duty as per Rule 4 and hence determining duty on the basis of values of similar goods under Rule 5 is fair and proper. To determine the value of the contemporaneous imports, the relevant data was extracted from the NIDB. The department also referred the matter to a Chartered Engineer to determine the value of the imported goods. In his first statement dated 24.2.2009, Shri Qasim was shown the NIDB data and he requested that the matter may also be referred to an expert to arrive at a fair value. On 25.2.2009, Shri Qasim was shown both the NIDB values and the report of the Chartered Engineer and he made a categorical statement accepting the chart prepared by the Customs officers based on the NIDB data with respect to the Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2009 that he accepts the value proposed by the Customs officers and that he was ready to pay the Customs duty accordingly. Further, he had also indicated that he did not want either an SCN or a personal hearing in the matter. He made a similar statement on 24.3.2009 with respect to the Bill of Entry dated 17.2.2009. None of the three statements have been retracted till date.

67. The appellant is now disputing the NIDB data on the ground that the Bills of Entry of the data and the brochures related to the goods imported under them were not provided to him. The appellant is also asserting that the Chartered Engineer's certificate is vague.

68. The appellant cannot be permitted to take this stand at this stage. It is a well-settled legal principle that what is admitted need not be proved. Every case, civil, criminal or otherwise, involves multitude of facts and evidence need not be produced by any side on all such facts. Only such facts which are asserted by one and disputed by the other need to be proved and the party asserting them has to produce evidence. For instance, if A says that he lent a sum of Rs. 1,000/- to B and that B did not returned it and B accepts that A had lent him the money but says that he returned it, the only fact which needs to be determined is if B returned the money or not. The fact that A had lent the money is not disputed and A need not prove it. Section 58 of the Indian Evidence Act,1872 clarifies this position. It reads as follows:

Indian Evidence Act

Section 58. Facts admitted need not be proved.

No fact need be proved in any proceeding which the parties thereto or their agents agree to admit at the hearing, or which, before the hearing, they agree to admit by any writing under their hands, or which by any rule of pleading in force at the time they are deemed to have admitted by their pleadings:

Provided that the Court may, in its discretion, require the facts admitted to be proved otherwise than by such admissions.

69. In this case, since the fact that the goods were undervalued and the correct assessable value for the goods imported under the two Bills of Entry dated 9.2.2009 and 17.2.2009 are as per the charts prepared by the officers as per the NIDB data was not only not disputed but positively accepted, in writing, by the appellant, these facts were not in dispute and neither side needed to produce any evidence. Therefore, there is no force the submissions of the learned counsel for the appellants that the department failed to provide evidence in support. Revenue need not produce any evidence. In fact, it did not have to even issue the SCN or hold a personal hearing insofar as the re-assessment of these two Bills of Entry is concerned because the appellant had waived them in writing.

70. The appellant's contention that it had accepted the value to avoid demurrages also does not hold any water. There is nothing on record to show that its acceptance was not voluntary. On the contrary all three statements explicitly state that the statements were voluntary and none of them have been retracted. If the appellant wanted to avoid demurrages and was not willing to accept the valuation, the appellant could have transferred the goods to a Customs bonded warehouse under section 49 and it would not have had to pay any demurrages but only the rent to the warehouse keeper. The appellant could have, as an alternative, disagreed with the re-assessment but paid duty under protest and asked for a speaking order. The appellant could also have sought provisional assessment. All these alternative methods are routinely used in the Custom houses by the importers.

71. Learned counsel also submitted that the NIDB data is not unquestionable and that the Chartered Engineer's certificate is vague and hence should be rejected. In this case, the NIDB data has not only NOT been questioned but has positively been accepted by the appellant. The Chartered Engineer's certificate was also provided to the appellant and he had not disputed it at all. After seeing both and the chart of valuation prepared by the Customs authorities, the appellant explicitly agreed to the valuation. What is accepted need not be proved. It has been held by the Supreme Court in Systems & Components Pvt. Ltd. as follows:

6. The Collector (Appeals) relied upon a Circular issued by the Board of Central Excise dated 25th September 1986 and held that Receivers, Surge Drums and Flash Vessels were classifiable under Tariff

Item 73.11 and the Drain Pot under
73.10. It was held that the oil separator would be classifiable under 84.79 and Base Frame under 7308.90.

7. The Appeal filed by the Department has been disposed of by the Tribunal by holding that the Department has not proved that these parts were specifically designed for manufacture of water chilling plant in question. The Tribunal has noted the Technical details supplied by the Respondents and the letter by the Respondents dated 30th November 1993 giving details of how these parts are used in the Chilling Plant. The Tribunal has still strangely held that this by itself is not sufficient to show that they are specifically designed for the purpose of assembling the Chilling Plant. We are unable to understand this reasoning. Once it is an admitted position by the party itself, that they have no independent use there is no need for the Department to prove. It is a basic and settled law that what is admitted need not be proved.

72. The appellant also submitted that some Bills of Entry of other importers were obtained by it under the RTI Act from the Customs authorities which show that similar goods were cleared at lower values. We have examined this submission and find that the Bills of Entry which the appellant obtained were those which were filed after the disputed two Bills of Entry. It is a well settled legal principle that when goods are assessed based on values of contemporaneous imports, they refer to only imports which have already taken place, i.e., past Bills of Entry and not based on Bills of Entry which may be filed in future. The reason for this is that the assessment can be done based on what is available at the time of filing of the Bill of Entry and not anticipating what may happen in future. Therefore, there is no force in this argument either.

73. The correctness of the values determined by the determined and accepted by the appellant cannot, therefore, be questioned as they were undisputed. In a similar situation, where the importer accepted the re-assessment by the officers and after clearing the goods, filed an appeal questioning the same values which the appellant had accepted, this Tribunal had in Hanuman Prasad & Sons held as follows:

36. The following position emerges from the aforesaid decisions of the Tribunal:

(i) When an importer consents to the enhancement of value, it becomes unnecessary for the revenue to establish the valueaion as the consented value, in effect, becomes the declared transaction value requiring no further investigation;

(ii) When an importer accepts the loaded value of the goods without any protest or objection, the importer cannot be permitted to deny its correctness;

(iii) The burden of the department to establish the declared value to be incorrect is discharged if the enhanced value is voluntarily accepted.

74. The decision in Hanuman Prasad & Sons was followed in several other decisions. We, therefore, answer question (a) framed by us in paragraph 16 in favour of the Revenue and against the appellants.

Re-determination of value and confirmation of demand in respect of the five past Bills of Entry

75. Insofar as the past five Bills of Entry are concerned, the case of the appellant is that the goods were cleared by the officers after examination and in respect of one of the Bills of Entry, the declared assessable value was also enhanced by 25% by the officer re-assessing the Bill of Entry. Therefore, there is no case to allege undervaluation much later and demanding duty under section 28 invoking extended period of limitation alleging suppression.

76. The case of the Revenue is that the appellant had agreed to pay the differential duty in respect of these five Bills of Entry in its statement and it cannot be allowed to renege at this stage. Just like the demand for the two current Bills of Entry, the demand of differential duty for these five Bills of Entry also needs to be upheld.

77. We find strong force in the submissions of the appellant.

Once the goods are cleared for home consumption after examination and assessment, unless there is an evidence to support, demand under section 28 invoking extended period of limitation cannot be raised unless there is evidence of collusion or willful mis-statement or suppression of facts are proven. There is no allegation or evidence in this case of collusion. The reason for invoking extended period of limitation given in the SCN is as follows:

" 12. Whereas, the importer had mis-declared the value of imported goods in the past consignments also and the value appeared to be grossly undervalued. Therefore, it appears that the declared invoice value is not free from doubts and same is not in conformity with section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962. Hence, it gave sufficient reasons to doubt the truth or accuracy of the invoice value declared in relation to the goods imported vide above said 7 Bills of Entry No. 768815 dated 17.02.09, 766759 dated 09.02.2009, 760587

28.05.08. No further information/ documents or any other evidence was provided by the importer to substantiate their declared invoice value."

78. Evidently, the SCN alleges mis-declaration and does not even allege that it was willful, let alone producing any evidence to the effect.

79. Learned authorised representative submitted that the appellant had agreed to pay the differential duty in respect of the past cases also. We have seen the Statement of the appellant given on 25.2.2009 and the relevant portion of it is as follows:

I further state that in the past I have imported the same goods by 2-3 Bills of Entry from China. At present I am not having the details, I am ready to pay Customs duty for the same if any.

80. A plain reading of the above shows that at the time of recording the statement, the appellant could not remember the exact number of Bills of Entry filed before and also did not have the details. All that is stated is that he is ready to pay Customs Duty for the same, if any. Neither were the details of the Bills of Entry nor the goods imported under them, their declared values, corresponding values of goods in the NIDB and why it became necessary to re-open the assessment which were already finalized shown to the appellant nor were they agreed to. This statement does not support the case of the Revenue in any sense.

81. We, therefore, answer the question (b) in paragraph 16 above in favour of the appellant and against the Revenue.

Confiscation of the goods imported in the two Bills of Entry and their release on payment of redemption fine

82. The goods imported under the two Bills of Entry valued at Rs. 48,36,860/- were seized and they were provisionally released on bond and bank guarantee. In the impugned order, they were confiscated under section 111(m) and released on payment of redemption fine of Rs. 10,00,000 under section 125 and the Bank Guarantee given by the appellant was appropriated towards it. Section 111(m) and section 125 read as follows:

113. Confiscation of improperly imported goods, etc.—The following goods brought from a place outside India shall be liable to confiscation:—

thereof, or in the case of goods under transhipment, with the declaration for transhipment referred to in the proviso to sub-section (1) of section 54

125. Option to pay fine in lieu of confiscation.—(1) Whenever confiscation of any goods is authorised by this Act, the officer adjudging it may, in the case of any goods, the importation or exportation whereof is prohibited under this Act or under any other law for the time being in force, and shall, in the case of any other goods, give to the owner of the goods or, where such owner is not known, the person from whose possession or custody such goods have been seized, an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the said officer thinks fit:

Provided that where the proceedings are deemed to be concluded under the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 28 or under clause (i) of sub-section (6) of that section in respect of the goods which are not prohibited or restricted, the provisions of this section shall not apply:

Provided further that, without prejudice to the provisions of the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 115, such fine shall not exceed the market price of the goods confiscated, less in the case of imported goods the duty chargeable thereon.

83. Section 111(m) provides for confiscation of imported goods which do not correspond in value or in any other particular to the entry made. The case of the appellant is that since the re- assessment itself is not sustainable, neither is the confiscation. The case of the Revenue is that the confiscation was done correctly. As we have already found that the goods were correctly re-assessed, section 111(m) squarely applies to the goods in question and therefore, their confiscation needs to be upheld.

84. Once the goods are confiscated, section 125 requires that, unless the goods are prohibited goods, the owner should be given an option to redeem the goods on payment of fine. If they are prohibited goods, the adjudicating authority has the discretion of allowing redemption or not. This section further restricts the quantum of penalty to the market value of the goods. It is not the case of either side that the motors imported by the appellant were prohibited goods. Therefore, they were released on redemption fine. The seized goods imported under Bill of Entry dated 9.2.2009 were valued at Rs. 48,36,860/- and the redemption fine imposed was Rs. 10,00,000/-. The seized goods imported under Bill of Entry dated 17.2.2009 were valued at Rs. 63,09,086/- and the redemption fine imposed was Rs. 12,50,000/. In the factual matrix of this case, the fines imposed are, in our opinion, fair.

85. We, therefore, answer question (c) of paragraph 16 in favour of the Revenue.

Order holding the goods imported under the five past Bills of Entry liable to confiscation and imposition of redemption fine since they were not available.

86. The adjudicating authority also held that the goods imported under the past five Bills of Entry valued at Rs. 1,45,02,410/- were liable to confiscation under section 111(m) and imposed redemption fine of Rs. 30,00,000/-. As we have found that the demand under section 28 re-assessing the duty in respect of these five Bills of Entry is not sustainable, the confiscation of the goods imported under them as well as redemption fine also need to be set aside. Even otherwise, the goods which are not available cannot be either seized or confiscated. This is because, on confiscation, the property vests in the Government and if the importer opts to redeem them, he can pay the redemption fine and get the goods released. If the goods are not available neither can the government take over the goods nor can it return them to the owner or payment of fine. The case of the goods imported under the above two Bills of Entry was different as they were seized and were provisionally released on execution of a bond and bank guarantee. The bond and bank guarantee are meant to cover the redemption fine, if any, imposed if the goods are confiscated and released. We, therefore, answer question (d) of paragraph 16 in favour of the Appellant.

Penalty on the importer under section 114A

87. In the impugned order, penalty of Rs. 59,76,148/- being the importer being the amount equal to the differential duty demanded under section 28 (in respect of the five Bills of Entry) and interest thereon under section 114A of the Act. This section reads as follows:

Where the duty has not been been levied or has been short- levied or the interest has not been charged or paid or has been part paid or the duty or interest has been erroneously refunded by reason of collusion or any wilful mis-statement or suppression of facts, the person who is liable to pay the duty or interest, as the case may be, as determined under sub-section (8) of section 28 shall, also be liable to pay a penalty equal to the duty or interest so determined:

Provided that where such duty or interest, as the case may be, as determined under sub-section (8) of section 28, and the interest payable thereon under section 28AA, is paid within thirty days from the date of the communication of the order of the proper officer determining such duty, the amount of penalty liable to be paid by such person under this section shall be twenty-five per cent. of the duty or interest, as the case may be, so determined: ******

88. As we have found that the demand of differential duty under section 28 in respect of the past Bills of Entry cannot be sustained, we set aside the penalty under section114A as well. As far as the duty on the two current Bills of Entry are concerned, they are a matter of re-assessment under section 17 and not a case of duty not levied or short levied under section
28. We, therefore, answer question (e) of paragraph 16 in favour of the appellant.

Penalty on Shri Qasim under section 112(a)

89. In the impugned order, penalty of Rs. 15,00,000/- was imposed on Shri Mohd. Qasim Khan under section 112(a) of the Act. This section reads as follows:

114. Penalty for improper importation of goods, etc.— Any person,—

(a) who, in relation to any goods, does or omits to do any act which act or omission would render such goods liable to confiscation under section 111, or abets the doing or omission of such an act, or

(b) who acquires possession of or is in any way concerned in carrying, removing, depositing, harbouring, keeping, concealing, selling or purchasing, or in any other manner dealing with any goods which he knows or has reason to believe are liable to confiscation under section 111, shall be liable,—

(i) in the case of goods in respect of which any prohibition is in force under this Act or any other law for the time being in force, to a penalty 5 [not exceeding the value of the goods or five thousand rupees], whichever is the greater

(ii) in the case of dutiable goods, other than prohibited goods, subject to the provisions of section 114A, to a penalty not exceeding ten per cent. of the duty sought to be evaded or five thousand rupees, whichever is higher:

Provided that where such duty as determined under sub- section (8) of section 28 and the interest payable thereon under section 28AA is paid within thirty days from the date of communication of the order of the proper officer determining such duty, the amount of penalty liable to be paid by such person under this section shall be twenty-five per cent. of the penalty so determined;

(iii) in the case of goods in respect of which the value stated in the entry made under this Act or in the case of baggage, in the declaration made under section 77 (in either case hereafter in this section referred to as the declared value) is higher than the value thereof, to a penalty not exceeding the difference between the declared value and the value thereof or five thousand rupees, whichever is the greater;

(iv) in the case of goods falling both under clauses (i) and (iii), to a penalty not exceeding the value of the goods or the difference between the declared value and the value thereof or five thousand rupees, whichever is the highest;

(v) in the case of goods falling both under clauses (ii) and (iii), to a penalty not exceeding the duty sought to be evaded on such goods or the difference between the declared value and the value thereof or five thousand rupees, whichever is the highest.

90. We have already found that the confiscation of the goods imported under the two current Bills of Entry and their release on payment of redemption fine need to be upheld and we have set aside the confiscation and imposition of redemption fine in respect of the five past Bills of Entry. We have also upheld the re-assessment of duty in the two current Bills of Entry and set aside the demand of duty under section 28 in respect of the five past Bills of Entry. Shri Qasim is the person most directly connected with the filing of the two Bills of Entry and the values of the goods in these did not match the imported goods which rendered the goods liable to confiscation under section 111(m). Therefore, Shri Qasim squarely falls under Section 112(a) and is liable to penalty under it.

91. However, in the impugned order, penalty under section 112(a) has been imposed considering the differential duty confirmed in respect of the two current and five past Bills of Entry. We have already found that the demand in respect of the five past Bills of Entry cannot be sustained. We, therefore, find it proper to reduce the penalty on Shri Qasim also from Rs. 15,00,000/- to Rs. 3,00,000/-

92. In view of the above:

a) Customs Appeal No. 3/2011 filed by M/s. Jhaveria Impex is partly allowed by upholding the re-assessment of duty in the impugned order in respect of the two current Bills of Entry filed on 9.2.2009 and 17.2.2009 and confiscation of the goods imported under these two Bills of Entry and the redemption fines imposed. The demand of duty on the five past Bills of Entry, confiscation of the goods imported under them and imposition of redemption fine in lieu of the confiscation and the fine under section 114A are set aside. The appellant will be entitled to consequential relief, if any.

b) Customs Appeal No. 4/2011 filed by Shri Mohd. Qasim Khan is partly allowed by reducing the penalty imposed on him under section 112(a) from Rs. 15,00,000/- to Rs. 3,00,000/-. The appellant will be entitled to consequential relief, if any.

3. The said Bill of Entry was facilitated with RMS and was, therefore, neither prescribed for assessment nor for examination. The matter was forwarded to Special Intelligence and Investigation Bureo (SIIB) for investigation as similar cases of imitation /replica of Fire Arms were being investigated by SIIB of Air Cargo Complex (Import). The consignment was subjected to 100% examination on 28.11.2016, whereby it was found that the goods were declared in the subject bill of entry as "Antique Finished Pistols", "Antique Finished Rifles" and "Antique Finished Carbind Guns". The details are at Sl.No.35-44, 45-49 and 50 respectively of the Table-A given above, though, prima facie, the goods appeared to be of articles of lethal weapons. Similarly, the swords detailed at Sl.Nos.51-55 and daggers detailed at Sl.No.56-57 of Table A were found to have blade size of more than 9". The samples were drawn for further investigation. The appellant had earlier imported similar consignment vide Bill of Entry No.79761580 dated 12.01.2015 and the same was stopped by ICE, Patparganj, which was challenged by the appellant in Writ Petition No.4906/2015, where the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi called for the Balestic report of examination of these articles by the Forensic Science Laboratory (FSL). The examination report dated 23.11.2015 was placed before the Hon'ble High Court and vide Order dated 26.11.2015, the High Court disposed of the petition observing that , "

"From the above report, it is evident that the exhibits 'F1' to 'F5' cannot discharge a projectile in their present condition and these are not firearms as defined in the Arms Act, 1959. Though, it is submitted that after modification the same could be used as firearms, in the present state, they are not firearms as defined in the Arms Act, 1959. Mr. Kalra appearing for the Delhi Police (DCP Licensing) states that since these are not firearms no licensing is necessary.

In view of the foregoing, the Customs Department is directed to assess the Bill Entry No.7267159 dated 06.11.2014 in accordance with law and release the goods within two weeks to the petitioner.

The writ petition stands disposed of. Dasti."

Subsequently, vide order dated 11.12.2015, the High Court directed the Customs Department to re-assess the Bill of Entry No.7961580 dated 12.01.2015 in accordance with law and release the goods within two weeks.

4. In order to verify the actual nature of the goods in the present case, the catalogue found with the goods was examined, wherein a warning was mentioned as under:-

"Assembled/kit, non-firing DENIX Replica Models should be used only in the home as scale model displays or collector's item or for theatrical or training purpose. They should always be used under supervision of a responsible adult. They should ER be carried on the street, pointed at anyone, hidden on your person or left carelessly in your car. Do not leave them where they are accessible to unsupervised children or irresponsible adults. The carrying, handling or brandishing in public of any model that resembles a real weapon may be in violation of the law, may create undue apprehension on the part of law enforcement officers or other persons, and could result in INJURY to the person handling the model. Be sure to check your local laws for any restrictions regarding replica guns."

Information was also gathered from the website of the manufacturer www.denix.ex and it was found that they were involved in the manufacture of the following categories of goods:-

"i. Novelties

5. The subject consignment was placed under seizure on 19.12.2016 under Section 110 of the Customs Act, 1962. The appellant filed Writ Petition No. C/12051/2016 referring to the earlier writ petition and the orders passed therein and accordingly, prayed that the present Bill of Entry be assessed and the goods may be released. The Hon'ble High Court vide Order dated 22.12.2016 disposed of the writ petition, inter alia, observing that :-

"A reading of the previous order of the Court in the petitioner's case undoubtedly suggests that upon satisfaction, the Customs Authorities were directed to release the goods. At the same time, this Court notices that after the order, certain subsequent events occurred with the promulgation of the new rules with effect from 15.07.2016 and the introduction of Rule 89, which stipulates that import of replicas of contemporary or modern firearms would be subject to the submission of a certificate of innocuousness from the manufacturing company of the country of Export and an undertaking from the importer that the replicas of firearms imported are incapable, even after modification, of expelling or launching a bullet or short or projectile. Even with such certificate apparently, the permission of the Director General of Foreign Trade (DGFT) is essential for the import under the prevailing Exim Policy. Having regard to these circumstances, at this stage, the previous order would not ipso factory be the basis of disposing of the petition. Instead the petitioner should respond to the notice issued by the department and ensure participation, in the proceedings."

6. Considering the warning on the catalogue found along with the goods, FSL examination report dated 23.11.2015 from Balestic Division, FSL and also the information gathered from the manufacturers' website and the legal provisions, the Department issued show cause notice dated 15.06.2017 on the ground that the appellant made incorrect declaration of the description, value and classification of the imported goods in Bills of Entry No.7205764 dated 25.10.2016 and thereby, contravened the provisions of Section 46(4) of the Act read with Rule 11 of the Foreign Trade Regulation Rules, 1993 (as amended). The appellant imported "Replica Fire Arms" convertible into Fire Arms" classifiable under CTH 93040000, which was restricted as per ITC (HS) Import Policy, without any licence or authorization from the DGFT and also imported "daggers" and "swords" with blade size more than 9" without fulfillment of the requirements specified in the MHA Notification No.S.O.667(E) dated 12.09.1985 and Notification No.S.O.831 (E) dated 02.08.2002 and thereby contravened the provisions of para 2.08 of FTP 2015 -2020 read with Section 11 (1) of the Foreign Trade (Development) and (Regulation) Act, 1992 (as amended). The appellant thereby rendered themselves liable for penal action under Section 112(a) of the Act and under Section 114 (AA) for intentionally using false and incorrect documents. The above show cause notice was adjudicated and vide order-in-original dated 23.09.2018, the Adjudicating Authority passed the following order:-

"(i) I reject the classification of imported goods mentioned at Sl.No.35-50 and sl.No.51-57 of Table-A, which were classified under CTH 8306 29 90 & CTH 7323 99 90 respectively in the Bill of Entry No.7205764 dated 24.10.2016 and order for classification of these goods under CTH 9304 00 00 in respect of goods at Sl.No.35-50 and under CTH 9307 00 00 in respect of goods at Sl.No.51-57 of Table A.

(ii) I reject the declared assessable value of Rs.6,56,842.62/- for the imported goods covered under Bill of Entry No.7205764 dated 24.10.2016 in terms of Rule 12 of Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007 read with Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962.

(ii) I reject the declared assessable value of Rs.6,56,842.62 for the imported goods covered under Bill of Entry No.7205764 dated 24.10.2016 in terms of Rule 12 of Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007 read with Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962.

(iii) I re-determine the assessable value as Rs.31,80,469/- (Rupees Thirty One Lakh Eighty Thousand Four Hundred Sixty Nine only) for the imported goods covered under Bill of Entry No.7205764 dated 24.10.2016 under Rule 9 of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007 read with Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962.

(iv) I order for absolute confiscation of the goods mentioned at Sl.No.35 to 57 of Table-A in para-1 above, i.e. Replica Firearms & Daggers/Swords valued at Rs.19,36,371/-, under Section 111(d) of the Customs Act, 1962.

(v) I order for confiscation of the imported goods mentioned at Sl.No.1 to 34 of Table-A in para-1 above, valued at Rs.12,44,097/-, covered under Bill of Entry No.7205764 dated 24.10.2016 under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962. However, I give an option to the importer to redeem the goods on payment of redemption fine of Rs.2,50,000/- (Rupees Two Lakh Fifty Thousand only) under Section 125(1) of the Customs Act, 1962.

(vi) I confirm the demand of Customs duty amounting to Rs.3,66,275/- (Rupees Three Lakh Sixty Six Thousand Two Hundred Seventy Five only), on the goods mentioned at Sl.No.1 to 34 of the Table A in para-1 above, out of which Rs.1,93,381/- has already been paid by the importer on account of self-assessed duty.

(vii) I order for appropriation of customs duty already paid amounting to Rs.1,93,381/- towards the demand of customs duty. I also order that, thus, importer is required to pay a differential duty amounting to Rs.1,72,894/-, under Section 28(1) of the Customs Act, 1962 along with applicable interest under Section 28AA of the Customs Act, 1962.

(viii) I impose a penalty of Rs.50,000/- (Rupees Fifty Thousand only) on the importer i.e. M/s. Windlass Online Stores Pvt. Ltd. under Section 112 (a) of the Customs Act, 1962.

(ix) I impose a penalty of Rs.50,000/- (Rupees Fifty Thousand only) on the importer i.e. M/s. Windlass Online Stores Pvt. Ltd. under Section 114 AA of the Customs Act, 1962."

7. Being aggrieved, the appellant filed an appeal, which has been rejected by the Commissioner (Appeals) by the impugned order dated 31.01.2019. Hence, the present appeal has been filed before this Tribunal.

8. Having heard both the sides at length and also perused the records along with the written submissions and compilations filed, we may consider the contentions raised both by the appellant as well as by the Department.

9. Mr. Anshuman Sahni, learned Counsel for the appellant raised preliminary issue that the impugned order lacks application of mind and has been passed in violation of principles of natural justice. On merit, he referred to similar consignment vide Bills of Entry No.7961580 dated 12.01.2015 which was cleared by the Customs Authorities as ordered by the Delhi High Court vide Order dated 26.11.2015. It is also his contention that the earlier FSL report dated 23.11.2015 has been relied upon in a selective manner and thereby ignored the observations that, " no projectile can be fired in the present state" and the present FSL report dated 10.03.2017 has not given any view, whether the goods are capable of discharging any projectile or have all firing mechanism and, therefore, a mere composition of conversion in future cannot be a ground to retain the goods. The learned counsel also referred to the Certificate/declaration issued by the supplier/manufacturer of the imported goods stating that the goods imported are classifiable under CTH 83062900 and, therefore, there is no prohibition or restriction either under the Customs Act or under the Foreign Trade Policy to import the "Replica Fire Arms". The goods in question do not fall within the definition of " firearms" under Section 2(1) (e) of the Arms Act, 1959, according to which firearm means "arms of any description designed or adapted to discharge a projectile or projectiles of any kind by the action of any explosive or other forms of energy".

Further, referring to the Notification No.2461(E) dated 18.07.2016 issued by MHA, the learned Counsel submitted that the Replica Fire Arms are exempted from the operation of Arms Act and Rules. Learned Counsel also challenged the re-valuation of the goods on the ground that the Department has not compared the imported price to any identical or similar imports rather had simply relied on the suggested retail price on the internet by the manufacturer - supplier. Thus, purpose of contemporaneous exports having been ignored, the impugned order is bad and the goods in question could not have been confiscated by the department.

10. The learned Authorised Representative for the Revenue Ms. Jaya Kumari, vehemently opposed the appeal. Referring to HSN Explanatory Notes, she submitted that all type of arms, ammunitions and parts or accessories thereof including the replica arms are covered under chapter 93 whereunder even very pistol, revolver, gun and dummy/imitation/safety/warning pistols/revolvers /guns have been covered for classification. Therefore, irrespective of their state, (lethal or innocuous), category (prohibited, restricted, permissible standard or non- standard) all kinds of arms are classifiable under chapter 93. She also referred to the provisions of the Arms Act, 1959 to say that as per the definition of "arms" under section 2 (1)(c), it excludes only those weapons that are incapable of being converted into serviceable weapons. Referring to the definition of "arms" under Section 2(1)(c), the Apex Court in Neel Vs. State of West Bengal - 1972 (2) SCC 668 para 6; observed sword is "arms" within the meaning of Section 2 (1)(c) of the Act. Further, Schedule 1 of the Arms Rules, 2016 covers all kinds of arms, i.e., prohibited, restricted and permissible. Firearm replicas have been characterised under category III (g) of the Schedule and hence the same are classified under chapter 93. Similarly, category V of the Schedule covers arms, other than firearms whereunder swords and daggers with blades longer than 9" or wider than 2" have been covered and therefore the same are rightly classifiable under chapter 93. In support of her contentions, the learned AR has relied on the ruling of US No. HQH023504, where replica guns were held to be classified under subheading 9304.00.20., which provides for: "Other arms (for example, spring, air, or gas guns and pistols, truncheons), excluding those of heading 9307". The reasoning in the said decision was that replicas of real guns are classified on the basis of their similarity in appearance to the real gun of which they are on imitation. Referring to Para 2.03 of the Foreign Trade Policy she relied on the provisions of rule 89 of the Arms Rules, 2016 whereby import of replica firearms are subject to submission of certificate of innocuousness from the manufacturing company of the country of export and an undertaking from the importer that the replica firearms are incapable, even with modification, of expelling or launching a shot, bullet or projectile. In fact, in view of the said provisions, the High Court of Delhi in its order dated 22.12.2016 rejected the writ petition holding that the permission of DGFT is essential for the import under the prevailing Exim Policy and refused to grant any relief to the appellant on the basis of its earlier order. The reliance placed by the appellant on the MHA notification S.O.2461 (E) dated 18.07.2016 granting exemption to the replica firearms from the provisions of the Arms Act, 1959, she clarified that the exemption was in respect of all sections except Section 5, whereby a license is required to procure, sell, expose or offer for sale or transfer or have in his possession for sale of any firearms or any other firearms and the appellant has not produced any such license and hence the same is hit by the provisions thereof. On importability she referred to the conditions specified in the MHA Notification No. S.O.667 (E) dated 12.09.1985 and Notification No. S.O.83 (E) dated 02.08.2002 are fulfilled, i.e. obtaining the requisite license from the competent authority which the appellant failed to produce in respect of the goods in question, i.e., the swords or daggers for clearing them for home consumption. Lastly, she relied on the test report dated 10.03.2017, which was obtained subsequent to the directions of the order of the High Court of Delhi and which in categorical terms stated the possibility of converting the replica firearms into non-standard firearms by improvisation cannot be ruled out. The learned Authorised Representative also relied on the findings of the Adjudicating Authority as under:-

"28.7 ……. I also find that during the investigations, as mentioned in para-19 above, it came to light that in respect of the goods detailed at S.No.35-44, 45-50, the importer in his e-mail communications with the overseas supplier had referred same as "Modern Pistols & Revolvers" and "Assault Rifles" respectively of respective model numbers and not as "Antique Finish Pistol", "Antique Finish Rifle" and "Antique Finish Carbine Gun" as declared in the Bill of Entry by the importer. I further find that the investigating agency also found out that during communication of importer with supplier, no quotation for prices was made. I find that neither the importer had quoted for supply of goods as "Antique Finish Pistols or Revolvers or Carbine Guns" nor the manufacture-cum-supplier's catalogue available on their website www.denix.es declared these goods as "Antique Finish". Instead the website of manufacturer-cum- supplier's website declared these goods as "Modern Weapons" & "World War I & II."

11. Considering the elaborate arguments made on behalf of the appellant as well as the revenue, we find that the appellate authority has not considered the same in proper perspective. Rather on perusal of the impugned order we find that the same is repetition of the order in original passed by the adjudicating authority. We agree with the learned counsel for the appellant that the impugned order lacks application of mind, in as much as it is verbatim the same as the order under challenge. Neither the applicability of the legal provisions particularly with reference to the Arms Act and the Rules and various notifications have been considered nor any reasoning has been given with reference thereto by the Commissioner (Appeals) though being the first appellate authority. The impugned order is therefore unsustainable and deserves to be set aside with a direction to the appellate authority to consider the appeal and decide the same giving proper and substantive reasoning in support thereof. Since the impugned order does not reflect any application of mind, we feel that it would be appropriate to remand the appeal to the Commissioner (Appeals) to discuss the issues on merit. In the circumstances, when we are remanding the matter, we are not stating anything on the merits of the matter.

12. The appeal is, accordingly allowed by way of remand.

DATE OF HEARING : 24.07.2023DATE OF DECISION: 14.11.2023

FINAL ORDER NO.51546-51547/2023

Brief facts of the present cases are as follows:

A specific intelligence was gathered by the officers of Customs (SIB) ICD (Import), Tughlakabad New Delhi that goods contained in container No BSIU2052206 covered under Bill of Entry No 4873621 dated 12.04.2016 (RUD-1) to be grossly undervalued Accordingly, an Alert No.04/2016-17 dated 12.04.2016 was issued against the Bill of Entry No 4873621 dated 12.04.2016 filed by CHA M/s. Abhinav CargoMovers on behalf of importer, M/s. Shree Shyam Enterprises, 18/4, Phase-2. Mayapuri New Delhi having IEC No. 0514046007. The importer had declared the assessable value as Rs.23,20,035/- and duty payable as Rs. 6,13,145/- for 9400 pieces of Diaphragm Boost Pump of „E-Chen‟ brand shifted in 940 Cartons.

2. The goods of the said Bill or Entry were examined 100% by SIIB officers and the entire proceedings were recorded under Panchnama dated 13.04 2016 (RUD-2) drawn on the spot in presenceof two independent witnesses, representative of importer and G-Card holder of CHA firm. There was no variation in quantity of goods vis-à-vis declared quantity. However, the goods were detained for further investigations on a reasonable belief that the subject goods were undervalued with an intent to evade payment of customs duty. Representative sample was drawn as per procedure. The container was again stuffed with the same goods and sealed with Custom Seal No. 324531. On completion of examination proceedings the F- Cardholder Sh. Tapasvi Singh, was advised to ask the importer to get the goods stored in the Customs Bonded Warehouse under Section 49of the Customs Act, 1952 to avoid incurring of demurrage and detention charges of the container.

3. On the basis of authorization dated 21.04.2016 (RUD-3) issued by Sh. Sumit Aggarwal proprietor of M/s Shree Shyam Enterprises,Sh. Sanjeev Garg, Authorised Representative, R/o. 214, Arunodya Apts. F-Block, Vikas Puri, New Delhi-110018 appeared on 22.04.2016 (RUD-4) and rendered his statement of Shri Sanjeev Garg, AuthorisedRepresentative of appellant was recorded under section 108 of Customs Act 1962 wherein, he, inter-alia, stated that Shri Sumit Agarwal, his cousin who had obtained an IEC in the name of importing firm has allowed him to import Diaphragm Boost Pump from Shunde Light Industrial Products Imp. & Exp. Company Ltd. of Guangdong, China in the month of January 16, that he had imported another consignment in the month of March 16. Earlier two consignments and present consignment were all of 9400 pcs each of Diaphragm Boost Pump E-Chen (EC-103-75), with capacity of 75 GDPfrom the same supplier at the same rate of 3.58 USD CIF per piece; that the description E- Chen (EC-103-75) pertained to Booster Pump with a capacity of 75 GPD (Gallons Per Day); that the Manufacturer Company of the item under import was Shenzen Ecowell Purification Company Limited but he had obtained his goods from a Trading firm; namely, M/s. Shunde Light Industrial Products Import & Export Company Ltd. of Guangdong, China. The investigating officer showedhim computer print outs of e-bay for the identical goods which showed selling price @Rs 1799/- per piece and at Alibaba, the retail sale website the price shown was @ 15-16 USD (FOB) for a quantityof 100 pcs.

4. The appellants endorsed no objection for ascertaining the value of the goods either on the basis of market enquiry or on the basis of value given in the computer print-outs shown to him. The assessable value got worked out on the basis of lowest rate available on the e-bay website and the differential duty payable on that basis and that the appellants accepted the re-determined value. The similarmodus operandi was acknowledged for past consignments also. Based on statements recorded during further investigation of Shri Sanjeev Garg and the others concerned, the Show Cause Notice No. 18842 dated 05/10/2016 was served upon the appellants proposing for rejecting:

(i) the total declared value of Rs. 1,59,92,820/-(Rs. OneCrore Fifty nine Lakhs ninety two thousand eight hundred and twenty only) for the goods covered under Bill of EntryNo. 48,73,621/- dated 12.04.2016(Live Consignment) and covered under past Bills of Entry No. 4728925 dated 29/03/2016, 4495811 dated 8/03/2016, 4233475 dated 12/02/2016 & 3872308 dated 11/01/2016 under Rule 12 of the Customs Valuation (Determination of value of the Import goods) Rules, 2007 read with Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962 and to be re-determined as Rs.74,59,370/- in case of Bill of Entry No. 4873621 dated 12.04.2016 (live Bill of entry) and value of Rs.4,37,24,283/- in case of past imports in terms of Rule7 of the Customs Valuation Rules, 2007 read with Section 14 of the Customs Act. 1962

(ii) The differential Customs duty amounting to Rs13,59.354/- in case of live Bill of Entry and differential duty of Rs.79,52,547/- in case of past imports was proposed to be confirmed and recovered with interest with appropriation of differential customs duty of Rs. 13,59,354/- deposited vide TR-6 Challan no 36653 dated 13/05/2016 deposited towards. Goods were proposed to be confiscated. Penalties were also proposed under Section 114A of the Customs Act 1962 on M/s Shree Shyam Enterprises.

Discharge of duty liabilities under Bill of Entry No. 4873621 dated 12/04/2016 should not be appropriated against the said duty demand.

5. The said proposal is confirmed vide Order-in-Original No.05/2018 dated 09.03.2018.

6. Being aggrieved the appellants are before this Tribunal.

7. We have heard Mr. L.B. Yadav and Mr. Mayank Sharma, ld.

Counsels and Mr. Nagendra Yadav, Authorised Representative for the appellants.

8. Ld. Counsel for the appellants mentioned that on examination ofgoods quantity and description were found as per declaration. However, it appeared to department that goods were under-invoiced. Shri Sanjeev Garg was the authorized representative of Appellants, who stated that declared unit price @ 3.58 USD was correct, however, on being shown computer printouts of e-bay-website of the similar goods which showed selling price @ 1799/- per piece and of Alibaba website which showed price of 15-16 USD (FOB) for a quantity of 100 pcs, he under the pressure of increasing detentionand demurrage charges, stated that he had no objection if the assessable value was ascertained on the basis of lowest value and requested the department to release goods at an early date. In his further statement, Shri Sanjeev Garg, under the assurance of officers that their goods will be released in a day or two, accepted theinternet value @ 1799 per piece and paid the differential duty amountRs. 13,59,354/ on 13.05.2016. But goods were still not released despite deposit of differential duty that Appellants, vide letter dated 17.05.2016, requested for provisional release of goods and issuance of Show Cause Notice. Again, vide their letter dated 10.11.2016, Appellants requested for provisional release, which was ultimately accepted and goods were released under Bank Guarantee and Bond. The impugned Show Cause Notice therefore should not have been issued.

9. The Adjudicating Authority without proper appreciation of the facts and without discussing the case law relied upon, by the appellants has wrongly confirmed the value of the goods and wrongly imposed penalty. The order is challenged on the ground that provisional assessment is in itself is an evidence that Appellants had not voluntarily accepted the value @Rs 1799/- per piece.

10. The decision in the matter of Ajex & Turner Wire Dies Co. - 2012 (279) ELT 394 (Tri. Del.) is relied where, it was held that when importer has cleared goods at enhanced value to save demurrage charges or otherwise, it does not mean that he has consented for enhancement of value. Similar view has been taken by Hon'ble Tribunal in the matter of Laxmi Colour Lab 1992

(62) ELT 613 (Tri.) and Digitech Photocopier Vs. Commissioner of Customs. Mumbai - 2009 (233) ELT 425 (Tri. - Del.).

11. The ld. Counsel further mentioned that it is settled propositionof law that in absence of any contemporaneous import, mere internet price is not reliable evidence to discard the transaction value. Decision in the matter of Aggarwal Distributors (P) Ltd. Vs. Commr of Customs. New Delhi-2000 (117) ELT 49 Tribunal) [confirmed by Hon'ble Supreme Court-2000 (122) ELT A121 (SC)] is relied. It is also submitted that it is well settled that the onus of proof relating to undervaluation is on the Revenue which has not been discharged. Butno evidence of collusion, willful mis-statement or suppression of facts has been adduced by Department, levy of penalty under said section, can in no way be countenanced. No parallel invoice or other incriminating document was recovered.

12. Deductive Value of the goods as determined under Rule 7 of CVR, 2007 without following the provisions as laid therein has also been objected.

13. It is finally submitted that Shri Sanjeev Garg is only an Authorised Representative in the matter. He had rendered statementsas per authorization given by proprietor of Appellant. Importer Exporter Code (IEC) was obtained by the proprietor himself. He hadno role to play with foreign supplier in negotiation of the value of instant goods. There is no mention in the entire Notice or Order-in- Original that he had any prior knowledge or that he abetted in the alleged act of undervaluation. Order is accordingly prayed to be set aside.

14. To rebut these submissions ld. Departmental Representative has mentioned that Sanjeev Garg had admitted the re-determined value vide three separate statements dated 21.04.2016, 10.05.2016 & 13.05.2016. None of these statements is ever retracted. In view of said admission no further evidence was required to be produced bydepartment. The appellants vide letter dated 24.04.2017& 07.06.2017 have even requested for waiver of Show Cause Notice. They rather deposited the differential duty on 13.05.2018. Now the appellants cannot back out from the said admission. Ld. Departmental Representative has relied upon the following case laws:-

(i) Commissioner of C. Ex., Madras Versus Systems ComponentsPvt. Ltd. Reported As 2004 (165) ELT 136 (Sc).

(ii) Jai Shiv Trading Co. Versus Commissioner of Central Excise,New Delhi Reported As 2018 (359) ELT 208 (Tri. Del.)

15. Having heard the parties at length and perusing the entirerecord, foremost we need to know as to what „value‟ and „transactionvalue‟ mean:-

Value is derived from the price. Value is the function of the price. Thisis the conceptual meaning of value. Under Section 2(41), “value” is defined in relation to any goods to mean value determined in accordance with Section 14(1) of the Act. Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962 is the sole repository of law governing valuation of goods. The Customs Valuation Rules, 1988 have been framed in respect of imported goods.

16. Section 14(1) is a deeming provision as it talks of „deemed value" of such goods. Therefore, normally, the Assessing Officer is supposed to act on the basis of price which is actually paid and treat the same as assessable value/transaction value of the goods. This, ordinarily, is the course of action which needs to be followed by the Assessing Officer. This principle of arriving at transaction value to be the assessable value applies. That is also the effect of Rule 3(1) and Rule 4(1) of the Customs Valuation Rules. The authority is thus boundto accept price actually paid or payable for goods as the transaction value. Exceptions are, however, carved out and enumerated in Rule 4(2). As per that provision, the transaction value mentioned in the Bills of Entry can be discarded in case it is found that there are any imports of identical goods or similar goods at a higher price at or around the same time or if the buyers and sellers are related to each other. In order to invoke such a provision it is incumbent upon the Assessing Officer to give reasons as to why the transaction value declared in the Bills of Entry was being rejected; to establish that the price is not the sole consideration; and to give the reasons supported by material on the basis of which the Assessing Officer arrives at his own assessable value.

17. In South India Television (P) Ltd., the Court explained as to how the value is derived from the price and under what circumstances the deemed value mentioned in Section 14(1) can be departed with. Discussion in the said judgment is quoted hereunder:

"Before rejecting the invoice price the Department has to givecogent reasons for such rejection. This is because the invoice price forms the basis of the transaction value. Therefore, before rejecting the transaction value as incorrect or unacceptable, the Department has to find out whether there are any imports of identical goods or similar goods at a higher price at around the same time. Unless the evidence is gathered in that regard, the question of importing Section 14(1A) does not arise. In the absence of such evidence, invoice price has to be accepted as the transaction value. Invoice is the evidence of value. Casting suspicion on invoice produced by the importer is not sufficient to reject it as evidence of value of importedgoods. Undervaluation has to be proved. If the charge of undervaluation cannot be supported either by evidence or information about comparable imports, the benefit of doubt must goto the importer. If the Department wants to allege undervaluation, itmust make detailed inquiries, collect material and also adequate evidence. When undervaluation is alleged, the Department has to prove it by evidence or information about comparable imports. For proving undervaluation, if the Department relies on declaration made in the exporting country, it has to show how such declaration was procured. We may clarify that strict rules of evidence do not apply to adjudication proceedings. They apply strictly to the Courts' proceedings. However, even in adjudication proceedings, the AO hasto examine the probative value of the documents on which relianceis placed by the Department in support of its allegation of undervaluation. Once the Department discharges the burden of proof to the above extent by producing evidence of contemporaneous imports at higher price, the onus shifts to the importer to establish that the invoice relied on by him is valid. Therefore, the charge of under-invoicing has to be supported by evidence of prices of contemporaneous imports of like goods."

18. To the same effect, are other judgments, reiterating the aforesaid principle, such as, Commissioner of Customs, Calcutta
v. South India Television (P) Ltd., (2007) 6 SCC 373 = 2007 (214) E.L.T. 3 (S.C.), Chaudhary Ship Breakers v. Commissioner of Customs, Ahmedabad, (2010) 10 SCC 576 = 2010 (259) E.L.T. 161 (S.C.) and Commissioner of Customs, Vishakhapatnam v. Aggarwal Industries Ltd., (2012) 1 SCC 186 = 2011 (272) E.L.T. 641 (S.C.).

19. Revealing to the facts of present case, we observe that the appellants have imported 4 consignments of Diaphragm Boost Pumpin the past and one live consignment was detained by the Departmentfor investigation. It is a matter of record that the following facts have emerged in the course of investigation on the basis of which show cause notice was issued to the appellant importing firm:

(i) That the value of the identical goods for the contemporary importperiod on the e-bay and an Alibaba Web based trading firm isindicating the value of the imported goods @ U.S.

$ 17 to 18 per piece while the declared value of the live consignment as well as of the previously imported consignment was declared U.S. $ 3.58 CIF per piece;

(ii) During the investigations the representative of the importingfirm have also been confronted with the available price of the importconsignment goods at E- bay and Alibaba and Shri Sanjeev Garg, Authorized Representative has voluntarily agreed for value of Rs. 1,799/- per piece (Rs. 794/- per piece as the assessable value after making necessary deductions, accordingly the assessable value has been raised to Rs. 794/- per piece by the Department applying the provisions of Rule 7 of Customs Valuation Rules, 2007;

(iii) Differential amount of the duty amounting to Rs. 13,59,354/- was deposited by the appellant for their live consignment under TR- 6 challan No. 36653 dated 13 May, 2016;

(iv) The statements recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act,1962 have never been retracted by the Proprietor and the Authorized Representative of the appellant firm.

20. From the above facts, we find that the Assessing Officer was having a valid and enough evidence for rejection of the transaction value as declared by the appellant in their bill of entry by resorting to Rule 3 (4) of the Customs Valuation Rules, 2007. Since the value of identical and similar goods at the contemporary import time was also could not be ascertained, we feel that the resorting the valuation under Rule 7 of the Customs Valuation Rules by the Department is legally sustainable in the facts and circumstances of this case as narrated above. While holding the above view, we take shelter of the decision of this Tribunal in the case of Commissioner of Customs (Import), ICD, TKD, New Delhi versus Sodagar Knitwear reported in 2018 (362) E.L.T. 819 (Tri. Del.) which hasalso been confirmed by Hon'ble Apex Court in its decision reported under 2018 (362) E.L.T. A213 (S.C.). The relevant extract of the above decision is reproduced here below :-

"8. The second issue in the present appeal is regarding the value of the imported goods. The Customs Authorities redetermined the value of the imported goods in terms of Customs Valuation Rules, 2007. Since the importer had failed to advance any documents/invoice to substantiate the value of the goods, the transaction value stands rejected and the value of the goods have been redetermined as per Rule 7 of the Customs Valuation Rules, 2007. It is noteworthy that the representative of the importer has been specifically shown the basis for redetermination of the value and his statement recorded by the Customs Officers. It is on record that Sh. Eklovey Chug, Manager of the importer has specifically admitted in his statement dated 31-12-2016 that he agreed with themanner of calculating the assessable value and differential duty.

9. It is settled position of law that the facts which are admitted neednot be proved. In the case of CCE, Madras v. Systems & Components Pvt. Ltd. 2004 (165) E.LT. 136 (S.C.), the Hon'ble Apex Court in para 5 of the order has observed as follows:

".....Once it is an admitted position by the party itself, thatthese are parts of a Chilling Plant and the concerned party doesnot even dispute that they have no independent use, there is no need for the department to prove the same. It is a basic and settled law what is admitted need not be proved".

10. Further, this Tribunal in the case of Jai Shiv Trading Company vide F. O., dated 20-7-2017 has observed as follows:

"The appellant has also challenged that valuation adopted by the customs authorities. From record, it is seen that such redetermination of value has been carried out in terms of Rule 7 of the Customs Valuation Rules which provides for determination of value on the basis of the price of identical or similar imported goods in India. It is further seen from records, that the proprietor of the appellant, Sh. Jayshiv, was shown the market enquiry report at the time of recording his statement on 8-7-2008. Further, in the statement he has voluntarily accepted the increased valuation of the imported goods. It is settled position of law that once, the importer has admitted the redetermination of value on record and hasaccepted the method of such valuation, he cannot subsequently challenge the same on the same ground. Consequently, we uphold the redetermination of the value carried out by the customs authorities".

The ratio of the above judgment is squarely applicable to theinstant case".

21. We also observe that in the present case also there is sufficient admission of the authorized representative of the appellants for the value of contemporaneous import of similar goods shown by thedepartment. We observe that thrice the statements of said representative were recorded where he corroborated the admission and there is no retraction. Law is clear that admissions need no further proof (52 of Indian Evidence Act). The appellants /importer has also not appeared to depose contrary to the said admission. The onus of proof in the given circumstances was of the appellant which has not been discharged. The only plea that the admission was to avoid the demurrage charges is not acceptable for want of any evidence about the place of price negotiations by the importer. Above all, admittedly the importer has not purchased from the manufacturer the possibility of getting the goods from trader at lower prices doesn‟t arises.

22. In view of above discussion and the decision of this Tribunal, which has also been confirmed by Hon‟ble Apex Court, we hold that there is no infirmity in the order-in-original under challenge. We do not find any requirement of interfering with the findings in the order- in-original. Therefore, we uphold the same.

23. Accordingly, the appeals are dismissed.

Date of Hearing: 31/08/2023Date of Decision: 29.11.2023

DR.RACHNA GUPTA:

Present appeal has been filed pursuant to review order No.14/2019 dated 27.11.2019 passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General),New Delhi.

2. The brief facts of the case are as follows:

3. That the respondent, M/s.Air Logix Solutions is the licensed courier vides registration No.DEL/POL/COUR/22/2005 issued by the Ministry of Finance dated 27.6.2008. The respondent was required to strictly adhere to the provisions laid in the Notification No.07/98-Customs (NT) dated 9.11.1998. On 23.04.2018, an information was received that the respondent was using one Aadhar No.233962343459 repeatedly with different Bills of Entry (BOE) for import of parcels through courier and it was found to have used 22433 times during the period from November 2017 to March 2018. Pursuant to said information, search was conducted at the premises of the respondent, no documents pertaining to KYCs (Know Your Customers) and POD (proof of delivery) were found. Proceedings were recorded under panchnama dated 23.4.2018. Statements of various concerned including G-Card Holder of the respondent, Shri Tikaram, of Shri Atish Mohanty, partner of respondent, of Shri A.Murugan, proprietor of Femtosoft Technologies and of Project Manager of M/s.Wipro Ltd., Shri Vikash Kaushik were recorded. The respondent vide letter dated 11.6.2018 submitted some documentsincluding PODs alongwith Bills of Entry and KYC document of the consignees.It was found that aforementioned Aadhar number was used as KYC for several BOE's for different consignees. It was also found that GSTN No. given in BOEs i.e. Aadhar No.233962343459 did not match with the copy of KYC document attached with the respective BOE.

4. Verification of genuineness of POD was also conducted by the jurisdictional Commissinerate and the PODs were found forged. Most of the addresses were fictitious and the consignments were found bogus. Theverification report clearly revealed that authorized courier/ respondent has failed to exercise due diligence and to comply with the conditions of provisions of Regulation of Courier Imports and Exports (Electronic Declaration and Processing) Regulations, 2010 (hereinafter referred to as "CIER,2010"). Resultantly the show cause notice bearing No.04/MK/Policy/2019 dated 12.03.2019 was served upon the appellant proposing revocation of their courier registration for contravention of provisions of Regulation 12 (1) (iv), 12 (1) (v) and 12 (1) (x) of Courier Imports and Exports (Electronic Declaration and Processing) Regulations, 2010 (hereinafter referred to as "CIER,2010") for forfeiture of security deposit and imposition of penalty was also proposed. The said proposal was not accepted except that the penalty of Rs.50,000/- was imposed upon the respondent vide Order-in-Original No.92/MK/Policy/2019 dated 2.9.2019.The said order has been reviewed vide aforesaid order directing the appellant-department to file appeal before this Tribunal. Resultantly, the present appeal has been filed by the department.

5. Heard Shri Rajesh Singh, ld. Counsel for the respondent-assessee ad Shri Shri R.P.Singh, Authorised Representative for the Respondent.

6. It is submitted on behalf of learned DR that the documents recovered during investigation clearly revealed that the respondent-assessee had used one aadhar No.233962343459 repeatedly as many as 22433 times duringthe period from November 2017 to March 2018 for importing parcel through courier for different fictitious consignee's name and address. The same aadhar number was mentioned in all the bills of entry. That the KYC details filed in the Bills of entry were not same and were also found fake. Ld.DR mentioned that though respondent –assessee has taken defence that it was software mistake and it was absolutely unintentional but it is very much apparent on record that the respondent-assessee was well aware for using same aadhar number on all BOE's. The software developer has categorically stated they used fields GSTIN Type" and "GSTIN Number" as per instructionof the company. It is also apparent admission of the G-Card holder of the respondent that KYC's of the consignee were not properly maintained in the company office. It is also impressed upon that the original adjudicating authority has miserably failed to take into consideration clear admission and other cogent evidence on record which have sufficiently proved the alleged violation of provisions of CIER Regulations, 2010. The order under challengeis accordingly prayed to be set aside and appeal is prayed to be allowed in terms of observations made in the impugned review order.

7. While rebutting these submissions, ld.Counsel for the respondent- assessee has submitted that Rule 12 (iv) of Regulation of CIER, 2010 has notbeen violated by the respondent as there was sufficient verification done about antecedents and identity with respect to five consignments. The respondent has exercised due diligence to ascertain the correctness of information in regard to alleged five consignments. The respondent also submits that all subject consignments were non commercial in nature. These were basically gift items imported from middle-east meant for dependent members of family of the respective consignor. Therefore, question of any loss of customs duty, does not arise. The allegations that KYC did not tally with the names mentioned in the Bills of Entry are vehemently denied by the respondent submitting that KYC as were received from sender on email,were filed for clearance. The Aadhar card was also submitted from Govt. portal. The department also verified the Aadhar (KYC) but no objection was ever earlier raised. These facts are clear enough to show that the proper due diligence was done by the respondent and that there is no violation of any provisions of CIER Regulations, 2010.

8. Ld. Counsel has also relied upon the decision of the Tribunal in the case of FLE Fast Line Express Pvt.Ltd. vs. CC-2021 (378) ELT 361 (Tri.-Del.) to impress upon that when there is no evidence that courier was aware of real content of consignment, violation of Regulation of CIER, 2010 cannot be alleged against him. Otherwise also there is no provision under Regulation of CIER, 2010 requiring courier to physically verify the particulars. The decision in the case of Him Logistics Pvt.Ltd.-2017 (348) ELT 625 (Del.) is also relied upon.

9. With these submissions, ld. Counsel for the respondent has prayedfor appeal to be dismissed and Order-in-Original dated 2.9.2019 is prayed to be upheld.

10. Having heard rival contentions of both the parties and after perusing entire records of the impugned appeal, we observe and hold as follows:

11. There is no denial of the respondent to the fact that same GSTIN number/Aadhar No.233962343459 has repeatedly been used for several Bills of entry filed during the period of November, 2017 to March, 2018. There is also no denial to the fact that consignees were different for these Bills of Entry and even consignors were different. The said admission has also been observed by the original adjudicating authority however the authority has held it to just be lack of due diligence on the part of respondent towards observing obligations of authorized courier. The adjudicating authority did not revoke courier's registration nor forfeited the amount of security, except that the penalty of Rs.50,000/- has been imposed on the respondent. The department has filed impugned appeal being aggrieved of the fact that verification report of Cochin Commissionerate (Preventive) has clearly concluded that the addresses for five consignments were bogus/fictitious but the report has been ignored by the adjudicating authority. The report sufficiently reveals that the obligations under impugnedRegulation have been so violated by the respondent that it amounts to intentional misconduct. Imposition of penalty is therefore alleged to behighly disproportionate to the fraudulent act committed by the respondent.

12. From the admissions as observed above, in our opinion, it also becomes apparent fact that the respondent has failed to verify the correctness of IEC code and even identity of its clients. The respondent was aware of the use of same Aadhaar Number for all BOEs still the Authorized Courier nor to verify the said Aadhaar Number or did not verify the antecedent, correctness of Import Export Code (IEC) number, identity of its client. Further, the respondent during the time of uploading of the Bill of Entry failed to take note that the data entered was not correct. The respondent did not inform the Custom Department that KYC details filed in the Bill of Entry was not the same which was received via email in respect of any given import. G.card holder of respondent, Shri Tikaram has also admitted in his statement dated 23.04.2018 that KYCs of the consignee werenot properly maintained in the company office. Investigation also revealed that the GSTIN given in the BOEs i.e. the Aadhaar No.233962343459 did notmatch with the copy of the KYC document attached with the BOEs filed by the respondent. The respondent did not even bother to inform the said mistake to the Customs department, despite that KYC details filed by him in the Bills of Entry was not the same as was reflected in those Bills of Entry. Accordingly, we hold that respondent has contravened the provisions of Regulation 12(1) (v) of CIER.2010.

13. We also observe that to ascertain as to whether the imported goods indeed reached the declared importers, a verification of genuineness of the PODs (Proof of Deliveries), submitted by the authorized courier and KYC was carried out by the Commissioner of Customs, ACC (Export), New Delhi through the jurisdictional Commissionerate(s). The Joint Commissioner, Commissioner of Customs (Prev.), Cochin vide letter C.No.VIII/26/21/2018 CCP(Prev.)4807/18 report dated 28.11.2018 provided the verification report in respect of 19 addresses out of 24 addresses pertaining to M/s. Air Logix Solutions and other authorized courier companies. Failure of delivery of the consignment to the consignee or denial of receipt of the consignment by the consignee that the addresses were found bogus during verification of genuineness of the PODs, proves that the imported goods were never destined to the consignees named in the BOEs and have been intentionally diverted.

It is known to reasonable prudence that such diversion was not possible without indulgence of the authorized courier, the respondent. Thus, we hold that the respondent was knowingly involved in the diversion of imported goods and he intentionally and knowingly misused the ID's of consignees in whose name the goods were shown imported, consignees being the relatives of NRI consignees. The goods otherwise meant for some one else.

14. We further observe from the record that the respondent has taken pleathat the mistake of same Aadhaar No. to have been uploaded for several BOEs to be the consignee's software mistake. But is apparent from the statement of Shri A.Murugan, Proprietor of Femtosoft Technologies and Shri Vikas Kaushik, Project Manager of M/s.Wiprto Limited, who acknowledged developing a software for Courier Company (including the presentrespondent) to convert Excel input into XML file that can be used for bulk uploading of data to ECCS server for filing of Courier Bills of Entry. Further Mr.Murugan explained that if any courier company wanted to edit any information in XML File generated by the software, the right has been given to the courier company who before uploading the same to ECCS Server, company could check any data/information in XML File and if it is desired it can change the data or undo any error that may be detected. Shri A.Murugan categorical reported that the fields "GSTIN Type" GSTIN Number"were kept constant with values "Aadhar Number "233962343459" as per direction of the respondent. This particular deposition corroborated the indulgence of respondent in the alleged act. Also there is absence on the partof the respondent to bring to the notice of all concerned including competent authority about repeated use of one and same Aadhar number at different occasions for the different consignees. Respondent gave no information about the said mistake to the department nor ever took the plea that it was happening due to software error. From said statements above, it becomes clear that software was so designed under the instructions of respondent. GSTIN field showing Aadhaar number was directed by the respondent himself to be kept constant while software was developed. The edit option was with the respondent. He has failed to upload the correct edited information. Thus respondent cannot be allowed to take shelter of plea of "software error". Thus we hold that the alleged/impugned act was notmerely lack of due diligence but was intentional misconduct.

15. Respondent himself had provided proof of deliveries which got verifiedby the Cochin Commissionerate. The Verification report revealed as follows:

Name of the registered Courier	No.of addresses verified	Remarks
M/s.Air Logix Solutions	10	06 consignments were reported ogus/fictitious; 02 consignments were reported genuine and; KYC of 02 consignments could not be verified due to incomplete address.

16. The said report sufficiently established the fact that the respondent has imported consignments in the name of consignees who were not even aware of the fact that their identity has been misused by the respondent i.e. couriercompany for import purpose. The report is held cogent evidence to show that authorized courier has failed to verify the correctness of IEC code and even identity of its clients. As observed above, it was done intentionally by the respondent, hence is wrongly held to be the mere act of negligence.

17. Regulations 12(1) (iv) and 12 (x) of CIER,2010 are extracted below:-

"REGULATION 12. Obligations of Authorised Courier.

(1) An Authorised Courier shall -(i) to (iii) ----------

(iv) verify the antecedent, correctness of Importer Exporter Code (IEC) Number, identity of his client and the functioning of his client in the declared address by using reliable, independent, authentic documents, data or information;

(v) exercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness and completeness of any information which he submits to the proper officer with reference to any work related to the clearance of imported goods or ofexport goods;

(vi) to (ix) - - -- -

(x) abide by all the provisions of the Act and the rules, regulations,notifications and orders issued thereunder."

18. Regulation 12(1)(iv) requires an authorised courier to verify the antecedents, correctness of IEC number, identity of his client and the functioning of his client in the declared address by using reliable, independent, authentic documents, date or information. In the normal course, this would be easy for any courier because it has to finally deliver the goods by itself at the declared address of theconsignee after clearance from the customs. In this case, instead, the appellant has facilitated imports and attempted to obtain clearance of the goods in the name of many consignees whose IEC did not match with the respective KYC. Thus, we hold that the appellant has violated Regulation 12(1)(iv) of CIER, 2010.

19. Regulation 12(1) (v) requires the couriers to exercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness and completeness of any information which he submits to the proper officer with reference to any work related to the clearance of imported goods or of export goods. In this case, the appellant has intentionally filed documents (BOEs) to clear the goods by mis-declaring the names of the consignees and consignors and by knowingly using same GSTIN for allBOEs meant for different consignees, without informing the same to the proper officer. Respondent has knowingly violated this Regulation as well.

20. Regulation 12(1)(x) requires authorised courier to abide byallthe provisions of the Act and the rules, regulations and notifications and orders issued thereunder. In this case the appellant has actively violated the provisions of the act and rules byknowingly filing the bills of entry in the name of wrong consignees by using wrong KYCs.

21. The Regulations also provide that the Principal Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be, may revoke the registration of an authorised courier and also pass an order for forfeiture of security on any of the following grounds:

(a) Failure of the authorised courier to comply with any of the conditions of the bond executed by him under Regulation 11;

(b) failure of the authorised courier to comply with any of the provisions of these Regulations;

(c) mis-conduct on the part of the authorise courier by within the jurisdiction of the Principal Commissioner which in the opinion of Principal Commissioner render it unfit the transit any business in the Customs Airport.

(d) Regulation 14 provides for imposition of a penalty which may extend to 50,000/- for contravention of any of the regulations or abatement such contravention or for failure to comply with any provisions of the regulation which it was his obligation to comply with.

22. In view of above discussions, we also find that there is sufficient evidence on record to hold that the above said Regulations have been violated by the respondent. The violation invite revocation of courier licence as per Regulation 11 discussed above. But the original adjudicating authority despite acknowledging the alleged violations has merely imposed penalty. Since the alleged act is proved to be intentionalact of the respondent, we hold that mere imposition of penalty ofRs.50,000/- (fifty thousand) is disproportionate punishment. Hence, weaccept the prayer made by the appellant-department for revocation of courier registration of the respondent for committing intentional fraud while importing several goods in the name of those being gifts from NonResident Indian (NRI) to their family member residing in India, which otherwise were not imported by them nor were meant for them.

23. As a result of entire above discussion, the findings under challenge are hereby set aside and the appeal of Department is hereby allowed. Consequently the courier licence of the respondent is hereby revoked. Early hearing application is also disposed of.

DATE OF HEARING: 31.07.2023 DATE OF DECISION: 30.11.2023

DR. RACHNA GUPTA

The appellant had imported 2000 units of "G Watch (Smart Watch)" from the Republic of Korea vide two Bills of Entry bearing No. 2370169 and 2375523 both dated 11.03.2019. They had classified the said goods under CTH 91021900 and have assessed the basic customs duty at the rate of 'NIL' BCD after claiming the benefit of entry serial no. 955 of Notification No. 152/2009-Cus., dated 31.12.2009. However, IGST at the rate of 18% was paid. Department observed that the imported goods, "G Watches" are capable of performing many functions other than those related to timekeeping and as such are the smart watches as different from those classifiable under CTH 91021900. Department formed an opinion that such kind of apparatus/device merits classificationunder CTH 85176290. Resultantly, the Show Cause Notice No. 01/2020 dated 13.01.2020 was served upon the appellantproposing rejection of classification claimed by the appellant i.e. under CTH 91021900. It is proposed that the imported goods be classified under 85176290 to which the duty exemption, as availed, is not applicable. Resultantly, short payment of customs dutyamounting to Rs.86,62,852/- with respect to the import of the impugned goods vide the aforementioned two Bills of Entry was proposed to be recovered along with the interest. The imported goods were proposed to be held liable to confiscation. In addition, the penalty was also proposed to be imposed upon the appellant. The said proposal has been confirmed vide the Order-in-Original bearing no. 55/2020 dated 07.10.2020. While ordering confiscation, option to impose redemption fine has not been given and penalty of Rs.8,00,000/- has been imposed on the appellant under Section 112 (a) of the Customs Act, 1962. Being aggrieved the appellant is before this Tribunal.

2. We have heard Ms. Jyoti Pal and Shri Amitabh Amrit, learned Advocates for the appellant and Shri Rajesh Singh, learned Authorized Representative for the department.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant has mentioned that appellant is a private limited company engaged in import and saleof various electronic goods including LG Watch W7 (Hybrid Watch orimpugned goods). It is impressed upon that the impugned goods have two physical watch hands and a micro gearbox and it operate on quartz movements, designed by finest Swiss Watch Maker, SOPROD SA. It is also submitted that the impugned goods carry the look of traditional analog watch and works also like the said analog. Learned counsel acknowledged that though the imported goods perform the smart watch functions with the help of few electrical components (LCD, 4GB RAM, Bluetooth, Qualcomm Chipset etc.), however, still the users can wear the same on their wrist to watch time, to receive alarms etc., just like the traditional watch analog. Hence, the imported goods have rightly been classified by the appellant under CTH 91021900. Chapter 91 coversdifferent types of watches and their features. The impugned goods duly get covered under the criteria given therein. It is further submitted that under Chapter 85 CTH 8517, the goods covered are telephone sets and other apparatus for communication in a wired orwireless network. Whereas the goods covered under CTH 9102 are wrist watches, pocket watches etc., as the heading suggest and there is no denial that the imported goods are wrist watches for observing time. The brochure of their company describing the imported goods has also been elaborated. From no stretch of imagination they can be called as telephones sets/other apparatus, hence the correct classification is CTH 91021900. The findings under challenge are therefore liable to be set aside.

3.1 Learned counsel further mentioned that the tariff entries haveto be interpreted as per the relevant section and chapter notes.The decision in the case of Saurashtra Chemical Porbandar Vs. Collector of Customs reported as 1986 (23) ELT 283 (Tri.-LB)and Mauri Yeast India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. State of U.P. reported as 2008 (225) ELT 321 (SC) has been relied upon by the learned counsel. Learned counsel also submitted that the technological advancements have to be taken into consideration while determining the classification. Various other functions of the imported goods is nothing but technological advancement due to which wrist watch/clock cannot be made to fall under any othertariff entry. The decision in the case of Collector of Customs & Central Excise Vs. Lekhraj Jessumal & Sons reported as 1996 (82) ELT 162 (SC) has been relied upon. Learned counsel further submitted that while importing the goods the benefit of Notification No. 152/2009 has rightly been claimed as the country of origin certificate was duly submitted. All the requirements thereof have duly been satisfied. Above all, the benefit of notification can be claimed at any stage. Finally it is submitted that even if the classification of appellant is not accepted, the act of appellant is merely a claim for incorrect classification. It cannot be alleged as mis-declaration. Question of imposition of penalty upon the appellant does not at all arise. The decision in the case of Northern Plastic Ltd. Vs. Collector of Customs and Central Excise reported as 1998 (101) ELT 549 (SC) has been relied upon. With these submissions, learned counsel has prayed for the order under challenge to be set aside and appeal to be allowed.

4. Learned DR while rebutting these submissions has mentioned that the imported goods have the function of transmission and reception of data which allow the communication to the wired or wireless communication network. Hence, those have rightly been classified by the department under CTH 85176290. It is submitted that importer itself, while filing the Bills of Entry at the time of self- assessment, has declared the imported goods as "G Watch (Smart watch)". Admittedly the product performed many other functions than merely timekeeping. It is mentioned that even by following General Rules of Interpretation, the goods merits classification under 85176290.

4.1 Learned DR further impressed upon that the declared classification 91021900 covers electrical wrist watches working on the basis of quartz movement. But as per appellant's own brochure/catalogue, the G watch except being a wearable wrist device and having two moving hands to show time, has the combined mechanical movements with digital functionalities including that of LCD display, touch sensitivity, microphone, Wifiand Bluetooth connectivity and that it needs an operating system asprovided by Google. Even the initial set up of time is done through syncing the impugned good with the user phone. On the contrary, the wrist watches/non-smart watch time pieces are set manually. Learned DR also impressed upon that according to World Customs Organization ruling (Harmonised System Committee 55th Session – March 2015), smart watches are technical equipment with display, processor, main memory etc. can fulfill several other functions suchas receiving, converting and sending or regenerating sounds, picture and other data. Thus by applying section note 3 to Section XVI, smart watches merits classification under CTH 85176290. Resultantly, the duty exemption under Notification No. 152/2009 is rightly been denied. Impressing upon no infirmity in the order under challenge, appeal is prayed to be dismissed.

5. Having heard the rival contentions of both the parties, perusing the entire records of the appeal memo including the catalogue of the appellant with respect to the impugned imported goods and the Bills of Entry in question, we observe that thefollowing are the issues to be adjudicated:

(i) Whether LG Watch W7 as imported by the appellant is classifiable under CTH 91021900 as claimed by the appellant or is classifiable under CTH 85176290 as confirmed vide the Order-in- Original.

(ii) Whether the appellant is eligible to claim concessional rate of basic customs duty under serial no. 955 of the Notification No. 152/2009 dated 31.12.2009

(iii) Whether the imported goods are liable for confiscation and the appellant is liable for being penalized.

6. First point of adjudication:

Both the parties have relied upon the General Rules of Interpretation (GRI) and have impressed upon that the chapter notes read with GRI decides the tariff entry for a particular goods. In view thereof, we foremost need to look into the tariff entries in question and then the General Rules of Interpretation. Chapterheading and chapter note for Chapter 85 are as follows:

Few of the relevant Chapter notes of chapter are as follows:

3. For the purposes of heading 8507, the expression "electric accumulators" includes those presented with ancillary componentswhich contribute to the accumulator's function of storing andsupplying energy or protect it from damage, such as electrical connectors, temperature control devices (for example, thermistors) and circuit protection devices. They may also include a portion of the protective housing of the goods in which they are to be used.

5. For the purposes of heading 8523:

(a) "Solid-state non-volatile storage devices" (for example, "flash memory cards" or "flash electronic storage cards") are storage devices with a connecting socket, comprising in the same housing one or more flash memories (for example, FLASH E^2PROM") in theform of integrated circuits mounted on a printed circuit board.They may include a controller in the form of an integrated circuit and discrete passive components, such as capacitors andresistors;

(b) The term "smart cards" means cards which have embedded in them one or more electronic integrated circuits (a microprocessor,random access memory (RAM) or read-only memory (ROM)) inthe form of chips. These cards may contain contacts, a magnetic stripe or an embedded antenna but do not contain any otheractive or passive circuit elements.

7. For the purpose of heading 8536, "connectors for optical fibres, optical fibre bundles or cables" means connectors thatsimply mechanically align optical fibres end to end in a digital line system. They perform no other function, such as the amplification,regeneration or modification of a signal.

- For the purposes of heading 8523, "Information Technology software" means any representation of instructions, data, soundor image, including source code and object code, recorded in a machine readable form, and capable of being manipulated orproviding interactivity to a user, by means of an automatic data processing machine.

Chapter heading and chapter notes for Chapter 91 are as follows:

The Chapter note for Chapter 91 reads as "Clocks and watches and parts thereof". Few of the relevant notes are as follows:

2. Heading 9101 covers only watches with case wholly of precious metal orof metal clad with precious metal, or of the same materials combined withnatural or cultured pearls, or precious or semi-precious stones (natural, synthetic or reconstructed) of headings 7101 to 7104. Watches with case of base metal inlaid withprecious metal fall in heading 9102.

For the purposes of this Chapter, the expression ―watch movements‖ means devices regulated by a balance-wheel and hairspring, quartz crystalor any other system capable of determining intervals of time, with a display or a system to which a mechanical display can be incorporated. Such watch movements shall not exceed 12 mm in thickness and 50 mm in width, length or diameter.

1. Except as provided in Note 1, movements and other parts suitable for use both in clocks or watches and in other articles (for example, precision instruments) are to be classified in this Chapter.

A clock or watch is composed of two main parts: the movementand the container for the movement (case, cabinet, etc.)

6.1 To appreciate as to which of the above precisely apply upon "G-Watch (Smart Watch)", we need to look for General Rules of Interpretation also. Those read as follows:

Classification of goods in this Schedule shall be governed by thefollowing principles:

1. The titles of Sections, Chapters and Sub-Chapters are provided for ease of reference only; for legal purposes, classification shall be determined according to the terms of the headings and any relative Section or Chapter Notes and, provided such headings or Notes do not otherwise require,according to the following provisions:

2. (a) Any reference in a heading to an article shall be taken to include a reference to that article incomplete or unfinished, provided that, as presented, the incomplete or unfinished article has the essential character of the complete or finished article.It shall also be taken to include a reference to that article complete or finished (or falling to be classified as complete or finished by virtue of this rule), presented unassembled or disassembled.

(b) Any reference in a heading to a material or substance shall be taken to include a reference to mixtures or combinations of that material or substance with other materials or substances. Any reference to goods of a given material or substance shallbe taken to include a reference to goods consisting wholly or partly of such material or substance. The classification of goodsconsisting of more than one material or substance shall be according to the principles of rule 3.

3. When by application of rule 2(b) or for any other reason, goods are, prima facie, classifiable under two or more headings,classification shall be effected as follows:

(a) The heading which provides the most specific description shall be preferred to headings providing a more general description. However, when two or more headings each refer to part only of the materials or substances contained in mixed or composite goods or to part only of the items in a set put up for retail sale, those headings are to be regarded as equally specificin relation to those goods, even if one of them gives a more complete or precise description of the goods.

(b) Mixtures, composite goods consisting of different materials or made up of different components, and goods put up in sets for retail sale, which cannot be classified by reference to (a), shall be classified as if they consisted of the material or component which gives them their essential character, insofaras this criterion is applicable.

(c) When goods cannot be classified by reference to (a) or (b), they shall be classified under the heading which occurs last in numerical order among those which equally merit consideration.

4. Goods which cannot be classified in accordance with theabove rules shall be classified under the heading appropriate to the goods to which they are most akin.

5. In addition to the foregoing provisions, the following rules shall apply in respect of the goods referred to therein:

(a) Camera cases, musical instrument cases, gun cases, drawing instrument cases, necklace cases and similar containers, specially shaped or fitted to contain a specific articleor set of articles, suitable for long-term use and presented with the articles for which they are intended, shall be classified with such articles when of a kind normally sold therewith. This rule does not, however, apply to containers which give the whole its essential character;

(b) Subject to the provisions of (a) above, packing materials and packing containers presented with the goods therein shall be classified with the goods if they are of a kind normally used for packing such goods. However, this provision does not applywhen such packing materials or packing containers are clearly suitable for repetitive use.

6. For legal purposes, the classification of goods in the sub- headings of a heading shall be determined according to the terms of those sub-headings and any related sub-heading Notesand, mutatis mutandis, to the above rules, on the understanding that only sub-headings at the same level are comparable. For the purposes of this rule the relative Section and Chapter Notes also apply, unless the context otherwise requires.

6.2 The impugned goods i.e. G-Watch, as discussed above, is imported as a 'smart watch' as is apparent from the Bills of Entryon record. Meaning of watch and smart watch also to be looked into. For the purpose we have taken aid from dictionaries and the technical information from internet. As per Cambridge dictionary,a smart watch is the watch that has many of the features ofa smart phone or a computer. As per Collins dictionary a smart watch is a wireless electronic device that can respond to spokencommands, for example by giving information or playing music.The smart watch is just one example of wearable tech. We judicially notice that a smart watch is a wearable computer in the form of a watch; modern Smart watches provide a local touch screen interface for daily use, while an associated smart phone app provides management and telemetry, such as long- term biomonitoring. While early models could perform basic tasks, such as calculations, digital time telling, translations, and game- playing. Smart watches released since 2015 have more general functionality closer to smart phones including mobile apps,a mobile operating system and WiFi/Bluetooth connectivity. Some smart watches function as portable media players with FM radio and playback of digital audio and video files via a Bluetooth headset. Some models, called watch phones (or phone watches), have mobile cellular functionality such as making telephone calls. The main benefit of a smart watch is that it keeps you constantly updated without you having to whip out your smart phone. A smart watch is a wearable computing device that closely resembles a wristwatch or other time-keeping device. In addition to telling time, many smart watches are Bluetooth - capable. The gadget becomes a wireless Bluetooth adaptor capable of extending the capabilities of the wearer's smart phone to the watch. The wearer can use the watch's interface to initiate and answer phone calls from their mobile phone, read email and text messages, get weather reports, listen to music, dictate email and text messages, and ask a digital assistant a question. Smart watches offer many features. Among them are the following:

- health informatics, such as heart rate, blood oxygen level, blood pressure and temperature monitoring;
- contactless payment and digital wallet applications;
- messaging and calling features, similar to those on a smartphone;
- emergency calls for assistance if the watch detects the wearerhas fallen;
- social media and other notifications from synchronized smartphone applications;
- games, music, photos and other entertainment options;
- location features, such as maps, a compass and an altimeter;and
- GPS tracking

6.3 Smart watches typically integrate with a user's smart phone.

Many of the same features and applications available on the phone are available on the watch and can synchronize with it.

6.4 We also take judicial notice of the definition of watch/clock.

As per Collins dictionary, clock is a mechanical or electronic device, normally larger than a watch, which is meant for measuring and recording time, usually with two hands or changing or a digital display to indicate the hour and minute. Clock is otherwise originating from Latin word 'CLOCK' which means 'BELL'. It was an invention for period calculation. The clocks we see today areevolved versions of sundials, water clocks, mechanical water clocks and other time pieces. All these clocks have been used, since time immemorial, to calculate time periods that are shorter than the day,the lunar month and the year. Over the years various physical processes have been used to power the devices.

6.5 The Collins dictionary defines watch as a time piece different from clock that can be worn on the wrist /portable time piece with aband, carried in a pocket, or attached to a chain. The word is derived from old English word 'woecce' which meant 'watchman'. The term was coined by the sailors who timed the duration of their ship board watches. Over the years, there have been modifications to have different types of watches as that of waterproof watches, diving watches. Initially the watches were a mechanical device powered by winding a main spring and keeping time with an oscillating balance wheels. Later watches got powered by battery and kept the time with a vibrating quartz crystal. Various other extra features like moon face displays, timers, chronographs and alarm functions got incorporated in the watches. Howsoever, expansive collectable watches may be, valued more for their elaborate craftsmanship and glamorous design but the sole and simple object of watch/clock is time and day keeping. Thus anything to be called as watch/clock should has just two main components:

(i) Movement – it may be mechanical movement, utilizing gears andsprings to tell the time, the watch need to be manually winded. Movement can be automatic where the mechanical wrist watchutilizes physical movement from the user. Typically through a weighted rotor which winds the main spring automatically.Movement can also be the quartz movement i.e. a battery powered movement utilizing a vibrating quartz crystal and an electric circuit to tell the time very accurately.

(ii) The case of the watch which is the main body of the watch containing the movement inside and dial on the top. These conventionally were made of stainless steel with several advancements, various different quality of alloys, plastics, giving various other different types can be used for these cases. Clock/watch is so related to time keeping that they even are usedas verbs for time recording. For example, 'clock the raise' and timely vigilance example 'watch in watch out'.

6.6 From the above discussion about tariff entries, GRIs,definitions of smart watch and watch/clock, we are of the opinion that the watches and clocks of Chapter 91 are designed mainly for time and date display though with some extra elements but nothingrelated to transmission of data in any form. Whereas the smart watch is actually a computer, an apparatus which is capable of transmitting and receiving data, irrespective it is a device wearable on wrist just like watch and is capable of time telling also.

6.7 Reverting to the product in question which is imported as 'G- Watch' and is being classified as watch under Chapter 91 by the importer but is alleged by the department to be a device which is capable of converting data and thus are alleged as classifiableunder Chapter 80 8517. We observe from the brochure/catalogue of the product on record that it is described as "LG Watch W7" smart watch with swiss effect, mechanical hands with precision movement with the following key specifications.

S.No.	Dimensions	44.5 x 45.4 x 12.9 mm
1	Weight	79.5g
2	Body Material	Stainless Steel; STS31 6L
3	Band	Quick-release 22 mm rubber
4	Display	1.2(3.048cm) LCD (360x360, 300ppi)
5	Movement	2 Hands (Hr. & Min.) + Micro Gearbox*
6	Chipset	Qualcomm APQ8009w
7	Operating System	Wear OS by Google
8	Memory	768MB/4GB eMMC
9	Connectivity	Wifi, Bluetooth 4.2
10	Sensors	Accelerometer, Magnetic, Gyroscope & Barometer
11	Battery	240mAH Lithium Polymer
12	Water And Dust Resistance	IP68
13	Smart Notifications	Messaging, Email, Calendar, App Alerts
14	In-box Accessories	USB-C Data cable, 5V TA, cradle Developed in partnership with Soprad SA, a Swiss Company

6.8 Thus it is apparent from the brochure that the impugned G- Watch is to be paired with the companion device which is running android and supports bluetooth and which wears the operatingsystem by Google. The companion device has to be connected to mobile data or a Wifi network. It is observed that to set up the impugned G-Watch for the first time, a data connection is mandatory. Thus in addition to the looks of the impugned product which is almost similar to a watch/clock having two hands with quartz movement meant for telling time and even a chronograph, the impugned good can be used to do the following:

(i) can send and receive a text message,

(ii) user can make and receive telephonic calls of his mobile phone at this product,

(iii) can download and open any app (application) on the appscreen,

(iv) the home screen can be used as compass, stopwatch, timer, calibration, barometer and LT meter, the functions similar to that ofwatch,

(v) have Google fit app to view the workout reports,

(vi) it takes tasks using voice commands as it has a built in google assistance. However for the purpose, a data or wifi connection is required on the companion device and device must be in a Bluetooth range,

(vii) While using the Bluetooth the impugned G-Watch can beconnected to other mobile devices including the added wi-fi networks, (viii) it provides upon source software information.

6.9 The specific features of the impugned imported product, as discussed above, make it clear that the main function of this device is not just time keeping or time watching but to work as a portable/wearable device as an organizer which is capable of transmitting or receiving data in the form of voice or images plus it is an apparatus for communication in a wired or wireless network. Chapter 91 talks about watches/clocks mechanically or electronically operated for respective display whether or not automatic and whether or not stop watch. Thus any gadget/apparatus or machine having any features in addition to above cannot be classified as watch/clock. Hence irrespective the product is wearable on wrist and that it has two metal hands with mechanical/quartz movement to show time, it cannot be called as clock and watches as are classifiable under Chapter 91. As discussed above, the products of Chapter 91 have a specific purpose of timekeeping / time telling with certain advance functionsbut related only to time. Nothing in Chapter 91, either Chapter headings or Tariff entry headings, suggests that a watch which is capable of transmitting data or which is working on operating system of Google or which has anything to do with wired or wirelessnetwork shall still fall under this Chapter 91.

On the contrary, Chapter 85 notes suggest that anythingwhich works on electronic integrated circuits, microprocessors, smart cards, Random Access Memories (Ram), digital system, signals, such apparatus are all covered under Chapter 85.

6.10 Tariff Entry No. 8517 though talks about telephone sets and the telephones for cellular networks but simultaneously it talksabout such apparatus which are capable of transmitting and receiving oral or visual data. The several entries under this headingshows that the apparatus other than telephones, if are capable of transmitting data, are included. The tariff entry 8517 6290 as proposed by the department to be the relevant entry for the impugned goods is sufficient for us to hold that all other apparatus which are capable of transmitting or receiving data other thantelephones and those specifically named under Tariff Entry 8517 arecovered under the said entry.

6.11 Learned counsel has relied upon the case of SaurashtraChemicals (supra) to impress upon that section notes and chapter are most relevant for the purposes of clarifying the scope ofany heading and for determining classification of the goods. However, the first Rule of GRI, as recorded above specifies that for legal purposes, classification shall be determined according to the terms of the headings and any relative Section or Chapter Notes and, provided such headings or Notes do not otherwise require in such manner that heading which provides most specific description shall be preferred to headings providing a more general description.The rules say that in any other case the goods shall be classified under the heading appropriate to the goods to which they are most akin. Essential character of the impugned good is to be a computeron wrist as different from being watch on wrist [GRI 2(a)]. A computer is an apparatus for transmission or receiving date though it is simultaneously telling time also but it is still different from specific description of watch/clock under chapter heading and notes of Chapter 85 [Rule 3 GRI].

6.12 In the light of above discussion it is held that once admittedly the impugned goods work on internet, it is not acceptable that the essential character of the impugned goods remains that of time keeping only. Thus we hereby hold that section notes and chapter notes of Chapter 85 are most relevant for the purpose of classifyingimported G-Watch (Smart Watch), it being a device capable of transferring data and even making or receiving phone calls which have not been the intent of the section notes and chapter notes of Chapter 91. Hence, First point of adjudication stands decided in favour of Revenue holding the right classification for the impugned imported product is 8517 6290.

7. Second point of adjudication:

From the findings under first point of adjudication, it is clear that the appellant has wrongly classified the goods under 9102 1900. These are held classifiable under Tariff Entry 8517 6290. From the Notification No. 152/2009-Cus. dated 31.12.2009, weobserve that the entry at serial no. 955 thereof gives the benefit of exemption from customs duty to the goods falling under Tariff Entry9102 to 9103 only. As already held above the goods are classifiableunder 8157 6290, the benefit of the said notification shall not be available to the appellant. The certificate for origin is not sufficientto extend the benefit of nil rate of duty. As the origination from Korea is not the criteria of the Notification no. 152/2009-Cus. but such goods originating from Korea as are mentioned in the table under the said notification. Apparently and admittedly the goods classifiable under 8517 6290 are not mentioned in the said table. Hence, the benefit of nil rate of duty shall not be available to the appellant. Resultantly, the second point of adjudication is also decided against the appellant.

8. Third point of adjudication:

From the discussion on the above mentioned both the points of adjudication though it is clear that the goods have wrongly been classified by the appellant and the benefit of exemption of duty has also been wrongly claimed but we are aware that imposition of penalty is a penal consequence of some intentional mala fide act. The onus was of the department to prove that the wrong classification was an intentional act of the appellant to wrongly claim duty exemption. Mere mention of wrong tariff or claiming benefit of an ineligible exemption notification cannot form the basis for confiscation of goods as has been held by this Tribunal in the case of Lewek Altain Shipping Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Cus., Vijayawada reported as 2019 (366) E.L.T. 318 (Tri.– Hyd.). Hon'ble Supreme Court also in an appeal against the said decision has held that mentioning of wrong tariff item or claiming benefit of ineligible exemption notification did not amount to mis- description of goods neither did it amount to making faldr or incorrect statement. In the present case also, we observe that the appellant is convinced of the fact that the product imported has mechanical hands and quartz movements as identical to a wrist watch and that this apparatus is also wearable on wrist. It is a clear case of misunderstanding on part of the appellant. Question of invoking penal provisions does not at all arise in this circumstance. Resultantly, we decide the third point of adjudicationin favour of the appellant.

9. As an outcome of the entire above discussion on three of the points of adjudication, we hereby hold that the product imported is a Smart Watch which is classifiable under 8517 6290. The appellant has wrongly classified it under 9102 1900. Thus the benefit under exemption Notification No. 152/2009-Cus. was not available to products of 8517 tariff entry hence it is held that same has wrongly been claimed. The order under challenge to the extentconfirming demand of customs duty is therefore hereby upheld. However, the order imposing penalty and confiscating the goods is hereby set aside in light of the findings under Point No. 3. Consequently, the appeal in hand is ordered to be partly allowed.

DATE OF HEARING : August 11, 2023DATE OF DECISION:November 30, 2023

FINAL ORDER No. 51574 /2023 PER HEMAMBIKA R PRIYA

The present appeal is filed to assail the impugned Order-in- Original No. 34/ 2022/ VSC/ Commr/ ICD-Import/ TKD dated 05.12.2022, passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Import), ICD, Tughlakabad, New Delhi by M/s Holyland Marketing Pvt. Ltd., Delhi (hereinafter referred to as the appellant) under Section 28(4)of the Customs Act, 1962. The Adjudication Authority, vide the aforesaid order dated 05.12.2022, held that Canned PineappleSlices are classifiable under Customs Tariff Heading No. 0804 3000 and confirmed a duty demand of Rs. 50,95,196/- against the five (05) Bills of Entry cleared from ICD Tughlakabad during the period of 2020-21 along with a differential Customs Duty amounting to Rs.33,46,770/- with applicable interest and penalty of Rs.33,46,770/- on the appellant under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962.

2. The brief facts are that an intelligence was received that the appellant was importing "Canned Pineapple Slices" from Philippines& Thailand and claiming exemption from Basic Customs Duty available to imports from ASEAN countries in terms of Customs Notification No. 46/2011-Cus dated 01.06.2011, as amended. However, it was alleged that the said 'Canned Pineapple Slices' are classifiable under Customs Tariff Heading No. 0804 3000 and consequently the benefits of Exemption Notification No. 46/2011- Cus dated 01.06.2011, as amended, are not available. Thereafter, the premises of the appellant was searched on 17.03.2021, in the presence of independent witnesses and Mr. Harith Budhraja, Director of the appellant. The proceedings conducted were recorded in a Panchnama dated 17.03.2021. Sh. Harith Budhraja's statement was recorded on 17.03.2021, wherein he inter-alia stated that they trade and manufacture processed fruits, vegetables and food additives etc. He stated that they had been importing pineapple for over 2 years and he also submitted the import data (i.e. Invoices, packing list, Bill of Entry) for last 02 years. He also explained the process of canning such sliced pineapples, and he named the ingredients of 'Canned Pineapple Slices', in descending (maximum to minimum) order as under: (a) Pineapple Slices (b) Water (c) Sugar and (d) Acidity Regulator (INS 330) (Citric acid). He also explained the manufacturing process of the 'Canned Pineapple Slices'. He submitted that the fresh fruits (Pineapple) are received, graded, washed, peeled, cut, core, sliced and then put in sterile cans (sterilized by passing under steam); boiling Hot Sugar syrup is added to balance the natural sugar content of the fruit and prevent it from draining out; sugar is added to maintain taste and palatability of the fruit and it is not a preservative; the Hot syrup (water+ sugar pre mixed) is heated tillboiling point to kill any ambient bacteria that may be present andto create vacuum in the cans thus completing the preservation process due to the isolation from atmospheric contact and vacuum.Thereafter, such cans are cooled and released to market. He also stated that there is no basic difference between fresh pineapple and canned pineapple slice is pineapple itself. He also stated that the recommended range of temperature for storage of the product is 10 Degrees Celsius to 40 Degrees Celsius at max, as long as the Hermetical seal is intact. However, as soon as the Can is opened, the shelf life of the product is only as good as of pineapple fruit andneeds to be refrigerated in glass or SS container and the same is recommended to be consumed within 24 to 48 hours after opening of can. He also added that the Canned Pineapple slices is not frozen product and does not require any freezing during storage based in the investigations the department issued a show cause notice and thereafter the impugned order was passed.

3. The learned Counsel submitted that the said adjudication proceedings are vitiated as the Show cause notice dated 15.03.2022 was issued by and made answerable to the Assistant Commissioner, Group-1, ICD. Thereafter, vide by Corrigendum dated 25.04.2022, the Assistant Commissioner made the Show cause notice answerable to the Principal Commissioner of Customs, ICD Tughlakabad rendering the notice bad in law as a junior officer had issued a Show cause notice which was made answerable to his senior officer. The learned Counsel further contended that the extended period of limitation had been wrongly invoked since it is settled law that claiming a particularclassification under a particular heading does not amount to mis- declaration. He relied on the Hon'ble Supreme Court judgement in Northern Plastic Ltd. v. CCE 1998 (101) E.L.T. 549.

4. The learned Counsel further submitted that it is settled law that extended period and penalty cannot be imposed when the Adjudicating Authority himself held in April, 2019 that the goods were liable to be classified under CTH 20082000, whereas in March, 2021 he held that the same goods were classifiable in CTH 08043000. He also submitted that the Assistant/Deputy Commissioner of Customs, Group 1, ICD Tughlakabad had opined that the goods were liable to be classified under CTH 08119010, but from March 2021, he decided that it should be in CTH 08043000. The learned counsel submitted that this is evident from the following course of events:-

i) The appellant filed B/E No 6030589 dated 18.04.2018 for cannedpineapple slices having CTH 20082000.

ii) However, after filing the B/E, appellant had the view that canned pineapple slices should have CTH 0811. Thus, the appellant requested the proper officer to reassess and reclassify the goods to CTH 08119010.

iii) By Assessment Order No 15/2019/AC/ICD/IMP/TKD dated 31.01.2019 passed by the Deputy iv) The Commissioner of Customs, ICD, Tughlakabad passed a Review Order vide C.No VIII/ICD/TKD/Rev/O10/670/2018 in April 2019, wherein he was of the opinion that it should be CTH 20082000 and not CTH 0811 and also directed the Department to file appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals) for classification to CTH 20082000. The grounds of appeal by the Department spoke purely of classification and had no whisper of non application of Section 17(5) Customs Act after out of charge. The Commissioner(Appeals) allowed the appeal of the Department by Order-in-Appeal No CC(A) CUS/D-II/ICD TKD/03/2020-21 dated 11.05.2020. The appellant appealed before the CESTAT, wherein by Final Order No 50094/2023 dated 31.01.2023, the appeal was rejected on the ground that Sec 17(5) Customs Act cannot be resorted after out of charge. However the question of classificationwas kept open.

5. The learned Counsel contended that the flow of events as indicated in the foregoing paragraph indicates that the Department were not sure of the classification of the product, hence invoking extended period of limitation and imposition of penalty on the appellant, is not correct. He relied on the following decisions in support of his contention:

i) CESTAT Chennai in Commr of Service Tax Chennai vs Spectrasoft Technologies Ltd. [2019 (24) ELT 224].
ii) CESTAT Mumbai in Vardhamanan Fertilizers and Seeds Pvt Ltdvs Commissioner of Customs Pune [2017 (345) E.L.T. 560]
iii) Hon'ble Supreme Court in CCE Bangalore vs Karnataka AgroChemicals [2008 (227) E.L.T. 12]

6. The learned Counsel further submitted that the appellanthas been regularly importing the said goods vide B/E No. 5259093 dated 17.02.2018 and B/E No 5259115 dated 17.02.2018, classifying them under CTH 08119010 in Nhava Sheva and the Department had not objected to the classification in that port. Similarly, the appellant had been exporting these goods regularly, classifying the same under CTH 08119010 viz S/B No 4797913 dated 23.09.2021 and S/B No 5052913 dated 04.10.2021. Allexport documents including Country of Origin Certificate indicate the CTH 08119010. He further submitted that it is settled law that assessments already made cannot be changed on the basis of change of mind of an authority based on different interpretation, when all the material facts were in the knowledge of the assessing officer/ proper officer. He relied on decision of CESTAT in PSL Limited vs. Commissioner of Customs, [2015 (328) E.L.T. 177] and affirmed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Commissioner vs Man Industries India Ltd. [2016 (331) ELT A 90]. He contended that in PSL Limited decision, the Tribunal while considering the above cited judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, had held that a declaration given with respect to classification of goods in the Bills of Entry cannot be considered as wilful mis-declaration/ suppression with intention to evade customsduty, in the absence of any other corroborative evidence. In the present case, there is no corroborative evidence brought on record by the department. Hence, the ratio of the above cited decision would apply squarely in the instant case. The learned Counsel also relied on the Tribunal's decision in Asian Rubber Works vs. Commissioner of Customs, [1999 (109) E.L.T. 401], to support his contention. He further submitted that the Commissioner had erred in not appreciating that it is settled law that extended period of limitation cannot be invoked in matters of classification dispute, as held by CESTAT Hyderabad in CCE Hyderabad vs Sandor Medicaids Pvt [2019 (367) ELT 486] and affirmed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in [2019 (367)ELT A318]. The same was also held by CESTAT, Mumbai in Advanced Spectra Tek P Ltd vs Commissioner of Customs (Air Cargo) Mumbai [2019 (369) E.L.T. 871]. It is also settled law that penalty cannot be imposed, even if classification is decided against the appellant, as held by the CESTAT in Vodafone Essar South Ltd. vs. Commissioner of Customs, [2009 (235) E.L.T. 466]. He further contended that there was no estoppel for preventing theappellant to change his classification to CTH 08119010 and relied on the Tribunal's decision in Commissioner of Customs (Prev.), Jamnagar vs. Nayara Energy Ltd., [2019 (370) E.L.T. 1201]. He also contended that the burden of proof was on the Department to prove the classification and it has failed to do so, and relied on the following decisions:

1) Parle Agro Pvt Ltd vs Commr of CommercialTaxes Trivandrum [2017 (352)ELT 113]

2) Hindustan Ferodo Ltd vs CCE Bombay [1997 (89) ELT16]

3) Puma Ayurvedic Herbal P Ltd vs CC Nagpur[2006 (196) ELT 3]

7. The learned Authorised Representative contended that the impugned goods which are canned slices of pineapples, akin to fresh pineapples, in non-frozen state merit classification under CTH0804 3000 and not under chapter 20, which was relevant forpreparations of fruits or CTH 0811, which was relevant for frozen fruit. He went on to submit that as per the process explained by the Director in his statement, it is obvious that the canned pineapple slices is not a frozen product and does not require any freezing during storage. Therefore, he contended that the said goods are not liable to be classified under CTH 0811. The learned AR contended that the Supreme Court in the case of DeputyCommissioner, Sales Tax (Law), Board of Revenue (Taxes), Ernakulam Vs M/s Pio Food Packers [(1980(6) ELT 343(SC)]wherein it was had held that the canned pineapple slices cannot betreated as different from pineapple. He further stated that section 17 of the Customs Act casts an obligation upon the appellant to self-assess the duty payable on the goods imported by correctly classifying the same. In the instant case, the appellant had wronglyclassified the goods under CTH 0811 by suppressing the fact that the goods were not frozen. This was duly admitted by the Director in his voluntary statement. Consequently, the impugned goodsmerit reclassification under CTH 08043000. He therefore submittedthat the adjudicating authority had correctly confirmed the duty demand against the five Bills of Entry cleared during the period 2020–21, and had imposed penalty equal to the differential customs duty under the Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962.

8. We have heard the Learned Counsel for the appellant and the Learned Authorised Representative. The issue before us isclassification of canned pineapple slices.

9. We will first deal with the merits of the case, before we address other arguments of the learned counsel. Vide the show cause notice dated 15.3.22, the Department has sought to classify the Canned Pineapple Slices under Customs Tariff Heading 08043000, whereas the appellant has classified the same under CTH 08119010. To appreciate the arguments, it would be appropriate to reproduce the contested two Tariff headings:-

0804 10 - Dates :

0804 10 10 --- Fresh (excluding wet dates)

0811 20 90 ---------- Other kg.

0811 90 - Other :

0811 90 10 ---------- Containing added sugar

0811 90 90 ---------- Other ”

It is also appropriate to reproduce the extracts of the HSNExplanatory notes of these two headings.

“08.04 - Dates, figs, pineapples, avocados, guavas, mangoes and mangosteens, fresh or dried.

0804.10 - Dates

0804.20 - Figs

0804.30 - Pineapples

0804.40 - Avocados

0804.50 - Guavas, mangoes and mangosteens

For the purposes of this heading the term " figs " applies only to fruits of the species Ficus carica, whether or not to be used for distillation; the heading therefore does not cover cactus figs (prickly pears) which fall in heading 08.10.

08.11 - Fruit and nuts, uncooked or cooked by steaming or boiling in water, frozen, whether or not containing added sugar or other sweetening matter.

0811.10 - Strawberries

0811.20 - Raspberries, blackberries, mulberries, loganberries, black, whiteor red currants and gooseberries

0811.90 - Other

This heading applies to frozen fruit and nuts which, when fresh or chilled, are classified in the preceding headings of this Chapter. (As regards the meanings of the expressions " chilled " and frozen see the General Explanatory Note to this Chapter j

Fruit and nuts which have been cooked by steaming or boiling in water before freezing remain classified in this heading. Frozen fruit and nuts cooked by othermethods before freezing are excluded (Chapter 20).

Frozen fruit and nuts to which sugar or other sweetening matter has been added are also covered by this heading, the sugar having the effect of inhibiting oxidation and thus preventing the change of colour which would otherwise occur, generally on thawing out. The products of this heading may also contain added salt."

9.1 As per the explanatory notes, it is noted that for any product to be classified under CTH 0804, they have to be fresh or dried. Forfruits to be classified under CTH 0811, the said product has to be "Frozen", as elaborated above. In the instant case, the product being imported by the appellant is not frozen. This is amply clear from the statement of the Director of the appellant, wherein he submitted that the fresh fruits (Pineapple) are received, graded, washed, peeled, cut, core, sliced and then put in sterile cans(sterilized by passing under steam); boiling Hot Sugar syrup is added to balance the natural sugar content of the fruit and preventit from draining out; sugar is added to maintain taste and palatability of the fruit and it is not a preservative; the Hot syrup (water+ sugar pre mixed) is heated till boiling point to kill any ambient bacteria that may be present and to create vacuum in the cans thus completing the preservation process due to the isolation from atmospheric contact and vacuum. Thereafter, such cans are cooled and released to market. Nowhere is it stated that the fruits undergo any process of chilling or freezing. The general notes tothe HSN explanatory notes of this chapter define what refers to frozen. The same is reproduced for ease of reference;

"The term " chilled " means that the temperature of a product has been reduced, generally to around 0 °C, without the product being frozen. However, some products, such as melons andcertain citrus fruit, may be considered to be chilled when their temperature has been reduced to and maintained at + 10 °C. The expression " frozen " means that the product has been cooled to below the product's freezing point until it is frozen throughout."

9.2 In the instant case, the fresh pineapple slices are sterilizedby passing under steam which is followed by adding boiling Hot Sugar syrup to balance the natural sugar content of the fruit and prevent it from draining out. This Hot syrup (water+ sugar pre mixed) is heated till boiling point to kill any ambient bacteria andto create vacuum in the cans thus completing the preservation process. Thereafter, such cans are merely cooled, and not frozen toenable them to be released for sale. Thus, it is very clear from the facts of this case, the canned pineapple slices are akin to fresh pineapples and are liable to be classified under CTH 0804, and not under CTH 0811, as claimed by the appellant. This classification of canned pineapple slices in CTH 0804 is buttressed by the Supreme Court's judgment in the case of Deputy Commissioner of Sales Tax Vs Pio Food Products [1980 (6) ELT 343(SC)] wherein the Court held as follows:

"3. It appears that the pineapple purchased by the assessee is washed and then the inedible portion, the end crown, skin and inner core are removed, thereafter the fruit is sliced andthe slices are filled in cans, sugar is added as a preservative,the cans are sealed under temperature and then put inboiling water for sterilisation. Is the pineapple fruit consumedin the manufacture of pineapple slices? xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

6. In the present case, there is no essential difference between pineapple fruit and the canned pineapple slices. The dealer and the consumer regard both as pineapple. The only difference is that the sliced pineapple is a presentation of fruit in a more convenient form and by reason of being canned it is capable of storage without spoiling. The additional sweetness in the canned pineapple arises from the sugar added as a preservative. On a total impression, itseems to us, the pineapple slices must be held to possess thesame identity as the original pineapple fruit."

9.3 It is important to note that the process of canning the slices as indicated above is the same as explained by the Director of the appellant. We further note that the Supreme Court in its judgment in the case of M/s Thermax Ltd Vs Commissioner of Central Excise, Pune 2022 (382) E.L.T. 442 (S.C.) has highlighted the persuasive value of the HSN and held as follows:-

"6. The definition of a product given in the HSN should be given due weightage in the classification of a product for the purpose of levying excise duty. This is because in the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Bill leading to enactment of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985, it was clearly stated that the pattern of tariff classification is broadly based on the system of classification derived from the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System (Harmonised System) with such contraction or modification thereto as are necessary,to fall within the scope of the levy of Central Excise duty. The tariff so suggested for the levy under the Indian Tariff Act is based on an internationally accepted nomenclature, in the formulation of which, all considerations, technical and legal, have been taken into account. This was done to reduce avoidable disputes on tariff classification. Besides,the tariff would be on the lines of the harmonized system. It was also borne in mind that the tariff on the lines of the harmonized system would bring about considerable alignment, between the Customs and Central Excise Tariffs, which in turn, would facilitate charging of additional customs duty on imports, equivalent of excise duty. It was therefore expressly stated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons that the Central Excise Tariff are based on the HSN and the internationally accepted nomenclature was as such taken into account, to reduce tariff classification disputes. Thus, it was suggested that a safe guide for classification is the internationally accepted nomenclature emerging from the HSN and in case of doubt, the HSN should be chosen advisory for ascertaining the true meaning of any expression used in the Tariff Act. In Wood Craft (supra), in the opinion written by Justice J.S. Verma, the following was pertinently opined in this context :

"12. … .. Accordingly, for resolving any dispute relating to tariff classification, a safe guide is the internationally accepted nomenclature emerging from the HSN. This being the expressly acknowledged basis of the structure of Central Excise Tariff in the Act and the tariff classification made therein, in case of any doubt the HSN is a safe guide for ascertaining the true meaning of any expression used in the Act. The ISI Glossary of Terms has a different purpose and, therefore, the specific purpose of tariffclassification for which the internationally accepted nomenclaturein HSN has been adopted, for enacting the Central Excise TariffAct, 1985, must be preferred, in case of any difference between the meaning of the expression given in the HSN and the meaning of that term given in the Glossary of Terms of the ISI.

18. We are of the view that the Tribunal as well as the High Court fell into the error of overlooking the fact that the structureof the Central Excise Tariff is based on the internationally accepted nomenclature found in the HSN and, therefore, any dispute relating to tariff classification must, as far as possible, be resolved with reference to the nomenclature indicated by the HSN unless there be an express different intention indicated by the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 itself. The definition of a term in the ISI Glossary, which has a different purpose, cannot, in case of a conflict, override the clear indication of the meaning of an identical expression in the same context in the HSN. In the HSN, block board is included within the meaning of the expression "similar laminated wood" in the same context of classification of block board. Since the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 is enacted on the basis and pattern of the HSN, the same expression used in the Actmust, as far as practicable, be construed to have the meaning which is expressly given to it in the HSN when there is no indication in the Indian tariff of a different intention."

7. Commenting on the importance of taking guidance from HSN Classification and how a taxing statute should be construed in consonance with their commonly accepted meanings in the trade and popular sense, Justice Sanjiv Khanna in D.L. Steels (supra) also socorrectly observed as follows :-

"9. The Harmonised System of Nomenclature, developed by the World Customs Organisation, has been adopted in India by way of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975, though there are certain entries in the Schedules to this Act which have not been assigned HSN codes. The Harmonised System is governed by the International Convention on Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System, which was adopted in 1983, and enforced in January, 1988. This multipurpose international product nomenclature harmonises description, classification, and coding of goods.While the primary objective of the HSN is to facilitate and aid trade, the Code is also extensively used by governments, international organisations, and the private sector for other diverse purposes likeinternal taxes, monitoring import tariffs, quota controls, rules of origin, transport statistics, freight tariffs, compilation of national accounts, and economic research and analysis. In the present times, given the widespread adoption of the Harmonised System by over 200 countries, it would be extremely difficult to deal with an international trade issue involving commodities, without adverting to the Harmonised System. TheCode is the bedrock of custom controls and procedures. The HSN consistsof over 5000 commodities groups, which are structured into 21 Sections and 97 Chapters, which are further divided into four and six digit sub- headings. Many custom administrations, like India, use an eight or more digit commodity coding system, with the first six digits being the HSN code.

10. Classification under the Harmonised System is done by placing the goods under the most apt and fitting sub-heading. This is done bychoosing the appropriate Chapter, Heading, and sub-heading respectively. To facilitate interpretation and classification, each of the 97 Chapters in the HSN contain corresponding Chapter Notes, General Notes, and Explanatory Notes applicable to the Headings and sub- headings within that Chapter. In addition, there are six General Rules of Interpretation applicable to the Harmonised System as a whole.

12. We would, at this stage, take on record the well-settled principlethat words in a taxing statute must be construed in consonance with theircommonly accepted meaning in the trade and their popular meaning. When a word is not explicitly defined, or there is ambiguity as to its meaning, it must be interpreted for the purpose of classification in the popular sense, which is the sense attributed to it by those people who areconversant with the subject matter that the statute is dealing with. This principle should commend to the authorities as it is a good fiscal policynot to put people in doubt or quandary about their tax liability. The common parlance test is an extension of the general principle of interpretation of statutes for deciphering the mind of the law-maker. However, the above rule is subject to certain exceptions, for example, when there is an artificial definition or special meaning attached to the word in a statute, then the ordinary sense approach would not be applicable."

9.4 It is important to note here that in the aforesaid judgment, the Supreme Court has reiterated the view that the HSN code is 'the bedrock of custom controls and procedures'. Therefore,in the instant case, the classification of the canned pineapple slices would have to be decided as per the HSN explanatory notes and would therefore be appropriately classifiable under CTH 0804 only. We also note that in the impugned order, it is recorded that the appellant had themselves quoted that it was their CHA who filed their Bills of Entry under the wrong CTH 20082000 without taking instructions from the regarding the correct classification, which would be CTH 08119010. As per the discussions above, we have already opined that the appropriate classification would have to be arrived at by going through the tariff headings, the chapter notes, the HSN explanatory notes therein. In view of the same, we hold that the most appropriate classification of canned pineapple slices would have to be CTH 0804 only.

10. We now address the other submissions made by the learned counsel for the appellant. It has been contended before us that the proceedings under the show cause notice issued by the Asst Commissioner, Group-1, ICD initially made answerable to the Asst Commissioner stand vitiated as a corrigendum was issued makingit answerable to Principal Commissioner of Customs, ICD, Tughlakabad. We note that in a catena of decisions, this Tribunal has held that issuance of corrigendum where non-vocal of certain provisions of the law cannot be treated as a fatal defect. In the instant case, the said notice has only made the change in the authority who is to adjudicate the case. Therefore, we are unableto accept the learned counsel's submissions that this mere change vitiates the entire proceedings. We rely on the following decisionsto support our opinion:

i. Commissioner Of Customs, Hyderabad Vs Cheminor Drugs Ltd.[2003 (160) E.L.T. 649 (Tri. - Bang.)];

ii. Commissioner of C. Ex., Mumbai-v vs. P & P Containers Pvt.Ltd.[2001 (138) E.L.T. 600 (Tri. - Del.)];

iii. Aviation Star Express Vs Commissioner of Customs, Chennai[2015 (327) E.L.T. 422 (Tri. - Chennai)

11. The learned counsel has submitted that the Country of OriginCertificates issued by the Designated Committee of the Thailand Government have been questioned by the Revenue however there was no follow-up investigations carried out after the import, in order to deny the exemption benefit. Therefore, such unilateral rejection of the exemption benefits is not tenable. We are unable to accept the submission of the learned counsel. As noted supra, we find that the appellant in his statement has accepted that they have wrongly classified their product under CTH 0811 by suppressing the non-frozen character of the impugned goods, in order to avail the benefit of the Notification no 46/2011 – Cusdated 01.06.2011. We note that the Supreme Court in their decision in the case of Naresh J. Sukhawani v. Union of India, 1996
(83) E.L.T. 258 (S.C.) held that the statement made before the customs officials is not a statement recorded under Section 161 of the Cr.P.C. Therefore, such statement is a material piece of evidence collected by customs officers under Section 108 of the Customs Act. The material incriminates the petitioner in the contravention of the provisions of the Customs Act. Such material can certainly be used to connect the petitioner to the contravention. Therefore, we do not find any infirmity in the impugned order which has relied on the statement of the appellant.

12. We now address the submissions relating to limitation period.

It has been brought on record by the learned counsel for the appellant that there was confusion in the Department itself regarding the classification of canned sliced pineapples. It has beensubmitted that there is a ruling dated 17.09.2018 by the AAAR in their own group firm M/s Bharat Agro wherein it was held that canned pineapple slices are classifiable under CTH 0811. Thereafter, the Deputy Commissioner passed an order of reassessment on 31.01.2019 wherein the canned pineapple slices were reclassified from CTH 20082000 to CTH 0811. We find merit in the contention that the Department themselves have classified the said goods under different headings. In view of the prevailing circumstances as elaborated above, we hold that the extended period cannot be invoked in the instant case.

13. Accordingly, we hold that the classification of the canned pineapple slices would be CTH 0804. However, the demand for differential duty is limited to the normal period only. The interest would accordingly be reduced proportionately. The penalty under section 114A is set aside. The impugned order is modified to the extent indicated above and the appeal is partly allowed.

BINU TAMTA:

The present appeal has been filed by the appellant challenging the Order-in-Appeal No.CC(A)CUS/D-II/ICD-TKD/EXPORT/3730/2018-19 dated 11.03.2019, whereby the Commissioner of Customs, upheld the quantum of bond and bank guarantee sought by the Department for provisional release of the impugned seized export goods as fair and reasonable.

2. Brief stated, the appellant filed 8 shipping bills bearing nos.8963637 dated 17.11.2018, 8963642 dated 17.11.2018, 8963639 dated 17.11.2018, 8986925 dated 19.11.2018, 8976509 dated 19.11.2018, 8976512 dated 19.11.2018, 9069487 dated 22.11.2018 and 9069488 dated 22.11.2018 with the ICD-Export, Tughlakabad, New Delhi for export of goods, namely "Whey Flour (Powder)", which were classified under CTH 04041020. These shipping bills were filed claiming benefit under Merchandise Export from India Scheme (MEIS). As per Public Notice No.23/2015-2020 dated 13.07.2018 issued by the Director General of Foreign Trade, Ministry of Commerce & Industry, Department of Commerce, Udyog Bhawan, New Delhi, the impugned goods i.e. "Whey Flour Powder (Customs Tariff Head- 04041020)" was added in the MEIS Appendix 3 B, Table 2 @ 10% of FOB value during 13.07.2018 to 12.01.2019. The declared FOB value of the impugned orders was Rs.6,89,41,504/- wherein the MEIS benefit @ 10% of the FOB value that would be available to the appellant was Rs.68,94,150/-.

3. The consignments covered under these shipping bills were examined by the officers of Directorate of Revenue Intelligence ("DRI" in short) on 15.12.2018 and 17.12.2018 at Mundra Port. Samples of the consignments were sent for testing to Fair Quality Institute (Food Analysis & Industrial Research Quality Institute), New Delhi, which confirmed the impugned goods to be "Maida" (Wheat Flour), against which there was no Merchandise Export from India's Scheme benefit during the relevant period. As the goods were found to be mis-declared, they were seized vide seizure memo dated 19.01.2019. On the request made by the appellant, the competent authority provisionally released the impugned seized goods and communicated the same to the appellant vide letter dated 21.01.2019, subject to the fulfillment of the following conditions:-

"i. Submission of Seizure Bond of Rs.6,89,41,504/- i.e. equivalent to the declared FOB value of the seized goods'

ii. Furnishing of Bank Guarantee of Rs.70,00,000/- with auto-renewal clause; and

iii. Submission of an undertaking by the appellant that they will not dispute on quantity description and identity of the seized goods."

4. The said letter was challenged by the appellant in an appeal before the High Court of Delhi in WP (C) No.1274/2019 and vide order dated 6.2.2019, it was held, inter alia, that –

"2.4 It is open to the petitioner to approach the Commissioner with an appeal, within three days. The Commissioner shall decide the appeal at the earliest, preferably within two weeks form the date of receipt of the appeal in accordance with law."

5. The appellant, therefore, filed appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals), inter alia, submitting that 'Star Export House' are exempted from imposition of any bank guarantee for provisional release of export goods in terms of FTP 2014-2019 and also referred to the Circular No.17/2009-CUS dated 25.05.2009 issued by the Government of India, Ministry of Finance, whereby facility of 'nil' rate of bank guarantee was extended to Star Export House firms. Moreover, the demand of bank guarantee cannot be made as the appellant would be entitled to the benefit of MEIS only upon realization of the export proceedings and, therefore, mis-declaration, if any, is of no immediate benefit to the appellant. The Commissioner of Customs considered the report of Testing Agency and observed that the goods in question were mis-declared. Further, noticed that the Dy. Commissioner of Customs (SIIB-Export), ICD-TKD, New Delhi vide letter dated 28.02.2109 considered the CBEC Circular No.01/2011-CUS dated 4.1.2011 providing the guidelines for the provisional release of the seized export of goods pending adjudication under Section 110A of the Customs Act, 1962 and, therefore, observed that the quantum of bond to be executed for provisional release of the seized export goods equal to the declared FOB value of the export goods is justified. The power to fix the quantum of bank guarantee was entrusted to the Competent Authority, which as per the said Circular covered the probable redemption fine and penalties that may be imposed at the time of adjudication. As the Department had also alleged the charge of over- valuation of the goods so as to wrongly avail the MEIS benefit, it was observed that the export goods appeared to be liable for confiscation under the Customs Act, 1962 and accordingly, the redemption fine and penalties under Section 114 (iii) and Section 114 (AA) were liable to be imposed and in that view, the quantum of bank guarantee was held to be justified. Being aggrieved, the appellant has preferred the present appeal before this Tribunal.

6. The present appeal was filed on 22.04.2019 and we find from the Court proceedings that there is a chequered history of non-appearance of the appellant except on one or two occasions. The order passed by this Tribunal on 20.04.2023 is quoted below:-

" None is present for the appellant. Perusal of file shows that appellant has repeatedly been seeking the adjournments though on few of the occasions, the matter could not have been taken up during the court hours. In the interest of justice, the matter is adjourned for today for awaiting presence, however, with the warning that the next date shall be the last opportunity for the appellant to make submissions in the appeal. Matter now be listed for hearing on 01.06.2023."

7. On the next date of hearing on 1.6.2023, a request was made by the learned counsel for the appellant to list the same on August 18, 2023. On the next date (18.08.2023) also none appeared for the appellant and hence, in terms of the earlier order, as quoted above, we are constrained to hear the matter ex parte.

8. Having heard the Authorised Representative for the Revenue and also perusing the grounds of appeal taken by the appellant in the present appeal, we reserved the order on 18.08.2023, with liberty to file written submissions within two weeks, however the appellant has not submitted any written arguments despite long gap of time and hence we are passing the present order considering the grounds taken in the memorandum of appeal.

9. The appellant herein is aggrieved by the conditions imposed on the provisional release of the impugned seized goods, particularly, the quantum of bond and the bank guarantee.

10. The appellant in the grounds of appeal apart from reiterating the grounds taken in appeal before the Commissioner and referring to the decisions in the case of Kuber Castings (P) Ltd. Vs. Union of India – 2013 (29) ELT 49 (P&H) and also in the case of Pallahan Industries Vs. Union of India -2015 (325) ELT 18 (P &H) on the principle that the demand of bank guarantee is not only harsh but squeezes the petitioner's business and in case of dispute of valuation and classification, the condition of demand of guarantee is not justified. Also, the status of the party has to be taken into account and, therefore, the bank guarantee cannot be imposed mechanically. The appellant, claims himself to be a "Two Star Export House". We would like to quote some of the grounds taken in the appeal memorandum as under:-

"E. Because the conditions imposed in the Order of provisional release are harsh and have been passed in violation of the judicial principles. It is submitted that the appellant has been called upon to submit an undertaking that they will not dispute on quality, description and identity of the seized goods. It is pertinent to mention that the above mentioned conditions prejudices the case of the appellant as he is prejudiced from proceeding with his case in a rightful manner and amounts to foreclosing the defence pending investigation. It is pertinent to mention that the case is under investigation and allegation qua the appellant have not been finalized.

F. Because the appellant cannot be debarred from asserting its version as to the value and classification of the goods. It if the condition of furnishing undertaking is allowed to stand, the respondent can unilaterally allege any description and continue to keep the goods under detention unless the appellant agrees to withdraw the challenge to the valuation, description, etc. This would certainly amount to denial of justice."

11. The learned Authorised Representative for the Revenue has heavily relied on the CBEC Circular No.1/2011-CUS dated 04.01.2011. The title of the Circular reads as – "Provisional release of export – goods detained for investigation – Regarding". The relevant provisions of the said Circular is reproduced below:-

"4. Seizure should be resorted to only when the Customs officers have a reason to believe that the goods in question are liable to confiscation under the Customs Act, 1962 and thereafter the provisions of Section 110A of the Customs Act, 1962 would come into play. However, there may be situations when the goods are to be detained for purpose of tests etc. to confirm the declaration. In such cases the endeavour should be to quickly undertake the necessary action (test / enquiry etc.) and take appropriate legal action thereafter so that the period of detention is kept to the minimum. Thus, the following course of action is prescribed in respect of goods entered for exportation:

(a) In case the export goods are found to be mis- declared in terms of quantity, value and description and are seized for being liable to confiscation under the Customs Act, 1962, the same may be ordered to be released provisionally on execution of a Bond of an amount equivalent to the value of goods along with furnishing an appropriate security in order to cover the redemption fine and penalty.

(b) In case the export goods are either suspected to be prohibited or found to be prohibited in terms of the Customs Act, 1962 or ITC (HS), the same should be seized and appropriate action for confiscation and penalty initiated.

(c) In case the export goods are suspected of mis- declaration or where declaration is to be confirmed and further enquiry / confirmatory test or expert opinion is required (as in case of chemicals or textiles materials), the goods should be allowed exportation provisionally. The exporters in these cases are required to execute a Bond of an amount equal to the value of goods and furnish appropriate security in order to cover the redemption fine and penalty in case goods are found to be liable to confiscation. In case exports are made under any Export Promotion / Reward Schemes, the finalization of export incentives should be done only after receipt of the test report / finalisation of enquiry and final decision in the matter. The Bond executed for provisional release shall contain a clause to this effect."

11.1 Learned Authorised Representative for the Revenue has relied on the decision of the Madras High Court in the case of Malabar Diamond Gallery Pvt. Ltd. Vs. The Additional Director General, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, The Commissioner of Customs (Import), The Commissioner of Customs (AIR) -2016 (8) TMI 530 (Madras), where the petitioner sought provisional release of gold jewellery, which was smuggled into India on suitable conditions and the Court observed as under:-

"54. If the contentions of the appellant have to be accepted, then all the goods seized and liable for confiscation have to be provisionally released, in terms of Section 110(1A) of the Customs Act, 1962, and in such circumstances, the very object of the Customs Act, 1962, would be defeated. Going through the notifications, we are of the view that the above said notifications do not confer any absolute right to the appellant, to seek for provisional release of gold, alleged to have been smuggled.

89. While considering a prayer for provisional release, pending adjudication, whether all the above can wholly be ignored by the authorities, enjoined with a duty, to enforce the statutory provisions, rules and notifications, in letter and spirit, in consonance with the objects and intention of the Legislature, imposing prohibitions/restrictions under the Customs Act, 1962 or under any other law, for the time being in force, we are of the view that all the authorities are bound to follow the same, wherever, prohibition or restriction is imposed, and when the word, restriction, also means prohibition, as held by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Om Prakash Bhatia's case (cited supra).

92. Objective satisfaction, at the stage of provisional release, casts a duty on the authority, to consider, as to whether, there are prohibitions/restrictions in Customs Act, 1962, or any other law for the time being in force and whether he is bound to exercise his discretion, satisfying principles of fairness, reasonableness and whether, it is in accordance with the objects sought to be achieved. At the time of provisional release, it is also to be seen as to whether subjective satisfaction is based on valid materials, and not on whims and fancies of the authority.

95. Under the Customs Act, 1962, the authorities are duty bound to pass orders for confiscation, impose penalty, initiate prosecution and pending conclusion of the adjudicating proceedings, may order provisional release. At the time, when discretion is exercised under Section 110A and if any challenge is made under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, the twin test, to be satisfied is "relevance and reason". Testing the discretion exercised by the authority, on both subjective and objective satisfaction, as to why, the goods seized, cannot be released, when smuggling is alleged and on the materials on record, we are of the view that the discretion exercised by the competent authority, to deny provisional release, is in accordance with law. When there is a prima case of smuggling, for which, action for confiscation is taken, such proceedings taken should be allowed, to reach its logical end, and not to the stiffed, by any provisional release."

12. The above decision was followed by the Gujarat High Court in Bhargavraj Rameshkumar Mehta Vs. Union of India - 2018 (3) TMI 284 – Gujarat High Court.

13. In this case the appellant is seeking provisional release of goods. As per the settled position of law there is no absolute right to claim provisional release and the same is subject to conditions that may be imposed by the competent authority, though the conditions that may be imposed cannot be arbitrary and capricious. To safe guard the exercise of this power, the Board has issued the Circular, the provisions thereof we have quoted above. Perusal of the Circular, we find that in case export goods are found to be mis-declared in terms of quantity, value and description, the first and foremost condition for grant of provisional release is execution of a bond which has to be of an amount equivalent to the value of the goods and along with that is the requirement of furnishing appropriate security so as to cover the redemption fine and penalty. The contents of the circular are simple, clear and there is no ambiguity in the terms and conditions prescribed therein and hence the same has to be complied.

14. The authorities below has categorically recorded the findings on the basis of the test report that the description of the impugned goods to be exported have been mis-declared. The appellant has described the goods as 'Whey Flour Powder', however, they were found to be 'Maida'. By virtue of the said mis-declaration, the appellant attempted to achieve the benefit of 10% of the FOB value as whey flour powder was covered under the MEIS whereas Maida was not covered under the said Scheme and therefore the appellant would not have been entitle to the benefit of the Scheme. Similarly, even in respect of valuation, the appellant has over valued the goods.

15. In view of such mis-declaration the Circular is clearly applicable and hence the conditions imposed for provisional release are fully justified. The Commissioner by the impugned order has rightly arrived at the conclusion that the competent authority have judiciously exercised the discretion, inter- alia observing :

"5.4 From the above CBEC Circular, it is evident that quantum of the Bond to be executed for provisional release of the seized export goods should be equal to declared FOB value of the export goods. However, power to fix quantum of the bank guarantee has been entrusted to the competent authority, but as per the said Circular, the quantum of the bank guarantee should cover the probable redemption fine and penalties that may be imposed at the time of adjudication of the matter.

5.6. The Department also alleges the charge of overvaluation of the goods to wrongly avail MEIS benefit, which was not due in the first place. The export goods having been mis-declared and overvalued, appeared liable for confiscation under the Customs Act, 1962. Redemption fine is imposable under Section 125 ibid. Besides, penalties under Section 114 (iii) and Section 114 AA are also liable to be imposed for alleged fraud committed to unduly avail inadmissible/ineligible MEIS benefits. Penalties imposable are maximum upto five times the value of the export goods. Therefore, in my view, while deciding the quantum of Bank guarantee for allowing provisional release of the seized export goods to safe guard the probable redemption fine and penalty, the value of the goods and the quantum of the alleged undue benefit of MEIS have to be considered. The MEIS benefit that would have been available to the appellants has been calculated as Rs.68,94,150/- with export value as Rs.6,89,41,504/-. Therefore, quantum of the probable penalties under the applicable provisions of the Customs Act, 1962, if the investigation succeeds, are not only equal to or more than the alleged MEIS benefit, but upto five times the export value. Besides, quantum of redemption fine under Section 125 ibid is also leviable depending upon value of the seized export goods, which is declared as Rs.6,89,41,504/-. These aspects are to be borne in mind while adjudicating bank guarantee."

16. Reliance placed by the appellant on Circular No. 17/2009 dated 25.5.2009 is misconceived as it specifically refers to norms for execution of bank guarantee under specified export promotion schemes, i. e. Advance License and EPCG Schemes, whereas the Circular dated 4.1.2011 specifically provides for conditions while ordering provisional release of export goods where they have been mis-declared.

17. We therefore do not find any infirmity in the impugned order and the same deserves to be upheld.

18. Accordingly, the appeal stands dismissed. [Order pronounced on 05.12.2023]

DATE OF HEARING : 09/08/2023 DATE OF DECISION:06.12.2023

FINAL ORDER NO.51610-51620/2023

DR.RACHNA GUPTA

The present order disposes of eleven appeals arising out of the same show cause notice and the same Order-in-Original No.04/KAM/COMMR/2015 dated 16.1.2015.

2. The facts of the case as relevant for the impugned adjudication are as follows:

3. The department got specific intelligence about container no.KKFU7222266 to have contained misdeclared goods. Investigations were initiated by the officers of DRI. On 28.5.2012, it was found that the said container alongwith other containers had moved out from ICD, Tukhlakabad (hereinafter referred to as "TKD"). On verification, investigating team observed that the container was removed on 25.05.2012 without filing any Bill of Entry but by using manual customs gate pass. On enquiry, it was found that the signatures and stamps on the customs gate pass were forged. The fact was got confirmed by Central Forensic Science Laboratory (CFSL), Chandigarh. All the officers whose names mentioned on the gate pass were examined. They also denied their signatures on the said gate pass and also denied any knowledge about preparation of those gate pass. Other details of customs gate pass i.e. with respect to bill of entry, duty amount, etc. were also found to be incorrect. The CONCOR gate passes were fraudulently obtained based on these forged customs manual gate passes. Statement of Shri R.K.Mahapatra, Junior Executive (Commercial Operations) CONCOR,ICD,TKD, New Delhi was recorded. However, he could not re-collect the names as were mentioned in the Bill of Entry which were shown by the CHA concerned. The statements of concerned transporter, shippinglines and other related persons were also recorded by DRI officers including the statement of the appellant herein, alongwith the statements of Shri Chhutan, driver of truck/trailer No.HR55A-9309 of M/s.Bharat Transport Co. and Shri Laxmi Das, driver of truck/trailer of truck No.HR38K-3455 of M/s.K.T. Transport Co., New Delhi. Pursuant to the said statements, the investigating team reached one godown bearing No.76,50 feet Road, Meera Enclave, Village Ranhola, P.O.Nangloi, New Delhi was found locked on 30.5.2012. Since, the godown was found locked, it was sealed under panchnama. Subsequently, the godown was searched under panchanam dated 31.5.2012 in the presence of panchas, Head Police Constable, PS Ranhola and drivers namely, Shri Laxmi Das, Shri Ghulam Mohiuddin and Shri Chhutan and following items were seized under the provisions of Customs Act, 1962:

Sl No	Item Description	Quantity
1	Sanyo Spilt Air Conditioner (Outer Unit) SAP-C 18 AM.1.5 TON	155
2	Sanyo Spilt Air Conditioner (Outer Unit) SAK-C 18 AM.1.5 TON	155
3	O General Spilt Type (outdoor Unit) AOGR-24-AETH	310
4	O General Spilt Type (Indoor Unit) ASGR-18-AETH	310
5	O General Spilt Type (outdoor Unit) AOGR-24-AETH	75
6	O General Spilt Type (Indoor Unit) ASGA-18-AETH	75

A broken bottle-seal and sticker was found affixed on the goods. The drivers in whose presence the godown was searched acknowledged that the goods were delivered by them from ICD, TKD. They only informed that in addition to the aforesaid air conditioners several gas cylinders were also brought to the said godown.

4. Two more godowns at (a) A-59, Adhyakpak Nagar, Najafgarh Road, Nangloi, Delhi-41 belonging to late Shri Satprakash r/o Trinagar, Delhi; and (b) J-118, Adhyakpak Nagar,P.O. Nangloi, New Delhi-41 belonging to Shri Satyanarayan Mittal were also searched on 31.5.2012 and were sealed under respective panchnama. On 31.05.2012 itself, the Commissioner of Customs, ICD,TKD informed DRI that one Shri Ajit Singh Chadha is the master mind in the import of goods which got cleared based on forged manual gate passes and that his statement has also been recorded. DRI also examined him on 31.5.2012, 01.06.2012 and on 25.07.2012. He admitted for importing air conditioners and LED TVs. Since 2006 in name of the firms which got opened in the name of his relative, (i.e. M/s. Star Aircon and M/s.M.C.Overseas). Mr. Manu, Mr. Naresh Kumar respectively with himself and Mr.Rohit Sakuja as partners. His premises also got searched. From the total searches conducted following goods categorized as below were found to be illegally imported.:

Category/type of goods	Description and other details of the goods in each category

A. Goods fraudulently removed from ICD, TKD in the aforesaid eight containers	1. 6382 pcs. of imported R-22 gas cylinders of 13.6 Kgs each (import „restricted" in the FTP), seized a gowdon in lane adjacent to Dr.Lakra"s clinic, Village Ranhola, Nangloi and later shifted to CWC godown Saibahad.

	conditioners of different models of „O‟ General Brand. 5. 17 sets of (AOGR18AETH/ASGA18AET) of air conditioners detained/seized at the J-118, Adhyapak Nagar, Nanloi godown.

5. After further investigations about eight containers as got fraudulently removed without any bills of entry and the forensic investigation of three face book accounts of Mr. Rohit Sakuja, the Department formed opinion that Shri Ajit Singh Chadha and Shri Rohit Sakuja have hatched a conspiracy to remove eight containers clandestinely in a systematic pre-planned manner from ICD, TKD on the strength of forged Customs documents. In addition they also removed contraband goods, but also removed the goods the import of which is restricted under Foreign Trade Policy, in total disregard to national exchequer, national environment as well as the economy. Resultantly show cause notice dated 28.5.2013 was served upon the appellants alleging that the impugned imported goods as tabled above having collective assessable value of Rs.7,71,56,730 and air conditioners having collective assessable of value Rs.2,73,144/- inviting total duty amounting to Rs.2,25,36,349/- were illegally imported and fraudulently cleared by the appellants in eight containers. Hence they were proposed to be confiscated. The said amount of duty was proposed to be recovered:

Penal action in terms of sections 112, 114A and 114AA of Customs Act,1962 for master minding the entire operations of fraudulent removal of goods on the strength of forged documents, evasion of duty, illegal import of restricted goods without valid import licence ,

The total duty amounting to Rs.61,48,024/- alongwith interest, in respect of second category of goods in above table has also to be recovered.

The said proposals have been confirmed vide order under challenge. Aggrieved with the said order, the appellants are before this Tribunal.

6. We have heard Shri Shri L.B.Yadav & Ms.Gunjan Tanwar, Sh.Ashish Batra, Advocates on behalf of the the Appellants and Shri Manish Kumar Chawda, Sh.Rajesh Singh, Sh.Girijesh Kumar, Sh.Munshi Ram Dhania, Authorized Representatives for the Department.

7. Ld.Counsel for Bharat Vidhuri, appellant has mentioned that he is held liable for penalty under section 112 & 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962 merely on the basis of some un- corroborated statement made by one Shri Sushil Kumar, a daily wager who allegedly stated that he has handed over some gate pass book having no.0911-9050 to a person whose brother has asked Mr.Vidhuri to transport the goods for the importers. But the same is not justified, legal and fair especially when Sushil Kumar himself has retracted his statement and has become hostile.

8. Ld. Counsel has relied upon the decision of the Hon‟ble Supreme Court in the matter of M/s.Akbar Badruddin Jiwani vs. Collector-1990 (47) ELT 161 (SC) wherein the Hon‟ble Apex Court has observed that "the discretion to impose penalty must be exercised judiciously. A penalty will ordinarily be imposed in case the party acts deliberately in defiance of law, or is guilty of contumacious or dishonest conduct or has acted in conscious disregard of its application but not in case where there is technical or venial breach of provision of Act or where the breach follows from a bonafide failure that the offender is not liable to act in prescribed by Statute.

9. The decision in the matter of S.Anwanullah vs.Collector of Customs, Madras-1987 (27) ELT 734, is also relied upon wherein it has been held that "suspicion however grave it might, cannot take place of proof" has been relied.

10. It is submitted on behalf of Shri Sandeep Kumar and Shri Pradeep Kumar that the whole allegations leveled upon the appellant for using the services of his brothers in facilitating the clearance of the goods by abetment in forgery of manual Custom Gate passes by being hand-in-glove with the main accused, Shri Rohit Sakhuja and Shri Ajit Singh Chadha by helping them with the illegal clearance of goods on forged documents, are wrong on face of it and are contrary to the facts and evidence placed on record. It is mentioned that the role of the Appellant admittedly starts when the importer has obtained the valid computerized gate pass from the CONCOR, and thereafter the Appellant has asked the Transporter Mr. Bharat Vidhuri to help the importer to get the imported goods transported to their warehouses as per their wishes. When the goods have been transported on the basis of the gate pass which appeared to have been issued by proper authority then no wrong can be attributed to the Appellant for illegally removing the goods of the importer in contravention to the laws laid down under Customs Act, 1962. Moreover, no one either being witness or being otherwise related in the present case had named the Appellant.

11. That the whole story of the respondent to connect the Appellant with the alleged clandestine removal of goods from ICD, TKD by procuring illegal and forged gate passé is based upon the Statement given by one daily wager, Sushil Kumar as was under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962. He on face of it appears to be a planted witness by DRI to make a wrong case against the Appellant.

12. None of the observations reflects that the answering appellants have committed forgery due to which the alleged consignment have been purportedly to be clandestinely and illegally removed from the jurisdiction of the ICD TKD resulting in revenue loss to the Department.

13. It is submitted on behalf of Shri Pradeep Kumar that the allegation leveled against the Appellant for helping his brother in clearance of the goods by abetment in forgery of manual Customs Gate passes and by being hand in glove with the main accused, Shri Rohit Sakhuja and Ajit Singh Chadha are absolutely wrong and contrary to the facts and evidence on record. Thus Pradeep Kumar is wrongly held liable for any penal action under section 112 and 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962.

14. It is mentioned on behalf of Shri Kamal Virmani that the investigation agency concluded that Rohit Sakhuja and Ajit Singh Chadha to be the masterminds and the defacto importers. That they with the aid of others acquired possession of eight containers which were allegedly cleared from the ICD port without filing Bill of Entry. Furthermore, other goods mentioned in Category-B which pre-dominantly contained air-conditioners were assumed to have been illegally imported in past also, in the same manner. In his statemen, though he has admitted the fact that he was involved in sale of air-conditioners procured from Rohit Sakhuja who was involved in import of air-conditioners through his various firms. Thus, sale of those air-conditioners by the Appellant is neither illegal nor in contravention with any of the provisions of the Customs Act. That it is well settled principle of law, that penalties for infraction of law cannot be imposed based upon assumptions and presumptions. In the instant case, the department has failed to bring on record any cogent evidence to suggest the appellant‟s involvement in the alleged act of smuggling.

15. While submitting on behalf of Satish Kumar Chadha, Dillip Singh and Vijay Kumar Sharma, it is mentioned that Mr.Satish Kumar Chadha and Mr. Dilip Singh Jain are small shop keepers of AC parts. Mr.Satish Kumar Chadha had purchased, kept and sold sold 40 cylinders of R-22 (Chlorodifluoromethane), and similarly Mr.Dilip Singh Jain had purchased, kept and sold 160 cylinders from Shri Vijay Kumar Sharma. Said Shri Vijay Kumar Sharma had purchased the said gas from Shri Rohit Sakhuja. Shri Vijay Kumar Sharma apart from purchasing, keeping and selling of R-22 gas was also engaged in keeping and dispatching the cigarettes through his godowns. He had purchased, kept and sold 600 cylinders of R-22 gas and kept and dispatched 1100 cartons of cigarettes so imported by Shri Rohit Sakhuja.

16. It is further mentioned that penalty under section 112 of the Act was leviable upon the appellants only when they had abetted or they had reason to believe that the goods were liable to confiscation under section 111. But these appellants had no knowledge at all about the smuggled nature of the goods. They had purchased the goods in good faith and in bonafide manner. Even Vijay Kumar Sharma who had sold the goods to Satish Kumar Chadha and Dillip Singh Jain had no knowledge about the instant act of alleged smuggling. In this connection, Shri Vijay Kumar Sharma in his statement dated 11.07.2012 has stated that he had purchased the goods from one Shri Rohit Sakhuja (a person who is main Noticee in the instant matter). Moreover a number of statements of number of persons were recorded but none of them has stated that these Appellants had any knowledge of the alleged illicit act or that they were complicit with that.

17. Ld. Counsels relied upon the decision in the matter of Commissioner of Customs, Amritsar vs. Kamal Kapoor- 2007 (216) ELT 21 (P&H),where Hon‟ble High Court of Punjab and Haryana has held that penal action is not permissible under section 112 in absence of mens rea. Purchaser of imported goods, having no knowledge of any violation, could not be subjected to penalty.

18. With respect to penalty as has been imposed on these appellants under section 114AA of the Act, Ld. Counsel has relied upon 27th Committee on Finance (2005-06) a report of the standing committee which explains the purpose for which section 114AA has been inserted in the Customs Act. It is mentioned that the purpose is to punish only those people who avail export benefits without exporting anything. It is impressed upon that section 114AA has been introduced to counter serious frauds of export, not every kind of violations under Customs Act.

19. Decision of Tribunal in the matter of Commissioner of Customs, Sea, Chennai-II vs. Sri Krishana Sounds and Lightings-2019 (370) ELT 594 (Tri.-Chennai) is relied wherein, it is held that penalty under section 114AA ibid not imposable where goods were actually imported and it was not a case of mere paper transaction or fraudulent export. In present case also goods have actually been imported.

20. Finally, it is submitted that penalty is not leviable on the basis of mere suspicion. It is settled proposition of law that suspicion, however grave, cannot take place of an evidence. In the matter of State of Rajasthan Vs. Basant Agrotech (I) Ltd.-2014 (302) ELT 3 (SC) Hon‟ble Supreme Court has held that „equitable considerations, presumptions and assumptions have no role to play in fiscal statute. Court cannot apply anything which is expressed.‟ Also Hon‟ble Tribunal in the matter of DP Industries vs. CCE-2007 (218) ELT 242 (Tri.-Del.) has held that „suspicion, however, strong cannot take the place of evidence and clandestine clearance has to be established beyond reasonable doubt and not on the basis of preponderance of probability‟.

21. It is submitted on behalf of the appellants that the entire case has been made out solely on the basis of the statements as were recorded under section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962. It is mentioned on behalf of the appellants that they have found guilty and are being penalized under the Customs Act merely on the basis of conjectures and surmises and that there is no material and cogent evidence. It is mentioned that the goods have been cleared on the basis of documents handed over by CHA of the importer entire case is concocted rather main link in the investigation is missing, the benefit of doubt must be given to the appellant. The order under challenge is liable to be set aside.

22. To rebut the above submissions, ld.DR has mentioned that the investigations in the present case revealed that Shri Ajit Singh Chadha and Shri Rohit Sakhuja had hatched a conspiracy to smuggle ACs, gas cylinders, cigarettes etc.with the help of Shri Pradeep Kumar, Shri Sandeep Kumar and Shri Raju Kumar. With the help, they procured gate passes from CONCOR and got the goods cleared. The goods were loaded on trucks of Bharat Transport owned by Shri Bharat Vidhuri. The same were offloaded at godown of Shri Ajit Singh Chadha in the presence of Shri Ajit Singh Chadha and Shri Sanjay Kumar. The goods were destuffed with the help of labour supplied by the labour contractor, Shri Vinod Kumar. Recovery of broken seals and sticker of one of the said eight containers also confirms the alleged act. The alleged acts have been admitted in corroboration to each other by different persons in their statements under section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962.

23. When the whole conspiracy was unearthed by the DRI, then Shri Ajit Singh Chadha and Shri Rohit Sakhuja tried to manipulate the witnesses. They made false statement under section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962. Their names figured out as the main persons from the entire sequence of events starting from the booking, purchase, import and clandestine removal of goods to the subsequent sale in India. These containers were initially imported in the name of the firms namely M/s. M.C. Overseas and M/s.Star Aircon. Shri Ajit Singh Chadha was identified by all the drivers and by Shri Sanjay Kumar as the person who was present at the time of destuffing of the containers. Both Ajit Singh Chadha and Rohit Sakhuja disappeared from Delhi as soon as the conspiracy was unearthed. Their whereabouts were also not known to their relatives. Thus their conduct is sufficient evidence proving their involvement in the case of alleged smuggling.

24. It is mentioned that there is sufficient evidence to show that Shri Bharat Vidhuri had provided transportation for the eight containers after receiving the gate passes from Sandeep Kumar. From the records of the case it is evident that he with the help of Shri Karandeep Rana, Mr.Bharat Vidhuri tried to mislead the investigation by stating that the gate passes were handed over to Karandeep by Shri Ravi a non-existing entity. Further, it was found that no records were maintained for the transportation of these containers. With respect to Sandeep Kumar it has come on record that he had given these gate passes to Shri Raju for loading the goods on the containers and get them released from the Customs. Both Shri Pradeep Kumar and Shri Raju who stated that it was Sandeep Kumar who advised them to destroy cell phone and disappear from Delhi for some days. He himself absconded to Surajkkund with Rohit Sakhuja. All these facts were admitted by them in their statements and the said statements were never retracted. Shri Sandeep Kumar actively associated in the clandestine removal of the eight containers from ICD,TKD. Both the brothers were working as CHAs for Shri Ajit Chadha‟s companies. M/s.M.C.Overseas and M/s. Star Aircon and were well versed with the process of clearance of goods from ICD, TKD and with the staff working there. Shri Pradeep Kumar and Shri Sandeep Kumar have not retracted their statements till date. Shri Kamal Virmani is mentioned to have admitted that he was dealing in the sale of imported ACs. He was aware of the fact that Shri Ajit Singh Chadha had imported restricted gases like R-22 several times. He confirmed that the said R-22 gas was sold through Shri Vijay Sharma. The fact of selling R-22 gas was admitted by Shri Vijay Sharma also.

25. Shri Naresh Kumar Sharma, had an active role in the transactions of cigarettes and it was established from the statement of Shri Umesh alias Renku in which he inter alia stated that he had delivered 120-122 cartons of cigarettes from B-1/36, Budh Vihar, Phase-I godown to a transport company during 30.05.2012 to 01.06.2012. Shri Naresh Kumar was present at the said transport company and he himself got the biliti (bill) prepared for the same. DRI recovered 316 R-22 gas cylinders from the godown of Shri Dilip Singh Jain. As per version the same were purchased in cash from Shri Vijay Sharma without any legal document. He had bought 160 cylinders of R-22 gas from Vijay Sharma. Import of R-22 is restricted as the R-22 is also an Ozone depleting gas. Since license for the same is not available, it becomes abundantly clear that the said gas had been illegally imported.

26. The decision of Hon"ble Madras High Court in the matter of M/s.ALM Enterprises vs. Commissioner of Customs (Imports) is also relied upon, wherein it was held that

"39. In the instant case, it is recorded in para 49 of the Order in Original that all cosmetic products including air fresheners and other toiletries which are imported for sale in India need to be registered with the licensing authority as defined under Rule 21 of Drugs and Cosmetics Rules 1945. In the instant case, the goods are found imported without obtaining the registration certificate from the Central Drug Standard Control Organization and therefore, it is found that the importer did not possess necessary permission/registration certificate from the competent authority under the Drugs and Cosmetics Rules, 1945. In other words, goods which are liable to be imported subject to fulfillment of certain conditions, when so imported without fulfilling or satisfying such conditions amount to importing prohibited goods in terms of Section 11 read with Section 125 of the Act. Therefore, we find no merit in the contention canvassed that such of those clandestinely imported cosmetics and toiletries goods should also be permitted to be redeemed by the Commissioner of Customs and failure to do so vitiates the order is without any merit or substance. The Commissioner of Customs has no power to waive the conditions subject to which such cosmetic products can be imported as he is not the Competent Authority but someone else. Hence, the exercise of discretion has been properly carried out by the Commissioner of Customs."

27. Shri Dilip Jain who is dealing in ACs and parts thereof, is aware of the fact and therefore, did not insist for bills from Shri Vijay Kumar Sharma. Shri Satish Kumar Chadha who is dealing in ACs and parts thereof, was also aware of the fact and therefore, did not insist on bills from Shri Vijay Kumar Sharma. The statement of different persons including that of Satish Sharma has corroborated acknowledgement of fact that Satish Kumar was dealing with the sale of R-22 gas which was illegally imported by Shri Rohit Sakhuja. 600 pcs of R-22 gas were sent to him by Rohit Sakhuja from Nangloi godown to his Budh Vihar godown. He was the person who was dispatching and storing the cigarettes illegally imported by Shri Rohit Sakhua and Ajit Chadha.

28. Ld.DR has relied upon the decision of Hon"ble Supreme Court in the case of Naresh J.Sukhawani vs. Union of India reported in 1996 (83) ELT 258 (SC) wherein it was held that it must be remembered that the statement made before the Customs officials is not a statement recorded under section 161 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1973. Therefore it is a material piece of evidence collected by Customs officials under section 108 of the Customs Act.

29. Finally, it is impressed upon that present is the case where fraud has been committed to smuggle restricted goods. Here the liability has rightly been confirmed and also there is no infirmity in imposition of penalty on all the appellants. The Apex Court"s decision in the matter of M/s.Munjal Showa Ltd. vs. Commissisoner-2022 (382) ELT 145 (SC) is relied upon wherein it was held that

"9. In that views of the matter and on the principle that fraud vitiates everything and such forged/fake DEPB licences/scrips are void ab initio, it cannot be said that the Department acted illegally in invoking the extended period of limitation. In the facts and circumstances, the Department was absolutely justified in invoking the extended period of limitation."

With these submissions, all the appeals prayed to be dismissed.

30. Having heard rival contentions of the appellants, and after perusing the entire record of the present and the connected appeals, we observe and hold as follows:-

31. That the present matter is the second round of litigation.

Common Order-in-Original No04/KAM/COMMR/2015 dated 16.1.2015 was also earlier adjudicated fide Final Order No.55617-56636 of 2017-CU (DB) dated 19.9.2017 However, the said order has been set aside by Hon"ble Delhi High Court vide its order dated 23.07.2018 holding that "There is no gainsaying that in an appeal the person aggrieved has right to address the facts in law. That CESTAT was presented with the arguments on merits undisputed given the tenor of its order, yet it is an unreasoned order as regards the conclusions and why it chose to dismiss the appeals. The impugned orders are accordingly set aside. The matter is remitted for fresh hearing and consideration by the CESTAT which shall address the arguments of all the appellants on their merits and pass a speaking and reasoned order dealing with all contentions."

32. Pursuant to the said remand order, sufficient opportunity of hearing was given to the appellants and the matter was heard regularly and continuously by the Tribunal on several dates. The allegation in the show cause notice has been confirmed by the Original adjudicating authority as follows:

(1) Shri Ajit Singh Chadha and Shri Rohit Sakhuja had conspired to remove eight containers clandestinely from the ICD, TKD by forging customs document i.e. Customs manual gate pass. The goods in the container included goods import whereof was restricted under Foreign Trade Policy.

(2) Seven of the eight containers were originally booked in the name of M/s.Star Aircon, in which both of them had substantial financial stake and were the de facto owners.

(3) All the drivers who transported the said eight containers were originally identified by Shri Ajit Singh Chadha who himself was present during the relevant time and on whose instructions/supervisions goods were being de-stuffed an stored/shifted.

(4) Shri Sanjay Kumar, employee of Shri Ajit Singh Chadha and Shri Rohit Sakhuja admitted that he was present at the Ranhola, Nangloi godown along with Shri Ajit Singh Chadha when goods from the said eight containers were being de-stuffed there. It is also on record that both them tried to avoid investigation they lied about their whereabouts even associates, employees and relatives feigned ignorance regarding whereabouts. They remained absconded for almost two months with an intention to avoid investigation. They also alleged that they obtained fake sim cards/mobile connection in the name of their employees (Shri Arun Lal and Suraj) and he also obtained Mobile connection on the basis of ID proof of (Pritam Singh). It has been found that forged/bogus photo identity card was submitted to the shipping line for obtaining the delivery orders and forged/bogus indemnity bonds were executed had been held forged and bogus.

(5) Penalties on all appellants, who had been held involved in the alleged clandestine removal of the goods from the Customs area on the basis of forged documents and forged illegal import of prohibited goods had been imported under sections 112 and 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962.

33. From the facts of the case, we observe that the department got initially a specific intelligence that container No.KKFU7222266 was contained mis-declared goods. The said container found to had been moved from ICD, TKD without any Bill of Entry by using Customs manual gate pass. While investigating about the said illegal removal of the said container from the Customs area, it was found that the seven other containers had also been cleared in the same manner, however, in the name of different consignees by using the same modus operandi. The details are as follows:

Bill of Lading No. & Date	Container No.	Customs Manual Gate Pass No.& Date	Concor Gate Pass No. & Date
KKLUSIN100815 dt.06.05.12	KKFU7222266	9001/25.05.12	GPCC525739 Dt.25.05.12
KKLUSIN100369 dt.05.05.12	KKFU7095562	9002/25.05.12	GPCC525730 Dt.25.05.12
KKLUSIN100169 dt.05.05.12	KKFU7397095 KKFU7655332	9003/25.05.12	GPCC525735 and GPCC525736 both dt.25.05.12
KKLUSIN100136 dt.05.05.12	CAIU8452159 KKFU7692995	9010/25.05.12	GPCC525666 and GPCC525667 both dt.25.05.12
KKLUSIN100135 dt.05.05.12	KKFU7201113 KLFU1957220	9015/25.05.12	GPCC525668 and GPCC525669 both dt.25.05.12

Variation of these Bills of Entry revealed that they did not pertain to ICD, TKD but to ICD Patparganj and goods of BOE 6904765 dated 23..05.2012 pertained to Chennai port.

34. The officers whose names, signatures and stamp were found appended on the Customs manual gate pass denied their signatures and stamp affixed alleged to be fake. Deposition of the said officers got confirmed from the report of Forensic Science Laboratory, Chandigarh on forensic examination vide their reported dated 1.10.2012. Nothing has been produced on record by any of the appellant to falsify the said report. We hold that there is no illegality in the order under challenge when these Customs manual gate passes are held to be forged documents obtained upon bogus identity. However, CONCOR issued these gate passes seeing the signatures and stamps on manual customs gate passes out of charge basis.

35. For the allegations of smuggling of air conditioners R-22 gas cylinders which are restricted goods, gas being ozone depleting, cigarettes etc. We observe that several statements of concerned people have been recorded including Kranjeet, drivers, shippingline, traders, CHA and all concerned were proceeded by the DRI investigating team:

Shri Bharat Vidhuri, Proprietor of M/s.Bharat Transport admitted that he arranged transportation of eight containers out of ICD TKD on the instructions of his client Shri Sandeep Kumar and his company Supervisor Karandeep Singh and that all of them got destuffed at Nangloi. The information given to him by the respective drivers. Karandeep corroborated the said statement except about the name of the person who handed over the manual customs gate passes. As per Vidhuri, it was Ravi but as per Karandeep it was Raju. But corroboratively it is mentioned that the containers were taken out from ICD TKD on the basis of manual gate passes. As already observed that forensic examination of these manual gate passes has proved that those were bear forged and fake signatures and stamps. Drivers Chutan and Laxmi Das corroborated that containers got destuffed at godown in Nangloi. Based on these statements, godown at Nangloi got searched. Goods seized and godowns sealed vide respective panchnama dated 30.05.2012.

36. DRI further received the information from the office of Commissioner of Customs, ICD,TKD. Om 31.05.2012 that statement of one of the mastermind, Ajit Singh Chadha has been recorded. He admitted that he alongwith Mr.Rohit Sakhuja, both have trading business in Karol Bagh, that they have been importing ACs. LCD etc. in the name of two companies namely M/s.M.C.Overseas and M/s. Star Aircon, both being jointly owned by said Ajit Singh Chadha and Rohit Sakhuja. Shri Sandeep Kumar S/o of Shri Rampal Singh acknowledged to be hand in glove with Shri Rohit Sakhuja in the fraudulent clearances. He admitted to have destroyed his SIM card and mobile thereby admitted to have destroyed crucial evidence. He admitted to be in regular touch with Shri Rohit Sakhuja prior to fraudulent clearance of the goods. We observe that Shri Sandeep Kumar remained absconded with Shri Rohit Sakhuja since detection of the case till his appearance before DRI officers on 03.06.2012. He also stated that his relatives Shri Pradeep Kumar and Shri Raju Kumar were deeply involved in the conspiracy and forging Customs gate passes leading to the fraudulent removal of goods.

37. From the statements of Shri Suraj Kumar and Anil Sakhuja were relatives of Ajit Singh Chadha and Rohit Sakhuja they were found helping Shri Ajit Singh Chadha in fraudulently obtaining SIM cards in the name of Shri Pritam Singh‟s using fake photographs and photo ID. The said SIM cards were used to facilitate and guide the entire operation of clandestine removal of the said eight containers.

38. Shri Sushil Sharma from the department acknowledged to have abetted and facilitated the fraud by providing the said gate pass booklet.

39. Shri Manu Chopra and Shri Naresh Kumar Sharma are found facilitating in the opening of front companies, in the name of M/s.M.C.Overseas and M/s. Star Aircon which were used by Rohit Sakhuja and Shri Ajit Singh Chadha. They were involved in misdeclaration and undervaluation.

40. Shri Jagjit Singh alias Bunty was actively involved in the sale of the air conditioners which were illegally imported was also proposed for penal action under section 112 112 of Customs Act, 1962.

41. Shri Arjun Lal and Sanjay Kumar admitted to help Shri Rohit Sakhuja and Shri Ajit Singh Chadha in the clearance and disposal of the fraudulently removed goods. Shri Arjun Lal admitted about procuring different mobile SIM cards in his own name and handing over to Bunty (Jagjit Singh) for taking direction about destuffing imported goods along with Sanjay Kumar in the godown.

42. Shri Kamal Virmani, Prorietor of M/s.Gaurav Enterprises and Vijay Kumar Sharma, Proprietor of M/s.Vijay Trading Co. admitted for facilitated in the storage, distribution and sale of illegally imported R-22 cylinders and air conditioners.

43. Shri S.K.Singh acknowledged about using mobile number was obtained fraudulently by Shri Ajit Singh Chadha in the name of Shri Pritam Singh to facilitate clandestine removal of the goods.

44. Shri R.K.Mahapatra, Junior Executive, CONCOR, ICD,TKD and Shri S.K.Dubey, Senior Executive (Commercial & Operation), CONCOR, ICD, TKD, New Delhi had issued the CONCOR „job orders‟ without verifying the particulars of the bills of entry, most importantly the port to which the bills of entry pertained to. Though he pleaded it to be bonafide mistake made on the basis of Customs gate passes shown

45. K Line Singapore Pte Ltd. is observed to have colluded with shipper and abetting the impugned import of goods.

46. Shri Vinod Kumar, Labour Contractor, admitted that he provided labourers for unloading of said eight containers at Nangloi at instance of Mr.Rohit Sakhuja as he was doing business of loadinig and unloading for him for last 10-12 years. From his statement, it is clear that he had knowledge that these containers had air conditioners and R-22 gas cylinders which were destuffed by his labour at Nangloi godowns. Rohit and Ajit had godown at Todapur, New Delhi also.

47. We also observe that several summons were issued to Shri Ajit Singh and Rohit Sakhuja but they did not appear in response to the same. On account of their non-compliance of summons issued under section 108 of Customs Act, 1962, complaints for offences punishable under section 174 and 175 of Indian Penal Code were filed in the Court of ACMM, Patiala House, New Delhi on 17.07.12. Cognizance was taken in these cases and the Hon"ble Court issued notices to Shri Ajit Singh Chadha and Shri Rohit Sakhuja instructing them to appear before the Court on 04.08.12. In the mean time, the said two persons filed Writ Petitions (Cr.) No.94/2012 & 93/2012 in the Hon"ble Supreme Court of India inter alia seeking relief in the form of presence of their advocate at a visible distance during the recording of their statement before the DRI officer. The said Writ Petitions were allowed by the Hon"ble Supreme Court on 14.08.12. However, Shri Ajit Singh Chadha appeared before DRI officer on 25.07.2012 and his statement under section 108 of Customs Act, 1962 was recorded wherein he reiterated his statement dated 31.05.2012/01.06.2012 and inter-alia further stated that his father purchased a shop in Karol Bagh and asked to work there; that in this shop, he started trading of electronic goods like cameras, i-pods, speakers etc.; that during this period, he came in contact with Shri Rohit Sakhuja who offered to do import business which he and Shri Rohit Sakhuja started in 2007. Thus it is clear that both of them did not cooperate the investigating team.

48. It is also apparent on record that they generally appeared late/without their advocate and evaded replies to queries/gave contradictory and incorrect replies. When confronted with key evidence/questioned, the two aforesaid persons often took recourse to state that they were tried or not feeling well and would not be able to record their statements any further. They deliberately avoided appearing together before DRI officers in response to summons. Shri Rohit Sakhuja requested for release of air conditioners, LED, oil heaters, etc. detained/seized by DRI at their various godowns. Vide the said letter, Shri Rohit Sakhuja represented that Air Conditioners, LEDs and oil heaters were legally imported by him from time to time.

49. Vide the said letter, Shri Rohit Sakhuja also submitted that a chart purportedly showing correlation of detained/seized goods with bills of entry pertaining to M/s.Star Aircon and M/s.M.C.Overseas. Scrutiny of the said chart reveals that in most of the cases, the model nos.declared in the invoices and the corresponding bills of entry are incomplete and hence cannot be correlated with the goods detained/seized in the godowns. For example, in bill of entry no.6771348 dated 09.05.2012 and its invoice, the model no. of split O General air conditioner has been declared as "AOG18A". In the related packing list, the outdoor and indoor unit model nos. have been mentioned as "AOGR18AETH/ASGA18AET and AOGR18AAT/ASGA18ABCW detained/seized at the various godowns. Hence, it appears that in the bills of entry of M/s.M.C.Overseas and M/s.Star Aircon the complete model nos. of the air conditioners were not declared presumably to undervalue/misdeclare the goods. Hence, these cannot be correlated with the goods detained/seized at the various godowns wherein the complete model nos. have been found to be mentioned. Moreover, as already discussed above, in detail, majority of the detained/seized air conditioners were found without mandatory labeling requirements in respect of consignments imported through the legal Customs channels. Hence, such goods cannot be correlated with the bills of entry submitted by Shri Rohit Sakhuja and appear to have been removed in contravention of the legal provisions in this regard.

50. We do not find any evidence from both of them to falsify such deposition rather there is evidence on record that Ajit Singh Chadha had taken two godowns on rent from Shri Shamsher Singh though without any rent agreement since not only the goods but procured seal/sticker of the container, torn pieces of cardboard packing material also got recovered from the godown that there is no infirmity when allegation of clandestine removal of the container de-stuffing of goods in their godown have been confirmed.

51. We also observe that the original adjudicating authority in para 48 of the order under challenge has categorized the goods under two category has meticulously quantity as well as nature of the goods alongwith specific godown from where those goods were recovered. We do not find any evidence in the form of documents titled with either Shri Ajit Singh Chadha and Rohit Sakhuja with respect to the said goods. The goods included prohibited goods i.e. R-22 cylinders which were concealed in the air conditioners and the goods were imported in the name of M/s. M.C.Overseas and Star Aircon. Proprietors thereof were Shri Manu and Naresh in their statement have denied any of their role in the impugned import and in subsequent clearance including alleged clandestine removal of goods of eight containers from ICD, TKD. They rather deposed that both firms were got opened by Shri Rohit Sakhuja for his own use. He was handed over all the affairs of the firms. Said Shri Rohit Sakhuja as well as Shri Ajit Singh Chadha in their statements, had admitted that they were active partner of the aforesaid two firms. They only used to manage aforesaid two firms. The admission has never been retracted by any of them. In view of section 50 of Indian Evidence Act, the admissions need not to be proved. Hence the said statements in the form of admission/confession in our opinion is more sufficient to hold that the findings arrive at against Rohit Sakuja and Ajit Chadha have no legality. Otherwise also as observed above, there is corroborative evidence on record to hold that the correctness of finding in the order under challenge.

52. We further observe there is no denial by the appellant to following facts also:

(1) Shri Rohit Sakhuja and Shri Ajit Chadha were engaged in the business of import and sale of air conditioners, LED and sale of refrigerators under the name and style of M/s.Saitel, Karol Bagh, New Delhi.

(2) In the above investigation, DRI recorded statement of 120 persons and collected voluminous documents.

(3) Five godowns got searched and examined by the DRI on 30.05.2012, 31.05.2012 and 7.6.2012. Searches lead to the recovery of such number of cylinders of R-22 gas, cigarettes and air-conditioners as has been tabled meticulously by the adjudicating authority below.

(4) Live consignment of Rohit Sakhuja as were examined by ICD, Bhalbhgarh and cleared on provisional basis were also found to havfe air conditioners and TVs imported in the name of M/s. M.C.Overseas and Star Aircon with Shri Manu Chopra as representative proprietor. As observed above, both of them (Rohit Sakuja and Ajit Chadha) acknowledged him to be dummy proprietor of the company opened by them for illegally importing and clandestinely removing the goods from Customs area on the basis of forged customs gate passes.

53. All the above observations about evidence collected these are sufficient to hold that there is meticulous investigation wherein voluminous documents obtained which corroborated testimony recorded during investigation proving the correctness of adjudication. Thus, we hold that we have no different opinion than the finding of original adjudicating authority while confirming allegation leveled against them and confirming proportionate liability.

54. Coming to the imposition of penalty, we observe that penalties have been imposed on the appellants under section 112, and 114AA of Customs Act, 1962:

Sl. No.	Appellant	Penalty Rs.
(a)	Shri Ajit Singh Chadha	40,00,000/- (Rupees forty lakhs only)
(b)	Shri Rohit Sakhuja	40,00,000/- (Rupees forty lakhs only
(c)	Shri Ajit Singh Chadha and Shri Rohit Sakhuja	2,86,84,373/- (Rupees two crores eighty six lakhs eighty four thousand three hundred seventy three only

(d)	Shri Vijay Kumar Sharma	30,00,000/- (Rupees thirty lakhs only
(e)	Shri Kamal Virmani	30,00,000/- (Rupees thirty lakhs only
(f)	Shri Diilip Singh Jain	30,00,000/- (Rupees thirty lakhs only
(g)	Shri Satish Kumar	30,00,000/- (Rupees thirty lakhs only
(h)	Shri Ajay Kaushal	30,00,000/- (Rupees thirty lakhs only
(i)	Shri Bharat Vidhuri	20,00,000/- (Rupees twenty lakhs only
(j)	Shri Sandeep Kumar	30,00,000/- (Rupees thirty lakhs only
(k)	Shri Pradeep Kumar	30,00,000/- (Rupees thirty lakhs only
(l)	Shri Naresh Kumar	30,00,000/- (Rupees thirty lakhs only

55. Penalties under section 112 is for commission or omission which may result in improper importation of goods and penalty under section 114AA is to penalize persons who knowingly and intentionally make or use or whatsoever means, any declaration, statement or documents which is false or incorrect any material.

56. From the entire evidence on record, it is clear that all the above names persons have acknowledged that they knew about Customs manual gate passes have been forged by Shri Rohit Sakhuja and Shri Ajit Singh Chadha for clandestine removal of containers from ICD,TKD. They knew that the goods are illegally imported by Shri Rohit Sakhuja and Shri Ajit Singh Chadha by adopting such modus operandi so as to defraud the competent authority.

57. All the concerned i.e. employees, transporters, the labourers/contractors, CHA the dummy proprietors of firms Shri Rohit Sakhuja and Shri Ajit Singh Chadha have acknowledged that they knowingly indulged in impugned fraudulent act of removing illegally imported goods from customs area. Their statements have already been appreciated above. We do not find anything which may falsify testimony of any of these witnesses. We do not find any infirmity in the findings where all these people are held responsible for abetting and facilitating impugned fraud committed for clandestine removal of the goods and improper importation of such goods also. Shri Kamal Virmani also has acknowledged about knowingly storing, distributing and selling illegally imported air conditioners and prohibited R-22 gas cylinders. Shri Satish Kumar also acknowledged about knowingly purchasing R-22 gas cylinders that those restricted goods have been illegally imported. Similarly Mr.Dilip Singh Jain and Vijay Kumar Sharma were found in possession of illegally imported goods with full knowledge in that respect.

58. Penalty upon Shri R.K.Mahapatra, Junior Executive (Commercial Operations) CONCOR,ICD,TKD, New Delhi and and Shri S.K.Dubey, Senior Executive (Commercial & Operation), CONCOR, ICD, TKD, New Delhi are also found rightly imposed for issuing the CONCOR „job orders" without verifying the particulars of the bills of entry.

59. We have no reason to differ from the finding of the adjudicating authority. There is sufficient evidence even against shipper, K Line Singapore Pvt. Ltd. for colluding and abetting the impugned illegal import of goods.

60. In the light of above entire discussion, we do not find any infirmity in the order demanding differential duty from Shri Rohit Sakhuja and Shri Ajit Singh Chadha nor with the order penalizing all the other appellants for the reasons mentioned above. Hence the order under challenge is hereby upheld. Consequent thereto all the appeals as mentioned above are order to be dismissed. (Order pronounced in the open court on 06.12.2013)

Date of Hearing : 14.09.2023Date of Decision :12/12/2023

FINAL ORDER No. 51635 /2023PER HEMAMBIKA R PRIYA

The present appeal is filed to assail the impugned Order-in- Original No. 03/2019- Pr. Commr. Exp-ICD-TKD dated 25.04.2019, passed by the Principal Commissioner of Customs (Export), ICD, Tughlakabad, New Delhi by Asfaque Abubaker Naviwala (hereinafter referred to as the appellant) to challenge the imposition of penalty of Rs.10,00,000/- (Rupees ten lakhonly) under section 114(iii) of the Customs Act, 1962 and of Rs.20,00,000/- (Rupees twenty lakhs only) under Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962.

2. The brief facts of the case are that an intelligence was received that some exporters based in Delhi were exporting carpets, garments, fabrics etc. to Jeddah, Malaysia, South Africa, Afghanistan and other countries at highly over invoiced values, thereby availing undue export incentives viz., Drawback, DEPB, Focus Product Scheme etc. Searches were conducted and subsequent investigations undertaken revealed that Shri Sajjan Kumar was involved in submitting forged invoices of overvalued goods for export by filing Shipping Bills and had claimed Duty Drawbacks along with several persons including the IEC holders. The appellant, a partner of the overseas buyer, was involved inthe abetment of the said forged exports. The said forgery was admitted by all the noticees in their statements recorded under Sec 108 of the Customs Act, 1962. A show cause notice dated 23.08.2012 was issued proposing for imposition of penalty on the appellant, and vide Order-in-Original dated 25.04.2019, penalties were imposed on various exporters including the appellant.

3. At the outset, the learned Counsel for the appellant submitted that Mr. Alip Kumar Das, a co-noticee in the subject show cause notice had approached the Tribunal by way of Customs Appeal No. 52100 of 2019 seeking deletion of penalty imposed upon him under Section 114(iii) and Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962. The Tribunal vide order dated 14.09.2020partly allowed the appeal filed by Mr. Alip Kumar Das and setaside the penalty imposed under Section 114(iii) of the Customs Act, 1962 and reduced the penalty from Rs. 10,00,000/- to Rs. 1,12,500/-. The learned Counsel submitted that Mr. Alip Kumar Das worked as an employee of Mr. Sajjan Kumar (co-noticee and the alleged mastermind) and looked after the work such as preparation of invoices, packing lists for the export and bank related work and other work as directed by Mr. Sajjan Kumar. TheTribunal, while allowing the appeal of Mr. Alip Kumar Das, hadheld that Mr. Alip Kumar Das as an employee, had carried out the instructions and directions of his employer Mr. Sajjan Kumar and therefore, the allegation of attempt to export goods improperly byShri Alip Kumar Das is not established. The Tribunal concluded that the allegation of aiding and abetting was not proved.

3.1 He further submitted that the case of the appellant stood at a better footing when compared to the case of Mr. Alip Kumar Das. The learned Counsel submitted that since the incorporation of M/s Aan Impex General Trading LLC, the entire management ofthe firm was being handled by Mr. Hussain who was based in Dubai and the role of the appellant was merely to introduce Mr. Hussain to the garment exporters based in Surat. He submitted that the appellant had 49% stake in M/s Aan Impex General Trading LLC, Dubai but the appellant was never in the know of the accounts maintained by the firm and the actual revenues generated by the firm through its operations. The Appellant had no role in and negotiations, documentation and payment etc. as all of the aforesaid processes were being taken care of by Mr. Hussain. He submitted that Mr. Hussain used to deal directly withthe exporters from India.

3.2 The Learned Counsel also submitted that the Department had failed to bring on record any incriminating material and failed to establish any alleged connivance between the appellant and thealleged kingpin Mr. Sajjan Kumar. In this context, he relied on thedecision of this Tribunal in the case of Alip Kumar Das v. Commissioner of Customs, Customs Appeal No. 52100 of 2019, CESTAT, Principal Bench, New Delhi. The learned Counsel submitted that the appellant was not aware of the practice of double invoicing by M/s. Aan Impex General Trading LLC to claim the export benefit from the Government. The learned Counsel submitted that the impugned order had been passed without examining the contentions/ submissions of the Appellantin the reply to the Show cause notice and consequently theimpugned order was not sustainable. In support of his contention,he relied on the following case Laws:

1. Kranti Associates Pvt. Ltd. and Others vs. Masood AhmedKhan and Others [(2011 (273) ELT 345 (SC)]

2. Jindal Stainless Limited v. Designated Authority Directorate, General of Anti-Dumping and Allied Duties [Anti-Dumping Appeal No. 50291 of 2018, CESTAT Principal Bench, New Delhi]

3. Deepak Nitrite Limited v. Designated Authority Directorate General of Anti-Dumping and Allied Duties [Anti-DumpingAppeal No. 50401 of 2018, CESTAT, Principal Bench, New Delhi]

3.3 The learned Counsel further submitted that though no time limit for adjudication of show cause notices had been prescribed, the adjudication should have been done within a reasonable period of time. It is a trite law that when no time limit isprescribed under the law, it has to be done within a reasonable period of time i.e. preferably within three years and not later thanfive years. However, there was a delay of more than 6 years in adjudication and hence the same is liable to be set aside.

4. Learned Authorised Representative submitted that the factual matrix of the case established the appellant as agent of the buyer in India involved in fraudulent exports and claim of unauthorized duty drawbacks on the exchequer. Infact all these owners/ directors of the overseas companies were Indian only andthe said companies were registered only for remittance purpose only. He contended that the appellant had knowledge of the fraudulent exports and he was facilitating the same for which he received 30% commission, apart from being 49% shareholder of the overseas companies. Statements of various Noticees proves beyond doubt that the documents were fabricated and the exporters, viz., Indus Chemitex and SRG had sublet their IEC to claim illegal drawback amount. The appellant's role was critical and the charges against the appellant for abetment of the said forgery stands proved.

5. The learned Authorised Representative submitted that the appellant had connived as he had prior knowledge of the fraud and inadmissible drawal of export incentives. The learned Authorized Representative further submitted that once the goods are liable for confiscation under Sec 113 of the Act, penalty under Section 114(iii) has to follow. The appellant was also involved in signing various documents. Being a partner of the company involved in such frauds, the appellant was liable for penalty under Sec 114AA of the Act also. Thus, the impugned order of the Commissioner is proper and the Appeal is liable to be dismissed.

6. We have heard the rival contentions and have perused the appeal records. It is important at this juncture to acknowledge that the Customs Act, 1962 is the primary law that controls the importation and exportation of products and arrival and departure of international passengers. Ensuring compliance of this law and other national and international laws is the responsibility of the Customs officers. All merchandise entering or leaving the country must do so through authorised entry/exit ports, report to Customs, and follow all applicable laws and regulations, including paying any customs that may be due. Infractions are also subject to civil and criminal fines, according to the Customs Act. Criminal liability can result in incarceration and financial penalties, while civil liability can result in monetary fines and the seizure of property. The nature of the punishment depends on the gravity of the offence, with penalties for improper import or export of goods outlined in Sections 112 and 114 of the Customs Act.

7. We now go on to deal with the first submission of the Ld Counsel that this Tribunal in the case of a co-noticee has reduced the penalty holding that Shri Alip Kumar Das was involved in keeping the accounts, doing bank work and preparing invoices, packing list as per the directions of the alleged mastermind Sh Sajjan Kumar. This Tribunal further held that the co-Noticee played no role in the purchase of goods and neither was involved in any negotiations with any of the parties in India or outside India. In the instant case, the appellant was a partner in the Dubai-based firm M/s. Aan Impex along with Mr Hussain Abdul Radha Mohammad Al Aswami. It is an admitted fact that the appellant used to visit Dubai every three months for business purposes and used to get commission in cash on the profitsearned. It is also admitted by the appellant that he was aware of the modus operandi adopted in the case where the exporters had shown highly inflated values in their invoices and the shippingbills were consigned to their firm in Dubai namely M/s Aan Impex.The Tribunal has categorically held that there is no evidence that the co-Noticee had been the beneficiary of any amount or part thereof, whereas in the instant case the appellant was receiving 30% of the profits. From the above, it is apparent that the role of the appellant as a partner in the firm is not on the same footing as that of the salaried employee. On this ground alone, we are not inclined to accept this submission.

8. Before we proceed to consider the other submissions itwould be appropriate to reproduce the relevant sections of the Customs Act, 1962 under which penalties have been imposed on the appellant.

"Section 114.- Penalty for attempt to export goods improperly, etc. -

Any person who, in relation to any goods, does or omits to doany act which act or omission would render such goods liable to confiscation under section 113, or abets the doing or omission of such an act, shall be liable, -

(i) in the case of goods in respect of which any prohibition is in force under this Act or any other law for the time being in force, to a penalty [not exceeding three times the value ofthe goods as declared by the exporter or the value as determined under this Act]], whichever is the greater;

(ii) in the case of dutiable goods, other than prohibited goods, subject to the provisions of section 114A to a penaltynot exceeding ten per cent. of the duty sought to be evaded or five thousand rupees, whichever is higher:

Provided that where such duty as determined under sub- section (8) of section 28">section 28 and the interestpayable thereon under section 28AA">section 28AA is paidwithin thirty days from the date of communication of the order of the proper officer determining such duty, the amount of penalty liable to be paid by such person underthis section shall be twenty-five per cent of the penalty so determined;*

(iii) in the case of any other goods, to a penalty not exceeding the value of the goods, as declared by the exporter or the value as determined under this Act, whichever is the greater."

Section 114AA. Penalty for use of false and incorrectmaterial. -

If a person knowingly or intentionally makes, signs or uses, or causes to be made, signed or used, any declaration, statement or document which is false or incorrect in any material particular, in the transaction of any business for the purposes of this Act, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five times the value of goods.

8.1 A perusal of the provisions above makes it clear that any action by any person which renders imported or exported goodsto confiscation is liable for penal action under section 114 of the Customs Act. In addition, any person who has signed a false or incorrect document is liable for penalty under section 114AA of the Customs Act. The Customs Act deals with the "Confiscation of goods and conveyances, and imposition of penalties". It is further significant to note that the Legislature has simplicitor used the word "any person" to fasten the liability of a penalty. The Customs Act has not defined the word "person" and, therefore the definition and rules of interpretation contained inthe General Clauses Act, 1897, can be taken recourse to. Section 3(42) of the General Clauses Act defines "person" to mean "person shall include any company or association or body ofindividuals, whether incorporated or not". A partnership firm therefore falls within the definition of 'person' as defined in the General Clauses Act. It is on record that the appellant entered into a partnership with Shri Hussain, Dubai National and started a company in the name of Aan Impex Gen trading LLC, in November 2009 and his share in the partnership was 49%. He regularly visited Dubai and collected 25 to 30% of the profits of this company. He has also admitted that he has gotten his visa to visit Dubai on behalf of the company. It is seen that he has also admitted to have introduced the alleged mastermind Shri Sajjan Kumar to his partner Shri Hussain. He has agreed in his statement that export remittances were from other firms based inHong Kong, London, Sharjah instead of their Dubai-based firm. He has accepted that he was aware of this agreement between Sajjan Kumar and Hussain. Further in his statement dated 03.11.2011, the appellant has in response to questions No. 36has stated, which is reproduced verbatim hereinafter,acknowledging his knowledge of the overvaluation of export goods:

"Ans: I have put my dated signature on the above annexure and the three invoices shown to me and state that the above exporters have exported carpets by showing highly inflated values in their invoices and shipping bills while exporting from India whereas the invoices sent to our firm Aan Impex at Dubai as buyer, shows very less value i.e., correct value of exported goods. The exports from India show very high inflated value of the export goods in their invoice claim the export benefit fromthe government. Accordingly, in this case also, exporters have shown highly inflated values in the invoices and shipping bills wherein our firm Aan Impex is the buyer. The above two types of it was showing different values for the same goods were pre-planned and as per understanding between Sajjan Kumar and partner of Aan Impex, Hussain Mohammed. Iknew about this; I have nothing more to say in this regard."

8.2 We also note that the appellant has admitted to signing on the blank papers containing the letterhead of the company, along with other papers required for opening a firm in Dubai. We note that the Supreme Court in the case of Shri Ram & Another v. State of Uttar Pradesh reported in 1975 (3) SCC 495 has specifically held that intentional aid and active complicity is the gist of the offence of the abetment. We note that both the Show Cause Notice as well as the order under challenge has clearly brought out the appellant's role in the fraudulent exports. Further,as regards the contention that the appellant was not aware of the wrong doings in the firm, we note that the Supreme Court judgment in Standard Chartered Bank [2006 (197) E.L.T. 18(S.C.)], has held that where contravention has been committed with consent of or connivance of or attributable to negligence of partner of partnership firm, such partner can also be proceeded against. Consequently, imposition of penalty on the appellant is correct, more so as the appellant has accepted in his statement that he was aware that the subject export goods were overvalued.

8.3 In the above context, we further note that the Hon'ble ApexCourt in the case of Om Prakash Bhatia v. CC, Delhi [2003(155)ELT 423(SC)] dealt with the over invoicing of export goods, and held that, when the importation or exportation, of the goods are subjected to certain prescribed conditions to be fulfilled either before or after clearance of the goods, and if those conditions are not fulfilled, the said goods would be considered as prohibited goods and Sections 2(23), 11 and 113(d) of the Customs Act, 1962 would come into play and the exporters would be liable for penalty. In the case of Abishek Export v. CC, Cochin, [2007 (208) ELT 155 (T-Bang.)] the Tribunal considered a case ofover valuation of export goods to get higher DEPB credit, and the confiscation of the impugned goods and penalty were upheldunder the relevant provisions of the Customs Act. The Supreme Court in the case of CCE v. Suresh Jhunjhunwala 2006 (203) ELT 353 (SC), dealt with a case of over-valuation of export goods for claiming higher DEPB, and it was held that the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Om Prakash Bhatia (supra) squarelycovered the above case. In a catena of decisions of the Tribunal inrespect of cases of over valuation of export goods for benefit under export incentive schemes, the imposition of penalties under Section 114 of the Customs Act, 1962 has been upheld.

8.4 The Ld Counsel has submitted that the order is null and voidthere is no proposal for penalty in the show cause notice and there has been a delay in the adjudication of the case. As regards the first contention, it is a settled position of law that wrong mention or non-mention of a rule in the show cause notice does not vitiate the proceedings. The Supreme Court in the case Fortune Impex vs Commissioner [2004(167) ELT A 134(SC)] has held that non mentioning a particular section of Customs Act, 1962 would not vitiate the proceedings when the allegations and charges against all the appellants were mentioned in clear termsin the show cause notice. In the instant case, it is seen that the role of the appellant has been elaborated in para 23.5 of the notice. As regards the delay in adjudication, we note that there were several noticees in the show cause notice, which by itself would lend to the delay in adjudication. We are not inclined to accept this contention of the learned counsel.

9. In view of the above discussions, we uphold the impugned order and dismiss the appeal.

The Order in Original dated 8.12.2018[1] passed by the Principal Commissioner of Customs Noida in the remand proceedings is assailed in these two appeals. Customs Appeal No. 50642 of 2019 is filed by M/s. Global Diamonds[2], and Customs Appeal no. 50643 of 2019 is filed by Shri Anand Srivastava assailing the personal penalty imposed on him.

The assessee is a manufacturing unit in the NOIDA export processing zone[3] which zone has subsequently been converted into NOIDA Special Economic Zone[4]. It imports gold duty free and manufactures and exports gold jewellery. Goods manufactured in the EPZ should only be exported. If they are removed and sold within India (known as Domestic Tariff Area[5]), Central Excise Duty equivalent to the Customs duties leviable on such goods if they are imported is leviable. This legal position is not in dispute.

2. The Central Excise officers caught some goods being clandestinely removed in a car from the assessee's factory and they seized them. In follow up investigations, the appellant's factory premises were searched and two notebooks and some private records were found which had entries of diamonds which it received from its sister unit M/s. Maharshi Ayurvedic Private Ltd.[6]. After completing the investigations, two Show Cause Notices[7] dated 03.4.2003 and 24.11.2004 were issued to the appellant and three others. The first SCN proposed confiscation of the goods which were seized and the car in which they were being carried. The second SCN proposed demand of duty on the goods allegedly manufactured and clandestinely cleared to DTA by the appellant without paying the excise duty. Both SCNs were decided by a common Order-in-Original dated 19.07.2006 passed by the Commissioner confiscating the goods, demanding duty and imposing penalties against the assessee, Shri Subhash Sharma, Shri G J Patel and Shri Anand Srivastava.

3. Assailing the order dated 19.7.2006, Excise Appeal Nos.

3454, 3620 and 3621 of 2006 were filed before this Tribunal by the assessee, Shri Anand Srivastava and Shri Subhash Sharma. Shri GJ Patel did not file any appeal. Learned counsel submits before us that in that round of litigation, they did not press the issue of confiscation of the goods and penalties as per the first

SCN and had only contested and pressed the confirmation of demand of duty and imposition of penalties as per the second SCN. Thus, the confiscation of goods and the case proposed in the first SCN have attained finality.

4. The three appeals were decided by this Tribunal's Final Order dated 18.12.2018 upholding the confirmation of demand of duty. However, the matter was remanded to the original authority for the limited purpose of examining the claim of the benefit of notifications for CVD and SAD and the entries found in the Work in progress register and computing the duty. There is no appeal by either side against the Tribunal's final order dated 18.12.2018 and therefore, the issues have attained finality except to the extent of the directions in the remand proceedings.

5. These two appeals assail the impugned order was passed by the Principal Commissioner in pursuance of this Tribunal's final order dated 18.12.2018.

6. We have heard Shri J M Sharma, learned consultant for the appellants and Shri S K Rahman, learned authorised representative for the Revenue and perused the records.

7. We now proceed to examine the submissions with respect to each of the three issues which were the subject matter of dispute in the denovo proceedings before the Principal Commissioner.

Exemption notifications applicable to CVD

9. As discussed above, goods cleared from a unit in EPZ to DTA are chargeable to duty of excise equivalent to the duties of Customs leviable on such goods if imported into India. Goods imported into India are chargeable to basic customs duty, additional duty of customs (often loosely referred to a countervailing duty or CVD), special additional duty of customs (SAD), etc. and hence the excise duty on goods removed from a unit in EPZ to DTA should be calculated accordingly. The basic customs duty is to be calculated as per the Customs Tariff read with any Customs exemption notifications. The Additional duty of Customs must be calculated on the value of the goods + basic Customs duty at the rates as per the Central Excise Tariff read with any Central Excise exemption notifications.

10. According to the appellants, the assessee was entitled to the benefit of exemption notification no. 6/2002-CE dated 1.3.2002 (S.No. 171) and it was wrongly denied to the appellant in the impugned order. The relevant portion of the impugned order is as follows:

"5.4. I would like to take up the first issue of CVD and SAD on the impugned goods i.e., studded diamond jewellery, cut &polished diamond and precious and semi-precious stone. In this context, the party argued that the CVD @ 16% cannot be demanded as the jewellery items were exempted unconditionally from payment of Central Excise Duty vide notification no. 6/2000 dated 1.3.2000, notification no. 3/2001 dated 1.3. 2001 and notification no. 6/2002 dated 1.3.2002……. In respect of notification no. 6/2002 dated 1. 3.2002, the same was amended vide notification no. 41/2002-CE dated 19.8.2002 which is reproduced below:

Notification no. 41/2002-Central Excise

In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of section 5A of the Central Excise Act, 1944 (1 of 1944), the Central Government….., hereby makes the following further amendments in the notification….. no. 6/2002-Central Excise dated 1st March 2002, namely:-

In the said notification, in the Table, after S. No. 44 and the entries relating thereto, the following S.No. and entries shall be inserted, namely:-

(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)
44A	28	All goods used within the factory of production for the manufacture of goods falling under Chapter 71

5.5. From the above, it is clear…… The amended notification No. 41/2002-CE date d19.8.2002 clearly says that the exemption from duty was granted only to those goods which are sued within the factory of production for the manufacture of goods falling under Chapter 71"

11. Learned consultant for the appellant asserted that the assessee was entitled to the benefit of S.No. 171 of the notification. The Commissioner has erroneously considered entry no. 44A which it did not claim at all. It reads as follows:

(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)

71	71	Articles of- (a)Gold; (b) silver;(c) platinum; (d) Palladium; (e) rhodium; (f) iridium; (g) osmium; or (h) ruthenium; Ornaments and the like articles made of gold or silver or platinum or any one or more of them, whether or not set- With stones or gems (real or artificial), or with pearls (real, cultured or imitation); or With stones and pearls of the kind mentioned at (a) or any combination thereof; …… …. Explanation:- For the purposes of entries (I), (II) and (III), as the case may be,- (i) " ornament" means a thing, in any finished form, meant for personal adornments or for the adornment of any idol, deity or any other object of religious worship, made of, or	Nil manufactured from, gold, or silver or platinum or any one or more of them, whether or not set with stones or gems (real or artificial) or with pearls (real, cultured or intimation), or with all or any of them an includes parts, pendants or broken pieces of ornaments; …. "articles" in relation to gold shall mean anything (other than ornaments), in a finished form, made or manufactured from or containing gold and includes any gold coin and broken pieces of an article of gold but does not include primary gold, that is, to say, gold in any unfinished or semi- finished form including ingots, bars, blocks, slabs, billets, shots, pellets, rods, sheets, foils and wires.

12. Learned authorised representative for the Revenue submitted that the benefit of serial No. 171 of notification no. 6/2002-CE dated 1.3.2002 is available to goods which match the description against this entry "articles of gold/silver etc. or ornaments or strip wire of gold, etc." The definition of "ornament" and "article" are given in the notification. The impugned goods "studded jewellery, diamonds, semi-precious stones, etc." do not fall in the description of goods given in the Notification. Hence the benefit of this Notification for CVD cannot be extended to the appellant in respect of the goods clandestinely removed. He also submitted that any exemption notification must be interpreted strictly and any benefit of doubt should be given to the Revenue as held by the Supreme Court in

Commissioner of Customs (Import), Mumbai vs M/s Dilip Kumar & ors[8].

13. We have considered the submissions of both sides on this issue.

14. The Commissioner has, in the impugned order, denied the benefit of S.No. 44A of the notification which the appellant did not even claim. He did not examine S.No. 171 which the appellant had claimed. Both learned counsel and the learned authorised representative for the Revenue made submissions with respect to this S.No. of the exemption notification. We therefore, find it proper to decide the availability of the exemption under S.No. 171 instead of remanding the matter again to the Commissioner to examine this issue.

15. According to the learned counsel, the appellant is entitled to the benefit of this notification which is unconditional. According to the learned authorised representative for the Revenue, the appellant is not entitled to the benefit of this notification because it is available for ornaments as defined in the notification and not to the diamond studded jewellery which the appellant had manufactured and clandestinely removed. A perusal of the SCN dated 24.11.2004 shows that duty of Rs. 2,48,99,006/- was demanded on 'studded gold jewellery' as detailed in Annexure-D to the SCN. The meanings of 'jewellery' and 'ornaments' given in Oxford Advanced Learner's Dictionary are as follows:

'Ornament' 1. An object that is used as decoration in a room garden/yard, etc. rather than for a particular purpose: a china /glass ornament 2. An object that is worn as jewellery 3. The use of objects, designs, etc. as decoration: The clock is simply for ornament; it does not work anymore. 4. ..to sth a person or thing whose good qualities improve sth: The building is an ornament to the city.

'Jewellery" Objects such as rings and necklaces that people wear as decoration: silvery/gold jewellery

16. Thus, the term 'ornament' has a much wider connotation and includes such objects which are used for decoration of a garden, yard, etc. also in addition to the objects worn as jewellery. Jewellery, on the other hand, means only such objects for decoration as are worn by people. Thus, while all jewellery are ornaments, all ornaments are not jewellery. Ornaments for buildings or structures, for instance, cannot be called jewellery because although they are meant for decoration, they are not worn by people. Even plants which are used only for decoration and have no utility otherwise are referred to as 'ornamental plants'. Since the word 'ornament' has a very wide meaning, it has been specifically defined for the purpose of the notification to mean a thing, in any finished form, meant for personal adornments or for the adornment of any idol, deity or any other object of religious worship, made of, or manufactured from, gold, or silver or platinum or any one or more of them, whether or not set with stones or gems (real or artificial) or with pearls (real, cultured or intimation), or with all or any of them an includes parts, pendants or broken pieces of ornaments'. This definition includes anything in finished form meant for personal adornments which, in essence is jewellery. It also includes, in addition, other things such as those meant for adornment of idols, etc. Thus, the exemption clearly covers jewellery within its ambit. Further, the exemption under this notification at S.No. 171 includes 'Ornaments and the like articles' and thus, not only ornaments but also like articles are exempted. For these reasons, we find that jewellery is clearly exempted under S No. 171 of this notification.

17. The next question is if it covers 'diamond studded jewellery'. Entry at S.No. 171 exempts ornaments and like articles 'whether or not set with stones or gems or pearls' which leaves no manner of doubt that diamond studded jewellery was clearly exempted under the notification. For these reasons, we find that the appellant was entitled to the exemption from additional duty of Customs (CVD) under Notification no. 6/2002- CE (S.No. 171) which provides full and unconditional exemption. We, therefore, find in favour of the appellant insofar as the exemption from CVD is concerned.

Exemption notifications applicable to SAD

18. The appellant claimed the benefit of exemption notification No 6/2004-Cus dated 08.01.2004. Learned consultant for the appellant submits that duty was demanded based on the entries made in two notebooks found in the premises of the appellant with names Priya and Rishu and some other documents which showed that diamonds were received in the appellant's premises during the period 2000 to 2002. The case of the department is that the appellant had manufactured diamond studded jewellery using these diamonds and sold them. Neither these books nor the documents indicate the dates on which the goods were removed from the appellant's premises. Since the duty was demanded under Section 11A of the Central Excise Act, 1944, the relevant date for calculating the rate of duty and exemption notification is the date of removal of the goods and since no date is available in this case, as per Rule 9A (5) of the Central Excise Rules, 1944, the date of the SCN is the relevant date which in the case is 24.11.2004 on which date notification no. 6/2004-Cus dated 8.1.2004 was available.

19. Learned authorised representative for the Revenue submitted that the SCN was issued on 24.11.2004 when the Central Excise Rules, 1944 were already superseded by Central Excise (no.2) Rules 2001 and further by Central Excise Rules, 2002. Neither of these two Rules provide for determining the duty applicable on the date of SCN but Rule 5 of both the 2001 Rules and 2002 Rules says that the rate of duty applicable is date of removal of goods. The period of removal is between 7.9.2000 and 4.10.2002. The exemption notification No. 6/2004-Cus dated 08.01.2004 claimed by the appellant was not even issued even on the last date of removal of goods, viz., 4.10.2002. Therefore, the benefit of this exemption notification was not available to the appellant.

20. We have considered the submissions by both sides on this issue.

21. We find that the appellant cannot claim the benefit of a notification applying Section 9A(5) of the Central Excise Rules, 1944 which was not even in existence at the time of the SCN and had already been superseded in 2001 and further in 2002. The appellant claimed that the date of removal was not known in the case and therefore, the benefit of the exemption notification available on the date of the SCN should be extended to it. While it is true that the exact date of removal of goods was not known, they are alleged to have been removed from 7.9.2000 and 4.10.2002. Undisputedly, the exemption notification no. 6/2004- Cus was not available during this entire period. Therefore, the appellant is not entitled to the benefit of the exemption notification not available during any of the dates of the clearance.

22. We, therefore, find in favour of the Revenue and against the appellant and hold that the benefit of exemption notification no. 6/2004-Cus was not available to the appellant on the SAD to be paid.

Entries in the work in progress (WIP) register

23. According to the learned consultant for the appellant, there were "contra entries" in the WIP register indicating that some of diamonds which were received were rejected and returned by the appellant to its sister concern. Therefore, the demand must be reduced for this reason. He further submits that the department has wrongly taken the diamonds received as 3080 carats when in fact, only 965.585 carats were recorded in the WIP register. Of these, 501.407 carats were covered by the contra entries in the register which must also be deducted while calculating the duty. According to him, the learned Commissioner has wrongly rejected these submissions.

24. Learned authorised representative for the Revenue submits that the demand of duty on 3080 carats of diamonds received by the appellant was not based only on the WIP register. In fact, the entries showing the receipt of these diamonds were in the two notebooks- Priya and Rishu and other documents. With respect to some of these, entries were also found in the WIP register which was the supporting evidence. There is no separate demand based on the entries in the WIP register. The details, according to him are as follows:

source	Period	Diamonds used in manufactur ing are studded jewellery in carats	Value of studded diamond jewellery I.e. after value addition. Rs Cr	Total Duty Rs Cr
Annex B to SCN Diamonds utilised for manufacture of studded core jewellery worked out on the basis of delivery challans of MAP diamond division Mumbai	08-05-2001 to 04-10-2002	1264.18	1.93	1.02

Annex C to SCN Diamonds utilised for manufacture of studded core jewellery worked out on the basis of Rishu exercise book and Priya Exercise Book recovered from Shri Subhash Sharma on 05-10 -2002.	07-09-2000 to 21-04-2002	1701.297	2.6	1.37
On the basis of loose paper file, which were also reclaimed from the factory without payment of duty i.e., 1.68+112.46		114.14	0.17	0.09
Total		3079.617		2.49

25. According to the learned authorised representative for the Revenue, of these, diamond of 965.585 carats were also mentioned in the WIP register. The appellant had claimed that there were contra entries to the extent of 501.407 carats and that they were returned by the appellant to the sender. It is only with respect to this claim that the matter was remanded by the CESTAT in the first round of litigation to the Commissioner and in the de-novo proceedings, he did not find in favour of the appellant with respect to this claim. Otherwise, the demand was already upheld by this Tribunal in the first round of litigation and there is no appeal against the Final Order in the first round of litigation.

26. We have considered the submissions on this aspect.

27. We do find that in the first round of litigation, this Tribunal remanded the matter for the limited purpose of deciding the claims with respect to CVD, SAD and the entries in the WIP register. We also find that it is true that the demand in this case was not based only on the WIP register but this register was used as supporting evidence only. The demand was based on the entries in the two notebooks Priya and Rishu and the some other entries and there was no separate demand on the basis of the WIP register. WIP register was only used as supporting evidence. The claim of the appellant with respect to some entries (known as contra entries by the appellant) were required to be examined by the Commissioner which he did in the impugned order. Paragraph 5.7 of the impugned order reads as follows:

"5.7 Now, I come to second issue wherein the noticee pleaded to consider data of Work in Process (WIP) register to quantify the quantity of studded diamond Jewellery, cut & polished diamond and precious and semi precious stone and duty element etc. In this context I have gone through the Work in Process (WIP) register, documents submitted by the party in their paper book - I and paper book III and written submissions dated 21.03.2018 and 11.10.2018. The party claimed in his written submission dated 11.10.2018 that "……..out of these 965.585 Carats, 501.407 carats (P-333 to 345 of PB) were returned since these diamonds were not fit for manufacture of jewellery. There are contra entries in WIP register in this regard." In this context, I have carefully gone through page 333 to 345 of paper book III and found that in Annexure B (page 333 to 341 of PB) there is only 6 entries under the column "Rejection" i. e. 23.9, 2.32, 4.69, 4.36 and 2.36; totaling to 37.63. Moreover, there is no column / entry for rejection of diamond shown in Annexure C (page No. 342 to 345). I also observed that there is no remark or indication in the (P

- 333 to 345 of PB) which shows that the rejected quantity (entry for only 37.63 carats was found out of 501.407 carats as claimed by the party in their written submission) returned by the party. In the light of facts narrated above, I observed that the claim of the party that 501.407 carats were returned by them since these diamonds were not fit for manufacture of jewellery, was not supported by any documentary evidence."

28. We find no reason to differ from view taken by the Commissioner as far as the entries are concerned because firstly, entries do not reflect that the total quantity of diamonds rejected was 501.407 carats and secondly, there is no indication that they have been returned to the sender. We, therefore, do not find sufficient evidence for us to believe that these diamonds were returned by the appellant to the sender.

29. Customs Appeal no. 50643 of 2019 is filed by Shri Anand Shrivastava assailing the personal penalty imposed on him under the impugned order. It has been submitted on his behalf that the submissions made before the adjudicating authority in the de novo proceedings were not considered and no finding has been given on them and therefore, there was violation of principles of natural justice and for this reason, the penalty imposed on him may be set aside.

" Regarding imposition of penalty on Shri Anand Shrivastava, it is submitted that Shri Anand Shrivastava (notice no. 2) is not involved in day to day activities as the work of import/export clearances was being looked after by professionally qualified persons. The ground on which penalty has been proposed in the SCN in para 30 (iii) is that Shri Anand Shrivastava, Director of the unit who was responsible for overall supervision and control of the unit and its activities failed to discharge its duties in terms of conditions of Notification applicable in the zone. Ther is no evidence whatsoever on record identifying the exact positive acts of omission and commission on the part of Noticee no. 2 listed in Rule 26 of the CER, 2002 which have rendered imported goods liable to confiscation u/s 111 of the Customs Act, 1962 warranting imposition of penalty u/s 112 of the Customs Act, 1962. Similarly, there is no evidence on record to suggest that Noticee no. 2 personally removed, transported, sold, purchased, etc. goods knowingly or having reason to believe that the goods are liable to confiscation under the Central Excise Acts and Rules, In any event, a proposal to impose combined penalty u/s 112 of the Customs Act, 1962 and u/r 26 of the CER, 2002 is not legally sustainable being independent legal provisions and hence the proposal to impose combined penalty on Noticee no. 1 &2 is not sustainable."

30. Learned authorised representative for the Representative for the Revenue submitted that the above ground was taken in the original proceedings as well and it was dealt with in the Order in Original dated 19-07-2006 passed by the Commissioner. The role of Sri Anand Shrivastava was explicitly covered and it was held that he was aware and, in fact, instrumental in unauthorized entry of diamonds in the unit on the strength of Challans of Maharshi Ayurvedic Products (MAP) Mumbai. As per the statements dated 18.08.2003 of Shri Yogesh Shah, Sri Anand Shrivastava requested him to sign on the delivery challans of diamonds as employee of MAP when, in reality, he was not an employee of MAP. As per statement dated 5.10.2002 of Sri GJ Patel, Shri Anand Shrivastava was overall in charge of the unit. Such being his position and responsibility, he must be always aware of the illegal, /unauthorised activities being carried out in the unit and, therefore, responsible for the violations of the prescribed rules and regulations in the unit . No new or additional ground was taken in the de novo proceedings and therefore, there was no need to deal with the grounds which were already dealt with in the first round of proceedings.

31. We have considered the submissions.

32. We find that the role of Shri Anand Shrivastava was dealt with the Order in Original dated 19.7.2006 passed by the Commissioner in the first round of litigation and a penalty of Rs. 25,00,000/- was imposed on him under Rule 26 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002. Although the proposal in the SCN was to impose penalties under section 112 of the Customs Act and Rule 26 of the Central Excise Rules, penalty was only imposed under Rule 26. We do not find that the SCN had a proposal to impose combined penalty under section 112 of the Customs Act, 1962 and under rule 26 of the CER, 2002 as contended by Shri Shrivastava. However, the penalty was only imposed under Rule 26 of the Central Excise Rules. Therefore, the contention of Shri Shrivastava that there was an untenable proposal for a combined penalty holds no water as it was neither the proposal in the SCN nor was any penalty imposed in that fashion. All the three appeals against the Order dated 19.7.2006 were decided by this Tribunal by Final Order dated 26.4.2017 by remanding the matter to the original authority for the limited purpose of deciding the three issues of eligibility of exemption to CVD and SAD and the effect of the entries in the WIP register. No other issue was remanded to the original authority in the appeal. The original authority was also directed to give adequate opportunity to present any additional documents. Having found against the assessee Diamond Jewellery on all three issues of exemptions from CVD and SAD and the entries in the WIP register, in the impugned order, the Commissioner reaffirmed the demands and penalties imposed in the original order.

33. Since there was no specific direction with respect to the penalty imposed on Shri Shrivastava by the Tribunal in the Final Order remanding the matter to the original authority, evidently, the only reason his appeal was also remanded was that the demand itself was being remanded. If the demand is dropped naturally the penalties would also need to be dropped. However, the appellants (including Shri Shrivastava) were also given the liberty to submit additional documents before the Commissioner in the de novo proceedings. The ground of appeal of Shri Shrivastava in this appeal is not new nor has it brought in any additional documents. This ground was taken in the original proceedings as well as in the de novo proceedings before the Commissioner. In the original proceedings, this plea was rejected by the original authority and such rejection was not interfered with in the Final Order of this Tribunal while remanding the matter.

34. Ideally, in the impugned order, the Commissioner should have recorded the pleading by Shri Shrivastava in the de novo proceedings but the Commissioner did not do so. In fact, the impugned order is not even addressed to Shri Shrivastava at all. However, in his appeal, Shri Shrivastava claimed to have received a copy of this order on 20.12.2018 and filed this appeal assailing it on 11.2.2019. It is thus evident that both sides understood this order to have been passed deciding the de novo proceedings in respect of Shri Shrivastava also and that the penalty against Shri Shrivastava imposed in the original order was affirmed in the impugned order.

35. The ground taken by Shri Shrivastava that, although he was the promoter of the Global Diamonds, he was not concerned with the day-to-day affairs during the relevant period was rejected by the original authority in the original proceedings and such rejection was not interfered with by this Tribunal while remanding the matter for the limited purposes indicated. There is nothing on record to show that the order of the Tribunal was either appealed against or any application for rectification seeking modification of the order was filed by either side.

Therefore, the order attained finality. However, the Tribunal remanded all three appeals before it including the one filed by Shri Shrivastava.

36. We have upheld the demand in the impugned order except giving the benefit of Notification No. 6/2002-CE dated 1.3.2002 (S.No. 171) for CVD. We find no reason to interfere with the penalty.

37. Customs Appeal No. 50642 of 2019 filed by M/s Global Diamond Pvt Ltd. is partly allowed and the impugned order is modified to the extent of giving the benefit of Notification No. 6/2022-CE dated 01.3.2022(S. No. 171) for the CVD. Customs Appeal No. 50643 of 2019 filed by Anand Shrivastav (Promoter) is dismissed.

HON'BLE MS. HEMAMBIKA R. PRIYA, MEMBER (TECHNICAL) FINAL ORDER NO. 51678/2023

BINU TAMTA:

Challenge in the present appeal is to the order in original No. 11/2020/MKS/Pr. Commr./ ICD-Import/ TKD dated 18/21.5.2022 passed by the Principal Commissioner affirming the classification and confiscation of the goods and the consequent demand of differential duty, interest and penalty, as proposed in the show cause notice.

2. The facts of the case are that the appellant is engaged in cultivation, manufacturing and marketing of the health food supplements, especially Ganoderma business and is importing items in question, namely, "Bulk Reishi Gano Powder-100% Ganoderma and Bulk Ganocelium Powder 100% Gano Mycelium" from their related foreign supplier M/s DXN Industries, Malaysia.

3. On verification of the import data of M/s Daxen Agritech (India) Pvt. Ltd., it was noticed that the importer had imported the subject goods vide Bills of Entry as mentioned in Table-A.

The importer had filed these bills of entry under self- assessment scheme through their authorized representative, M/s Challenger Cargo and M/s SMS Clearing & forwarding Pvt. Ltd., Customs Broker. It appeared that they were mis-declaring these goods as Ayurvedic proprietary Medicine and consequently wrongly classifying the same under CTH 30039011 instead of correct CTH 21069099 of food supplements thereby evading payment of appropriate customs duty.

4. The issue of classification of subject goods viz. Bulk Reishi Gano Powder -100% Ganoderma and Bulk Ganocelium Powder-100% Gano Mycelium, had come up for consideration before the concerned appraising group earlier, and had been adjudicated by Assistant Commissioner (Group-I), ICD-TKD, Delhi vide Assessment Order No. 01/2012 dated 27.07.2012 whereby the goods had been held to be wrongly classified under CTH 30039011 by the importer.

5. On appeal by the appellant, the Commissioner (Appeals) vide order dated 26.08.2012 directed the assessing authority to pass a suitable order and accordingly remanded the matter back. The Assistant Commissioner passed a fresh order dated 24.05.2013, confirming the classification of the goods in question under CTH 2106 9099 as food supplements. The appellant once again challenged the said order before the Commissioner (Appeals) who was pleased to restore the classification of the products under CTH 30039011 as Ayurvedic Medicaments vide order dated 17.02.2024. Being aggrieved, the revenue filed an appeal before this Tribunal which was finally decided on 10.01.2018, upholding the classification as claimed by the revenue, reported in 2018 (362) ELT 713, which is now the subject matter of challenge before the Supreme Court.

6. The Department then issued the show cause notice dated 02.07.2018 covering the bills of entry for the period from 30.07.2013 to 23.03.2018 to which the appellant filed its reply. Thereafter a supplementary, show cause notice was issued to the appellant which was also duly replied. On adjudication, the Principal Commissioner rejected the classification claimed by the appellant of the products as Ayurvedic medicaments under CTH 30039011 and affirmed the classification as proposed in the show cause notice, invoking the extended period of limitation and the consequential interest and penalty along with confiscation of goods under section 111(m) and (o) of the Customs Act, 1962 (hereinafter referred to as the Act).

7. We have heard the learned Counsel for the appellant and also the Authorised Representative for the revenue and have perused the records of the case.

8. The moot question in the present appeal is whether the product Reishi Gano and Ganocelium are classifiable as Ayurvedic medicaments under chapter 3003.9011 of the First Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 (CETA) as contended by the appellant or as food supplements under CTH 2106999 of CETA. The relevant entries relied on by the appellant and the Department is as under:-

2106	Food preparations not elsewhere specified or included
2106 90 99	---- Other
3003	Medicaments (excluding goods of heading 3002, 3005 or 3006) consisting of two or more constituents which have been mixed together for therapeutic or prophylactic uses, not pout up in measured doses or in
3003 9011	---- Of Ayurvedic system

8.1 The said issue is no longer rest-integra and has been decided by the Chennai Bench in DXN Manufacturing India Private Ltd. vs. Commissioner of Central Excise and Service Tax, Pondicherry - 2018 (11) GSTL 68, where the Tribunal reconsidered the matter at length on being remanded by the Supreme Court - 2015 (325) ELT A41 and concluded that both the impugned goods fail both the twin test for being considered as Ayurvedic medicament and therefore the products in question are nothing but food supplements promoted mainly for general health or well-being and therefore merit classification under 2108 of the CETA and more specifically under 2108.99, as it stood at the relevant time and assessed accordingly under section 4A of the Act for discharge of duty liability. The issue of classification was thus decided in favour of the revenue and against the assessee. The said order was followed by the Principal Bench subsequently in an appeal filed by the revenue in respect of the present appellant relating to the earlier round of proceedings, reported in 2018 (362) ELT 713, and finding no reason to differ from the ratio and findings arrived by the Chennai Bench of the Tribunal, the appeal was allowed holding that the products are classified as food supplement and not as Ayurvedic medicine. We have been told that appeal against both the orders of the Chennai Bench and the Principal Bench as referred above have been filed by the party before the Supreme Court and the same are pending consideration, however, there is no stay of the impugned orders. Therefore, the orders of the Chennai Bench and the Principal Bench of the Tribunal deciding the issue of classification in favour of the revenue are binding. Consequently, we have no hesitation in concluding the issue of classification of the products in question under CTH 21069099 as food preparation. We may also like to refer from the synopsis filed by the appellant, where it is stated :

"Since, the issue of classification, the dispute matter is in the Hon"ble Supreme Court, the appellant is not contesting the same before this

Hon"ble Tribunal, being sub-judice in nature."

Thus the issue of classification on merits stands affirmed in favour of the revenue and against the appellant.

9. The next question which arises in the present appeal is the invocation of the extended period of limitation under section 28(4) of the Act. The submission of the learned Counsel is that the issue of classification of the products in question was within the knowledge of the department at the time of clearing of the subject goods at the relevant time of imports as the department itself had filed an appeal against the Order-in-Appeal dated 17.02.2014 before the Tribunal and therefore the allegations of suppression are not made out and so the extended period of limitation cannot be invoked. The learned Authorised Representative for the revenue have submitted that the period of limitation has been rightly invoked and cited several judgements in support thereof.

10. We find that show cause notice was issued on 2.7.2018 for the period 03.07.2013 to 03.03.2018, covering several bills of entries as given in Table-A above which is per Annexure-A to show cause notice. In the appeal filed against the first assessment order dated 27.07.2012, the Commissioner (Appeals) vide order dated 16.08.2012 remanded the matter to the adjudicating authority to pass suitable order. On remand, the Adjudicating Authority vide order dated 24.05.2013 once again confirmed the classification under CTH 21069099, however, the appellant challenged the said order and the Commissioner (Appeals) vide order dated 17.02.2014, set aside the Order-in-Original and classified the products under CTH 30039011 and thereafter till the final order dated 10.01.2018 was passed by the Tribunal that the product in question is to be classified as food supplements, the appellant was under a bonafide belief and filed the bills of entry, accordingly in terms of the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) dated 16.08.2012 and thereafter the order dated 17.02.2014. In view of the proceedings which was pending since 2012 and the department itself had preferred an appeal, it cannot be said that the department was not aware of the classification of the products as declared in the instant bills of entry by the appellant and therefore no fault can be found on the part of the appellant as 9 out of the 10 bills of entries were filed before the final order was passed by the Tribunal on 10.01.2018 and the Order-in-Appeal by the Commissioner (Appeals) was holding the field. In this regard we would like to refer to the observations made by this Tribunal in an appeal filed by the Customs Broker of the appellant against the present impugned order as under:

"11. In the order, the Principal Commissioner obfuscated the fact that the final order of this Tribunal was passed on an appeal by the revenue as the Commissioner (Appeals) had decided the classification in favour of the importer. Until the final order was passed by this Tribunal on 10.1.2018, the order of the Commissioner was binding on both sides. Of the bills of entry listed in the impugned order, all except one were filed before the final order was passed by this Tribunal. The last one was filed soon after the final order was passed. There is nothing on record to show that appellant was made aware of this order by the revenue and told to classify the goods accordingly. It is not unlikely that it took some time for the appellant to come to know about the final order. It may be pointed out that the SCN dated 02.07.2018 was issued in the present proceedings six months after the final order. Therefore, in respect of nine bills of entry, the importer and the appellant were correct in classifying the goods as per order of the Commissioner (Appeals) and the officers were correct in clearing the goods for home consumption accordingly. The Principal Commissioner is in error in holding in the impugned order that the importer and the appellant (in importer"s behalf) should have filed bills of entry contrary to the order of the Commissioner in good faith.

12. There is a well established practice in the department to deal with cases with the order which holds the field is against the revenue and an appeal is pending with the superior court or Tribunal. SCN are issued periodically to protect revenues interest and they are transferred to the call book which are then decided after the order of the superior Court or Tribunal is received. In these bills of entry also, after the order of the Commissioner (Appeals), SCNs could have been issued and transferred to Call Book and decided after this Tribunal passed the final order. However, until the final Order of this Tribunal was issued, the order of Commissioner (Appeals) was binding both on the importer and the officers."

11. The aforesaid observations of the Tribunal (against the present impugned order), holds the field that the appellant was justified in adopting the classification while filing the bills of entry.

This is sufficient to turn down the revenue‟s contention about the existence of wilful suppression of facts or deliberate mis-statement on behalf of the appellant. For these reasons, the revenue was not justified in invoking the extended period of limitation to fasten the liability on the appellant when the revenue is aware of the litigation with the appellant on the issue of classification of the very same products and taking steps to challenge the same before the higher forum. Thus it cannot be said that the appellant has in any manner, suppressed or mis-stated the facts wilfully to evade the payment of duty.

12. The law on invocation of extended period of limitation is well settled. Mere omission or merely classifying the goods/services under incorrect head does not amount to fraud or collusion or wilful statement or suppression of facts and therefore the extended period of limitation is not invocable. Reliance is placed on the decision of the Tribunal in Incredible Unique Buildcon Private Ltd. 2022 (65) GSTL 377.

"17. We are unable to find any proof of show cause notice or from the impugned order. intent to evade either from the Mere omission or merely classifying its services under an incorrect head does not amount to fraud or collusion or wilful misstatement or suppression of facts. The intention has to be proved to invoke extended period of limitation. Supreme Court has delivered the judgment in the case of Larsen & Toubro dated 20 August, 2015, prior to which there was no clear ruling that services which involved supply or deemed supply of goods could only be classified under WCS. The appellant had been classifying its services (which also involved supply/use of goods) under the CICS and Revenue never objected to it and, therefore, the appellant could have reasonably believed it to be the correct head and continued to file returns accordingly and paying duty. Once the returns are filed, if Revenue was of the opinion that the self-assessment of service tax and the classification was not correct, it could have scrutinized the returns and issued notices within time. The show cause notice was issued on 30 September, 2015 for the period covered October, 2010 to June, 2012, which is clearly beyond the normal period of limitation. Therefore, although Revenue is correct on merits, the demand is time barred and, therefore, cannot sustain. For the same reason, the penalties imposed upon the appellant under Sections 77 and 78 also cannot be upheld."

13. The Supreme Court in Nizam Sugar Factory 1995 (78) ELT 401 has categorically laid down that where facts are known to both the parties, the omission by one to do what he might have done, and not that he must have done, does not render it suppression. Thus when all the facts are before the department as in the present case then there would be no wilful mis-declaration or wilful suppression of facts with a view to evade payment of duty. The relevant para from the judgement in Nizam Sugar Factory (supra) is quoted below:-

"4. Section 11A empowers the Department to re-open proceedings if the levy has been short-levied or not levied within six months from the relevant date. But the proviso carves out an exception and permits the authority to exercise this power within five years from the relevant date in the circumstances mentioned in the proviso, one of it being suppression of facts. The meaning of the word both in law and even otherwise is well known. In normal understanding it is not different that what is explained in various dictionaries unless of course the context in which it has been used indicates otherwise. A perusal of the proviso indicates that it has been used in company of such strong words as fraud, collusion or wilful default. In fact it is the mildest expression used in the proviso. Yet the surroundings in which it has been used it has to be construed strictly. It does not mean any omission. The act must be deliberate. In taxation, it can have only one meaning that the correct information was not disclosed deliberately to escape from payment of duty. Where facts are known to both the parties the omission by one to do what he might have done and not that he must have done, does not render it suppression."

13.1 Without multiplying too many decisions on the principle justifying or rejecting the invocation of the extended period of limitation, we would just refer to the citations:

2004 (166) ELT 151 (SC) - Hyderabad Polymers (P) Ltd., vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Hyderabad

2006 (197) ELT 465 (SC) – Nizam Sugar Factory vs. Collector of Central Excise, Andhra Pradesh

2004 (164) ELT 236 (SC) – ECE Industries Ltd., vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, New Delhi.

2003 (153) ELT 14 (SC) P&B Pharmaceuticals (P) Ltd., vs. Collector of Central Excise

2015 (324) ELT 8 (SC) – Caprihans India Ltd., vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Surat

14. We have also considered the decisions cited by the learned Authorised Representative for the revenue on the issue of extended period of limitation, however, we feel that in the facts of the present case the same would not be applicable for the simple reason that the earlier proceeding on the subject matter (Order in Original dated 27.7.2012 annexed as „Annexure B" in the Appeal paper book) was decided without allegation of suppression and mis-statement of material facts, then in the subsequent show cause notice, it cannot be said that there was any suppression on the statement of facts by the appellant. We, therefore conclude that the revenue cannot invoke the extended period of limitation under section 28(4) of the Act, hence the show cause notice dated 2.07.2018 is barred by limitation for the period beyond the normal period.

15. We now come to the issue of imposing penalty under section 114A of the Customs Act on the appellant. As we have held that it is not a case of willful suppression, mis-statement or mis-declaration by the appellant, the ingredients required for invoking the penalty being the same, we hold that penal action under the provisions of section 114A as imposed by the impugned order is not justifiable and is hereby set aside. We are also supported by the decision of this Tribunal dated 1.12.2022 (arising out of the same impugned order) refuting the observations of the Principal Commissioner on self assessment by the appellant, inter-alia observing:

"14…….Self assessment is subject to any reassessment by the proper officer. Self assessment can also be appealed against to the Commissioner (Appeals). They can assess duty as per their understanding and the officers are free to reassess it as per section 17(4). Mis-classification or incorrect assessment of duty does not amount to mis-declaration in the bill of entry, nor does it attract any penalty.

15……..We understand that the bills of entry are cleared on the basis of self assessment, they are subjected to post clearance audit. If so, it gives sufficient time to the officers to find if any duty has escaped assessment and issue a demand under section 28. However, there can be no penalty for wrong self-assessment by the importer".

16. On similar grounds, we hold that the appellant cannot be held liable for penalty under section 114 AA of the Customs Act and the reasoning given by the Principal Commissioner that at the time of presenting the bill of entry, the importer made and subscribed to false declaration against the contents of bills of entry, in contravention to section 46(4) of the Act is unsustainable in view of the discussion above.

17. Lastly, we would consider the issue of confiscation of goods under section 111 (m) and (o) as ordered by the Principal Commissioner. The learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the invocation of section 111(m) of the Act is not proper, for the reason that the present dispute relates to classification of goods and does not involve any valuation issue. Similarly, the confiscation under the provisions of section 111(o) is also not sustainable as the benefit of the exemption notification has been availed in accordance with law.

18. Referring to the provisions of section 111 (m), the Tribunal analysed the same in the order dated 1.12.2022 (arising out of the same impugned order) observing as:

"20. Section 111(m) does not provide for confiscation of goods if the importer or on his behalf the Customs broker claims any wrong classification in the bill of entry. It only provides for confiscation if there is mis-declaration of goods. Even if the goods are mis-classified or duties, otherwise wrongly self-assessed by the importer, the goods do not become liable for confiscation. The remedy against wrong assessment is reassessment by the officer under section 17(4). The dispute between the revenue and the importer was with respect to the classification. At the time the bills of entry were filed, the Commissioner (Appeals) order held the field according to which the appellant filed the bills of entry. Therefore, the Principal Commissioner has erred in holding that the goods were liable for confiscation under section 111(m)".

19. In view of the aforesaid observations made, the findings in the impugned order that section 111(m) can be invoked for mis- declaration of any material particular, in respect of the goods and not necessarily only the value of the goods stands quashed and the issue stands decided in favour of the appellant that there cannot be any confiscation of goods under section 111(m) in the case of wrong classification.

19.1 Also, as noticed by us, it is a simple case of mis- classification/incorrect classification and not mis-declaration of goods on the part of the appellant, the logical inference would be that the appellant has not wrongly claimed the exemption benefit and therefore there can be no confiscation under Section 111(o) of the Act.

20. We therefore partly allow this appeal and modify the impugned order to the following effect:

a) The goods in question are re-classified as food preparations under CTH 2106 9099

b) The revenue cannot invoke the extended period of limitation and therefore the show cause notice is barred by limitation except to the extent of the normal period.

c) The demand of differential duty is limited to the normal period, i.e. 03.07.2013 to 19.05.2015 and the same may be computed accordingly.

d) The interest under the provisions of section 28AA of the Act is also to be charged and recovered from the appellant for not paying the due customs duties in respect of the normal period of demand.

e) There cannot be any order of confiscation under section 111(m) or 111(o) of the Act.

21. No penalty can be imposed on the appellant under the provisions of section 114A or under 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962. The impugned order is partly set aside as referred to above and the appeal is remanded to the Adjudicating Authority for the limited purpose of computing the differential duty to be demanded in respect of normal period only.

22. Accordingly, the appeal is partly allowed by way of remand.

BINU TAMTA:

1. The appellant has assailed the Order-in-Appeal No. CC(A)CUS/D-II/Prev./NCH/640/2019-20 dated 19.09.2019 passed by the Commissionerof Customs (Appeals) affirming absolute confiscation of the seized gold of foreign marking and penalty under Section 112(b) of the Customs Act, 1062(hereinafter referred to as the 'Ac').

2. That on the basis of intelligence, 8 cut pieces, 01 gold biscuit marked "AL Etihad, Dubai", 01 cut piece of gold marked "AL Etihad" and 01 melted gold piece of crude shape, total weighing 1199.550 gms which were being melted in a smelter, were recovered from the premises of Shri Amit Deshmukh. A certified jewellery appraiser tested the purity of recovered gold by Touch Stone Method and certified the recovered gold collectively weighing 1199.550 gms. Of foreign origin valued at Rs.30,90,109/-. Further,the said recovered 11 pieces of foreign origin gold were seized under Section110 of the Customs Act, 1962 in absence of any documents evidencing licit possession, on the reasonable belief that the same are liable for confiscation under the provision of Customs Act, 1962.

2.(i) Shri Amti Deshmukh, a Smelter, in his statement dated 29.01.2015 recorded under Section 108 of Customs Act, 1962, inter alia, stated that ShriRanjit Rawat, employee of shri Shankar Lal Goyal had come with 1 kg. bar bearing foreign marking along with one biscuit of 116.6 gms and 8 cut pieces and a half of 116.6 gm. Piece for melting.

2.(ii) Shri Ranjit Rawat, employee of Shri Shankar Lal Goyal, Prop. of M/s. Rahul Jewels, in his statement dated 29.01.2015 recorded under Section108 of Customs Act, 1962, inter alia, stated that his job was to take 24 caratforeign marked gold biscuits for melting from Shri Shankar Lal and after getting the gold melted, get the melted gold back from the smelter; that he had been doing this job for around last 3-4 years. Further, he also admitted that on 29.01.2015, he had taken approx. 1200 gms. of foreign marked gold biscuits for melting to Shri Amit Deshmukh and from this gold when 1 kg. bar was being melted, Customs officer came and took this 1 kg. melted gold along with 200 gms. of foreign marked gold into their possession.

2.(iii) Shri Shankar Lal Goyal, Prop. of M/s. Raul Jewels, in his statement dated 29.01.2015 recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962, inter alia, admitted that on 29.01.2015, he had purchased 1 kg. foreign marked gold bar from M/s. Sai Bullion (known as Teliwala in the market) andfrom this piece, he gave 48 gms. gold for making of jewellery to Shri Suresh Kumar and rest of 32 gms. in piece form along with one 116 gm. Biscuit, one 50 gm. Biscuit and one 920 gm. Biscuit was sent for melting to Shri Amit Deshmukh through his servant, Shri Ranjit Rawat. He also admitted that he did not have any document for legal possession of the above mentioned gold and purchased the same without any bill.

2.(iv) Shri Tarun Garg, son of the Prop. of M/s. Sai Bullion, in his statement dated 26.06.2015 and 13.07.2015 recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962, inter alia, stated that they did not sell cut pieces; that he had not supplied any gold to M/s. Rahul Jewel after 08.12.2014 and further stated that on 29.01.2015, Shri Rahul, S/o Shri Shankar Lal Goyal, Prop. of M/s. Rahul Jewels approached his father for providing a bill for 1 kg. gold but they declined as they had not supplied any gold.

3. That on scrutiny of sales statement submitted by Shri Shankar Lal Goyal during investigation, they had sold 405.500 gms. of gold to M/s. Keshariya Gems Pvt. Ltd. vide Invoice No.6 dated 22.04.2014 and Invoice No.24 dated 11.08.2014. However, Shri Varun Jain, Director of M/s. Kesariya Gems Pvt. Ltd. in his statement dated 20.07.2015 recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962, inter alia, confirmed that he had purchased primary gold (purity 0995) thrice from Sh. Shankar Lal Goyal, Prop. of M/s Rahul Jewels vide Bill Invoice No. 6 dated 22.04.2014, invoice No. 24 dated 11.08.2014 and Invoice No. 39 dated 03.01.2015, that he had paid for all the three transactions by cheque; that they had purchased 100 gm. Gold from M/s Rahul Jewels vide Invoice No. 39 dated 03.01.2015 and the same was not reflected by Sh. Shankar Lal Goyal in his sale statements.

4. After completing the investigation, show cause notice dated 27.07.2015 was issued as to why the gold recovered should not be confiscated under Section 111(d) read with Section 120 of the Customs Act, 1962 and appropriate customs duty on the seized gold should not be recovered under Section 125 of the Act and penalty should not be imposed under section 112 of the Act. The show cause notice was adjudicated bythe order-in-original dated 31.01.2017, whereby the adjudicating authority concluded that the appellant was knowingly involved in the handling of the smuggled gold of foreign origin, and was in conscious possession and he failed to discharge the onus on him that the seized gold was validly imported. The gold having been imported in contravention of the provisions of the notification no.12/2012 – Custom dated 17.03.2012, as amended, read with Section 11 of the Customs Act, and section 3 of the Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992 was liable for confiscation under section 111 of the Customs Act and thereby liable to penal action under section 112(b) of the Act. The appeal filed by the appellant challenging the said order was dismissed by the impugned order and hence the present appeal has been filed before this Tribunal.

5. We have heard Shri Akshay Anand, the learned counsel for the appellant and also Shri Rakesh Kumar, the authorised representative for the Revenue and have perused the records of the case.

6. The main submissions of the learned counsel for the appellant is that the authorities below have erred in presuming that the seized gold was a prohibited item and was liable to be confiscated absolutely, though there was no such proposal in the show cause notice. Secondly, no effective opportunity was granted to present his case and no opportunity to cross examine the witnesses was given. Lastly, he submitted that the seized gold was not tested from the certified goldsmith through Melting Purity Method and the seized gold should have been released on payment of redemption fine to the appellant.

7. On the contrary, the learned authorised representative for the Revenue has relied on the findings of the authorities below, holding that it is an admitted position that goods in question are gold items of foreign marking and the appellant has failed to discharge the onus by proving the source of the foreign marked gold bars by producing valid documents of import. He relied on several decisions, which we will discuss later, on the principle that gold may not be prohibited, but is a restricted item, and would therefore fall within the definition of 'prohibited goods' as per section 2(33)of the Act. The seized gold being of foreign origin are 'dutiable goods' and in the absence of any document showing the payment of customs duty, they are to be treated as 'smuggled goods' and therefore liable to confiscation under section 111 of the Act. The learned AR also referred to the conduct ofthe appellant in evading the investigation and also his statement recorded under section 108 of the Act.

8. The identity and the ownership of the goods is not disputed. The goods, i.e. 9 cut pieces, one biscuit marked with "AL Etihad, Dubai", one cut piece marked "AL Etihad, Dubai" and one melted gold piece of crude shape, total weighing, 1199.550 gms. were recovered when process of gold smelting was in process under Shri Amit Deshmukh and he in his statement dated 29.01.2015 admitted that Shri Ranjit Rawat, employee of the appellant had come with 1 kg. gold bar of foreign marking along with one biscuit of 116.6 gm. and 8 cut pieces which has also been admitted by Ranjit Rawat in his statement that he had taken 1200 gms gold biscuits (foreign marked) for melting to Shri Amit Deshmukh. The appellant Shri Shankar Lal Goyal in his statement dated 29.01.2015 under Section 108 of the Act admitted that he purchased one kg. of foreign marked gold bar without any bill. In the synopsis and submissions filed by the appellant, he has categorically stated in the opening paragraph that the present appeal relates to seizure of 11 cut pieces of gold weighing, 1199.550 gms. valuedat Rs.30,90,109 from a melter, Shri Anil Deshmukh belonging to the presentappellant. Thus appellant is the owner of the gold recovered which havebeen found to be of foreign origin without any bill or any supporting document.

9. The basic challenge by the appellant is that the gold is not a 'prohibited item' and is not liable to be confiscated absolutely, more so whenthere was no proposal in the show cause notice. We do not find any merit in the submissions made by the appellant and the law on the issue is well settled by several judgements of the superior courts. Before adverting to thedecisions, the statutory definition of 'prohibited goods', 'dutiable goods' and 'smuggling' as defined under Section 2(33), 2(14) and 2(39) of the Act, respectively is set out :

"2(33) prohibited goods" means any goods the import or export of which is subject to any prohibition under this Act or any other law for the time being in force but does not include any such goods in respect of which the conditions subject to which the goods are permitted to be imported or exported, have been complied with;

2(14) "dutiable goods" means any goods which are chargeable to duty and on which duty has not been paid;

2(39) "smuggling", in relation to any goods, means any act or omission which will render such goods liable to confiscationunder section 111 or section 113;

In this context, it would also be relevant to set out the provisions of section 111 (d) of the Act :
Section 111 (d) - any goods which are imported or attempted to be imported or are brought within the Indian customs waters for the purpose of being imported, contraryto any prohibition imposed by or under this Act or any other law for the time being in force;"

10. The definition of 'prohibited goods' have been the subject matterof interpretation in various decisions. In the case of Sheikh Mohammed Omar Vs Collector of Customs, Calcutta & Ors. - 1970(2) SCC 728, the contention raised by the appellant therein that the expression 'prohibition' used in Section 111(d) must be considered as a total prohibition and that the expression does not bring within its fold the restrictions imposed by clause (3) of the Import (Control) Order, 1955 was negatived bythe Supreme Court, holding that the word 'any prohibition' in section 111(d)of the Act meant complete as well as partial prohibition and merely because section 3 of the Imports and Exports (Control) Act, 1947, used threedifferent expressions, "prohibiting", "restricting" or otherwise,"controlling" was not to cut down the amplitude of the word , "any prohibition" in Section 111(d) of the Act.

11. Following the aforesaid decision in Sheikh Mohammed Omar, the Supreme Court in the case of Om Prakash Bhatia Vs. Commissioner — 2003 (155) ELT 423 (SC) enunciated the meaning to the term 'prohibited goods' as defined by Section 2(33) and the authority of the Customs department to confiscate the goods, observing as:

"10. From the aforesaid definition, it can be stated that (a)if there is any prohibition of import or export of goods under the Act or any other law for the time being in force, it would be considered to be prohibited goods; and (b) this would not include any such goods in respect of which the conditions, subject to which the goods are imported or exported, have been complied with. This would mean that if the conditions prescribed for import or export of goods are not complied with, it would be considered to be prohibited goods. This would also be clear from Section 11 which empowers the Central Government to prohibit either 'absolutely' or 'subject to such conditions' to be fulfilled before or after clearance, as may be specified in the notification, the import or export of the goods of any specified description. The notification can beissued for the purposes specified in sub-section (2). Hence, prohibition of importation or exportation could be subject to certain prescribed conditions to be fulfilled before or after clearance of goods. If conditions are not fulfilled, it mayamount to prohibited goods."

12. Similar issue was raised before the Madras High Court in the case of Malabar Diamond Gallery P. Ltd Vs. Additional Director General, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, Chennai - 2016 (341) ELT 65 (Mad.) that gold jewellery was not an item whose import was prohibitedand therefore the goods were not liable to be confiscated, the Division Bench referring to the observations in Sheikh Mohammed Omer (Supra) and OmPrakash Bhatia (Supra) and other decisions, inter-alia observed:

"86. If there is a fraudulent evasion of the restrictions imposed, under the Customs Act, 1962 or any other law forthe time being in force, then import of gold, in contraventionof the above, is prohibited. For prohibitions and restrictions, Customs Act, 1962, provides for machinery, by means ofsearch, seizure, confiscation and penalties. Act also provides for detection, prevention and punishment for evasion of duty.

87. The expression, "subject to prohibition in the Act and any other law for the time being in force." in Section 2(33) of the Customs Act, has wide cannotation and meaning, and it shouldbe interpreted, in the context of the scheme of the Act, andnot to be confined to a narrow meaning that gold is not an enumerated prohibited goods to be imported into the country. If such narrow construction and meaning have to be given, then the object of the Customs Act, 1962, would be defeated."

13. We would now consider the latest decision by the jurisdictional High Court in the case of Nidhi Kapoor - dated 21.08.2023 reported in 2023 (8) TMI 1008, where both the learned Judges have passed separate detailed judgment considering the various notifications issued by the DGFT and also the Circulars issued by RBI, specifically considering the following issues:

"I. In respect of Scope of 'prohibited goods' under section2(33) of the Customs Act, 1962 ('Act')

i. Whether the definition of prohibited goods under theact includes goods which are subject to conditions?

ii. Which category of goods will be non-prohibited, butnonetheless liable to confiscation.

II. Whether gold is a prohibited item ?

III. What is the scope of redemption under section 125 of the Act?

In the main judgement, Justice Dharmesh Sharma categorically held that smuggling of gold is per se restricted by virtue of section 111 as also in terms of various notifications issued under the FTDR Act and under the RBI Act and therefore the importation of gold into India is highly regulated and bulk importation of gold item could only be affected by the nominated banks, agencies or business houses in the manner laid down by various DGFT regulations as well as the RBI circular or by the eligible passengers in the manner provided by the relevant regulations as the main object of the Customs Act is to prohibit smuggling of goods and sternly deal with thesame as can be gathered on a conjoint reading of Section 2(25),11(2)(c), 111 and 112 of the Act. The concluding para reads as under:

"70. In the foregoing discussion, we answer the issues framed to the effect that Section 2(33) of the Act shall also include importation of such goods within the scope of "prohibited category" with regard to which the mandatory condition under the Act as also in other relevant notifications/circulars issued by the DGFT, the RBI or any other authority have not been complied with ,or in other words the restrictions imposed by the concerned authorities have not been adhered to. We further have no hesitation in holding that the importation of the gold is a prohibited item within the meaning of Section 2(33) of the Act; and that redemption in case of imposition of gold which is brought intoIndia illegally in the form of "smuggling" does not entitle the owner or importer for automatic release/redemption of such item, and therefore, as a necessary corollary a decision to allow release/redemption of the goods confiscated with or without imposition of fine in addition to payment of requisite duty is vested in the discretion of the Adjudicating Officer, who needless to state is duty bound to exercise his discretionary powers not only after considering the facts and circumstances of each case before it, but also in a transparent, fair and judicious manner under Section 125 of the Act."

In his separate judgement concurring with the aforesaid view, Justice Yashwant Varma observed as under:-

"145. In summation, we note that Section 2(33) of the Act while defining prohibited goods firstly brings within its dragnet all goods in respect of which a prohibitory notificationor order may have been Signature Not Verified Digitally Signed By:NEHA Signing Date:21.08.2023 17:00:50 issued. That order could be one promulgated either under Section11 of the Act, Section 3(2) of the FTDR or any other law for the time being in force. However, a reading of the latter part of Section 2(33) clearly leads us to conclude that goods which have been imported in violation of a condition forimport would also fall within its ambit. If Section 2(33) were envisaged to extend only to goods the import of which were explicitly proscribed alone, there would have been no occasion for the authors of the statute to have spoken of goods imported in compliance with import conditions falling outside the scope of ―prohibited goods‖.

146. Our conclusion is further fortified when we move onto Section 11 and which while principally dealing with the power to prohibit again speaks of an absolute prohibition or import being subject to conditions that may be prescribed. It is thus manifest that a prohibition could be either in absolutist terms or subject to a regime of restriction or regulation. It is this theme which stands reiterated in Section 3(2) of the FTDR which again speaks of a power to prohibit, restrict or regulate. It becomes pertinent to bear in mind that in terms of the said provision, all orders whether prohibiting, restricting or regulating are deemed, by way of a legal fiction,to fall within the ambit of Section 11 of the Act. This in fact reaffirms our conclusion that Section 2(33) would not only cover situations where an import may be prohibited but also those where the import of goods is either restricted or regulated. A fortiori and in terms of the plain language and intent of Signature Not Verified Digitally Signed By:NEHA Signing Date:21.08.2023 17:00:50 Section 2(33), an import which is effected in violation of a restrictive or regulatory condition would also fall within the net of ―prohibited goods.

147. We are further of the considered opinion that the absence of a notification issued under Section 11 of the Actor Section 3(2) of the FTDR would have no material bearing since a restriction on import of gold stands constructed in terms of the FTP and the specific prescriptions forming part ofthe ITC (HS). Those restrictions which are clearly referable toSection 5 of the FTDR and the relevant provisions of that enactment would clearly be a restriction imposed under a lawfor the time being in force. Once the concept of prohibited goods is understood to extend to a restrictive or regulatory measure of control, there would exist no justification to discern or discover an embargo erected either in terms of Section 11 of the Act or Section 3(2) of the FTDR. This more so since, for reasons aforenoted, we have already foundthat the power to prohibit as embodied in those two provisions itself envisages a notification or order which may stop short of a complete proscription and merely introduce a restriction or condition for import."

14. From the analysis of the statutory provisions, one thing is clear that the Act does not define the expression 'restricted goods', but the decisions referred to above, have interpreted the expression 'prohibited goods' under Section 2(33) so as to include restricted goods. In terms of the definition of 'prohibited goods' in Section 2(33) even prohibited goods could be imported or exported, subject to compliance with the terms and conditions as prescribed but if import is not done lawfully as per the procedure prescribed under the Customs Act or any other law for the time being in force, in that event the said goods would fall under the definition of 'prohibited goods'.The necessary corollary is that goods being imported if not subjected to check up at the customs on their arrival and are cleared without payment of customs duty are treated as 'smuggled goods'. As observed by the Madras High Court in Malabar Diamond Gallery P Ltd. (supra) " The expression, subject to the prohibition under the Customs Act, 1962, or any other law for the time being in force, in Section 2(33) of the Customs Act, has to be read and understood, in the light of what is stated in the entirety of the Act and other laws. Production of legal and valid documents for import along with payment of duty, determined on the goods imported, are certainly conditionsto be satisfied by an importer. If the conditions for import are not complied with, then such goods , cannot be permitted to be imported and thus, to be treated as prohibited from being imported."

The observations of the High Court of Gujarat in Bhargavraj Rameshkumar Mehta Vs UOI - 2018 (361) ELT 260 has also enunciated the principle that, "condition of declaration of dutiable goods, their assessment and payment of customs duties and other charges is a fundamental and essential condition for import of dutiable goods within the country. Attempt to smuggle the goods would breach all these conditions."

15. We may now examine whether the gold in question was legally imported by the appellant and whether it has to be treated as 'prohibited goods' on conjoint reading of Section 2(33) defining prohibited goods and Section 11 of the Act prohibiting importation and exportation of goods. The appellant in the present case has not been able to produce any documentsto show that the gold in question (foreign origin) recovered was validly imported by paying requisite customs duty as gold falls in the categoryof 'dutiable goods', that is goods chargeable to duty and on which duty has been paid. Infact in his statement recorded under Section 108 of the Act,the appellant admitted that he did not have any legal document to prove the possession of the gold of foreign origin. Though the appellant stated thathe purchased 1 Kg. gold of foreign origin from M/s Sai Buillion out of which he sent around 920 gms plus 116 gms. and 50gms of Biscuits to Shri Amit Deshmukh through his employee Shri Ranjit Rawat but on the contrary, M/s Sai Bullion not only denied having sold any gold bar to the appellant but also stated that the son of the appellant, namely Shri Rahul on 29.01.2015 had approached M/s Sai Buillion to provide them for a bill of 1 Kg. gold which they declined to do so as they had not sold any such gold to the appellant. The chain of events clearly establish that the appellant had illegally procured the gold of foreign origin, which therefore falls in the category of 'prohibited goods' and amounts to 'smuggling'. As noted by the Delhi High Court in Nidhi Kapoor (supra) the notification issued by DGFT has put gold under restricted category and the RBI Circular has allowed only the nominated agencies and banks to import the foreign marked gold bars, in that view the burden to prove that the gold recovered was not smuggled butwas validly procured was on the appellant as per the statutory provisions of Section 123 of the Act, which he failed to rebut by any substantive evidence/documents.

Since the conditions for import of gold as per the notification issued by DGFTand the restrictions imposed by RBI have been violated, the gold in question has to be treated as 'prohibited goods' under Section 2(33). Consequently, itwould fall within the definition of 'smuggling ' under Section 2(39) which will render such goods liable to confiscation under Section 111 or Section 113 of the Act.

16. We would now deal with the contention raised by the appellant that there can be no absolute confiscation in the present case and therefore the gold seized should be released provisionally. In support, he has relied on the decision of this Tribunal in Final Order No.51470/2019 dated 13.11.2019 where seized gold was provisionally released which has been affirmed by the High Court in CUSAA No.229/2019 vide order dated 01.06.2020 and alsoby the Supreme Court in SLP (C) No.10472/202 vide order dated 01.10.2020 except that the amount of bank guarantee was enhanced by both the Courts. The said case is clearly distinguishable as the importer hadproduced all the requisite documents i.e., shipping bills and invoices, permission for export of the gold jewellery for exhibition, the export declaration forms filed at the time of export of the goods from Dubai, Customs endorsed coloured photographs of the jewellery, bills of entry for the imported jewellery and packing list covering the imported jewellery showing that the jewellery imported was the same, which had earlier been exported for the purpose of exhibition in terms of the notifications. Further,in respect of the gold seized at the workshop, it was noticed that the respondent was working in bonded premises and was in possession of documents evidencing licit acquisition of primary gold bars and gold jewellery and therefore could not have been regarded as prohibited. Considering this, the provisional clearance of the gold, gold jewellery, and silver was allowed. Thus the said case is not applicable to the facts of the present case and the appellant is not entitle to claim any parity on that basisas he has miserably failed to show the procurement and the possession of the gold by way of any legal document and hence we are of the view that noreliance can be placed on the said orders.

17. Having come to the conclusion that the gold seized of which theappellant claimed to be the owner without any valid documents of purchase, has to be treated as 'prohibited goods' and gold falls under the category of 'dutiable goods' but the appellant failed to prove that the liability to pay the customs duty was discharged and by necessary implication the seized gold are 'smuggled goods', we further hold that the seized goods are liable for confiscation under Section 111(d) whereby goods which are imported or attempted to be imported contrary to any prohibition imposed by or under the Act or any other law for the time being in force, would be liable for confiscation. Also absolute confiscation is justified in the facts of the present case where the trail of events show that the appellant is engaged in procuring gold of foreign origin in illegal manner and the multiple stands taken by him on the face of it were false as the alleged supplier M/s. Sai Buillion had denied having supplied any gold to the appellant after 08.12.2014 and also stated that on 29.01.2015, Shri Rahul son of the appellant approached his father for providing a bill for one Kg. gold, but they declined as they had not supplied any gold. We also find that in this case as per the statement of Shri Varun Jain of M/s. Kesariya Gems Pvt. Ltd. that they had purchased primary gold from M/s. Rahul Jewel vide invoice no.6 dated 22.04.2014, invoice no.24 dated 11.08.2024 and invoice no.39 dated 30.01.2015 which were paid by cheques, however the sales register did not show these transactions which also reflected that the statement submitted by the appellant was fabricated so as to justify the stock of gold. Moreover, the conduct of non-cooperation of the appellant in theinvestigation proceedings also cannot be ignored, which is a valid ground for not permitting provisional release of gold. We are supported by the following case laws on the issue of confiscation under section 110A and whether it has to be absolute or can be released provisionally subject tosuch terms and conditions as may be imposed by the adjudicating officer.

17.(i) In Abdul Razak Vs. UOI - 2012 (275) ELT 300 (Ker.), the Kerala High Court while holding that though gold is not a prohibited item andcan be imported but such import is subject to lot of restrictions, includingthe necessity to declare the goods on arrival at the customs station and make payment of duty at the rate prescribed, however, held that appellant cannot claim provisional release of goods on payment of redemption fine andduty, as a matter of right.

17.(ii) In the case of Malabar Diamonds Gallery P. Ltd. (supra), the Madras High Court while interpreting the provisions of section 110A of the Act, especially the word "may" and having regard to the prohibition/restrictions in the Act and the conditions to be complied with, provisional release of the goods liable for confiscation, is not automatic. As prohibition/ restriction is inbuilt in the Customs Act the Court rejected the prayer for provisional release of the goods, observing as under:

"93. Keeping in mind, the objects and purpose for which, Customs Act, 1962, is enacted, dealing with prohibition/restriction, this Court is of the considered view that the competent authority, has to arrive at a satisfaction, as to whether, goods seized and liable for confiscation, canbe released provisionally, pending adjudication, and in that context, the role of the Courts, in exercise of the powers, under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, should beconfined only to test such satisfaction, arrived at, by the competent authority, with regard to the objects of the Customs Act, 1962 and any other law for the time being in force. When the competent authority, under the Customs Act,1962, makes a plea that there is a prima facie case ofsmuggling and that the appellant has failed to discharge the burden, in terms of Section 123 of the Customs Act and whenthe adjudication proceedings are pending, we are of theconsidered view that it would be appropriate to direct provisional release?

95. Under the Customs Act, 1962, the authorities are duty bound to pass orders for confiscation, impose penalty, initiateprosecution and pending conclusion of the adjudicating proceedings, may order provisional release. At the time, when discretion is exercised under Section 110A and if any challenge is made under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, the twin test, to be satisfied is "relevance and reason". Testing the discretion exercised by the authority, on both subjective and objective satisfaction, as to why, the goods seized, cannot be released, when smuggling is alleged and onthe materials on record, we are of the view that the discretion exercised by the competent authority, to denyprovisional release, is in accordance with law. When there is a prima facie case of smuggling, for which, action for confiscation is taken, such proceedings taken should be allowed, to reach its logical end, and not to the stiffed, byany provisional release."

17.(iii) The issue whether the goods are liable to absolute confiscation hasbeen dealt by the Supreme Court in Union of India Vs. Raj Grow Impex LLP – 2021 (377) ELT 145 (SC) and referring to the provisions of section 125 of the Act, it was observed:

"69.1 " A bare reading of the provision aforesaid makes it evident that a clear distinction is made between 'prohibitedgoods ' and 'other goods'. As has rightly been pointed out, the latter part of section 125 obligates the release of confiscated goods (i.e., other than prohibited goods) against redemption fine but, the earlier part of the provision makes no such compulsion as regards the prohibited goods; and it is left to the discretion of the Adjudicating Authority that it may give an option for payment of fine in lieu of confiscation. It is innate in this provision that if the Adjudicating Authority does not chooseto give such an option, the result would be of absolute confiscation."

Further, on the exercise of this power by the adjudicating authority whichhas to be exercised judiciously and for which all the relevant facts and factors and the implication of discretion has to be weighed to arrive at a balanced decision, the Supreme Court in the case of Union of India Vs. RajGrow Impex LLP (supra) made observations to the following effect :

"79. As noticed, the exercise of discretion is a critical and solemn exercise, to be undertaken rationally and cautiously and has to be guided by law; has to be accordingto the rules of reason and justice; and has to be based on relevant considerations. The quest has to be to find what is proper. Moreover, an authority acting under the Customs Act,when exercising discretion conferred by Section 125 thereof, has to ensure that such exercise is in furtherance of accomplishment of the purpose underlying conferment of such power. The purpose behind leaving such discretion with the Adjudicating Authority in relation to prohibited goods is, obviously, to ensure that all the pros and cons shall beweighed before taking a final decision for release or absolute confiscation of goods."

17.(iv) In Nidhi Kapoor (supra), the Delhi High Court while holding that an infraction of a condition for import of goods would also fall within theambit of section 2(33) of the Act, and thus their redemption and release would become subject to the discretionary power of the Adjudging Officer, also observed :

"136. We also take note of the significance of Section 111 ofthe Act which deals with the confiscation of improperly imported goods. While dealing with the circumstances in which the imported goods may become liable for confiscation,the provision firstly speaks of dutiable or prohibited goods. Section 111, apart from speaking of dutiable or prohibited goods also brings within its net goods which have come to be imported either in violation of conditions prescribed or goods which have been concealed as well as imported articles which may have otherwise not compliedwith the conditions prescribed under the Act.

137. What thus clearly appears to flow from Section 111 is ofthe power of confiscation being extendable not just in thecase of dutiable or prohibited goods but also to goods whose import may have been effected in violation of the conditions prescribed by the Act. This is clearly evident from a readingof Clauses (e), (f), (g), (h), (i), (j), (m),(n), (o) and (p) of Section 111."

18. The submission of the learned counsel that there was no proposal for absolute confiscation in the show cause notice stands nullified in view of the decisions referred above, laying down that it is the discretion of the adjudicating authority to decide with reference to the facts and circumstances and based on relevant considerations. For the reasons given above, we are of the opinion that the authorities below have rightly exercised the discretion in not granting provisional release of the seized goods in terms of Section 110 A read with Section 125 of the Act.

19. In the grounds of appeal, the learned Counsel for the appellant has contended that he has been denied proper opportunity to present his case and no opportunity was granted to cross examine the witnesses. Consideringthe facts of the present case we do not find any substance in the argument so raised. Firstly, despite repeated summons the appellant did not appear before the Investigating Agency and merely sent a letter admitting hisstatement recorded under section 108, which during his life time (as he expired on 18.08.2018 during the pendency of the appeal) he never retracted the said statement. As per the settled law, the said statement is admissible in evidence and is binding on the appellant. The appellant during his life time had never asked for cross examination and hence no such plea can be raised at this stage. Moreover, in the event of his own admission no further corroboration is required, reliance is placed on the decision of the Supreme Court in Commissioner of C. Ex., Madras Vs. M/s Systems & Components Pvt. Ltd. - 2004 (165) ELT 136, where it has been held that it is a basic and settled law that what has been admitted need not beproved. We therefore reject the contention as raised on behalf of the appellant as frivolous and baseless.

20. Lastly, the learned Counsel for the appellant submitted that request was made for retesting of the seized gold by melting purity because the contents of the Panchnama was not recorded correctly and the purity certificate was also issued without any basis but the same was not allowed. We find from the records that on 29.01.2015, on the date of search itself, a Certified Jewellery Appraiser was called on spot who tested the recovered gold by touchstone method in the presence of two independent witnessesand certified the recovered gold. In order to deal with this contention, we would also rely on the decision of the High Court of Kerala in the case of Mammu and another Vs. Assistant Collector of Central Excise - 1984 (171) ELT 54, where it has been held that, since no definite tests have been prescribed under law, whether an article is gold of particular qualityand purity, it has to be borne in mind that the opinion of an expert on this point is relevant under Section 45 of the Evidence Act. The plea is of no significance but an attempt and tactics to delay the adjudicationproceedings, particularly in view of the marking on the gold biscuits "AL Etihad, Dubai) and the statements recorded under Section 108 of the Act.

21. Since on merits we have upheld the issue of confiscation of seized goldunder Section 11 and have also discussed the role and conduct of the appellant, we hold that the appellant for his acts of omission and commission have rendered himself liable to penal action under Section 112(b) of the Act.

22. To sum up, we hold --

(a) gold seized (foreign origin) would fall under the definition of 'Prohibited goods' as per Section 2(33) of the act.

(b) gold being dutiable goods can only be imported on payment of customs duty under the Act.

(c) as per the admission of the appellant himself, the transaction in the present case has to be treated as smuggling as defined in Section 2(39) of the Act.

(d) the gold seized is liable for confiscation under Section 111(d) of the Act.

(e) the adjudicating authority rightly did not invoke Section 110 A read with Section 125 of the Act and ordered for absolute confiscation.

(f) the appellant is liable to penalty under Section 112(b) of the Act.

23. We, therefore, affirm the findings of the authorities below and dismissthe present appeal.

24. Accordingly, the appeal stands dismissed.[Order pronounced on 22nd Dec., 2023]

CUSTOMS, EXCISE & SERVICE TAX APPELLATE TRIBUNAL
NEW DELHI. PRINCIPAL BENCH – COURT NO.III

Customs Appeal No.50934 of 2018 (DB)

(Arising out of Order-in-Original No. DLI/CUSTOM/PRE/OPD/PR.COMMR/21/2017 dated 05.01.2018 passed by the Principal Commissioner of Customs, New Customs House, New Delhi)

HON'BLE MS. HEMAMBIKA R. PRIYA, MEMBER (TECHNICAL)FINAL ORDER NOS.50015-50017/2024

BINU TAMTA:

1. Separate appeals have been filed by the two appellants, namely Suresh Bhonsle and Mohammed Wajid against the order-in-original no.DLI/CUSTOM/PRE/OPD/PR.COMMR/21/2017 dated 05.01.2018 orderingconfiscation under Section 111(b) and Section 111(d) of the Customs Act, 1962, (hereinafter referred to as the Act) and have also challenged the penalty imposed under Section 112 (b)(i) and Section 112(b) of the Act. TheRevenue also filed separate appeal challenging non-imposition of penalty under Section 114AA of the Act against the appellant, Suresh Bhonsle.

2. The facts of the case are that acting on a specific information thatthree persons would engage themselves in handing and taking over smuggled gold in Delhi, the officers of Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, (DRI), apprehended three persons, namely, Shri Amzad Khan, Shri Imran Mullick and Mohammed Wajid in presence of independent witnesses on 14.05.2016 at around, 09:40 hours. Pursuant to notice under Section 102 of the Customs Act, they were apprised of the right to be searched either in thepresence of a Magistrate or a Gazetted Officer, they were searched as per their reply given in writing in the presence of a gazetted officer at the DRI office. On the personal search of Shri Amzad Khan and Imran Mullick apart from other things, three pieces of heavy yellow colour metal bars wrapped incarbon paper and Newspaper and fastened on their waist under the shirt were recovered. The recovered yellow colour metal bars were got examined and valued from Shri Vikram Bhasin, Jewellery Appraiser, Customs, (IGIA) inpresence of independent witnesses and as per his report, all the six yellow bars were gold bars of purity 999 collectively weighing, 10,000 gms. having market value of Rs3,05,00,000/-. None of the persons could produce any documents to show the legal possession of the gold bars recovered from them.

3. The voluntary statement of all the three persons, Amzad Khan, Imran Mullick and Mohammed Wajid were recorded under Section 108 of the Act on14.05.2016 and thereafter on 16.09.2016. Both Amzad Khan and Imran Mullick revealed about the past transactions in the month of December 2015, February 2016 and April 2016 when they had indulged in delivering gold illegally to Mohd. Wajid in Delhi at the behest of Sh. Suresh Bhonsle. Amjad Khan also referred to certain instances where he alone delivered gold to Mohd. Wajid in Delhi. In respect of the present consignment, both ofthem stated that on 12.05.2016, Sh. Suresh Bhonsle gave him three packetscontaining five kgs. of gold to him as well as three packets containing 5 kgs. of gold to Shri Imran Mullick, with two delivery challans of M/s. Buillion Traders, Siliguri for delivery to Mohd. Wajid at Delhi and for this they boarded Brahmaputra mail on 12.05.2016 and reached Old Delhi Railway Station at around 6.3 0 a.m. on 14.05.2016, when they met Mohd. Wajid at 9.40 am. and as soon he handed over a bag, the DRI officers intercepted.

4. Shri Mohd. Wajid in his voluntary statement recorded under Section

108 of the Act on 14.05.2016, stated how he met Shri Suresh Bhonsle in December 2015, at a function in Kathmandu, Nepal, and thereafter Shri Bhonsle called him up to sell 3/4 kgs. of gold through him. He then contacted Mohammed Abid who agreed to sell the gold at Delhi. In his statement, he specifically stated that Sh.Bhonsle had told him that the gold was from outside India. Mohammed Abid in his voluntary statement dated 30.05.2016, agreed that he was disposing of the smuggled gold, handedover to him by Mohammed Wajid in the market, for which he was getting commission of Rs.50 per lakh of the sale proceeds. He also admitted that Mohd. Wajid had told him that the said gold was being received fromNepal.

5. In further follow-up action, search was conducted at M/s. BullionTraders, Siliguri where statement of Smt. Shalan Bhonsale, partner of M/s Bullion Traders (mother of Suresh Bhonsle) was recorded under Section 108 of the Act on 14.05.2016, however, she denied having signed any Challans (copies of challans recovered from Amjad Khan and Imran Mullick) as shedid not look after the business at all. As per the statement of Shri Shyamal Roy, Accountant of M/s. Bullion Traders, there was no transaction afterMarch 2016 and there was no stock apart from what was shown in the stock register.

6. Shri Suresh Bhonsle in his statement recorded under Section 108 ofthe Act on 17.05.2016 stated that they were in the business of trading of gold and silver, and he was a partner along with his brother and mother in the firm M/s.Bullion Traders. He denied that he knows Shri Amzad Khan and Shri Imran Mullick. On 15.07.2016 when the statement of Shri SureshBhosale was recorded he admitted that he used to receive gold from oneShri Mohan of Kathmandu, Nepal through one Shri Ramesh in melted condition to suppress the foreign originality. He also admitted thetransaction of gold being delivered by Shri Amzad Khan and Shri Imran Malikat Delhi and also that he took signatures of his mother on blank pages of Challan book to use the same to cover the transportation of smuggled goods. He categorically admitted that he did not make any entry in the stockregister in respect of the 10 Kg. gold as these were smuggled gold bars fromNepal.

7. Investigation of the mobile numbers held by these persons revealed that Shri Suresh Bhonsle was in constant touch with all of them and also in Nepal. From verification of the stock register of M/s. Buillion Traders,it was found that there was no sale and purchase of any kind of gold from 1.04.2016 to 14.05.2016, due to All India strike of Gold Jewellers Association.

8. Accordingly, show cause notice dated 7.11.2016 was issued proposing confiscation of the seized gold under Section 111(b) and Section 111(d) of the Act and imposition of penalty under Section 112(b)(i) and Section112(b) and also under Section 114AA of the Act. On adjudication, theproposal in the show cause notice was affirmed ordering absolute confiscation of the seized gold and penalty was imposed as under:-

"(iii) I impose under Section 112 (b)(i) of the Customs Act, 1962, a penalty of Rs.75,00,000/- (Rupees SeventyFive Lakh Only) on Shri Suresh Bhonsle S/o Late Jaysingh Bhonsle, partner of Bullion Traders and resident of 86/87,
S.S. Market Siliguri (W.B.) which should be recovered from him forthwith.

(iv) I impose under Section 112(b) of the Customs Act, 1962, a penalty of Rs.20,00,000/- (Rupees Twenty Lakh only) on Shri Imran Mullick S/o late Shoib Mullick, which should be recovered from him forthwith.

(v) I impose under Section 112(b) of the Customs Act, 1962, a penalty of Rs.20,00,000/- (Rupees Twenty Lakh only) on Shri Amjad Khan, S/o late Mohd. Khan, whichshould be recovered from him forthwith.

(vi) I impose under Section 112(b) of the Customs Act, 1962, a penalty of Rs.5,00,000/- (Rupees Five Lakh only) onMohd. Wajid @ Bunty, S/o Shri Saddik Ahmad, which shouldbe recovered from him forthwith.

(vii) I impose under Section 112(b) of the Customs Act, 1962, a penalty of Rs.2,00,000/- (Rupees Two Lakh only)on Mohd. Abid, S/o Mohd. Allaudidin, which should be recovered from him forthwith."

9. The appellant, Shri Suresh Bhonsle has challenged the confiscation and the penalty imposed by the impugned order before this Tribunal in the present appeal and the appellant, Mohd Wajid has challenged the penalty imposed on him. Whereas the Revenue has challenged that despite there being a proposal in the show cause notice for imposing penalty underSection 114AA, no penalty has been imposed by the Adjudicating Authority on Shri Suresh Bhonsle.

10. We have heard the Shri R. K. Rawal, Consultant for the appellant and also Shri Rakesh Kumar, Authorised Representative for the Revenue and perused the records of the case.

11. The first submission on behalf of the appellant is that the gold seized isnot of foreign origin. He has seriously challenged the report of the jewellery appraiser and sought for retesting of the gold to ascertain the purity, but thesame has not been allowed. He also submitted that gold was entrusted to Shri Amzad Khan and Imran Mullick for delivery to Delhi under proper challan, therefore, the burden of proof shifts on to the department and reliedon the decision in Ashok Kumar Aggarwal – 2016 (342) ELT 232 (Cal.).Further, there is no evidence of the smuggled nature of the gold. Forimposing penalty under Section 112(b) of the Act, the department was required to produce cogent evidence. No CDR has been furnished to show any conversation with Shri Mohan of Nepal. Referring to the decision of the Apex Court in Mohtesham Mohd. Ismal vs Special Director Enforcement, Directorate, 2007(220) ELT 2, he submitted that confession of co-accused cannot be treated as substantive evidence.

12. Shri Rakesh Kumar has opposed the appeals filed by Amjad Khan and Imran Mullick on the principle that import of gold is prohibited under Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992 except by authorisedbanks and nationalised agencies and the appellant has not been permitted toimport gold by the DGFT. Therefore, the gold seized is prohibited and the burden of proof that it is not smuggled gold lies on the appellant under Section 123 of the Act which he failed to discharge and the goods are therefore liable for confiscation under the Act. He relied on various judgments which have settled the law on the issue of import of gold. On the issue of penalty under Section 112(b), he submitted that the gold was seizedof which the appellant was the owner but he could not produce any evidentiary document showing that the gold was acquired legally. Referring to the provisions of Section 114 AA of the Act, Shri Rakesh Kumar submittedthat the present case was of creating false/fake documents to mask the smuggled gold which was transported to Delhi.

13. Over the period, the law on the subject relating to import of gold iswell settled by catena of decisions interpreting the statutory provisions, particularly the definition of 'prohibited goods' under Section 2(33), 'dutiablegoods' under Section 2(14) and 'smuggling' as defined under Section 2(39) of the Act read with Section 111 providing for various circumstances under which confiscation can be made, Section 110A and read with Section 125 forprovisional release on payment of redemption fine and Section 123 requiring the burden of proof to be discharged by the person in possession or owner ofthe seized goods that they are not smuggled goods.

14. On examining the facts of the present case, we find that there is no dispute that huge quantity of gold in question had been recovered which was concealed on the body of Amzad Khan and Imran Mullick to be handed over to Mohd. Wajid on the instructions of Suresh Bhonsle. From the statements recorded under section 108 of the Act, not only the instant chain of events is clearly established but even the past involvement shows that theappellants are habitual offenders. The connivance of all the persons involved stands proved by the detailed call records of different mobile numbers of Suresh Bhonsle to Mohd. Wajid, Imran Mullick, Amjad Khan and Mohd.Abid showing regular incoming and outgoing calls to each other during the relevant period as noted extensively in the impugned order. The frequent phone calls between all of them clearly establish their connivance in dealing with the sale purchase of gold procured in an illegal manner which amounts to smuggling. No document has been produced to show legal procurement ofgold. These facts are sufficient to draw the conclusion that all these persons are involved in illicit trade of gold on regular basis.

15. The contention of the appellant that gold is not of foreign origin is not sustainable in view of his own statement dated 15.07.2016 where he specifically admitted that he used to get gold from one Mohan of Kathmandu, Nepal through one Rajesh. Gold of foreign origin was received in melted form to hide its identity and suppress that it is of foreign origin. It is a settled principle of law that the statement recorded under section 108 ofthe Act is binding on the appellant (Romesh Chandra Mehta vs. State of West Bengal, 1969 (2) SCR 461, Percy Rustam Ji Basta vs. State of Maharashtra, 1971 (1) SCC 847, Assistant Collector Central Excise, Rajamundry vs. Duncan Agro Industries Ltd & Ors. 2000(7) SCC 53 and Gulam Hussain Shaikh Chougule vs. Reynolds Supdt. of Customs Marmgoa 2001 (134) ELT 3(SC) and the said statement of the appellant is further corroborated by the statement of the co-noticees that they were aware that the gold in question was of foreign origin. Once there is an admission by the appellant himself nothing further is required to be proved to the contrary. The Apex Court in Surjeet Singh Chabbra vs. Union of India 1997 (89) ELT 646 held that confession made by the appellant binds him. Reliance is placed on Commissioner of C. EX, Madras vs. M/s Systems and Components Pvt. Ltd 2004 (165) ELT 136, (SC) where ithas been held that it is a basic and settled law that what has been admitted need not be proved.

16. On the issue of burden of proof, the submission that gold was entrusted to Amzad Khan and Imran Mullick for delivery to Delhi under proper voucher would shift the burden on the department to prove that itwas smuggled gold, we are of the view that the challan issued by the appellant had no sanctity as he could not show the source of procuring the gold. The appellant has not been able to discharge the burden that he has purchased the gold as per the specified sources by the RBI. There was no record or entry in their stock register of the gold covered by the challans issued. Moreover, the statement of Shri Shyamal Roy, the accountant of M/sBuillion Traders that there had been no transactions of sale-purchase of golddue to strike also corroborates that the delivery of gold under the challans was fraudulent and illegal. In the circumstances, as per Section 123 of the Act the department was under reasonable belief that it was smuggled gold and therefore the burden was on the appellant being the owner of it to prove that the gold seized was not smuggled gold, which remained undischargedat his end. The reliance placed by the appellant on the decision in Ashok Aggarwal (supra) is clearly distinguishable as the gold in that case was imported by MMTC Ltd and the respondent had produced the purchase bill and seller had confirmed the sale of such gold to him and in that event itwas observed that the onus shifted to the department. We are of theopinion that as the appellant failed to prove that the gold seized was validly procured in compliance of the statutory provisions whereby gold has beenput in restricted category by DGFT and in terms of the RBI Circular only nominated agencies and banks are entitled to import the foreign marked gold bars.

17. Having arrived at the finding that the gold seized was smuggled gold,it would fall under the category of 'prohibited goods' as defined in Section 2(33) of the Act and therefore liable for confiscation under the provisions of section 111 of the Act. We have recently observed in the case of Shankar Lal Goyal vs. Commissioner of Customs Final Order No.51685/2023 dated 22.12.2023 relating to seizure of gold :

"10. The definition of 'prohibited goods' have been the subject matter of interpretation in various decisions. In the case of Sheikh Mohammed Omar Vs Collector of Customs, Calcutta & Ors. - 1970(2) SCC 728, the contention raised by the appellant therein that the expression 'prohibition' used in Section 111(d) must be considered as a total prohibition and that the expression does not bring within its fold the restrictions imposed by clause (3) of the Import (Control) Order, 1955 was negatived by the Supreme Court, holding that the word 'any prohibition' in section 111(d) of the Act meant complete as well as partial prohibition and merely because section 3 of the Imports and Exports (Control) Act, 1947, used three different expressions, "prohibiting", "restricting" or otherwise, "controlling" was not to cut down the amplitude of the word , "any prohibition" in Section 111(d) of the Act.

11. Following the aforesaid decision in Sheikh Mohammed Omar, the Supreme Court in the case of Om Prakash Bhatia Vs. Commissioner — 2003 (155) ELT 423 (SC) enunciated the meaning to the term 'prohibited goods' as defined by Section 2(33) and the authority of the Customs department to confiscate thegoods, observing as:

"10. From the aforesaid definition, it can be stated that

(a) if there is any prohibition of import or export of goods under the Act or any other law for the time being in force, it would be considered to be prohibited goods; and (b) this would not include any such goods in respect of which the conditions, subject to which the goods are imported or exported, have been complied with. This would mean that if the conditions prescribed for importor export of goods are not complied with, it would be considered to be prohibited goods. This would also be clear from Section 11 which empowers the Central Government to prohibit either 'absolutely' or 'subject to such conditions' to be fulfilled before or after clearance, as may be specified in the notification, the import or export of the goods of any specified description. The notification can be issued for the purposes specified in sub-section (2). Hence, prohibition of importation or exportation could be subject to certain prescribed conditions to be fulfilled before or after clearance ofgoods. If conditions are not fulfilled, it may amount to prohibited goods."

12. Similar issue was raised before the Madras High Court in the case of Malabar Diamond Gallery P. Ltd Vs. Additional Director General, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, Chennai - 2016 (341) ELT 65 (Mad.) that gold jewellery was not an item whose import was prohibited and therefore the goods were not liable to be confiscated, the Division Bench referring to the observations inSheikh Mohammed Omer (Supra) and Om Prakash Bhatia (Supra) and other decisions, inter-alia observed:

"86. If there is a fraudulent evasion of the restrictions imposed, under the Customs Act, 1962 or any other law for the time being in force, then import of gold, incontravention of the above, is prohibited. For prohibitions and restrictions, Customs Act, 1962, provides for machinery, by means of search, seizure, confiscation and penalties. Act also provides for detection, prevention and punishment for evasion of duty.

87. The expression, "subject to prohibition in the Act and any other law for the time being in force." in Section2(33) of the Customs Act, has wide cannotation and meaning, and it should be interpreted, in the context of the scheme of the Act, and not to be confined to anarrow meaning that gold is not an enumerated prohibited goods to be imported into the country. If such narrow construction and meaning have to be given, thenthe object of the Customs Act, 1962, would be defeated."

13. We would now consider the latest decision by the jurisdictional High Court in the case of Nidhi Kapoor - dated21.08.2023 reported in 2023 (8) TMI 1008, where both the learned Judges have passed separate detailed judgment considering the various notifications issued by the DGFT and also the Circulars issued by RBI, specifically considering the following issues:

"I. In respect of Scope of 'prohibited goods' under section 2(33) of the Customs Act, 1962 ('Act')

i. whether the definition of prohibited goods under the act includes goods which are subject to conditions?

ii. Which category of goods will be non- prohibited, but nonetheless liable to confiscation.

II. Whether gold is a prohibited item ?

III. What is the scope of redemption under section125 of the Act?

In the main judgement, Justice Dharmesh Sharma categorically held that smuggling of gold is per se restricted by virtue of section 111 as also in terms of various notifications issued under the FTDR Act and under the RBI Act and therefore the importation of gold into India is highly regulated and bulk importation of gold item could only be affected by the nominated banks, agencies or business houses in the manner laid down by various DGFT regulations as well as the RBI circular or by the eligible passengers in the manner provided by the relevant regulations as the main object of the Customs Act is to prohibit smuggling of goods and sternly deal with the same as can be gathered on a conjointreading of Section 2(25),11(2)(c), 111 and 112 of the Act. The concluding para reads as under:

"70. In the foregoing discussion, we answer the issues framed to the effect that Section 2(33) of the Actshall also include importation of such goods within the scope of "prohibited category" with regard to which the mandatory condition under the Act as also in other relevant notifications/circulars issued by the DGFT, the RBI or any other authority have not been complied with, or in other words the restrictions imposed by the concerned authorities have not been adhered to. We further have no hesitation in holding that the importation of the gold is a prohibited item within the meaning of Section 2(33) of the Act; and that redemption in case of imposition of gold which is brought into India illegally in the form of "smuggling" does not entitle the owner or importer for automatic release/redemption of such item, and therefore, as a necessary corollary a decision to allowrelease/redemption of the goods confiscated with orwithout imposition of fine in addition to payment of requisite duty is vested in the discretion of the Adjudicating Officer, who needless to state is duty bound to exercise his discretionary powers not only after considering the facts and circumstances of each case before it, but also in a transparent, fair and judicious manner under Section 125 of the Act."

In his separate judgement concurring with the aforesaid view,

Justice Yashwant Varma observed as under:-

"145. In summation, we note that Section 2(33) of the Act while defining prohibited goods firstly brings within its dragnet all goods in respect of which a prohibitory notification or order may have been Signature Not Verified Digitally Signed By:NEHA SigningDate:21.08.2023 17:00:50 issued. That order could be one promulgated either under Section 11 of the Act, Section 3(2) of the FTDR or any other law for the time being in force. However, a reading of the latter partof Section 2(33) clearly leads us to conclude that goodswhich have been imported in violation of a condition forimport would also fall within its ambit. If Section 2(33) were envisaged to extend only to goods the import of which were explicitly proscribed alone, there would have been no occasion for the authors of the statute to have spoken of goods imported in compliance with import conditions falling outside the scope of ― prohibited goods‖.

146. Our conclusion is further fortified when we move on to Section 11 and which while principally dealingwith the power to prohibit again speaks of an absolute prohibition or import being subject to conditions that may be prescribed. It is thus manifest that a prohibition could be either in absolutist terms or subject to aregime of restriction or regulation. It is this themewhich stands reiterated in Section 3(2) of the FTDR which again speaks of a power to prohibit, restrict or regulate. It becomes pertinent to bear in mind that in terms of the said provision, all orders whetherprohibiting, restricting or regulating are deemed, byway of a legal fiction, to fall within the ambit of Section 11 of the Act. This in fact reaffirms our conclusion that Section 2(33) would not only cover situations where an import may be prohibited but also thosewhere the import of goods is either restricted or regulated. A fortiori and in terms of the plain language and intent of Signature Not Verified Digitally Signed By:NEHA Signing Date:21.08.2023 17:00:50 Section 2(33), an import which is effected in violation of arestrictive or regulatory condition would also fall within the net of ―prohibited goods.

147. We are further of the considered opinion that theabsence of a notification issued under Section 11 ofthe Act or Section 3(2) of the FTDR would have no material bearing since a restriction on import of gold stands constructed in terms of the FTP and the specific prescriptions forming part of the ITC (HS). Those restrictions which are clearly referable to Section 5 of the FTDR and the relevant provisions of that enactment would clearly be a restriction imposed under a law for the time being in force. Once the concept of prohibited goods is understood to extend toa restrictive or regulatory measure of control, there would exist no justification to discern or discover an embargo erected either in terms of Section 11 of the Act or Section 3(2) of the FTDR. This more so since, for reasons aforenoted, we have already found thatthe power to prohibit as embodied in those two provisions itself envisages a notification or order whichmay stop short of a complete proscription and merely introduce a restriction or condition for import.

14. From the analysis of the statutory provisions, one thing is clear that the Act does not define the expression 'restricted goods', but the decisions referred to above, have interpreted theexpression 'prohibited goods' under Section 2(33) so as to include restricted goods. In terms of the definition of 'prohibited goods' in Section 2(33) even prohibited goods could be imported or exported, subject to compliance with the terms and conditions as prescribed but if import is not done lawfully as per the procedure prescribed under the Customs Act or any other law for the time being in force, in that event the said goods would fall under the definition of 'prohibited goods'. The necessary corollary is thatgoods being imported if not subjected to check up at the customs on their arrival and are cleared without payment of customs duty are treated as 'smuggled goods'. As observed by the Madras High Court in Malabar Diamond Gallery P Ltd. (supra) " The expression, subject to the prohibition under the Customs Act, 1962, or any other law for the time being in force, in Section 2(33) of the Customs Act, has to be read and understood, in the light of what is stated in the entirety of the Act and other laws. Production of legal and valid documents for import along with payment of duty, determined on the goods imported, are certainly conditions tobe satisfied by an importer. If the conditions for import are not complied with, then such goods , cannot be permitted to be imported and thus, to be treated as prohibited from being imported."

The observations of the High Court of Gujarat in Bhargavraj Rameshkumar Mehta Vs UOI - 2018 (361) ELT 260 has also enunciated the principle that, "condition of declaration of dutiable goods, their assessment and payment of customs duties and other charges is a fundamental and essential condition for import of dutiable goods within the country. Attempt to smuggle the goods would breach all these conditions."

18. The provisions of Section 111 specify several eventualities where goods shall be liable to confiscation. The Adjudicating Authority has confirmed the confiscation under Section 111(b) and 111(d)of the Act, whichreads as :

"111. Confiscation of improperly imported goods, etc.

The following goods brought from a place outside India shall be liable to confiscation:

(b)any goods imported by land or inland water through any route other than a route specified ina notification issued under clause

(c) ……..

(d) any goods which are imported or attempted to be imported or are brought within the Indian customs waters for the purpose of beingimported, contrary to any prohibition imposed by or under this Act or any other law for the time being in force;

The factum of recovery of such large quantity of 10 kgs. of gold concealed under the shirt speaks for itself and the appellant being the owner thereof was unable to provide any licit document of procuring the gold, justifies the confiscation under Section 111(b) and 111(d). Taking note of the fact that the appellant had indulged in such illegal gold transactions in the past, the absolute confiscation needs to be affirmed and therefore the gold seized cannot be provisionally released in terms of section 110A read with Section
125 of the Act. The decision in Abdul Razak vs. Union of India, 2012

(275) ELT 300 (Ker.) and in the case of Malabar Diamonds Gallery

P. Ltd Addl. Director General, DRI, Chennai 2016 (341) ELT65(Mad.) has held that provisional release of goods on payment of redemption fine and duty is not as a matter of right and cannot be claimed automatically. We would also like to refer the decision of this Tribunal in Deepak Handa vs. Principal Commissioner of Customs (Preventive) Customs Appeal No. 52922/2019 vide Final Order No. 51520- 51521/2021 dated 25.05.2021 where gold bars of foreign origin recovered without any licit documents were held liable for absolute confiscation with penalty. The relevant para reads as under :

"29. Under Section 111(d) any goods which are imported or attempted to be imported or are brought within the Indian customs waters for the purpose of being imported, contraryto any prohibition imposed by or under this Act or any other law for the time being in force can be confiscated. Gold is a prohibited good inasmuch as its import was permitted during the relevant period only by designated agencies under the Foreign Trade (Development & Regulation) Act, 1992. Thereis no evidence on record whatsoever to show that the seized gold was imported by one of the approved agencies. Thus,the gold is liable for confiscation under Section 111(d). Thereafter if the designated authority, in turn, sold the gold to anyone and such person carried them, concealed in a secret jacket or false bottom of a suitcase or shoes, Section 111(i) would not apply. However, in this case, there is no evidence that the goods in question were imported by the designated organizations who alone could have imported the gold. Therefore, the confiscated gold is prohibited good and since it has been found concealed in the shoes of Deepak andin the secret pockets of his back pack, Section 111(i) applies.

37. These coins were seized in the follow up action inJammu at the above business premises. Gold is coveredunder Section 123 and if it is seized on a reasonable belief that it is smuggled, the burden of proof shifts to the personfrom whom it is seized to the person who claims to be ownerof the gold. In this case, the gold coins had foreign markings.Import of gold was permitted during the relevant period onlyby authorized agencies and the appellants were not soauthorized. If they had purchased the gold from someauthorized agency, they would have the documents to establish this fact. From the records of the case, it is evidentthat the appellants could not produce any such documents toshow that these were not smuggled. Therefore, thepresumption is that these are smuggled gold. As discussedabove, these coins are liable for confiscation under Section111(d) of the Customs Act."

In Shankar Lal Goyal's case with reference to absolute confiscation, we have observed as :

"17.(iii) The issue whether the goods are liable to absolute confiscation has been dealt by the Supreme Court in Union ofIndia Vs. Raj Grow Impex LLP – 2021 (377) ELT 145 (SC) and referring to the provisions of section 125 of the Act, it wasobserved:

"69.1 " A bare reading of the provision aforesaid makes it evident that a clear distinction is made between 'prohibited goods and 'other goods'. As has rightly been pointed out,the latter part of section 125 obligates the release of confiscated goods (i.e., other than prohibited goods) against redemption fine but, the earlier part of the provision makes no such compulsion as regards the prohibited goods; and it is left to the discretion of the Adjudicating Authority that it may give an option for payment of fine in lieu of confiscation. It is innate in this provision that if the Adjudicating Authority does not choose to give such anoption, the result would be of absolute confiscation."

Further, on the exercise of this power by the adjudicating authority which has to be exercised judiciously and for which all the relevant facts and factors and the implication of discretion has to be weighed to arrive at a balanced decision, the Supreme Court in the case of Union of India Vs. Raj Grow Impex LLP (supra) made observations to the following effect :

"79. As noticed, the exercise of discretion is a critical and solemn exercise, to be undertaken rationally andcautiously and has to be guided by law; has to be according tothe rules of reason and justice; and has to be based onrelevant considerations. The quest has to be to find what is proper. Moreover, an authority acting under the Customs Act, when exercising discretion conferred by Section 125 thereof, has to ensure that such exercise is in furtherance of accomplishment of the purpose underlying conferment of such power. The purpose behind leaving such discretion with the Adjudicating Authority in relation to prohibited goods is, obviously, to ensure that all the pros and cons shall be weighed before taking a final decision for release or absolute confiscation of goods."

19. We find that the Allahabad High Court in Jalil Ahmad vs. State vide order dated 22.12.1978 – 1979 Cri.L.J.514 rightly concluded that goods were smuggled goods as neither the appellant adduced evidence that they paid the customs duty nor that they had brought these goods from Indian manufacturers. Similarly, in the present case the appellant neither adduced any evidence to show that he had legally procured the gold by following requisite conditions of payment of customs duty and other charges nor didhe produce any documents for having purchased the said gold within India and therefore the gold recovered were in violation of the prohibition imposedby DGFT and RBI apart from the provisions of the Customs Act hence was liable for confiscation under section 111 of the Act.

20. The submission on behalf of the appellant that statement of co- noticees, Imran Mullick, Amjad Khan and Mohd. Wajid cannot be taken into account to fasten guilt on the appellant and in support he relied on the decision of the Apex Court in Mohtesham Mohd. Ismal vs. Spl. Director, Enforcement Directorate 2007(220) ELT 2 (SC) cannot be doubted, however in the facts of the present case the statement of the appellant recorded under section 108 is on record and the same is admissible in evidence as per the settled law. Infact the appellant has tried to get out of his confessional statement recorded on 15.07.2016 by submitting a letter through his advocate dated 16.11.2017 to say that he was forced and threatened to give his statement. The retraction sought to be made afterone year and five months does not inspire any confidence as it is anafterthought based on legal advice by his counsel and hence needs to be rejected. Reliance is placed on Surjeet singh Chhabra (supra) that confession, though retracted, is an admission and binds the petitioner.

21. Much emphasis has been laid by the appellant on the veracity of the test report by the jewellery appraiser and the request for re-testing. In this regard we find that the appellant had approached the Delhi High Court for re-testing in Writing Petition No. 9174/2017 which was disposed of vide order dated 17.10.2017, granting liberty to the appellant to agitate the issuebefore the adjudicating authority. As per the common practice, jewellery appraiser is called immediately at the spot and he on the basis of touchstonetest ascertain as to whether the metal bar seized is gold and also to large extent its quality/ purity. The same practice was followed here at the time of seizure. We also find that on the request made by the appellant, theJewellery Appraiser, Shri Vikram Bhasin was called and cross examined by Sh. Deepak Choudhry, Advocate for the appellants. We find that on being asked about the margin of accuracy of purity, which could be drawn by usingthe touchstone method, Shri Bhasin replied that in that particular case, the margin of accuracy was almost 100% as they were gold bars cut pieces. He further added that consistency level will remain almost the same as gravityof the gold bar remains the same. It is also pertinent to note that on being asked as to whether the method of analysis adopted by him is capable of ascertaining whether the gold bar is made up from melting jewellery or it isa virgin bar, Shri Bhasin replied in affirmative. All this would reveal that fair opportunity has been granted to the appellants and the plea of re-testingwas nothing but delaying tactics as it would not really make any difference ifthe gold recovered was less pure. Purity of the gold, in the instant case is not really relevant in view of the peculiar circumstances, i.e., the voluntary statements of all the persons recorded under section 108 of the Act which reveals the conspiracy in executing the smuggling of gold, the manner of concealment of gold in such large quantity when recovered, its transportation and the use of fake challans along with the phone call details clearly establish the role and involvement of all the persons involved . The appellant by taking such plea is indeed trying to mislead but the fact is that the goods smuggled, even if they change their form by melting, they still remain smuggled goods which are liable to confiscation under the Act. Reliance is also placed on the decision of the Kerala High Court in Mammu & Anr. Vs Asst Collector of Central excise 1984 (171) ELT 54where it has been held that since no definite tests have been prescribed under law, whether an article is gold of particular quality and purity, it has to be borne in mind that the opinion of an expert on this point is relevant undersection 45 of the Evidence Act.

22. We may now consider the penalty imposed on both the appellants, namely Suresh Bhonsle and Mohd. Wajid (along with others) under Section 112(b)(i) and 112(b)of the Act, respectively, the provisions thereof arequoted below :

“112. Penalty for improper importation of goods, etc. — Any person,—

(a) who, in relation to any goods, does or omits to do anyact which act or omission would render such goods liable to confiscation under section 111, or abets the doing or omission of such an act, or

(b) who acquires possession of or is in any way concerned in carrying, removing, depositing, harbouring, keeping, concealing, selling or purchasing, or in any other manner dealing with any goods which he knows or has reason to believe are liable to confiscation under section 111, shallbe liable,—

(i) in the case of goods in respect of which any prohibition is in force under this Act or any other law for the timebeing in force, to a penalty [216] [not exceeding the value of the goods or five thousand rupees], whichever is the greater;

As gold is a restricted item, the same has been treated as ‘prohibited goods’ in view of the interpretation placed by various decisions on the definition of 'prohibited goods' as defined in Section 2(33) and hence the same have been held to be liable for confiscation. Once it is found that the gold recovered was not under valid documents, the same would be treatedas prohibited goods liable to confiscation and consequently, penalty is inbuilt and is leviable under Section 112 of the Act. Both the appellants as discussed above were consciously and intentionally dealing with illegal activity of sale purchase of gold and therefore the penalty imposed by the adjudicating authority is justified and needs no interference.

23. We accordingly, dismiss the appeals filed by the two appellants, Appeal No. C/51257/2018 and Appeal No. C/51737/2018.

Appeal No. C/50934/2018

24. The above appeal is filed by the Revenue assailing the order-in-original, whereby the Adjudicating Authority has failed to Impose penalty under Section 114AA of the Act. We find that in the show cause notice there is a specific proposal for imposing penalty under section 114AA on the appellant, Shri Suresh Bhonsle, the said clause reads as :

"(V) penalty should not be imposed upon him undersection 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962, for his act of omission and commission as brought out here in above. "

25. From the perusal of the impugned order, we find there is no discussionby the Adjudicating Authority on the proposal of imposing the penalty underSection 114AA. Without stating anything on this issue on merit, we consider it appropriate to remand the matter to the adjudicating authority for limited purpose to consider the said proposal in the light of the facts and circumstances and the legal provisions. We accordingly, allow the appeal filed by the Revenue by way of remand.

HEMAMBIKA R. PRIYA

Shri Rakesh Luthra, Ms. Sunita Luthra, and Ms. Sonia Luthra (hereinafter referred to as the appellants) have filed the captioned appeals against the common Order-in-Original No. 25-ADJ-2020 dated 16.02.2020 passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Import & General), New Delhi wherein the gold recovered from them was allowed to be redeemed on payment of redemption fine or permitted for re-export and penalties were imposed on the three of the appellants. The Department has also filed appeals against the decision of the adjudicating authority to permit Rakesh Luthra to redeem the gold, and the permission to re-export gold given to Sonia and Mamik Luthra.

2. The brief facts of the case are that Shri Rakesh Luthra along with Ms. Sonia Luthra, Shri Mamik Luthra and Ms. Sunita Luthra (hereinafter referred collectively as „appellants") arrived on 08.06.2019 at T-3 IGI Airport, New Delhi by Air India Flight No. AI 335 from Bangkok and walked through Green Channel and they all were intercepted near the exit gate of Customs Arrival Hall. Shri Rakesh Luthra and Shri Mamik Luthra were carrying one hand bag only while Ms. Sonia Luthra and Ms. Sunita Luthra were carrying two hand bags each. All the said four persons were asked whether they were carrying any dutiable goods or gold to which they replied in the negative. They were diverted for scanning of their baggage through the X-Ray machine and nothing objectionable was noticed in their baggage. All the said four persons were made to pass through Door Frame Metal Detector installed in the arrival hall, wherein strong and long sound was heard when Shri Rakesh Luthra, Ms. Sonia Luthra and Shri Mamik Luthra walked through the metal detector. No sound was heard when Ms. Sunita Luthra passed through. Thereafter, personal search of Shri Rakesh Luthra and others was conducted in the Customs Preventive Room in the presence of two witnesses. The searches resulted in the recovery of the items from the appellants as indicated hereinafter.

2.1 Personal search of Shri Rakesh Luthra resulted in:

(1) 03 (three) pieces of yellow metal bars weighing 1000 gms each and one piece of Yellow metal weighing 225 gms appearing to be gold, total weighing 3225 gms.

(2) Boarding pass of Air India Flight No. AI 335 dated 07.06.2019.

(3) One used I phone XS phone having Vodafone SIM No. 9814465658.

(4) Indian Passport No. SO377792 issued on 07.03.2018 at Chandigarh.

(5) Indian currency Rs. 12,500/- and Thai Bhatt 1120, USD 1000.

2.2 Personal search of Ms. Sonia Luthra resulted in:

(1) 01 (one) cut piece of Yellow metal bar appearing to be gold total weighing 900 gms.

(2) Boarding Pass of Air India Flight No. AI 335 dated 08.06.2019.

(3) One used iPhone 6 phone having Airtel SIM No. 9876121757.

(4) Indian Passport No. L237766 issued on 30.09.2015 at Toronto.

(5) Indian currency Rs. 9,100/- and Thai Bhatt 190, USD 700, CAD 225, UAE DIRHAM 1020.

2.3 Personal search of Shri Mamik Luthra revealed:

(1) 01 (one) cut piece of yellow metal bar appearing to be gold total weighing 1000 gms.

(2) Boarding Pass of Air India Flight No. AI 335 dated 08.06.2019.

(3) One used iPhone 8 phone having traveller SIM (as informed by Noticee-3).

(4) Canada Passport No. AA223049 issued on 06.06.2017 at Canada.

2.4 Personal search of Ms. Sunita Luthra resulted in:

(1) Boarding Pass of Air India Flight No. AI 335 dated 08.06.2019.

(2) One used Samsung phone having JIO SIM No. 7087493675.

(3) Indian Passport No. SO385480 issued on 07.03.2018 at Chandigarh.

3. Consequent to the personal search, the weight, value and purity of the recovered five pieces of yellow bars was appraised, and the jewellery appraiser submitted his report dated 08.06.2019 as reproduced in the table below:

S.No.	Description of gold	Purity	Weight (in gms)	Value appraised IND

Noticee -1 Shri Rakesh Luthra

Sub-Total			1000	29,08,004/-
Grand Total			5218	1,5159,782/-

4. One bill for 1225.4 gms of gold in the name of Ms. Sunita Luthra was produced by Shri Rakesh Luthra (one of the appellants). The recovered gold was seized under different seizure memos under Section 110 of the Customs Act, 1962 on the reasonable belief that the same were liable to be confiscated under Section 111 of the Customs Act, 1962. The original adjudicating authority passed the impugned Order-in- Original No. 25-ADJ-2020 dated 16.02.2020 holding that Rakesh Luthra, Sunita Luthra, Sonia Luthra and Mamik Luthra were not eligible passengers to import gold. Hence the imported gold was confiscated but allowed redemption of the same on payment of fine, penalty and duty at baggage rate. The adjudicating authority also permitted re-export of gold in respect of two appellants, viz., Sonia Luthra and Mamik Luthra. The duty on gold said to be brought by them on their past visits was also confirmed.

5. The learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the said demand of customs duty under Section 28 of Customs Act, 1962 is based on the extracted statement of the appellant. It is settled law that unless the statement is corroborated by any other evidence, the same cannot be admitted as evidence. He contended that there is nothing in the impugned order or the show cause notice dated 19/20.11.2019 to show that the appellant Sunita Luthra had herself brought 2000 gms. of gold apart from 1965.4 gms. allegedly brought by her husband Rakesh Luthra. The statement has been mis-interpreted by the Commissioner to hold the appellant had herself brought gold in the past.

6. The learned counsel further contended that there is nothing in the impugned order or the show cause notice dated 19/20.11.2019 to show that any investigations to corroborate the veracity of the statements of the appellants with regard to the allegation of past clearances of gold without payment of duty was done by the Department. Consequently, the admission of past clearances of gold without payment of customs duty is not sustainable under the law. The learned counsel placed reliance on the following case laws:-

(i) In the case of Centurian Laboratories Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Vadodara – 2013 (293) 689 (Tri.-Ahmed.), it was held "Mere confessional statement not enough to conclude assessee engaged in clandestine removal as held in the case of Tejal Dyestuff Industries – 2009
(234) ELT 242 (Guj.) – Clandestine removal of goods not proved in absence of corroborative evidence – impugned order set aside – Section 11A and 11AC of Central Excise Act, 1944".

(ii) In the case of Debu Saha Vs. Collector of Customs (Preventive) – 1992 (59) ELT 442 (Tribunal) it was held "evidence – confession of one co-accused not to be corroborated by another co-accused – corroboration to come from independent source.

7. The learned Authorised Representative submitted that the claim of the appellants is without any merit. As per Baggage Rules, 2016, on arrival at an international airport in India, passengers should proceed to Red channel and make a declaration to the customs officers in case they carry any prohibited/controlled items or any dutiable commodities. Passengers with bonafide baggage, as permissible under Baggage Rules, 2016, can opt for exit through the Green Channel.Passengers walking through the Green Channel with dutiable/prohibited goods when apprehended are liable to prosecution/penalty and confiscation of goods.The learned Authorised Representative further stated that import of „Gold" is permissible for the „eligible" passenger subject to fulfilment of condition 41 of Notification No. 50/2017-Cus dated 30.06.2017, as amended vide Notification No. 25/2019-Cus dated 06.07.2019, that includes the conditionality of stay abroad (with permissible short visits). However, in the instant case, the appellants were frequent fliers and had visited India almost every month. Consequently, they did not satisfy the condition of being an „eligible passenger". As per the explanation to Notification No. 50/2017-Cus dated 30.06.2017:

"Eligible passenger" means a passenger of Indian origin or a passenger holding a valid passport, issued under the Passports Act, 1967, 915 of 1967),who is coming to India after a period of not less than six months of stay abroad."

7.1 In the instant case, the customs officers intercepted the appellants while crossing the Green Channel and approaching towards the exit gate of arrival hall. The appellants did not report at the Red Channel for declaration for dutiable/prohibited goods which were in the possession of the appellants. Had the appellants not been intercepted near the exit gate by the customs officers, the appellants would have exited from Customs Area, i.e. from arrival hall without making any declaration oral or otherwise. Therefore, appellant‟s submission holds no merit.

7.2. As regards the appellant‟s contention that they were not evading customs duty, the learned Authorised Representative contended that on the basis of suspicion, the appellants‟ bags were scanned. Thereafter, the appellants were subjected to personal search which is a normal procedure adopted by customs officers in all such cases. He submitted that it is a matter on record that the seized gold was recovered from the appellant‟s pocket after they passed through the metal detector door frame. Had they not been diverted for personal search, they would have exited the customs area without payment of duty and successfully smuggled the gold.

7.3. The learned Authorised Representative also submitted that based on the statements, summons dated 22.06.2019 were issued to the alleged buyers Mr. Sonu (M/s M.K. Jewellers) and Mr. Surinder (M/s S.S. Jewellers) but same were not received back by customs authorities. Thus, it appears that the same had been delivered to the concerned persons. Thereafter, summons dated 8.7.2014 were issued again to Mr. Sonu (M/s M.K. Jewellers) and Mr. Surinder (M/s S.S. Jewellers). However, this summons remained undelivered, as per the remarks dated 12.7.2019 of the Postal Authorities reason for non-delivery was mentioned as „incomplete address‟ for Mr. Sonu and „no such person on address‟ in case of Mr. Surinder. The learned Authorised Representative contended that the names and addresses of the alleged buyers were provided by the appellants and summons were sent accordingly at the addresses as disclosed by the appellants in their statements. In view of the above, the learned Authorised Representative prayed for dismissing the appeals.

7.4 As regards the Departmental appeals, the learned Authorised Representative submitted that as the passengers do not satisfy the condition No. 41 of Notification No. 50/2017 dated 30.06.2017, which requires that a declaration be made by such eligible passenger. In the instant case, the appellants had denied carrying gold in person and the same was discovered only when they were made to pass through the metal detector. Consequently, the court seized from the appellant does not qualify as bonafide baggage. The learned Authorised Representative relied of the Madras High Court judgement in the case of Commissioner of Customs (AIR) Vs. Abdul Azeez [2020 (371) ELT 224 (Mad)] which held that there is no option or distraction with the Commissioner for redemption of gold.

8. We have heard the rival contentions and perused the appeal records. In order to appreciate the arguments, it is important to recount the facts of the case. The appellants, viz., Rakesh Luthra, Sonia Luthra, Sunita Luthra and Mamik Luthra arrived in India from Thailand. They were intercepted near the exit gate of the customs baggage hall, having chosen to walk through the green channel. Personal search of these passengers resulted in recovery of 5218 gms of cut gold pieces valued at Rs. 1,5159,782/-. It is pertinent to note here that the allegations are that appellants did not opt for red channel todeclare the gold nor did they file any declaration as required under the Notification. In order to appreciate the arguments of the learned counsel, and the learned Authorised Representative, it is pertinent to reproduce the condition no 41 of the aforesaid notification, which reads as under;

1.(a) the duty is paid in convertible foreign currency;

(b) the quantity of import does not exceed one kilograms of gold and ten kilograms of silver per eligible passenger; and

2. the gold or silver is,-

(a) carried by the eligible passenger at the time of his arrival in India, or

(b) the total quantity of gold under items (i) and (ii) of Sr. No. 356 does not exceed one kilogram and the quantity of silver under Sr. No. 357 does not exceed ten kilograms per eligible passenger; and

(c) is taken delivery of from a customs bonded warehouse of the State Bank of India or the Minerals and Metals Trading Corporation Ltd., subject to the conditions 1 ;

Provided that such eligible passenger files a declaration in the prescribed form before the proper officer of customs at the time of his arrival in India declaring his intention to take delivery of the gold or silver from such a customs bonded warehouse and pays the duty leviable thereon before his clearance from customs.

Explanation.- For the purposes of this notification, "eligible passenger" means a passenger of Indian origin or a passenger holding a valid passport, issued under the Passports Act, 1967 (15 of 1967), who is coming to India after a period of not less than six months of stay abroad; and short visits, if any, made by the eligible passenger during the aforesaid period of six months shall be ignored if the total duration of stay on such visits does not exceed thirty days and such passenger has not availed of the exemption under this notification or under the notification being superseded at any time of such short visits."

8.1 In the instant case, it is on record that the four passengers had gone to Bangkok on 05.06.2019 and had returned on 08.06.2019. Therefore, the appellants did not satisfy the requirements of the aforesaid notification in order to be eligible to import the gold legally. It is also on record that the appellants were intercepted near the exit gate. The argument that they were prevented from making the declaration is clearly an afterthought. The gold was recovered from their person. It is also noted that the appellants, in their respective statements have accepted that there were aware of the Customs procedures for passenger clearance, and that Gold was dutiable. Consequently, the argument that there is no of concealment or attempt to smuggle cannot be accepted. As regards the argument of the appellants that Gold is not a prohibited item, we note that the High Court of Gujarat in the case Bhargavraj Rameshkumar Mehta Vs. Union of India [2018 (361) E.L.T. 260 (Guj.)] held that attempt to smuggle by concealing the same, and breaching the condition for the import of such goods would make them „prohibited goods" in terms of Section 2(33) of the Customs Act, 1962. The relevant paras of the aforesaid decision is reproduced hereinbelow:

"15. We may recall, the contention of the Counsel for the petitioner in this respect was that the gold at the relevant time was freely importable. Import of gold was not prohibited. Case of the petitioner would therefore, fall under clause (ii) of Section 112 and penalty not exceeding 10% of the duty sought to be evaded would be the maximum penalty imposable. Such contention shall have to be examined in the light of the statutory provisions noted above. As noted, Section 111 of the Act provides for various eventualities in which the goods brought from a place outside India would be liable for confiscation. As per clause (d) ofSection 111, goods which are imported or attempted to be imported or are brought within the Customs quarters for import contrary to any prohibition imposed by or under the Act or any other law for the time being in force, would be liable for confiscation. Similarly, for dutiable or prohibited goods found concealed in any manner in any conveyance would also be liable to confiscation. As per Section 2(39) the term „smuggling" would mean in relation to any goods, any act or omission which will render such goods liable to confiscation under Section 111 or Section 113. Thus, clearly Section 111 of the Customs Act prohibits any attempt at concealment of goods and bringing the same within the territory of India without declaration and payment of prescribed duty. Term „prohibited goods" as defined under Section 2(33) means any goods, the import or export of which is subject to any prohibition under the Act or any other law for the time being in force but does not include any such goods in respect of which the conditions subject to which the goods are permitted to be imported or exported have been complied with. This definition therefore, comes in two parts. The first part of the definition explains the term „prohibited goods" as to meanthose goods, import or export of which is subject to any prohibition under the law. The second part is exclusionary in nature and excludes from the term „prohibited goods", in respect of which the conditions subject to which the goods are permitted to be imported or exported have been complied with. From the definition of term „prohibited goods", in case of goods, import of which is permitted would be excluded subject to satisfaction of the condition that conditions for export have been complied with. Bynecessary implication therefore in case of goods, import of which is conditional, would fall within the definition of prohibited goods if such conditions are not complied with.

16. Further clarity in this respect would be available when one refers to the term „dutiable goods" as to mean any goods which are chargeable to duty and on which duty has not been paid. We refer to this definition since Section 112 makes the distinction in respect of goods in respect of which any prohibition is imposed and dutiable goods other than prohibited goods. When clause (ii) of Section 112 therefore, refers to dutiable goods other than prohibited goods, it shall necessarily have the reference to the goods, import of which is not prohibited or of which import is permissible subject to fulfilment of conditions and such conditions have been complied with. Condition of declaration of dutiable goods, their assessment and payment of customs duties and other charges is a fundamental and essential condition for import of dutiable goods within the country. Attempt to smuggle the goods would breach all these conditions. When clearly the goods are sought to be brought within the territory of India concealed in some other goods which may be carrying no duty or lesser duty, there is clear breach of conditions of import of goods though per se import of goods may not be prohibited."

8.2 Further, in the case at hand, the facts are the appellants were carrying gold in their person and were intercepted near the exit gate of the Customs Baggage Hall, which clearly establishes their intention to smuggle the Gold. In this regard, we note that the Supreme Court in the case of Om Prakash Bhatia Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Delhi reported in [2003 (155) E.L.T. 423 (S.C.)] and in case of Sheikh Mohd. Omer Vs. Collector of Customs, Calcutta and others reported in [1983 (13) E.L.T. 1439 (S.C.)] held that smuggling in relation to any goods is forbidden and totally prohibited. Failure to check the goods on the arrival at the customs station and payment of duty at the rate prescribed, would fall under the second limb of Section 112(a) of the Act, which states omission to do any act, which act or omission, would render such goods liable forconfiscation under Section 111 of the Act, and clause (b) to Section 111 of the Act covers the persons involved.

9. We now address the issue of the duty demanded on past such smuggling of gold by the appellants, which is based on the statement of one of the appellants, Ms Sunita Luthra. It is noted that Ms Sunita Luthra in her statement dated 08.06 2019 stated that she along with Sonia Luthra, Mamik Luthra and her husband Rakesh Luthra collectively brought 5218 gms of gold from Bangkok to Delhi via flight AI335. She also confessed that she had previously also visited Dubai with husband on 15.3.19, 03.04.19, and 01.05.19 and had brought gold totally about 2000 gms. Similar statement was made by Rakesh Luthra in his statement admitting of having brought gold on three occasions from Dubai, collectively weighing 1965.4 gms. The relevant extract of the statements are reproduced hereinafter:

Statement dated 08.06.2019 of Ms Sunita Luthra under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962

Q.No. 11. What was your purpose of visit to Dubai on 15.03.2019, 03.04.2019 and 01.05.2019. Have you brought gold in India earlier also?

Ans. I visited Dubai with my husband on 15.03.2019, 03.04.2019 and 01.05.2019 to bring gold.

Q.No. 12. How much gold you your husband bring in your past visit?

Ans. Around 2000 gms. I don‟t remember the exact quantity.

Statement dated 08.06.2019 of Sh Rakesh Luthra under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962

Q. No. 6: What is the purpose to visit Dubai on three occasions and did you bring gold in India and how much? Ans: I went to Dubai to bring Gold and I want to state that I had brought gold weighing 465.4 grams(04 bars of each 10 tola) on returning from Dubai on 16.03.2019 on first visit: gold weighing 500 gms on returning from Dubai on 04.04.2019 on second visit and gold weighing 1000 gms on returning from Dubai on 02.05. 2019 on third visit. On being asked I state that I had brought gold collectively weighing 1965.4 gms in the past.

The learned counsel has argued that the Department has not led any corroborative evidence and the demand is based merely on the statement of Ms Sunita Luthra. We are unable to accept this contention. A perusal of the statements of the appellants including the extracted portions above clearly establishes a modus operandi adopted by the appellants for smuggling gold. This is further corroborated in the statement dated 08.06.2019 of Ms Sonia Luthra. In addition, the appellant Mamik Luthra has also admitted in response to question no. 6 that he had been to Dubai along with his mother but he did not bring back gold. However, his mother had brought gold weighing 500 gms. We note that each of the appellant in their individual statements recorded under section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962 have admitted to smuggling of gold during their earlier visit to Dubai.

We take recourse to the observation of the Supreme Court in Naresh J. Shukawani Vs. Union of India [1996 (83) ELT 258 (SC)] that the statement made before Customs officials is not a statement recorded under section 161 one of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 and therefore, it is a period piece of evidence collected by Customs officials under Section 108 of the Customs Act. It was further stated by the court that if such a statement increased incriminates the accused, inculpating him the contravention of the provisions of the Customs Act, it can be considered as substantive evidence to connect the accused with the contravention of the provisions of this Act. Para 4 of the said judgement is reproduced:

"4. It must be remembered that the statement made before Customs officials is not a statement recorded under section 161 of the criminal procedure code, 1973. Therefore it is a material piece of evidence collected by the Customs officials under section 108 of the Customs Act. That material incriminates the petitioner inculpating him in the contravention of provisions of the Customs Act. Material can certainly be used to connect the petitioner the contravention inasmuch as Mr Dudani"s statement clearly inculpates not only himself but also the petitioner. It can, therefore, be used as substantive evidence connecting the petitioner with the contravention by exporting foreign currency out of India… ....."

It is also seen that once there is an admission by the appellant himself, nothing further is required to be proved to the contrary. The Supreme Court in Surjeet Singh Chabbra Vs. Union of India [1997 (89) ELT 646] held that confession made by the appellant binds him. We also place reliance on another decision in Commissioner of C. Ex. Vs. M/s Systems and Components Pvt. Ltd. [2004 (165) ELT 136 (SC)] where it has been held that it is a basic and settled law that what has been admitted need not be proved. In view of the above, we are convinced that there is sufficient corroborative evidence to demand the duty on gold said to have been brought by the appellants during the previous visits. Consequently, the demand is confirmed for the extended period.

10. We now take up the appeal filed by the Department wherein the adjudicating authority had in the impugned order had permitted redemption of gold on payment of fine to appellant Rakesh Luthra, and permission to re-export the gold to 2 other appellants Sonia and Mamik Luthra, and have prayed for absolute confiscation of the gold. We note that all the four appellants collectively brought 5218 gram of gold (in the form of bars, not in the form of ornaments) from Bangkok. It is also established that all the appellants attempted to smuggle the gold with an intention to evade Customs Duty by not declaring the non-bonafide baggage which was commercial in nature. It is also established that the appellantswere „ineligible passengers" to import gold in terms of Notification No. 50/2017- Cus dated 30.06.2017 and also provisions of Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act 1992, Foreign Trade (exemption from application of rules in certain cases) Rules, 1993 and Foreign Trade Policy 2015-

20. We also note that Section 80 of Customs Act, 1962 provides for „temporary detention of baggage', which is applicable in respect of only those goods for which a true declaration has been made under Section 77. Under Section 80, the proper officer may, at the request of the passenger, detain such article for the purpose of being returned to him on his leaving India. In the instant case, though the appellants had not declared the gold and the fact remains that the passengers were intercepted by the officers of customs at the exit gate. This clearly establishes the intent was to walk away with the gold without payment of duty that was lawfully due to the Government. This is also corroborated by their statements that similar modus operandi was adopted when they had returned from Dubai. In this regard, the decision of the High Court of Gujarat in the case Bhargavraj Rameshkumar Mehta Vs. Union of India (supra) held that attempt to smuggle by concealing the same, and breaching the condition for the import of such goods would make them „prohibited goods" in terms of Section 2(33) of the Customs Act, 1962. Once it is established that the goods are prohibited, then there cannot be an option for either redemption or re-export, and such goods are liable for absolute confiscation. In this context, we note that the Tribunal in the case of Sunny Kakkar Vs. Principal Commissioner of Customs (Preventive), New Delhi [2023 (385) E.L.T. 258 (Tri.-Del)] upheld the absolute confiscation of Gold. The relevant paras of this decision is reproduced hereinafter:

"32. As per Section 2(39) "smuggling", in relation to any goods, means any act or omission which will render such goods liable to confiscation under section 111 or section 113. Therefore, if the gold bars in dispute are held liable forconfiscation under section

111 they will fall under the category of smuggled gold as per Section 2(39). Anotherimportant section in this regard is Section 123 which reads as follows:

SECTION 123 - Burden of proof in certain cases. – (1) Where any goods to which this section applies are seized under this Act in the reasonable belief that they are smuggled goods, the burden of proving that they are notsmuggled goods shall be -

(a) in a case where such seizure is made from the possession of any person, -

(i) on the person from whose possession the goods were seized; and

(ii) if any person, other than the person from whose possession the goods were seized, claims to be the owner thereof, also on such other person;

(b) in any other case, on the person, if any, who claims to be the owner of the goods so seized.

(2) This section shall apply to gold, and manufactures thereof, watches, and any other class of goods which theCentral Government may by notification in the Official Gazette specify.

33. Section 123 shifts the burden of proof from the Department to the person from whom the goods have been seized in respect to gold and certain other goods which are notified. Undisputedly, the bars in question were of goldand they had foreign markings and were packed in a bag with the address of the jeweller in Dubai. The bars wereexamined by an expert and were held to be foreign origin gold of 995 purity. All these gave the officers reasonablebelief that the gold bars were of foreign origin. Since import of gold is restricted, if foreign origin gold bars were legallyimported it was incumbent upon the importer and any other person to whom they may have been sold to showdocuments that the gold was legally imported. This responsibility is cast upon the appellant as per Section 123. The gold was seized and after its assessment, statements of the appellant were recorded in which he explained that heprocured the gold from one Shri Harish of Dubai who told him that Shri Ahadees would contact him and give him thegold bars and accordingly, he was waiting at Rajeev Chowk Metro Station whether transaction took place. He had, atno point of time, produced any document to show that the gold was legally imported. According to his statement, thearrangement which he had with Shri Harish was that he would send gold through one of his persons (Shri Ahadees in this case) and after selling the gold he would pay Shri Harish. At the time of receiving the gold he would pay only someamount to the person handing over the gold. In this case, the amount which he paid in a pink polythene bag was Rs.5,45,000/- to Shri Ahadees. These statements were corroborated by the statement of Shri Ahadees. Neither Shri Ahadees nor the appellant have at any point of time produced any document to show that the gold was legally imported by them or that it was purchased by them from somebody who had legally imported it.

34. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that on 8- 12-2015 the appellant had retracted his statement and, therefore, it cannot be relied upon. We have gone through the statements made before the learned CMM by theappellant in his application for bail which is at page 109 to 112 of the appeal book. The application only states that the statement was not made by the appellant. However, there is nothing in the statement made before the learned CMM explaining the nature of the gold seized from the appellant. In the absence of any other explanation, the statementsmade by the appellant and Shri Ahadees before the officer must be accepted as correct. These statementscorroborate each other and with the panchnama. The cross-examination of Shri Ahadees by the learned counsel forthe appellant also confirm the facts pertaining to this seizure and also that on previous two occasions smuggled goldwas transacted between the appellant and Shri Ahadees. The mobile phone recovered from the appellant and whichwas used to communicate with Shri Ahadees was also obtained in the name of Shri Kaskyrbayev a Kazakhi national who was not even in India at the time the SIM card was issued which corroborates the clandestine nature of the transaction in the confiscated gold."

10.1 As per the facts of the case, the seizure of gold from the appellants, as recorded in the panchnama and admitted in their respective statements is undisputed. It is also established that the gold was of foreign origin. It is also established that the appellants were attempting to smuggle the gold without payment of duty. We also note that legal import of gold is governed by certain conditions which the appellant do not fulfil. Therefore, we are of the considered opinion that the gold recovered from the appellants is liable for absolute confiscation.

11. In view of the above discussions, we modify the impugned order to the above extent and reject the appeals filed by the appellants (Customs Appeal Nos. 50650 of 2020, 50651 of 2020 and 50686 of 2020) and allow the Appeal No. 50156 of 2021 filed by the department.

FINAL ORDER NO.50030/2024

BINU TAMTA:

1. Challenge in the present appeal is to the order-in-original no.63/MK/Policy/2019 dated 10.05.2019 whereby the Commissioner Customs revoked, the Customs Brokers License, forfeited the securityamount of Rs.5 lakh and imposed penalty of Rs.50,000/-.

2. The appellant is a firm of Customs Broker (CB) of which Shri Aman Jain and Smt. Seema Singh are partners. The work of import clearances were conducted by Shri Prashant Jain, H-Card Holder. The present case relates to submission of forged/fabricated documents by the CB before the customs officer to avoid assessment of imported goods, namely iron nuts and iron bolts vide bill of entry no. 7447412 dated 31.07.2018, on behalf of the importer, M/s Supreme Enterprises.

3. The bill of entry was facilitated under RMS and the examination order was generated which reads as, "Assessment and Examination has not been prescribed for this B/E "which meant that the said B/E was marked for RMS facilitation for which assessmentand examination was not to be conducted and the out of charge hasto be given by the in-charge shed appraiser. The container wascleared on 13.08.2018.

4. While reviewing the clearance of the goods under RMS, it came to the notice of the department that, the system entry showed as, "Assessment and Examination has not been prescribed for this B/E" whereas it appeared that the CB produced the B/E for clearance at import shed with another examination instruction through forged entries where the first print page of the docket read as, "Examination has not been prescribed for this B/E" and he also added the name of two officers from appraising Group-4, which gave the impression thatthe B/E has been assessed by the group and no further examination is required.

5. The statement of Shri Prashant Jain was recorded on20.08.2018, under section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962, where he categorically stated that he submitted the forged documents to the customs authorities at the instance of Shri Aman Jain, partner in the CB firm for faster clearance of the goods at the declared value, andfor which he was offered monetary consideration.

6. On the basis of the letter dated 23.08.2018, received from the Additional Commissioner of Customs, ICD, PPG Inquiry for violation under the provisions of Customs Broker Licensing Regulations, 2018, (CBLR 2018) was initiated against the appellant for producing forged/fabricated documents to customs authority for clearance of goods. The Customs Broker license was suspended on 28.08.2018 and the same was confirmed on 18.09.2018. Thereafter show cause notice dated 20.11.2018 was issued for contravention of the provisions of Regulation 10(j) and 13(12) of the CBLR, 2018. Under Regulation 17(1), Enquiry Officer was appointed on12.12.2018, who submitted his report on 14.02.2019 to which the appellant submitted his representation on 14.3.2019. The show cause notice was adjudicated after granting personal hearing to the appellant and also issued notice to Shri Prashant Jain on the request made by the appellant for cross examination, however, despite reminders, Prashant Jain did not appear. The Adjudicating Authority after considering the Inquiry Report, perusing the statements recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962 and the submissions made by the appellant held that the charges under Regulation 10(j) and 13(12) stands proved and accordingly imposed the punishment by revoking the customs broker license, ordered for forfeiture of the amount of security deposit and imposed penalty of Rs.50,000/-. Against this said order, the custom broker is in appealbefore this Tribunal.

7. Having heard the learned counsel for the appellant and also the Authorised Representative for the revenue, we need to consider whether the charges under the regulations are maintainable and the punishment imposed on the Customs Broker is justified.

8. The submissions of the appellant are to the effect that theact of fabrication of documents was done by Shri Prashant Jain and there was no instruction from the CB firm to manipulate the documents and they had no intimation of it. No monetaryconsideration was given to Shri Prashant Jain for speedy clearance of the goods. That as soon as the forgery was brought to the notice of the CB, he immediately coordinated with the department as well as the importer who paid the differential duty along with interest and penalty vide challan dated 23.08.2018. He denied that there hasbeen any casual approach in supervising the employees and hence there is no violation of Regulation 13(12).

9. The learned Authorised Representative reiterated the findings of the Commissioner of Customs in the impugned order and clarified the implications of the fabrication of the document in the present case. He relied on the statement of Shri Prashant Jain where he accepted having forged the document for monetary consideration offered by Shri Aman Jain for faster clearance of the goods which is further corroborated by the statement of Shri Aman Jain. According to him, it is a clear case where the CB had submitted forged/fabricated document before customs authority to avoid assessment of the imported goods vide subject bill of entry with intent to evade customs duty and therefore violated the provisions under Regulation 10(j) of CBLR 2018. In so far as compliance of Regulation 13(12) he submitted that the CB has not only failed to supervise his employee rather he actively connived in the forging of the documents.

10. We may first deal with the contravention of the provisionsof Regulation 10(j) by the appellant, which provides:

"10. Obligations of Customs BrokerA Customs Broker shall -

(j) not refuse, access to, conceal, remove, or destroy the whole, or any part of any book, paper, or other record, relating to his transactions as a Customs broker, which is sorted, or maybe sort by the principal, commissioner of customs, or commissioner of customs, as the case may be;"

There is no dispute that there is forging and fabrication of thedocument before the customs authorities. As per the statement of Prashant Jain, he indulged in this fabrication at the instance of Shri Aman Jain, partner of the appellant firm for which he has been paid monetary consideration and the reason stated by him was that Shri Aman Jain had insisted on fast clearance of the goods in question. Wefind from the statement of Shri Aman Jain recorded under Section 108 of the Act where he also admitted to the fact that he asked Prashant Jain for faster clearance of the goods. The requirement of faster clearance of the goods is further substantiated from the statement of Siri Rajneesh Kumar, the authorised signatory of the importer firm, M/s Supreme Enterprises. The relevant question put to him and his answer thereto is given below :

"Q.3 Have you pressurise CHA for fast clearance of this BOE?

Ans. Because this container took 45 days approximately transportation from Mundra to Patparganj and there were shortage of goods in our factory, therefore we asked the CHA for faster clearance."

Thus the reason for fabrication has been admitted by all three in their statements under section 108 of the Act and the same are admissible in evidence as per the settled law and needs nocitation in this regard. The fact that Shri Aman Jain and Shri RajneeshKumar have accepted that there was a need for fast clearance of the goods, shows that Prashant Jain had acted as per the instructions of the appellant. The admission by the appellant thus connects him tothe act of his employee and hence he is responsible for the contravention of the Regulations.

11. Having discussed that the actual fabrication was done by the CB representative to avoid the shed appraiser who keeps vigil over undervaluation cases in RMS and the fact that the goods in the bill of entry in question were found to be under-valued and in that view the importer had paid the differential duty with interest and penalty suo-moto, we are of the view, that the entire modus-operandiof fabricating and forging the document was at the behest of the Customs broker which was implemented by Prashant Jain being the H-Card Holder of the CB. Needless to say Shri Aman Jain is holding 90% share in the firm and therefore he is very much interested and affected by the efficient performance of the firm. The submission of the learned Counsel that there was no monetary gain or benefit tohim by such act, we feel that the same analogy would apply to Prashant Jain also. Therefore, irrespective of whether any benefit had accrued to the appellant or not, he is guilty for such forgery/fabrication of the document thereby violating Regulation 10(j).

12. Regulation 13(12) of CBLR 2018 (erstwhile 17(9) of CBLR2013) provides:

"Customs Broker shall exercise such supervision as may be necessary to ensure proper conduct of his employees in the transaction of business and he shall be responsible for all acts or omissions of his employees."

It is an admitted position that the entire work of handlingthe import clearances was done by Shri Prashant Jain, the G-Card Holder of the appellant. The appellant cannot escape the liability by putting the entire burden on his employee and say that nothing was in his knowledge. Consequently, we hold that the appellant is vicariously liable and responsible for the conduct of Prashant Jain being his employee in fabricating the document. The provisions of theregulations cast special obligations on the Customs broker to ensure proper conduct of his employees. The appellant has miserably failedto supervise the working and the conduct of his employee in terms of Regulation 13(12) and is, therefore, liable for all the acts and omissions of his employee.

13. We may refer to the decision in Bhaskar Logistic Services Pvt. Ltd. vs. Union of India - 2016 (340) ELT 17, wherethe Patna High Court observed that clause 9 of Regulation 17 ofCBLR. 2013, cast obligation on the Customs broker to exercise such supervision as may be necessary to ensure proper conduct of his employees in the transaction of business and he shall be held responsible for all acts or omissions of employees during their employment. Similarly, the Bombay High Court in the case of CC (General) vs. Worldwide Cargo Movers - 2010 (253) ELT 190 while upholding the principle of liability of the CHA for the act of its employees observed as under:

"27. Prior to passing of the order, dated 30.09.2015, the Commissioner of Customs (), Patna, vide impugned order dated 4.9.2015, had already held that the CHA had failed to supervise his employee, Executive Director, Sheikh Khursheed, and did notexercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness of the actual importer, and did not observe due diligence for proper classification and valuation of the imported goods."

14. The Revenue has relied on the decision of this Tribunal in Skytrain Services Vs Commissioner of Customs, (Airport & General), New Delhi - 2019 (369) ELT 1739, holding that the appellant is bound by the act of G-Card Holder even otherwise,without the knowledge of the Customs broker, the goods could not have been diverted and he is equally bound by the act of his authorised representative or agent.

15. The appellant has relied on several decisions, which are as under:-

(i) ZulashClearing & Shipping Agency Vs.Commissioner of Customs (General), Mumbai – 2018 (9) TMI 766 –CESTAT-Mumbai

(ii) M/s. A.B. Agencies Vs. Customs, Excise & Service Tax Appellate Tribunal and Commissioner ofCustoms – 2015 (8) TMI 143 – Kerala High Court.

(iii) M/s. Ashiana Cargo Services Vs. Commissioner of Customs (I&G) - 2014 (3) TMI 562 – Delhi High Court.

(iv) Transfreight Merine Services Private Limited Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Seaport-Import),Chennai – 2016 (2) TMI 438 – CESTAT Chennai.

(v) Shri Ganesh Shipping Agency Vs. Commissionerof Customs, Bangalore – 2011 (4) TMI 1172 – CESTAT, Bangalore.

(vi) Ark Logistics (P) Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of CentralExcise, Hyderabad – 2009 (9) TMI 842 – CESTAT Bangalore.

(vii) Falcon Air Cargo & Travel (P) Ltd. Vs.Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi – 2001 (11)TMI 137 – CEGAT, New Delhi.

15(i). In Zulash Clearing (supra), the distinguishing feature was that in proceeding to hold the Customs broker responsible for any acts of commission or omission of employees, the licensingauthority did acknowledge that the Broker firm did not have knowledge of the forgery and also that due to lack of any finding in the order that the Customs Broker was aware, let alone, of conniving in the forgery , the revocation of the customs broker license as wellas the forfeiture of the security deposit was set aside.

15(ii). Reliance on M/s A.B. Agencies (supra), is also of no helpto the appellant, for the reasons observed by the Kerala High Court, asunder:

"11. In sofar as this case is concerned, admittedly, Shri Vipin Kumar was an employee of the appellant and he was also issued 'G' card, enabling him to transact the business of the appellant as a Customs House Agent. It was while working in that capacity that he was forged the signature of the proprietor ofthe appellant on the Bill of Entry, in the applications for issue of 'H' Cad and 'G' card and various other documents submitted to the Customs Department. He was enabled to do all the forgeries and derive the benefit thereof only because of his employment under the appellant and obviously on account of the failure of the appellant in effectively supervising the activities of his employees to ensure that they conduct themselves properly in the transaction of his business as a Customs House Agent. Therefore, the appellant cannot be absolved of his lapse of supervision attracting Clause 19 of the Regulations warranting action against him under Regulation 20."

(Emphasis laid)

On the issue of imposing the penalty, it was noted that the appellant therein did not have any role in what was done by Shri Vipin Kumar and his team and that the lapse found is supervisory lapse assumes importance and that is how the punishment of revocation of license was set aside and the forfeiture of security deposit was only confirmed. The present case is entirely different as discussed above.

15(iii). In M/s Ashiana Cargo Services (supra), the Delhi High Court observed that only proved infraction on record is of the issuance of G cards to non-employees as opposed to the active facilitation of any infraction or any other violation of the CHA Regulations and therefore the revocation of the license was set aside being dis-proportionate to the violation.

15(iv). The Chennai Bench in Trans Freight Marine Services Private Ltd. (supra), noted that the Adjudicating Authority had expressed that there is no involvement of the management/appellant in the act committed by the employee and in that view the revocationof license was held to be unsustainable.

15(v). Similarly, in Sri Ganesh Shipping Agency (supra), the Bangalore Bench following the decision in the case of Ark Logistics

(P) Ltd. held that CHA could not be penalised invoking Regulation 19(8) of CHA Licensing Regulations, 2004 in the absence of any finding that the CHA had knowledge of the acts of commissions and ommissions on the part of its employee and hence the same has to be distinguished from the facts of the present case.

15(vi). In Falcon Air Cargo and Travel (P) Ltd. (supra), the first enquiry officer exonerated the appellant and the second enquiry officer observed that it cannot be said with certainty that they connived with them to append false declaration as alleged and therefore applying the principle of proportionality, it was observed that it is not a fit case for revoking the license as the charges are not so grave.

16. One aspect which requires to be considered is that ShriAman Jain had asked for cross examination of Shri Prashant Jain but despite notice by the Commissioner Customs, he did not appear. Hence it is not a case of rejection of the request to cross-examine andtherefore no fault can be found with the impugned order on that ground.

17. On the issue of imposing punishment under the Regulations we are of the opinion that such action of forging and fabricating publicdocument has to be seriously viewed and does not warrant any kind of leniency. The appellant being well educated (M.Tech) cannot plead ignorance as to what his employee was doing, more so when the said employee is not an old reliable employee but one who had joined the appellant firm only in November 2017. We are also guided by the decision of the Bombay High Court in Worldwide Cargo Movers (supra), where it has been held as :

"28…… Similarly, when one comes to the disciplinary measures, one must not lose sight of the fact that the appellant-Commissioner of Customs is responsible for happenings in the Customs area, and for the disciplineto be maintained over there. If it takes a decision necessary for that purpose, the Tribunal is not expected to interfere on the basis of its own notions ofthe difficulties likely to be faced by the CHA or his employees. The decision is best to be left to the disciplinary authority save in exceptional cases whereit is shockingly disproportionate or mala fide. This is not the case here"

18. The learned counsel for the appellant has referred to a recent decision of the Tribunal in M/s Sameer Logistics Private Ltd., vs. Commissioner of Customs - Final Order No.40646/2023 dated 03.08.2023, where the Tribunal set aside the punishment of revocation of Customs Broker License as too harsh a punishment as he was out of business for more than 6½ years. From the facts of the case, we find that the same is distinguishable as contravention related to Regulations 11(a), 11(b), 11(n), 11(e) of CBLR, 2013whereas in the present case regulation 10(j) of CBLR, 2018 has been invoked for forging/ fabricating the document whereby the first print page of the docket showed, "Examination has not been prescribed for this B/E" and also added the name of two officers from appraising Group-4 which gives an impression that the B/E has already been assessed by the group and examination is not required. This was just to avoid the shed appraiser who keeps vigil over undervaluation casesin RMS and the present B/E was found to be undervalued. On the contrary the system entry showed,"Assessment and Examination has not been prescribed for this B/E." In other words it amounts to fraud and the principle is that fraud vitiates all actions. In the circumstances no indulgence is required to set aside the order of revocation of Customs Broker License.

19. We would like to refer to the statement of Smt. SeemaSingh, the other partner of the CB firm which was recorded on15.09.2018 where she stated that she did not know Sh. Prashant Jain. Later Smt. Seema Singh retracted her statement to the effect that the said statement was made in the heat of time and under mental pressure and clarified that she knows him as employee. The belated retraction by her has no substance and as held by the Apex Court in Surjeet Singh Chhabra vs Union of India 1997 (89) ELT646, the confession, though retracted is an admission and binds the petitioner. This conduct of Smt. Seema Singh raises doubt on her credibility and reflects that on being caught she also tried to escape from the responsibility.

20. The submission of the appellant that there is no mens-reaand hence the impugned order imposing the punishment for revocation of the license, forfeiture of security deposit and imposition of penalty needs to be set aside. We are of the view that in compliance of the obligations enunciated in the Regulations mens-rea is not a relevant criteria and the said principle has been approved by the Apex Court in Commissioner of Customs vs K. M. Ganatra & Company – 2016 (332) ELT 15 (SC) which was observed by the Tribunal in Noble Agency vs Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai-2002 (142) ELT 84 in the following words :

"Any contravention of such obligations, even without intent would be sufficient to invite upon the CHA the punishment listed in the Regulations."

21. We are, therefore, of the considered view that the punishment imposed in the present case by the impugned order does not call for any interference and is hereby upheld. The appeal, is accordingly dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO.50033/2024

DATE OF HEARING:28.11.2023 DATE OF DECISION:10.01.2024

BINU TAMTA:

1. Challenge in the present appeal is to the Order-in-Appeal no. CC(A)/CUS/D-II/ICD/TKD/Exp/70/2020-21 dated 21.05.2020, whereby the Commissioner (Appeals) dismissed the appeal and confirmed the order in original.

2. Briefly stated, the appellant filed two Bills of Entry no. 3048586 dated 31.08.2017 and 306747 dated 1.09.2017 under self assessment scheme for goods declared as Christmas Lights Bulb, LED and Chain Lights etc. On the basis of information that the importer is indulging in evading customs dutyby mis-declaration of goods, investigation was initiated and on 100% examination of the goods, it was found that there was misdeclaration in respect of number of cartons/number of pieces/number of bulbs in light chain and as against the declared gross weight of 29847 kgs, the actual weight of both the containers was found to be 42170 Kgs. The goods were accordingly seized in terms of seizure memo dated 8.09.2017, under Section110 of the Customs Act, 1962.

3. The importer vide letter dated 20.09.2017 submitted that they neither want any personal hearing nor any show cause notice in the matter rather Shri Ojas Bansal S/o Sh Surendra Kr. Bansal, Proprietor of M/s Surendra Electricals in his statement recorded under Section 108 of the Act dated 14.09.2017 admitted about the mis-declaration of the goods and submitted that this happened due to mistake of his supplier and therefore undertook topay the differential customs duty on the goods found in excess.

4. The Adjudicating Authority by Order-in-Original dated 6.10.2017, on the principle that the admitted facts need not be further proved or established again, held that the importer had deliberately mis-declared the goods in respect of value as well as quantity with intent to evade payment ofcustoms duty. Accordingly, the order was passed rejecting the transaction value of Rs.31,17,778/- and

Rs.29,37,287/- under Rule 12 of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007 read withSection 14 of the Act as declared by the importer and determined the same as Rs.50,27,992/- and Rs.41,12,991/- for both the bill of entries under Rule 5 of the Rules. Also ordered for confiscation of the impugned goods, givingan option to redeem the same on payment of redemption fine of Rs10 lakhs under Section 125(1) of the Act and also to pay the differential amount of duty of Rs.7,49,680/- and Rs.5,19,877/- in respect of both the bill of entries.Penalty of Rs.1,20,000/- was imposed under Section 112(a)(ii) and penalty of Rs.12 lakhs under Section 114 AA of the Act. Said order was challenged by the appellant, however, the Commissioner (Appeals) dismissed the appeal and confirmed the order under challenge. Being aggrieved, the appellant has filed the present appeal before this Tribunal.

5. Having heard both the sides and perused the records, we find that the present case is squarely covered by the decision of this Tribunal in the case of the appellant himself in the order reported in 2023 (7) TMI 967– CESTAT, New Delhi. The facts of the case are absolutely identical where onthe basis of an intelligence the goods were examined and were found to be 42% more than what was declared in the bill of entry. The plea taken by the appellant there was also same that due to mistake the supplier sent more goods. The Tribunal observing that the goods were found to be in excess of what was stated in the bill of entry and therefore liable to confiscation under Section 111(l) and (m) and also when excess quantity of goods is established, it was logical for the officer assessing the bill of entry to reject the transaction value because the transaction value reflected in the invoices and other documents was for declared quantity and not for the quantity actually imported. In the factual matrix of the case, the Tribunal found the redemption fine imposed as just and fair Also the penalty under Section 112 (a)(ii) and Section 114AA was upheld.

6. We find that the Bill of Entry in the present case is dated 31.08.2017 and 1.09.2017 whereas in the above referred case the Bill of Entry was dated 20.09.2017, which is soon thereafter and rather all are within a periodof 20 days and the plea taken in defence is also identical that due to fault of the supplier excess quantity has been sent. Moreover, as observed by the Adjudicating Authority there is a clear admission in the voluntary statement made under Section 108 of the Act that there is mistake and they are ready to discharge their duty liability along with fine and penalty. The Department has relied on the decisions of the Apex Court in Commissioner of C. Ex, Madras versus Systems & Components Pvt. Ltd. - 2004(165) ELT 136(SC) and also on the decision in Surjit Singh Chhabra versus Union of India - 1997(89) ELT 646(SC), laying down the principle that what is admitted need not be proved and the confession even though retracted is anadmission and binds the appellant.

7. Considering the repeated attempts of the appellant to fraudulently evade the liability of customs duty by deliberately mis-declaring the actual quantity of the goods, we reject the contention of the appellant that no intentional mis-declaration has been made by them and they knowingly did not make any false and incorrect statement with respect to the quantity and value of the goods. The plea taken by the appellant that the error was onthe part of the supplier who sent excess quantity, is absolutely unbelievable and unpractical as business dealings and more so in overseas transactions are conducted as per the agreement between the parties and as per the settled procedure. There is no scope of any variation without the consent of both the parties. The supplier would be more cautious that supply is made only as per the order placed by the importer and there is no reason or justification for the supplier to indulge in repeatedly supplying excess quantity. It is surprising as to what benefit would accrue to the supplier by exporting excess quantity.

8. The case law referred to by the appellant does not require any consideration in view of the order passed by this Tribunal in the case of the appellant. There is no reason for us to differ from the view taken by theother Bench of this Tribunal in Final Order No.50956/2023 dated 24.7.2023 titled as M/s.Surendra Electricals Vs. Principal Commissioner, Customs (Export), New Delhi (ICD-TKD).

9. Following the said order, we are of the view that the present casebeing of mis-declaration which has been detected only on examination of the goods, it was justified for the department to reject the transaction value andredetermine the same in terms of the Customs Valuation Rules which has been done as per Rule 5. The appellant has contravened the provisions of Section 17 and 46(4) of the Act by intentionally filing wrong declarations and by their acts of omissions and commissions had rendered the goods liable for confiscation under Section 111(l) and 111(m) of the Act. The appellant filing the Bill of Entry under self-assessment was duty bound to submit true and correct details. No interference is called for in the quantum of redemption fine as the redetermined value is Rs.50,27,992 + 41,12,991 total Rs.91,40,983/- and redemption fine is Rs.10,00,000/-, and the same is within the prescribed limit as prescribed under Section 125 which provides that the amount of redemption fine shall not exceed the market value of the goods. Suffice it to say that the appellant is a habitual defaulter importing goods by mis-declaring both on account of quantity and value is liable to penalty under Section 112(a)(ii) and section 114AA of theAct.

10. We accordingly, uphold the impugned order and dismiss the appeal.

HON'BLE MS. BINU TAMTA, MEMBER (JUDICIAL) HON'BLE MR. P.V. SUBBA RAO, MEMBER (TECHNICAL)

FINAL ORDER NO.50035/2024

DATE OF HEARING:16.10.2023 DATE OF DECISION:10.01.2024

BINU TAMTA:

1. The appellant, a Custom Broker has challenged the Order-in-Original No.98/MK/COMMR/Policy/2019 dated 13.09.2019, whereby theCommissioner of Customs has ordered for forfeiture of the security depositof Rs.75,000 under Regulation 14(b) of Customs Broker LicensingRegulations, 2018, (hereinafter referred to as the CBLR 2018) and also imposed penalty of Rs.50,000 under Regulation 18(1) of CBLR, 2018.

2. The present appeal has been adjourned on several occasions eitherdue to the absence of the appellant or on his request. On 21.08.2023, when the matter was listed, the following order was passed:-

"It transpires from the ordersheet that the appellant has been seeking adjournments and even today when the matter has been called out, no one has appeared on behalf of the appellant. The appeal is of the year 2019. List the appeal on October 16, 2023. We make it clear if the appellant does not appear, the matter may be decided on merits."

On the next date of hearing on 16.10.2023, again, nobody appeared on behalf of the appellant despite seeking a pass over. We, therefore, took up the appeal for hearing and after perusing the grounds of appeal and the submissions made by of the Authorised Representative for the Revenue, we reserved the order, however, granting opportunity to the appellant to file written submissions within a period of one week. It is more than 2 and 1/2 months but the appellant has not filed any synopsis or written submissions post hearing. Hence we are deciding the appeal on the basis of the available record, the grounds of appeal taken by the appellant and also the submissions made by the learned Authorised Representative for the Revenuewhere he has relied on the findings of the impugned order and submittedthat the factual matrix of the case proves that it is the Customs Broker who apart from filing the bills of entry for consignments was instrumental in filing the documents with the customs authorities without verifying the credentialsof the importer though he had the knowledge that the IEC Code does not belong to the actual importer, he chose to file the documents received from courier without verifying them. He neither advised his clients properly nordid he bring to the notice of the Customs Department.

3. Briefly stated, Bill of Entry No.7738176, dated 07.12.2016 was filed by the importer through the appellant, Customs broker for clearance of Resin Beads, Hot Fix Stone, Imitation Cup Chain Brass (Studded), Plastic/Aluminium Sheets with Chaton Studded, Plastic Beads (PS), Resin Stone, Plastic Patta, Glass Seed Beads (Non Faceted), Plastic Baby Toy Doll, Glass Beads (Faceted) 5MM-7MM, Glass Beads (Faceted) 8MM-12MM, glass Beads, Paper Tape Roll and Swimming Goggles. On specific information, the goods were detained and examined and it was found that there was excess quantity of 540.4 Kg. Later, on examination of the container it was found to be 346,01 Kg. excess of net weight. Show cause notice dated 19.06.2018 was issued to the importer as the goods were found to be mis-declared in terms of quantity/weight and its value with an intention to evade customs duty and also to the appellant as to why penalty should not be imposed under Section 114 AA of the Customs Act, 1962.

4. Action was taken against the appellant under the provisions of CBLR, 2018, suspending the customs broker license vide order dated 8.2.2017. Theappellant submitted his response and requested for personal hearing which was granted to him on 22.02.2017. The suspension of the license was revoked by the Commissioner vide order dated 9.03.2017, observing that:-

"In view of the above, I find that till date no concreteevidence against the said CB has been brought out onrecord to establish the contravention of provisions of Regulation 11(a), 11(d) and 11(m) of CBLR 2013 or any other role in the said offence against the said CB. However, so far as allegation of contravention of Regulation 11(n) of CBLR 2013 on the part of noticee is concerned. | note that Shashikant Maruti Pol, one of the employee of noticee in his voluntary statement has accepted that the Bill of Entrydated 07.12.2016 had been filed by him without verifying KYC norms and that the import documents had been received by him from Shri Mehul Shah through courier.

Thus, I observed that the noticee has not verified theantecedent, identity and functioning of his client, ie., M/sPacific Imports, the said importer at his declared addressthrough reliable and independent means. Thus I hold thatthe notiçee has prima facie contravened the provisions of Regulation 11(n) of CBLR, 2013. I, however, after goingthrough all the facts and circumstances of the case andconsidering that as per preliminary investigation report, noallegation against violation of provisions of the Customs Act,1962, or any other Act has been alleged against the CB onthe basis of investigation conducted so far, and accordingly, the suspension of CB License of the noticee for long timewould be a harsh punishment. However, on conclusion ofthe investigation and on availability of all facts of the casepenal action in terms of provisions of CBLR, 2013 may betaken against the said CB."

5. Subsequently, show cause notice dated 15.4.2019 was issued as the appellant failed to comply with the provisions of Regulation 10(d),10(e),10(n) and 13(12) of CBLR, 2018. The appellant submitted his response to the show cause notice by his reply dated 18.4.2019. In terms ofRegulation 17(1) of CBLR, 2018, enquiry officer was appointed and hesubmitted his report dated 18.06.2019, observing that the appellant had violated the provisions of the CBLR, 2018. The appellant submitted detailed representation dated 4.07.2019, in response to the enquiry report. After granting personal hearing to the appellant, the Commissioner Customs passed the impugned order, whereby the security deposit of Rs.75,000 was forfeited and penalty of Rs.50,000 was imposed under Regulation 18(1) of the CBLR 2018, however, he refrained from revoking the customs broker license of the appellant. Being aggrieved, the appellant has filed the present appeal before this Tribunal.

6. In the grounds of appeal, the appellant had submitted that the order isviolative of principles of natural justice since none of the grounds taken by him were appreciated and the order has been passed mechanically. We do not find any substance in the submission as the records show that sufficient opportunity has been granted to the appellant at all the stages and he has submitted detailed representation dated 22.02.2017 and response dated 28.04.2019 to the show cause notice and submitted reply dated 4.07.2019to the Inquiry Report and has been granted personal hearing. The Adjudicating Authority had considered the statements of the employee of theCustoms Broker and also of Shri Prashav Himanshu Shah, Proprietor of M/s. Pacific Imports, whereby the compliance of the Regulations had been appreciated. We are of the opinion that in the proceedings conducted under the Regulations the principles of natural justice have been followed and the findings are justified on the basis of the material on record.

7. The main submission raised in the grounds of appeal is that after the earlier order dated 9.03.2017, whereby the suspension of his license was revoked, there is no fresh material on record and no substantial evidence against him to establish the contravention of the provisions of the Regulations. In the absence of further material, it is not proper to reversethe findings of the Commissioner. From the paragraph quoted above from the order of the Commissioner on the earlier occasion, we find that he has specifically observed that the appellant has prima-facie contravened the provisions of Regulation 11(n) of CBLR 2013, (equivalent to Regulation10(n) of CBLR 2018) as his employee Shashikant Maruti Pol had accepted in his voluntary statement that the bill of entry dated 7.12.2016 had been filed by him without verifying KYC norms and that the import documents had been received by him from Shri Mehul Shah through courier and, therefore, the appellant had not verified the antecedent, identity and functioning of his client, M/s Pacific Imports. Further, the Commissioner left the liberty to proceed on conclusion of the investigation and on availability of all facts of the case, penal action in terms of provisions of CBLR, 2013 be taken against the Customs Broker. It is clear that violation of 11(n) was noted by the Commissioner even at that stage. In that view it cannot be said that on the basis of the inquiry report no further action is maintainable. Under theRegulations, the immediate action required in such like cases is to pass a suspension order to restrain the Customs broker to act any further on the basis of the license. It is thereafter that the Regulation provides for detailed investigation, by holding an enquiry and then proceed further as provided therein.

8. In the present case, the Inquiry Officer considered the statements recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act of Shri Prashv Himanshu Shah, proprietor of M/s Pacific Imports, Shri Mehul Shah, Shri Ketur Bhavsar and Shri Shashikant Maruti Pol, employee of the appellant in the light of the various provisions of the Regulations which were alleged to have been violated by the appellant and found the same to be proved. In his statement, Shri Prashv Himanshu Shah stated that his uncle Shri Mehul Shah was using the IEC for import of goods and is doing business in the name of his IEC and he does not have any knowledge about import and export of goods. In other words, he is a dummy IEC holder and Shri Mehul Shah is the actual importer.

9. The statement of Shri Shashikant Maruti Pol, who was handling the work of import clearances is important to ascertain the compliance of the provisions of CBLR as noted in the impugned order which reads as under : -

"8. Shri Shashikant Maruti Pol, in his statement dated 26.12.2016 inter alia stated that he is one of the employee in the CB firm M/s Vijender Singh; that the licence of M/s. Vijender Singh has been made operative vide order dated 16.11.2015; that he is handling the import clearances ofM/s Pacific Imports; that his registered office address in Mumbai Customs is 5/6, Ram Smruti Apartment, Plot No. H-11, Sector 14, CBD Belapur, Navi Mumbai-400614; that he has shifted his office to Shop No. 2, Trantrasangam, CHS Sector 42, Seawoods, Navi Mumbai-400615 and notintimated the present address to CB Department, New Custom House, Mumbai; that he has never met Shri Mehul Shah or the IEC holder of M/s Pacific Imports; that the Billof Entry no. 7738176 dated 07.12.2016 was filed by them on authorisation and instructions from M/s Pacific Imports; that Shri Mehul Shah gave the Invoice, Packing list, COOand Bill of Lading through courier; that he did not check the documents and filed the bill of entry without tallying the weight mentioned in the Certificate of Origin, Bill of Lading and packing list. In his further statement dated 10.01.17 hisemployee Shri Ramesh Mange contacts Shri Mehul Shah,the real importer of M/s. Pacific Imports, and the documentsfor the clearance of the goods under Bill of Entry No. 7738176 dated 07.12.2016 were received by Shri Ramesh, Manager through courier; that Ramesh Manger, their employee, handles the Import documents forwarded by ShriMehul Shah in the name of M/s Pacific Imports. The Container No. APHU6448133 was weighed at a weighbridge of Navkar CFS. The importer has declared the gross weight of the subject container as 25900 kgs. However, on weighment it was found 27270 kgs. Thus, there is an excessof 1370 Kgs. as per the weighment slip provided by theCFS. Thereafter, the container was de-stuffed and the goodswere segregated according to the marks and numbers on the packages. The total number of packages found were the same as declared packages i.e. 927. During the course of examination, 11 cartons appearing to be Cubic Crystal Zircon were found which were neither declared in the Bill of Entry nor in the Invoice & Packing List. The item at Sr. No. 12 of the packing list i.e. 11 cartons of Glass beads were notfound during examination."

10. We may now examine the provisions of the Regulations which the appellant has failed to comply.

10(i). Regulation 10(d) of CBLR, 2018, (erstwhile regulation 11(d) of CBLR, 2013) reads as:

"That Customs Broker shall advise his client to comply with the provisions of the Act and in case of non-compliance,shall bring the matter to the notice of the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be."

As per the statement of Shri Shashikant Maruti Pol, he admitted that he has never met Shri Mehul Shah or the IEC holder of M/s Pacific Imports. The documents, i.e., the invoice, packing list, COO and bill of lading were sent by Shri Mehul Shah through courier. He filed the Bill of Entry without checking the documents and without tallying the weight as per the documents. Though he was aware that the IEC of M/s. Pacific Import was being misused by Shri Mehul Shah and instead of intimating it to the customauthorities he facilitated the clearance of the goods. From this, it is evident that if the appellant had not even met Shri Mehul Shah how he could have advised him in terms of regulation 10(d). The appellant therefore, failed to discharge the obligation and is liable for penal action.

10(ii) Regulation 10(e) of CBLR 2018, erstwhile Regulation 11 (e) of CBR, 2013, reads under:—

"A Customs Broker shall exercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness of an information which he imparts to a client with reference to any work related to clearance of cargo or baggage."

From the statement of Shri Shashikant Maruti Pol, it is evident that the quantity of the goods was mis-declared as the quantity was found to be in much excess on examination. He categorically admitted that he did not check the documents submitted by Shri Mehul Shah. This reflects that the Customs Broker failed to verify the documents submitted and therefore did not exercise due diligence in asserting the correct weight of the goods and thereby violated the obligation cast upon him under Regulation 10(e)ofCBLR, 2018.

We may refer to some of the decisions relied on by Shri Rakesh Kumar. In Millennium Express Cargo Pvt. Ltd vs Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi – 2017 (346) ELT 471 (Tribunal-Delhi), where also the weight of the container was found to be in excess than what was declared, the Tribunal observed that mere obtaining of documents does not tantamount to fulfilment of the said obligation and therefore concluded that violation of Regulation 13(e) of CBLR, 2004 is established. Referring to the CBEC Circular No.9/2008, dated 8.2.2010, which laid down the requirementsof verification and documents, it was observed :

Sl. No.	Form of Organization	Features to be verified	Documents to be obtained
1.	Individual	Legal name and any other namesused Present and permanent address,in full, complete and correct	(i)Passport (ii)Pan Card (iii)Voter's identity card (iv)Driving Licence (v)Bank account statement (vi)Ration card Note: Any two of the documents listed above, which provides client, customer information to the satisfaction of the CHA will suffice.

"Thus, the appellant was required to inter-alia verify present andpermanent address in full, complete and correct, which the appellant did not do. Merely because the appellant obtaineddocuments as per Column 4 of the above table does not tantamount to fulfilment of requirement of Column 3 relating to features to be verified because if that was not so, then there wasno need to have Column 3. As seen from Regulation 13(o) quoted above, the Customs House Agent is obliged to inter-alia verify antecedent, correctness of Importer Exporter Code, identity of the importer and functioning of his client at the declared address by using reliable, independent, authentic documents, data or information. The appellant has not evenclaimed that it had ever verified the existence of the importer at the given address. Obviously, the appellant failed to fulfil the requirement of Regulation 13(o) ibid.

7. The documents filed by CHA are treated with a certain degree of trust by the Customs and such trust was completely violated in the present case. Filing of bill of entry filed in the name of a non-existent importer is a grave offence on the part ofCHA and it becomes graver when it turns out that CHA did not make minimum efforts to verify the genuineness of the importer and its address. Such acts of omission and commission on the part of CHA can potentially have even more serious financial/security consequences and therefore such a CHA hardly deserves any leniency."

Earlier in the case of Universal Agency Vs. Commr. of Cus (Airport & Admn.), Kolkata – 2015 (323)ELT 153 (Tribunal-Kolkata), the Tribunal agreed with the contention of the Revenue that the representative of CHA was aware of the discrepancies in the consignment both in the quality of the goods as well as weight of the goods but the same were not brought to the notice of the customs authorities and further observed as :

"We find that the Hon'ble Delhi High Court in the Jasjeet Singh Marwah (cited supra) held that CHA acts on behalf of the importer, it is not only his obligation to ensure thatthe entries made in the bill of entry are correct but also thatthe true and correct declaration of value and description of goods is made, and the CHA can penalize under the Customs Act."

10(iii) Regulation 10(n) of CBLR 2018 (erstwhile Regulation 11(n) of CBLR 2013) reads as under:-

"A Customs Broker shall verify antecedent, correctness of Importer Exporter code (IEC) number, identity of his client and functioning of his client at the declared address by using reliable, independent, authentic documents data or information."

In terms of the aforesaid provisions of regulation 10(n) it is an admitted position that KYC norms were not verified before filing the bill of entry. Shri Shashikant Maruti Pol also admitted that he did not know the IEC holder of M/s. Pacific Imports as the work of import clearances were accepted from Shri Mehul Shah without even knowing him. Therefore, there is a clear violation by the Customs broker to know the antecedents, correctness of the IEC number, the identity and functioning of his client at the declared addressas per the obligation cast on him under regulation 10(n). Even at the timeof revocation of the suspension order, the Commissioner had also observed that there is prima-facie contravention of the provisions of Regulation 11(n) of CBLR, 2013. The appellant along with his representation dated 22.02.2017, had supplied copies of documents, KYC, reflecting the identity and antecedents of the importer, procured by the client and some of the documents such as authorisation letter dated 1.11.2016 for appointment of CHA, by the importer, M/s Pacific Imports, IEC copy of the importer, TIN, registration of the importer (State), TIN registration of the importer(Central)and proprietor's PAN was submitted at the time of personal hearing on 1.06.2019. However, as noted by the Commissioner Customs, these documents except the authorisation letter were not procured at the time of filing the bill of entry on 07.12.2016. The issue of submitting the KYC documents belatedly has been dealt in Multi Wings Clearing & Forwarding P.Ltd Vs.

C.C. (General),New Delhi – 2019 (369) ELT820, which was also a case of misuse of CB license in imports claiming to bethe employee of the assessee and submission of KYC documents belatedly, the Tribunal observed, the fact that the appellant produced the required KYCto the Department at the later stage to the licensing issuing authority andnot to the investigating agency suggests that the necessary KYC documentswere actually not present with the appellant when the investigating agency visited and asked them to produce the KYC documents of the importer firm. 10(iv) Regulation 13(12) of CBLR 2018 (erstwhile 17(9) of CBLR 2013)provides,

"CB shall exercise such supervision as may be necessary toensure proper conduct of his employees in the transaction of business and he shall be responsible for all acts or omissions of his employees."

It is an admitted position that the entire work of handling the import clearances was done by Shri Shashikant Maruti Pol, the employee of the appellant, and hence he is responsible for his conduct in not complying with the provisions of the regulations which cast special obligations on the Customs broker. The appellant has miserably failed to supervise the working and the conduct of his employee in terms of Regulation 13(12) and is therefore liable for all the acts and omissions of his employee.

11. We may refer to the decision cited by the Revenue in the case of Bhaskar Logistic Services Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Union of India – 2016 (340) ELT 17, where the Patna High Court summed up as :

"35. From the pleadings and other materials on record, we find that there has been no violation of principles of natural justice. The petitioner was given due opportunity of being heard, which it had availed. The competent authority came to a conclusion that the petitioner had failed to exercise due diligence to ascertain correctness of any information which it imparts to a client with reference to anywork relating to clearance of cargo or baggage. What we notice in the present case is that Sheikh Khursheed of the petitioner-company knew that the IEC holder, Izahar Hussain, was not the importer. From the statement of Sheikh Khursheed, recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act, it transpires that he did not try to ascertain as to who was the importer. Only in course of investigation, it came to light that the goods were imported by Ramesh and Kamlesh in the name of M/s. Regent Enterprises, whichwere undervalued for the purpose of evading Customs duties. It is difficult for this Court to arrive at a conclusion that no violation of Regulation 11(e) of the Customs Broker Licensing Regulations, 2013 is made out. The plea thatSheikh Khursheed disassociated himself from the affairs of the petitioner-company, may make the case of thepetitioner worse inasmuch as there is requirement under Clause (5) of Regulation 17 of Customs Broker Licensing Regulations, 2013, that "Where the Customs Broker has authorized any person employed by him to sign documents relating to his business on his behalf, he shall file with the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be, a written authority in this behalf and give "prompt notice in writing if such authorization is modified or withdrawn". It is not the case of the petitioner that after said Sheikh Khursheedsevered his relationship with the petitioner-company, it informed the concerned Deputy Commissioner of Customsor Assistant Commissioner of Customs withdrawing authorization given by it to said Sheikh Khursheed. Clause
(9) of Regulation 17 of Customs Broker Licensing Regulations, 2013, casts obligation on the Customs Brokerto exercise such supervision as may be necessary to ensure proper conduct of his employees in the transaction of business and he shall be held responsible for all acts or omissions of his employees during their employment.

12. The Apex Court in Commissioner of Customs Vs. K.M.Ganatra & Co. – 2016 (332) ELT 15 (SC), quoted the decision in Noble Agency Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai - 2002(142) ELT 84 as under :

"15. In this regard, Ms. Mohana, learned senior counsel for the appellant, has placed reliance on the decision in Noble Agency v. Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai [2002 (142)

E.L.T. 84 (Tri. - Mumbai)] wherein a Division Bench of the CEGAT, West Zonal Bench, Mumbai has observed :-

"The CHA occupies a very important position in the Customs House. The Customs procedures are complicated. The importers have to deal with a multiplicity of agencies viz. carriers, custodians like BPTas well as the Customs. The importer would find it impossible to clear his goods through these agencies without wasting valuable energy and time. The CHA is supposed to safeguard the interests of both the importers and the Customs. A lot of trust is kept in CHAby the importers/exporters as well as by the Government Agencies. To ensure appropriate dischargeof such trust, the relevant regulations are framed. Regulation 14 of the CHA Licensing Regulations lists outobligations of the CHA. Any contravention of such obligations even without intent would be sufficient to invite upon the CHA the punishment listed in the Regulations....

We approve the aforesaid observations of the CEGAT, West Zonal Bench, Mumbai and unhesitatingly hold thatthis misconduct has to be seriously viewed."

Along with this, we need to refer to the decision of Delhi High Court in Ashiana Cargo Services Vs. Commissioner of Customs - 2014 (302) ELT 161 that the role of CHA does not come to an end till the goods are stuffed and the containers get sealed. His responsibility comes to an end only when the sealed containers are moved out of his supervision.

13. We are therefore of the considered opinion that the appellant hasfailed to comply with the obligations under the Regulations as discussed above. This now brings us to the penalty to be imposed on the appellant. The regulations provide for various penalties which can be imposed on the customs broker for violation of the provisions thereof. Regulation 17 provides for revocation of the license of a customs broker and for forfeiture of whole or part of the security. Regulation 18 provides for imposing penalty on the customs broker not exceeding Rs.50,000/-. The punishment of revocation of license has been held to be a very harsh punishment as it takes away the livelihood of a person onabsolute basis. The Commissioner in the impugned order has taken a very fair and balanced view in refraining to order for revocation of licence and merely ordered for forfeiture of the security amount and imposing penalty ofRs.50,000/-, which would act as a deterrent to the appellant to be more cautious and diligent in executing his work.

14. We are of the opinion that the impugned order does not call for any interference and deserves to be upheld. The appeal, is accordingly dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. 50049/2024

HEMAMBIKA R. PRIYA

M/s Global Links (hereinafter referred to as the appellant) hasfiled this appeal against the order-in-original No. 28/ZR/Suspension-Confirmation/Policy/2023 dated 09.05.2023 passed by the Commissioner wherein the revocation of Customs Broker License and forfeiture of security deposit has been confirmed.

2. The brief facts of the case are that on the basis of the offencereport dated 20.02.2023 forwarded from Additional Commissionerof Customs, CIU, NCH, Mumbai, Zone-I, inquiry of violation under CBLR, 2018 was initiated against the appellant. Accordingly, CB licence of the appellant was suspended vide Order No. 26/ZR/Suspension-Confirmation/Policy/2023 dated 13.04.2023 for the violation of provisions of Regulation 10(d), (e), (m) and 13(12) of the CBLR. Thereafter, the suspension of the CB licence was confirmed vide order No. 28/ZR/Suspension-Confirmation/Policy/2023 dated 09.05.2023, against which the present appeal has been filed.

3. The learned counsel submitted that the impugned order is illegal and improper as the appellant had always conducted the business by adhering to the provisions of the Customs Act and the rules and regulations framed thereunder. All the requirements under CBLR were fulfilled. The learned counsel contended that all the charges were denied as they have always conducted their CHA business by following the provisions of Customs Act and the regulations and rules framed thereunder. The learned counselfurther contended that no offence had been committed by them in Delhi and they were facing action in Mumbai jurisdiction, where the show cause notice had been issued. As there was no offence reportfrom Delhi jurisdiction, hence no action was warranted in Delhi jurisdiction. The counsel stated that Bills of Entry were filed on the basis of the documents provided by the importers. The Commissioner had failed to appreciate that the appellant had filed the respective Bills of Entry on the basis of import documents provided by the importers, and he was unaware of any alleged manipulation of import invoices. The appellant had no personal interest in the imports, except for clearance of the same which ishis profession. Hence, CB licence is not liable to be revoked. The ld counsel placed reliance on the following case laws:

(i) Bharat Overseas Communicators Vs. Commissioner of Customs(General), Mumbai – 2007 (209) ELT 142 (Tri.-Mumbai);

(ii) Kunal Travels (Cargo) Vs. CC (I & G), IGI Airport, New Delhi –2017 (354) ELT 447 (Del.)

4. Learned Authorised Representative submitted that it is evident that there were apparent mis-declaration with reference to description, quantity and value of the goods. The declared goods were also in contravention of other allied Acts such as non- compliance of Legal Metrology Act, non-compliance of BISprovisions, WPC provisions, IPR violations and non-payment ofappropriate Anti-Dumping Duty. It was also accepted by the importer in his statement that Customs Broker did not inform him anything about the compliance of other allied Acts such as IPR,ADD etc. Therefore, the mis-declaration, non-compliance of various allied Act and as per the statement of importer, it isapparent that M/s Global Links had violated Regulations 10(d), 10(e) and 10(m) of the CBLR. Hence the appellant was liable for action under Regulation 16 of CBLR 2018 as it was his duty to properly guide his client to comply with the law and if the importer was not able to comply with law, the CB has to bring it to thenotice of Assistant/Deputy Commissioner of Customs but the CB failed to do so. Therefore, they have violated Rule 10(d)/(e) of CBLR, 2018.

5. The learned Authorised Representative further submitted that the appellant was responsible for the conduct of his employee Shri Jitesh P Mav, G card holder employee of M/s Global Links, as per CBLR, 2018, as during the examination of the consignments, he neither brought out the discrepancies in the goods regarding quantity, undeclared goods, non-compliance of RB-44 provisions, statutory compliance of BIS norms and mandatory ETA certification for wireless items covered under subject Bills of Entry before the dock officer nor did he inform the importer and DC/Docks. Thus, the employee of appellant had failed to comply with the provisions of Regulation 10(m). The learned Authorised Representative further submitted that the appellant is bound by the act of his G- card/H-card holder. In the case of Skytrain Services Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General), New Delhi – 2019 (369) ELT 1739 (Tri.-Delhi), this Tribunal has held that:

"21. Admittedly, Shri Chaman Kumar Verma is the G- Card holder of the appellant who was physically and actually involved in the entire series of acts. Apparently and admittedly his activities had never been objected by the appellant nor ever had been questioned nor even been informed to the competent authorities. The appellant is otherwise bound by the act of his G-Card holder. Otherwise also, without the knowledge of the Customs Broker, the goods could not have been diverted. He is equally bound by the act of his authorised representative/agent. Keeping in view the same and the observation of Hon'ble Supreme Court in K.M. Ganatra & Co. (supra) case about the important duties of the CHA and the amount of due diligence as is required to beobserved on their part, we are of the firm opinion that CHAhas violated the obligations imposed upon him under CBLR, 2013/2018. The above observations are sufficient tohold that the violation of relevant Regulations is so grave that principle of proportionality is not opined to have been compromised as is impressed upon by the appellant. The failure thereof invites the penalty as that of revocation of licence."

6. We have gone through the records and heard the arguments of the appellant and the department. The main issue to be decided is whether the gravity of the offence of the appellant is grave enough for revocation of license. To conclude the same it would be appropriate to understand the requirements of the CBLR vis a vis the offence of the appellant. To recount the facts, the importer M/s Dreeams Inc had imported goods from China and filed Bills of Entry as per the details given in the table below.

Sl no	B/E no.	Declared value (in Rs)
2	4325182	3099218.41

6.1 Thereafter, post clearance of the goods, the CIU wing examined the goods and noted that there were several violations including undeclared goods, requirements of BIS, misdeclaration of quantity, violation of import conditions under DGFT notification, and misdeclaration of value. Statements were recorded of the importer Sh Pankaj Bansal, G card holders of the appellant Sh Vinod P Nandaand Jitesh P Mav. The importer in his statement dated 06.02.2023 stated that the mistake was that of the supplier in China. He also stated that the appellant as his Customs Broker did not inform him the requirements of compliance of RE-44 and other statutory requirements. Consequently, he did not inform the other Government agencies regarding his business. Sh Vinod P Nanda, G card holder and holder of the Power of Attorney of the appellant in his statement stated that he was present during the re-examinationof the goods imported vide the two Bills of Entry. He admitted thatit was the duty of the appellant, i.e. CB to inform the compliance requirements to the importer, and also to the competent authority. In his statement dated 06.02.23, Sh Jitesh P Mav, also a G card holder admitted that he was present at the initial examination of goods by the Dock officers on 25.01.23, and the dock officers did not examine all the packages as required and also did not raise anyquery with regard to the discrepancies in quantity and other violations. He admitted that he also did not inform the AC/DC,Docks regarding the discrepancies. It is based on this admissions that the CB license has been revoked for having contravened the provisions of CBLR, 2018.It is within this factual matrix that onehas to view the contraventions of the CBLR, 2018. We may examinethe violations in respect of the provisions of the CBLR, 2018.

Regulation 10(d):advise his client to comply with the provisions of the Act, other allied Acts and the rules and regulations thereof, and in case of non-compliance, shall bring the matter to the notice of the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be;

The facts as indicated above clearly establishes that the G card holder Sh Jitesh P Mav, who was present during the initial examination of the goods did not inform either the dock officers or the AC/DC regarding the non-compliance of BIS regulations and other clear violations of quantity, Anti dumping duty etc. It has alsobeen stated by the importer that he was not informed by the CB regarding the other compliance requirements. This shows clearfailure on the part of the appellant in his duties, as required under 10d of CBLR, 2018.

Regulation 10(e):exercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness of any information which he imparts to a client with reference to any work related to clearance of cargo or baggage;

As per the facts of the case, it is seen that the appellant had not informed the importer regarding the compliance requirements for import of digital smart watches, the RE-44 and mandatory WPC ETA certification etc. This points to a clear failure of the appellant's G card holder, which is a violation of the aforesaid provision.

Regulation 10(m):discharge his duties as a Customs Broker with utmost speed and efficiency and without any delay;

The statement of the importer clearly evidences that the appellant did not discharge his duties in an efficient manner.

Regulation 13(12): The Customs Broker shall exercise such supervision as may be necessary to ensure proper conduct of his employees in the transaction of business and he shall be held responsible for all acts or omissions of his employees during their employment.

6.2 This above regulation places the responsibility on the appellant, a CB for the omissions committed by his employees. The facts of the case establish the failure of the G card holder Jitesh P Mav in discharging his duties as the customs broker in the said importation. Therefore, the violations of the various provisions of the CBLR, 2018 stands proved.

6.3 The learned Counsel has submitted that the offence wascommitted in Bombay whereas the CB license has been revoked in New Delhi. This argument is specious as the appellant is registered as Customs Broker in New Delhi. Therefore, the jurisdiction for any action against the appellant lies with the jurisdictional authority only. The action against the CB was initiated based on an offence report which was received from the Customs office at the port.

6.4 It has also been argued before us that the appellant was not aware of any alleged manipulation of import invoices or valuation of goods. In the instant case, there is no allegation of any such violation. Infact the provisions of CBLR, 2018 as invoked in theshow cause notice read with the facts of case clearly establishes thefailure of the appellant in discharging his responsibilities as per the CBLR, 2018.

7. We now address the issue of whether the said violationsattracted the punishment of revocation of the CB license. The roleof the Customs broker is one of great responsibility in the customs operations and it is for this reason, a licence is issued only after conducting an examination and after necessary backgroundverifications. It is true that the Customs broker is not an inspector to examine the goods and cannot exercise any powers available to the officers. All that is required of the Customs broker is to fulfill its obligations under the CBLR, 2018. Once it fulfils all its obligations, ifan exporter or importer attempts to deal in contraband by bringing goods which are not declared in the documents, the customs brokercannot be held responsible for such violations unless there is evidence that the Customs broker had the knowledge of or was colluding in the offence. In the instant case, it is established that the G Card holder was present during the examination of the goods by the Dock officers, and did not inform the authorities as required under Regulation 10(d) and 10(m) of the CBLR, 2018. It is also an admitted fact that the importer in his statement has claimed that the appellant did not inform him of other regulatory compliance requirements for the goods imported by him. This is a clear failure of appellant's duties as a Customs Broker. Infact, the G card holder has accepted that he failed to bring the discrepancies to the notice of the concerned Assistant/Deputy Commissioner as the dock officers did not raise any query. This is not acceptable, as it clearly indicates the abdication of the responsibility by the appellant/his employee, and highlights the mala fide intent of the appellant.

8. We hold that once a violation of CBLR Regulations is admitted, the Revenue has to follow the discipline governing the Customs House Agents and as such, the Commissioner of Customs is empowered to revoke the license of Customs House Agent and also to forfeit his security if such agent fails to comply with the provisions of Regulation or gets involved in the Act which would amount to mis-conduct/offence under the Act. The High Court of Andhra Pradesh in the case of Commissioner of Customs and Central Excise Vs. H.B. Cargo Services reported as [MANU/AP/0060/2011 = 2011 (268) E.L.T. 448 (A.P.)] held that in disciplinary matters, the Commissioner is responsible for happenings in Customs area, and for discipline to be maintained, if he takes a decision necessary for that purpose, CESTAT would, ordinarily, not interfere on the basis of its own notions of the difficulties likely to be faced by the CHA or their employees. Decision is best left to the disciplinary authority, save in exceptionalcases where punishment imposed is shockingly disproportionate or is mala fide. Interference with punishment imposed would be justified only when it shocks conscience of CESTAT.

9. In view of the discussions above, we hold that there is no irregularity committed by the Adjudicating Authority while revoking the license of the appellant and imposing the consequential punishments under the Regulations. We do not find any infirmity in the impugned order. Consequently the appeal stands dismissed.

BINU TAMTA:

1. The present appeal has been filed challenging the Order-in-Appeal No.CC(A)Customs/DII/ICD/PPG/1042/2020-21 dated 29.10.2020/ 03.11.2020, whereby the Commissioner (Appeals), dismissed the appeal and affirmed the order-in -original redetermining the assessable value of the imported goods, ordering for confiscation of the said goods under Section 111(d) and 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962 (hereinafter referred to as the Act) and imposed redemption fine of Rs.4,50,000 and also imposed penalty of Rs.6 lakhs under Section 112(a) of the Act.

1. Briefly stated, the appellant filed the Bill of Entry No.9659490 dated 12.05.2017 for clearance of goods imported and declared as "Old Original Completely Pre-Mutated and Fumigated Mixed Hosiery Rags" and classified them under CTH 63109010. The declared weight of the goods was 27572 kgs. total 59 bales and the declared value of the goods was US$5652.26, CIF. The assessable value was Rs.3,71,641.75 and duty thereon was Rs.34,771/-.

2. The Bill of Entry was taken for assessment under first check of appraisement for 100% examination to verify whether the goods are as per the invoice, packing, list, bill of lading and declaration on bill of entry regarding weight, quantity, country of origin, description and compliance of Government Instructions issued in that regard. On examination with the help of empanelled Chartered Engineer, "Old un-mutilated mixed Hosiery clothings" were found "used or little used clothings, but were not to the extent of clothing becoming rags" and hence could achieve higher value. Thus the consignment did not contain merely old and completely pre- mutilated mixed hosiery rags (8130 kg.) as declared and classified under Tariff Item 63109050 but old un-mutilated mixed Hosiery clothing (19960 kg. which was classifiable under Tarrif Item 63090000 which were restricted as per Indian Trade Classification (Harmonised System) of Import Items, 2017. As the description, weight and value of the goods imported were found misdeclared they were liable for confiscation and penalty under the provisions of the Act.

3. The appellant while submitting his reply stated that they did not want any show cause notice and personal hearing against the same and requested to adjudicate the bill of entry. The Adjudicating Authority vide order dated 25.08.2017 rejected the assessable value and redetermined the same to be Rs.22,90,920/- under Customs Valuation, Determination of Value of Imported Goods Rules, 2007 confirmed the confiscation, giving an option to the importer to redeem the goods on payment of redemption fine of Rs.4,50,000/- and imposing penalty under Section 112(a) of Rs.6 lakhs on the importer. Being aggrieved, the appellant filed an appeal, which has been rejected by the impugned order by the Commissioner (Appeals). Hence, the present appeal has been filed by the appellant before this Tribunal.

1. The main contention of the appellant is that the goods have been declared as "Old Original Completely Pre-Mutated and Fumigated Mixed Hosiery Rags" as per the declaration made in the Bill of Entry, invoice and so was the quantity as per the declaration made therein. The appellant pleaded that he acted in a bonafide manner as they were unaware about the mis- declaration of the goods. According to him, the only difference was that certain rags though declared as pre-mutilated were found to be un-mutilated and hence there was no mis-declaration.

2. The Authorised Representative for the Revenue reiterated the findings of the Authorities below and submitted that the description of goods were declared and mis-classified to avoid the DGFT Policy restriction and since they were not as per the declared description, the value had to be redetermined with the help of the approved valuer. He submitted that the present appeal is against the imposition of redemption fine and penalty as the importer has not redeemed the goods nor relinquished the title of the goods.

3. Having heard both sides, we find that old un-mutialted mixed hosiery clothing classifiable under Tarrif item 63090000 is a restricted item as per Indian Trade Classification (Harmonised System) of Import Items, 2017 (ITC) (HS), 2017 notified by the Central Government under Section 5 of the Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992 (as amended from time to time) read with paragraph 2.01 of the Foreign Trade Policy, 2015– 2020. As per para 2.08 of the Foreign Trade Policy, restricted items are permitted under an import License/Authorisation/Permission granted by the Director General of Foreign Trade. The appellant has not submitted any such license and therefore the total duty evaded is Rs.3,05,641/-.

4. It is an undisputed fact that on examination the goods were not found to be in conformity with the description in the Bill of Entry and so was the weight of the goods was in excess. We may refer to the provisions of Section 46 of the Act which deals with entry of goods on importation. In terms of sub-section (1) of Section 46, the importer of any goods other than goods intended for transit or transshipment is required to make entry thereof by presenting electronically to the proper officer, a Bill of Entry for home consumption or warehousing in the prescribed form. Further, sub-section (4) of Section 46 requires the importer while presenting a bill of entry shall at the foot thereof make and subscribe to a declaration as to the truth of the contents of such bill of entry. There is clear violation of these provisions as the goods are found to be mis-declared in their description, weight and consequential value. The appellant having filed the bill of entry on self assessment basis under Section 17(1) is required to furnish correct information in the bill of entry. The law casts duty on the appellant to declare true and correct information of the goods while filing the bill of entry and self assess the duty accordingly. In the event of any violation, the importer is liable for the consequences under the Act.

5. We feel that the present case is squarely covered by the decision in the case of B.K. Spinning Mills (P) Ltd. versus Collector Customs, Cochin, 2000 (117)ELT 604, where the Bills of Entry were assessed to duty by classifying them under Customs Heading 6310.90 as "Completely Pre-mutilated Synthetic/Woollen rags" which were allowed to be imported without license as per the provisions of the export import policy, however, on examination they were found to contain serviceable, non-mutilated used clothes and also the declared value was not found to be correct transaction value. The Tribunal relying on the decision of the Apex Court in Garg Mills (P)Ltd versus Additional Collector - 1998(104) ELT 306 (SC) held that the goods are used and worn clothing, classified under Customs Heading 6309 and confiscation of goods under Section 111(m) of the Act is sustainable.

6. In this regard, we need to mention the CBEC Circular dated 8.5.2000, laying down the guidelines for import of impugned goods which has been referred to by the learned Authorised Representative, the same reads as under:-

"a. (0If garments are only old and used but serviceable after repair they must be classified under CTH 63.09. Only such garments which are totally unserviceable and beyond repair, should be classified under CTH 63.10.

b. In cases where garments declared to be rags are actually found to be only old and used garments falling under heading 63.09, as is mostly the case, the imposition of fine and penalty for violation of EXIM Policy should be such that it not only wipes out the Margin of Profit (MOP) but also acts as a deterrent against repeated imports.

c. Rags to be considered as completely mutilated should be totally unserviceable and beyond repair, and this can be ensured by applying criteria of three cuts or more, through the entire length of the garment, in a crisscross manner, not along the seams.

d. Only such garments, which are found to be completely mutilated rags, as imported, should be allowed clearance without licence clearance subject to post importation mutilation must not be allowed.

e. In case, it is found that garments are not completely mutilated rags i.e. garments having less than 3 cuts, the same should be allowed clearance only on such fine and penalty which not only wipes out the MOP but also acts as a deterrent against future imports."

7. The goods imported were restricted goods and could have been imported on the basis of the Licence issued by the DGFT and being mis- declared in respect of description, weight and value were liable for confiscation and penalty under Section 112(a) of the Act for his act of omissions and commissions. The redemption fine imposed on the appellant of Rs.4,50,000/- is commensurate with the assessable value of the goods of ₹22, 90, 920/ and hence requires no interference.

8. We do not find any merits in this appeal hence the impugned order is affirmed. The appeal is, accordingly dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. 50131/2024

HEMAMBIKA R. PRIYA

This is an appeal filed by M/s Air Impex Cargo Agency, 6/26, K.D. House, 3rd Floor, W.E.A., Karol Bagh, New Delhi-110005 (hereinafter referred to as the appellant) against the Order-in-Original No. 120/MK/Policy/2020 dated 29.12.2020passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General), NewCustoms House, Near IGI Airport, New Delhi-110027, wherein the Customs Broker[1] license of the appellant was revoked, security deposit was ordered to be forfeited and penalty was also imposed.

2. The brief facts of the case are that M/s Air Impex Cargo Agencywas issued CHA license No. R-21/98 (PAN No. AAGFA478IN) issued by the Commissioner of Customs (I&G), NewDelhi under Regulation 9(1) of CHALR, 2004[2]. An offence report, in the form of the show cause notice VIII/ICD/06/TKD/SIIB- Exp/DRI-SCN/Floor Covering/66/2017/8770 dated 22.10.2019 was received from the Additional Commissioner of Customs (Import), ICD, TKD, New Delhi on 31.10.2019 informing of the modus operandi of unscrupulous traders/exporters who were exporting goods described as Floor Covering (Braided) of Man Made Fiber under claim of Duty Drawback provisions and Focus Product

Scheme (in short, "FPS") by resorting to mis-declarationof description and value. It was alleged that the appellant M/s AirImpex Cargo Agency, had facilitated the Customs clearance forthe said unscrupulous traders/exporters. This was based on an intelligence received by the Directorate of Revenue Intelligence. The unscrupulous traders/exporters were:

(i) M/s Dwarka Trading Company, A-418, Mansa RamPark, Uttam Nagar, New Delhi.
(ii) M/s Adarsh Enterprises, B-99, Patel Garden, UttamNagar, New Delhi.
(iii) M/s Shree Balaji Trading, Plot No. 13, B-I, NanheyPark, Uttam Nagar, Matiyala, New Delhi.
(iv) M/s Shree Durga Fashion, 92-B, Nawada Village,Uttam Nagar, New Delhi.
(v) M/a Apex Trading, A-421A, Mansa Ram Park, UttamNagar, New Delhi; (vi) M/s Kanak Fashion, Plot No. 13, Block B, NanheyPark, Uttam Nagar, New Delhi.

The aforesaid exporters had consigned their goods to (i) M/s K.K.S. General Trading L.L.C., PO Box-49320, Dubai, UAE and (ii) M/s Gremix General Trading LLC, PO Box 234350, Dubai UAE. The export goods declared as 'Floor Covering (Braided) of Man- Made Fiber' and classified under CTH No. 57049090 were filed for clearance under claim of Duty Drawback @ 9.1% ad-valorem and also for benefit under Chapter 3 of Focus Product Scheme (FPS). The FPS benefit being claimed under Chapter 3 of FTP 2009-14 was for product code 11, which was @ 5% ad-valorem,as admissible to specified goods of Chapter 57. In terms of Appendix 37D Focus Product Scheme, the benefit for the sole entry pertaining to goods of chapter 57 was admissible to all handmade carpet and other Textile Floor Coverings, whether or not made ups. The expression Handmade would include Hand Made, hand knotted, hand-tufted, hand woven, handloom and Braided. In the FTP scheme, for Chapter III of FTP goodscovered under Chapter 57, are also entitled to Bonus of 2%; thus the cumulative benefit for goods of the said heading is equivalent to 5%+2% for exports made from 01.01.2011 onwards. DRI vide letter DRI F.No. DRI/HQ-CI/50D/Int-13/2014-CI dated 03.11.2014, requested for detailed examination of the export cargo seized at ICD Loni, Ghaziabad, ICD PPG, New Delhi, CFS Mundra and ICD, Patparganj, New Delhi.

3. Physical verification of the detained goods revealed that the floor covering measuring about four square meter, weighing approximately 2500 gms. were machine made and not handmade or braided as declared in the export documents. The goods were subsequently seized vide Seizure memos dated 18.12.2014 and 18.03.2015 & 25.03.2015. Further investigations also revealed that the registered premises of M/s Dwarka Trading Company, IEC No. 0514009489 dated 05.05.2014, A-418, Mansa Ram Park, Uttam Nagar, New Delhi and that of its proprietor Shri Vipin Kumar, A-418, Mansa Ram Park, Uttam Nagar, New Delhi-110059was non-existent.M/s Adarsh Enterprises (IEC No.051401037) was found to be locked with mobile no. 9136298434 painted onits gate. Telephonic enquiry with Shri Surender, the holder of mobile no.9136298434 revealed that he was not aware of any firm by the name of M/s Adarsh Enterprises.

4. Shri Moti Khanna, Director, M/s Air Impex Cargo Agency was summoned and in his statement dated 31.12.2014 recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962, inter alia, statedthat all new clients were advised to first fulfil the KYC norms/formalities and only after that he handled their Customs clearance work. He stated that they had verified the KYC documents with the original and that they did not verify theexistence of the declared office or residential address of the client.He further submitted that he had started with export clearance since January, 2014. In order to increase his business he had cleared the first consignment of floor coverings in the month of June 2014. His employee namely Shri Suresh Kumar used to lookafter the clearance work in ICD, Patparganj. He admitted that he used to send the documents to Shri Suresh Kumar who after receiving the Shipping Bills and other documents used to complete further formalities like examination and obtaining let export order. He himself had never seen the consignment of floorcovering prior to shipment and they had filed the documents given by the exporter on the basis of which they proceeded with the Customs formalities. Shri Khanna submitted that they could not ascertain the value declared by the exporter or importer that the CTH of the goods being exported vide S/B No. 5190603, 5190606, 5190607, 5201651, 5201652, 5201661 and 5201662 all dated 25.09.2014. On completion of the investigations, show cause notice was issued to the exporters. Meanwhile, the offence report dated 22.10.2019 was issued based on which the impugned order was passed after following the procedure as laid down in CHALR, 2004.

6. The learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the impugned order dated 29.12.2020 passed by the Commissioner ofCustoms (Airport & General), NCH, New Delhi is not legal and proper and not sustainable on facts and circumstances of the caseas the said order had been passed on ex-parte basis without seeking clarification from the appellant and without appreciating any evidence with regard to compliance of KYC norms. The learned counsel further submitted that the appellant is not liable to get the client premises like office and residence physically verified. The learned counsel further stated that the KYC documents had been seized by DRI at his business premisesduring the investigation of the case. Therefore, the appellant did not have the KYC documents readily available with him and that iswhy he requested that the case may be decided on merits onbasis of records available with them. He contended that all the relevant documents had been taken over by Customs/DRI at the time of investigation. Inspite of the above said situation,the learned counsel submitted that the Commissioner of Customs had passed the order ex-parte without appreciating the evidence available with the Customs in their investigation file. Since the above said order has been passed violating the principle of naturaljustice, hence the said order revoking the CB License and forfeiting the security amount and levying penalty of Rs. 50,000/- under Regulation 17 of CBLR, 2018 is not sustainable. Further, he contended that as the shipping bill pertains to period year 2014, hence the CBLR, 2018 is not applicable at all. The learned counselsubmitted that Shri Moti Khanna in his statement dated 31.12.2014 had categorically stated that new clients were advised to first fulfill the KYC norms/formalities and only after which he handled their customs clearance work; that the invoice, packing list and other documents forms the basis of customs documentation; that they verified the KYC documents with the original; at the time of filing shipping bill IEC details are verified through DGFT site only then the same are filed before Customs. Thus, it was an incorrect observation by the Adjudicating Authority that the appellant had failed to comply with the provisions of Regulation 10(a).

7. The learned counsel also submitted that the statements of persons relied upon in the impugned order were not made available to the appellant, and hence could not be rebutted by them.He contended that the impugned order had held that the appellant had contravened the provisions of Regulation 10(e) of CBLR, 2018, as he was aware of the inferior quality of the goods and of overvaluation of the goods made by exporter, and had willfully and intentionally did not verify the correctness of the value, which was incorrect. The learned counsel submitted that the Noticee and his employee were not aware about such mis- declaration of goods and value as the said mis-declaration came to the notice to the department only after due examination and investigation by the DRI.

8. The learned counsel also reiterated that as per the statement of Shri Moti Khanna, the shipping bills were filed after complying with the KYC norms and all the related documents were seized by DRI made at office/business premises of theappellant. He stated that the department gathered all the evidences which was on record, whereas the Adjudicating Authority has passed the ex-parte order based on assumptions and presumptions. The learned counsel relied on the order in original No. 55/SM/Suspension/Policy/2016 dated 05.08.2016 andOIO No. 56/SM/Suspension/Policy/2016 dated 05.08.2016 passedby Shri Sanjay Mangal, Commissioner of Customs (General), NCH, New Delhi wherein on similar investigation made by ADG DRI and based on offence report F.No. DRI/HQ/CI/50D/Enq-39(NT- 13/2014 dated 16.02.2015 against other exporter who had attempted to export floor covering by overvaluing the same in order to avail undue drawback etc. He contended that show cause notices No. 04 to 09 dated 02.02.2016 were issued which indicates that the show cause notice were issued after 347 days from receipt of the offence report. He relied on the order of High Court Delhi in M/s HLPL Global Logistics wherein the show cause notice for suspension of Customs Broker license was quashed on time bar.He also contended that for past exports of five export firms, the show cause notice dated 22.10.2019 and 2020 was issued which was time barred as the offence was reported in 2014and 2015 by DRI and different show cause notice for suspension of appellant's license and others were initiated. Thereafter in 2020, the department issued separate notice for revocation of license on the similar matter, similar issue, similar investigation. Consequently the Commissioner of Custom's order dated 05.08.2016 was totally time barred.

9. The learned counsel placed reliance on the following judicial pronouncements wherein CHA was not held responsible for overvaluation of goods being unaware of such overvaluation.

(i) P.D. Prasad & Sons Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs(Export), New Delhi – 2017 (358) ELT 1004 (Tri.-Del.);

(ii) Akanksha Enterprises Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai-I – 2006 (203) ELT 125 (Tri.-Del);

(iii) Apson Enterprises Vs. Commissioner of Customs (EP),ACC, Mumbai – 2017 (358) ELT 817 (Tri.-Mumbai).

On the issue of knowledge and abetment, and livelihood, the LdCounsel relied on the following decisions:

i. Arif I. Patel Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Prev.), Mumbai – 2014 (308) ELT 698 (Tri.-Mumbai);

ii. Commissioner of Customs (Export), Chennai Vs. Sahaya Edin Pabhu – 2015 (320) ELT 264 (Mad.);

iii. Sij Electronics Com. Tech. Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Kochi – 2001 (129) ELT
528 (Tri.-Bangalore) – it was decided that in absence of mens rea penalty was imposable for technical breach oflaw when there is no defiance of law or conduct which is contentious or dishonest.

iv. Akbar Badruddin Jiwani Vs. Collector – 1990 (47) ELT 161 (SC).

v. Landing & Shipping Agency Vs. Commissioner ofCustoms (Admn.), Kolkata – 2003 (158) ELT 78 (Tri.-Kolkata); vi. International Shipping Agency Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Gen.), Mumbai – 2006 (196) ELT 439 (Tri.-Mumbai);

vii. Falcon Air Cargo & Travel (P) Ltd. Vs. Commissionerof Customs, New Delhi – 2002 (141) ELT 284 (Tri.- Delhi) – it was held that it is well settled law that punishment should be commensurate with offence in the facts and circumstances of the case and in view of inquiry officer's report it was not found fit case for revoking the license and depriving of the appellant of their means of livelihood.

viii. Overland Agency Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Preventive), Kolkata – 2004 (166) ELT 258 (Tri.- Kolkata) – In this case it was held that suspension of license deprives the licensee as also a number of workerof their livelihood. In absence of serious irregularity committed by the CHA, license should not be suspended.

10. The learned Authorized Representative submitted on theissue of time bar that the Taxation and other Laws (Relaxation of Certain Provisions) Ordinance 2020 (No. 2 of 2020) dated 31st March 2020, the time limits as specified in or prescribed or notified under the Customs Act, 1962 and falling during the periodfrom the 20th day of March, 2020 to the 29th June, 2020 for completion of any proceeding or issuance of any order, notice, intimation, notification or sanction or approval, by whatever namecalled, by any authority, commission, tribunal by whatever name called, was extended by the Central Government to the 30th June 2020, which subsequently has been extended till 30.09.2020 by the Central Government vide Notification issue under GSR 418(E). Again it was extended till 31.12.2020 by the Central Government vide Notification issued under GSR 601 (E) dated 30.09.2020. He further submitted that as per Regulation 10(a), every CB is required to obtain an authorization from each of the companies, firms or individuals by whom he is for the time being employed as a CB and produce such authorization wheneverrequired by DC/AC, Customs. However, as was evident from the impugned order, it was apparent that the appellant were not aware about the exporter's details nor did they have the authorization and other KYC details.

11. The learned Authorized Representative further submittedthat from the facts of the case, it is evident that the appellant(CB) had been in touch with Shri Kultar Singh and relied upon him for the verification of the IEC codes. Shri Kultar Singh in hisstatement dated 10.03.2015 inter alia stated that he had never met any of the proprietors of the said firm; that all the documentsfor exports transacted in the name of the said six firms had been prepared in his office; that he used to hand over the same to Shri Vinay Kumar to obtain the signatures from the respective proprietors; that he could not affirm the actual identity of the signatories of the export documents; that he had contacted Shri Moti Khanna of M/s Air Impex Cargo Agency for customs clearance of the floor coverings exported in the name of the said firms. Further, the learned Authorised Representative contended that there is nothing on record to indicate that his statement recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962 was retracted. Further, the statement given by him was without any contradiction and the appellant had admitted to complicity. Furthermore, the facts narrated in the statement are consistent with the other evidences gathered during investigations. He relied on the decision in the case of Percy Rustomji Basta Vs. State of Maharastra – AIR 1971-SC-1087 wherein the Supreme Court held that a person summoned under Section 108is told by the statute itself that under threat of criminal prosecution, he is bound to speak what he knows and states it truthfully. The Supreme Court in the case of Surjeet Singh Chhabra Vs. Union of India – 1997 (89) ELT 646 (SC) has held that the customs officers are not police officers, therefore, the confession, is an admission and binds the appellant. Therefore, the aforementioned statements are authentic and reliable having evidentiary value in view of the above established law.

12. The learned Authorized Representative stated that it is well established that Shri Kultar Singh did not have the authorization from any of the said six firms. The appellant was well aware of the fact that the IECs in question were dummy firms and were being illegally used by Shri Kultar Singh for export of undervaluedand mis-classified goods in order to avail undue and inadmissible benefits of Duty Drawback and Focus Product Scheme. Despite being aware of the knowing all those facts, the appellant had accepted the customs clearance work of impugned exports consignments from Shri Kultar Singh without obtaining authorization from actual exporter for monetary consideration. Hecontended that the appellant was well aware of the modus operandi being adopted by Shri Kultar Singh to avail undue and inadmissible benefits of Duty Drawback and Focus Product Scheme. But the appellant did not advise his clients to comply with the provisions of the Act, other allied Acts and the Rules and Regulations thereof nor did he inform the matter to the concerned AC/DC of Customs. Thus, the appellant had connived with Shri Kultar Singh, intentionally and willfully facilitated the customsclearance for impugned export goods, for monetary considerations. Consequently he had violated Regulation 10(d) ofCBLR, 2018.Regulation 10(e) required the appellant to exercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness of any information to any work related to clearance of cargo. The AR submitted that the appellant was aware that the goods exported were inferior quality GUDDAD, whereas the same was being declared as 'floor covering (Braided) of Manmade Fibre and the value and the actual description of the said goods was misdeclared intentionally. The appellant had not asked the exporter to submit the invoice mentioning correct value of the same. In fact, the CB willfully andintentionally did not ascertain correct value of the subject export goods for pecuniary benefits, which had resulted in huge loss of Government treasury.

13. The Ld AR relied on the decision in Skytrain Services Vs.

Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General), New Delhi –2019 (369) ELT 1739 (Tri.-Delhi),wherein this Tribunal has held that

"21. Admittedly, Shri Chaman Kumar Verma is the G-Card holder of the appellant who was physically and actually involved in the entire series of acts. Apparentlyand admittedly his activities had never been objected bythe appellant nor ever had been questioned nor even been informed to the competent authorities. The appellant is otherwise bound by the act of his G-Card holder. Otherwisealso, without the knowledge of the Customs Broker, the goods could not have been diverted. He is equally bound bythe act of his authorised representative/agent. Keeping in view the same and the observation of Hon'ble Supreme Court in K.M. Ganatra & Co. (supra) case about the important duties of the CHA and the amount of due diligence as is required to be observed on their part, we areof the firm opinion that CHA has violated the obligations imposed upon him under CBLR, 2013/2018. The above observations are sufficient to hold that the violation ofrelevant Regulations is so grave that principle of proportionality is not opined to have been compromised as is impressed upon by the appellant. The failure thereof invites the penalty as that of revocation of licence."

In the instant case, the appellant had not exercised due diligence and had deliberately facilitated illegal exports from his firm. Consequently, the appellant had violated the various provisions ofRegulation 10 of CBLR, 2018. Therefore, he prayed for dismissal of the appeal.

14. We have heard the learned counsel and the learned Authorised Representative. In order to appreciate the arguments, it would be imperative to revisit the facts of the case in brief. Based on an intelligence received from DRI, the export consignments of goods described as "Floor Covering (Braided) of ManMadeFibre" pertaining to 6 traders/exporters were examinedin in several ports viz., ICD, Loni, ICD Tkd, ICD Ppg, and CFS Mundra, and were seized. Subsequent investigations revealed thatthe alleged trader/exporters were mostly non-existent or fictitious, and ineligible drawback had been claimed by these exporters. It was also noted that the appellant was the Customs Broker who had filed the export documents, and had actively facilitated the fraudulent exports. Hence vide the impugned order the CB license has been revoked, security deposit forfeited and penalty has been imposed.

15. The learned counsel has argued before us that there were two offence reports viz., 2014 and 2015 by DRI based on which different show cause notices have been issued for suspension of CB license of the appellant and in 2020, another notice for revocation of license has been issued. In view of the same, the revocation of license by the Commissioner is not sustainable in the eyes of law. We note that the show cause notice in the instantcase was issued based on the offence report received in October 2019. A perusal of the order in original no. 56/SM/Policy/2016 dated July 2016, clearly indicates that the said order is limited to the investigations conducted by DRI in respect of six different exporters, who are not subject matter in the impugned order. Based on the facts of the case at that point in time, the adjudicating authority had dropped the proceeding on time bar. Inthe instant case, this notice has been issued within 90 days of the offence report. Therefore, we are unable to accept the argument of the learned counsel that this impugned order is hitby time bar.

16. The learned counsel has also submitted that the order had been passed ex- parte. He also stated that as the KYC documents had been seized by DRI, they were unable to submit the same before the adjudicating authority. Perusal of impugned order shows that the opportunity for personal hearing was granted on 28.10.20 and 10.12.20. However, neither the appellant appeared either in person nor through any authorised representative. The appellant by the letter dated 10.12.20 sought for an adjournment and the hearing was fixed for 16.12.20. Sh Rajkumar Sharma, F card holder and Sh Satyapal Bharti, Accountant appeared forpersonal hearing. The argument that the case was heard ex parte does not hold water.

17. As regards the violations of various provisions of the CBLR stands proved, we note that the impugned order has clearlyelucidated the manner in which the appellant had contravened theprovisions of the CBLR, 2018. We take note of the fact that investigations have revealed that the appellant was in touch with Shri Kultar Singh and relied on him for the IEC codes. We also find that the appellant did not independently verify the actual IECs holder of the said six firms i.e. M/s Dwarka Trading Company, M/s Aadarsh Enterprises, M/s Shree Balaji Trading, M/sShree Durga Fashion, M/s Apex Trading and M/s Kanak Fashion.It is also established that the appellant was well aware that Shri Kultar Singh was exporting the goods through dummy firms. It is thus evident that the appellant had not verified the correctness of Importer Exporter Code (IEC) number, Goods and Services Tax Identification Number (GSTIN), identity of his client and functioning of his client at the declared address as required under the CBLR, 2018.We also note that Shri Vaibhav Goel(controller of two export firms)in his statement dated 03.06.2015 has admitted that the description of the goods as mentioned in the export documents as Floor Covering (Braided) of Manmade Fibre was suggested by the appellant. Shri Vaibhav Goel had gone on to depose that in addition to the clearing charges of Rs. 10,000/- percontainer, the clearing agent had charged him Rs. 60,000/- per container in cash for which no bill was issued by them. This established that the appellant had connived for primary consideration. Shri Amit Arora, in his statement dated 21.01.2015 (who had exported the similar goods)also deposed that he had shown a sample of floor coverings to the appellant before exporting them. Shri Vinay Kumar Singh, in his statement dated 10.02.2015 had also clearly stated that before export, the samples were shown to the appellant. In view of the above, we are unable to accept the arguments of the learned counsel that the appellant was unaware of the nature of the goods, nor was heaware of the misdeclaration or undervaluation of the export goods. The serious contraventions of the CBLR, 2018 stand established.

18. The Learned Counsel has also submitted that the appellant cannot be held responsible for valuation of goods as he was unaware of such overvaluation. Consequently, no action can be taken by the Department for violation under section 113 read withsection 114 of the Customs Act or under Customs Broker Licensing Regulations. As discussed above, Shri Vaibhav Goel in his statement dated 03.06.2015 has admitted that the description of the goods as mentioned in the export documents as Floor Covering (Braided) of Manmade Fibre was suggested by the appellant.Shri Amit Arora, in his statement dated 21.01.2015(who had exported the similar goods) also deposed that he had shown a sample of floor coverings to the appellants before exporting them. Shri Vinay Kumar Singh, in his statement dated 10.02.2015 had also clearly stated that before export, the samples were shown to the appellant. Consequently, we are unable to the accept argument of the learned counsel that the appellant was unaware of the nature of the goods, nor was he aware of the misdeclaration or undervaluation of the export goods.

19. The learned counsel also submitted that in the absence of mensrea, no penalty is impossible for technical breach of law. He also stated that the punishment should be commensurate with theoffence, and suspension of license deprives the licencee and his workers their livelihood. In the absence of serious irregularity, license should not be revoked. In this context, we once again revert to the statement of Sh Vaibhav Goel wherein he stated thatin addition to the clearing charges of Rs. 10,000/- per container, the appellant had charged him Rs. 60,000/- per container in cash for which no bill was issued by them. This clearly establishes the mensrea of the appellant in this charging extra in order to facilitate the clearance of the impugned goods.

20. We observe that the High Court of Delhi in its decision in the case of Bhaskar Logistic Services Pvt Ltd., Vs Union of India [2016(340)ELT 17(Del)] held as follows:-

"33. As regards the role and responsibility of a CHA/Customs Broker in such clearance, Regulation 11(n) of CBLR clearly provides that Customs Broker shall verify the antecedent, correctness of IEC, identity of his client andfunctioning of his client at the given address by using reliable independent authentic documents/data/information. Identical provision was there under CHALR under Regulation 13(o) of the CHALR. Thus, if a Customs Broker facilitates the filing/processing of a Bill of Entry by a person other than a valid IEC holder using IEC of a different person, it will amount to violation of the provisions of Regulation 11(n) of CBLR/Regulation 13(o) of CHALR.

34. In the case of Arvind C. Bhagat v. Commissioner of Customs, reported in 2000 (122) E.L.T. 678 (Mad.). TheDivision Bench of Madras High Court upheld the Department'saction on the CHA, who had stood for surety of his client- importer, who was found to be a fictitious firm. When a Customs Broker is aware that the IEC holder and the person importing/exporting is different and despite that, he does notbring this fact to the notice of the Department, this would amount to clear violation of the obligations cast upon the Customs Broker under CHALR/CBLR. Our view finds support from the said decision.

35. From the pleadings and other materials on record, we find that there has been no violation of principles of natural justice. The petitioner was given due opportunity of being heard, which it had availed. The competent authority came toa conclusion that the petitioner had failed to exercise due diligence to ascertain correctness of any information which it imparts to a client with reference to any work relating to clearance of cargo or baggage. What we notice in the present case is that Sheikh Khursheed of the petitioner-companyknew that the IEC holder, Izahar Hussain, was not the importer. From the statement of Sheikh Khursheed, recordedunder Section 108 of the Customs Act, it transpires that he did not try to ascertain as to who was the importer. Only in course of investigation, it came to light that the goods were imported by Ramesh and Kamlesh in the name of M/s. Regent Enterprises, which were undervalued for the purpose of evading Customs duties. It is difficult for this Court to arrive at a conclusion that no violation of Regulation 11(e) of the Customs Broker Licensing Regulations, 2013 is made out.The plea that Sheikh Khursheed disassociated himself from the affairs of the petitioner-company, may make the case of the petitioner worse inasmuch as there is requirement under Clause (5) of Regulation 17 of Customs Broker LicensingRegulations, 2013, that "Where the Customs Broker has authorized any person employed by him to sign documents relating to his business on his behalf, he shall file with the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be, a written authority in this behalf and give "prompt notice in writing if such authorizationis modified or withdrawn". It is not the case of the petitioner that after said Sheikh Khursheed severed his relationship with the petitioner-company, it informed the concerned Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs withdrawing authorization given by it to saidSheikh Khursheed. Clause (9) of Regulation 17 of Customs Broker Licensing Regulations, 2013, casts obligation on the Customs Broker to exercise such supervision as may benecessary to ensure proper conduct of his employees in the transaction of business and he shall be held responsible for all acts or omissions of his employees during their employment."

21. We also take note of the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Noble Agency Vs Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai [2002 (142)LT 84(Tri-Mum)] highlighting the role of the CHA/CB, which has subsequently been upheld by the Supreme Court. The relevant paragraph of the Tribunal order is reproduced:-

"12. The CHA occupies a very important position in the Customs House. The Customs procedures are complicated. The importers have to deal with a multiplicity of agencies viz.carriers, custodians like BPT as well as the Customs. The importer would find it impossible to clear his goods through these agencies without wasting valuable energy and time. The CHA is supposed to safeguard the interests of both the importers and the Customs. A lot of trust is kept in CHA by the importers/exporters as well as by the Government Agencies. To ensure appropriate discharge of such trust, the relevant regulations are framed. Regulation 14 of the CHA Licensing Regulations lists out obligations of the CHA. Any contravention of such obligations even without intent would be sufficient to invite upon the CHA the punishment listed in the Regulations…."

21.1. The above judgment was relied upon by the Supreme Court in its judgment in the case of Commissioner of Customs Vs K.M. Ganatra[2016(332) ELT 15(SC)].

22. From the above it is clear that the CHA/CB is not an agent of the Custom House or of the importer. Duty/responsibility has been cast on the CHA/CB under the CHALR/ CBLR, 2018 to ascertain the correctness of the information related to the clearance of cargo in a diligent manner. He is not only supposedto advise the importer/exporter about the relevant provisions of the law, but is also liable to inform the Department of any violation of the provisions of the Customs Act. It is reiterated that we do not differ from the case laws as cited by the appellant that the revocation of license is a grave punishment and should not be imposed against the principle of proportionality. There is no dispute on the issue that CHA/CB is not an Inspector to weigh the genuineness of the transaction and that he is merely a processing agent of documents with respect to clearance of goodseither himself or through his authorised person. Penalty as that ofrevocation of license cannot be imposed upon the CHA/CB in the absence of any active or passive facilitation. However, in the instant case, it has been noted above that the appellant had actively connived with the main player Shri Kultar Singh. It is alsoon record that it was the appellant who had suggested the description of the goods in the export documents. It is also on record that the appellant charged extra for clearance of the cargo,which was paid in cash without any bill. It is also on record that samples of the goods sought to be exported were shown to the appellant. However, the appellant neither advised his client correctly nor did he inform the appropriate authorities. The facts and circumstances of the case as discussed above are sufficient toestablish the mensrea of the appellant.

23. Accordingly, we hold that the adjudicating authority has not committed any error in holding that the Custom Broker Firm/appellant have failed in the compliance of the responsibilities cast upon them as per Regulation 10(a), (d), (e) and (n) of the Customs Broker Licensing Regulation, 2018, and the consequent action for revoking the CB license, forfeiting the security deposit and imposing penalty. Consequently, the appeal stands dismissed.

Binu Tamta

The Order-in-Original No. 75/MK/POLICY/2021 dated 22.07.2021 is under challenge both by the Customs Broker and also by the Revenue. The challenge by the appellant Customs Broker is to the forfeiture of the security deposit and imposition of penalty of Rs. 50,000/-. The Revenue on the other hand has challenged the impugned order as it refrained from revoking the Customs Broker License of the appellant. Hence the two appeals.

2. The facts leading to the present petition are that the appellant is a holder of Customs Broker License which is valid up to 28.08.2027. On the basis of specific information/input by the DRI, Delhi Zonal Unit that one syndicate was attempting to export mask/fabric of mask to China by way of mis-declaring it as "Packing Materials" and one such consignment of 2480 Kg. was going to be exported vide Airway Bill No. 87612324992 and name of the IEC holder could be M/s Ala Foodstuff Pvt. Ltd. The shipment of the goods attempted to be exported vide Shipping Bill No. 2619886 dated 11.05.2020 was put on hold for further detailed examination by SIIB, Air Cargo Export, New Delhi. The Shipping Bill had been filed by the Customs Broker M/s Freight Logistics. As per the shipping bill, the export goods pertained to the exporter M/s Ala Foodstuff Pvt. Ltd. (IEC No. 1207001406) GSTIN No. 03AAGCA3947FIZY), Amritsar, Punjab. The goods were declared as "packing material for pouch" (RITC Code 48239090). However, on examination by SIIB on 13.05.2020, the goods were found as "non-woven fabrics" appeared to be used in the manufacturing of Mask, which was prohibited for export vide Notification No. 52/2015-2020 dated 19.03.2020, issued by the Director General of Foreign Trade (DGFT). Thus, the goods were mis-declared and also found to be prohibited. Accordingly, the impugned goods were seized vide seizure memo dated 13.05.2020 under Section 110 of the Customs Act, 1962. 3. Show cause notice dated 22.12.2020 was issued by Additional Commissioner of Customs, Air Cargo Export, New Delhi, wherein M/s Freight Logistics was also made a party as they failed to obtain any authorization from the exporter and did not verify the correctness of KYC documents. In addition,, they were also found to be concerned with those goods which were found liable for confiscation under Customs Act, 1962 and were therefore, called upon to show cause to the Additional Commissioner of Customs Air Cargo Export, New Delhi as to why the penalty should not be imposed on them under Section 114(i) and 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962. On the basis of said show cause notice dated 22.12.2020, an inquiry for violation under CBLR, 2018 was initiated against the appellant. Accordingly, the license of the appellant was suspended vide order-in-original dated 07.01.2021 in terms of Regulation 16(1) of the CBLR, 2018. Thereafter, vide order-in-original dated 15.01.2021, the suspension order was confirmed in terms of the Regulation 16(2) of the CBLR, 2018.

4. The exporter M/s Ala Foodstuff Pvt. Ltd. vide their letter dated 21.05.2020 addressed to the Supdt. of SIIB stated that they are completely unaware about the export consignment under shipping bill No. 2619886 dated 11.05.2020 and the invoice no. against which the shipping bill has been filed do not pertain to them as they do not use series like A/B. Shri Akshit Arora, General Manager of the exporter company in his statement dated 01.06.2020 recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act stated that their company is exclusively involved in exporting of rice under the brand name of ALA for the past 10 years to various countries like UAE, Yamen, Oman etc. but they have never exported their goods to China. It was also stated that they had exported three consignments through the forwarder named M/s CAG Shipping Pvt. Ltd. and M/s Smooth Cargo Mover Pvt. Ltd. who had appointed the Customs Broker named as Freight Logistics and M/s Green View Logistics. On examination of the invoice in question, it appeared that the invoice no. is 830 A dated 05.05.2020 whereas the company had raised the invoice number as 894 dated 05.05.2020. The exporter had also submitted a list containing the past export of their consignments, where no such invoice has been found mentioning as A or B.

5. Further, CB in his statement dated 15.07.2021 submitted that the documents were checked by one Shri Kumud Kumar Choudhary who was their employee and he may have committed a mistake in not checking up the authorisation in the shipping bill in question. The Customs Broker pleaded ignorance and that he had no knowledge about the mistake committed by Shri Kumod Kumar Choudhary.

6. Accordingly, show cause notice dated 28.01.2021 was issued to the appellant for violation of the provisions of Regulation 10(a), 10(e) and 10(n) of CBLR, 2018 and for taking action for revocation of the license and forfeiture of the security amount in terms of Regulation 14 read with Regulation 17 of CBLR, 2018 and also for imposition of penalty under Regulation 18 of CBLR, 2018 read with Regulation 17 of CBLR, 2018. On adjudication, the Commissioner concluded that active role was played by Shri Kumod Kumar Choudhary, employee of the CB and Shri Pushpraj Yadav. Also that role of CB has not come out anywhere in the investigation and that he had taken immediate action by terminating the services of Shri Kumod Kumar Choudhary with effect from 16.05.2020 and also by lodging an FIR with the Police on the said date. Having noted that it does not prima facie appear to be judicious enough to continue suspension of the CB license especially where no role of CB has come out in the instant case, the following order was passed:

"In exercise of powers conferred in terms of Regulation 14 & 18 read with Regulation 17(7) of CBLR, 2018 (erstwhile Regulation 18 & 22 read with Regulation 20(7) of CBLR, 2013).

(i) I refrain from revoking the CB License No. R- 05/DEL/CUS/2008 (PAN : AABFF2641R) vlaid upto 28.08.2027 of M/s Freight Logistics, RZ-2048, Lane No. 26, Tugalakabad Extension, New Delhi-110019.

(ii) I order for forfeiture of the whole amount of security deposit furnished by them;

(iii) I impose penalty of Rs.50,000/- on M/s Freight Logistics."

7. Being aggrieved, both the Customs Broker and the Revenue has filed the appeal before this Tribunal.

8. The appellant had led much emphasis on the fact that it was a mistake of their employee for it he had taken the immediate action. He also relied on the findings of the Commissioner holding Shri Kumod Kumar Choudhary and Shri Pushpraj Yadav responsible and yet action has been taken against the Customs Broker. According to the learned counsel there is no justification for forfeiture of security amount and imposition of penalty. He referred to the export made in the past in the name of the same exporter where no discrepancy has been found. It was also stated that the KYC documents of the exporter already existed in the records and referred to the following documents which were reliably authenticated such as under:

(a) Copy of Aadhar card of the person concerned.
(b) IEC number's copy of exporter was obtained which is on record. (verification of IEC No. Was done online).

(c) Exporter's KYC form was obtained.
(d) The Pan Card of exporter was obtained (on record).
(e) Copy of GSTIN was obtained which is on record. Verification of the same was done online.

The learned counsel challenged the forfeiture of the security deposit and the imposition of penalty basically on the ground that no role has been played by the CB and there is no finding arrived at by the adjudicating authority against the CB. The learned counsel referred to several judgements which we would be dealing later.

9. The contention raised by the department is that the appellant had not obtained the authorisation from the exporter and have, therefore, violated Regulation 10(a). They had also not obtained the export documents from the exporter and refuted the argument that one of their employee did not verify the authorisation as it was obligatory on the Customs Broker to verify the authorisation.

The learned Authorised Representative referred to CBEC Circular No. 9/2010-Cus. dated 08.04.2010 and submitted that the CB failed to obtain proper KYC sheet from the exporter without photograph and signature. The learned Authorised Representative relied on the decision in Skytrain Services Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General), New Delhi – 2019 (369) ELT 1739 (Tri.-Delhi) and Commissioner of Customs Vs. K.M. Ganatra & Co. – 2016 (332) ELT 15 (SC). The department in support of their appeal has also submitted that violation of Regulation 10(a), 10(e) and 10(n) of CBLR, 2018 are grave in nature and the role of the Customs Broker is not limited to an act of omission or commission committed by their staff as he could not have done it without the knowledge of the seniors of the company and hence prayed for revocation of the Customs Broker License.

10. We have heard the learned counsel for the appellant and also the learned Authorised Representative for the Revenue and have perused the records of the case.

11. Before adverting to the merits of the matter on the allegations pertaining to Regulation 10(a), 10(e) and 10(n), we may quote the relevant provisions:

—10. Obligations of Customs Broker.—A Customs Broker shall —

(a) obtain an authorisation from each of the companies, firms or individuals by whom he is for the time being employed as a Customs Broker and produce such authorisation whenever required by the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be;

(e) exercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness of any information which he imparts to a client with reference to any work related to clearance of cargo or baggage;

(n) verify correctness of Importer Exporter Code (IEC) number, Goods and Services Tax Identification Number (GSTIN), identity of his client and functioning of his client at the declared address by using reliable, independent, authentic documents, data or information".

12. What we find from the facts of the present case is that there have been deep rooted conspiracy to manipulate the export consignment without the knowledge of the exporter, M/s Ala Food Stuff Pvt. Ltd. who are actually in the export of RICE only for the past 10 years to various countries, UAE, Yemen, Oman, etc. and had never exported to China. Sh. Akshit Arora, General Manager of the exporter in his statement recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act stated that the said consignment did not belong to their company and the alleged invoice No. 830A dated 5.5.2020 which was part of the export document did not pertain to them as they do not have series A/B. From his statement, we find that under invoice no. 830 dated 05.03.2020 the exporter had exported rice shipment to Seychelles and on 5.5.2020 the invoice no. 894 was raised. Therefore, invoice no. 830A dated 05.05.2020 was manipulated to illegally export the prohibited goods behind the back of the exporter.

13. Similarly as part of the conspiracy, the services of the appellant as customs broker was availed by concealing the involvement of the persons behind this manipulation. We find that Shri Manish Sharma, partner and F Card holder of the appellant company tendered his voluntary statement that the shipping bill was filed on the basis of export documents received from Shri Pushpraj Yadav who is running forwarding firm in the name of M/s POL Enterprises and had received the KYC documents from him but did not receive any authority letter from the exporter and also that he did not verify the address of the exporting firm as being located at Amritsar. Further, it has come on record that Mr. Kumod Kumar Choudhary, an employee of the CB firm was in charge of checking the documents and the submission on behalf of the appellant is that he could have committed the mistake in not checking the authorisation in the impugned shipping bill. We cannot rule out this possibility and the benefit of doubt will go in favour of the appellant, more so when he had promptly taken the requisite action against Sh. Kumod Kumar Choudhary by terminating his services with effect from 16.05.2020 and also by registering FIR on the same day. The fact that within three days from the date the consignment was kept on hold on 13.05.2020, the appellant had acted diligently and there was no delay on the part of the appellant, therefore, no mala fides can be attributed on CHA. Even Sh. Kumod Kumar Choudhary who was absconding had surrendered H Card. In this regard, we may refer to the decision of the Delhi High Court in Kunal Travels (Cargo) Vs. CC (I &G), IGI Airport, New Delhi - 2017 (354) ELT 447, (Del.) where the contention of the appellant had been that the documents were filed unauthorisedly by a person incompetent to do so and the action of the employee has not been defended and claimed ignorance and innocence of the contents of the consignment, it was held that there cannot be a presumption of its deliberate act or intention to defraud and the appellant cannot be faulted or punished in the manner it has been. The court also observed that given the factual finding that the CHA was not aware of the misuse of the G cards, (and thus, also unaware of the contents being smuggled), no additional blame can be heaped upon the CHA on that count alone.

14. There appears to be no doubt that fraud has been committed by manipulating the documents to enable the illegal export of prohibited goods but there is no evidence to say that the appellant connived or was aware of the modus-operandi. However, we cannot ignore that by virtue of a license granted under the Regulations, a customs broker is eligible and entitle to carry on the work of clearance of goods for import and export. As laid down in various decisions, CHA occupies a very important position in the Customs House. He is supposed to safeguard the interests of both the importers and the Customs and therefore a lot of trust is kept in CHA by the importers or exporters as well as by the Government Agencies, Noble Agency Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai 2002 (142) ELT 84. Therefore, the appellant when he admits that he did not verify the address of the exporting company as they were in Amritsar and also did not raise any query for non production of the authorization from the exporter company had violated the obligations cast on a customs broker under the Regulations. Considering the extent of violation that can be attributed to the appellant and the fact noted by the Commissioner that active role was played by Shri Kumod Kumar Choudhary, employee of the CB and role of CB has not come out anywhere in the investigation as also CB has taken immediate action against the employee, we feel that applying the doctrine of proportionality the forfeiture of security deposit is far beyond proportion and imposition of penalty of Rs. 50,000/- is sufficient. We therefore modify the impugned order to the extent that forfeiture of the security deposit needs to be set aside and only the order whereby the penalty has been imposed is affirmed. We therefore, partly allow the appeal filed by the appellant, customs broker as referred above.

15. The appeal filed by the department against the impugned order for not revoking the customs broker license needs to be dismissed for the reasons stated while considering the appeal of the customs broker. Moreover, it has been settled over the period that no doubt, CHA is a link between the Customs Authorities and the importer and the CBLR Regulations imposes obligation upon them which have to be taken as mandatory but any and every infraction of the CHA Regulations do not justify the imposition of punishment of revocation of license.

16. We may refer to the decision of this Tribunal in Falcon Air Cargo and Travels (P) Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi - 2002 (141) ELT 284 where one of the charges related to improper employee supervision and it was observed that:

"7. …….The Delhi High Court, while remanding the matter, had expressed the view that "when revocation is directed it has to be only in cases where infraction is of a very serious nature warranting exemplary action on the part of the authorities, otherwise two types of actions (suspension and revocation) would not have been provided for.....the authorities while dealing with the consequences of any action which may give rise to action for suspension, revocation or non-renewal have to keep several aspects in mind. Primarily, the effect of the action vis-a-vis right to carry on trade or profession in the background of Article 19(1)(g) of the Constitution has to be noted. It has also to be borne in mind that the proportionality question is of great significance as action is under a fiscal statute and may ultimately lead to a civil death". Similar views were echoed by the Tribunal in the case of Lohia Travel & Cargo, supra, wherein the Tribunal held that "revocation of licence..... is a grave punishment as it deprives permanently a person of the means of livelihood". In the said case where the allegations were short shipment with the connivance of CHA's employee and export of hasish by the employee, the Tribunal held that no case for revocation of CHA's licence had been made as the CHA was not aware of the fraud committed by their employees. The Tribunal also took into consideration the fact that "the CHA has already suffered hardship, for being out of business during the period of suspension of the licence..... and thereafter during the refusal of temporary renewal of licence .... and since August, 2000 when the Adjudicating Authority revoked their licence". In the present matter also, the licence was not functional after 13-1- 2000, as observed by the High Court, and it was revoked by the impugned Order dated 13-7-2000. The charges against the Appellants, in our view are not so grave that a grave punishment of revocation of licence is called for. It is well settled law that punishment should be commensurate with the offence. In the facts and circumstances of the present matter and particularly in view of the findings of two Inquiry Officers, we feel that it is not a fit case for revoking the licence and depriving of the Appellants of their means of livelihood……"

17. In Ashiana Cargo Services Vs. Commissioner of Customs, 2014 (302) ELT 161, the Delhi High Court dealt with the issue of proportionality of the penalty to be awarded to the CHA under the Regulations and observed that revocation is justified only in case of aggravating factors that allow infraction to be levelled as grave and though it is not possible to make exhaustive list of such aggravating factors, precedent cases show that revocation of license has been upheld, where there was element of active facilitation of infraction, i .e. finding of mens-rea or a gross and flagrant violation of CHA Regulations. In the present case also we do not find that the appellant had any knowledge that illegal exports were attempted or there was any active or passive facilitation on the part of the appellant. There was no finding of any mala fide on the part of CHA such that trust operating between CHA and customs authorities was violated or irritably lost for future operation of the license. We may also take note of a later decision in Exim Cargo Service Vs. Commissioner of Customs (General) – 2019 (368) ELT 1024 where the High Court of Delhi set aside the revocation of license on the ground that there is no corroborative evidence or statement of anybody that CHA had information, knowledge, or connived in alleged forgery of invoices, mis-declaration and undervaluation.

18. In view of the various pronouncements, we do not find any merit in the appeal filed by the department and the impugned order is thereby upheld. Accordingly, the department's appeal is dismissed. (Pronounced in open Court on 2nd February, 2024)

Challenge in the present appeal is to the Order-in-OriginalNo. 07/MK/POLICY/2019 dated 04.02.2019 whereby the revocation of the Customs Broker License, forfeiture of security deposit of Rs. 5 lakhs and penalty of Rs. 50,000/- was affirmed.

2. The appellant a Customs Broker is holding a License, which isvalid up to 01.09.2026. Investigation was initiated against M/s LeoCargo Services Pvt. Ltd., M/s D.S. Cargo Agency and M/s R.P. Cargo Handling Services. On the basis of investigation report dated 10.05.2018 (received on 18.05.2018) forwarded from DRI, HQs. forinitiating proceedings against the appellant and others respectively,on the allegation that Shri Ramesh Wadhera and Shri Sanjeev Maggu were engaged in evasion of customs duty by way of diverting the goods stored in customs bonded warehouse into the domestic market without payment of customs duty. It was further revealed that the documents were forged/fabricated to show re-export warehoused goods. For this purpose, Shri Ramesh Wadhera and Shri Sanjeev Maggu created dummy firms and obtained IEC in their names, the details whereof are:

(i) M/s Accturists Overseas (OPC) Pvt. Ltd.
(ii) M/s Spark Exports
(iii) M/s Shree Shyam Enterprises
(iv) M/s Horrens Exim

During the course of investigation, statement of Shri Rajat Prabhakar, CHA, M/s R.P. Cargo Handling Services was recorded on25.07.2017, wherein he admitted that he had filed the papers for 16 consignments for two importers i.e. M/s Accturist Overseas(OPC) Pvt. Ltd., New Delhi and M/s Sparx Exports, New Delhi, that he had not physically verified the premises of M/s Accturist Overseas OPC Pvt. Ltd., New Delhi and M/s Sparx Exports, New Delhi, however in order to verify the existence of their premises he had sent a letter by speed post, asking for submitting their KYC documents; that in response to the said letter M/s Sparx Exports, New Delhi had submitted their documents but M/s Accturist Overseas OPC Pvt. Ltd. did not respond to it; that he received the KYC documents in respect of both above mentioned firms through Shri Sanjeev Maggu; that as per his understanding Shri Sanjeev Maggu was the actual controller of both above said firms; that he was working first time as Custom Broker and had received the workof above said firms after making so much effort, therefore, he thought that if he would raise questions about discrepancies of the above said firms, the clearance work of these firms would be done by some other Customs Broker, that he did not charge exorbitant charges to take benefit of the said discrepancies; that he was underthe bona fide belief that nothing wrong could be done in the case of Warehousing Bonds but later on he came to know that Shri SanjeevMaggu was a Customs Broker himself and he was carrying out clearance work of the above mentioned firms through him just to clear the goods that were imported under Warehouse Bonds in the local market by showing re-export to other foreign countries; that Shri Sanjeev Maggu was doing that just to evade his identity; that once he raised his concern to Shri Sanjeev Maggu and in response of which he threatened him to stop his payment which he was to receive from him and also threatened to give the work to some other Customs Broker; that Shri Sanjeev Maggu also threatened him dare not to contact Customs Authorities so he kept his mouth shut; that his mistake may please be condoned as that was not intentional.

3. Statement dated 19.08.2017 of Shri Lalit Dogra, proprietor and IEC holder of M/s Accturist Overseas (OPC) Pvt. Ltd. wasrecorded wherein he inter alia, stated that he was informed by Shri Sanjeev Maggu that a firm would be opened in his name and that he will be paid Rs. 15,000/- per month; that Shri Sanjeev Maggu had informed him that he would forge documents in which thename would be Shri Lalit Dogra but the photograph would be of some other person; that Shri Sanjeev Maggu told him to accompany Shri Samar Arora to Lakshmi Vilas Bank, Ashok Vihar tohelp in opening the account of M/s Sparx Exports and represent himself as Shri Rahul Sharma; that he was also told by Shri Sanjeev Maggu that Shri Ramesh Wadhera was the financer behindthis scheme. Accordingly, show cause notice dated 10.08.2018 was issued to the appellant for contravening the provisions ofRegulation 10(b), 10(d), 10(e) and 10(n) of the Customs Broker Licensing Regulations (CBLR, 2018). In terms of Regulation 17(1) of CBLR, 2018 inquiry officer was appointed who submitted his report dated 16.11.2018 whereby he dropped the charges against the appellant. However, the adjudicating authority based his disagreement note dated 30.11.2018 against the inquiry officer.On adjudication, vide order dated 04.02.2019 the license of the appellant has been revoked under Regulation 17 of CBLR along with forfeiture of the security deposit and imposition of fine of Rs. 50 lakhs.

4. The appellant challenged the order dated 4.2.2019 before thisTribunal, which was disposed of vide order dated 26.4.2019 and the appeal was allowed on a preliminary objection that the notice under regulation 20 of CBLR was required to be received by the Customs broker within 90 days of the receipt of the offence report and since in the present case, it was beyond the said period, the show cause notice was barred by limitation. The department challenged the order of this Tribunal in Customs Appeal No. 223/2019 before the Delhi High Court, where the issue was decidedin favour of the department that the Commissioner was only required to issue notice within the period of 90 days as it is not the requirement under Regulation 20 of CBLR, 2018 to serve a notice to the party within a period of 90 days from the date of receipt of the offence report. Accordingly, vide order dated 2.3.2023, the matter was remanded back to the Tribunal to decide the appeal on merits. Hence the appeal is listed before us.

5. We have heard both the parties at length and have perused the records of the case.

6. The learned counsel for the appellant had raised preliminary objection that show cause notice is barred by limitation and the same stands concluded by the judgment of the Delhi High Court.On merits, the learned counsel submitted that the appellant had transacted business either personally or through employees of the firm. Shri Sanjeev Maggu had never dealt with the customs authority on behalf of the Customs Broker and hence there is no violation of Regulation 10(b). According to him, the actual offence had occurred at the time of clearance of the goods from thewarehouse and for which act neither the appellant was involved norhe performed any work in connection there with. Thus there is no link between the offence and the duty/obligation assigned on the CHA and, therefore, there is no violation of Regulation 10(d). The learned counsel further submitted that the appellant had conductedthe transaction with due diligence and explained the process that he received the KYC documents from the importer and verified it from the respective sources. They have checked the IEC number of the website of the DGFT and found the same to be correct. The learned counsel relied on several judgments in support of the submissions that CHA is not supposed to look into the details of genuineness of the importer once the IEC number is produced by the importer. He argued that physical verification of the official premises or the residential premises of the importer is not required,though by way of abundant caution he had sent letters through speed post at the given address of the importers for submitting the requisite documents and which was responded thereto.

7. The learned Authorized Representative for the Revenue reiterated the findings of the adjudicating authority and submitted that as per statement dated 25.07.2017, the appellant had admitted that he knew that Shri Sanjeev Maggo is the actual ownerbut he never informed the department of this fact and thereby he connived with Shri Sanjeev Maggu in the fraud caused to thegovernment exchequer and thereby violated the provisions of Regulation 10(d). Similarly, the appellant failed to exercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness of the information whichresulted in contravention of Regulation 10(e). He further relied on the statement dated 19.08.2017 of Shri Lalit Dogra, dummy proprietor of M/s Accturist Overseas, which clearly shows that Shri Sanjeev Maggu opened the firm in his name and promised to pay him Rs. 15,000/- per month and also informed him that ShriSanjeev Maggu would forge his photograph, in his KYC i.e. voter id.The appellant having failed to notice the discrepancy in the KYC document contravened the provisions of Regulation 10(n) of CBLR, 2018. In nutshell, he submitted that the appellant did not take authorization and KYC details from the concerned importers and failed to verify the correctness of the IEC, GSTIN, identity of his client and functioning of his client at the declared address by using reliable and independent data or information it was mandatory as per Regulation 10(n). He relied on the decision of this Tribunal in the case of D.S. Cargo Agency Vs. Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi – 2021 (376) ETL 724 where the revocation of the Customs Broker License was upheld in similar circumstances.

8. Before adverting to the merits of the matter, it is relevant to note that the decision of the Tribunal in D.S. Cargo (supra) was challenged before the Delhi High Court in (CUSAA No. 2/2022) and vide judgment dated 25.09.2023 the appeal has been decided in favour of the Customs Broker by setting aside the revocation of thelicense and forfeiture of the security deposit. From the impugned order here, we find that the department had initiated proceedings both against M/s D.S. Cargo and M/s R. P. Cargo, the appellant herein as their services were utilised by Sh. Ramesh Wadhera and Sh. Sanjeev Maggu by opening importer companies in the name of other persons. Therefore, the case of the appellant as well that of DS Cargo had arisen from the same modus-operandi, where the public warehouses were used for diversion of the warehoused goods in the domestic market without payment of customs duty. The importer firms involved in the two cases are also the same.

9. The allegations raised in both the cases is identical thatimporter firms were actually controlled and operated by Shri Ramesh Wadhera and Shri Sanjeev Maggu and the imported goods meant for re-export stored at public bonded warehouses were diverted into the domestic markets without payment of the customsduty which caused loss to the government exchequer. On thatbasis, the Customs broker had been charged for violation of the provisions of Regulation 10(b), 10(d), 10(e) and 10(n) of CBLR, 2018. Having given our anxious consideration to the decision of theDelhi High Court in D S Cargo, we are of the view that the same is squarely applicable to the present case and we would therefore liketo quote in extenso the paragraphs of the decision in D S Cargo as under :

“Regulation 10(b) of CBLR, 2018 read with 11(b) of CBLR, 2013

“11. The Commissioner has held the Appellant guilty of contravention of this Regulation on the finding that the Appellant herein has admitted that Mr. Sanjeev Maggu used to perform various functions pertaining to these importer firms such as bond approval from the New Custom House, New Delhi. The Commissioner held that the Appellant had become aware that the importer firms were dummy firms being (illegally) run by Mr. Ramesh Wadhera in connivance withSh. Sanjeev Maggu and yet he allowed Sh. Sanjeev Maggu to transact business with Customs authorities; and this act and omissionof the Appellant was in contravention of this Regulation.

11.1. The Tribunal while upholding the said finding of theCommissioner opined that the said Regulation has been contravened since Mr. Sanjeev Maggu transacted business at the Customs Station despite not being the authorized representative either of the importerfirms or the Appellant herein.

12. In the facts of this case admittedly, Mr. Sanjeev Maggu never acted on behalf of the Appellant but was acting only on behalf of the importer firms. There is no material placed on record to show that Mr. Sanjeev Maggu ever acted on behalf of the Appellant at the Customs Station.

12.1. On a plain textual reading of the Regulation, it is apparent that a Customs Broker is required to transact the business at the CustomsStation either personally or through his/her authorized employee. In the facts of this case, there is no material on record toindicate/suggest that the Appellant had not carried out the work of filing the B/Es either personally or through his authorized employee.

12.2. The finding of the Commissioner and the learned Tribunal that Mr. Sanjeev Maggu was not authorized to act on behalf of the importer firms cannot form the basis of holding the Appellant guilty of violation of this Regulation. In the facts of this case, the sine qua nonfor attracting Regulation 10(b) of CBLR, 2018 is not present and the impugned order invoking the said Regulation is erroneous.

12.3. Therefore, in the opinion of this Court there has been noviolation of Regulation 10(b) of CBLR, 2018 read with 11(b) of CBLR, 2013 and the learned Tribunal erred in holding that Mr. Sanjeev Maggu acted on behalf of the Appellant at the Customs Station.

Regulation 10(d) of CBLR, 2018 read with 11(d) of CBLR,2013.

13. The Commissioner held that the Appellant had contravened this Regulation in view of his reply to question no. 8 in the statement recorded before the DRI on 14.07.2017, since he failed to advice the importer firms to comply with the provisions of the Act as regards re- export of the warehoused goods. The Commissioner further held that the Appellant contravened this Regulation by failing to report the wrongdoings of the importer firms to the Customs authorities after learning about their illegal actions in diverting the goods into the domestic market.

13.1. The learned Tribunal as well upheld the findings of the Commissioner in view of the answer of the Appellant to question no.
8 in the statement recorded before the DRI on 14.07.2017 andopined that the Appellant failed to seek clarification from the importerfirms as regards the re-exports.

14. As per Section 146 of the Act, the role of a custom agent is related to the business of entry or departure of goods at any CustomsStation. The obligation of the Appellant in the facts of this case was tofacilitate clearance of goods for warehousing, at the Customs Station and no further. Therefore, the duty of the Appellant as a Customs Broker came to an end once the imported goods, after its clearance from the Customs Station, reached the public bonded warehouse.

14.1. The Appellant, admittedly was not charged with any responsibility for clearance of the goods from the public bondedwarehouse for the purpose of re-export.

14.2. The imported goods meant for the re-export were stored at the public bonded warehouses and the illegality by the importer firms wascommitted when the said goods were diverted by them into the domestic market without payment of the applicable custom duty. It isstated by the Respondent that the said importer firms filed fabricated documents to falsely show the re-export of the goods. However, admittedly, the Appellant herein had no role to play at this stagewhen the false documents of re-export were filed by the importer firms with the Customs authorities.

14.3. In the facts of this case, it has come on record that the persons controlling the importer firms acted on their ownaccord when they conspired to defraud the revenue; there is no allegation that they were acting on the aid or advice of the Appellant. There is admittedly no allegation against the Appellant that he abetted the diversion of the imported goods.

14.4. The proprietor of Appellant, in reply to question no. 8 in the statement recorded by DRI on 14.07.2017, stated that he 'subsequently' learnt that the goods which had been imported for re- export were being sold in the domestic market. In this statement there is no admission that the Appellant was aware at the time of the filing of the warehousing bill of entry with the Customs Station that the importer firms intended to divert the imported goods into the domestic market.

14.5. In the aforesaid facts, the findings of the Commissioner and thelearned Tribunal to the effect that the Appellant failed to advice the importer firms with respect to their obligation on re-export of the goods is unjustified as the Appellant was not responsible for the discharge of said obligation by the importer firms.

15. In the opinion of this Court, the Appellant cannot be held guilty ofcontravention of this Regulation on account of the personal acts and omissions of the importer firms.

15.1. The Appellant specifically raised a contention before the Commissioner that he cannot be held liable for the illegal acts of the importer firms subsequent to the clearance of the goods from the Customs Station; however, this issue has neither been answered by the Commissioner nor analyzed by the learned Tribunal.

15.2. The Supreme Court in the case of Collector of Customs, Cochin v. Trivandrum Rubber Works Ltd., Chacki, (1999) 2 SCC 553, held that a Customs Broker is an agent for only limited purpose of arranging release of goods and once the goods are cleared, he has nofurther function and he is not liable for any duty, liability or other actions, which are required to be initiated only against the importer. The relevant portion of the aforesaid judgment reads as under:

"8. In the present case, notice has been given under Section 28 to the owner/importer as a person chargeable to duty. The notice must, therefore, be served on the owner/importer. A service on the clearing agent of the owner/importer long after the clearing agent has ceased to deal with the goods in question under the Customs Act, cannot be treated as valid service of notice on the owner/importer.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant relied uponSection 229 of the Contract Act, 1872 under which any notice given to or information obtained by the agent, provided it be given or obtained in the course of the business transacted by him for the principal, shall, as between the principal and third parties,have the same legal consequences as if it had been given to or obtained by the principal. A contractbetween the importer and his clearing agent, however, is a special contract under which a clearingagent is authorised to perform various functions under the Customs Act for the purpose of clearing the goods from the Customs. Once he has discharged all his duties and functions as such agent and the goods in question have been cleared and delivered to the importer/owner, his work as a clearing agent in respect of the goods ordinarilycomes to an end. Any notice served on him thereafter in respect of goods already cleared cannotbe construed as a notice given in the course ofbusiness of clearing the goods concerned, transactedby him for the principal."

15.3. The obligation of the Customs Broker under this Regulation has to be read in the context of the duties discharged by him/her under Section 146 of the Act. There is no duty imposed on the Customs Broker under the parent Act to report commission of acts or omissions of its principal, which are in violation of the provisions of the Act.

Since the CBLR, 2018 have been made under Section 146(2) of the Act and are intended to regulate the grant of license to a Customs Broker, the scope of this Regulation cannot be enlarged to read into ita general duty to report violations of the provisions of the Act by his/her clients which come to his/her knowledge after his/her professional role has come to an end.

15.4. The Customs Broker acts under the CBLR, 2018, and his/her function under the license is only to transact any business relating to entry or departure of conveyances or the import or export of goods atany Customs Station. Therefore, in the facts of this case, the duty to report non- compliance under this Regulation can only be confined to reporting the non- compliances of the declaration signed by the Customs Broker and the importer while presenting the bills of entry to the Customs authorities, which come to his attention after submitting the bills of entry. For instance, if the Customs Broker findsout that the documents filed by the importer with the Bill of Entry areforged, he/she would be required to apprise this fact to the Customs authorities. Further, the obligation of the Customs Broker to not file documents, which to his knowledge are incorrect does not require any reiteration.

15.5. In the opinion of this Court, the Appellant is not liablefor reporting an offence committed by the importer firms in relation to goods stored in the public bonded warehouse after the professional role of Customs Broker in the clearance of goods has ended and no such responsibility of reporting offences can be read into Regulation 10(d) of CBLR, 2018. The obligation of the Appellant to bring the issue of non- compliance to the Customs authorities can only be confined to documents submitted by the Customs Broker himself/herself for the clearance of the goods from the Customs Station at thetime of entry or departure. In the facts of this case there is no finding that there was any error or discrepancy in the warehousing bill of entry submitted by the Appellant at the Customs Station.

15.6. Therefore, in the facts of this case, in the opinion of this Court there has been no violation of Regulation 10(d) of CBLR, 2018 read with 11(d) of CBLR, 2013.

15.7. The question framed at paragraph no. 3, is accordingly, answered in the aforesaid terms.

Regulation 10(e) of CBLR, 2018 read with 11(e) of CBLR,2013.

16. In the facts of this case, this Court is of the opinion that there hasbeen no violation of Regulation 10(e) of CBLR, 2018 read with Regulation 11(e) of CBLR, 2013. The Commissioner held that the Appellant by dealing with Sh. Sanjeev Maggu on behalf of the importer firms in clearance of the cargo, failed to exercise due diligence and thereby causing loss to the revenue. The learned Tribunal referred to the answer given by the Appellant to question no. 8 in the statement dated 14.07.2017 to uphold this finding of the Commissioner.

16.1. The said Regulation casts a duty on the Customs Broker to exercise due diligence in communicating correct information to a client with reference to any work related to clearance of cargo. The said Regulation has no concern/application with the acts or omissions of the importer firms itself. (Re: Kunal Travels (Cargo) v.Commissioner of Customs (Import & General), 2017 SCC OnLine Del 7683)

17. There is no finding in the order of the Commissioner that the Appellant had given any incorrect information to the importer firms in the process adopted for the clearance of the goods at the Customs Station or in any manner abetted the importer firms in the diversion of the goods from the public bonded warehouse to the domestic market. In the opinion of this Court, the findings of the Commissioner and the learned Tribunal do not furnish any ground for alleging contravention of this Regulation. The illegal actions of the importer firms subsequent to the clearance of the cargo from the Customs Station do not attract the violation of Regulation 10(e) ofCBLR, 2018 read with Regulation 11(e) of CBLR, 2013, by the Appellant.

Regulation 10(n) of CBLR, 2018 read with 11(n) of CBLR,2013.

18. The aforesaid Regulation requires the Customs Broker to verify the identity of his client, which includes the identification documents as well as the information provided by the client.

18.1. The Commissioner and the learned Tribunal have held that the Appellant failed to verify the identity of the importer firms and the antecedents of Mr. Sanjeev Maggu with whom the Appellant had dealtwith and exchanged the documents for filing before the Customs Station. The Commissioner concluded that since the KYC documents provided by the importer firms were forged, an early detection by Customs Broker could have prevented the evasion of customs duty.

18.2. The Appellant has stated that he relied upon the result of verification of the original Importer Exporter Code (hereafter 'IEC'), which were mandatorily supplied on the functional address of the importer. It is stated that the IEC number was duly verified by the Appellant from the website of Directorate General of Foreign Trade (hereafter 'DGFT') and found the same to be valid. The IEC number was standing in the name of the importer firms and the physical addresses mentioned therein duly matched with the declared addressfurnished by the importer firms. The said fact of valid IEC has not been disputed by the Respondent.

18.3. In this regard, it would be relevant to refer to the judgment ofa Coordinate Bench of this Court in Kunal Travels (Cargo) (supra), wherein this Court held that when an importer firm holds an IEC, there is a presumption attached that the KYC of the importer by physical verification of the address would have been done by the Customs authorities. The relevant portion of the judgment in Kunal Travels (Cargo) (supra) reads as under:

"12. Clause (e) of the aforesaid Regulation requires exercise of due diligence by the CHA regarding such information which he may give to his client withreference to any work related to clearance of cargo. Clause (l) requires that all documents submitted,such as bills of entry and shipping bills delivered etc. reflect the name of the importer/exporter and the name of the CHA prominently at the top of such documents. The aforesaid clauses do not obligate theCHA to look into such information which may be made available to it from the exporter/importer. The CHA is not an inspector to weigh the genuineness of the transaction. It is a processing agent of documents with respect to clearance of goods through customs house and in that process onlysuch authorized personnel of the CHA can enter the customs house area. What is noteworthy is that the IE Code of the exporter M/s. H.M. Impex was mentioned in the shipping bills, this itself reflectsthat before the grant of said IE Code, the background check of the said importer/exporter had been undertaken by the customs authorities, therefore, there was no doubt about the identity of the said exporter. It would be far too onerous to expect the CHA to inquire into and verify the genuineness of the IE Code given to it by a client for each import/export transaction. When such code is mentioned, there is a presumption that an appropriate background check in this regard i.e. KYCetc. would have been done by the customs authorities. There is nothing on record to show that the appellant had knowledge that the goods mentioned in the shipping bills did not reflect the truth of the consignment sought to be exported. In the absence of such knowledge, there cannot be any mens rea attributed to the appellant or its proprietor. Whatever may be the value of the goods,in the present case, simply because upon inspection of the goods they did not corroborate with what was declared in the shipping bills, cannot be deemed as mis-declaration by the CHA because the saiddocument was filed on the basis of information provided to it by M/s. H.M. Impex, which had already been granted an IE Code by the DGFT. The grant of the IE Code presupposes a verification of facts etc. made in such application with respect tothe concern or entity. If the grant of such IE Code toa non- existent entity at the address WZ-156, Madipur, New Delhi - 63 is in doubt, then for such erroneous grant of the IE Code, the appellant cannotbe faulted. The IE Code is the proof of locus standi ofthe exporter. The CHA is not expected to do a background check of the exporter/client who approaches it for facilitation services in export and imports. Regulation 13(e) of the CHALR 2004 requires the CHA to:"exercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness of any information whichhe imparts to a client with reference to any work related to clearance of cargo or baggage" (emphasis supplied). The CHAs due diligence is for information that he may give to its client and not necessarily to do a background check of either the client or of the consignment. Documents prepared or filed by a CHA are on the basis of instructions/documents received from its client/importer/exporter. Furnishing of wrong or incorrect information cannot be attributed to the CHA if it was innocently filed in the belief and faith that its client has furnished correct information and veritable documents. The misdeclaration would be attributable to the client if wrong informationwere deliberately supplied to the CHA. Hence there could be no guilt, wrong, fault or penalty on the appellant apropos the contents of the shipping bills. Apropos any doubt about the issuance of the IE Codeto M/s. H.S. Impex, it was for the respondents to take appropriate action. Furthermore, the inquiryreport revealed that there was no delay in processing the documents by the appellant under Regulation 13(n)."

18.4. The Appellant has stated that there is no dispute that importer firms exist and they have participated in the investigation conducted by DRI. It is stated that the fact that these firms are dummy firms which are controlled by third parties was a fact which was not within the knowledge of the Appellant while he was initially dealing with the said firms for clearance of cargo; and was a fact which came to his knowledge subsequently after the goods had already been cleared by the Customs Station.

18.5. Appellant also states that the reliance placed by theCommissioner on the statement of Mr. Lalit Dongra is not justified since the Aadhar Card which is alleged to have been forged has not been placed on record.

19. A perusal of the written submissions filed by the Respondent would show that the Respondents have found the Appellant 'negligent' in verifying the KYC documents of the importer firms as hefailed to obtain the requisite KYC documents and/or verify the documents made available to him by the importer firms.

20. This Court has perused the record. In the facts of this case, there is no allegation of impersonation in the name of importer firms. The finding of DRI is that these importer firms were not being run and operated by the persons in whose name the importerfirms were incorporated. The allegation is not that these firms are fictitious and do not exist. The finding is that these firms are being run and remotely controlled by Mr. Sanjeev Maggu and Mr. Ramesh Wadhera. The Regulation requires the Customs Broker to verify the identity of the client (i.e., importer firms) and in the facts of this case since the clients (i.e., importer firms) exist as is evident from the functionality of the IEC (as discussed above), it is not possible to hold that there has been a blatant violation of this Regulation, which would justify the revocation of CB license."

10. From the submissions made by the Revenue it appears that they have not pressed on the violation of the provisions of Regulation 10(b) of CBLR, 2018. Also from the records, we find that Shri Sanjeev Maggu never acted on behalf of the appellant (Customs Broker) but acted on behalf of the importer. The appellant either himself or through his employees transacted with the Customs authority for clearance of the goods. Thus, there is noviolation of Regulation 10(b) of CBLR, 2018. On the basis of the statement of the appellant dated 25.07.2017, the allegations levelled by the Revenue in nutshell are that the appellant knew thatSh. Sanjeev Maggu is the actual owner but he never informed this fact to the department and thus he connived with Shri Sanjeev Maggu in the fraud. The fraud alleged here is of diverting the goods from the warehouse instead of re-exporting, which had occurred after the role of the appellant had come to an end as the goods had reached the customs bonded warehouse. Hence the appellant cannot be linked to the fraud and the same cannot be stretched to contravention of the provisions of the Regulations. We find from the records of the case that the appellant in order to verify the existence of the premises of the two importer firms had sent letters by speed post asking them to submit the requisite documents and in response thereto he received the KYC documents. It has been repeatedly held that it is not the legal requirement to physically verify the business premises or the residential premises of the importer, i.e., M/s Setwin Shipping Agency Vs. Commissioner of Customs (General) Mumbai 2010 (250) ELT, 141 (Tri.-Mum), M/s Him Logistics Pvt. Ltd. vs. Commissioner of Customs 2016 (338) ELT, 725 (Tri.-Del.) and Commissioner of Customs Vs. Yogesh Kumar, 2017 (349) ELT 12 (Del.). The fact that the appellant had sent the letter by speed post at the given address and M/s Spark Exportshad responded and the KYC documents were submitted by both theimporters shows that the appellant had fulfilled the obligation underthe Regulations. The appellant verified the IEC number from the site of the DGFT and personally met Sh. Lalit Dogra and Sh. Samar Arora, proprietors of the two firms. As noted above, the High Court in Kunal Travels (supra) held that grant of IEC Code presupposesa verification of facts etc. made in such application with respect to the concern or entity.

11. We also find that in the inquiry report, the findings of the inquiry officer were in favour of the appellant on the basis of the reasoning which is now accepted by the High Court in D S Cargo. We may quote the observations of the inquiry officer as under:

" They performed their work in the capacity of Customs Broker upto warehousing of the goods. The importer had never admitted that they have committed this fraud with the help of M/s R P Cargo and they have taken assistance in clearance of warehoused goods. There is no link between the offence and the duty assigned on CHA / Customs Broker." Itwas therefore, concluded :

"I find that M/s R. P. Cargo, the customs broker has not violated the provisions of Regulations 10(b), 10 (d), 10(e) & 10(n) of CBLR, 2018 read with 11(b), 11 (d), 11(e) & 11(n) of CBLR, 2013."

The case of the appellant is on a better footing since in the case of D.S. Cargo, the Inquiry Officer recorded the finding that the allegation made in the show cause notice are proved againstthe appellant and recommended action.

12. On the issue of proportionality of imposing the punishment, we are again guided by the decision of the Delhi High Court in D.S. Cargo (supra) where the Court took note of the fact that the revocation of the license came into effect on 4.2.2019 and more than 4 1/2 years had lapsed which itself is a severe punishmentand will serve as a reprimand to the appellant to conduct its affairs with more alacrity, the same order needs to be maintained. In the present case also, the order of revocation came into effect on 4.2.2019 and almost more than five years have lapsed since the appellant has been out of work on that account and which is a sufficient punishment for him to be cautious in future. In the facts of the present case, the punishment by way of revocation of licenseand forfeiture of security deposit is too harsh.

13. The decision of the High Court in D.S. Cargo (supra) clarifying that the illegal actions of the importer firms subsequentto the clearance of the cargo from the Customs Station do not attract the violation on the part of the Customs Broker is binding onus and we do not find any reason to differ from the same as the controversy had arisen in the same set of facts in both the cases. Hence the impugned order upholding the revocation of the license and also the forfeiture of the security amount is set aside, however the penalty imposed is upheld. The impugned order is modified to that extent. Accordingly, the appeal is partly allowed.

P V SUBBA RAO:

M/s. Ananya Exim[1] filed this appeal to assail the Order-in- Original[2]dated 04.10.2019 passed by the Commissioner of Customs(General), New Delhi whereby he revoked the Customs Brokers licence of the appellant, forfeited its security deposit and imposed apenalty of Rs. 50,000/- under the Customs Broker Licensing Regulations, 2018[3].

2. The facts of the case, in brief, are that the appellant was a licensed Customs Broker and had filed two Bills of Entry dated 25.1.2019 and 28.1.2019 with M/s. Angel Incorporation as the importer and describing the imported goods as ‘Green Tea’. Receiving intelligence that there was an attempt to import ‘Dry Khat’ leaves, a psychotropic substance listed at S.No. 110xof the ‘List of Psychotropic Substances’ in the Schedule to the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 through these Bills ofEntry, the imported goods were examined and tested and it was, indeed, found to be 'dry khat' and not 'green tea'. The goods were accordingly seized and samples were tested by the Central Revenue Control Laboratory[4] and investigations were carried out which established that imported goods were dry khat and not green tea.

3. Further investigations revealed that the appellant had previously filed four bills of entry in the name of the same importer describing the goods as 'green tea' or 'dried green leaf' which were cleared through the Risk Management System[5] of the Customs based on self-assessment, i.e., without assessment or examination by the officers and they were also investigated.

4. To fully comprehend the facts of this case and examine this appeal, it would be necessary to discuss, the standard method of documentation in imports by air.

5. When goods are imported by air, the airline receives the goods from the exporter and issues an Airway Bill which is the counterpart of the Bill of Lading issued by Shipping lines (if goods are imported by sea) and is the document of title. The exporter sends the Airway Bill issued by the airline to the importer. The airline transports the goods into India and gives their custody to the custodian of the air cargo complex (which is the counterpart of the port/inland container depot/container freight station). The importer (or on his behalf, his Customs Broker) files the Bill of Entry with the Customs giving details of the goods imported, duty payable, etc. and after Customs clears the goods for home consumption, the importer receives the goods from the custodian of the air cargo complex showing the Bill of Entry (evidencing that the consignment was cleared by the Customs) and the Airway bill (evidencing his title to the goods). A gate pass is also issued so that the security guard at the exit gate of the air cargo complex knows that the consignment can be taken out.

6. If the individual consignments are small, usually an aggregator collects them and packs them onto a larger pallet and gives them to the airline. In such a case, the airline issues the Master Airway Bill in the name of the aggregator who, in turn, issues house airway bills for each of the consignments indicating the names of the exporter and importer in each case. These are similar to the Master Bill of Lading and House Bills of Lading issued when several small consignments (less than container load or LCL) are exported and imported by sea.

7. In this case, although the term 'Master Airway Bill' was used (somewhat inaccurately) in the impugned order, a perusal of the airway bill in question shows that there was only an airway bill which was issued by the airline and there were no separate 'master airway bill' and 'house airway bill'.

8. Since the airline is responsible to deliver the goods to the custodian who, in turn, is responsible to deliver them to the importer, the nature of the goods received, quantity, marks and numbers, etc. are clearly mentioned in the Airway Bill. Of course, if a packet is delivered which is said to contain X and it actually contains Y, the airway bill will indicate that it received a packet said to contain X (because the airlines cannot open and check the contents of each packet).

9. The importer has to file the Bill of Entry indicating the nature of the goods, quantity, etc. in the Bill of Entry, which, has to match the goods actually imported. Since the Airway bill (or Bill of Lading in case of imports by sea) also contains these details, the airway bill has to match with the Bill of Entry.

10. In all these imports, the Airway Bills issued by the airlines clearly indicated 'Dry Khat' as the goods imported while in the Bills of Entry, the goods were described as 'green tea' or 'dried green leaves.

11. If articles of food are imported, a No Objection Certificate[6] is required from the Foods Safety Standards Authority of India[7] for which an online system is available in which also the goods were described in all these Bills of Entry as 'green tea' and NOT as 'dry khat' and the NOC was obtained in these imports. Thus, there was a clear mis-declaration of the nature of the goods in the Bills of Entry as well as in the documentation provided to obtain an NOC from the FSSAI for import.

12. The Joint Commissioner of the Air Cargo Complex Import, New Delhi through which the import was made, and which discovered the mis-declaration of dry khat and its import in violation of the NDPS Act, sent a letter dated 12.2.2019 to the Commissioner of Customs (General), New Delhi (who had issued the licence to the Customs Broker) intimating about the import of dry khat. The Commissioner of Customs (General) issued a Show Cause Notice[8] dated 9.5.2019 to the appellant and appointed an Inquiry officer under the CBLR, 2018 who submitted his report stating that the appellant had violated Regulations

10(a), 10(d),10(e), 10(m) and 10(n) but found that the appellant had notviolated Regulation 10 (j). The appellant submitted its reply to the findings of the Inquiry Report. After following due process, the Commissioner passed the impugned order holding that the appellant had violated regulations 10(a), 10(d), 10(e), 10(m) and 10(n) of CBLR 2018 and revoked its licence, forfeited securitydeposit of Rs. 5,00,000/- and imposed penalty amount of Rs.50,000 under Regulation 17 of CBLR 2018.

Submissions on behalf of the appellant

13. Learned counsel for the appellant made the following submissions.

13.1 The Commissioner has, in the impugned order atparagraph 21.1, recorded that the appellant had admitted that he did not have the KYC documents in possession which is factually incorrect because when the appellantwas summoned on 4.2.2018, he had submitted all the KYCdocuments which, were, however, not acknowledged bythe department;

13.2 The statements of the appellant recorded on 2.2.2018 and4.2.2018 were not in his handwriting but were typed and the appellant was simply asked to sign and he did so. Therefore, the allegation that the appellant had violated Regulation 10(a) is not correct;

13.3 In paragraph 21.2 of the impugned order, the Commissioner recorded that the appellant did not know about the whereabouts of Shri Samir kumar @ Rajaji, the importer and despite knowing that the IEC being used is a dummy, he continued to file the Bill of Entry. This finding is not correct because the appellant had clearly filed theBill of Entry in discharge of his obligations. The whereabouts of the importer and his authorised representative were found on verification. Therefore, the allegations that the appellant had violated Regulations 10(d) and 10(e) are not correct;

13.4 In paragraph 21.4 of the impugned order, the Commissioner observed that the importer was not existingat the declared address and the appellant was also not aware of the post clearance destination of the goods.Therefore, he held that the appellant had violated Regulation 10(m). This finding is not correct as the appellant had discharged its responsibilities and even obtained a No Objection Certificate from the FSSAI and cleared the goods with utmost efficiency. Therefore, there was no violation of Regulation 10(m);

13.5 In paragraph 21.5 of the impugned order, the Commissioner observed that since the importer was non- existing at the declared address and the appellant had no knowledge about his whereabouts, it was concluded that the appellant had not verified the identity of the clients as well as functioning of the client at that address. Regulation10(n) requires the Customs Broker to verify the identity ofthe client and its functioning at the declared address by using reliable, independent, authentic documents, data or information. The appellant had submitted two documents to prove the identity of the importer and its functioning at the given address. Thus, the appellant had not violated Regulation 10(n).

Submissions on behalf of the Revenue

14. Learned authorised representative for the Revenue supportedthe impugned order and asserted that it calls for no interference.He submitted that the appellant, as a Customs Broker, was required to file the Bills of Entry correctly after obtaining an authorization from the importer. The appellant had not even contacted M/s Angel Corporation but had filed Bills of Entry in its name based on the documents provided to it by one Shri Tarakeshwar Dubey who supplied Airway Bills after charging the description of the goods. The appellant filed these benami Bills of Entry through which the psychotropic substance was imported. In doing so, the appellant violated CBLR 2018 held in the impugned order.

Findings

15. The questions before us are whether the appellant had violated Regulations 10(a), 10(d), 10(e), 10(m) and 10 (n) and if so, whether revocation of licence, forfeiture of security deposit and imposition of penalty under Regulation 17 in the impugned order can be sustained. These Regulations read as follows:

1. Short title, commencement and application. —

(1) These regulations may be called the Customs BrokersLicensing Regulations, 2018.

(2) They shall come into force on the date of publication inthe Official Gazette.

(3) These regulations shall apply to, a Customs Broker who has been licensed and such other persons who have been employed or engaged by a licensed Customs Broker under these regulations or the Customs House Agents Licensing Regulations, 1984 or the Customs House Agents Licensing Regulations, 2004 or the Customs Brokers Licensing Regulations, 2013.

(4) Every license granted or renewed under these regulations shall be deemed to have been granted or renewed in favour of the licensee, and no license shall be sold or otherwise transferred.

10. Obligations of Customs Broker. A Customs Broker shall —

(a) obtain an authorisation from each of the companies,firms or individuals by whom he is for the time being employed as a Customs Broker and produce such authorisation whenever required by the DeputyCommissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be;

……..

(d) advise his client to comply with the provisions of the Act,other allied Acts and the rules and regulations thereof, andin case of non-compliance, shall bring the matter to the notice of the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be;

(e) exercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness of anyinformation which he imparts to a client with reference toany work related to clearance of cargo or baggage;

(m) A Custom Broker shall discharge his duties with utmostspeed and efficiency and without any delay;

(n) verify correctness of Importer Exporter Code (IEC) number, Goods and Services Tax Identification Number (GSTIN), identity of his client and functioning of his client at the declared address by using reliable, independent,authentic documents, data or information;

16. We now proceed to examine the alleged violations of each of these clauses:

Regulation 10(a)

17. It requires the Customs Broker to obtain an authorisationfrom each of the companies, firms or individuals by whom he is for the time being employed as a Customs Broker and produce such authorisation whenever required by the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be.

18. In the impugned order, the Commissioner held that Regulation 10(a) was violated as the appellant had not obtained any authorization for the consignments from the importer M/s. Angel Corporation at all. When the goods were examined in the presence of the G card holder of the appellant, he said that the documents for this import were obtained by Shri Ashutosh Shukla, the 'F' card holder of the appellant from one Shri TarkeshwarDubey alias Deepak. Shri Shukla also admitted that the authorization to clear the consignment was not obtained from the importer M/s. Angel Corporation and that he had received the documents from Shri Tarkeshwar Dubey and the credentials of the importer firm M/s. Angel Corporation were not verified at all.

19. The submission of the learned counsel for the appellant isthat since the documents of the importer have been obtained by it, there is no violation of Regulation 10(a) at all.

20. However, we find that in this case, investigations revealed that M/s. Angel corporation had nothing to do with the imports and Shri Tarkeshwar Dubey was the master mind of the operationwhich he undertook for some Somalians. The Airway Bill issued by the airline showed the goods as 'Dry Khat' but Shri Dubey changed the description of the goods in the Airway Bill and sent them to the appellant who filed the Bills of Entry with wrong description of the goods. There is nothing on record to show that the appellant was involved in the smuggling of Dry Khat or profited from it. However, the question in this appeal is simply whether the appellant had obtained the authorization from the importer firm, as was required as per Regulation 10(a) or not.

21. Had the appellant approached M/s. Angel Corporation, the importer and obtained the documents from them, or at least,checked with M/s. Angel Corporation even through a phone call or email, it would have known in no time that the consignment wasnot imported at all by M/s. Angel Corporation and the entire racket of smuggling of the psychotropic substance would have come to light. In this factual matrix, we have no hesitation in holding that the appellant had failed to obtain authorization from M/s. Angel Corporation, the importer and thereby violatedits obligation under Regulation 10(a).

Regulation 10(d)

22. Regulation 10(d) requires that the Customs Broker to advise his client to comply with the provisions of the Act, other allied Acts and the rules and regulations thereof, and in case of non-compliance, shall bring the matter to the notice of the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs,as the case may be. Learned counsel for the appellant denies that there was any violation of Regulation 10(d) at all.

23. In this case, the client of the appellant on paper is M/s. AngelCorporation. Not only did the appellant not advise Angel Corporation to comply with the provisions of the Act and allied Acts, but it has not even contacted the client. In fact, it filed the Bill of Entry in the name of M/s. Angel Corporation without even contacting them and thus the import of the psychotropic substance 'dry khat' took place. We, therefore, have no hesitation inholding that the appellant had violated Regulation 10(d).

Regulation 10(e)

24. This Regulation requires the Customs Broker to exercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness of any information which he imparts to a client with reference to any work related to clearanceof cargo or baggage.

25. The entire facts of the case are not that the appellant had provided wrong or incorrect information to its clients but that it hadfiled Bills of Entry on the basis of the wrong information provided by a person who was not the importer but some other person.

26. We, therefore, do not find on the facts of this case that the appellant had provided any wrong or incorrect information. Therefore, the appellant did not violate Regulation 10(e).

Regulation 10(m)

27. This Regulation requires the Custom Broker to discharge his duties with utmost speed and efficiency and without any delay. From the facts of this case, it does not appear that the appellant had delayed any processing. In fact, the problem is that it had processed them carelessly without taking due care. We, therefore,do not find that the appellant had violated regulation 10(m).

Regulation 10(n)

28. This Regulation requires the Customs Broker to verify correctness of Importer Exporter Code (IEC) number, Goods and Services Tax Identification Number (GSTIN), identity of his client and functioning of his client at the declared address by usingreliable, independent, authentic documents, data or information.

29. The submission of the learned counsel for the appellant isthat the appellant had no obligation to physically verify the identity of the importer and whether it was operating at the declaredaddress. It would suffice if it obtains at least two KYC documents which it did. Therefore, according to him, there was no violation of Regulation 10(n) at all.

30. The appellant would have been correct if it had obtained the documents from the importer M/s. Angel Corporation. Obtaining the documents from some other person and filing benami Bills of Entry to clear mis-declared cargo, which in this case, happens to be a psychotropicsubstance banned under NDPS Act cannot, in our view, constitute fulfilment of Regulation 10(n).

31. To sum up, we find that the Commissioner was correct in holding in the impugned order that the appellant hadviolated Regulations 10(a), 10(d) and 10(n).

32. The next question is if in the factual matrix of this case, if therevocation of the Customs Brokers licence of the appellant, forfeiture of its security deposit and imposition of a penalty of Rs. 50,000/- is warranted and if it is proportionate to the violations.

33. The appellant had, in this case, effectively filed benami (pseudonymous) Bills of Entry in the name of an IEC holder who had nothing to do with the imports at all. If Shri Tarkeshwar Dubey had provided the documents to the appellant (howsoever he may have obtained them), the appellant was at least required to obtain the authorisation from the importer or check with the importer if it had imported the goods. Simply by obtaining photocopies of two documents of any importer from anyone else and filing the Bill of Entry is to say the least, will have disastrous consequences. This is like an advocate filing a Writ Petition or an appeal in the name of a person without his knowledge by obtaining the documents through someone else. When an agent represents someone, the least thatis expected is that he is authorised to represent the principal. Once this obligation is fulfilled, if the principal commits any illegality without the knowledge of the agent, the agent cannot be held responsible. However, in this case, the Angel Corporation in whose name the Bills of Entry were filed had nothing to do with theimports at all. On the other hand, the appellant obtained documents from Tarakeshwar Dubey who is neither the importer onthe Bills of Entry nor were any of his KYC documents used to filethe Bill of Entry. This resulted in the psychotropic substance being imported through these benami imports.

34. A Customs Broker is expected to behave and operate responsibly and he cannot simply file benami Bills of Entry which, inthis case, resulted in import of a psychotropic substance. Filing of Benami Bills of Entry, if condoned, can have severe consequences. Customs procedures are based on trust and selective controls based on risk assessment. If Customs Brokers start filing Benami Bills of Entry, in the name of any importer, it can open the floodgates for free import of any contraband including, drugs, arms and explosives. Since examination is on selective basis, chances are that the contraband may not be detected (especially if mis- declared as a low risk import good). If caught, the importer will have nothing to do with it because the Bill of Entry is benami and the Customs Broker cannot wash off his hands saying that he had obtained copies of KYC documents through someone and not the importer which is sufficient.

35. In our considered view, filing Benami Bills of Entry is aserious violation and calls for toughest action.

36. We, therefore, find no reason to interfere with the impugned order and uphold it. The appeal is, accordingly, rejected.

DATE OF HEARING: 05.12.2023 DATE OF DECISION: 15.02.2024

FINAL ORDER NO. 50249/2024

DR. RACHNA GUPTA

The appeal has been filed being aggrieved of the Order-in- Original No. 04-05/COMMR/CUS/IND/2019-20 dated 30.07.2019 vide which Shri Kirit Shrimankar is held to be an importer of 189 consignments imported in past and cleared in proxy using dummy IECs from ICD Dhannad/Kheda during the period from December 2011 to May 2013. The CIF value declared of Rs. 10,46,01,717/- in respect of 189 consignments has been rejected and has been re- assessed at Rs. 167,90,71,403/- with the demand of differential duty, the CIF value of Rs. 6,53,99,126/- in respect of 4 live consignments has also been rejected and re-determined at Rs. 14,45,64,928/-, the value of six other live consignments valued at Rs. 3,38,99,169/- has also been rejected and the goods covered under these consignments have been ordered confiscation and the various penalties have been imposed upon all found concerned with the impugned consignments.

2. The facts, in brief, as relevant for the present purpose are that an intelligence was received with respect to a container destined for ICD, Dhannad, Madhya Pradesh in the name of M/s Topper Milk (India) Pvt. Ltd. Indore with the manifest mentioning the goods as 'Footwear and Fabric' and that the consignment was intercepted by the Hong Kong, Customs where on examination, the goods were found to be ingots, Electroshok Batons, Knuckle Dusters and suspected counterfeit personal care products thus were seized by Hong Kong Customs after receiving the said intelligence, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, (DRI) Mumbai Zonal Unit, Mumbai investigated the matter by foremost checking about the Importer Exporter Code (IEC) of Topper Milk (India) Pvt. Ltd. It was found that the said IEC No. 0310056659 was showing that Mr. Ajay Upadhyay and his wife Mrs. Smita Upadhyay as to Director of the said company with their office in Indore, however, the said premises were found un- occupied and an another firm in the name of M/s Sai Raj Enterprises was also found registered at the said address instead of M/s Topper Milk (India) Pvt. Ltd. The statement of Mr. Ajay Upadhyay was recorded on 24.05.2013 who stated that M/s Topper Milk (India) Pvt. Ltd. company was incorporated by him for doing the business of milk trading and the processed milk was supplied to diaries owned by his family in Mumbai, however, the business was not profitable, he stopped the business and sold the private company to one M/s Ajay Misra in the year 2010.

2.1 While further investigating the matter, a chain of sequences was created and various other statements were recorded. It was found as follows:-

(i) During the period 15.12.2011 to 22.05.2013, 189 consignments were imported and cleared from ICD, Dhannad/ ICD, Kheda. All the aforesaid 189 consignments were imported through JNPT port near Mumbai, transported to ICD Dhannad/ICD Kheda (both were non- EDI ports) at Indore (which is about 600 Kms from Mumbai) for Customs clearance and then transported back to Mumbai for sale to various consumers. This is contrary to all commercial sense and prudence. Department opined that the goods were trans-shipped to ICD Dhannad / ICD Kheda with intent to get them cleared by resorting to mis-declaration of description and value, as a part of an arrangement.

(ii) During investigations, in addition to 10 containers detained at ICD Dhannad, 9 more containers, which were in transit at Nhava Sheva & were being attempted to be sent back to China to evade interception by DRI, were detained. Enquiries caused with the Shipping lines revealed that they had indeed received requests from their overseas office that the shippers have instructed that the containers detained at Nhava Sheva be re-shipped to the country of export, as nobody was available at ICD Dhannad to take delivery of the said consignments. All the aforesaid 19 containers were examined in detail and the goods contained therein were seized under the provisions of the Customs Act, 1962.

(iii) the aforesaid consignments were imported in furtherance of criminal conspiracy hatched by Kirit Shrimankar in association with Manjit Singh Sandh@ Ajay Sandhu, Ajay Mishra, S. Chattaraj, Sanjay Kundra, Ankit Mehta, unknown overseas suppliers of China / Hong Kong/ Thailand & others to defraud the government exchequer in the import of consumer & miscellaneous goods by resorting to fraudulent means, which included inter alia mis- declaration of the description and value of the goods, imported in proxy, using IECs of others.

(iv) that in the past all the 189 consignments (179 consignments from ICD Dhannad & 10 consignments from ICD Kheda) of consumer & miscellaneous goods were cleared from ICD Dhannad/ICD Kheda, on the strength of manipulated invoices showing a few items, with grossly understated values with the motive of evading payment of appropriate custom duty. Besides, 19 consignments imported by the syndicate in proxy, which were intended to be cleared in the same fashion were seized by DRI at ICD Dhannad (10 consignments) & Nhava Sheva port (9 consignments):

(v) 16 IECs were used in these 208 consignments (189 past and 19 live) out of which 12 IECs were found to be non-existent. The 4 (four) IEC holders who could be located, each one of them have stated in their statement under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962 that they have not imported any goods and that they had only lent their names for small consideration. They also did not have the financial wherewithal to affect such huge imports.

(vi) No outward remittances have been sent to the overseas suppliers in respect of any of the consignments. That it has been sent by hawala is self-evident. All the goods, imported in the past consignments were sold without maintaining any records, thereby evading Income Tax, VAT and other local levies thereon.

(vii) Apart from declared goods, there were undeclared' goods like huge quantities of chatons. ladies undergarments, gent's undergarments, Jackets. In three of the live consignments, huge quantity of restricted goods like Refrigerant R-22 gas was recovered. Likewise, in one consignment, seized at Nhava Sheva, prohibited goods like Sex Toys (replicas of male and female sex organs) were recovered.

(viii) The officers of Customs posted at the above ICD have actively colluded with the members of the syndicate in effecting fraudulent clearance of the 189 consignments, cleared in the past. It would have continued but for the intelligence and investigation by DRI.

(ix) Export declarations submitted by the Chinese exporters in respect of 148 consignments (i.e Load Port Documents), imported by the above syndicate in the past, have been obtained through Shipping Lines/CGI, Hong Kong. Comparison of these declarations with the bills of entry filed for clearance of the respective consignments at ICD Dhannad/ ICD Kheda reveal huge mis-match of value and it appears that only a few items with meagre values were declared to Indian Customs.

(x) Kirit Shrimankar did not fully cooperate in the foregoing investigations. Kirit Shrimankar did not furnish basic details like address, phone number or company name of Pawan Mishra, for whom he claims to have made part of imports (which appears to be a diversionary tactics) (b) nor gave tangible details of Ajay Mishra, who had provided him the IECs for fraudulent imports (c) nor disclosed any information about the IEC holders (d) denied to access the e-mail account used by him for forwarding the import documents of the aforesaid consignments to CHA (e) claimed to have destroyed his laptop & mobiles which amounts to destroying evidence.

(xi) Manjit Singh also did not fully cooperate in the investigations. He claimed that the 104 consignments imported and cleared by him in the past belonged to one Hussain of China, who was the supplier as well as importer of the goods into India. However, the above claim appears to be unsubstantiated as he could not furnish any details about the said Hussain or his employee Ahmed. Similarly, his contention that the 12 live consignments have been supplied to him by one Jacky of China, on credit, is untenable, as he could not furnish even the basic details like full name, address, etc of Jacky. Manjit Singh was asked to furnish details about supplier of the goods, the quantity and description of the goods imported in the aforesaid containers, the value of the goods etc. However, Shri Manjit Singh could not give any satisfactory answers on above aspects and thus failed to establish his claim on the aforesaid goods.

(xii) The import documents such as invoice, bill of lading etc, are in the name of dummy IECs with which he has no relation or connection whatsoever. Further, Manjit Singh has neither paid for the goods nor has any documentary proof of ownership of said goods in a manner known to law. Thus, his claim of ownership of said twelve containers, while disowning the past ownership, appears to be motivated to seek provisional release of high value seized goods to the prejudice of public revenue.

3. With these observations, a show cause notice dated 13.09.2014 served upon all those who were found involved in the alleged act/acts, including the present appellant. The appellant has been alleged to have abated the illegal import of goods by a mis- declaration of description and value. While adjudicating the said show cause notice, in addition to confirming the proposal as noted above, the penalty of Rs. 25,00,000/- has been imposed upon the appellant vide the order under challenge (OIO dated 13.07.2019). Being aggrieved, the appellant is before this Tribunal.

4. We have heard Shri Abhijit Biswas, Advocate for the appellant and Shri Nagendra Yadav, Authorized Representative for the Department.

5. Learned Counsel for the appellant has mentioned that the allegations against the appellant are based on surmises and conjectures, no details of the act done or omitted to have been done by the appellant which rendered the goods liable to confiscation, have been given. There is no evidence, except from procured statements of Kirit Shrimankar, Sanajay Kundra, M.S. Sandhu, Ajay Sandhu and Dayal Singh Bisht. It is mentioned that the appellant was not given any opportunity to cross examine any of these witnesses, despite the request made for the purpose. It is further submitted that mere the Act of introducing an old acquaintance to a person and requesting him to find a Customs House Agent (CHA) for clearance of goods through the subject ICDs and/or providing of a mobile sim card by the said person, cannot in any manner establish that the appellant was aware of the nature of the goods being imported by the said persons or was aware of the fact of mis-declaration in such imports/use of Dummy IECs. Appellant denied every meeting with Shri Sanjay Kundra. It is submitted that the allegations of 'conspiracy' as are confirmed in the subsequent order-in-original dated 24.05.2018 have already been set-aside with setting aside of the order of imposition of penalty vide the final order of the Tribunal dated 12.11.2018. Finally, it is impressed upon that the appellant has not physically examined even a single consignment of the important goods. As a supervisory officer he was required to only countersign the assessment made by the proper officer based on the importer's declarations and NIDB data, which he duly complied with. The allegations against the other five proper officers have been set-aside by the Adjudicating Authority itself, proceedings against them have been dropped and no penalty has been imposed. With the submissions of the order under challenge, is prayed to be set-aside and appeal is prayed to be allowed.

6. While rebutting these submissions, it is mentioned by the Learned Authorized Representative that the appellant had all knowledge of the impugned illegal imports, he knew that the imports are actually made by Kirit Shrimankar, the appellant only had introduced Ajay Sandhu with Manjeet Singh. They both have admitted in their various statements that they were importing goods in proxy, using Dummy IECs and were clearing the goods from ICD Dhannad/Kheda on the strength of manipulated invoices showing very few items, with grossly under stated values with an intent to evade the customs duties. The admissions need no further proof. Though the admissions of others cannot be read against anyone else at least not for penalizing the later. But we observe that there is no denial of appellant that he knew kirit well and that he had acquaintances with him. Based on these, it is rightly held that appellant being in the department has mis-utilized his position and had abated the impugned illegal imports such an Act invites penalty under Section 112(a) of Customs Act, 1962. Impressing upon no infirmity in the order under challenge which is based on meticulous investigation and sufficient evidence against the appellant, the appeal in hand is prayed to be dismissed.

7. After hearing both the parties at length, we observe and hold as follows:-

In the present case, the appellant has challenged the imposition of penalty under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act, 1962. Under this Section, penalty can be imposed on the person who does an act or omission which renders the goods liable for confiscation under Section 111 or a person who abets the doing or omission of such an act which renderer the goods liable for confiscation. In the present case, the goods are held to have been fraudulently imported in the name of dummy IECs with mis-declaration in description and value inputs. Beneficial importers/dummy have not come forward to challenge these findings and the orders of confiscation under Section 111 (d), (f), (I) &
(m) of the Customs Act of these goods and not even qua imposition of penalties upon thereon. Thus, the appellant is held to have abetted in clearance of such goods, therefore, is held liable for penalty under Section 112(a). Appellant is a Government servant serving the customs department. We are of the opinion that the scope of present appeal is: whether the appellant has abetted the fraudulent export or he had acted in good faith.

Foremost, we need to know the definition of abetment Section 107 Indian Penal Code defines it as follows:-

Section 107 of Indian Penal Code 1862 defines abetment to include instigating any person to do a thing or engaging with one or more persons in any conspiracy for the doing of a thing, if an act or illegal omission takes place in pursuance of that conspiracy and in order to the doing of that thing, or intentional aid by any act or illegal omissions to the doing of the said act. Thus, abetment under the Indian Penal Code basically takes place when a person abets the doing of a thing by following:-

1) Instigating a person to commit an offence, or,
2) Engaging in a conspiracy to commit it, or
3) Intentionally aiding a person to commit it

Instigation basically means suggesting, encouraging or inciting a person to do or abstain from doing something. Thus, instigation is something which must be sufficient to actively encourage a person to commit an offence. It should not be mere advice or simple suggestion. Conspiracy on the other hand means an agreement between two or more persons to commit an unlawful act where conspirators must actively agree and prepare themselves to commit that offence. For intentionally aiding the offender the abettor has to facilitate the crime or has to help the offender in committing the crime/offence. In any case, the intention to instigate or conspire or aid the offender to commit an illegal act/omission is utmost important.

Reverting back to the facts of the present case, we observe from the record that the appellant himself vide his statement has acknowledged that he was fully aware that Ajay and Kirit were using proxy importers using dummy IECs for importing goods from his port. Kirit and Ajay Sandhu both have admitted this in their statement. There is no apparent denial that there are 427 calls between the appellant and kirit during the impugned period and that the appellant was entertained many times by said Kirit in Kirit's guest house. Admittedly, the appellant also attended marriage of Kirit's son in Mumbai in January 2013 at Kirit's expense as his guest and had also availed the flight tickets for to & fro travel for self and his family and stayed in five star hotel in Mumbai with family at kirit's expenses. The entire trip was financed by Kirit. A postpaid mobile SIM No. 8120100005, with appellant was also taken from kirit only. All these facts apparent on record are sufficient to hold that appellant was intentionally aiding kirit and all his associates to let them commit illegal imports. Hence, we hold that there are sufficient ingredients for commission of offence by the appellant.

The documents in the form of statements, investigations etc. also reveal that the appellant knew Manjit Sandhu @ Ajay Sandhu and he introduced Ajay with Kirit Shrimankar and told Kirit to help Ajay in importation. He was informed by Kirit that Kirit had met Ajay and they had made some arrangement for import of goods at Indore where Kirit would be providing IEC Codes, CHA and transport to Ajay against some consideration; that thereafter, Kirit started importing for Ajay apart from his own imports; that during one of the meeting Ajay told him that Ajay was not the owner of goods imported by him and he simply takes delivery of goods overseas from the owners and gives it to them after clearance from customs in India and he charged some amount for his services. Therefore, it is clear that the Appellant was well aware about the proxy imports of Ajay and Kirit which were being cleared from a non-EDI port which was under the Appellant's control. Being the in charge of the customs port it was his duty to discourage this fraudulent practice. However, he not only kept mum but also encouraged the proxy importers to undertake such proxy imports from his port and even facilitated such proxy importers which clearly show his connivance in promoting the fraudulent practices. Kirit and Ajay have admitted in various statements that they were importing goods in proxy, using dummy IECs and cleared the said goods from ICD Dhannad/ Kheda on the strength of manipulated invoices showing only a few items, which grossly understated values to evade duty.

Though the appellant has taken plea that the statement as relied upon by the Adjudicating Authorities are of those, who were not allowed to be cross-examined by the appellant. But, we observe that the appellant's own statement afford sufficient corroboration to those statements. Cross-examination is vital for meeting out the allegations But when there is sufficient corroboration to those allegations, denial of cross-examination cannot be held prejudicial. Appellant has also taken plea that mere introducing an old acquaintance to a person and requesting him to find a CHA for clearance of goods through the subject ICDs and/ or providing of a mobile sim card by the said person, cannot and does not in any manner whatsoever establish, even prima facie, that the appellant was aware of the nature of the goods being imported by the said persons and/ or the fact of mis-declaration in such importation on their part and/or use of 'dummy' IECs. It is also mentioned that not only Kirit Singh, but so many other persons used to frequently call the appellant on his mobile to know about his whereabouts so that the CHA employees could contact him for counter singing of the documents. But, we observe that CDR produced on record showing 427 numbers of calls made by the appellant to Kirit Singh during the relevant time are too many in number to prove that there was no bonafide or reasonableness on part of appellant. Phonecalls as many as 427 calls to one single person, do not justify the defence taken that the purpose was only to ascertain the whereabouts.

The plea of being a supervisory office who just had to countersign the assessment made by the proper officer also is insufficient to prove appellant's innocent. The five other concerned officers have been exonerated as no connect was found between them and the importers/dummy which is not true for the appellant as discussed above. Similarly, the Final Order of this Tribunal dated 12.11.2018 against the order-in-original dated 24.05.2018; setting aside the said order-in-original is of no benefit to the appellant as it has been brought to notice that the Department has not accepted the CESTAT order dated 12.11.2018 but has filed an appeal before the Hon'ble High Court of Madhya Pradesh which is pending for disposal and was last listed on 20.01.2020. The case laws relied upon by the appellant is also found not applicable to the facts of the present case.

(vi) In the light of the entire above discussion, we do not find any infirmity in the order under challenge, the same is therefore upheld. Consequently, the appeal stands dismissed.

Final Order Nos. 54487-54489 /2024

Date of Hearing : 22/01/2024 Date of Decision: 26/02/2024

P V SUBBA RAO:

1. These three appeals have been filed to assail the Order-in- Original[1] dated 30.03.2018 passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Import) ICD TKD whereby he decided the proposals made in the show cause notice dated 18.11.2015. The operative part of this order is as follows:

ORDER

1. I reject the declared value of Rs. 19,20,433/-in r/o bill of entry no. 7418730 dt. 18.11.2014 under Rule-12 of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Import Goods) Rules, 2007 and re-determine the same as Rs. 5,93,25,481/- under Rule-9 of the rules ibid.

2. I hold that the goods with re-determined value of Rs. 5,93,25,481/- are liable for confiscation under Section 111
(1) & (m) and 119 of the Customs Act, 1962 but refrain from imposing redemption fine as the said goods have been pilfered and are not available for confiscation.

3. Against the total duty of Rs. 1,71,16,587/-, I appropriate Rs. 2,82,534/- already deposited by M/s Nomita International and demand the differential duty amounting to Rs. 1,68,34,053/- from M/s Container Corporation of India Ltd. under Section 45 of the Customs Act, 1962.

4. I impose a penalty of Rs. 1,00,000/- (Rupees one lakh only) on M/s CONCOR under Section 117 of Customs Act, 1962.

5. I impose a penalty of Rs. 1,00,00,000/- (Rupees one crore) under Section 112(a)(v) of the Customs Act, 1962 and of Rs. 50,00,000/- (Rupees fifty lakh only) under Section 114AA of the Act ibid on M/s Nomita International (Prop. Sh. Lalit Kumar).

6. I impose a penalty of Rs. 2,00,00,000/- (Rupees two crore) under Section 112(a)(v) of the Customs Act, 1962 and of Rs. 50,00,000/- (Rupees fifty lakh only) under Section 114 AA of the Act ibid on Sh.

Atal Bhushan Bhatt.

7. I impose a penalty of Rs. 20,00,000/- (Rupees twenty lakh only) under Section 112(a)of the Customs Act, 1962 and of Rs. 10,00,000/- (Rupees ten lakh only) under Section 114 AA of the Act ibid on Sh. B.S.Mann.

8. I impose a penalty of Rs. 5,00,000/- (Rupees five lakh only) under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act, 1962 and of Rs. 50,000/- (Rupees fifty thousand only) under Section 114 AA of the Act ibid on Sh. Rohit Sharma.

2. Customs Appeal No. 52419 of 2018 filed by M/s Container Corporation of India Limited[2] to assail the demand of duty amounting to Rs. 1,68,34,053/- made under section 45 of the Customs Act, 1962[3] on the goods lost while under its custody and imposition of penalty of Rs. 1 lakh under section 117.

3. Customs Appeal No. 51911 of 2018 filed by Shri Bhalinder Singh Mann assailing the imposition of penalty of Rs. 20 lakhs under section 112(a) and Rs. 10 lakhs under section 114 AA on him.

4. Customs Appeal No. 52193 of 2018 is filed by Shri Rohit Sharma to assail the imposition of penalty of Rs. 5 lakhs under section 112 (a) and Rs. 50,000/- under section 114 AA of him.

5. The facts of the case in brief are that a Bill of Entry dated 18.11.2014 was filed by one M/s Nomita International having IEC No. 0513081143 in the Inland Container Depot[4] declaring the imported goods as "glass beads with holes" through their Customs Broker M/s B S Mann, a proprietary firm. These goods were imported from China stuffed in Container No. OOLU1372503. The description of the goods in the Bill of Entry is as follows:

S No.	Description of goods as per imported documents	Unit	Quantity declared	Value declared	Duty paid
1.	Glass Beads with two holes	KGS	14,652	18,32,057	2,69,532
2.	Glass seeds beads with holes	KGS	942	88,377	13,002
		Tota	15,594	19,20,434	2,82,534

6. The Bill of Entry was initially marked for 10% examination and since some boxes appeared to contain glass chatons, which were not declared in the Bill of Entry the case was handed over to a Special Intelligence and Investigation Branch[5] who carried out 100% examination of the goods on 20.11.2014 in the presence of Shri Rajesh Jha "G" card holder and Shri Akhilesh Kumar, "H" card holder of the Customs Broker M/s B S Mann. On examination, the following goods were found:

S. No.	Description of goods	CTH	Quantity (in KGS)
1	Glass beads (with two holes) and Glass seed beads (with holes)	70181020	3,971
2	Glass beads (with two holes) and Glass seed beads (with holes)	70181020	936
3	Glass Chatons (undeclared)	70181090	19,104
TOTAL			24,011

7. Since samples could not be drawn, the container was resealed with Customs Seal Nos. 227352 and 227353 and it was re-opened the next day on 21.11.2014 in the presence of Shri Rajesh Jha and Shri Akhilesh Kumar. Samples were drawn from for further investigation under Panchanama dated 21.11.2014. However, as gate pass to take out the samples from the investigation area could not be obtained after completing of proceedings, the drawn samples were put inside the container and it was sealed with Customs Seal Nos. 227376 and 227377. The container was reopened on next date on

22.11.2014 in the presence of panchas and in the presence of Shri Rajesh Jha and Shri AKhilesh Kumar by Panchnama dated 22.11.2014 and samples were taken out from the container and it was sealed with Customs Seal Nos. 227393 and 227394. The container was lying in the ICD Tughlakabad and by Seizure Memo dated 23.02.2015, the goods were seized under section 110 as they were found to be liable to confiscation under section 111. Voluntary statements of various persons connected with the said imports were recorded, investigation was completed from which the following facts emerged:

(a) M/s Nomita International, 0-158, Geeta Enclave, Vani Vihar, Uttam Nagar, New Delhi - 59 having IEC No. 0513081143 had filed Bill of Entry No. 7418730 dated 18.11.2014 for clearance of goods declared as Glass Beads with holes and Glass Seed Beads with holes through their Custom Broker M/s B. S. Mann (CHA No. AIQPM7764HCH001).

(b) On examination, 564 cartons of undeclared Glass Chatons weighing 19,104 kg along with 209 cartons of 3,971 kgs and 39 plastic bags of 936 kgs of declared Glass Beads of both types were found

(c) Shri Lalit Kumar who was the Proprietor of M/s Nomita International was in judicial custody in connection with some attempt to murder charge and thus his statement could not be recorded.

(d) Shri Atal Bhushan Bhatt (Marketing Manager of the CHA firm) was aware of the mis-declaration since the importer had provided him with samples of goods prior to imports as revealed in the various statements recorded.

(e) Shri Atal Bhushan Bhatt, who himself was owner of a logistics company in the name of M/s LCLSHIP Logistics, was also working with CHA firm and was well aware of Customs laws and procedures since he had also cleared CHALR Exams in 2012

(f) Shri Bhatt did not inform the Customs authorities about the misdeclaration and instead filed documents through his CHA Firm B S Mann.

(g) Shri Bhatt paid Customs duty through his account whereas the duty ought to be paid by the importer or Customs Broker account which again proved his malafide intention.

(h) Shri Bhatt tried to mislead the investigations by giving wrong statements inasmuch as earlier he had wrongly stated that in the case of Nomita International, money emanated from M/s Krishna Logistics account, but in all the imports of M/s Nomita International, the duty deposits were made in cash by him as received from Mr. Lalit Kumar (importer) and Rohit Kumar (Manger of the Importer).

(j) Shri Rohit Sharma (Manager of M/s Nomita International) was aware of the mis- declaration in the import consignment as well as about the nature of sample; he was actually participating in getting his mis- declared goods cleared from Customs.

(k) Shri B. S. Mann, CHA knew Sh. Lalit Kumar and M/s Nomita International and was aware of mis-declartion made in respect of the impugned Bill of Entry, as well as violation of CBLR Rules by himself/ by his CHA firm/ by Marketing Manger of his CHA firm.

(I) The seized goods lying in Container No. OOLU1372503 which were required to be kept in safe custody by CONCOR were stolen for which an FIR was also lodged with Delhi Police and thus CONCOR also failed to discharge it's duties and obligations."

8. Accordingly, a show cause notice dated 18.11.2014 was issued which culminated in the issue of the impugned order.

9. CONCOR in its reply dated 26.10.2016 submitted as follows:

1. That container was shipped from China to India and had moved under transhipment bond of the shipping line to ICD Tughlakabad by train and it was shifted to import warehouse on 19.11.2014. The seal was intact and it was cut on 20.11.2014 in the presence of representative of Customs, CONCOR, CISF and Shipper/CHA;

2. By a letter dated 24.02.2015 customs reported that the container was seized and sealed by Customs Seal No. 227393 and 227394 by Seizure Memo dated 23.02.2015 and it had requested to keep the goods under safe custody;

3. A letter dated 24.02.2015 was written after gap of 94 days after the examination of the goods on 20.11.2014, 21.11.2014 and 22.11.2014 by the Customs;

4. After seal cutting by customs on 20.11.2014, CONCOR received a letter for conducting a joint survey on 05.03.2015 and the purported theft of goods came to knowledge of CONCOR and, accordingly, an FIR was registered with the Police on 07.03.2015. On 20.11.2014 it was originally sealed with Seal No. 227393 of the shipping line was intact. However, on 03.03.2015 container was found with a private red colour seal whose number was not visible as it was completely mutilated. After opening the container it was found completely empty;

5. No Customs seal number was made available on 22.02.2015 although the goods were examined on 20.11.2014 and 22.11.2014 and resealed with the customs seals. Thus, the CONCOR was neither a witness to the presence of glass chatons in the container nor was it advised either by the importer CHA about the presence of glass chatons in the said container;

6. After preparation of the Panchanama and annexure to the panchnama, the container was again examined and a panchnama was again prepared on 21.11.2014 and again sealed with different customs seal numbers and the same were conducted on 20.11.2014. The seizure memo prepared on 23.02.2015 was not sent to CONCOR but it was only sent to the importer;

7. CONCOR received information about the seizure only by the customs letter dated 23.02.2015 which it had received on 22.04.2015 and thereafter it checked the container and found that there is no customs seal and there was only a red coloured private seal without any seal number. The CONCOR was not at all aware of happenings until it tried to handover the container to the CISF for safe custody by which time the goods had gone. CONCOR is not liable to pay customs duty under section 45 (3) and is also not liable for any penalty under section 117;

8. There is a severe lapse on the part of the customs as proper investigation would reveal, therefore, the demand of duty and imposition of penalty on CONCOR cannot be sustained.

9. During the personal hearing held on 26.10.2016 Shri P L Kaul, Manager CONCOR along with Ms. Yuktri Anand, learned counsel for CONCOR appeared and reiterated the submissions.

10. Learned counsel for CONCOR asserted that the demand of duty on CONCOR was not sustainable for the reason that it was not part of Panchnama drawn under which the goods were seized by the customs. It became aware of the seizure only when it received a letter from the Customs on 24.02.2015 when it found the customs seal was missing and replaced by a red colour private seal with no number. He further asserted that penalty under section 117 was wrongly imposed on CONCOR.

11. Learned authorized representative appearing for the department placed on record a letter dated 24.02.2015 sent by the Superintendent SIIB to the General Manager of CONCOR intimating that the goods contained in the aforesaid container were seized under section 110 by seizure memo dated 23.02.2015 and sealed with customs seal Nos. 227393 and 227394 and requesting the CONCOR to keep the goods under safe custody until further orders from the customs. In response, CONCOR sent a letter dated 28.02.2015 intimating that the container was found without customs seals and with only a red colour private seal without any seal number.

12. Learned authorized representative appearing for the department submitted that the goods had not left the customs area within which the custodian of the goods was CONCOR.

13. It is not disputed that the goods were handed over in the container by the shipping line to CONCOR and during examination of goods by the customs the responsibility for presenting the goods for examination rests on the custodian which in this case was CONCOR.

14. Elaborating on the chain of custody of the goods, learned authorized representative submitted that the exporter hands the goods over to the shipping line. The master of the goods of the shipping line issues a Bill of Lading acknowledging receipt of the goods said to be in the container. Thereafter, the Bill of Lading is sent by the exporter to the importer with which it can claim the goods. The Bill of Lading is the document of title. The shipping line which takes responsibility for the goods hands over the goods to the custodian of the customs premises such as the CONCOR. This exchange takes place under a document known as the Equipment Interchange Received (EIR). In this case the undisputed fact is that this container was handed over by the shipping line to CONCOR. Thereafter, the responsibility of the goods lies with CONCOR and it does not shift to the customs even if the goods have to be examined.

15. Once the importer files the Bill of Entry, pays duty and obtains an order permitting clearance of goods for home consumption from customs, he can obtain the goods from the custodian showing the Bill of Entry (with clearance from the customs), the Bill of Lading and the delivery order issued by the shipping line.

16. It is only in cases where the goods are seized by the customs that the custody of the goods switches to the customs. However, in case the goods are within the customs area, the practice is for the customs to seize the goods and hand over the custody back to the custodian who will be required to keep them in safe custody until further orders. If the seized goods are confiscated, they become the property of the Central Government and will, accordingly, be disposed of. If they are released either unconditionally or on redemption fine, the custodian will have to hand over the goods to the importer. In this case the goods are lost while they were in the custody of the CONCOR. The fact that the seizure was done after three months after the examination makes no difference to the case because even if the goods were not seized, the custody will continue to be with the custodian CONCOR. After the goods were seized on 23.03.2015, a letter was immediately sent to CONCOR intimating about the seizure, and asking it to keep the goods in safe custody. At no point of time had the goods left the custody of CONCOR. Therefore, the responsibility for safe custody of the goods lies with CONCOR.

17. Therefore, CONCOR was liable to pay the duty under section

45 for the goods lost. Since part of duty was already paid, the demand was made confirmed only to the extent of duty not paid or short paid. He also asserts that the penalty under section 117 was correctly imposed on CONCOR.

18. We have considered the submissions with respect to this appeal on both sides.

19. The undisputed facts of the case are that the container was handed over by the shipping line to ICD TKD and the seal was intact at that time. The goods which are imported and are in the customs area shall remain in the custody of the custodian approved by the Commissioner of Customs until they are cleared for home consumption or for warehousing or transhipment. It is the responsibility of the custodian to keep a record of such goods and send a copy thereof to the proper officer and not permit such goods to be removed from the customs area or otherwise dealt with except under and in accordance with the permission in writing of the proper officer. In this case the container, along with imported goods was in the custody of the custodian, namely, CONCOR. Until the goods are cleared for home consumption, warehousing or for transshipment by the proper officer, it is the responsibility of the custodian to keep them safely. After the proper officer clears the goods the custodian is required to hand them over to the importer for home consumption or to the concerned person or to the transshipment or for warehousing. In the case of transshipment or warehousing, the goods move under bond.

20. Duty of customs is levied on the goods imported into India at the rates specified in the schedules of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975. It needs to be pointed out that the charge of the customs duty is on the goods and not on any person. Consequently, once the goods change hands so will the liability to pay customs duty. The charge of customs duty applies even to goods belonging to the Government as it applies to goods not belonging to the Government. Section 12 of the Customs Act, the charging section, is reproduced below:

“12. Dutiable goods.

(1) Except as otherwise provided in this Act, or any other law for the time being in force, duties of customs shall be levied at such rates as may be specified under Section 13, for " Indian Tariff Act, 1934 (32 of 1934)" , or any other law for the time being in force, on goods imported into, or exported from, India.

(2) The provisions of sub-section (1) shall apply in respect of all goods belonging to Government as they apply in respect of goods not belonging to Government.”

21. It is for this reason that if goods are imported the importer is liable to pay duty as it is he who owns the goods. If the goods are confiscated, the title passes on to the Central Government and the duty is recoverable from the sale proceeds of the confiscated goods. If the goods are allowed to be redeemed after confiscation after paying the fine under section 125, the title of the confiscated goods goes back to the importer and, therefore, in terms of section 125 (2), the importer has to pay the duty in addition to the redemption fine.

22. The owner of any imported goods may, at any time, before their clearance for home consumption relinquish its title to the goods and thereupon he shall not be liable to pay the duty thereon as per section 23 (2). In short, the liability to pay duty travels along with the imported goods.

23. The question which arises is if the goods get lost while they are in the custody of the custodian before they are cleared for home consumption, who is liable to pay duty? As per section 45 (3) the custodian is liable to pay duty if any good are pilfered after unloading thereof in the customs area while in the custody of the custodian.

24. Section 45 reads as follows:

" (1) Save as otherwise provided in any law for the time being in force, all imported goods unloaded in a customs area shall remain in the custody of such person as may be approved by the [1][Principal Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs] until they are cleared for home consumption or are warehoused or are transhipped in accordance with the provisions of Chapter VIII.

(2) The person having custody of any imported goods in a customs area, whether under the provisions of (1) sub- section or under any law for the time being in force,--

(a) shall keep a record of such goods and send a copy thereof to the proper officer;

(b) shall not permit such goods to be removed from the customs area or otherwise dealt with, except under and in accordance with the permission in writing of the proper officer or in such manner as may be prescribed.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in any law for the time being in force, if any imported goods are pilferred after unloading thereof in a customs area while in the custody of a person referred to in sub- section (1), that person shall be liable to pay duty on such goods at the rate prevailing on the date of delivery of an [4][arrival manifest or import manifest] or, as the case may be, an import report to the proper officer under section 30 for the arrival of the conveyance in which the said goods were carried."

25. In this case it is undisputed that the goods were lost while they were in the custody of the custodian. It is true that after finding the discrepancies in the declaration on 24.11.2014 the officer of customs took time and seized them only by seizure memo dated 23.02.2015 under section 110. He also sealed the container with container customs seal numbers 227393 and 227394. He handed over the goods along with sealed container to CONCOR on 24.02.2015. There is nothing on record to show that the customs officers had taken the goods out of the customs area. There is also nothing on record to show that anybody else was permitted to and had taken the goods from customs area. With reference to a letter dated 24.02.2015 the custodian found on 28.2.2015 that the container seal was broken and there was a private seal in red colour without any seal number. On opening, they found the goods were lost. Clearly, there is no scope of any interpretation in this chain of events except that the goods were pilfered while they were in the custody of the custodian CONCOR. Therefore, we find that in terms of section 45 (3), the CONCOR had to pay customs duty. Since part of the duty was already paid by the importer only the differential duty was demanded from CONCOR in the impugned order. We, therefore, find infirmity in the impugned order in so far as the confirmation of demand of duty under section 45 (iii) on CONCOR is concerned.

26. As far as the imposition of penalty under section 117 is concerned, we find that this section is a residual provision for imposition of penalty and it reads as follows:

"117. Penalties for contravention, etc., not expressly mentioned.

- Any person who contravenes any provision of this Act or abets any such contravention or who fails to comply with any provision of this Act with which it was his duty to comply, where no express penalty is elsewhere provided for such contravention or failure, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one lakh rupees."

27. Clearly, there is violation of section 45 by the CONCOR inasmuch as it had not taken proper care of the goods in its custody and as a result they were pilfered. The value of the goods which were pilfered is Rs. 5,93,25,481/-. Considering this amount, we find that penalty of Rs. 1 Lakh imposed on CONCOR under section 117 is fair and reasonable and calls for no interference.

Customs Appeal No. 51911 of 2018 filed by Shri Bhalinder Singh

28. Shri Bhalinder Singh is assailing penalty of Rs. 20 lakhs under section 112(a) and Rs. 10 lakhs under section 114 AA imposed upon him.

29. Learned counsel for the appellant made the following submissions;

1. B S Mann, the Proprietary firm, is licensed as a Customs Broker. Shri B S Mann duly obtained all the KYC documents and verified the credentials of the importer and its address before the filing Bill of Entry which is the subject matter of this appeal. Shri B S Mann had previously filed four Bills of Entry to clear consignments for radiators for tractors on behalf of the same importer and these Bills of Entry were assessed and cleared;

2. In November, 2014 the representative of M/s Nomita International inquired from the appellant about clearance of consignment of glass beads and also showed samples of the goods to be imported. The appellant appraised Shri Rohit Sharma, the Manager of M/s Nomita International about the classification and other formalities were to clear the glass beads and prepared the Bill of Entry. Before the consignment was cleared, the officers of SIIB investigated the matter and found that 90% of the goods were glass chatons instead of glass beads as declared. Shri Mann filed the Bill of Entry based on the import documents supplied by the importer and had no prior knowledge of the presence of glass chatons. The appellant knew that Shri Lalit kumar was the proprietor of the M/s Nomita International, the importer. But he was not aware of any mis-declaration and, therefore, he had performed his responsibility under customs Brokers licensing regulations diligently.

3. Regarding the department contention that Shri Atal Bhushan Bhatt the appellant's permanant employee who, in his statements, confirmed that samples of glass chatons were shown to him by the importer prior to file the Bills of Entry, he submitted that the department cannot fasten a case against Shri Mann only on the statement of Shri Bhatt without any corroborative evidence.

4. It is pertinent to mention that the customs officers never took the statement of Shri Lalit Kumar, proprietor of the importer firm despite the fact that he was available in Tihar Jail during the relevant period on an attempt to murder charge.

5. The appellant's only association with the impugned goods was to the extent of filing of a Bill of Entry on the basis of the documents produced by the importer and any mis-declaration in the documents rendering the goods to liable to confiscation should not render the appellant liable to penalty under section 112(a).

6. Penalty under section 114 AA also cannot be imposed upon the appellant because prior knowledge or intention is required to impose penalty under section 114 AA and Shri Mann had no such knowledge.

30. On behalf of the Department, learned authorized representative for the revenue made the following submissions;

1. During the relevant period Shri Atal Bhushan Bhatt, was the Marketing Manager of Shri B S Mann, CHA, whose statement were recorded on 20.11.2014 under section 108. This statement has not been retracted by Shri Bhatt till date. He confirmed in his statement and that the sample of glass beads was shown to him and that he was aware of the undeclared item i.e., glass chatons and that he was a "G" card holder of Shri B S Mann. Shri B S Mann, the "F" card holder, made his statement on 21.11.2014 in which he confirmed the sample of imported goods were shown before the import and that these samples were handed over to Shri Bhatt which are glass chatons.

2. During the relevant period Shri Lalit Kumar the proprietor of the importer was in Jail in connection with an attempt to murder charge on 15.11.2014 even before the Bill of Entry was filed on 18.11.2014.

3. Shri Bhatt was the employee of Shri B S Mann, and, therefore, during the relevant period Shri B S Mann is liable for any action or inaction by Shri Bhatt in his capacity as the representative of Shri B S Mann.

4. On request of Shri B S Mann, Shri Atal Bhushan Bhatt was cross-examined before the Commissioner on 04.01.2017. During the cross-examination he confirmed that he had a forwarding agency with a name of LCL Ship Logistics and he also bring clients to Shri B S Mann and that he was introduced the owner of M/s Nomita International through Shri Ashok Garg and that he had provided the invoice, packing list and bill of lading from Shri Rohit Sharma, the Manager of M/s Nomita International and that he had also shown samples provided to him by Shri Rohit Sharma and then description of which was glass beads and that he did not know whether the same actually glass beads or glass chatons.

31. We have considered the submissions on both sides with respect to the appeal filed by Shri B S Mann.

32. The facts of the case are clear Shri Atal Bhushan Bhatt was the Manager of Shri B S Mann during the relevant period and in that capacity he had obtained the documents pertaining to the importer of the disputed consignment and also saw the samples of the goods which are actually being imported. During cross examination by Shri B S Mann, before the Commissioner he confirmed that he had received the samples of the goods imported through Shri Rohit Sharma and that he had shown them to Shri B S Mann. Under such circumstances, it cannot be said that either Shri Bhatt or Shri B S Mann was not aware of the goods which were being actually imported. On examination by the SIIB the goods which are imported were found to be the glass chatons while the Bill of Entry was filed for the importer glass beads was of the invoice and packing list all showed the glass beads. In fact, 90% of the imported goods were glass chatons. This is not a case where the CHA had, merely based on the documents produced by the importer, filed the Bill of Entry. Had such been the case then the CHA would have had no responsibility as to the actual contends of the goods. In this case, the importer is not in the business of importing the glass beads or glass chatons and was indeed a regular importer of radiators for tractors. This consignment was different and the importer had provided samples of the goods to be imported to Shri Bhatt who was the Manager of Shri B S Mann. In turn, Shri Bhatt had shown those samples to Shri Mann. In this factual matrix we find no reason to believe that Shri Mann had innocently filed the Bill of Entry with a wrong declaration. Both Shri Mann and his Manager were fully aware of actual goods being imported and had filed Bills of Entry with the wrong description.

33. Therefore, the goods were correctly held to be liable for confiscation under section 111 (l)and (n) of the Customs Act. However, before the goods could be confiscated they were pilfered after their seizure while in the custody of the CONCOR. The Commissioner had, therefore, not imposed any redemption fine. Penalty under section 112 (a) can be imposed on any person who, in relation to a goods, does or omits to do any act which act or omission would render such goods liable to confiscation under section 111, or abets the doing or omission of such an act. In this case, the glass chatons were imported and having seen the samples even after the import Shri B S Mann and through his employees filed a Bill of Entry for glass beads. In fact, 90% of the goods were glass chatons. We, therefore, find that Shri B S Mann was correctly held liable to penalty under section 112(a).

34. Penalty under section 114AA can be imposed if any person knowingly or intentionally makes, signs or uses or causes to be made, signed or used, any declaration, statement or document which is false or incorrect in any material fact in the transaction of any business for the purpose of this Act. The maximum penalty imposable is five times the value of the goods. The value of the goods in this case was Rs. 5,92,25,481/-. Shri B S Mann, through his employees, filed the Bill of Entry mis-declaring the nature of goods having first obtained samples of the goods even before filing the Bill of Entry. As is clear from the cross-examination by Shri B S Mann, Manager of Shri Bhatt that not only he but also Shri B S Mann, himself had seen the samples before filing the Bill of Entry. We, therefore, have no hesitation in finding that the Bill of Entry filed knowingly mis-declaring the nature of goods.

35. In view of above, we find that the penalty under section 114 AA imposed on Shri B S Mann needs to be sustained. In view of above, we uphold the impugned order in so far as it pertains Shri B S Mann and reject his appeal.

Customs Appeal No. 52193 of 2018 filed by Shri Rohit Sharma.

36. This appeal is filed by Shri Rohit Sharma assailing the penalty of Rs. 5,00,000/- under section 112 (a) and Rs. 52,000/- under section 114 AA imposed upon him. During investigation Shri Rohit Sharma appeared before the Superintendent (SIIB) of Customs and tendered his statement on 21.11.2014 in which he stated that he was working as the Manager with M/s Nomita International, the importer, and looked after the work of import and other work such as sale of radiators at auto market, Haryana, that he fully aware of both the recovery of undeclared glass chatons by the customs authorities and that they belong to M/s Nomita International. He had given all the documents related to the import of above goods to Shri Bhatt which were given to him by Shri Lalit Kumar, the owner of M/s Nomita International. He said that was not getting any salary from the proprietor Shri Lalit Kumar's but he was working for him on commission basis. Shri Lalit Kumar's residence was searched and nothing incriminating was found. From this statement and the statement of others and the investigation it is clear that Shri Rohit Sharma was aware of the mis-declaration of the import consignment and was also aware of the nature of the sample and further that he was actually participated in getting the mis-declared goods cleared from customs.

37. Accordingly, the SCN was issued to him also. In reply, Shri Rohit Sharma sent written replies on 23.03.2016 and 21.04.2016 and had appeared for personal hearing on 24.01.2016 through his advocate Shri Vipin Yadav. The defense of Shri Rohit Sharma as follows:

i. That he had no knowledge of the goods in question imported under the Bill of Entry but he was induced/coerced by Shri Atal Bhushan Bhatt to say before the Superintendent that he was working with M/s Nomita International as its manager. That he had neither any role in the import nor any knowledge of the goods which were imported and that he had subsequently severed all connections with Shri Bhatt.

ii. He was the employee of Shri Bhatt and was working for him since November, 2014 and was looking after the transportation of goods. Shri Bhatt was in the business of transportation and logistics and was also working for Customs Broker Shri B S Mann as his employee.

iii. His responsibility was confined to arrange transportation on daily basis containers to transport imported goods to godowns for which purpose he would keep a personal diary regarding movements of all vehicles. He worked for Shri Bhatt since November, 2014. On 20.11.2019 he went to the office of Shri Bhatt to report about his work when Shri Bhatt informed him about M/s Nomita International and forced him to represent him as a manager of M/s Nomita International before the Customs authorities "as the owner of M/s Nomita International was not in India and somebody had to represent him for the customs authorities". Although he had objected to the proposals, Shri Bhatt pressurized him into making the presentation and giving the false statement before the Superintendent of customs.

38. On behalf of the appellant the following submissions sent in writing by his counsel.

1. No one has come on record that the appellant had knowledge about the discrepancies of the goods imported in the Bill of Entry and the only averment was that the was fully aware about the recovery of undeclared glass chatons by the customs authorities;

2. Even if the statement is accepted as true, it does not prove that he was aware of the mis-declaration;

3. Shri Rohit Sharma was, in fact, working as transport in-charge for Shri Bhatt in his freight forwarder firm M/s LCL shipping Logistics. Shri Bhatt uses the CHA licence of Shri B S Maan to clear the goods. The personal diary maintained by Shri Rohit Sharma recorded his day-to-day work with Shri Bhatt on whose insistence he made statement that he was a manager of M/s Nomita International. The statement was voluntary and he was forced him to make the statement by Shri Bhatt. In fact, he was not even paid salary for one month because of the altercation with Shri Bhatt in this case.

4. These facts were presented before the adjudicating authority in defense reply but were not accepted by him. There is no finding with respect to the personal diary maintained by Shri Rohit Sharma in the impugned order by the adjudicating authority.

5. During the relevant time the owner of M/s Nomita International was in jail;

6. Shri Rohit Sharma neither signed nor filed any documents what so ever for clearance of the consignments and even implicated by his co-noticee Shri Bhatt. Therefore, the penalty imposed on Shri Rohit Sharma may be set aside and the appeal may be allowed.

39. Learned authorized representative appearing for the department supports the findings of the impugned order and asserts that it calls for no interference what so ever.

40. We have considered the submissions on both sides in this appeal and perused the records.

41. Admittedly, Shri Rohit Sharma made a categorical statement under section 108 of the Customs Act before the Superintendent that he was the Manager of M/s Nomita International and that he had obtained the documents related to the import from owner of M/s Nomita International and handed them to Shri Bhatt for further processing and filing the Bill of Entry, and that he aware of the undeclared chatons which were seized by the customs authorities. This statement was made on 21.11.2014 and has not been retracted. All the material facts which were indicated in the statement such as the address of M/s Nomita International and the nature of its business matched with the facts available on record. We, therefore, find no reason to believe that the statement was made incorrectly or and under pressure or coercion. We also find that there was no retraction of the statement since November, 2014 until the issue of the show cause notice more than a year later. Any person who makes a statement under threat or coercion retracts it once the threat or coercion is removed. In this case, the appellant claims that he had left the service of Shri Bhatt in November, 2014 itself. That being the case, there was no scope for Shri Bhatt to exert any pressure on the appellant after that date.

Learned counsel for the appellant also submitted that the appellant had a diary in which he had records of the transportation details carried out by him. We, however, find that those details are not relevant to the facts in question as the dispute is regarding the mis-declaration in the Bill of Entry which according to both the CHA and the appellant, was prepared on the basis of the information provided by the appellant to the CHA.

42. Such being the case, we find no reason to interfere with the impugned order. The impugned order is upheld and the appeal is rejected in so far as Shri Rohit Sharma is concerned.

43. All the three appeals are dismissed and the impugned order is upheld.

FINAL ORDER NO. 54525 /2024

Date of Hearing/Decision : 27/02/2024JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA

1. This appeal seeks the quashing of the communication dated 12.10.2023 sent by the Superintendent (Adjudication). This communication not only seeks to inform the appellant that the personal hearing in respect of the show cause notice dated 20.10.2022 issued to the appellant and its Director has been fixed for final hearing on 08.11.2023 but also informs the appellant that the competent authority has observed that the request for cross- examination made by the appellant is not covered under section 138(B) of the Customs Act, 1962.

2. The appellant appeared before the Principal Commissionerand submitted an interim reply dated September 12, 2023. The personal hearing was thereafter conducted on December 01, 2023, on which date the appellant filed a detailed interim reply. The nextdate of personal hearing is fixed for 28.02.2024.

3. Though, learned counsel for the appellant contended that denial of cross-examination would prejudice the case of the appellant, but in our opinion it would always be open to the appellant to raise this issue once the final order is passed by the Principal Commissioner. It would not be appropriate, at this stage,when the Principal Commissioner is in the process of adjudicating the show cause notice, to examine this issue.

4. The appeal is, accordingly, dismissed with liberty to the appellant to raise the issue of denial of cross-examination beforethe Tribunal after the Principal Commissioner decides the matter. The miscellaneous application and the early hearing application alsostand disposed of.

DATE OF HEARING: 15.02.2023DATE OF DECISION: 23.03.2023

FINAL ORDER NO. 50387/2023

P.V. Subba Rao

Shri Kashi Kumar Agarwal[1] filed this appeal to assail order-in-appeal[2] dated 10.12.2021 passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals), New Custom House, New Delhi upholding the order-in- original[3] dated 20.3.2019 passed by the Additional Commissionerof Customs deciding on a Show Cause [4] Notice dated 21.2.2018 issued by the Additional Director, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence [5], New Delhi insofar as it relates to the appellant. It needs to be pointed out that against the same order-in-original, in addition to the appellant, two other persons- Shri Deepak Handa and Shri Ravi Handa- had filed appeals before the Commissioner (Appeals) who decided the three appeals separately. Against the orders of the Commissioner (Appeals), Shri Deepak Handa filed appeal C/52922 of 2016 and Shri Ravi Handa filed C/52923 of 2016. Both these appeals have been disposed of by Final Order No.51520-51521/2021 dated 25.5.2021. The order, in a nutshell, upheld the confiscation of the primary gold with foreign markings but set aside the confiscation of the gold ornaments and the cash. Consequently, the penalties were also reduced.

2. After the above order, the Commissioner (Appeals) passedthe impugned order in respect of the appellant which also involves confiscation of the primary gold, confiscation of the jewellery, confiscation of money and imposition of penalty. In this appeal, the appellant is assailing the following:

a) Confiscation of 2776.94 grams of gold valued at Rs. 72,21,040/- seized from the appellant by a Panchnama dated 24.8.2017. This gold includes (i) one kg gold bar of 995 purity with marking „Argos Heraeuss"; (ii) one kg gold bar of 995 purity with marking " Rand refinery"; (iii) one cut piece of gold of 995 purity weighing 195.23 grams; (iv) a plastic box with jewellery weighing 246.37 grams;and (v) a plastic pouch with jewellery weighing 335.34 grams;

b) Confiscation of Indian currency of Rs. 8,86,500/- seized from the appellant by a Panchnama dated 24.8.2017; and

c) Penalty of Rs. 25,00,000/- imposed on the appellant under section 112(b) (i).

3. The factual matrix of the case is as follows. Acting on specific information, officers of DRI intercepted two persons sitting on seatsC7 and C9 of Delhi Udhampur Express train (No. 22401) on 23.8.2017 while the train was still at Delhi Rohilla Railway Station. They identified themselves as Shri Deepak Handa[6], (the appellant in appeal No. 52922) S/o Shri Vijay Kumar and Shri SurinderSingh, S/o Shri Bansi Singh. When asked, they denied that they were carrying any gold in any form. Officers searched them and their baggage under Section 102 of the Customs Act, 1962 [7] and recovered 9 gold bars of foreign origin weighing 1,000 grams each and gold jewellery weighing 5.429 kg and 120 gold coins suspectedto be of foreign origin totally weighing 0.96 kg. Shri SurinderSingh, in his statement dated 24.8.2017, said that he worked as a casual labourer in the shop of Deepak on a salary of Rs. 7,500 per month and the statement of Deepak on 24.8.2017 corroboratedthat Shri Surinder Singh was only his employee.

4. While the jewellery was recovered from their bags, four of theforeign marked gold bars were recovered from the shoes of Deepakin which they were concealed. The remaining five gold bars and the gold coins were wrapped in brown colour tape and concealed in the specially designed secret pockets in the back pack.

5. The total gold weighing 15.389 kg estimated to be worth about Rs. 4.6 crores was seized under the Customs Act as Deepak did not have any bills for the gold nor any documents to show that the foreign marked gold was legally imported into India.

6. During investigation, Deepak said that the gold bars were purchased from one, Shri Kashi Kumar Aggarwal, the appellant. Investigations were conducted and the SCN was issued and adjudication order was passed which was partly set aside by Final Order dated 25.5.2021 insofar as Shri Deepak Handa and ShriRavi Handa were concerned.

7. In the follow up operations, gold bars with foreignmarkings weighing 2000 grams, one cut piece of gold of 995purity weighing 195 grams, gold ornaments weighing 246.37 grams in a plastic box and ornaments weighing 334.34 grams in a plastic pouch and cash of Rs. 8,86,500 were seized from the shop of the appellant in Delhi whichare the subject matter of this appeal and the impugnedorder.

8. Investigations were completed and the SCN was issued and itwas adjudicated by the Additional Commissioner of Customs who passed the OIO as follows:

i. I confiscate the seized gold weighing 15.3890 kg (recovered from Shri Deepak Handa) valued at Rs. 4,60,02,337, seized vide panchnama dated 23/24-8-2017 under section 111(d), 111 (i) and 111(p) read withsection 120 of the Customs Act, 1962.

ii. I confiscate the seized gold weighing 2776.94 grams (recovered from Shri Kashi Kumar Aggarwal) valued at Rs. 72,21,040/- seized vide panchnama dated 24.8.2017 under section 111(d),111(i) and 111(p) read with section 120 of the Customs Act, 1962

iii. I confiscate the seized gold weighing 1,118.24 grams (recovered from M/s. Baibhav Ornaments) valued at Rs. 46,83,820/- seized vide panchnama dated 24.8.2017 under sections 11(d), 111(i) and 111(p) read with section 120 of the Customs Act, 1962.

iv. I confiscate Indian currency amounting to Rs. 8,86,500 seized vide panchnama dated 24.8.2017 under section 121 of the Customs Act, 1962.

v. I confiscate Indian currency amounting to Rs. 9,64,600 seized from the business premises of M/s. Baibhav Ornaments and I confiscate Indian currency amounting to R.s 3,64,500/- from the premises of M/s. Radhika Jewellers (Ground Floor) vide panchnama dated 24.8.2017 under section 121 of the Customs Act, 1962.

(b) I impose a penalty of Rs. 50,00,000 under section 112 (i) of the Customs Act, 192 on Shri Deepak Handafor his acts of omission and commission stated above.

vi. I impose a penalty of Rs. 25,00,000 under section112 (b) (i) of the Customs Act, 192 on Shri Kashi Kumar Aggarwal for his acts of omission and commission stated above.

(b) I impose a penalty of Rs. 10,00,000 under section 112 of the Customs Act, 1962 on

vii. I do not impose any penalty under section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962 on Shri Deepak Handa, Shri Kashi Kumar Aggarwal and Shri Ravi Handa, for the reasons mentioned above.

9. In the impugned order, the Commissioner (Appeals) upheld the OIO insofar as the appellant is concerned. In this appeal, the appellant is assailing the impugned order upholding the decision of the Additional Commissioner insofar as it relates to the confiscationof the gold, gold ornaments and cash from the appellant and the imposition of penalty on the appellant.

10. Learned Counsel for the appellant made the following submissions:

a) The adjudicating authority did not consider the appellant"srequest for summoning as witnesses Deepak Handa and Ravi Handa for cross examination on whose statements the whole case is based.

b) The appellant and Deeepak Handa had retracted their statements at the first available opportunity on 28.8.2017and 24.9.2017 which was recorded by the learned Chief Metropolitan Magistrate when the appellant was producedafter arrest.

c) The gold ornaments weighing 246.37 grams (10 necklaces and 4 sets of earrings) belong to M/s. Jeet Jewellers of Mumbai which were kept with the appellantto take care of them. They do not belong to the appellant.

d) Ornaments weighing 335.34 grams belong to M/s. Raghav Jewellers, Saharanpur, UP which they purchased from M/s. Heera Jewellers of Chadni Chowk which was also kept with the appellant.

e) The two gold bars weighing 1000 grams each havingpurity of 995 and foreign markings were purchased by M/s. Easy Trading from M/s. Pinki Chains. The appellant produced invoice dated 19.8.2017 and a copy of ledger account, copy of Form DVAT-56, copy of GST R2A of M/s. Pinki Chains along with other supporting documents and evidences.

f) Revenue has not adduced any evidence to show that the seized gold was smuggled.

g) The bills produced show that the gold was legally purchased from the local market. The appellant was onlya broker and was not the importer or owner of the seized gold.

h) Section 111 (d) of the Customs Act does not apply to town seizures of goods. It applies to those cases where the goods have been imported in violation of any prohibition.

i) Section 111(i) applies only when any dutiable orprohibited goods are found concealed in any package either before or after unloading thereof. It should not apply to any goods which were seized from the shop of the appellant.

j) Section 111(p) applies only to goods notified under Chapter IVA of the Act and gold is not notified under this section.

k) Section 120 applies to those cases where the smuggled goods have been modified in form and it does not applyto the present case.

l) Section 121 applies to sale proceeds of smuggled goods and in this case, since the goods themselves are not smuggled, section 121 does not apply.

m) Section 123 shifts the burden of proof to the person from whom the goods are seized if the goods are notified and there was reasonable belief that the goods weresmuggled. In this case, there was no reasonable belief. Therefore, it is for the department to prove that theywere smuggled goods and the department has not discharged this burden.

n) The gold bars were imported by an approved agency and were freely available in the open market. The appellant purchased them from the open market.

o) The gold ornaments had no foreign markings on them to show that the jewellery was smuggled. Confiscation of jewellery seized from co-accused Deepak Handa and Ravi Handa was set aside by this Tribunal.

p) The Indian currency seized under section 121 as alleged sale proceeds of the smuggled gold is not sustainable as there was no evidence that the currency were the sale proceeds of smuggled gold.

q) The penalty imposed on the appellant under section 112 needs to be set aside.

11. Learned authorized representative for the Revenue reiterated the findings of the impugned order and asserted that the impugnedorder is correct and proper and calls for no interference. He made the following further submissions:

a) The appellant had, in his voluntary statement dated25.8.2017 admitted that he sold illegally imported gold from local market to Shri Deepak Hand without invoice or receipt. He had also arranged the jewellery and coins from market as evident from his statements, corroborated by the statements of Deepak Handa and Surinder Singh.

b) The appellant could not produce any valid documents regarding the two pieces of foreign origin gold bars of one kg each seized from his shop along with the gold ornaments andcash.

c) In his statement dated 24.8.2017, the appellant confirmed that the 9 gold bars seized from Deepak with foreign markings were sold through him and further confirmed that he would sell gold bars to Deepak at least 2 to 3 times a month. In follow up investigation, he was found to have two gold bars with foreign markings and he was unable to produce any document to prove their licit possession although he claimed to have purchased them from M/s. Uma Traders.

d) No prejudice is caused to the appellant from not allowing cross examination of the co-accused as they were in cahoots.The appellant also confessed to having dealt with the seized smuggled gold to Deepak. What is admitted need not be proved. Reliance is placed on Mohammed Muzzamil vsCBIC[8].

e) In case of gold notified under section 123 which is seized under reasonable belief that it is smuggled, the burden of proving that it is not rests on the person from who it is seized.

12. We proceed to examine the relevant legal provisions of the Act and then examine each of the four issues viz., the confiscation of the gold bars, confiscation of the jewellery, confiscation of the seized cash and imposition of penalty upon the appellant.

Legal provisions

13. The Customs Act, 1962 regulates imports and exports and provides for confiscation of certain goods, imposition of penalty on individuals and also has provisions for arrest and prosecution of theoffenders. The provisions relevant to this appeal are sections 2(22),(33) and (39), 111(d), (i) and (p), 112, 120, 121 and 123. These read as follows:

Section 2: Definitions

(22) "goods" includes -

(a) vessels, aircrafts and vehicles;

(b) stores;

(c) baggage;

(d) currency and negotiable instruments; and

(e) any other kind of movable property

(33) "prohibited goods" means any goods the import or exportof which is subject to any prohibition under this Act or any other law for the time being in force but does not include any such goods in respect of which the conditions subject to which the goods are permitted to be imported or exported have been complied with;

(39) "smuggling", in relation to any goods, means any act or omission which will render such goods liable to confiscation under section 111 or section 113;

SECTION 111. Confiscation of improperly imported goods, etc.

- The following goods brought from a place outside India shall beliable to confiscation: -

(d) any goods which are imported or attempted to be imported or are brought within the Indian customs waters for the purpose ofbeing imported, contrary to any prohibition imposed by or under this Act or any other law for the time being in force;

(i) any dutiable or prohibited goods found concealed in any mannerin any package either before or after the unloading thereof;

(p) any notified goods in relation to which any provisions of Chapter IVA or of any rule made under this Act for carrying out the purposes of that Chapter have been contravened.

SECTION 112. Penalty for improper importation of goods, etc.-Any person, -

(a) who, in relation to any goods, does or omits to do any act which act or omission would render such goods liable to confiscation under section 111, or abets the doing or omission of such an act, or

(b) who acquires possession of or is in any way concerned in carrying, removing, depositing, harbouring, keeping, concealing, selling or purchasing, or in any other manner dealing with any goods which he knows or has reason to believe are liable to confiscation under section 111, shall be liable,-

(i) in the case of goods in respect of which any prohibition is in forceunder this Act or any other law for the time being in force, to a penalty not exceeding the value of the goods or five thousand rupees, whichever is the greater;……."

SECTION 120. Confiscation of smuggled goods notwithstanding any change in form, etc. -
(1) Smuggled goods may be confiscated notwithstanding any change in their form.

(2) Where smuggled goods are mixed with other goods in such manner that the smuggled goods cannot be separated from such other goods, the whole of the goods shall be liable to confiscation: Provided that where the owner of such goods proves that he had no knowledge or reason to believe that they included any smuggled goods, only such part of the goods the value of which is equal to the value of the smuggled goods shall be liable to confiscation.

SECTION 121. Confiscation of sale-proceeds of smuggled goods. - Where any smuggled goods are sold by a person having knowledge or reason to believe that the goods are smuggled goods,the sale-proceeds thereof shall be liable to confiscation.

SECTION 123. Burden of proof in certain cases. (1) Where any goods to which this section applies are seized under this Act in the reasonable belief that they are smuggled goods, the burden of proving that they are not smuggled goods shall be –

(a) in a case where such seizure is made from the possession of anyperson,-

(i) on the person from whose possession the goods were seized; and

(ii) if any person, other than the person from whose possession the goods were seized, claims to be the owner thereof, also on such other person;

(b) in any other case, on the person, if any, who claims to be the owner of the goods so seized.

(2) This section shall apply to gold, and manufactures thereof, watches, and any other class of goods which the Central Government may by notification in the Official Gazette specify.

14. The gold (both the gold bars and gold jewellery) were confiscated in this case under sections 111(d) (i) and (p) read with section 120. The currency was seized under section 121. Section 123 was invoked to shift the burden of proof to the appellant.

15. It is important to first examine the scope of section123 with respect to this appeal so that it is established who (Revenue or the appellant) has to prove and then further examine if the burden is discharged. This section shifts the burden of proving that the goods are not smuggled to the person from whom they seized if (a) the goods are notified under this section; and further (b) the seizure was under reasonable belief that the goods were smuggled goods. This leads us to the next question as to what are „smuggled goods".There is no definition of „smuggled goods" in the Act and therefore,the natural meaning of the expression should be taken which is „goods" which are „smuggled". Both „goods" and „smuggling" are defined in the Act. Goods, as defined in section 2(22) is an inclusive definition and it includes, inter alia, vessels, currency and negotiable instruments. Therefore, there cannot be any doubt that the gold bars, gold ornaments and the cash seized in this case are clearly „goods". This leads to the next question as to what is smuggling. Section 2(39) defines "smuggling", in relation to any goods, as any act or omission which will render such goods liable toconfiscation under section 111 or section 113. Thus, the definition of smuggling under the Customs Act is very wide and any act or omission which renders the goods liable to confiscation under section 111 or section 113 falls within its ambit. For the purpose of this case, only section 111 is relevant.

16. Thus, to sum up, if any goods including cash, are liable to confiscation under section 111, they constitute smuggled goods andif they are seized under the reasonable belief that they are smuggled goods and if such goods are also notified under section 123, the burden of proving that they are not smuggled rests on theperson from who the goods are seized. Otherwise it rests on the Revenue. It is undisputed that gold is covered under section 123 and cash is not. Therefore, the burden of proof insofar as the cash is concerned, rests on the Revenue. The burden of proof shifts to the appellant with respect to gold depending on whether it was seized under the reasonable belief that it was „smuggled goods". Ifso, the burden shifts to the appellant and not otherwise.

17. The next important section is 121 which provides for confiscation of the sale proceeds of the smuggled goods. This is thesection under which the cash has been confiscated. What is different between sections 111 and 121 is that the former provides for confiscation of smuggled goods whereas the latter provides for confiscation of the sale proceeds of smuggled goods. Naturally, such sale would take place after smuggling and such proceeds will be of Indian origin. On the other hand, if anyone smuggles currency (Indian or foreign) into India, such currency will be smuggled goods" themselves.

18. The third important section is 120 which states that thesmuggled goods will be liable for confiscation not withstanding any change in the form. For instance, if one smuggles silver bars and then melts them and converts them into some other form, the mere fact that they were converted makes no difference and they will still be liable to be confiscated. The gold jewellery was confiscated under section 111 read with this section.

19. The next section to be examined is 2(33) which defines"prohibited goods" as any goods the import or export of whichis subject to any prohibition under this Act or any other law for the time being in force but does not include any such goodsin respect of which the conditions subject to which the goods are permitted to be imported or exported have been complied with. Thus, the definition of „prohibited goods" is wide and includes goodswhose import is prohibited fully either under this Act or under any law and further includes goods whose import is permitted only subject to some conditions and such conditions have not been fulfilled. This definition becomes significant when examining the confiscability under section 111.

20. The last section to be examined is section 111, specifically, clauses (d), (p) and (i) under which the gold was confiscated.Under section 111 (d) "any goods which are imported or attempted to be imported or are brought within the Indian customs waters for the purpose of being imported, contrary to any prohibition imposed by or under this Act or any other law for the time being in force"can be confiscated. Gold is a prohibited good inasmuch as itsimport was permitted during the relevant period only by the designated agencies under the Foreign Trade (Development & Regulation) Act, 1992.

21. As far as section 111(i) is concerned, it provides for confiscation of "any dutiable or prohibited goods found concealed in any manner in any package either before or after the unloading thereof".

22. As far as section 111(p) is concerned, it provides for confiscation of "any notified goods in relation to which any provisions of Chapter IVA or of any rule made under this Act for carrying out the purposes of that Chapter have been contravened".

Issues in this case

23. We proceed to examine the submissions by both sides with respect to each of the issues in this case and decide.

A. Foreign marked gold bars, two, weighing 2 kg in total and having a purity of 99.5%, one cut piece of yellow metal of the same purity weighing 195.23 grams seized from the appellant (part of S.No.(ii) of the operative part of the Order in Original)

24. These two gold bars and the cut gold piece had extremely high levels of purity and were in primary form and the gold bars had foreign markings. They were seized from the appellant in a follow up operation to the seizure of foreign marked gold bars from Deepak andSurinder. They were found in the premises of the appellant. When theofficers questioned the appellant on 25.8.2017, the appellant admitted that he had sold foreign marked gold to Deepak without invoice or receipt and further that he would sell so to Deepak 2 or 3 times a month. The appellant had no receipts or documents to show that the gold was not of foreign origin. In fact, even in the appeal before us, the appellant does not dispute that the gold was of foreign origin. The officers, therefore, had a reasonable belief that they were smuggled goods and accordingly, seized them. The burden of proof is on the person from who they are seized, viz., the appellant to prove that they were not smuggled as per section 123.

25. The submission of the learned counsel for the appellant isthat gold can be imported by authorized agencies (such as banks) who can further sell them to others in India. Therefore, it is his submission that the gold was legally imported into India and therefore is not smuggled. There is an ambiguity in the submissionsbefore us inasmuch as at one point in the synopsis it is submitted that the appellant purchased it from the agency and at another he states that the gold belonged to Easy Trading. The question is not just who purchased from whom but whether the gold is smuggledor not and the burden of proof is on the appellant. The mere fact that gold is imported by various agencies like banks also makes no difference to the case and neither does the fact that smugglers smuggle gold into India on a regular basis. What is important is to see from the evidence available on records if the seized gold was legally imported. It needs to be pointed out that gold bars manufactured by refineries is in bars of specific weights, purity and are embossed with the name of the firm, the purity, weight and even a serial number. Thus, when an agency imports gold, the details of the bars which are imported will be mentioned in the invoices and in the import documents. The designated agencies arebanks and other well reputed firms and when they sell the bars further, such sales are well documented. The least one would expect to have is a copy of the Bill of Entry or document under which the gold was imported. No duty paid document or Bill of Entry is produced before us or before the lower authorities to establish that the seized gold was legally imported. If any duty paid document was produced, it could have been verified with the import documents. Therefore, it has not been established that the seized gold was not smuggled.

26. Learned counsel submitted that the adjudicating authority didnot consider the appellant‟s request for summoning as witnesses Deepak Handa and Ravi Handa for cross examination on whose statements the whole case is based. He further submitted that the appellant had retracted their statements at the first available opportunity which was recorded by the learned Chief Metropolitan Magistrate when the appellant was produced after arrest. We find while the case emanated from the seizure of gold bars from Shri Deepak Handa and follow up investigation was conducted based on the statements of Deepak and Ravi, insofar as this gold is concerned, it stands on its own footing. Even if the statements of Deepak and Ravi are ignored, the fact that the gold bars were seized from the appellant is not in dispute. It is also not in dispute that they are of foreign origin and had foreign markings and were of very high purity is not in dispute. It is also not in dispute that no duty paid documents in the form of Bill of Entry (whether the dutyis paid by the appellant or the importer from whom the appellant claims to have purchased) is available. No such document is produced till date even before us. Therefore, the case against the appellant does not in any way get diluted. The fact that the appellant had given his statements on 24.8.2017 and 25.8.2017but subsequently retracted them when produced before the Ld. CMM was also examined. The statements give out several personal details which are likely to be in the exclusive knowledge of the appellant. It is inconceivable that the officer recording the statement had these details. It suggests that the statements were voluntary. These statements also indicate the appellant‟srelationship with Deepak Handa and that the appellant would sell gold to Deepak. The retraction does not indicate what part of the statement recorded by the officers was incorrect and what the truthis- his personal details, the fact that he would sell gold to Deepak or the nature of the seized gold. If officers had compelled him to write incorrect facts, the retraction should have brought out the correct facts. We find nothing to this effect. If one has legitimately bought foreign marked gold and is accused by DRI officers ofpossessing smuggled gold, it is inconceivable that when one is produced before the learned CMM that one would NOT say that he had actually bought duty paid gold and produce the documents. It needs to be reiterated that no duty paid documents have been produced till date even before us. Therefore, these submissions of the learned counsel will not carry the case of the appellant any further.

27. Learned counsel submits that the two gold bars weighing1000 grams each having purity of 995 and foreign markings were purchased by M/s. Easy Trading from M/s. Pinki Chains and produced invoice dated 19.8.2017 and a copy of ledger account, copy of Form DVAT-56, copy of GST R2A of M/s. Pinki Chains along with other supporting documents and evidences. The gold barswere imported by an approved agency and were freely available in the open market. The appellant purchased them from the open market. He further submits that Revenue has not adduced any evidence to show that the seized gold was smuggled. We find that none of the documents establish that the gold was duty paid. Whileit is true that gold imported by an approved agency can be and is sold in the market, it is the responsibility of the person who is in possession of the gold to establish that it is not smuggled. All that one needs to get a copy of the duty paid document such as Bill of Entry and the relevant documents to show that the gold bar which one is in possession of was duty paid. It is as simple as that.

28. Learned counsel for the appellant further submitted that in this case, there was no reasonable belief for seizing the gold.Therefore, it is for the department to prove that they were smuggled goods and the department has not discharged this burden. We disagree. The appellant was in possession of foreign marked gold and had no documents to show that duty was paid on it. This gave the department reasonable belief to seize. The burden of proof is on the appellant. If one has duty paid gold bars which are seized and confiscated, it will not be unreasonable to expectthat one would obtain the duty paid documents and produce instead of letting the gold be confiscated and getting oneself arrested. If the gold which the appellant was in possession was, indeed, duty paid, the documents to show that must be with the appellant and in his exclusive knowledge which he must produce, however no such documents have been produced not only before the investigating officers or the adjudicating authority but even before us. We are therefore, satisfied that the appellant has not discharged his burden of proving that the gold bars and the cut piece were not smuggled.

29. Learned counsel further submitted that Section 111 (d) of theCustoms Act does not apply to town seizures of goods. It applies tothose cases where the goods have been imported in violation ofany prohibition. He submits that Section 111(i) applies only when any dutiable or prohibited goods are found concealed in any package either before or after unloading thereof. It should notapply to any goods which were seized from the shop of the appellant. Section 111(p) applies only to goods notified underChapter IVA of the Act and gold is not notified under this section.

30. We find that section 111(d) nowhere indicates whether it applies to town seizures or seizures at the ports and airports. All that it states is that „any goods which are imported or attempted to be imported or are brought within the Indian customs waters for the purpose of being imported, contrary to any prohibition imposed by or under this Act or any other law for the time being in force‟ are liable for confiscation. Gold is not freely importable. Import of gold in any form, is prohibited except by nominated agencies as per the Foreign Trade Policy notification above issued under the Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992. Unless this condition of the import (only bya notified agency) is fulfilled, gold is a prohibited good. The appellant also does not dispute that the gold can be imported only by the nominated agencies. If gold is imported by anyone else, it will be prohibited goods. Hon‟ble High Court of Delhi inCommissioner of Customs & Central Excise Delhi IV vs Achiever International[9] held that the prohibition under Section 11 of the Customs Act is different from confiscation under section 111(d) of the Customs Act. While section 11 deals with prohibitionsunder the Customs Act only, confiscation under Section 111(d) can be done even if the import violated any other law for the time beingforce. In the case before the Hon‟ble High Court, section 3 of the Imports and Exports (Control) Act, 1947 was violated which is the predecessor law of Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992 which has been violated in this case. Hon‟ble Apex Court has in Om Prakash Bhatiya[10] and Sheikh Mohd. Omer[11] has held that Sec 2(33) of the Customs Act has wider connotations thanSec 11 of the Act. Even if gold is not notified separately under Sec 11 of the Act, the prohibition flows from the statue i.e., Sec 123 of the Act. Further, in Sheikh Mohd Omer it is held that any prohibition referred in Sec 111 applies to every type of prohibition and that may be partial or complete. Any restriction to import or Export is to an extent a prohibition. We, therefore, find section 111(d) applies to this case.

31. We, however, agree with the submission of the appellant thatsection 111(i) applies only when any dutiable or prohibited goods are found concealed in any package either before or after unloadingthereof. It should not apply to any goods which were seized from the shop of the appellant. Section 111(p) applies only to goods notified under Chapter IVA of the Act and that gold is not notified under this Chapter is not in dispute. Therefore, confiscation under sections 111(i) and (p) are not sustainable.

32. To sum up, we find that the gold bars and piece of gold were correctly held liable for confiscation under section 111(d) by the adjudicating authority and such confiscation was correctly upheld in the impugned order. Confiscation under sections 111(i) and (p) need to be set aside.

33. Gold jewellery weighing 581.71 grams seized from the appellant (part of S.No.(ii) of the operative part of the Order in original)

34. These gold ornaments were confiscated in the order in original and the confiscation was upheld in the impugned order under sections 111(d), 111(i) and 111(p) read with section 120 of the Customs Act. Section 120 provides that Smuggled goods may be confiscated notwithstanding any change in their form. Further, italso provides that where smuggled goods are mixed with other goods in such manner that the smuggled goods cannot be separated from such other goods, the whole of the goods shall be liable to confiscation. It is the case of the department that the seized jewellery was made out of smuggled gold and NOT that it itself was smuggled. There were also no foreign markings on them to show that the jewellery is smuggled. Thus, it is not in dispute that the gold jewellery was not smuggled but is made in India. If it was established with some evidence that the jewellery was manufactured out of smuggled gold, then such smuggled goldwould have been covered under Section 123 and by virtue ofsection 120, would have been liable for confiscation notwithstanding the change in its form into jewellery. However, there is no such evidence on record. In our considered view,therefore, the jewellery is not liable to confiscation in the absence of any evidence that it is smuggled or it has been made by converting smuggled gold. The mere fact that the jewellery was found along with the smuggled gold bars makes no difference. Confiscation of the gold jewellery cannot be sustained and needs tobe set aside and we do so. In Final Order dated 25.5.2021, this tribunal had taken a similar view with respect to the jewelleryseized from others in this case.

B. Indian currency amounting to Rs. 8,86,500 seized from the appellant (S.no. (iv) of the operative part of the order in original)

35. While section 123 shifts the burden of proof to the person from whom the goods were seized in case of gold, it does not do so, in respect of cash. The currency was seized under section 121as „sale proceeds of smuggled goods‟. This section states that „Where any smuggled goods are sold by a person having knowledgeor reason to believe that the goods are smuggled goods, the sale- proceeds thereof shall be liable to confiscation'. This section does not shift the burden of proof to the person(s) from whom the cashis seized. It is for the Revenue to establish that the cash which has been seized are (a) the sale proceeds; (b) the goods that were soldwere smuggled goods; and (c) the person who has so sold the goods had either the knowledge or had reason to believe that the goods were smuggled. Merely because some unaccounted cash is lying, it cannot be confiscated unless the three conditions in Section 121 are fulfilled. From the records of this case, we do not find that the Revenue has established any of these factors or even identified which were the smuggled goods which were sold by the personfrom whom the cash is seized. Confiscation of this cash is therefore, liable to be set aside and we do so. It also needs to be noted that an identical view was taken with respect to the cash seized from Baibhav Ornaments and Radhika Jewellers in this Tribunal‟s Final Order dated 25.5.2021.

C. Penalty of Rs. 25,00,000 imposed on the appellant underSection 112 (S.No. (vii) of the operative part of the Order inOriginal)

36. Penalty under section 112 is imposable for any acts or omissions which render the goods liable to confiscation under section 111 of the Act. This section reads as follows:

SECTION 112. Penalty for improper importation ofgoods, etc.- Any person, -

(a) who, in relation to any goods, does or omits to do any act which act or omission would render such goods liable to confiscation under section 111, or abets the doing or omission of such an act, or

(b) who acquires possession of or is in any way concerned incarrying, removing, depositing, harbouring, keeping,concealing, selling or purchasing, or in any other mannerdealing with any goods which he knows or has reason tobelieve are liable to confiscation under section 111, shall be liable,-

(i) in the case of goods in respect of which any prohibition is in force under this Act or any other law forthe time being in force, to a penalty not exceeding the value of the goods or five thousand rupees, whichever isthe greater;

37. We note that we had, by final order dated 25.5.2021, reducedthe penalties imposed on Shri Deepak Handa and Shri Ravi Handa. We also set aside the confiscation of the cash and jewellery seized from the appellant. We, therefore find it fit to reduce the penalty imposed on the appellant also to Rs. 5,00,000/- (Rupees five lakhs only).

38. The appeal is partly allowed and the impugned order is partly modified as follows:

a) Confiscation of foreign marked gold bars, two, weighing 2 kg in total and having a purity of 99.5%, one cut piece of yellow metal of the same purity weighing 195.23 grams seized from the appellant (part of S.No.(ii) of the operative part of the Order in Original) under section 111(d) is upheld and confiscation under sections 111(p) and 111(i) are set aside.

b) Confiscation of Gold jewellery weighing 581.71 grams seized from the appellant (part of S.No.(ii) of the operative part of the Order in original) under section 111 read with section 120is set aside.

c) Confiscation of the seized Indian currency (cash) under section 121 is set aside.

d) The penalty imposed on the appellant under section 112 is reduced to Rs. 5,00,000/-

39. The appeal is disposed of as above with consequential relief.

Ms. Gunjan Tanvar, Advocate for the Appellant
Shri Rakesh Kumar, Authorised Representative for the Department

CORAM :

HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA, PRESIDENT HON'BLE MR. P. V. SUBBA RAO, MEMBER (TECHNICAL)

Date of Hearing: February 26, 2024DEFECT MISCELLANEOUS ORDER NO. 39-42/2024

JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA:

On January 2, 2024, learned counsel for the appellant had prayed for and was granted six weeks time to make the pre deposit. The order is reproduced below:
"A perusal of the letter dated 07.10.2023 sent by the Assistant Commissioner clearly shows that out of the cash amount of Rs. 98 lakhs that were found andseized under a panchnama dated 25.10.2009 from the premises of the appellant, only an amount of Rs. 20 lakhs was deposited in the Government account through TRC-6 challans on 30.01.2010 towards wronglyavailed drawback and this amount has also been appropriated in the order dated 20.03.2019.

2. It is pointed out by the learned counsel for the appellant that the drawback amount that was appropriated was against the liability of some other person and not the appellant.

3. In this view of the matter, the amount of Rs. 20 lakhs cannot be considered towards the pre-deposit in these appeals.

4. Learned counsel for the appellant prays for and is granted six weeks" time to make the pre-deposit in all the four appeals. List on February 26, 2024."

2. Learned counsel for the appellant states that she has not received any instructions from the appellant.
3. It, therefore, transpires that the appellant has not made the pre-deposit contemplated under section 129E of the Customs Act, as amended on 06.08.2014.
4. Section 129E of the Customs Act is reproduced:-

"SECTION 129E. Deposit of certain percentage of dutydemanded or penalty imposed before filing appeal.

The Tribunal or the Commissioner (Appeals), as the case may be, shall not entertain any appeal,-

(i) under sub-section (1) of section 128, unless the appellant has deposited seven and a half per cent. of the duty, in case where duty or duty and penalty are indispute, or penalty, where such penalty is in dispute,in pursuance of a decision or an order passed by an officer of customs lower in rank than the Principal Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs;

(ii) against the decision or order referred to in clause (a)of sub-section (1) of section 129A, unless theappellant has deposited seven and a half per cent of the duty, in case where duty or duty and penalty are indispute, or penalty, where such penalty is in dispute,in pursuance of the decision or order appealed against;

(iii) against the decision or order referred to in clause (b)of sub-section (1) of section 129A, unless theappellant has deposited ten per cent of the duty, in case where duty or duty and penalty are in dispute, or penalty, where such penalty is in dispute, in pursuanceof the decision or order appealed against :

PROVIDED that the amount required to be deposited under this section shall not exceed rupees ten crores:

PROVIDED FURTHER that the provisions of this section shall not apply to the stay applications and appeals pending before any appellate authority prior to the commencement of the Finance (No. 2) Act, 2014."

5. It would be seen from a bare perusal of section 129E of the Customs Act that after 6.8.2014 neither the Tribunal nor the Commissioner (Appeals) have the power to waive the requirement of pre-deposit, unlike the situation which existed prior to the amendment made in section 129E on 06.08.2014 when the Tribunal, if it was of theopinion that the deposit of duty and interest demanded or penalty levied would cause undue hardship, could dispense the said deposit on such conditions as it deemed fit to impose so as to safeguard the interest of the Revenue.

6. The Supreme Court in Narayan Chandra Ghosh vs. UCO Bankand Others[1], examined the provisions contained in section 18 of the Securitisation and Reconstruction of Financial Assets and Enforcement of Security Interest Act, 2002 relating to pre deposit in order to avail the remedy of appeal. The provisions are similar to the provisions of section 129E of the Customs Act. The Supreme Court emphasised that when a Statue confers a right to appeal, conditions can be imposed forexercising of such a right and unless the condition precedent for filing appeal is fulfilled, the appeal cannot be entertained. The Supreme Court, therefore, heldthat deposit under the second proviso to section 18(1) of the Act, being a condition precedent for preferring an appeal, the Appellate Tribunal erred in law in entertaining the appeal. The Supreme Court also held that the Appellate Tribunal could not have granted waiver of pre-deposit beyond the provisions of the Act. The relevant portion of the judgment of the Supreme Court is reproduced below:

"7. Section 18(1) of the Act confers a statutory right on a person aggrieved by any order made by the by the Debts Recovery Tribunal under Section 17 of the Act to prefer an appeal to the Appellate Tribunal. However, the right conferred under Section 18(1) is subject to the condition laid down in the second proviso thereto. The second proviso postulates that no appeal shall be entertained unless the borrower has deposited with the Appellate Tribunal fifty per cent of the amount of debt due from him, as claimed by the secured creditors or determined by the Debts Recovery Tribunal, whichever is less. However, under the third proviso to the sub section, the Appellate Tribunal has the power to reduce the amount, for the reasons to be recorded in writing, to not less than twenty-five per cent of the debt, referred to inthe second proviso. Thus, there is an absolute bar to entertainment of an appeal underSection 18 of the Act unless the condition precedent, as stipulated, is fulfilled. Unless the borrower makes, with the Appellate Tribunal, apre- deposit of fifty per cent of the debt due from him or determined, an appeal under the said provision cannot be entertained by the Appellate Tribunal. The language of the saidproviso is clear and admits of no ambiguity.

8. It is well-settled that when a Statute confersa right of appeal, while granting the right, the Legislature can impose conditions for theexercise of such right, so long as the conditionsare not so onerous as to amount to unreasonable restrictions, rendering the right almost illusory. Bearing in mind the object of the Act, the conditions hedged in the said proviso cannot be said to beonerous. Thus, we hold that the requirement of pre-deposit under sub-section (1) of Section 18of the Act is mandatory and there is no reason whatsoever for not giving full effect to the provisions contained in Section 18of the Act. Inthat view of the matter, no court, much less theAppellate Tribunal, a creature of the Act itself, can refuse to give full effect to the provisionsof the Statute. We have no hesitation inholding that deposit under the second proviso toSection 18(1) of the Act being a condition precedent for preferring an appeal under the said Section, the Appellate Tribunal had erredin law in entertaining the appeal without directing the appellant to comply with the said mandatory requirement.

9. The argument of learned counsel for the appellant that as the amount of debt due had not been determined by the Debts Recovery Tribunal, appeal could be entertained by the AppellateTribunal without insisting on pre-deposit, is equally fallacious. Under the second proviso to sub- section (1) of Section 18 of the Act the amount of fifty per cent, which is required to be deposited by the borrower, is computed either with reference to the debt due from him as claimed by the secured creditors or as determined by the Debts Recovery Tribunal, whichever is less. Obviously, where theamount of debt is yet to be determined by the Debts Recovery Tribunal, the borrower, while preferring appeal, would be liable to deposit fifty per cent of the debt due from him as claimed by the secured creditors. Therefore, the condition of pre- deposit being mandatory, a complete waiver ofdeposit by the appellant with the Appellate Tribunal, was beyond the provisions of the Act, as is evident from the second and third provisos to the said Section. At best, the Appellate Tribunal could have, after recording the reasons, reduced the amount of deposit of fifty per cent to an amount not less than twenty-five per cent of the debt referred to in the second proviso. We are convinced that the order of the Appellate Tribunal, entertaining appellant's appeal without insisting on predeposit was clearly unsustainable and, therefore, the decision of the High Court in setting aside the same cannotbe flawed."

7. The principles laid down in the aforesaid decision of the Supreme Court in Narayan Chandra Ghosh were reiterated by the Supreme Court in Kotak Mahindra Bank Pvt. Limited vs. Ambuj A.Kasiwal & Ors[2].

8. In Chandra Sekhar Jha, the Supreme Court noted that the Tribunal had rejected the appeal filed under section 129A of theCustoms Act for the reason that the appellant had not complied with the requirement of pre-deposit under section 129E of the Customs Act.Though the contention of the appellant that the provisions of section 129E of the Customs Act as it stood prior to 06.08.2014 should be applied, was rejected by the Supreme Court for the reason that the order was passed by the Commissioner on 23.11.2015 and the appeal was filed in 2017, but the Supreme Court also observed:-

"8. It is in sharp departure from the previous regime that the new provisions has been enacted. Under the new regime, on the one hand, the amount to be deposited to maintain the appeal has been reduced from 100% to 7.5% but the discretion which was madeavailable to the appellate body to scale down the pre- deposit has been taken away.

11. We would think that the legislative intention wouldclearly be to not to allow the appellant to avail the benefit of the discretionary power available under the proviso to the substituted provisions under section 129E. When the appellant is not being called upon to pay the full amount but is only asked to pay the amount which is fixed under the substituted provisions, we do nt find any merit in the contention of theappellant. "

9. In this connection, it will also be appropriate to refer to adecision of the Delhi High Court in Dish TV India Limited vs. Union of India & Ors.[3], wherein the requirement of pre-deposit under section 129E of the Customs Act, came up for consideration. The High Court held that when the Statue itself provided wavier of pre- deposit to the extent of 90% or 92.5% of the duty amount and made it mandatory to deposit 7.5% or 10% of duty amount, the Courts cannot waive this requirement of deposit. The observations of the Delhi High Court are as follows:

"7. Previously, prior to amendments of the statue, applications for wavier of the pre-deposit were being preferred. Several litigations have travelled up to theHon"ble Supreme Court upon such applications for waiver of pre-deposit.

10. In view of the aforesaid statutory provisions ofthe Act, it appears that the statue has now effected wavier of pre-deposit to the extent of 90% or 92.5% of the duty amount and has made it mandatory to deposit 7.5% or 10% of the duty amount, as the case may be. Itought to be kept in mind that the relief is granted by the law itself. Courts cannot be more charitable than the law. When the provisions of the law are explicitly clear or where the provisions of law are absolutely unambiguous, such type of pre-deposits cannotbe waived by the courts.

14. In view of the amendment in the Act, especially Section 129E thereof, there is no question whatsoever of the waiver of predeposit. As stated hereinabove, the statue itself has waived 90% or 92.5% of the duty amount, as the case may be, assessed by the authorities under the Customs Act,1962. The petitioner- assessee has to deposit only 7.5% or 10% (as the case may be) of the duty assessed. Thus, there is no question of further waiver of the amount which is required to be deposited under Section 129E of the Customs Act, 1962."

A Division Bench of Delhi High Court in M/s Vish Wind Infrastructure LLP v/s Additional Director General (Adjudication), New Delhi[4] examined the provisions of section 35Fof the Central Excise Act, 1944 which are pari materia to section 129E of the Customs Act and held that every appeal filed before the Tribunalafter the amendment made in section 35F of the Excise Act andsection 129E of the Customs Act on 06.08.2014 would be maintainableonly if the mandatory pre-deposit was made. In coming to this conclusion, the Division Bench relied upon the judgment of the Delhi High Court in Anjani Technoplast Ltd. v/s Commissioner of Customs[5] and also observed that in view of the peremptory words „shall not", there is an absolute bar on the Tribunal to entertain any appeal unless the requirement of pre-deposit is satisfied. The Division Bench further observed as follows:-

"28. Equally, it is trite that no court can issue a direction to any authority, to act in violation of the law. A reading of section 35F of the Central Excise Act reveals, by the usage of the peremptory words "shall not" therein, that there is an absolute bar on the CESTAT entertaining any appeal, under Section 35 of the said Act, unless the appellant has deposited 7.5 % of the duty confirmed against it by the authority below.

29. The two provisos in section 35F relax the rigour of this command only in two respects, the first being that the amount to be deposited would not exceed 10 crores, and the second being that the requirement of pre-deposit would not apply to stay applications or appeals pending before any authority before the commencement of the Finance (No.2) Act, 2014, i.e. before 6" August, 2014.

30. Allowing the CESTAT to entertain an appeal,preferred by an assessee after 6" August, 2014, would, therefore, amount to allowing the CESTAT to act in violation, not only of the main body of section 35F but also of the second proviso thereto, and would reduce the command of the legislature to a dead letter.

31. That no court can direct an authority to act in violation of the law is settled in innumerable authorities, including, inter alia, Vice-Chancellor, University of Allahabad v. Dr. Anand Prakash Mishra[6], A.B.Bhaskara Rao v. C.B.I[7], , Manish Goel v. Rohini Goel[8], and State of Bihar v. Arvind Kumar[9].

33. In view of the aforesaid facts, reasons and judicial pronouncements, the prayer of the petitioner for being permitted to prosecute its appeal before the CESTAT without complying with the condition of mandatory pre-deposit, cannot be granted. There is, therefore no substance in these writ petitions which are, consequently, dismissed."

11. The same view was taken by the Division Bench of the Delhi High Court in Diamond Entertainment Techno. P. Ltd. v/s Commissioner of CGST, Dehradun[10].

12. The Madhya Pradesh High Court in Ankit Mehta v/s Commissioner, CGST Indore[11] also dismissed the Writ Petition that had been filed against the order of the Tribunal dismissing the appeal for the reason that the required pre-deposit was not made. The contention that was advanced before the Tribunal and before theMadhya Pradesh High Court was that the appellant was not in aposition to make the pre-deposit due to financial constraints. After examining the provisions of section 129E of the Customs Act, the Madhya Pradesh High Court observed as follows:-

"The aforesaid statutory provision of law makes it very clear that it is mandatory for an appellant to deposit seven and a half percent of the duty demanded or penalty imposed or both. The petitioner has not deposited a single rupee and in those circumstances, keeping in view the provisions of section 129E, the appeal itself has been dismissed.

This Court after careful consideration of theaforesaid judgments is of the opinion that section 129E does not empower the Tribunal or the Commissioner (Appeals) to waive the pre-deposit or to reduce the pre-deposit , this Court is also not inclined, keeping in view the aforesaid statutory provisions of law to waive or reduce the pre-deposit and, therefore, no case for interference is made out in the matter. Accordingly, theWrit Petition is dismissed."

13. The appellant has not made the pre-deposit. As the law relating to pre-deposit has been settled by the Supreme Court and the High Courts, the appeal would have to be dismissed for non-compliance of the statutory mandatory requirement.

14. The appeal, therefore, is dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. 50266/2024

DATE OF HEARING : 23.01.2024

JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA

The order dated 25.11.2020 passed by the Commissionerof Customs (Appeals)[1] to the extent it upholds the order dated 24.07.2017 passed by the Assistant Commissioner of Customs rejecting the refund application filed by the appellant in respect of eight Bills of Entry is sought to be assailed in this appeal. It needs to be noted that the Commissioner (Appeals), by the said order, had allowed the appeal in respect of three Bills of Entry.

2. The appellant had imported "Fitbit Wearable Devices" by classifying them under Customs Tariff Item[2] 9031 80 00/8423 1000 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1985[3] and had cleared them after payment of duty as per the self-assessment. The appellant, however, subsequently realized that the said item was incorrectlyclassified and that it would correctly be classifiable under CTI 8517 62 90 of the Tariff Act attracting Nil Basic Customs Duty in terms of Serial No. 13 of the Notification dated 01.03.2005.Accordingly, the appellant filed a refund claim in respect of the eleven Bills of Entry before the Assistant Commissioner of Customs (Refund) under section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962[4]. The refund applications were rejected by order dated 25.07.2017 holding that the Bills of Entry had not been re-assessed and that the appellant had also failed to submit certificates from statutory auditors that the excess duty of customs had not been passedon. Feeling aggrieved, the appellant filed an appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals). The Commissioner (Appeals), in view ofthe judgment of the Supreme Court in ITC Ltd. versus Commissioner of Central Excise, Kolkata – IV[5], held that theprovisions of section 27 of the Customs Act cannot be invoked in the absence of amendment or modification of the Bills of Entry on the basis of which the self-assessment was made. The Commissioner (Appeals) noted that the appellant had neither filed appeals against eight assessment orders, nor it had sought amendment/modification of the assessment orders before filing the refund application on 13.06.2016, though in respect of three assessment orders the appellant had filed appeals which were allowed by order dated 23.10.2017 and re-assessment as per theclassification sought by the appellant was allowed. The Commissioner (Appeals) also noted that in respect of eight Bills of Entry, the appellant had filed applications for amendmentunder the Customs Act, which applications were pending before the Deputy Commissioner.

3. Thus, as re-assessment was allowed in respect of threeBills of Entry, the impugned order dated 25.07.2017 in so far asit rejected the refund claim in regard to these three Bills of Entry was set aside by the Commissioner (Appeals) and the refund claim was directed to be re-examined in accordance with law. In respect of eight Bills of Entry, the Commissioner (Appeals) observed that the request of the appellant for directing the Deputy Commissioner to decide the application filed for amendment of the Bills of Entry under section 149 of the Customs Act cannot be entertained in the absence of a provision under the Customs Act to issue such a direction.

4. Shri B.L. Narasimhan, learned counsel for the appellant hasvery fairly stated that in view of the decision of the Supreme Court in ITC, it will not be appropriate for him to make submission on the merits of the appeal, but a direction that he seeks in the present appeal is that the Deputy Commissioner, before whom the application dated 11.07.2019 was filed under section 149 of the Customs Act for amendment of the Bills of Entry, may be directed to decide. In support of this contention, learned counsel place reliance upon a decision of the Tribunal in Principal Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi (Import)vs. M/s Vivo Mobile India Pvt. Ltd.[6]

5. Shri Rakesh Kumar, learned authorized representative appearing for the department, however, submitted that in view ofthe facts and circumstances of the case it may not be necessary for the Tribunal to issue a direction at this stage. Learned authorized representative appearing for the department submitted that in two matters before the Bombay High Court andthe Telangana High Court referred to in Vivo Mobile Writ- Petitions had been filed to challenge the orders rejecting the amendment applications filed under section 149 of the Customs Act, but in the present case, the amendment applications have not been rejected and are pending disposal.

6. The submissions advanced by learned counsel for the appellant as also the learned authorized representative appearingfor the department have been considered.

6. It is not in dispute that in respect of eight Bills of Entry the appellant had not filed any appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals) for re-assessment. In this view of the matter, the Commissioner (Appeals) was justified in holding that the refund applications would not be maintainable in view of the decision of the Supreme Court in ITC.

7. The sole question that arises for consideration in this appeal is whether a direction should be issued to the Deputy Commissioner to decide pending application filed by the appellantunder section 149 of the Customs Act for amendment in the Bills of Entry.

8. Section 149 of the Customs Act, on which reliance has beenplaced, is as follows :-

"149. Amendment of documents

Save as otherwise provided in sections 30 and 41, the proper officer may, in his discretion, authorise any document, after it has been presented in the customs house to be amended in such form and manner, within such time, subject to such restrictions and conditions,as may be prescribed:

PROVIDED that no amendment of a bill of entry or a shipping bill or bill of export shall be so authorised to be amended after the importedgoods have been cleared for home consumption or deposited in a warehouse, or the export goods have been exported, except on the basis of documentary evidence which was in existence at the time thegoods were cleared, deposited or exported, as the case may be".

9. After referring to the decision of the Bombay High Court in Dimension Data India Private Ltd. vs. Commissioner ofCustoms[7] and the Telangana High court in M/s Sony India Pvt. Ltd. vs. Union of India[8], the Division Bench of the Tribunalin Mobile India observed as follows :-

"29. Thus, in view of the aforesaid decisions of the Bombay High Court in Dimension Data India and the Telangana High Court in Sony India, the respondent can take recourse to appropriate proceedings, including the provisions of sections 149 and 154 of the Customs Act for either amendment of the Bills of Entry or for correction of the Bills of Entry. These two decisions have considered the decision of the Supreme Court in ITC.

30. It is expected that if such applications are now filed by Vivo Mobile, the same would be adjudicated expeditiously as the refund applications were filed in 2015. It is, therefore, ordered that in the event applications are now filed by Vivo Mobile, they shall be decided expeditiously and preferably within a period of three months from thedate of filing of the applications. The refund applications, if any filed after the decision is taken on such applications, shall also be decided expeditiously".

10. The distinction sought to be drawn by the learned authorized representative appearing for the department is mis- conceived. Once an application for amendment has been filed, itis the duty of the Adjudicating Authority to decide it in view of the specific provisions contained under section 149 of the Customs Act and the said application cannot be kept pending indefinitely. It is not open to the department to raise a plea inthis appeal that a direction should not be issued by the Tribunal for deciding the appellant as it may ultimately lead to a situation that the application filed by the appellant under section 149 of the Customs Act would remain undecided as the Deputy Commissioner will not decide and the Tribunal cannot issue a direction. A statutory duty is cast upon the Deputy Commissionerto decide the application at the earliest and the said application cannot be kept pending indefinitely.

11. In the present appeal it is the contention of the appellant that the application for amendment of the Bills of Entry under section 149 of the Customs Act was filed on 11.07.2019, but it has not been decided as yet and in fact the Commissioner (Appeals) before whom a direction was sought also refused to grant such a relief holding that such a power is not vested in him under the provisions of the Customs Act.

12. It would, therefore, be appropriate that in case the application has already not been decided, it should be decided expeditiously and preferably within a period of three months fromthe date of filing of this order before the Deputy Commissioner. Such a direction is necessary as the application was filed in the year 2019 and almost more than three years have lapsed.

13. The appeal is, accordingly, disposed of with the aforesaid direction.

These appeals have been filed by the appellants against change of classification of the goods by the original and first appellate authority.

2. Learned counsel for the appellant stated that M/s. Glanbia Performance Nutrition (India) Pvt. Ltd., the Appellant, is engaged in the business of importing and selling nutritional supplements in India. In this batch of appeals, the Appellant is contesting the combined first appellate order issued vide Order-in-Appeal No. MUN-CUSTM-000-APP-279 to 307- 19-20 dated 28.02.2020 passed by Commissioner of Customs (Appeals), Ahmedabad. Learned counsel for the appellant pointed out that Commissioner (Appeals) changed the classification for impugned goods as detailed in Table below:

Summary of classification dispute

16.	Optimum Nutrition 100% Whey Gold Standard- Rocky Road	21061000	18069040
17.	Optimum Nutrition Serious Mass – Chocolate	21061000	18069040

Learned counsel for the appellant argued that Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) and Learned AC have failed to consider the nature and composition of the impugned goods, and simplistically re-classified the impugned goods under residual tariff heading 2106 of Customs Tariff.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant stated that the Appellant is engaged, inter alia, in the import, storage, marketing, sales, and distribution of impugned goods in India. Appellant have started directly importing the impugned goods into India from March 2019from its related supplier, i.e., M/s. Glanbia Nutritionals (Ireland) Ltd. In view of the Appellant‟s relationship with the foreign supplier, valuation aspect of the transaction was referred to Special Valuation Branch (SVB) for further scrutiny. Accordingly, the goods imported by the Appellant have been assessed provisionally in terms of Section 18. The bills of entry against which impugned OIO and Order in Appeal was issued, have not yet been finalised.

4. Learned counsel for the appellant pointed out that while the assessments continued to be provisional for the afore-mentioned reasons in respect of the impugned bills of entry, the Respondent alleged that the impugned goods are properly classifiable under CTH 2106 of Customs Tariff. For this reason, the clearance in some of the Bills of Entry was not permitted. Learned counsel for the appellant pointed out that notwithstanding the provisional nature of assessments due to ongoing SVB proceeding, the Respondent chose to issue a speaking order under Section 17 of the Customs Act, 1962 seeking to classify the impugned goods under CTI 2106 10 00 and re-assessed the Bills of Entry. This required the appellant to deposit additional duty and interest under protest and seek clearance of the impugned goods. Ld counsel for the appellant pointed out that aggrieved by the impugned OIO, the Appellant filed appeals before Learned Commissioner (Appeals)disputing the re- assessment and change in classification of the goods mentioned in Table above. The Learned Commissioner (Appeals)upheld the classification concluded by Learned AC vide a common impugned order. Learned counsel for the appellant pointed out that the primary reasons for finding against the Appellant are provided below:

- Predominant ingredient:Impugned goods contain 72% protein with „Whey Protein Isolate“ and „Whey Protein Concentrate“ being the main ingredients.

- Common Parlance:In common parlance the impugned goods are known as nutritional supplements consisting of whey protein concentrates.
- Note 5 to Chapter 21 of Customs Tariff includes Protein Concentrates and suggests classification under CTH 2106.
- Cocoa is not the main ingredient in the impugned goods.

5. Learned counsel for the appellant argued that without considering the submissions made by the Appellant, the classification mentioned in Column-3 to Table above was upheld by Ld. Commissioner (Appeals).Ld counsel for the appellant pointed out that aggrieved by the classification of impugned goods concluded vide the impugned order, Appellant filed 29 individual appeals before the Tribunal stated to be involving same issue.

6. Learned counsel for the appellant argued that the products mentioned in Table above, include nutritional supplements, pre-workout beverages and general health products, sports supplements, protein products in powder format and ready-to-drink format. These products are whey protein powders containing cocoa in different proportions.

Accordingly, the impugned goods in the general trade parlance are considered as nutritional products broadly understood as protein powders with cocoa. In other words, the impugned goods are identifiable as chocolate protein powders/chocolate-flavoured protein powders. Ld counsel for the appellant argued that the aforementioned understanding in the trade parlance is further contributed by the fact that the labels of impugned goods refer such products as "Gold Standard 100% Whey (Chocolate Peanut Butter)", "Isopure Low Carb (Naturally and Artificially Flavoured Chocolate)", amongst others. He pointed out that the ingredients mentioned on the label also mention cocoa as an ingredient in the food preparation. He argued that on perusal of Bills of Material, it is evident that the impugned goods contain differential amount cocoa and protein content. However, the impugned goods have been classified merely on the basis of the presence of protein content without reference to the appropriate chapter headings and discussion on the General Rules of Interpretation of the Customs Tariff. The supplier of the Appellant has shared a bill of material for each impugned product indicating the raw materials used in the food preparation.

7. Learned counsel for the appellant argued that the following are key issue under consideration before this Hon"ble Tribunal:

(i) Whether the impugned goods are classifiable under CTH 1806 or CTH 2106of Customs Tariff?

(ii) Whether the Respondent is entitled to do piece-meal finalisation of provisional assessment?

The Ld counsel has conceded on the second issue and sought that the issue of classification may be finalised by the tribunal as is apparent from the submissions recorded in para 30below. Therefore the only issue which remains to be decided is if the impugned goods are classifiable under CTH 1806 or CTH 2106of Customs Tariff.

8. On the merits of classification Learned counsel for the appellant argued that before getting into the classification of impugned goods, it is important to analyse the general rules governing classification of goods under Customs Tariff. He argued that it is trite law that a product is to be classified basis the condition in which such goods are presented for clearance to the Customs Authorities. He relied on the following decisions

(i) Dunlop India Ltd. v. UOI1983 (13) E.L.T. 1566 (SC);

(ii) Commissioner v. Sony India Ltd.2008 (231) E.L.T. 385 (S.C.)].

He further argued that the appropriate classification of goods is determined by following the General Rules for the Interpretation of Import Tariff ("GIR"). He argued that for the purposes of present submission, it is important to consider GIR Rule 1, 3(a) and 6, which must be applied sequentially. He relied on the following

(i) Taj Sats Air Catering Ltd. v. CC Ex., Delhi-II, 2016 (334) E.L.T. 680 (Tri-Del.);

(ii) Circular 36/2013-Cus. Dated 05.09.2013

He argued that as per the GIR Rule 1, the classification of goods must be done in accordance with the Chapter Heading (CTH) and any relevant Section and Chapter Notes. These Notes provide detailed explanation as to the scope and ambit of the respective Sections and Chapters under Customs Tariff. He relied on the following decisions

(i) Saurashtra Chemical, Porbandar vs. Collector of Customs, 1986 (23) ELT 283 (Tri-LB) [upheld in1997 (95) ELT 455 (SC)];

(ii) Central Excise vs. Simplex Mills Co. Ltd, 2005(181) E.L.T. 345 (S.C) and

(iii) CC, ICD, New Delhi v. Industrial Importers, 2014 (300) E.L.T. 584 (Tri-Del)].

He argued that only when the goods cannot be classified in terms of GIR Rule 1 and 2, recourse can be made to GIR Rule 3(a), which provides that the heading which provides the most specific description must be preferred. Lastly, GIR Rule 6 requires that while interpreting the sub- headings of the tariff for classification, the guidance of the GIRs can be applied mutatis mutandis to other levels. He further argued that in addition to the foregoing rules of classification, for purposes of uniform interpretation of the Harmonized System of Nomenclature (hereinafter referred to as "HSN"), WCO has published detailed Explanatory Notes to HSN which have long been recognized as a safe guide to interpret the Customs Tariff. He relied on the following decisions

(i) O.K. Play (India) vs. CCE, (2005) 180 ELT 300 (SC 3-member bench);

(ii) CC. Ex., Pune-I v. Praj Industries, 2009 (242) E.L.T. 430 (Tri- Mum);

9. He argued that on application of GIR Rule 1, the following are the relevant CTH under consideration:

CTH	PARTICULARS
1806	Chocolate and other food preparations containing cocoa
1901	Malt extract; Food preparations of flour, groats, meal, starch or malt extract, not containing cocoa or containing less than 40% by weight of cocoa calculated on a totally defatted basis, not elsewhere specified or included; Food preparations of goods of headings 0401 to 0404, not containing cocoa or containing less than 5% by weight of cocoa calculated on a totally defatted basis, not elsewhere specified or included
2106	Food preparations not elsewhere specified or included

He argued that in the light of the aforementioned relevant CTHs, it would be prudent to now examine the scope of each of the aforementioned CTHs.He argued that that CTH 1806 of Customs Tariff covers "Chocolate and other food preparations containing cocoa". The precise heading along with the entry has been provided hereinbelow for the ease of reference:

Tariff Item	Description of goods	Unit	Rate of duty
			Std.	Pref. Areas
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)
1806	Chocolate and other food preparations containing cocoa	Kg.		-
[…]	**[…]	[…]	[…]	[…]
1806 90	- Other	Kg.	30%	-
1806 90 10	--- Chocolate and chocolate products		30%
1806 90 20	--- Sugar confectionary containing cocoa		30%
1806 90 30	---- Spreads containing cocoa		30%
1806 90 40	---- Preparations containing cocoa for making beverages		30%
1806 90 90	---- Other

He argued that the phrase "food preparation" have not been defined in the Customs Tariff Act or Explanatory Notes. Hence, emphasis must be laid on the plain meaning of the phrase and its use in general parlance. He argued that the term „preparation" has been defined in Kothari Chemicals v. UOI*, 1996 (86) E.L.T. and Reckitt and Colman of India Ltd., Calcutta v. CCE, Calcutta*, 1985 (22) ELT 216 (Tribunal) as products made from separate components. Thus, a product can be categorized as „food preparation" when there is a process undertaken to give rise to a „prepared food" that is different from its ingredients. He argued that all the CTHs under consideration deal with "food preparation".

10. He argued that GIR Rule 1 provides that the classification of products must also be in terms of relative Section and Chapter Notes. In this regard, Chapter Note to Chapter 18 of Customs Tariff provides the following:

"This Chapter does not cover the preparations of headings 04.03, 19.01, 19.04. 19.05, 21.05, 22.02, 22.08, 30.03 or 30.04"

He argued that that Chapter 18 only covers such cocoa and cocoa preparations which are not covered any of the aforementioned headings. He argued that HSN General Explanatory Notes to Chapter 18 provides that this Chapter covers "*cocoa (including cocoa beans) in all forms, cocoa butter, fat and oil and preparations containing cocoa (in any proportion)", except for the aforementioned exclusions. He argued that this view is further corroborated by the fact that HSN Explanatory Notes to CTH 1806provides that it includes "all food preparations containing cocoa (other than those excluded in the General Explanatory Note to this Chapter)".He argued that mere perusal of the aforementioned enlisted headings, it can be seen that the goods under consideration are not likely to be covered under any other CTH, except CTH 1901 of Customs Tariff, which requires further analysis. The CTH 1901 is extracted hereinunder:

1901	*Malt extract; food preparations of flour, groats, meal , starch or malt extract, not containing cocoa or containing less than 40% by weight of cocoa calculated on a totally defatted basis, not elsewhere specified or included; food preparations of goods of headings 0401 to 0404, not containing cocoa or containing less than 5% by weight of cocoa calculated on a totally defatted basis, not elsewhere specified or included

He argued that CTH 1901 of Customs Tariff covers "food preparations of goods of headings 0401 to 0404, not containing cocoa or containing less than 5% by weight of cocoa calculated on a totally defatted basis, not elsewhere specified or included". He pointed out that similar narration has also been provided in HSN General Explanatory Notes to Chapter 19. CTH 1901 covers the following:

(i) „food preparations" of CTH 0401 to CTH 0404 of Customs Tariff; and
(ii) It contains „less than 5%" of defatted cocoa by weight.

He argued that in case of food preparation of whey of CTH 0401 to CTH 0404 containing defatted cocoa more than or equal to 5% by weight (defatted), such food preparation would not be classified under CTH 1901 of Customs Tariff. He argued that this view is further augmented by specific exclusion provided in HSN Explanatory Note to Chapter 18, HSN Explanatory Note to CTH 1901, and HSN Explanatory Notes to CTH 2106which provides that food preparations of CTH 0401 to CTH 0404 containing less than 5% cocoa (by weight) are instead covered under CTH 1901.He argued that if the product under consideration does not satisfy the dual condition as summarised in Para above, such goods irrespective of their cocoa content are classifiable under CTH 1806 of Customs Tariff. He relied on HSN Explanatory Notes to CTH 2106 and HSN Explanatory Notes to CTH 1806.

11. He argued that CTH 2106, covers "Food preparations not elsewhere specified or included". In other words, for classification under CTH 2106 of Customs Tariff requires two conditions to be satisfied, namely:

a. It must a food preparation;
b. It must not be specified or included elsewhere.

He argued that similar interpretation has also been provided under HSN Explanatory Note to CTH 2106 which specifically mentions that CTH 2106 only covers those goods which are not covered under any other heading of the Nomenclature. He argued that the point of distinction as per HSN Explanatory Notes read with Customs Tariff in respect of CTH 1806, CTH 1901 and CTH 2106 is as follows:

(i) If a food preparation contains cocoa (other than defatted cocoa) in any proportion, then it is classifiable under CTH 1806

(ii) Food preparations of CTH 0401 to CTH 0404 containing less than or equal to 5% of cocoa on defatted basis are classifiable under CTH 1901;

(iii) Food preparations of CTH 0401 to CTH 0404 containing more than or equal to 5% of cocoa (defatted basis) are classifiable under CTH 1806;

(iv) Lastly, if the goods under consideration are not classifiable under the aforementioned CTHs, such goods can be classified under CTH 2106 of Customs Tariff.

He argued that in respect of classification under CTH 1806, CTH 1901 and CTH 2106, the impugned goods being in the nature of „food preparations", the preliminary condition under each of the aforementioned CTH is satisfied. He argued that for classification under CTH 1901, the impugned goods contain albumin and other protein concentrates which are acting as the base material. He argued that the impugned goods are food preparations having constituent ingredients from CTH 3502 and CTH 3504, and are not food preparations of CTH 0401 to CTH 0404. He argued that the impugned goods do not satisfy the condition of classification under CTH 1901 of Customs Tariff.

Furthermore, he argued that cocoa used in the food preparation is not defatted cocoa. He argued that the impugned goods are in the nature of "food preparations". This fact is undisputed between the parties. It is on this ground alone, classification under CTH 3502 and CTH 3504 of Customs Tariff are ousted as they do not relate to food preparations.

12. He argued that a combined reading of HSN Explanatory Notes to CTH 2106, HSN Explanatory Notes to CTH 1806 read with HSN General Explanatory Notes to Chapter 18 shows that CTH 1806 covers all other food preparations containing any amount of cocoa. He argued that in the present case, the impugned goods have cocoa content (not defatted) between the range of 1to 10%. Therefore, he argued that the impugned goods merit classification under CTH 1806 of Customs Tariff, which covers "Chocolate and other food preparations containing cocoa".

13. He relied on similar observations made by the Authority on Advance Ruling (AAR) in the decision of In Re: Karnataka Co-operative Milk Producers Federation Ltd., 2021 (46) G.S.T.L. 160 (A.A.R. - GST - Kar.).He argued that on logically extending GIR Rule 6 read with GIR Rule 1 to sixth and eight-digit level, the impugned goods are appropriately classifiable under CTI 1806 90 40 of Customs Tariff, which reads as "Chocolate and other food preparations containing cocoa: Other: Preparations containing cocoa for making beverages".

14. He further argued that the issue in respect of "Cookies & Cream" flavoured whey protein powder came up for discussion before the 68th WCO"s Harmonized System Committee of September 2021.He argued that this decision, having Doc. NC2855Eb/K/6, WCO"s HS Committee concluded that "Cookies & Cream" flavoured whey protein powder containing cocoa (along with processed alkali) of~1%are appropriately classifiable under CTSH 1806 90. He argued that the product at S. No. 11 of Table above are similar to the goods under consideration before WCO"s HS Committee. Hence, the WCO"s HS Committee decision applies to the present case.

15. He argued that in the light of the foregoing submissions, the classification undertaken by the Appellant and appearing in Column (4) of Table (above) is correct. Thus, the duty incidence in respect of impugned goods have been correctly discharged by the Appellant.

16. Ld Counsel relied on the WCO"s HS Committee decision, and other international rulings passed by the National Commodity Specialist Division, US Customs and Border Protection (US Customs) to hold that impugned goods are classifiable under CTSH 1806 90 of HTSUS. Reliance was placed on

(i) US Cross Ruling N025135* dated 15.04.2008and

dealing with similar product classification wherein it was held that "100% Whey Classic-Chocolate" and "100% Whey Gold Standard-Chocolate" are classifiable under CTSH 1806.90.

17. Learned Counsel also relied on Ruling No. 1E17NT-14-4988-04 dated 08.06.3027, EU Taxation and Customs Union wherein it was held that impugned goods are classifiable under CTSH 1806 90 of HSN. Ld Counsel also relied on Canada Border Services Agency Advance Ruling No. C-2016-002882 dated 19.10.2016, wherein it was held that pre and post-workout protein snack based on whey protein isolate and containing cocoa powder are classifiable under CTSH 1806 90. Ld Counsel also relied on WCO"s 58th Session of Harmonized System Committee in October 2016which classified „sugar coated milk chocolate sweets" under CTH 1806 merely because of the cocoa content. Similar conclusions were also reached in WCO"s 68th Session of HS Committee in September 2021 pertaining to "Cookies & Cream" flavoured whey protein powder.

18. Learned Counsel argued that in the case of Jagson International Ltd. v. CC, 2006 (199) E.L.T. 553 (T), the Tribunal held as follows:

"India is a signatory to the International Convention on the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System which was devised, inter alia, to facilitate international trade and to facilitate the standardization of trade documentation and the transmission of data. The Harmonised System was intended to be used for the purposes of freight tariffs and transport statistics and intended to be incorporated into commercial commodity description and coding systems to the greatest extent possible, as contemplated by the preamble to the Convention. It was undertaken by its "Contracting Parties" that from the date on which the convention entered into force in respect of it, its customs tariff and statistical nomenclatures shall be in conformity with the Harmonised System. Each contracting party undertook in respect of its Customs tariff and statistical nomenclatures that: -

"(i) it shall use all the headings and subheadings of the Harmonised System without addition or modification, together with their related numerical codes;

(ii) it shall apply the General Rules for the interpretation of the Harmonised System and all the Section, Chapter and Subheading Notes, and shall not modify the scope of the Sections, Chapters, headings or subheadings of the Harmonised System; and

(iii) it shall follow the numerical sequence of the Harmonised System." (Emphasis Supplied) Learned Counsel argued that the HSN acts as the basis for the classification of the goods across the world. He submitted that the Indian Courts must also march hand-in-hand with the decisions rendered by the foreign counterparts in interpreting the treaties to which India is signatory relating to classification of goods. Reliance in this regard was placed on the decision of the Hon"ble Supreme Court in CC v. G.M. Exports*, 2015 (324) ELT 209 (SC). Similarly, reliance was also be placed on the decision of CC v. C-Net Communication (I) Pvt. Ltd.*, 2007 (216) E.L.T. wherein the Hon"ble Supreme Court relied upon the decision of Canadian Customs Tribunal.

19. Learned Counsel argued that globally the impugned goods are classified under CTH 1806 only. Reliance in this regard is placed on sample import documents on import of cocoa-based whey protein powders. Therefore, Ld Counsel argued that, impugned goods containing cocoa are appropriately classifiable under CTSH 1806 90 of Customs Tariff.

20. Learned counsel submitted that Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) classified the impugned goods under CTH 2106 of Customs Tariff. CTH 2106 of Customs Tariff reads as under:

Tariff Item	Description
2106	Food Preparations Not elsewhere specified or included
2106 10 00	- Protein concentrates and texture protein substances

21. Learned Counsel argued that Ld. Commissioner (Appeals), owing to the high protein content in the goods, directly jumped to the conclusion that such goods are specifically covered under CTI 2106 10 00 which covers "Protein concentrates and texture protein substances" without exhausting sequential application of GIR Rules.Ld Counsel argued that it is important to revisit GIR Rule 1 for the purpose of classification of goods under Customs Tariff. Under this rule, the goods under consideration must be classified in accordance with the terms of the Headings. In other words, the impugned goods must first satisfy the heading of CTH 2106, which covers "Food preparations not elsewhere specified or included", before moving to the sub-heading level which inter alia covers "Protein concentrates".

22. Learned Counsel argued that the impugned goods on the basis of their cocoa content is specifically covered under CTH 1806, and therefore, condition (ii) i.e.
"It must not be specified or included elsewhere."

under CTH 2106 is not satisfied. Hence, the impugned goodsare not classifiable under CTH 2106 of Customs Tariff. Ld Counsel argued that such goods would also not be classifiable under tariff sub-heading 2106 10 00 of Customs Tariff.

23. Learned Counsel also relied on the HSN Explanatory Note to CTH 2106which specifically mentions that CTH 2106 only covers those goods which are not covered under any other heading of the Nomenclature. Relevant extract reproduced hereinunder:

"Provided that they are not covered by any other heading of the Nomenclature*, this heading covers:*

(A) Preparations for use, either directly or after processing […]

(B) Preparations consisting wholly or partly of food stuffs […]"

Ld Counsel argued that the aforementioned conclusion is also supported by virtue of specific exclusion provided under HSN Explanatory Notes of 2022 for CTH 2106. Here, it is relevant to note that under HSN Explanatory Notes of 2022 of CTH 2106, food preparations containing cocoa have been specifically excluded from falling under CTH 2106. Relevant extract reproduced hereinunder:

"[…] This heading further excludes

(a) Preparations containing cocoa, put up as food supplements for human consumption (heading 18.06)"

Learned Counsel argued that impugned goods are correctly classifiable under CTH 1806 and therefore they are ipso facto excluded from the scope of CTH 2106 of Customs Tariff.

24. Learned Counsel argued that as per GIR Rule 3(a), the heading that provides the most specific description of the goods shall be preferred to headings providing a more general description. It is pertinent to note that GIR Rule 3(a) envisages comparison at the CTH level only. Ld Counsel argued that a bare perusal of CTH 1806 which covers „Chocolate and other food preparations containing cocoa"and CTH 2106 which covers „Food preparations not elsewhere specified or included", it is evident that impugned goods are covered more specifically under CTH 1806or CTH 1901. Thus, on application of GIR Rule 3(a), the impugned goods are rightly classifiable under CTH 1806. He placed reliance on the case of CC (Import) vs Abbott Healthcare Pvt. Ltd., 2015 (2) TMI 740wherein the CESTAT has held that preparations for infant should not be classified under CTH 2106 which covers "Food preparations not elsewhere specified or included" as they are specifically covered by CTH 1901 which reads as "Preparations for infant use". He also placed reliance on the case of Mauri Yeast India Pvt. Ltd. vs. State of UP, 2008 (225) ELT 321 (S.C.)wherein it was held by the Hon"ble Supreme Court that if there is a conflict between two entries one leading to an opinion that it comes within purview of tariff entry and another the residuary entry, the former should be preferred.

25. He argued that it is settled law that in cases of the disputes involving classification of goods if two views are possible then the one in favour of the assessee should be preferred. Reliance in this regard was placed on the following judicial precedents:

- India Steel Industries v. UOI, 2018 (359) ELT 465 (Bom)
- CC, Madras vs. Lotus Links 1996 (87) E.L.T. 580 (S.C.);

- Poulose and Mathen vs. CCE, 1997 (90) E.L.T. 264 (S.C.);
- CCE, Calcutta vs. Calcutta Springs Ltd., 2008 (229) E.L.T. 161 (S.C.);
- Ocean Marketing v. CCEx&ST, Jaipur, 2017 (348) E.L.T. 269 (Tri-Del).

Learned Counsel argued that Commissioner (Appeals) in Para 6.1 and Para 6.2 of the impugned order has relied upon the observations by Ld. AC regarding treatment of the product in the commercial parlance as „nutritional supplements". Accordingly, Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) confirmed the classification under CTH 2106 of Customs Tariff. He argued that the doctrine of commercial nomenclature or trade understanding must be departed where the statutory context in which the tariff item appears requires such departure. He placed reliance on decision of the Hon"ble Supreme Court in the case of Akbar Badruddin Jiwani v. Collector of Customs, 1990 (47) ELT 161 (SC). The Hon"ble Supreme Court in this case was dealing with the classification of „marble". This term in the technical criteria required gravity of 2.5% or more. Accordingly, the Hon"ble Supreme Court discarded the commercial understanding of the product and held that where HSN contains specific definition then such definition must be preferred, and doctrine of commercial nomenclature must not be applied. Ld Counsel argued that similar observations have also been made by the Hon"ble High Court of Mumbai in the case of Kulkarni Black & Decker Ltd. v. UOI, 1992 (57) E.L.T. 401 (Bom). The relevant extract from *Kulkarni (Supra)*summarizing the legal position has been extracted herein under for ease of reference:

"It is now settled by catena of decisions of the Supreme Court and this Court that it is not permissible to take into consideration the trade meaning or commercial nomenclature when the definition provided in the statute is extremely clear and does not suffer from any ambiguity. In case where the application of commercial meaning or trade nomenclature runs counter to the statutory context in which the word is used in the Tariff Item, then the trade meaning or commercial nomenclature should be ignored."

(Emphasis Supplied) Learned Counsel argued that the trade/ commercial parlance is to be examined only if the tariff entry is ambiguous. Reliance in this regard is being placed on Nirlon Synthetic Fibres v. UOI, (1999) 110 E.L.T. 445 (Bom) (DB) and Panama Chemical Works v. UOI, 1992 (2) E.L.T. 241 (M.P). Ld Counsel argued that in the present case, cocoa products have been defined under the HSN Explanatory Notes to CTH 1806, CTH 1901 and CTH 2106. Ld Counsel argued that there is no ambiguity in respect of classification under such CTH. Hence, the reliance placed on the commercial parlance for the purpose of concluding classification of the impugned goods is incorrect.

26. Learned Counsel argued that the impugned goods are marketed as cocoa flavoured product only. Further, as submitted above, the impugned goods contain cocoa (along with alkali) within the range of 1 to 10 %, thereby providing cocoa benefits to the user of impugned goods. Ld Counsel argued that the impugned goods are commercially recognised as cocoa flavoured food preparations only.

27. Learned Counsel argued that Commissioner (Appeals) in Para 6.1 and 6.2 of the impugned order took a simplistic way of deciding the classification of impugned goods basis the pre-dominant weight or volume of the protein content. Ld Counsel argued that Commissioner (Appeals) directly applied the essential character test laid down under GIR Rule 3(b). He argued that it is trite law that GIR Rules must be applied in a sequential manner. Thus, before applying GIR Rule 3(b), the classification of goods must be undertaken in terms of GIR Rule 1, GIR Rule 2 and GIR Rule 3(a).

28. Learned Counsel argued that merely on application of GIR Rule 1, i.e., relying upon Section and Chapter Notes read with HSN Explanatory Notes, the impugned goods are classifiable under CTH 1806. Ld Counsel argued that the classification of impugned goods basis the pre-dominant weight [GIR Rule 3(b)] is erroneous. Reliance in this regard is being placed on the decision of CC (Prev) Kolkata v. Anutham Exim Pvt. Ltd., 2021 (378) E.L.T. 611,wherein the Hon"ble CESTAT at Kolkata held that classification based on predominant test based on composition of the product is incorrect in law and may give rise to absurd classification result.

29. Learned Counsel argued that Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) in Para 6.1 of impugned order, observed that cocoa has not been mentioned as the main ingredient on the label of the product. He pointed out that the name on the label and Bills of Material gives reference to the cocoa content of the product. Ld Counsel argued that the label of the impugned goods invariably mentions the presence of cocoa on the product name.

30. Learned Counsel argued that the impugned goods are more appropriately classifiable under CTH 1806 of Customs Tariff and on account of failure of revenue to justify classification under the CTH 2106 of Customs Tariff, the entire proceedings initiated by the Department is unsustainable. He placed reliance on the decision of L&T v. CC, Mundra, 2021-VIL-224-CESTAT-AHM-CUwherein this Hon‟ble Tribunal whilst relying on the dictum of Hindustan Ferrodo Ltd. v. Collector of Central Excise, Bombay, 997 (89) E.L.T. 16 (S.C.), HP Chemicals Ltd. v. CCEx., Chandigarh, 2006 (197) E.L.T. 324 (S.C.),Pepsico Holding Pvt. Ltd. v. CCEx, Pune-III, 2019 (25) G.S.T.L. 271 (Tri. – Mum)and Warner Hindustan Ltd. v. Collector of CE, Hyderabad, 1999 (113) E.L.T. 24 (SC)held as follows:

"10. In view of the above settled law, irrespective whether the classification claimed by the Appellant is correct or not since the classification proposed by the Revenue is absolutely incorrect, the entire case of the Revenue will not sustain. Therefore, we are not addressing the issue that whether the Appellant's classification was correct or otherwise. The Appellant also made an alternate submission that even if the classification declared by them under CTH 8306 2110 is incorrect the goods are otherwise classifiable under CTH 9703 in such tariff entry also the IGST Rate is 12% and therefore, there will be no revenue implication. Though alternate classification suggested by the Appellant appears to be prima facie correct but since we have already taken a view that Revenue's claim of classification under CTH 8311 is absolutely incorrect and it is nobody's case in the Show Cause Notice that the goods are classified under CTH 9703 we are not addressing this issue. However, since the Revenue's claim of classification is held to be incorrect the entire proceeding of the Revenue is quashed. The impugned order is set aside. The appeal is allowed with consequential relief, if any arise, in accordance with law."

Learned Counsel argued that Ld. AC and Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) passed the orders while the assessment was provisional due to matter pending with SVB. Ld Counsel argued that the assessments cannot be finalised in a piecemeal manner. Ld Counsel argued that that a request for provisional assessment was made consequent to investigations initiated by the SVB in respect of imports from related party. However, till the date of hearing (25.08.2022), no Investigation Report pertaining to the import of goods from related party has been issued by the SVB. Thus, the provisional assessment of impugned BOE‟s are yet to be finalised by the proper officer in terms of Customs Act.Learned Counsel argued that despite the provisional nature of assessment, speaking order was passed in terms of Section 17(4) read with Section 17(5) of Customs Act on the issue of classification. Ld Counsel argued that it is trite law that the assessment cannot be undertaken by Learned AC in a piecemeal manner. Learned Counsel argued that during the pendency of the SVB investigation, passing of speaking order on issue of classification under Section 17(5) of Customs Act must be discouraged. He places reliance on the decision of CCEx, Madras v. Enfield India Ltd., 1999 (114) E.L.T. 162 (Tri) wherein the Hon‟ble CEGAT held that more than one order finalising the assessment cannot be made by the proper officer. In this case, the Hon‟ble Tribunal noted that once an assessment is provisional, it is deemed to be provisional on all counts. He also relied on the case of ITC Ltd. v. Collector of Central Excise, Patna, 1998 (102) E.L.T. 660 (Tri),where the Tribunal held that issues of classification cannot be separated from the question of valuation. Thus, provisional assessment remains provisional in respect of all issues, which must be adjudicated together and not in a piecemeal manner. Accordingly, the Tribunal remanded the matter back for fresh adjudication including all the issues involved therein [In Re: Castrol India Ltd., 2001 (138) E.L.T. 979 (Commr. Appls)]. He also relied on the case of Nitco Tiles Ltd. v. CC (Export Promotion), Mumbai, in Order No. S/491 to 497/08/CSTB/C-II and A/485 to 491/08/CSTB/C-II dated 20.08.2008 [Compilation, p. 150]where taking note of the above-mentioned decision, remanded the case for fresh adjudication citing finalisation of provisional assessment in piecemeal manner. Ld Counsel argued that the impugned order results in multiplicity of proceedings and challenges the grundnorm as envisaged under the Customs Act. Ld Counsel submitted that in order to conclude the classification dispute Tribunal may pass orders on the classification of the impugned goods determinatively.

31. Learned AR pointed out that the goods imported and classification claimed by the appellant are as follows:-

Sl. No.	Name of product	CTH as per importer	Description in CTH
1	Nutritional Supplements Containing Cocoa	18069040	Preparations containing cocoa for making beverages.
2	Unflavoured Nutritional Substances	35040099	Peptones and their derivatives; other protein substances and their derivatives, not elsewhere specified or included; hide powder, whether or not chromed – Others.
3	Glutamine Powder	29241900	Acyclic amides (including acyclic carbamates) and their derivatives; salts therefor; - Others.
4	Creatine Powder	29252990	Carboxyimide-Function Compounds (Cluding Saccharin and its salts) and Imine-Function Compounts – Imines and their derivatives; salts thereof – Others

Learned AR pointed out that the Assessment of imported impugned goods was done provisionally for the following reasons:-

(a) The issue regarding the relationship of the appellant with the foreign supplier viz., M/s. Glanbia Nutritionals (Ireland) Ltd, Ireland is under investigation before the Special Valuation Bench, Mumbai for SVB Investigation.

(b) In addition to the above, the import goods have been mis- classified by the appellant instead of classifying them appropriately as given below:

Sl. No.	Name of product	CTH claimed by the appellant	CTH as per Department
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)
1	Nutritional Supplements Containing Cocoa	18069040	21061000
2	Unflavoured Nutritional Substances	35040099	21061000
3	Glutamine Powder	29241900	21069099
4	Creatine Powder	29252990	21069099

Learned AR pointed out that the appellant has paid duty under protest on the imported goods under CTH No. 21061000 and CTH No. 21069099.

32. The Bills of Entry were re-assessed by way of Speaking Orders under Section 17(4) of the Customs Act, 1962 thereby the import goods are ordered to be classified under CTH 21061000 for Nutritional Supplements and under CTH No. 21069099 for Glutamine Powder and Creatine Powder. It was also ordered for vacation of protest for payment of customs duty. Aggrieved with the order of the assessment, the appellant have filed appeal before the Commissioner(Appeals), Customs, Ahmedabad. Ld AR pointed out that the appellant vide their letter dated 26-08-2022 have accepted the classification of Creatine Powder and Glutamine Powder under CTH No. 21069099.

33. Learned AR pointed out that the Labels of all the products produced by the appellant clearly mention that the main ingredients of the imported goods are "Whey Protein Isolate (WPI) and Whey Protein Concentrate (WPC)". For example, the actual description of the import goods as declared in Bill of Entry No. 3139731 dated 07-05- 2019 and their protein content per 100 grams as appearing in the label produced by the appellant, are given below:-

TABLE-A

Sl. No.	Description of the import goods	Unit Qty. in grams	Protein content in the import goods per 100 grams
1	On Ind 100% WGS AF/GF DBL Rich Choc 5 LB	100	78.90
2	On Ind 100% WGS AF Cookies & Cream 5 LB	100	72.70
3	BSN India True Mass Chocolate 5.82 LB	100	28.00
4	On Ind 100% WGS AF Cookies & Cream 5 LB	100	72.70
5	On Ind 100% WGS AF/GF DBL Rich Choc 5 LB	100	78.90
6	On Ind 100% WGS AF/GF DBL Choc 907 G	100	78.90
7	On Ind 100% WGS AF/GF DBL Choc 907 G	100	78.90
8	On Ind 100% WGS AF/GF DBL Choc 907 G	100	78.90
9	On Ind 100% WGS AF/GF DBL Choc 907 G	100	78.90
10	On Ind 100% WGS AF/GF Rocky Road 5 LB	100	76.00
11	On Ind 100% WGS AF/GF Mocha Capp 5 LB	100	75.00

Learned AR pointed out that from above table, it is evident that all the import items except item mentioned at Sl. No. 3 contain more than 72% protein in all the import goods. Thus, it is apparent that in the products imported as Nutritional Supplement, protein concentration is higher than 72%. Therefore, all the aforesaid products are clearly in the nature of protein concentrates and are also being sold in the market so, by the appellant, therefore all these products are classified under CTH No. 21061000.

34. In respect of product at Sl. No. 3 of above table, the same contains 28% of protein and 55% carbohydrates. Thus, even this product is having the essential character of whey protein with carbohydrates as base material has rightly been declared on the labels and also being sold in the market so. Label of this product vis., BSN India True Mass Chocolate 5.82 LB (Nutrition Supplement) specifies as nutrition information of the product as under:-

Sl. No.	Value For	Quantity Per Serving	Quantity per 100 gms.	% Daily Values
1	Energy	2941 kJ/704 kcal	1782 kJ/426 kcal	26%
2	Protein	46 gm	28 gm	77%
3	Fat Total	17 gm	10 gm	57%
4	Saturated	4 gm	2 gm	-

5	Carbohydrate	90 gm	55 gm	-
6	Sugars	14 gm	8 gm	-
7	Sodium	300 mg	182 mg	24%

Learned AR pointed out that the above table reveals that BSN India True Mass Chocolate 5.82 LB (Nutrition Supplement) has protein of "77% daily values" ingredients as protein concentrate, soy lecithin, calcium caseinate, milk protein isolate, whey protein isolate, micellar casein, hydrolysed whey protein, egg whites, etc....". Further, these products are known to buyers in the market as Whey Protein Concentrates. Therefore, in the trade and commercial parlance, identity/ classification of the import goods is clearly known as nutrition supplements consisting of whey protein concentrates which people take for the general well beings of humans.

35. Learned AR argued that the classification of import goodsis to be determined as per the guidelines enunciated in "General Rules for the Interpretation of the Harmonized System". It contains a set of 6 rules for classification of goods in the Tariff Schedule. These rules have to be applied sequentially.

36. Learned AR pointed out that the appellants have imported goods like Gold Standard 100% Whey, Isopure Protein Powder, Gold Standard 100% Isolate, Serious Mass, True Mass 1200, Syntha-6, etc. Ld AR pointed out that these products are known in the market and by the public as "Nutrition Supplements". There is no dispute that the appellants have also declared these products as "Nutrition Supplements" in the Bill of Entries. He pointed out that these products are marketed in different flavours such as vanilla, strawberry, chocolate/cocoa, double rich chocolate, etc. Ld AR argued that the appellants have claimed classification of these products under CTH No. 18069040 as "Preparations containing cocoa for making beverages" under Chapter –
18 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 which covers "Cocoa and Cocoa Preparations".Ld AR argued that the products made from whey such as Whey Protein Concentrates and Whey Protein Isolates are not covered under chapter 18. The adjudicating authority clearly held that none of the labels of the import products mention Cocoa as the main ingredient of the import items for which classification has been claimed as falling under Chapter-18. Ld AR pointed out that merely because cocoa is added as a flavoring agent does not change the content, composition and character of these products and they do not become cocoa and cocoa preparations.

37. He argued that as per Supplementary Note – 5(a), protein concentrates and textured protein substances are covered under CTH 2106. The appellant have produced images of labels of some of the import goods. Ld AR pointed out that in these labels, "Chocolate" is mentioned as only a flavour but not as main constituent of the product. These products" main constituent is "protein and carbohydrate"and these products are known in the market as protein powder/ protein powder neutraceutical. These products are marketed as "Nutrition Supplements" with different flavours. For example, "GOLD STANDARD 100% WHEY PROTEIN POWDER" is marketed in different flavours such as Extreme Milk Chocolate, Delicious Strawberry, Vanilla Ice Cream and Double Rich Chocolate.

38. Learned AR pointed out that the appellants have submitted copies of commercial invoices. It can be seen that they have shown classification of same products under two different chapters of 18 and 21 for two different Flavors. Wherein product with description, "ON INDIA 100% WGS AF/GF MOCHA CAP 907G" is shown as covered under CTH No. 18069040 whereas another product with description, "ON INDIA 100% WGS AF/GF BANANA CRM 907G & ON INDIA 100% WGS AF/GF STRAW 907G" are shown as covered under CTH No. 21061000. These products are known and sold in the market as "WHEY GOLD STANDARD". The only difference is their flavour. Ld AR argued that mere addition of flavouring agent does not change the character, use or classification of the product.

39. Learned AR relied on the case of Wander Ltd Vs. Collector of Central Excise, Bombay, the Tribunal, Delhi – reported at 1999 (110) ELT 735 (Tribunal) to assert that protein concentrate are rightly classifiable under heading 2106 and not under chapter 4 as dairy product.

40. Learned AR relied on the case of Collector of Central Excise Vs. Frozen Foods Pvt. Ltd – reported at 1992 (59) ELT 279 (Tribunal), wherein it was held that dietary supplement „Surje", consisting of whey protein and casein peptides (37%), carrier and sweetening agents (62%) and flavouring and vitamins (1%), put up in unit containers classifiable under sub-heading 2107.91 (presently covered under sub-heading 2106).Ld AR relied on the case of Commissioner of Customs(Import), Mumbai Vs. E. I. Dupant (I) Pvt. Ltd – reported at 2005 (190) ELT 20 (Tri.-Mumbai).Ld AR relied pointed out that theTribunal while deciding similar issue of classification of Kit-Kat coated with chocolate in the case Nestle (India) Ltd Vs. CCE, Mumbai – 2000 (124) ELT 898 held that

"13. It might have been necessary, in view of the presence of chocolate, to refrigerate the product to prevent its melting or spoiling. That alone cannot justify the view that the product"s essential character of the product has been conferred upon it by chocolate. There is nothing to show that the buyers of the goods bought as chocolate, not as a combination of chocolate and biscuits; that it was the presence of the chocolate alone as distinct from the chocolate and biscuits which length of the product is appeal to customers. On the other hand, the market advertising brief produced by the appellant refers to the presence of the biscuit market as well as the chocolate market and it talks of the products as wafer covered with crisp chocolate and say that the product creates niche for itself, drawing from both the biscuit market as well as the chocolate market."

This judgement in the case of Nestle (India) Ltd is also followed by the in the case of Little Star Foods Pvt. Ltd Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Hyderabad reported at 2006 (199) ELT 451 (Tri.-Bang.).In the case of Dhariwal Industries Ltd Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Pune-III reported at 2014 (304) ELT 585 (Tri.-Mumbai), the Tribunal, has held that "4.2 ….As per Rule 3(b), "Mixtures, composite goods consisting of different materials or made up of different components, and goods put up for retail sale, which cannot be classified by reference to 3(a), shall be classified as if they consisted of the material or component which gives them their essential character. If this rule is applied, then the material which gives the essential character is the Pan Leaf Powder. Pan Leaf is part of a plant and preparation of pan leaves with other ingredients would merit classification under Heading 20.01 as preparation of fruits, nuts and vegetables and other parts of a plant prior to March, 2005 and under CETH 2008.9200 on or after March, 2005."

As per this judgement, product is to be classified based on its essential character. In the instant case, there is no dispute that the import goods are Nutrition Supplements made from Whey Protein Concentrate and Whey Protein Isolate.Ld AR argued that Tribunalin the case of Raptakos Brett & Co. Ltd Vs. Commissioner of C. Ex., Raigad – 2014 (307) ELT 565 (Tri.-Mumbai) held that to constitute protein concentrate, at least 70% of protein is required. It can be seen from the Annexure-A, import goods except goods at Sl No. 7, 11 & 15, contain protein more than 70%. Hence these products can be classified as protein concentrates under CTH 21061000.

41. Learned AR argued that finalization of classification issue was under the competency of the adjudicating authority and the finalization on valuation issue was under SVB. That is the reason, the adjudicating authority in the order portion mentioned that "this order is issued without prejudice to the outcome of the issue of supplies from related party which is to be decided by the Special Valuation Branch, Mumbai".

42. Learned AR argued that it is not forthcoming whether the appellant have submitted labels of all their products, bills of materials, etc. before the adjudicating authority. It can be definitely said that all bills of materials submitted by the appellant before this hon"ble Tribunal are issued on 18-08-2022. These were not produced before the adjudicating authority or before the first appellate authority.

FINDINGS:

43. We have considered the rival submissions. After raising the ground of assessment being provisional and piecemeal finalisation of assessment the appellants have given up this issue. The Ld counsel has sought that the issue of classification may be finalised by the tribunal as is apparent from the submissions recorded in para 30 above.The submission in this regard is reproduced below:

"Having said the foregoing, in order to conclude the classification dispute, it is most respectfully prayed before this Hon"ble Tribunal to pass orders on the classification of the impugned goods determinatively."

In view of above, we proceed to decide the classification issue despite the assessment being provisional on account of Valuation.

44 The following table contains the classification sought by the appellant and the classification adjudicated by the Revenue.

45 The appellants have themselves ruled out the classification under chapter 4 or chapter 35 of the Customs tariff as the said headings do not relate to food preparations. In the written submissions they have argued as follows:

"B.2 Nature of food preparation: In the present case, on perusal of the Bills of Material and Labels available on Page 288 and Page 273 of Additional Paper Book, respectively, constituents of the impugned goods have undergone a process to make them independent of its constituents [Process Chart, Additional Paper Book, p. 305]. Hence, the impugned goods are in the nature of "food preparations". This fact is undisputed between the parties. It is on this ground alone, classification under CTH 3502 and CTH 3504 of Customs Tariff are ousted as they do not relate to food preparations [HSN Explanatory Notes to CTH 3502, Para (1), pg. VI-3502-1; and HSN Explanatory Notes to 3502*, Para B (6), pg. VI- 3504-1] [Compilation, p. 33-34]

B.4 Coming to classification under CTH 1901, the impugned goods contain albumin and other protein concentrates which are acting as the base material [Bill(s) of Material, Additional Paper Book, p. 288-287].In other words, the impugned goods are food preparations of having constituent ingredients from CTH 3502 and CTH 3504, and are not food preparations of CTH 0401 to CTH 0404. Thus, it is submitted that the impugned goods do not satisfy the condition of classification under CTH 1901 of Customs Tariff. Furthermore, cocoa used in the food preparation is not defatted cocoa."

They have themselves argued that the impugned goods are food preparations having constituent ingredients from CTH 3502 and CTH 3504 and are not food preparations of CTH 0401 to CTH 0404. They have also argued that the impugned goods do not satisfy the condition of classification under CTH 1901 of the Customs Tariff Act. They have also argued that the coco used by them in the food preparation is not defatted coco as required for classification under heading 1901. In view of the above, the only contesting classification that remain are CTH 1806 and CTH 2106.

46 In this regard the competing heading in the schedule to Custom Tariff Act 1975 in the instant case are reproduced below:

The products imported by the appellant are essentially Protein Concentrates of Whey Protein with additives, in different proportions. The other additives to the product can be of various kinds like flavouring agents, stabilisers etc. The argument of the appellant is that the description of Customs Tariff Heading 2106 which reads as under

"CHOCOLATE AND OTHER FOOD PREPARATIONS CONTIANING COCOA " is more appropriate classification for the „Protein Concentrates containing Cocoa" as compared to the Customs Tariff Heading 1806 which reads as under

"FOOD PREPARATIONS NOT ELSEWHERE SPECIFIED OR INCLUDED".

While doing so the Ld counsel has totally ignored the Supplementary Note 5(a) to Chapter 21. It is seen that the Supplementary Notes appearing in Chapter 21 distinguish the Chapter 21 of Customs Tariff from the Chapter 21 of the HSN (para 49 below). It is seen that in the entire appeal as well as written submissions the appellant has not dealt with the Supplementary Notes to Chapter 21. The argument of the appellants that while other „Protein Concentrates" imported by them are classifiable under Customs Tariff Heading 2106 (Sub Heading 2106 1000), the „Protein Concentrates containing Cocoa" are classifiable under Customs Tariff Heading 1806 (Sub Heading 1806 9040). This claim is solely based on the HSN ignoring the Supplementary Notes to Chapter 21. The competing subheadings are as follows

1806 1806 90 40	CHOCOLATE AND OTHER FOOD PREPARATIONS CONTIANING COCOA --- Preparations containing coca for making beverages	Kg.	30%	-

2106	FOOD PREPARATIONS NOT ELSEWHERE SPECIFIED OR INCLUDED
2106 1000	- Protein concentrates and textured protein substances	Kg.	40%	-

The heading 2106 is qualified by the Supplementary notes to Chapter 21. Therefore the Heading 2106 needs to be read with Supplementary Note 5(a) in terms of rule 1 of the Rules of Interpretation of Customs Tariff as discussed in para 49 onwards below..

47. Whey proteins are available in different flavours like Double Rich Chocolate, Chocolate Bliss, Cream Vanilla, Delicious Strawberry, Vanilla Ice-Cream, Mocha Cappuccino etc.The appellant has described the goods in the appeal memorandum as follows:

"The appellant is primarily engaged in the business of importing and selling nutritional supplements in India. In this regard, the appellant imported certain nutritional supplements containing cocoa, glutamine powder, creatine powder and certain unflavoured nutritional supplements from M/s Glanbia Nutritionals (Ireland) Ltd. The basic raw material of nutritional supplements imported by the appellant is „WHEY"."

Ld Counsel has described the product as "chocolate protein powders/chocolate-flavoured protein powders" as can be seen from his submissions in para 6 above.These powders are used by the athletes and sport persons as food supplements to supplement their protein intake. The argument of the appellants is that mere presence of cocoa in the impugned products rules out classification under heading 2106 and takes it into heading 1806.

48 Such Protein Concentrates of Whey Protein are made in many flavours like Double Rich Chocolate, Chocolate Bliss, Cream Vanilla, Delicious Strawberry, Vanilla Ice-Cream, Mocha Cappuccino etc. The compositions and the main ingredients of all such products is similar. All such products, except those containing cocoa, are classified by appellants themselves under heading 2106. The dispute is solely related to the Protein Concentrates of Whey Protein containing some amount of cocoa. The appellants are seeking to classify the same under heading 1806. The assertion is based on the Chapter and heading notes of the HSN to chapter 18 and 21 and some decisions of foreign countries and international bodies.

49 To examine the issue the comparative chart of relevant chapter notes appearing in HSN as compared to those appearing in Customs Tariff is reproduced below

Such preparations may contain a small quantity of visible pieces of ingredients.

SUPPLEMENTRY NOTES : 1. In this Chapter, "Pan masala" means any preparation containing betel nuts and any one or more of the following ingredients, namely: lime, katha (catechu) and tobacco whether or not containing any other ingredient, such as cardamom, copra or menthol. 2. In this Chapter "betel nut product known as Supari" means any preparation containing betel nuts, but not containing any one or more of the following ingredients, namely: lime, katha (catechu) and tobacco whether or not containing any other ingredients, such as cardamom, copra or menthol. 3. For the purposes of tariff item 2106 90 11, the expression "Sharbat" means any non-alcoholic sweetened beverage or syrup containing not less than 10% fruit juice or flavoured with non-fruit flavours, such as rose, Khus, Kevara, but not including aerated preparations. 4. Tariff item 2106 90 50, inter alia, includes preparations for lemonades or other beverages, consisting, for example, of flavoured or coloured syrup, syrup flavoured with an added concentrated extract, syrup flavoured with fruit juice and intended for use in the manufacture of aerated water, such as in automatic vending machines. 5. Heading 2106 (except tariff items 2106 90 20 and 2106 90 30), inter alia, includes: (a) protein concentrates and textured protein substances; (b) preparations for use, either directly or after processing (such as cooking, dissolving or boiling in water, milk or other liquids), for human consumption; (c) preparations consisting wholly or partly of foodstuffs, used in the making of beverages of food preparations for human consumption;

(d) powders for table creams, jellies, ice-creams and similar preparations, whether or not sweetened; (e) flavouring powders for making beverages, whether or not sweetened; (f) preparations consisting of tea or coffee and milk powder, sugar and any other added ingredients; (g) preparations (for example, tablets) consisting of saccharin and foodstuff, such as lactose, used for sweetening purposes; (h) pre-cooked rice, cooked either fully or partially and their dehydrates; and (i) preparations for lemonades or other beverages, consisting, for example, of flavoured or coloured syrups, syrup flavoured with an added concentrated extract, syrup flavoured with fruit juices and concentrated fruit juice with added ingredients. 6. Tariff item 2106 90 99 includes sweet meats commonly known as "Misthans" or "Mithai" or called by any other name. They also include products commonly known as "Namkeens", "mixtures", "Bhujia", "Chabena" or called by any other name. Such products remain classified in these sub-headings irrespective of the nature of their ingredients.

COMPARISON of CHAPTER 18 of HSN with THE CHAPTER 18 OF THE CUSTOMS TARIFF

CHAPTER NOTES OF CHAPTER 18 OF CUSTOMS TARIFF ACT	CHAPTER NOTES OF CHAPTER 18 OF HSN
NOTES:-	NOTES:-
1. This Chapter does not cover the preparations of headings 0403, 1901, 1904, 1905, 2105, 2202, 2208, 3003 and 3004.	1. This Chapter does not cover the preparations of heading 04.03, 19.01, 19.04, 19.05, 21.05, 22.02, 22.08, 30.03 or 30.04.
2. Heading 1806 includes sugar confectionary containing cocoa and, subject to Note 1 to this Chapter, other food preparations containing cocoa.	2. Heading 18.06 includes sugar confectionery containing cocoa and, subject to Note 1 to this Chapter, other food preparations containing cocoa.
Not alligned	GENERAL

	This Chapter covers cocoa (including cocoa beans) in all forms, cocoa butter, fat and oil and preparations containing cocoa (in any proportion), except: (a) Yogurt and other products of heading 04.03. (b) White chocolate (heading 17.04). (c) Food preparations of flour, groats, meal, starch or malt extract, containing less than 40% by weight of cocoa calculated on a totally defatted basis, and food preparations of goods of headings 04.01 to 04.04 containing less than 5% by weight of cocoa calculated on a totally defatted basis, of heading 19.01. (d) Swelled or roasted cereals containing not more than 6% by weight of cocoa calculated on a totally defatted basis (heading 19.04). (e) Pastry, cakes, biscuits and other bakers' wares, containing cocoa (heading 19.05). (f) Ice cream and other edible ice, containing cocoa in any proportion (heading 21.05). (g) Beverages, non-alcoholic or alcoholic (e.g, "crème de cacao"), containing cocoa and ready for consumption (Chapter 22). (h) Medicaments (heading 30.03 or 30.04). The Chapter also excludes theobromine, an alkaloid extracted from cocoa (heading 29.39).

50. The dispute in the instant case relates to classification. For the purpose of classification, the Custom Tariff Act prescribes the general rules of interpretation. Rule 1, 2 and 3 of the said Rules are reproduced below:

"Classification of goods in the Nomenclature shall be governed by the following principles:

1. The titles of Sections, Chapters and sub-Chapters are provided for ease of reference only, for legal purposes, classification shall be determined according to the terms of the headings and any relative Section or Chapter Notes and, provided such headings or Notes do not otherwise require, according to the following provisions:

2. (a) Any reference in a heading to an article shall be taken to include a reference to that article incomplete or unfinished, provided that, as presented, the incomplete or unfinished article has the essential character of the complete or finished article. It shall also be taken to include a reference to that article complete or finished (or falling to be classified as complete or finished by virtue of this Rule). presented unassembled or disassembled.

(b) Any reference in a heading to a material or substance shall be taken to include a reference to mixtures or combinations of that material or substance with other materials or substances. Any reference to goods of a given material or substance shall be taken to include a reference to goods consisting wholly or partly of such material or substance. The classification of goods consisting of more than one material or substance shall be according to the principles of Rule 3.

3. When by application of Rule 2 (b) or for any other reason, goods are, prima facie, classifiable under two or more headings, classification shall be effected as follows:

(a) The heading which provides the most specific description shall be preferred to headings providing a more general description. However, when two or more headings each refer to part only of the materials or substances contained in mixed or composite goods or to part only of the items in a set put up for retail sale, those headings are to be regarded as equally specific in relation to those goods, even if one of them gives a more complete or precise description of the goods.

(b) Mixtures, composite goods consisting of different materials or made up of different components, and goods put up in sets for retail sale, which cannot be classified by reference to 3 (a), shall be classified as if they consisted of the material or component which gives them their essential character, insofar as this criterion is applicable.

(c) When goods cannot be classified by reference to 3 (a) or 3 (b), they shall be classified under the beading which occurs last in numerical order among those which equally merit consideration."

We agree with the proposition made by the Ld counsel reproduced in para 8 above that product is to be classified basis the condition in which such goods are presented for clearance to the Customs Authorities referred to in para 8 above. He relied on the following

(i) Taj Sats Air Catering Ltd. v. CC Ex., Delhi-II*, 2016 (334) E.L.T. 680 (Tri-Del.);

(ii) Circular 36/2013-Cus. Dated 05.09.2013

We also agree to the proposition referred in para 8 above to the effect that the appropriate classification of goods is determined by following the General Rules for the Interpretation of Import Tariff which must be applied sequentially. We also agree in principle to the proposition that only if classification cannot be made following Rule 1, can resort be made to rule 2, and thereafter only if classification cannot be made by following rule 1 or 2 can a recourse to rule 3 be made, and so on.We also find support for this proposition in the following decisions

(i) In the case of CCE Nagpur vs Simplex Mills Co Ltd. 2005 (181) ELT 345 SC Hon"ble Apex Court has observed as follows:

"11.The rules for the interpretation of the Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 have been framed pursuant to the powers under Section 2 of that Act. According to Rule 1 titles of Sections and Chapters in the Schedule are provided for ease of reference only. But for legal purposes, classification "shall be determined according to the terms of the headings and any relevant section or Chapter Notes". If neither the heading nor the notes suffice to clarify the scope of a heading, then it must be construed according to the other following provisions contained in the Rules. Rule-I gives primacy to the Section and Chapter Notes along with terms of the headings. They should be first applied. If no clear picture emerges then only can one resort to the subsequent rules. The appellants have relied upon Rule 3. Rule 3 must be understood only in the context of sub-rule (b) of Rule 2 which says inter alia that the classification of goods consisting of more than one material or substance shall be according to the principles contained in Rule

3. Therefore when goods are prima facie, classifiable under two or more headings, classification shall be effected according to sub-rules (a), (b) and (c) of Rule 3 and in that order. The sub-rules are quoted :-

"(a) The heading which provides the most specific description shall be preferred to heading providing a more general description. However when two or more headings each refer to part only of the materials or substances contained in mixed or composite goods or to part only of the items in a set, those headings are to be regarded as equally specific in relation to those goods, even if one of them gives a more complete or precise description of the goods.

(b) Mixtures, composite goods consisting of different materials or made up of different components, and goods put up in sets, which cannot be classified by reference to (a), shall be classified as if they consisted of the material or component which gives them their essential character, insofar as this criterion is applicable.

(c) When goods cannot be classified by reference to (a) or (b), they shall be classified under the heading which occurs last in the numerical order among those which equally merit consideration."

12.Applying the Rules of Interpretation particularly Rule 1, we are of the opinion that the reasoning of the Tribunal in Jyoti Overseas is unexceptionable and in our opinion the decision in Simplex-I was correctly overruled."

(ii) The Hon"ble Apex Court in the case of C.C. Amritsar vs D.L. Steels 2022 (381) ELT 289 (SC) has observed as follows:

"10.Classification under the Harmonised System is done by placing the good under the most apt and fitting sub-heading. This is done by choosing the appropriate Chapter, Heading, and sub-heading respectively. To facilitate interpretation and classification, each of the 97 Chapters in the HSN contain corresponding Chapter Notes, General Notes, and Explanatory Notes applicable to the Headings and sub-headings within that Chapter. In addition, there are six General Rules of Interpretation applicable to the Harmonised System as a whole.

11.GRI-1 states that the titles of Sections, Chapters, and sub-chapters are provided for ease of reference only. Therefore, they have no legal bearing on classification. Classification is to be effected : (a) according to the terms of the Headings and any relative Section or Chapter Notes; and, (b) provided the Headings or Chapter Notes do not otherwise require according to the provisions thereinafter contained, viz., GRIs 2 to 6. Thus, it is clear from the above that : (i) the Headings, and, (ii) the relative Section or Chapter Notes must be considered before classification is done. Only after this exercise is done, if a conflict in classification still persists, the subsequent GRIs are to be resorted to. GRI-2 is not germane to the present case and therefore, we make no reference to it. GRI-3 provides for classification in the event when the goods are classifiable under two or more Headings. As per GRI-3, when by application of GRI-2(b) or for any other reason, the goods are, prima facie, classifiable under more than one Heading, then; (a) the „most specific description" is preferred, (b) a mixture of different goods will be classified as that good which gives the mixture its „essential characteristic", and (c) when goods cannot be classified with reference to (a) or (b), they should be classified under the Heading which occurs last in the numerical order. The order of priority therefore is; (a) specific description, (b) essential character, and (c) the Heading which occurs last in numerical order. However, GRI-3 can only take effect provided the terms of the Heading or Section or Chapter Notes do not otherwise require. GRI-4 states that when the goods cannot be classified in accordance with the aforementioned rules, they shall be classified under the heading appropriate for the goods "to which they are most akin". GRI-5 applies exclusively to cases and packing material, and therefore, is not apropos. GRI-6 states that the classification of goods in the sub-headings of a Heading shall be determined according to the terms of those sub-headings and any related Notes, and mutatis mutandis to the above GRIs, on the understanding that only sub-headings at the same level are comparable."

(iii) In the case of Westinghouse Saxby Farmers Ltd. 2021 (376) ELT 14 (SC) the Hon"ble Apex Court has observed as follows:

"31.But in invoking General Rule 3(a), the Authorities have omitted to take note of 2 things. They are : (i) that as laid down by this Court in Commissioner of Central Excise v. Simplex Mills Co. Ltd. [(2005) 3 SCC 51 = 2005

(181) E.L.T. 345 (S.C.)] the General Rules of Interpretation will come into play, as mandated in Rule 1 itself, only when no clear picture emerges from the terms of the Headings and the relevant section or chapter notes; and (ii) that in any case, Rule 3 of the General Rules can be invoked only when a particular goods is classifiable under two or more Headings, either by application of Rule 2(b) or for any other reason. Once the authorities have concluded that by virtue of Note 2(f) of Section XVII,

„relays' manufactured by the appellant are not even classifiable under Chapter Heading 8608, we do not know how the Authorities could fall back upon Rule 3(a) of the General Rules. There is a fundamental fallacy in the reasoning of the Authorities, that Rule 3(a) of the General Rules will apply, especially after they had found that „relays" are not classifiable under Chapter Heading 8608, on account of Note 2(f) of Section XVII."

In all the aforesaid cases, it has been held that when the classification can be made on the basis of Interpretative Rule 1, there is no need to go for rule 2 to 6.

51. The Hon Apex court has held in many cases that if there is a difference between the chapter notes and Section notes of the Customs Tariff and the chapter notes and Section notes appearing in HSN, then those appearing in the Customs Tariff take precedence over those appearing in the HSN. In other words HSN can be relied for the purposes of classification under Customs Tariff only if the HSN is harmonised with the Customs Tariff.

(i)We find that Hon"ble Apex Court in the case of Global Healthcare Products 2015 (322) ELT 365 (SC) has observed as follows:

"10. The Commissioner, thus, noted that in the HSN Notes, sub-heading 3306.10 deals with dentifrices. The Commissioner noted that the meaning of dentifrices as per the Concise Oxford Dictionary is „a paste or powder for cleaning of teeth". On that basis, he concluded that the product in question was paste, namely, the toothpaste for cleaning the teeth and, therefore, would fall under sub- heading 3306.10. En passe, the Commissioner also observed that there is no major difference in these products, namely, Close-Up Whitening and Close-Up Red/Blue/Green, except one ingredient used in the manufacture of Close-Up Whitening and the addition of that ingredient does not change the purpose, nature as well as definition of the product in a common market parlance. He observed that in the market the product was known as toothpaste. He also observed that it is treated as toothpaste as per the product manual issued by the Dental Invocation Centre, Mumbai. Discussion is summed up in para 32 of the order passed by the Commissioner, which reads as under :

"32. As narrated in the SCN that the tooth paste, being dentifrice has been correctly classified under the HSN and the Central Excise Tariff has been based on HSN. Accordingly it is essential to follow the correct classification of the product in question as described and classified under the relevant chapter of HSN. In this connection it may be mentioned that the Hon"ble Supreme Court in the case of CCE, Shillong v. Wood Craft Product Ltd. reported in 1995

(77) E.L.T. 23 (S.C.) in para 18 has held that the structure of Central Excise Tariff is based on the internationally accepted nomenclature found in the HSN and therefore, any dispute relating to tariff classification must, as far as possible be resolved with reference to the nomenclature indicated by the HSN unless there be an express different intention indicated in the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 itself.

Further it may be mentioned that the Hon‟ble Bombay High Court in the case of Jagdish D. Devgekar v. Collector of Central Excise, Poona reported in 1978 (2) E.L.T. (J581) in para 6 has held that the correct test in interpreting any item mentioned in the First Schedule to the Central Excise Act is to see the commercial sense in which the item is understood or the sense in which traders or persons dealing in that terms understand it and not the technical or scientific sense.

Even it may be mentioned that the Hon‟ble Tribunal in case Veto Co. v. CCE reported in 1992 (62) E.L.T. 584 (T) in para 6 has held that the goods have to be classified under the tariff schedule according to their popular meaning or as they are understood in their commercial sense and not as per their scientific or technical meaning. While holding so the Hon‟ble Tribunal has referred to the observations of the Hon‟ble Supreme Court‟s judgment in case of Plasmac Machine Mfg. Co. Pvt. Ltd. v. CCE reported in 1991 (51)

> 11. The aforesaid approach adopted by the Commissioner has been found fault with by the Tribunal. The Tribunal pointed out that there was material difference in the sub-heading 3306.10 in the Indian statute when contrasted with Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System. Whereas, as per the Tariff Entry 3306.10 in the Excise Act, it is „tooth powder‟ and „toothpaste‟, under the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System, what is mentioned is „dentifrices‟. It is further noticed by the Tribunal that dentifrices was more generic in nature as it recognized all three types of products, namely, (i) toothpaste, (ii) other preparations for teeth and (iii) denture cleaners, than tooth powders and toothpaste. Thus, when under Indian statutory regime there is a restricted sub-heading under 3306.10, namely, tooth powder and toothpaste only, the approach of the Commissioner in taking aid of HSN Notes was erroneous. Discussion on this aspect runs as follows:

“A perusal of the HSN notes would indicate that all three types of „Dentifrices‟ are recognized as (i) „Toothpaste‟, (ii) Other preparations for teeth, and (iii) „Denture cleaners‟. The Note further explains that “Dentifrices” to include „toothpaste‟ and “other preparations for teeth” whether for cleaning or polishing the assessable surface of teeth or for other purposes such an Anticaries prophylactic treatment. The Note also enumerates that „toothpaste‟ and „other preparations for teeth‟ remains classified under Heading 3306 whether or not they contain abrasives and whether or not they are used by dentist. The correct scope of the heading as per the submission of the appellants is that when one refers to HSN Item 3306 and the bifurcations as also under CETA, 1985 there is a variance seen. In other words, this bifurcation under Heading 3306 for HSN and is not pari materia and under CETA, 1985 and therefore, the sub-heading structure of HSN would not apply to CETA.

The CETA proves preparation for oral or dental hygiene including Dentifrices and Denture Fixative paste and powders under Heading 3306 and at the four digit level it is para material HSN. The scope of sub-heading 3306.10 of CETA, 1985 restricts it to only „tooth powder and paste‟ and any entity which is not a „toothpowder or toothpaste‟ would be covered under Heading 3306.90. This submission has to be upheld.”

We find ourselves in agreement with the aforesaid approach of the Tribunal having regard to the cogent reasons given by it.

> 12. This Court in the case of Camlin Limited v. Commissioner of Central Excise, Mumbai - (2008) 9 SCC 82 = 2008 (230) E.L.T. 193 (S.C.) held that if the entries under HSN and the entries under the Central Excise Tariff are different, then reliance cannot be placed upon HSN Notes for the purposes of classification of goods under Central Excise Tariff. This is so stated in para 24 of the judgment that makes the following reading :

“24. In our considered view, the Tribunal erred in relying upon the HSN for the purpose of marker inks in classifying them under Chapter sub-heading 3215.90 of the said Tariff. The Tribunal failed to appreciate that the entries under the HSN and the entries under the said Tariff are completely different. As mentioned above, it is settled law that when the entries in the HSN and the said Tariff are not aligned, reliance cannot be placed upon HSN for the purpose of classification of goods under the said Tariff. One of the factors on which the Tribunal based its conclusion is the entries in the HSN. The said conclusion in the order of the Tribunal is, therefore, vitiated and, accordingly, set aside. We agree with the findings recorded by the Commissioner (Appeals)."

(iii) Hon"ble Apex Court in the case of Camlin 2008 (230) ELT 193 (SC) has observed as follows:

"26. In our considered view, the Tribunal erred in relying upon the HSN for the purpose of marker inks in classifying them under Chapter Sub-Heading 3215.90 of the said Tariff. The Tribunal failed to appreciate that the entries under the HSN and the entries under the said Tariff are completely different. As mentioned above, it is settled law that when the entries in the HSN and the said Tariff are not aligned, reliance cannot be placed upon HSN for the purpose of classification of goods under the said Tariff. One of the factors on which the Tribunal based its conclusion is the entries in the HSN. The said conclusion in the Order of the Tribunal is, therefore, vitiated and, accordingly, set aside. We agree with the findings recorded by the Commissioner (Appeals)."

(iii) From the above decisions of Hon"ble Apex Court, it is apparent that reliance on the HSN Section Notes, Chapter Notes and Explanatory Notes can be placed only when the Customs Tariff is harmonized with HSN. Wherever there is a difference between the Customs Tariff and HSN reliance cannot be placed on HSN Section Notes, Chapter Notes and Explanatory Notes for the purpose of classification. In such cases reliance is to be placed on the Chapter Notes and Section Notes appearing in the Customs Tariff. The appellants have also relied on the decision of Tribunal in the case of Anutham Exim P. Ltd. 2021 (378) ELT 611 (T-Kol.). In the said decision also in para 13 following has been observed:

"13. The Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (commonly referred to as Customs Tariff) is based on, although it is not identical to, the Harmonised System of Nomenclature (HSN) - an internationally recognised scientific method of classifying all goods. Sometimes there are differences between the HSN and the Customs Tariff in which case, the latter is relevant for determining the duty liability under the Customs Act. In view of the explanation to this effect in the IGST Notification specifying the rates of IGST chargeable on different goods, IGST is also to be charged as per the classification under the Customs Tariff. Customs Tariff, groups goods into Sections, each of which is further divided into Chapters with a two digit Chapter number. Within each Chapter, there are four digit headings which are further divided into six digit and still further divided into eight digit tariff headings."

Thus even going by the decision cited by the appellant, it is seen that no reliance can be placed on HSN when the Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act is not aligned with the HSN.

52. It is seen that there are major differences between Customs Tariff and the HSN in respect of Chapter 21. A comparative table of the Chapter Notes appearing in Customs Tariff and the HSN is reproduced in para 49 above. It is noticed that while the Customs Tariff contains supplementary notes in Chapter 21, there are no such notes in the HSN. While supplementary notes are there in Chapter 21 of the Customs Tariff Act the same are not appearing in the HSN. In the HSN, there are only three chapter notes, which are as follows:

"Chapter Notes to Chapter 21 of HSN (Harmonized System of Nomenclature)

1- This Chapter does not cover:

(a) Mixed vegetables of heading 07.12;

(b) Roasted coffee substitutes containing coffee in any proportion (heading 09.01):

(c) Flavoured tea (heading 09.02);

(d) Spices or other products of headings 09.04 to 09.10;

(e) Food preparations, other than the products described in heading 21.03 or 21.04. containing more than 20% by weight of sausage, meat, meat offal, blood, fish or crustaceans, molluses or other aquatic invertebrates, or any combination thereof (Chapter 16);

(f) Yeast put up as a medicament or other products of heading 30.03 or 30.04; or

(g) Prepared enzymes of heading 35.07.

2- Extracts of the substitutes referred to in Note 1 (b) above are to be classified in heading 21.01.

3- For the purposes of heading 21.04, the expression" homogenised composite food preparations" means preparations consisting of a finely homogenised mixture of two or more basic ingredients such as meat, fish, vegetables or fruit, put up for retail sale as infant food or for dietetic purposes, in containers of a net weight content not exceeding 250 g. For the application of this definition, no account is to be taken of small quantities of any ingredients which may be added to the mixture for seasoning. preservation or other purposes. Such preparations may contain a small quantity of visible pieces of ingredients."

In the Custom Tariff Act, notes apart from three chapter notes there are additional „Supplementary Notes‟ whichreads as follows:

"SUPPLEMENTRY NOTES :

1. In this Chapter, "Pan masala" means any preparation containing betel nuts and any one or more of the following ingredients, namely: lime, katha (catechu) and tobacco whether or not containing any other ingredient, such as cardamom, copra or menthol.

2. In this Chapter "betel nut product known as Supari" means any preparation containing betel nuts, but not containing any one or more of the following ingredients, namely: lime, katha (catechu) and tobacco whether or not containing any other ingredients, such as cardamom, copra or menthol.

3. For the purposes of tariff item 2106 90 11, the expression "Sharbat" means any non-alcoholic sweetened beverage or syrup containing not less than 10% fruit juice or flavoured with non-fruit flavours, such as rose, Khus, Kevara, but not including aerated preparations.

4. Tariff item 2106 90 50, inter alia, includes preparations for lemonades or other beverages, consisting, for example, of flavoured or coloured syrup, syrup flavoured with an added concentrated extract, syrup flavoured with fruit juice and intended for use in the manufacture of aerated water, such as in automatic vending machines.

5. Heading 2106 (except tariff items 2106 90 20 and 2106 90 30), inter alia, includes:

(a) protein concentrates and textured protein substances;

(b) preparations for use, either directly or after processing (such as cooking, dissolving or boiling in water, milk or other liquids), for human consumption;

(c) preparations consisting wholly or partly of foodstuffs, used in the making of beverages of food preparations for human consumption;

(d) powders for table creams, jellies, ice-creams and similar preparations, whether or not sweetened;

(e) flavouring powders for making beverages, whether or not sweetened;

(f) preparations consisting of tea or coffee and milk powder, sugar and any other added ingredients;

(g) preparations (for example, tablets) consisting of saccharin and foodstuff, such as lactose, used for sweetening purposes;

(h) pre-cooked rice, cooked either fully or partially and their dehydrates; and

(i) preparations for lemonades or other beverages, consisting, for example, of flavoured or coloured syrups, syrup flavoured with an added concentrated extract, syrup flavoured with fruit juices and concentrated fruit juice with added ingredients.

6. Tariff item 2106 90 99 includes sweet meats commonly known as "Misthans" or "Mithai" or called by any other name. They also include products commonly known as "Namkeens", "mixtures", "Bhujia", "Chabena" or called by any other name. Such products remain classified in these sub-headings irrespective of the nature of their ingredients."

These supplementary notes appearing in Custom Tariff are not part of the HSN. In this background it is seen that the Customs Tariff Act is not aligned to the HSN (Harmonized System of Nomenclature) on account of the text contained in supplementary notes to Chapter 21. Thus it is seen that Government of India has deliberately chosen to deviate from the Harmonised System of Nomenclature (HSN).By this Supplementary note the Government of India has chosen to enlarge the scope of the Heading 2106 by specifically including in it the various items listed in Supplementary note. In view of deliberate changes made in the Customs Tariff the HSN notes lose their relevance.

53. The Supplementary notes of Chapter 21 of the Schedule to the Custom Tariff Act prescribes at S.No. 5(a) that „Protein Concentrate and Textured Protein Substances" would fall under heading 2106.The heading 2106 of the Custom Tariff Act reads as follows:

2106	FOOD PREPARATIONS NOT ELSEWHERE SPECIFIED OR INCLUDED
2106 1000	-Protein concentrates and textured protein substances	Kg.	40%	-
2106 90

It is seen that OIA in the instant case relies on Supplementary Note 5(a) and interpretative Rule1 for the purpose of classifying the Protein Concentrates containing coco imported by the appellant under Heading 2106. There is no argument made in the appeal memorandum or in the written submissions of the appellant as to why the Supplementary Note 5(a) should not be followed in the instant case. It is apparent from the above reading of supplementary note 5(a) to Chapter 21 and that the "Protein Concentrate and Textured Protein Substances" would fall under the "heading 2106". It is seen that the sub heading 21061000 of Customs Tariff (just like HSN) specifically covers "Protein Concentrates and Textured Protein Substances", still a chapter supplementary note was introduced to place the „Protein Concentrate and Textured Protein Substances"under heading 2106. It is noted that the supplementary Note 5(a) does not prescribe that "Protein Concentrate and Textured Protein Substances" would fall under „sub heading 2106 1000" but it clearly states that "Protein Concentrate and Textured Protein Substances" would fall under „Heading 2106". This provision in the chapter notes has been prescribed specifically to place "Protein Concentrate and Textured Protein Substances" under the „heading 2106". Any other interpretation would make the said note 5(a) redundant since these goods are as it is covered under sub heading 2106 1000 in the tariff itself. In other words there was no need of the Supplementary Note 5(a) if the goods are already covered under sub heading 2106 1000. Hon"ble Supreme Court in the case of Oswal Agro Mills Ltd. 1993 (66) ELT 37 (SC) has observed as follows:

3. The provisions of the Tariff do not determine the relevant entity of the goods. They deal whether and under what entry, the identified entity attracts duty. The goods are to be identified and then to find the appropriate heading, sub-heading under which the identified goods/products would be classified. To find the appropriate classification description employed in the tariff nomenclature should be appreciated having regard to the terms of the headings read with the relevant provisions or statutory rules of interpretation put up thereon. For exigibility to excise duty the entity must be specified in positive terms under a particular tariff entry. In its absence be deduced from a proper construction of the tariff entry. There is neither intendment nor equity in a taxing statute. Nothing is implied. Neither can we insert nor anything can we delete but it should be interpreted and construed as per the words the legislature has chosen to employ in the Act or Rules. There is no room for assumption or presumptions. The object of the Parliament has to be gathered from the language used in the statute. The contention that toilet soap is commercially different from household and laundry soaps, as could be seen from the opening words of Entry 15, needs careful analysis. It is well, at the outset, to guard against confusion between the meaning and the legal effect of an expression used in a statute. Where the words of the statute are plain and clear, there is no room for applying any of the principles of interpretation which are merely presumption in cases of ambiguity in the statute. The court would interpret them as they stand. The object and purpose has to be gathered from such words themselves. Words should not be regarded as being surplus nor be rendered otiose. Strictly speaking there is no place in such cases for interpretation or construction except where the words of statute admit of two meanings. The safer and more correct course to deal with a question of construction of statute is to take the words themselves and arrive, if possible, at their meaning, without, in the first place, reference to cases or theories of construction. Let us, therefore, consider the meaning of the word soap "household". The word household signifies a family living together. In the simplistic language toilet soap being used by the family as household soap is too simplification to reach a conclusion. Therefore, one has to gather its meaning in the legal setting to discover the object which the Act seeks to serve and the purpose of the amendment brought about. The task of interpretation of the statute is not a mechanical one. It is more than mere reading of mathematical formula. It is an attempt to discover the intention of the legislature from the language used by it, keeping always in mind, that the language is at best an imperfect instrument for the expression of actual human thoughts. It is also idle to expect that the draftsman drafted it with divine prescience and perfect and unequivocal clarity. Therefore, court would endeavour to eschew literal construction if it produces manifest absurdity or unjust result. In Manmohan Das v. Vishnu Das [AIR 1967 SC 643] a Constitution bench held as follows :

"The ordinary rule of construction is the provision of a statute must be construed in accordance with the language used therein unless there are compelling reasons, such as, where a literal construction would reduce the provision to absurdity or prevent manifest intention of the legislature from being carried out."

Hon"ble Apex Court in the case of Calcutta Jute Manufacturing Co. 1997

(93) ELT 657 has observed as follows:

"10. The State is empowered by the legislature to raise revenue through the mode prescribed in the Act so the State should not be the sufferer on account of the delay caused by the tax payer in payment of the tax due. The provision for charging interest would have been introduced in order to compensate the State (or the Revenue) for the loss occasioned due to delay in paying the tax [vide Commissioner of Income Tax (A.P.) v. M. Chandra Sekhar - 1985 (1) SCC 283 and Central Provinces Manganese Ore Co. Ltd. v. Commissioner of Income Tax - 1986 (3) SCC 461]. When interpreting such a provision in a taxing statue a construction which would preserve the purpose of the provision must be adopted. It is well-settled that in interpreting a taxing statute normally, there is no scope for consideration of principles of equity. It was so said by Rowlatt J. in Cape Brandy Syndicate v. Inland Revenue Commissioners [1921 (1) KB 64 at page 71] :

"In a taxing Act one has to look merely at what is clearly said. There is no room for any intendment. There is no equity about a tax. There is no presumption as to a tax. Nothing is to be read in, nothing is to be implied. One can only look fairly at the language used."

The above observation has been quoted with approval by a Bench of three Judges of this Court in Commissioner of Income Tax, Madras v. Ajax Products Ltd. [55 STC 741]. In another decision rendered by a Bench of three Judges of this Court in The State of Tamil Nadu v. M.K. Kandaswami and others [36 STC 191] it has been observed thus:

"In interpreting such a provision, a construction which would defeat its purpose and, in effect, obliterate it from the statute book should be eschewed. If more than one construction is possible, that which preserves its workability and efficacy is to be preferred to the one which would render it otiose or sterile."

In view of above, it is apparent that Supplementary Note 5(a) would be rendered otiose if we read it to mean that "Protein Concentrate and Textured Protein Substances" are to be classified under sub-heading 2106 1000. The note clearly means and states that the said goods are to be classified under "Heading 2106".

54. From the above proposition in para 49 to 53 above it is apparent that

(i) The Customs Tariff is not harmonized with the HSN, and therefore the conclusions based on HSN cannot be relied when it contradicts prescriptions of the Customs Tariff.

(ii) If the classification can be made relying on interpretative Rule 1 there is no need to proceed further on any other Rule.

(iii) The Supplementary Note 5(a) clearly provides that Protein Concentrate and Textured Substances would be classified under "Heading 2106".

Rule 1 of the General rules of interpretation is reproduced below:

"Classification of goods in the Nomenclature shall be governed by the following principles:

1. The titles of Sections, Chapters and sub-Chapters are provided for ease of reference only, for legal purposes, classification shall be determined according to the terms of the headings and any relative Section or Chapter Notes and, provided such headings or Notes do not otherwise require, according to the following provisions:

It is seen that it clearly states that „for legal purposes, classification shall be determined according to the terms of the headings and any relative Section or Chapter Notes". In the instant case Supplementary Note 5(a) clearly provides that Protein Concentrate and Textured Substances would be classified under "Heading 2106".In view of above in terms of interpretative Rule–1, the goods imported by the appellant would be classified under Heading 2106 in terms of Supplementary Note 5(a). Any other interpretation would make Supplementary Note 5(a) otiose. Since the goods are specifically classified under heading 2106 by virtue of Supplementary Note 5(a), there is no need to further go into interpretative Rule 2 to 6.

55. The appellants have relied on various international decisions. The said decisions are examined as under:-

(I) In the decisions given by Thomas J Russo, in US Cross Ruling N204559 dated 02.03.2012, following has been observed:

"Ingredients breakdowns accompanied your November letter. Additional information was provided with your February letter and an email transmission dated February 29, 2012. Whey Protein Powder will be offered in two flavors-chocolate and vanilla. Ingredients common to both products are approximately 37-38 percent whey protein isolate, 34-36 percent whey protein concentrate, 12-13 percent fructose, 6 percent l-glutamine, 2-3 percent chicory root extract (inulin), one percent erythritol, and less than one percent, cach, colloid gum powder, sodium chloride, aminogen (plant enzyme), cream flavor, red orange extract, ascorbic acid and stevia- rebiana. Other ingredients, depending on the flavor, include about 2 percent cocoa (lecithinated), 2 percent chocolate flavor and I percent natural vanilla flavor. Both products will be put up for retail sale in containers holding 908 grams, net weight, and used as a food supplement.

You have suggested that the subject products are classifiable in subheading 0404.10.0500. Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States (HTSUS), which provides for whey protein concentrates. We disagree. Based on the ingredients breakdowns, they will be classified elsewhere.

The applicable subheading for the Chocolate Whey Protein Powder will be 1806.90.9090, HTSUS, which provides for other food preparations containing cocoa... other... other...other. The rate of duty will be 6 percent ad valorem.

The applicable subheading for the Vanilla Whey Protein Powder will be 2106.90.8200, HTSUS, which provides for food preparations not elsewhere specified or included… other… other…

containing over 10 percent by weight of milk solids... other... other. The rate of duty will be 6.4 percent ad valorem.

Duty rates are provided for your convenience and are subject to change. The text of the most recent HTSUS and the accompanying duty rates are provided on the World Wide Web at http://www.usitc.gov/tata/hts/.

This merchandise is subject to The Public Health Security and Bioterrorism Preparedness and Response Act of 2002 (The Bioterrorism Act), which is regulated by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). Information on the Bioterrorism Act can be obtained by calling FDA at 301-575-0156, or at the Web site www.fda.gov/oc/bioterrorism/bioact.html.

This ruling is being issued under the provisions of Part 177 of the Customs Regulations (19 C.F.R. 177).

A copy of the ruling or the control number indicated above should be provided with the entry documents filed at the time this merchandise is imported. If you have any questions regarding the ruling, contact National Import Specialist Bruce N. Hadley, Jr. at (646) 733-3029."

From the above decision it is apparent that the said authority has held that:

(i) Vanilla Whey protein will be classifiable under heading 2106.90.8200 of HTSUS;

(ii) The chocolate whey protein powder will be classifiable under 1806 90.9090 HTSUS (Harmonized Tariff Schedule of United States);

(iii) Whey proteins of this kind will not be classified under heading 0404.10.0500 HTSUS.

(II) Similar conclusion has been reached in ruling No. 025135 dated 15.04.2008 given by Robert B. Swierupski Director National Commodity Special Division wherein he has clarified as follows:

"The subject merchandise is described as 100% Whey Classic - Chocolate and 100% Whey Gold Standard-Chocolate. The main ingredients in 100% Whey Classic-Chocolate are Protein Blend (Whey Protein Isolate, Whey Protein Concentrate and Whey Peptides), Cocoa (processed with alkali), Artificial Flavor, Lecithin and Acesulfame Potassium. The main ingredients in 100% Whey Gold Standard-Chocolate are Protein Blend (Whey Protein Isolate, Whey Protein, Concentrate and Whey Peptides), Cocoa (processed with alkali), Artificial Flavor, Lecithin and Acesulfame Potassium.

All products are in powder form, put up for retail sale in plastic containers. The 100% Whey Classic-Chocolate comes in sizes weighing either 2 pounds or 5 pounds. The 100% Whey Gold Standard - Chocolate comes in sizes weighing 1 pound, 2 pounds, 5 pounds or 10 pounds. The product is mixed with water, milk or other beverages to make a dietary supplement.

The applicable subheading for the 100% Whey Classic - Chocolate and 100% Whey Gold Standard-Chocolate will be 1806.90.90, Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States (HTSUS), which provides for chocolate and other food preparations containing cocoa… other… other… other. The rate of duty will be 6 percent ad valorem."

(III) Similarly in the tariff Ruling No. N028196 dated 02.06.2008 by Robert B. Swierupski Director National Commodity Specialist Division, has clarified as follows:

"Ingredients breakdowns, descriptive information, and a manufacturing flow chart for two products were submitted with your letter. The products, described as pink-colored, free-flowing powders, will be used as nutritional supplements. 100 percent Whey Gold Standard - Strawberry consists of approximately 55 9 percent whey protein isolate, 37.9 percent whey protein concentrate, 4.8 natural and artificial flavor, and less than one percent each of whey peptides, Sucralose, color, citric acid, aminogen, and lactase. Classic Whey-Strawberry consists of approximately 95.7 whey protein concentrate, 1.3 percent each of lactalbumen (whey peptides) and whey protein isolate, 1 percent natural and artificial flavors, and less than one percent each of Sucralose, acesulfame potassium, citric acid, and color. 100 percent Whey Gold Standard-Strawberry, containing approximately 78 percent protein, will be put up in 2-, 5-, and 10-pound containers. The Classic Whey- Strawberry product, containing approximately 69 percent protein, will be put up in 2- and 5-pound containers.

The applicable subheading for these products will be 2106.10.0000, Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States (HTSUS), which provides for food preparations not elsewhere specified or included... protein concentrates and textured protein substances

This ruling is being issued under the provisions of Part 177 of the Customs Regulations (19 CFR. 177)."

From the above rulings, it is apparent that the various international rulings are based on harmonized system of nomenclature and have ruled that the "Protein Concentrates" of the kind imported by the appellant are to be classified under heading 21061000 if the same do not contain cocoa. However same product, "Protein Concentrates",if containing coco would be classifiable under 1806.90.90 of HTSUS. This conclusion is based on the reading of HSN and its chapter and section notes.In most cases the HSN has been totally adopted in the Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975. However, in some cases, like in case of heading 2106, the government has chosen to deviate from the language and prescription of the HSN by introducing Supplementary Notes to Chapter 21. Since all international rulings are based on the HSN, which is different from the Customs Tariff in respect of Chapter Heading 2106, no reliance can be placed on these decisions.

56. Ld counsel has also relied on the fact that the Explanatory Notes to the HSN were amended by the HSN Committee in its 64th Session in September 2019 to introduce a specific exclusion for Chapter heading 2106 ("Amendment to Chapter heading 2106"). The amendments were made applicable from 1st December 2019. The relevant extract of the Amendment to Chapter heading 2106 is reproduced below for ease of reference-

.. CHAPTER 21

Heading 21.06

Page IV-2106-3. Item (16)

….

Insert a new exclusion note (c):

(c)Preparations containing cocoa, put up as food supplements for human consumption (heading 18.06).

While such amendments would have relevance if the Customs Tariff is aligned with the HSN, such changes have no relevance when Government of India has chosen to deviate from the HSN by specially prescribing that the impugned products would be classified under „Heading 2106". The prescription in Chapter Supplementary Note 5(a) would take precedence over the HSN Heading Notes of the CTH 2106.In case of heading 2106, the government has chosen to deviate from the prescription of the HSN by introducing Supplementary Notes to Chapter 21 which specifically classify the impugned products under „Heading 2106". In these circumstances the HSN notes to the Chapter heading, and amendments made therein, which are in conflict with the supplementary notes to the Chapter, are to be ignored.

57. In view of above discussion we hold that the impugned goods are rightly classifiable under Heading 2106, sub heading 2106 1000 of the Customs Tariff. The impugned order is upheld and the appeals are dismissed.

SOMESH ARORA, MEMBER (JUDICIAL)

58. I have gone through the above order, authored by my learned brother. I not only agree with his findings as well as, the analytical reasoning made available therein, but also appreciate the in-depth knowledge he has brought on record out of his expertise, experience of properly analyzing various headings and their background, including historical moorings of chapter 21. Same not having been aligned to the HSN in totality. It has been properly highlighted, how it needs to be correctly interpreted in view of peculiar changes brought in by Indian Custom Tariff, despite India being a signatory to HSN and agreeing largely to its frame work. It will not be out of place for me to appreciate the efforts which have been put in, both by the learned advocate as well as learned departmental representative including the appellate authority below, who analyzed the propositions involved. Proper assistance by officers of court sure enables better deliberation of the issues.

59. At the heart of the issue are the specific provisions which were created by Indian legislature, while being a signatory to the Customs Cooperation Council (which as an organization is now called World Customs Organization). The HSN is one of the most significant instrument, derived as an outcome of cooperativeefforts of the comity of nations in international trade that aims at bringing out not only uniformity of nomenclature for goods, but also the trade data and statistics compilation. All this to make the economic policy making of the member nations, reliable as well as conducive to comparison for the purpose of International Trade. Much later, after creation of HSN, the statistical data assumed importance when under aegis of World Trade organization, exceptional measures to liberalized tariff like Anti-Dumping, Safeguard and Countervailing duty, came to be implemented.

60. I would like to briefly dwell upon the evolution of public international law in Indian context and how entering into various international treaties did not circumscribe the sovereignty of member states including India. Whenever International Treaties were sought to be implemented by the sovereign states in their capacity as members of such treaties, reservations were either permitted by the treaties or were brought in for approval by member states to safeguard their own national interests.

61. As far as the Constitution of India is concerned which acts as a grundnorm, for all laws made by Indian Legislature. Validity of enactments by legislature is derived from Article 73 of the Constitution of India delineates the extent of executive power of the union which extends for all matters with respect to which the Parliament has a right to make laws and it extends to the exercise of such wide authority and jurisdiction as are excisable as a Central Government by virtue of any treaty or agreement.

62. This gives, through Article 73 (b), the Central Government a power to enter into international treaties/ agreement/ conventions under Article 73 and also to the Parliament the power to legislate in respect of such treaties/ agreements/ conventions. It is equally open to Parliament to refuse to perform such treaties/ agreements/ conventions. In such a case while the treaties made/ agreements/ conventions bind the Union of India as against the other contracting parties, Parliament may refuse to perform them leading the Union of India in default.

63. Regarding Course of action available to sovereign states and prevalence of municipal laws over public international law, following ruling of the apex court provides guidance:

"In Gramophone Company of India Ltd. v. Birendra Bahadur Pandey and Others [(1984) 2 SCC 534], the Apex Court held as under :

"5. There can be no question that nations must march with the international community and the Municipal law must respect rules of International law even as nations respect international opinion. The comity of Nations requires that Rules of International law may be accommodated in the Municipal Law even without express legislative sanction provided they do not run into conflict with Acts of Parliament. But when they do run into such conflict, the sovereignty and the integrity of the Republic and the supremacy of the constituted legislatures in making the laws may not be subjected to external rules except to the extent legitimately accepted by the constituted legislatures themselves. The doctrine of incorporation also recognizes the position that the rules of international law are incorporated into national law and considered to be part of the national law, unless they are in conflict with Act of Parliament. Comity of Nations or no, Municipal Law must prevail in case of conflict. National Courts cannot say yes if Parliament has said no to a principle of international law. National Courts will endorse international law but not if it conflicts with national law. National Courts being organs of the National State and not organs of international law must perforce apply national law if international law conflicts with it. But the Courts are under an obligation within legitimate limits, to so interpret the Municipal Statute as to avoid conformation with the comity of Nations or the well-established principles of International law. But if conflict is inevitable, the latter must yield."

Therefore, it is brought out that sovereign states can not only bring about reservations in treaties, wherever allowed but also in case of any provision not being in tune with treaty provisions, it will be municipal law which shall prevail."

64. Now coming to specific provisions about HSN, the following are the relevant extracts as derived from HS Classification Handbook of World Custom Organization November-2013 Edition part II/1 following has been stated as object of bringing in world product nomenclature:

"At its 1976 Sessions, the United Nations Statistical Commission took a policy decision that UN economic classifications should be harmonized by using HS subheadings as building blocks. The Standard International Trade Classification (SITC, Rev. 3), the International Standard Industrial Classification of all economic activities (ISIC) and the Central Products Classification (CPC) have been prepared on the basis of this decision.

As regards the application of the Harmonized System by users other than Customs authorities and statisticians, good progress has been made in broadening the acceptance of the System. Several maritime conferences and numerous European and Asian railway networks associated with the International Union of Railways (UIC) have agreed to use the System as a basis for their freight tariffs.

The World Trade Organization (WTO) and individual countries are using the Harmonized System as a common language of trade for purposes of trade negotiations. In this connection, it should be noted that most countries' WTO schedules of tariff concessions are already written in terms of the Harmonized System and the process of converting the remaining WTO schedules to the Harmonized System continues. The Harmonized System is also providing a basis for new internationally accepted Rules of Origin which are being developed jointly by the WCO and the WTO."(Emphasis supplied

As far as Structure of HS is concerned same has been provided for in the Hand Book at Chapter 2 page II/5:

*"2. Structure of the HS

The Harmonized System comprises:

- General Rules for the interpretation of the System:
- Section and Chapter Notes, including Subheading Notes:
- A list of headings arranged in systematic order and, where appropriate, subdivided into subheadings.

(a) The Interpretative Rules

To be completely sound, a classification system must associate each individual product with a single heading (and, as the case may be, subheading), to which that product can be simply and unequivocally assigned. Hence it must contain rules designed to ensure that a given product is always classified in one and the same heading (and subheading), to the exclusion of any others which might appear to merit consideration. All classification decisions must be based upon the application of these rules.

The text of the Harmonized System therefore incorporates a series of preliminary provisions codifying the principles on which the System is based and laying down general rules to ensure uniform legal interpretation.

There are six of these rules, known as the General Rules for the Interpretation, which are applied in hierarchical fashion, i.e., Rule 1 takes precedence over Rule 2, Rule 2 over Rule 3, etc. The General Interpretative Rules are explained at the beginning of Volume 1 of theExplanatory Notes to the Harmonized System.

General Interpretative Rule 1 provides that, for legal purposes, classification is determined by the terms of the headings and of the Section or Chapter Notes. There are, however, cases where the texts of the readings and of these Notes cannot, of themselves, determine the appropriate heading with certainty. Classification is then effected by application of the other Interpretative Rules.

The first part of Rule 2 (a) extends the scope of any heading which refers to a particulararticle to cover not only the complete article but also that article incomplete or unfinished, providedthat, as presented, it has the essential character of the complete or finished article. The secondpart of Rule 2 (a) provides that complete or finished articles presented unassembled ordisassembled, usually for reasons such as the requirements or convenience of packing, handlingor transport, are to be classified in the same heading as the assembled article.

Rule 2 (b) extends the scope of any heading referring to a material or substance or articles made therefrom. Under this Rule, goods consisting of more than one material or substance must, unless another heading refers to them in their mixed or composite state, be classified according to the principles of Rule 3.

Rule 3 provides classification principles for goods which, prima facie, fall under two or moreheadings.

Rule 3 (a) stipulates that goods should be classified in the heading giving the most specific description. However, there is a provision that if two or more headings each refer to only one of the materials or substances contained in mixed or composite goods, or to only some of the articles included in a set put up for retail sale, those headings are to be regarded as equally specific in relation to those goods, even if one of them gives a more complete description than the other.

Rule 3 (b) deals with mixed or composite goods, goods consisting of an assembly of different articles and goods put up in sets. By application of this Rule, goods are classified in the heading applicable to the material or component which gives them their essential character.

Rule 3 (c) applies only where goods cannot be classified by application of Rule 3 (a) orRule 3 (b); it provides that goods should be classified in the heading which occurs last innumerical order amongst those which equally merit consideration in determining theirclassification.

Rule 4 provides that goods which (for example because they have newly appeared on the world market) are not specifically covered by any heading of the Harmonized System shall be classified in the heading appropriate to the goods to which they are most akin.

Rule 5 (a) governs the classification of cases, boxes and similar containers presented with the articles for which they are intended, while Rule 5 (b) applies more generally to packing containers presented with the goods they hold. It should be noted that the classification of packingmaterials and containers not covered by Rule 5 (a) or 5 (b) is left to the discretion of countries, which may take whatever measures they consider appropriate in this area.

Finally, Rule 6 provides that classification in the subheadings of a heading must be determined, mutatis mutandis, with reference to the principles applicable to classification in the 4- digit headings; in any event, the terms of the subheadings or Subheadings Notes must be given precedence. This Rule also specifies that, for classification purposes, only subheadings of the same level are comparable; this means that, within a single heading, the choice of a l-dash subheading may be made only on the basis of the texts of the competing 1-dash subheadings; similarly, selection of the appropriate 2-dash subheading, where necessary, may be made only on the basis of the texts of the subdivisions within the applicable 1-dash subheading.

The Interpretative Rules thus establish classification principles which are applicable throughout the Harmonized System Nomenclature.

Moreover, the Interpretative Rules clearly provide a step-by- step basis for the classification of goods within the Harmonized System so that, in every case, a product must first be classified in its appropriate 4-digit heading, then to its appropriate 1-dash subdivision within that heading and only thereafter to its appropriate 2-dash subheading within the predetermined 1- dash subdivision. It should be emphasized that at each step in the process, no account is taken of the terms of any lower-level subdivisions. This principle applies without exception throughout the Harmonized System.

*(Emphasis supplied)

(b) Section and Chapter Notes, including subheading Notes

Certain Sections and Chapters are preceded by Notes which, like the Interpretative Rules form an integral part of the Harmonized System and have the same legal force. Some of these Notes, grouped under the title "Subheading Notes", refer solely to the Interpretation of subheadings.

The function of the Notes is to define the precise scope and limits of each subheading. heading (or group of headings). Chapter or Section. This has been achieved, depending on the circumstances, by means of:

- Either general definitions delineating the scope of a subheading or heading or the meaning of particular terms; for example sparkling wine is defined by Subheading Note 1 to Chapter 22, while Legal Note 5 to Section XI gives a general definition of the sewing thread of headings 52.04, 54.01 and 55.08 in terms of its appearance and texture; or
- Non-exhaustive list of typical examples: thus, Note 3 to Chapter 86 specifies the railway and tramway track fixtures and fittings covered by heading 86.08; or
- An exhaustive list of the goods covered by a heading or group of headings. Thus, Notes 2, 3 and 4 to Chapter 31 list the products that fall to be classified as fertilisers in headings 31.02. 31.03 and 31.04; or
- Exclusions, which list certain articles that must not be included in a particular subheading, heading (or group of headings), Chapters or Section. For example. Note 2 to Chapter 64 lists the articles which must not be regarded as parts of footwear within the meaning of heading 64.06.

Certain Notes employ several of these drafting formulae. The definition of "synthetic rubber" in Note 4 to Chapter 40 provides an example of a definition in general terms, in accordance withscientific criteria, followed by an enumeration of products which, within the context of thisdefinition, are to be taken as covered by the definition.

Under Interpretative Rule 6, the Section and Chapter Notes also apply to the classification of goods in the subheadings unless, of course, the context otherwise requires. This is the case, for example, with Note 4 (b) to Chapter 71 (definition of the term "platinum"), which cannot apply to subheadings 7110.11 and 7110.19, for which the term "platinum" is more restrictively defined by Subheading Note 2 to Chapter 71.

It would no doubt have been possible, at least in certain cases, to incorporate the substance of these Notes in the text of the headings or subheadings themselves. But this would have greatly lengthened these texts, making them difficult to understand, and would have involved a great deal of repetition. The Notes thus made it possible to draft the headings in concise form while at the same time safeguarding the precision and exactness of interpretation that are essential to avoid doubts and disputes in classification.

To distinguish these Section, Chapter or Subheading Notes from the Explanatory Notes, which are not legally binding under the Convention, they are normally referred to as "Legal Notes".

Additional Notes (or supplementary Notes) may be included at the national level by an administration for its own national use and are national in scope. They may be binding at the national level only.

To complement the legal core, there are Explanatory Notes to the HS published separately by the WCO. While these notes do not form part of the legal provisions of the HS, it is important that they be consulted during the classification process."

(Emphasis supplied)

Whatever the obligations and expectations from the Member States while implementing HSN has been brought out in Chapter 4 titled „The Harmonized System and National Customs Tariffs‟ at page II/27 of the above hand Book:

"Contracting Parties to the Harmonized System Convention have to apply the Harmonized System Nomenclature for Customs purposes (Article 3 of the Convention, which deals with obligations of Contracting Parties- see Annex B). This means that they have to introduce the structure of the Harmonized System into their national Customs tariff. In a simple situation, the goods or categories of goods referred to in the national Customs tariff relate to the Harmonized System categories on a one-to-one basis, i.e., the categories in the Harmonized System are the same as those in the national Customs tariff. However, very often they do not coincide with the Harmonized System categories and, consequently, further subdivisions of the Harmonized System nomenclature have to be introduced at the national level. Furthermore, if other Customs measures are to be implemented, further subdivisions of Harmonized System categories may be required.

It is thus clear that the HSN itself acknowledges and rather accepts the need for various member companies to make structural changes into their National Customs Tariff subject to guidance that Rule 1 to 5 of General Interpretative Rules (G.I.‟s)of the HSN shall applied mutatis mutandis to national sub-heading by virtue of General Interpretative Rule 6, thus clearly providing the leverage for the Member Nations to make suitable changes in their custom tariffs. This respects the sovereignty of member nations as well as their fiscal and statistical needs. The concept of providing need based suitable changes in HSN is therefore, in tandem with Indian Constitution as well as he structural provisions of HSN.

65. This has been aptly pointed out by learned brother in course of the decision on chapter 21 of India Custom Tarff Act,1975 (specially the heading 2106) with related supplementary notes. These supplementary notes have been in existence since inception ofHSN based Custom Tariff of India. Similar changes have also been made by not only India but various other Countries beyond Chapter 97 which were originally not part of the HSN. Chapter 98 is again outcome of India‟s need, as is manifested in its own Custom Tariff.

66. As observed above, the Custom Cooperation Council while permitting member countries to de-align from HSN to serve their own needs has mandated a particular requirement that the same should not be made in a manner the General Interpreted Rules cannot be pressed into service for interpretation.

67. In short, heading 2106 under Chapter 21 as well as supplementary notes to chapter 21 have been specifically carved out in the Indian Custom Tariff. The relative chapter notes including supplementary notes as well as headings and sub-headings, therefore, will have to be construed differently from HSN, albeit, with the help of general interpretive notes is the requirement of Customs Cooperation Council. Learned Brother has dealt at length and correctly so, to indicate that chapter note 5 of supplementary notes which reads as follows "Heading 2106 (except tariff item 2106 9020 and 2106 9030), interalia, includes: "(a) Protein Concentrates and Textured Protein Substances" which is found that in sub-heading Protein Concentrates and Textured Protein Substances are mentioned as 2106 1000.

68. It is to be noted that the supplementary note 5 specifically provided in Chapter 21 of the Indian Customs Tariff,is not sub-heading note but the supplementary Chapter Note to TH 2106, therefore it seeks enlarge the scope of Tariff heading, specifically. Note3, 4 and 6 of the same Chapter, despite being supplementary notes deal with scope of specific sub-headings and particularly expend the scope of sub-heading. But Chapter note 5 expands the scope of heading 2106, as distinguished from supplementary notes –3, 4 and 6 which describe the inclusions and exclusions even from 8 -digit sub heading. And therefore expend/ contract the scope of such sub-headings following mandate of above Handbook on HSN as above.

69. From the structure of HSN, section notes and chapter notes including sub-heading notes cited supra it is clear that chapter notes like the interpretative rules form an integral part of the harmonized system and have the same legal force being legal notes. It is also a prescription that sub heading notes refer solely to the interpretation of sub-heading. It is thus clear that since the function of the notes is to define the precise scope and limits of heading or group of headings, chapter or section or even for that matter the sub heading. Therefore, chapter note, which is by way of supplementary note 5 seeks to define the scope and limits of heading 2106. It is thus clear that the expression "Food preparation not elsewhere specified or included" figuring in tariff heading 2106 when expanded by virtue of chapter note 5 (supplementary note) makes heading 2106 to specifically include "Protein Concentrates and Textured Protein Substances" therefore the legislature has clearly expanded the scope of tariff heading 2106 by virtue of supplementary notes 5 as brought out above. All this exercise makes even Heading 2106 also as specific in relation to Protein Concentrates and textured proteins, and other items mentioned in Chapter note 5. This is in consonance with HSN Handbook narrative, a portion of which is therefore worthy of re-production, even at the cost of little repetition:

"It would no doubt have been possible, at least in certain cases, to incorporate the substance of these Notes in the text of the headings or subheadings themselves. But this would have greatly lengthened these texts, making them difficult to understand, and would have involved a great deal of repetition. The Notes thus made it possible to draft the headings in concise form while at the same time safeguarding the precision and exactness of interpretation that are essential to avoid doubts and disputes in classification."

Above interpretation also gets fortified from the directive of the Customs Cooperation Council which requires minimal disturbances to be done by the Member States so as to maintain the statistical and data collection similarity between Member States. Learned brother is thus correct in pointing out that in view of the special circumstances of Chapter 21 and heading 2106 in Indian Custom Tariff, the inclusion of „Protein Concentrates and Textured Protein Substances" is clearly specific and that too in tariff heading 2106. The net effect of supplementary note 5 in TH 2106 in Indian Custom Tariff Act is that the heading description 2106 i.e. "Food preparation not elsewhere specified or included" ceases to be a residuary head, in relation to those products which are included in heading 2106, specifically (even if by virtue of any supplementary note). Given above, it is clear that till the product has dominance of Protein Concentrates and Textured Protein Substances (sold as whey protein in the present instance) ,which is undisputed in this case as other similar Whey Protein with different flavours, have been included by the party itself in this head.

70. From the foregoing it is also clear that Chapter 21 of India Custom Tariff Act read with supplementary notes not having been cast in accordance with HSN, the Explanatory Notes as well as other rulings of other countries including of WCO, till it does not contain realities of Chapter 21 and supplementary of Chapter 21 which are peculiar to India, cease to have even persuasive value and become incomparable as they seek to compare the incomparable. Indian Chapter 21 being exclusive and peculiar has to be interpreted with all its peculiarities.

80. Coming to Chapter 18, it is to be noted that Chapter 1806 is applicable to Chocolate and other food preparations containing COCOA. It is to be noted that chapter 18 has two chapter notes relevant for the purpose of this discussion which are reproduced below:

"This Chapter does not cover: (a)…….

(b) Preparations of headings 0403, 1901, 1902, 1904,

1905, 2105, 2202, 2208, 3003 or 3004.

2. Heading 1806 includes sugar confectionery containing cocoa and, subject to Note 1 to this Chapter, other food preparations containing cocoa."

Since we are confining ourselves only to the tariff headings and chapter notes for the purpose of our discussion, therefore, the only GI Rules which remains relevant is General Interpretative Rule – I, as has been correctly pointed out by the learned brother. Both of these have statutory force and therefore prevail over other legal aids like HSN Explanatory Notes or decisions in other territories as well as of WCO which in certain conditions of tariff being aligned,certainly command persuasive value. Same are therefore, correctly discarded in the factual matrix of the matter.

81. Coming to chapter note of heading 1806, chapter note-2 only mentions sugar confectionery containing cocoa and other food preparations containing cocoa shall be classified under Chapter 1806. Clearly chapter note 1806 does not do away with the requirements of predominance of cocoa in the food preparations in relation to heading 1806. In such a situation, heading 2106 read with Supplementary Note-

5 having become more specific for "Protein Concentrates and Textured Protein Substances"(known to market as „whey protein") clearly becomes the preferred head as the product has the predominance of Protein. Again we find that Chapter 18 only excludes preparations of heading 0403, 1901, 1902, 1904, 1905, 2106, 2202, 2208, 3003 or3004. In chapter note 3 to heading 1904, it has been mentioned that heading 1904 does not cover preparations containing more than 6% by weight of cocoa calculated on a totally defatted basis or completely quoted with chocolate or other food preparation containing cocoa of heading 1806.

82. Above chapter note has been pointed out by way of example that wherever weight percentage other than the pre-dominance is to be considered, the chapter notes have gone on to specifically mention the percentage of weight. Similar is the situation with heading 1901.

HS Code	Item Description
1901	Malt extract; food preparations of flour, groats, meal starch or malt extract, not containing cocoa or containing < 40% by weight of cocoa calculated on a totally defatted basis. Not elsewhere specified or included; food preparations of goods of headings 04.01 to 04.04, not Containing cocoa or containing less than 5% by weight of cocoa calculated on a totally defatted Basis, not elsewhere specified or included.

Even Chapter note 5 to Chapter 71 dealing with alloys of precious metals has specifically given prescription of 2% or more by weight of gold, platinum and even silver to be treated as alloy of gold, platinum and silver respectively.

83. Thus, it is clear that wherever a particular (lower) percentage is required to be read into any preparation the same has been provided either by way of chapter note or in the heading itself. This not being the case with tariff item 1806, the expression „Food Preparations containing Cocoa" has to be decided by the pre-dominance of ingredients in admixture which in this case is of Protein. While doing so no resort to explanatory notes is being taken in view of impugned contesting entries and their difference from HSN.

84. Thus, it is clear that in instant case classification in favor of 2106 can be decided without resort to Explanatory Notes which in any case do not part of the legal provisions of the harmonized system. Matter can be decided with the help of statutory provisions of Indian Customs Tariff Act, 1975. There is then no need to go further. The advocate for the appellant was at length that the resort should be taken to GI-3 specially Rule 3(a) and while so asserting it has been argued that specific description shall be preferred to general description. The fallacy of the notion has already been brought out in relation to TH to indicate that how the matter can be decided by section or chapter notes.

85. While not agreeing with the proposition of resort being required to be taken to G.I Note 3 (even if for the sake of argument), it has to be considered as to which head provides more specific description for a product which has dominance of Protein Concentrates and Textured Protein Substances, from the discussion above, it is clear that under Indian Tariff 2106 of Indian Customs Tariff above.Learned brother has gone at length with heading 2106 having been extended to include Protein Concentrates and Textured Protein Substances, the same becomes in any case, more specific in description to 1806, in which other food preparations containing Cocoa have been included. It is to be kept in mind that unlike other tariff headings, where the percentage of cocoa has been mentioned the heading 1806 does not speak of percentage of cocoa. Therefore, it is clear that even GI Rule – 3 would have made TH 2106only as more specific heading for the impugned product.

86. Learned advocate during arguments had taken resort to HSN explanatory notes to justify lower percentage of Cocoa to term products still as `preparation of Cocoa". But in doing so, the argument has sidetracked the reality of Indian tariff being different and capable of providing answer through its own existing statutory clauses by way of supplementary notes, as discussed above.

87. While arriving at the above conclusion, support is also drawn from the decision in the matter of Collector of Central Excise vs. Frozen Food

P.L. reported in 1992 (59) ELT 279 (Tri.) which was the decision under HSN based Central Excise Tariff(which also had similar head and supplementary notes de-aligned from HSN- though numbered differently) in relation to the additive supplement "surje", following observations are relevant:

"42. As for the argument that protein concentrates mentioned in HSN Chapter Note 5(a) of Chapter 21 would refer to protein concentrated from sources other than milk like Soya protein, groundnut, etc., there is no warrant for such a claim. The items which are covered under Chapter IV find specific mention in headings and sub-headings, of that Chapter. We do not find any mention of the expression "protein concentrates" in this Chapter and for this reason alone, protein concentrates would be covered under Chapter 21 by virtue of Note 5(a).

43. We agree with the contention of Shri Chakrabarty that because of interpretative Rule 1, classification of a product is to be determined according to the terms of the headings and relative Section of Chapter Notes. By application of this principle, the indication in Note 1(a) of Chapter 30 that dietitic, diabetic or fortified foods and food supplements are covered by Section IV is a clear indication of the classification of these products. This note has therefore, legal force and is not merely an indication of the possible classification as contended by Shri Lakshmi Kumaran."

(Emphasis supplied)

The above decision has been approved by the Hon"ble Supreme Court as reported in 1998 (98) ELT 295 (SC). Therefore, it is clear that addition of any additive of flavoring content will not alter the characteristic of protein concentrate etc. and will not take it out from the entry 2106 in the present instance.

88. In view of the foregoing, I agree with the views of learned brother and accordingly uphold the classification of the department for the impugned product. Appeal dismissed.

DATE OF HEARING : 18.09.2023
DATE OF DECISION: 31.10.2023

FINAL ORDER NO. 12380/2023

C.L. MAHAR :

The brief facts of the matter are that during the period May 2011 to June 2011, the appellant had imported consignment of crude petroleum oil at Sikka Port. The appellant have filed 12 bills of entry for clearance of the Crude Petroleum Oil which were initially assessed provisionally and goods were cleared on payment of provisionally assessed customs duty. The proper officer finalized the provisional assessment of the relevant bills of entry in the month of April 2016 on the basis of transaction value of the said goods i.e. price actually paid by the appellant. The price which was indicated on the import invoice of the goods and the quantity of the Crude Petroleum Oil mentioned on the bills of lading. On finalization of the bills of entry, the proper officer found that customs duty payable was less than the duty which was provisionally assessed and deposited by the appellant and as a result the appellant become eligible for refund of customs duty which was paid at the time of provisional clearance of subject goods.

2. The Deputy Commissioner of Customs vide its order-in-original dated 13.05.2016 has sanctioned an amount of Rs. 4,47,90,661/- of the basic customs duty and NCCD amounting to Rs. 33,710/- on the basis of the quantities taken for assessment as mentioned in the original invoices and the bill of lading for the imported goods. The department has gone in appeal against the above order-in-original which sanctioned refund to the appellant. The appellate authority, vide its order order-in-appeal No. JMN-CUSTM-000- APP-001-17-18 dated 03.04.2017 set-aside the impugned order of refund with directions to the Adjudicating Authority to examine all facts, documents, provisions of law and facts including the case laws of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mangalore Refinery and Petrochemicals Limited and subsequent circular dated 26.07.2017 issued by the Board.

3. In denovo proceedings, the matter has been adjudicated by the Deputy Commissioner of Customs vide its order-in-original No. 04/DC/CHS/REF/2017 dated 14.09.2017 wherein the Deputy Commissioner, after examining the matter in detail has passed the following

> "I hereby sanction refund claim of Rs. 4,19,38,972/- (Rupees Four Crore Nineteen Lakh Thirty Eight Thousand Nine Hundred Seventy Two only) to M/s. Reliance Industries Limited in terms of Section 27 of the Customs Act 1962. As M/s. Reliance Industries Ltd have already received Rs. 4,48,24,371/- through Cheque No. A-120824 dated 17.05.2016, therefore, 1, hereby order to appropriate the legitimate refund amount to the account of the claimant in terms of Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962 read with Section 18(3) of Customs Act, 1962.
>
> As regards the differential amount Rs. 28,85,399/- of erroneously refunded & short payment of duty of Rs. 5,16,232/- in respect of bills of entry no. F-38/03.05.2011, SCN No. VIII/10-334/JC/O&A/2016 dated 23.08.2016 has already been issued to the claimant by the Joint Commissioner, CCP, Jamnagar. Therefore, I refrain to pass any order, in this regard.
> 35. This order has been issued under the Customs Act, 1962 and the Regulation framed there-under without prejudice to any other action that may be taken against the claimant or upon any other person, under the Customs Act, 1962 or, the Rules & Regulations framed there under or under any other law for the time being in force."

4. Aggrieved with the above mentioned order-in-original, the appellant have gone in appeal before Commissioner (Appeals) who vide his order dated 11.07.2018 has held that the impugned order-in-original is as per law and he refrained from interfering in the findings of the order-in-original. The relevant portion of Commissioner (Appeals) order is as follows:-

> "11. I have carefully gone through the appeal memorandum, as well as record of the case. In this regard, I find that adjudicating authority came to conclusion that final assessment of Bills of entry was erroneously finalised by taking into consideration bills of lading quantity of the load port for calculating of BCD instead of taking unity in second in the Ship's Ullage Survey Report at the discharge port in India. This resulted in part, short payment of Customs duty of Rs. 5,16,232/- in the bills of entry No. F- 38/03.05.2011 and also erroneous refund amounting to Rs. 28,60,198/- in 05 Bills of Entry bearing Nos. F-38/03/05.2011, F-40/04.05.2011, F-79/31.05.2011, F-97/14.06.2011 and F-104/18.06.2011 out of 12 Bills of Entry covered in the refund order. The adjudicating authority came to above mentioned conclusion on the basis of facts that the assessments were finalized in April 2016 by taking into consideration the invoice value and Bill of Lading quantities in pursuance of the erstwhile Circular of the Board dated 12.11.2006, however, at that time Apex Court had decided the matter in MRPL judgment dated 02.09.2015 that the quantities received at the discharge port only was to be considered for levy of duty and not the BL quantity and that the hither-to far relied upon by the department having been held non-est, that decision prevailed over the Circular. Hence, the Ullage quantities at discharge port were the quantities received in India and the actual quantity for assessment of imported cargo discharged through pipeline without being stored at Shore Tanks in port area was only the quantity ascertained by the independent surveyors in Ship's Ullage Survey reports. which was signed by the surveyors as well as the Boarding Officer the subsequent Circular No. 34/2016 dated 20.07.2016 of the board had further strengthened this view in line with the decision of the apex Court in the MRPL judgment.
> 12. Further, the adjudicating authority has held that the correct and legitimate way to assess duty in the present case is to consider quantity of Petroleum Crude oil actually received in India. The quantity of imported goods as mentioned in the Ship's Ullage Survey report of the discharge port should be the basis of assessing duty. In this regard, the adjudicating authority has correctly placed reliance on the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of M/s. Mangalore Refinery and Petrochemicals Limited - 2015 (23) ELT 435 (SC).

13. Further, the Board while clarifying the matter vide Circular No. 14/201 26.07.2017 has instructed that in case of bulk liquid cargo imports, the shore tank quantity should be taken into consideration for levy of Customs duty irrespective of whether Customs duty is leviable at a specific rate or ad-valorem basis. Where bulk liquid cargo is directly cleared without being pumped into shore tank, assessment is to be done as per Ship's Ullage Survey spent at the port of discharge. In view of the stove, I do not find any reason to interfere in the impugned order and I agree with the findings of the lower authority. The contentions raised by the appellant are not tenable."

5. The appellant is before us against the above mentioned impugned order-in-appeal.

6. We have heard both the sides. We find that matter is no longer res- integra as the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of M/s. Mangalore Refinery and Petrochemicals Limited - 2015 (23) ELT 435 (SC) has already decided the matter. The relevant portion of the Hon'ble Apex Court decision is reproduced below:-

"17. The Tribunal's reasoning that somehow when customs duty is ad valorem the basis for arriving at the quantity of goods imported changes, is wholly unsustainable. Whether customs duty is at a specific rate or is ad-valorem makes not the least difference to the above statutory scheme. Customs duty whether at a specific rate or ad valorem is not leviable on goods that are pilfered, lost or destroyed until a bill of entry for home consumption is made or an order to warehouse the goods is made. This, as has been stated above, is for the reason that the import is not complete until what has been stated above has happened. The circular dated 12th January, 2006 on which strong reliance is placed by the revenue is contrary to law. When the Tribunal has held that a demand or duty on transaction value would be leviable in spite of "ocean loss", it flies in the face of Section 23 of the Customs Act in particular, the general statutory scheme and Rules 4 and 9 of the Customs Valuation Rules.

18. We therefore, set aside the Tribunal's judgment and declare that the quantity of crude oil actually received into a shore tank in a port in India should be the basis for payment of customs duty. Consequential action, in accordance with this declaration of law, be carried out by the customs authorities in accordance with law. All the aforesaid appeals are disposed of in accordance with this judgment."

7. In view of the above decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, we find that the impugned order-in-appeal is legally tenable and we hold that the same is correct and legal. Accordingly, we find that the appeal is without merit and deserve to be dismissed.

8. Thus, we dismiss the appeal.

FINAL ORDER NO. 10267-10272/2024

DATE OF HEARING : 16.10.2023 DATE OF DECISION :30.01.2024

RAJU

These appeals have been filed by M/s. Amardip Exports and Ors. against the demand of Custom Duty, interest, imposition of penalty and confiscation of imported material and imposition of redemption fine.

2. Learned counsel for the appellant pointed out that the appellants were importing mix Brass scarp for manufacture for their final products in terms of Notification 52/2003 –CUSTOM dated 31.03.2003. The imported mix Brass scrap was first subjected to segregation and as a result non foundry scrap and foundry scrap were obtained. Non foundry scrap was cleared by the appellant as such on payment of appropriate duties. In respect of Non foundry scrap demand was raised by classifying the goods under heads 74040022.The foundry scrap was utilized in the manufacture of finish goods went for export. The dispute in the instant case is if the appellant has utilized raw material in excess of that prescribed – in the input/ out put norms. It was alleged that appellants have utilized has excess imported raw material for the purpose as compare to the quantity eligible for manufacture of the finished goods. He placed reliance on the following Board Circular and Judgments:-

- 2019(368) ELT (GUJ)-CC (Prev) Vs Monarch Overseas & Others
- 2019(1)TMI 925 Gujarat High Court- CC (Prev) Vs Pooja Metal Ltd
- Final Order No. A/11068-11093/2018-Hon'ble Cestat, Ahmedabad
- Circular No. 1029/17/2016 dated 10.05.2016

3. Learned AR relies on the impugned order.

4. We have considered the rival submissions. We find that there are 4 customs and 2 excise appeals.

In the Appeal No. E/11294-11295/2014-DB the Commissioner appeal has held that the non -foundry scrap is not classifiable under Custom Tariff header, 7404 0022 and therefore, the demand of duty and order of confiscation of non- foundry scrap cannot be upheld.

The Commissioner (Appeal) has however, also observed as follows.

"However, before implementing the decision it would require to be seen as to whether the said quantity of non-foundry scrap was generated as per provision of Notification No. 52 /2003-Custom read with the final norms/ ratio fixed by the norms committee by the jurisdictional Excise Authority. However, if the appellants fails to prove that non foundry scrap was generated within the prescribed norms as per the said notification read with the final norms as fixed by the norms committee , as would be applicable depending upon a mix Brass scrap as discussed in para 14 infra there the duty implication in the order stand upheld.

These appeals are also against this specific restriction placed by the Commissioner Appeals in this impugned order.

4.1. It is noticed that the Adjudicating Authority confirmed an order classification of goods under heading No. 7404 0022 of Custom Tariff Act 1975. The show cause notice also sought to classify the said goods under Custom Tariff Act 7404 0022. In the circumstances we find that the order of the Commissioner Appeal seeking to confirm demand while simultaneously holding the goods not classifiable under heading No. 7404 0022 cannot be sustained. Moreover CBIC has classified as follows vide Circular No. 1029/17/2016 dated 10.05.2016.

> "2. However, there is another category of waste viz. foreign materials segregated initially and not fed in furnace. The issue is when such segregated foreign material is cleared by the brass manufacturers, can it be treated as clearance of "inputs as such" and accordingly are manufacturers required to pay an amount equal to the credit availed in respect of such inputs in terms of Rule 3(5) of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004.
>
> 3. The issue has been examined. Segregation from honey grade brass scrap in order to weed out other foreign materials before the process of melting in the furnace is an essential process relating to manufacture of brass articles. The foreign materials, emerging during the process of segregation have to be treated as process waste and cannot be treated like removal of inputs as such. The segregated foreign material has an altogether different character and use vis-a-vis brass scrap. Value per unit and classification of the segregated foreign material is also different from that of imported brass scrap. Accordingly, clearance of foreign material such as iron, steel, rubber, plastic, dust etc. cannot be treated as clearance of inputs as such. It may be noted that circular no. 62/2001-Cus dated 12.11.2001 does not apply to the issue at hand as the facts at hand are different.
>
> 4. In view of above, it is clarified that the clearance of segregated foreign materials namely iron, steel, rubber, plastic, dust etc. from honey grade brass scrap before feeding in the furnace cannot be treated as removal of "inputs as such" as envisaged under Rule 3 (5) of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004. The segregated foreign material in such situation, as has been explained above, shall be cleared on payment of Central Excise duty on transaction value as per its appropriate classification and rate of duty determined on merits.

P

5. Difficulty faced, if any, in implementing the circular should be brought to the notice of the Board. Hindi version will follow."

Thus even according to the CBIC the goods cannot be classified under chapter 74 as foundry scrap. The Appeals E/11294-11295/2014 –DB are therefore allowed.

5. In appeal Nos. C/13282-13284/2013 and C/13613/2013 the issue relates to determination of permissible input output ratio.

The benefit of Notification 52/2003-Custom is subject to the following conditions, namely:-

(1) The importer has been authorized by the Development Commissioner, to establish the unit for the purposes (specified in clauses (a) to (e) of the opening paragraph of this notification;

2) The unit carries out the manufacture, production, packaging or job-work or service in Customs bond and subject to such other condition as may be specified by the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs or Deputy Commissioner of Central Excise or Assistant Commissioner of Central Excise, as the case may be, (hereinafter referred as the said officer) in this behalf;

(3) The unit executes a bond in such form and for such sum and with such authority, as may be specified by the said officer, binding himself, -

(a) to bring the said goods into the unit or and use them for the specified purpose mentioned in clauses (a) to (e) in the opening paragraph of this notification;
(b) to maintain proper account of the receipt, storage and utilization of the goods;

(c) to dispose of the goods or services, the articles produced, manufactured, processed and packaged in the unit, or the waste, scrap and remnants arising out of such production, manufacture, processing or packaging in the manner as provided in the 2[Foreign Trade Policy] and in this notification;

(d) to pay on demand -

(1) an amount equal to duty leviable on the goods and interest at a rate as specified in the notification of the Government of India in the Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue) issued un- der section 28AB of the said Customs Act on the said duty from the date of duty free import of the said goods till the date of payment of such duty, if-

(i) in the case of capital goods, such goods are not proved to the satisfaction of the said officer to have been installed or otherwise used within the unit, within a period of one year from the date of import or procurement thereof or within such extended period not exceeding five years as the said officer may, on being satisfied that there is sufficient cause for not using them as above within the said period, allow;

(ii) in the case of goods other than capital goods, such goods as are not proved to the satisfaction of the said officer to have been used in connection with the production or packaging of goods in accordance with SION for export out of India or cleared for home consumption within a period of three years from the date of import or procurement thereof or within such extended period as the said officer may, on being satisfied that there is sufficient cause for not using them as above within the said period, allow:

Provided that -

(a) where no SION have been notified, the generation of waste, scrap and remnants upto 2% of input quantity shall be allowed;

(b) where additional items other than those given in SION are required as input or where generation of waste, scrap and remnants is beyond 2% of the input quantity, use of such goods shall be allowed on the basis of self-declared norms till such norms are fixed on ad hoc basis by the jurisdictional Development Commissioner within a period of three months from the date of self declared norms and the unit shall undertake to adjust the self-declared/ad hoc norms in accordance with norms as finally fixed by the Norms Committee for the unit. The ad hoc norms will continue till such time the final norms are fixed by the Norms Committee;

(c) in case of utilization of a large number of inputs, wide variation in quantum of consumption of inputs or such other factors which render such fixation of SION difficult in the case of a particular unit, the Norms Committee may refer the case to the Board of Approval for a decision];

(iii) in the case of, -

(a) goods produced or packaged, such goods have not been exported out of India, and

(b) unused goods (including empty cones, bobbins or containers, if any, suitable for repeated use) as have not been exported or cleared for home consumption, within a period of one year from the date of import or procurement of such goods or within such extended period as the said officer, as the case may be, on being satisfied that there is sufficient cause for not using them as above within the said period, allow;

(II) in case of failure to achieve the said positive Net Foreign Exchange Earning, the duty equal in amount to the portion of the duty leviable on the said goods but for the exemption contained in this notification and the duty so payable shall bear the same proportion as the unachieved portion of Net Foreign Exchange Earning bears to the positive Net Foreign Exchange Earning to be achieved along with interest at the rate as specified in the notification of the Government of India in the Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue) issued under section 28AB of the said Customs Act, on the said duty to be paid on demand from the date of importation or procurement the said goods till the payment of such duty.

6. In terms of clause 3 (d) (ii) is required to establish to the satisfaction of the officer that the goods used in production or packaging of finished goods are in accordance with the SION for export out of India.

In the case of appellant themselves vide order F No. 01/81/162/313/AM - 10/DES-II/219 dated 04.05.2011 wastage norms are determined in terms of para 6.8 (e) of the Foreign Trade Policy, 2009-2014, as follows.

" I am directed to refer to your letter No.KAZEZ/100%EOU/I/04/2005-06 dated 14.07.2009,13.08.2009 &8.9.2009 on the above mentioned subject and to inform that based on the recommendations of a team of Norms Committee which visited EOUs manufacturing brass items from mixed metal brass scrap in Jamnagar area, the following wastage norms are fixed in terms of Para 6.8(e) of Foreign Trade Policy 2009-14 for the manufacture of brass items by M/s Amardeep Export, Jamnagar.

A. Wastage norms during segregation:

The input raw material namely mixed metal brass scrap is not normal brass scrap as it contains brass scrap with high impurities like iron & Steel, Plastic/rubber etc. The process of segregation for physical removal of impurities form mixed metal brass scrap to produce segregated mixed brass scrap is first operation in the manufacturing process to manufacture brass items from mixed metal brass scrap. Wastage norms during the process of segregation would vary from consignment to consignment depending upon the percentage of impurities in the mixed metal brass scrap and for the process of segregation the following wastage norms are fixed:

Description (after segregation)	Quantity	Description of Import Item	Quantity
Segregated/processed Mixed brass scrap	1 MT	Mixed metal brass scrap with impurities like iron & steel, plastic/ rubber, etc.	As per actual verified by Central Excise subject to a maximum of 1.50 MT

B. Wastage norms for the manufacture of brass items from Segregated/ processed mixed brass scrap:

For the next stages of manufacturing operations for the manufacture of brass items from segregated/processed mixed brass scrap following wastage norms are fixed:

Export Item		Input Item
Description	Quantity	Description	Quantity
Machined articles components parts accessories made out of brass rods bars solid sections solid profiles	1 MT	Segregated/processed mixed brass scrap	1.26 MT

It is also clarified that the above wastage norms are applicable for the manufacture of brass items from mixed metal brass scrap with impurities like iron & Steel, Plastic/rubber etc and not applicable for the manufacture of brass items from normal brass scrap."

7. It is seen from the order-in-original that the Additional Commissioner has given following calculation for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity required for manufacture of goods actually produced by the appellant.

Annexure- B and Annexure B-1

Calculation as per final norms for segregation of raw material and non-foundry/ foundry scrap obtained during segregation AND finished goods manufactured from the foundry scrap/ cleaned brass scrap during the period 01.02.2009 to 31.03.2010

		Submitted at time of issue of SCN	Submitted at the time of verification
S.No.	Details	Qty. In MT	Qty. In MT (Revised)
1.	Opening stock of R.M.(Mixed brass scrap) as on 1.02.2009	100.964	83.889
2.	Total R.M. procured duty free (From 1.02.2009 to 31.03.2010)	215.920	215.920
3.	Total (1+2)	316.884	299.909
4.	Closing stock as on 31.03.2010.	6.679	1.294
5.	Total R.M. consumed (3-4)	310.205	298.615
6.	Finished goods manufactured / Non-foundry scrap generated	127.872	226.201(Foundry scrap segregated)
			72.414 (Non foundry scrap segregated)
7.	Input/out put norms	1 : 1.10 kg	1 : 1.50kg (at Ist stage)
8.	Raw material permissible as per final norms	140.659	339.302
9.	Excess of R.M. consumed	169.546	0.00 MT
IInd stage Calculation : (Annexure-B-1)
Opening tock of cleaned brass scrap/ foundry scrap as on 1.02.2009			16.975
Received cleaned brass scrap			226.201
Total			243.176
Closing stock as on 31.03.2010			5.385
Brass scrap consumed for manufacturing of finished brass parts			237.791
Finished goods manufactured			127.872
Maximum input quantity available at 2nd stage, as per Wastage norms 1: 1.26 MT(Brass parts)			161.119
Excess quantity of cleaned brass scrap used			76.672

From the above table it is noticed that the Additional Commissioner has given the benefit of the wasted as prescribed in the letter of Ministry of Commerce and Industry DGFT dated 04.05.2011 prescribe in wastage norms. Row 1 to 9 of the above table calculate the norm at the stage of segregation of non-foundry scrap from foundry scrap. The Annexure -B1 appearing after row 9 of the above table calculates the amount of segregated foundry scrap needed for manufacture of finished goods actually manufactured by the appellant. It is apparent that the said calculation is in accordance with the norms prescribed vide letter dated 04.05.2011. It is seen that by applying those norms the demand has been revised from Rs. 43,69,813/- to Rs. 19,76,115/-.

8. The appellant in the appeal papers have argued that the correct method of calculating excess consumption would be as follows.

> "The appellants again reproduce the calculation. As per the new norms the ratio of 'segregated brass scrap' from 'mixed brass scrap' is fixed as 1MT: 1.50 MT and the ratio for finished goods and Segregated brass scrap, for brass components/articles/bars etc. the same has been fixed as 1 MT: 1.26 MT. (Exhibit-25). Taking this ratio the calculation for finished product is as under;
>
> -1.50 MT of 'mix brass scrap' is for 1 MT of 'segregated brass scrap';
>
> -Therefore out of 298.615 MT of raw material consumed i.e. 'mix brass scrap' the quantity of 'segregated brass scrap' would be manufactured is -298.615/1.50=199.076 MT
>
> -Therefore permissible quantity of 'non-foundry' material is - 298.615-199.076=99.539 MT.
> Now out of 1.26 MT of 'segregated brass scrap' 1 MT of finished product can be manufactured

-therefore out of 199.076 MT of 'segregated brass scrap' the quantity of finished product to be manufactured is = 199.076/1.26 = 157.997MT But the actual quantity of finished goods i.e. brass parts manufactured = 127.872 MT (Annexure-C to the SCN).

127.872 MT of Brass parts manufactured and therefore quantity of processed brass scrap required is 127.872^ * 1.06 = 161.118MT . and therefore quantity of raw material required s=161.118^ * 1.5 = 241.677 MT.

Now quantity of raw material consumed in generation of slag, a by product as per the LOP, is required to be added-

Quantity of slag generated during the period is (11.475MT + closing balance as on 31.03.10 MT + 24.350MT quantity destroyed-35.826MT minus 7.327 MT = 28.498 MT.

(Exhibit-24)

Therefore quantity of raw material consumed, taking 2% of permissible limit (since no norms fixed for slag) the quantity of raw material required = 102% of 28.498 MT= 29.067 MT.

-Therefore total permissible quantity of raw material comes to= (241.677+29.067)= 270.744 MT whereas the quantity of raw material consumed was 298.615 MT (Annexure B to the SCN). Thus excess quantity of raw material consumed could be said to be 298.615-270.744 = 27.871 MT. Therefore, alternatively the demand should be restricted to 27.871 MT of raw material only, involving duty amount to Rs. 7,18,337/-only.

8.1. It is seen from the above calculation presented by the appellant that they have taken of fixed ratio of 1.5 for the purpose of calculating ratio at the time of segregation of processed mix brass scrap. It is seen that the letter of DGFT dated 04.05.2011 does not give permission to avail benefit of the ratio of 1.5 but the language is as follows:-

"as per the actual verified by the Central Excise Officer subject to maximum of 1.5 MT."

From the table above it is seen that the Additional Commissioner in the order-In-original has given the benefit of actual amount recovered on account of segregation. The calculation in the appeal is made by adoption of a fix ratio 1.5 which is not ratio of prescribed in DGFT letter. It cannot be accepted as the real ratio verified by the authorities is less than 1.5 and as per DGFT letter the ratio is a map of 1.5 but limited to the actual verified by Central Excise.

8.2. The second point raised by the appellant in their calculation relates to the loss on account of slag. From the letter DGFT dated 04.05.2011, it is apparent that the wastage norm for the stage of manufacturing brass items from segregated process mix brass scraped is 1.26 and is obviously inclusive of all kind of losses including slag. Thus, the calculation given by the appellant in their appeal cannot be adopted for the purpose of calculating unexplained consumption of scrap.

8.3. The Next argument raised by the appellant relates to the period of limitation. It is seen that the demand has been raised in terms of clause-3 of the Notification 52/2003-CUS. The said clause prescribes required the appellant to execute bond in terms of which they are required to explain actual consumption of raw material finished goods product and on failure to do so they are required to pay duty. It is seen that the demand has been raised not only invoking provisions of Section 28 but also Section 72 of the Customs Act. In terms B17 bond executed by the in terms of Notification 52/2003-Customs dated 31.03.2003. Therefore, since the demand has been raised invoking the condition of the bond the period of limitation would not be applicable to the instant case.

9. We find that all the customs appeals the facts are practicably identical. We do not find any merit in appeals filed by the appellant the same are dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO.A / 11897 /2023

DATE OF HEARING:17.08.2023
DATE OF DECISION: 11.09.2023

SOMESH ARORA

Brief facts of the case are that the appellant is engaged in manufacturing heavy machinery falling under Chapter 84 of Customs Tariff Act, 1985. It filed a bill of entry No.485 dated 30.7.2012 for import / procurement of imported capital goods viz. Plate Bending machine Model HDR-HY-3500-5000 consisting of three rollers, mobile control panel, air cooler. CNC control unit and all related complete items and accessories falling under Chapter heading 84622990 of CTA, 1985, to its sister concern unit viz. M/s ISGEC Heavy Engineering Ltd Plot No. 13-B, GIDC, Dahej (DTA buyer) in terms of Rule 48(1) of the Special Economic Zone Rules, 2006, read with Section 30 of the SEZ Act, 2005 against Release Advice No.4 dated 6.7.2012 issued by Assistant Commissioner of Customs, New Customs House (EPCG Section) Mumbai against EPCG licence no.0530158560 dated 15.6.2012 issued in the name of M ISGEC Heavy Engg. Ltd., Plot No.13-B, GIDC, Dahej (DTA Buyer). The said bill of entry was provisionally assessed under which the subject capital goods/ machineries were removed to EPCG licensee (license no.0530158560/2/11/00 dated 15.6.2011 holder in DTA to their sister concern M/s ISGEC Hitachi Ltd, Dahej Unit. The subject capital goods were imported vide Bill of entry No.DSEZ/013/2011-12 dated 20.6.2011 in the SEZ unit from Switzerland by M/s Saraswati Industries Syndicate Ltd, Plot No.Z-89, SEZ, Dahej. The assessable value of said capital goods was taken as Rs.218083271/- and total duty forgone was amounting to Rs.52140999/- and Bill of entry was assessed on 20.6.2011.

2. The clearance of the said capital goods under EPCG scheme was allowed under provisional assessment as per provisions of SEZ Act/Rules. The department‟s case was that appellant has not exited from Special Economic Zone and they were not eligible for clearing the capital goods under the prevailing Export Promotion Capital Goods Scheme, as removal of capital goods from SEZ unit under EPCG is only available as per the Rule 74(4) of the SEZ Rules, 2006. Therefore, it is clear that there is no absolute bar on clearance of Capital goods from SEZ to DTA under EPCG, but following the condition that a Unit can opt for EPCG scheme only at the time of exit, as per SEZ Rules 2006 with one time permission from the Development Commissioner. Since the unit had not exited from the SEZ nor any such permission from the Development Commissioner was taken. Therefore, the capital goods cleared is in contravention to the provisions of SEZ Act/Rules and hence liable to re-workout the value as per the provisions of the Section 30 of the Special Economic Zone Act, 2005 read with Rules 30, 34, 47(4) and 49(l) of the SEZ Rules, 2006. While finalizing the assessment of said provisionally assessed Bills if Entry the unit was asked to discharge the duty liabilities accordingly. Therefore, the appellant was required to pay full applicable Customs duty on the assessable value of Rs.218083271/- amounting to Rs.56379934/- in respect of the Capital goods cleared vide the said provisionally assessed BoE no.00485 dated 30.7.2012.

3. After due process of law, the lower authority ordered finalization of assessment and reassessed the duty vide BoE No.00485 dated 30.7.2012 and ordered to levy the duties amounting to Rs. 56379934 /-, in respect of the clearance of Capital goods from SEZ unit to DTA unit as per the provisions of SEZ Act/Rules along with applicable interest as per Section 18 of the Customs Act, 1962. The amount of Rs.6328957/- already paid against the BOE was appropriated and adjusted accordingly. On appeal the order of specified officer was upheld by Commissioner (Appeals). On appeal the order of specified officer was upheld by Commissioner (appeals)

4. Being aggrieved with the impugned order of Commissioner (Appeals) the appellant has filed the instant appeal on the below mentioned grounds and has contended, inter alia, that:

i. the order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) is violative of the principles of natural justice as it is non-speaking order,

ii. the order has to set out reasons, and without reason the order is bad in eyes of law and relied on case laws:

a. ACCT, Kota vs Shukla Bros-2010(4)SC 785

b. Mangalore Ganesh Bedi Works vs CIT-2005(2)SC 329

C. Kranti Associates (P) Ltd vs Masood Ahmed Khan-2010(9)SC496

iii. the application of the Rules specifically to the facts of the case has been omitted in the impugned order and there is no finding against the submissions advanced by the appellant so violation of principles of natural justice and is liable to set aside;

iv the appellant is legally permitted to sell capital goods to a DTA buyer under an EPCG scheme;

v. there is agreement to the fact that the appellant had validly imported the Plate Bending machine for its authorized operations, however, there is no provisions under the SEZ Act, 2005 or SEZ Rules, 2006, which prohibits the sale of a capital goods held by an SEZ unit either to a buyer in the DTA or outside India:

vi that the department is incorrect in interpreting that the removal of capital goods under EPCG is only available as per Rule 74(4) of the SEZ Rules, 2004 i.e. only at the time of exit of a unit from SEZ and that there is a bar on otherwise claiming benefits under the EPCG scheme at the time of clearance of goods into the DTA; as none is specifically mentioned.

vii. `Sale of plate bending machine into the DTA is to be considered as an import of capital goods into India; Import of capital goods into India can avail the benefits of EPCG scheme provided at Chapter 5 of the FTP:

viii. liability to pay duty upon removal of such goods is on the DTA buyer as the Bill of Entry for Home consumption is to be filed by the buyer of the goods;

ix. bond cannot be enforced against the appellant SEZ unit as under the law it is not liable to pay any duty for clearance of goods to the DTA; appellant being seller of goods is not liable to pay duty as it is not the importer on record; it is DTA unit which has procured the EPCG authorization; so DTA unit has to pay duty and interest;

x. SEZ authorities erred in issuing SCN to the appellant, the impugned order confirmed the recovery of customs duty after denial of benefit to the DTA buyer under the EPCG authorization; the EPCG authorization issued to the appellant is perfectly valid and neither withdrawn nor cancelled by DGFT, there cannot be a demand of duty from the SEZ authorities:

xi. the EPCG authorization is valid and not cancelled by the appropriate authority, the customs authority cannot challenge the validity of the same under proceedings initiated under Section 28 of the Customs Act, therefore, the impugned order is liable to be set aside on this ground also.

5. During the course of hearing, Appellants emphasized the following grounds:-

THE SEZ UNIT OF THE APPELLANT IS LEGALLY PERMITTED TO SELL THE IMPUGNED GOODS TO THE DTA BUYER UNDER EPCG AUTHORIZATION.

A.1. SEZ law itself envisages the sale of capital goods from a SEZ Unit to DTA- Section 30 of SEZ Act read with Rules 47, 48 and 49 of SEZ Rules deals with provisions relating to domestic clearance of goods by SEZ units. The said provisions mention that any goods (including capital goods) can be removed from an SEZ to DTA, subject to the conditions specified in SEZ Rules and upon payment of applicable duties which were otherwise payable at the time of import. Thus, the statute, specifically the aforementioned Section and Rules, itself envisages sale of capital goods from a SEZ Unit to DTA. Hence, the Appellant is legally permitted to sell the impugned goods from its SEZ Unit to its DTA unit.

A.2. It is further noted that multiple judicial decisions have already held that Section 30 creates a deeming fiction whereby goods cleared into the DTA from an SEZ shall be chargeable to the same duty as in the situation of actual imports. This means that any clearance into the DTA shall be at the same effective rate of duty as in the situation of import, meaning thereby that exemptions available at the time of import shall also be available to a DTA buyer. Reference is made to the following judicial decisions:

- Adinath Trade Link Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Kandla, [2013

  (293) E.L.T. 746 (Tri. - Ahmd.)] Maintained by the Hon‟ble Gujarat High Court in [2015 (315) ELT 359 (Gujarat High Court)]

Adani Power Ltd. vs Union of India 2015 (330) ELT 883 (Guj) Maintained by

- the Hon‟ble Supreme Court in [2016 (331) E.L.T. A129 (S.C.)].

A.3. It is submitted that identical propositions relating to the payment of effective duty have also been discussed in the following judicial decisions and circulars:

- CBEC Circular issued vide F. No. 81/65/87-CX.3 dated 02.11.1989;
- Plastics Processors Vs. Union of India, [2002 (143) E.L.T. 521 (Del.)];
- Jain Irrigation Systems Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Nasik, [2008 (221) E.L.T. 531 (Tri. - Mumbai)];
- Premier Rubber Factory Vs. CCE, [1990 (47) E.L.T. 125 (Tribunal)].

A.4. Further, it has been settled by the Hon‟ble Supreme Court in the case of Government of Kerala Vs. Mother Superior Adoration Convent, [2021 (376) E.L.T. 242 (S.C.)] that beneficial exemptions or policies which have been introduced in order to promote or encourage certain activities should be liberally interpreted. In view of the judgment, it can be inferred that no bar should be read into the beneficial policy in order to restrict the availment of such benefit. Further, in the case of K.R. Steel Union Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Kandla [2001 (129) E.L.T. 273 (S.C.)], the Hon‟ble Supreme Court has held that the language of a beneficial notification (or legislation in the present case) have to be construed keeping in view the said object and purpose of the exemption. Thus, as the SEZ law has been introduced with an aim to boost the country‟s economy and to encourage exports in order to bring in more foreign investment, in such a case, upon application of the above judgment it is clear that the scheme provided in SEZ Act read with SEZ Rules should be construed beneficially and no bar should be read into the language of the law in order to restrict the benefit available to it. Thus, when the SEZ law itself envisages sale of capital goods from SEZ into DTA, the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) cannot question the same.

6. Rule 74 does not provide that EPCG benefit is only available at the time of exit from the SEZ Scheme- Rule 74 of SEZ Rules states that a unit exiting SEZ is liable to pay all applicable duties on imported goods. Further, Rule 74 (4) mentions that the Development Commissioner can give an option to the SEZ unit to avail of EPCG Scheme at time of clearance, provided the SEZ unit is otherwise eligible to avail the benefit of EPCG Scheme. Thus, it can be interpreted that the intention of the government for providing Rule 74 (4) was to extend the opportunity to an SEZ unit to avail benefit under EPCG scheme at the time of exiting SEZ scheme.

6.1. Further, nowhere in Rule 74 has it been stated that that the benefit of EPCG scheme is only available at the time of exit of the SEZ Unit from the SEZ scheme. It is a settled law that taxing statutes have to be strictly and literally construed and no condition absent therein can be read into it. Hence, the contention of the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) at para 9.2 of the impugned order that removal of capital goods under EPCG is only available at the time of exit of a unit from the SEZ is completely incorrect.

DTA buyer can obtain an EPCG Authorization to indigenously procure capital goods- As per Rule 47 of the SEZ Rules, removal of goods (which have not been subjected to any manufacturing process) to DTA is governed by relevant Foreign Trade Policy ("FTP"). This rule creates a deeming fiction that such goods are being imported into India. Thus, it is established that the intention of the legislature vide SEZ law was to allow a SEZ unit to sell its goods to DTA, subject to compliance with FTP. Further, under Para 5.5 of Handbook of Procedure ("HBP") a DTA buyer can obtain an EPCG Authorization to indigenously procure capital goods. In the present case, the impugned goods have not undergone any manufacturing process, hence, the same can be sold to DTA unit of the Appellant having an EPCG Authorization. Thus, there has been no violation of SEZ law by the Appellant.

DEMAND FOR CUSTOMS DUTY AND INTEREST IS ILLEGAL AND IS

LIABLE TO BE SET ASIDE

Duty and interest cannot be demanded by the SEZ Unit- Rule 48 (1) of SEZ Rules states that it is the duty of a DTA unit to file Bill of Entry for home consumption of goods being cleared from a SEZ unit. In the present case, SEZ Unit and DTA Unit of the Appellant operate as two separate entities in terms of Rule 22 of SEZ Rules. Further, the impugned goods the BoE was filed by the DTA Unit of the Appellant for clearance of the impugned goods. Hence, the importer on record was the DTA Unit and therefore the duty liability was on the DTA Unit. Thus, in such a case, no demand of duty could be made against the SEZ Unit. Therefore, findings of the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) at para 10 of the impugned order that the SEZ Unit of the Appellant was liable to pay customs duty as it had entered a bond under Rule 22 to pay all duties on DTA clearances in terms of the SEZ Act, is untenable.

7. Without prejudice, duty and interest cannot be demanded from the DTA Buyer- Section 30 of SEZ Act provides that goods which are cleared from SEZ unit to DTA, shall be inter alia chargeable to "duties of customs", as leviable on such goods when imported. Thus, Section 30 creates a legal fiction whereby DTA buyer of goods is liable to pay customs duty in a manner as if the goods are being imported into India. In such a case, a DTA Buyer can avail the benefit of all exemptions which would otherwise be available at the time of import.

8. In the present case, the impugned goods have been cleared by the DTA unit under EPCG Authorization, upon payment of concessional 3% customs duty under Customs Notification No. 103/2009 dated 11.09.2009[1] ("Exemption Notification"). This Exemption Notification is anyway applicable for import of capital goods by any EPCG Authorization holder. Hence, in such a case, no duty or interest can be demanded from the DTA Unit as it has paid the applicable customs duty under the Exemption Notification. In this regard, reliance is being placed on the following cases wherein benefit of an exemption notification is allowed to a DTA buyer in terms the deeming fiction created by Section 30 of the SEZ Act:

- Adinath Trade Link Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Kandla, [2013 (293) E.L.T. 746 (Tri. - Ahmd.)]; Maintained by the Hon"ble Gujarat High Court in [2015 (315) ELT 359 (Gujarat High Court)]and;
- Precision Polyplast P. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Cus. (Port), Kolkata, [2016 (344) E.L.T. 977 (Tri. - Kolkata)].

8.1 Further, the Supreme Court in the case of Commissioner of C.Ex., Daman Vs. Sahajanand Technologies Pvt. Ltd., [2015 (325) E.L.T.625 (S.C.)] has held that Section 3 of the Central Excise Act, 1944 creates a legal fiction that clearances from 100% EOUs are to be treated at par with imports and therefore DTA clearance of capital goods to EPCG units by EOUs is permissible by payment of concessional rate of duty under the EPCG exemption notifications. Similar legal fiction is being created by Section 30 of SEZ Act. Similarly, in the case of Semco Electric Pvt. Ltd. Vs. CCE, Goa, [2019 (370) E.L.T. 1052 (Tri.-Mumbai)], the hon"ble tribunal has held that an EOU unit is authorized to sell capital goods in DTA after payment of applicable duties subject to compliance of Customs Procedures. Now, since EOUs and SEZs work essentially on similar principles, these judgments will be equally applicable in the present case. Hence, in view of the above, no duty can be demanded by the DTA buyer.

9. No duty can be demanded as the DTA buyer has fulfilled its Export Obligation under the EPCG Authorization: Under the EPCG Scheme, capital goods are allowed to be imported at concessional rate of duty. In lieu of the concessional rate of duty, the EPCG Authorization Holder has to fulfil its Export Obligation ("EO") fixed by the DGFT Authorities. In case where an EPCG Authorization holder fails to fulfil its EO after expiry of EO period, the Customs Authorities can demand differential duty saved and penalty from the Authorization holder. In the present case, it is pertinent to mention that the DTA Unit has fulfilled 100% of EO and received a Redemption Certificate from the jurisdictional DGFT authority on 12.10.2021. Thus, as the DTA buyer has fulfilled the EO in lieu of concessional duty during import, no differential duty can be demanded from the DTA Buyer.

MISCELLANEOUS SUBMISSIONS:

10. The impugned order is a non-speaking order – The impugned order does not provide any reasoning against various submissions made by the Appellant and is violative of principles of natural justice and thus the same is liable to be set aside.

Customs authorities cannot sit in judgment over the decision of DGFT to grant benefit under the Foreign Trade Policy- The EPCG Authorization is granted by DGFT authorities after due procedure and verification. The EPCG Authorization granted to the DTA Unit of Appellant has not been cancelled or withdrawn by DGFT Authorities. In such a case, the finding of Ld. Adjudicating authority (as confirmed by the impugned order) that clearance of goods from SEZ Unit to DTA unit of Appellant under EPCG Authorization was per se an illegal act and violative of SEZ law is erroneous and untenable.

11. The following provisions as found relevant were referred by the appellants:-

Section 30.- Subject to the conditions specified in the rules made by the Central Government in this behalf:-

(a) any goods removed from a Special Economic Zone to the Domestic Tariff Area shall be chargeable to duties of customs including anti-dumping, countervailing and safeguard duties under the Customs Tariff Act, 1975, where applicable, as leviable on such goods when imported; and
(b) the rate of duty and tariff valuation, if any, applicable to goods removed from a Special Economic Zone shall be at the rate and tariff valuation in force as on the date of such removal, and where such date is not ascertainable, on the date of payment of duty.

Section 51. -(1) The provisions of this Act shall have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other law for the time being in force or in any instrument having effect by virtue of any law other than this Act.

Rule 25 of SEZ Rules, 2006 (Non-Utilization of Goods): Where an entrepreneur or Developer does not utilize the goods or services on which exemptions, drawbacks, cess and concessions have been availed for the authorized operations or unable to duly account for the same, the entrepreneur or the Developer, as the case may be, shall refund an amount equal to the benefits of exemptions, drawback Customs Act, 1962, the Customs Tariff Act, 1975, the Central Excise Act, 1944, the Central Excise cess and concessions availed without prejudice to any other action under the relevant provisions of the Tariff Act, 1985, the Central Sales Tax Act, 1956, the Foreign Trade (Development and Regulate Act, 1992 and the Finance Act, 1994 (in respect of service tax) and the enactments specified in the Fes Schedule to the Act, as the case may be: Provided that if there is a failure to achieve positive net foreign exchange earning, by a Unit, such entrepreneur shall be liable for penal action under the provisions of Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992 and the rules made there under.

Rule 34 of the SEZ Rules, 2006 (Utilization of goods)- The goods admitted into a Special Economic Zone shall be used by the Unit or the Developer only for carrying out the authorized operations but if the goods admitted are utilized for purposes other than for the authorized operations or if the Unit or Developer fails to account for the goods as provided under these rules, duty shall be chargeable on such goods as if these goods have been cleared for home consumption:

Provided that in case a Unit is unable to utilize the goods imported or procured from Domestic Tariff Area, it may export the goods or sell the same to other Unit or to an Export Oriented Unit or Election Hardware Technology Park Unit or Software Technology Park Unit or Bio-technology Park Une without payment of duty, or dispose off the same in the Domestic Tariff Area on payment of applicable duties on the basis of an import licence submitted by the Domestic Tariff Area buyer, wherever applicable

Rule 47(4) of SEZ Rule, 2006 (Sales in Domestic Tariff Area) - Valuation and assessment of the goods cleared into Domestic Tariff Area shall be made in accordance with Customs Act and rules made thereunder.

Rule 48 of SEZ Rules, 2006 (Procedure for Sale in Domestic Tariff Area)-

(1) Domestic Tariff Area buyer shall file Bill of Entry for home consumption giving therein complete description of the goods and/or service namely, make and model number and serial number and specification along with invoice and packing list with the Authorised Officers:

Provided that the Bill of Entry for home consumption may also be filed by a Unit on the basis of authorization from a Domestic Tariff Area buyer.

Rule 49(1) of SEZ Rules, 2006. (Domestic Tariff Area removals - abatement of duties in certain cases)

(1) A Unit may remove capital goods to Domestic Tariff Area after use in Special Economic Zone payment of duty as under-

(a) duty shall be levied on such goods on the depreciated value thereof and at the rate in force at the date of removal of the goods;

(b) depreciation in value shall be allowed for the period from the date of commencement of production or where such capital goods have been received in the Unit after such commencement of production from the date such goods have been put to use for production till the date of presentation of Bill of Entry for home consumption;

Rule 74(4) of SEZ Rules, 2006 (Exit of Units)

(4) Development Commissioner may permit a Unit, as one time option, to exit from Special Economic Zone on payment of duty on capital goods under the prevailing Export Promotion Capital Good Scheme under the Foreign Trade Policy subject to the Unit satisfying the eligibility criteria under that Scheme.

12. In response to various submissions by the appellant AR submitted that Commissioner (Appeals) has correctly found that since the appellant has not exited from Special Economic Zone, they were not eligible for clearing the capital goods under the prevailing Export Promotion Capital Goods Scheme, as removal of capital goods from SEZ unit under EPCG is only available as per the Rule 74(4) of the SEZ Rules, 2006. On scrutiny of the relevant Sections and Rules of SEZ, it is explicitly clear that there is no bar on clearance of capital goods from SEZ to DTA under EPCG, but following the condition that a unit can opt for EPCG scheme only at the time of Exit, as per SEZ Rules, 2006 with one time permission from the Development Commissioner. Since the Unit had not exited from the SEZ nor any such permission from the Development Commissioner was taken therefore, the capital goods cleared are in contravention of the provisions of the SEZ Act/Rules and hence liable to re-workout the value as per provisions of Section 30 of SEZ Act, 2005 read with Rules 30, 34, 47 (4) and 49 (1) of SEZ Rules, 2006.

13. The D.R. also argued that Commissioner (Appeals) rightly rejected that bond can be enforced against the appellant if goods including capital goods are cleared for any purpose other than for which they were obtained till the time SEZ has not exited from Special Economic Zone, so they were not eligible for clearing the capital goods under the prevailing Export Promotion Capital Goods Scheme, as removal of capital goods from SEZ unit under EPCG is only available under Rule 74(4) of the SEZ Rules-2006. Learned Commissioner (Appeals) also found that the appellant had submitted a bond- cum- undertaking under Rule 22 of the SEZ. Rules- 2006 and have undertaken to fulfill the conditions of the bond-cum-undertaking and the condition no.9 of the bond-cum-undertaking is as under:

> "9 We, the obligors shall pay the duties on the goods and services sold in Domestic Tariff Area In terms of Special Economic Zones Act, 2005 and the rules and orders made there under".

13.1 In view of the above, it is found that the appellant had violated the conditions of the bond cum-undertaking in as much as they have cleared the capital goods under EPCG scheme, without paying appropriate Customs duty and have violated the provisions of the SEZ Rules, 2006, since the Unit had not exited from the SEZ nor any such permission from the Development Commissioner was taken before clearance, therefore, the capital goods cleared are in contravention to the provisions of the SEZ Act Rules. And that the appellant has bound themselves to pay the duties on the goods and services sold in Domestic Tariff Ares (DTA) in terms of Special Economic Zone Act, 2005 and the rules and order made there so the bond-cum- undertaking is enforceable.

14. As per Rule 34 of the SEZ Rules, 2006, the goods admitted to the SEZ unit or the developer only for carrying out the authorized operations but if the goods admitted are utilized for purposes other than for the authorized operation of the developer fails to account for the goods as provided under these rules, duty shall be charge on such goods as if the goods have been cleared for home consumption. That the appellant had removed the capital goods viz. " Plate bending machine model HDR-HY-3500-5000" consisting of three rollers, Mobile Control Panel, Air Cooler, CNC Contril WWIL all related complete items and accessories" under EPCG scheme under licence no.0530158560/2/11/00 dated 15.6.2011, to their sister concern M/s ISGEC Hitachi Ltd which were cleared provisionally on payment of customs duty at concessional rate @ 3% only and appropriate Customs duty was not discharged. That Rule 49(1) of the SEZ Rules, 2006, stipulates that Development Commissioner may permit a Unit, as one time option, to exit from Special Economic Zone on payment of duty on capital goods under the prevailing Export Promotion Capital Goods Scheme under the Foreign Trade policy subject to the Unit satisfying the eligibility criteria under that Scheme. Since the SEZ unit has not exited from Special Economic Zone, they were not eligible for clearing the capital goods under the prevailing Export Promotion Capital Goods Scheme. That there is no bar on clearance of Capital goods from SEZ to DTA under EPCG, but following the condition that a unit can opt from the Development Commissioner. Since the Unit had not exited from the SEZ nor any such permission from the Development Commissioner was taken, therefore, the capital goods cleared are in contravention to the provisions of the SEZ Act/Rules and hence, liable to re- workout the value as per provisions of Section 30 of SEZ Act, 2005 read with Rules 30, 34, 47 (4) and 49 (1) of SEZ Rules, 2006.

15. Considered the rival submissions. In this context, it needs to be appreciated that under the provisions in which SEZ Scheme operates, under Section 30 of the SEZ Act, 2005, terms of removal of goods from SEZ to DTA on payment of Customs duties on the rate of duty and tariff valuation on the date of removal has been provided. Further, under Rules made to carry out the provisions of SEZ Act, 2005 i.e. S.E.Z Rules, 2006, under Rule 34 there is a prescription available that goods admitted in SEZ shall be used only for approved operations i.e. which is permitted through LOP by the Unit Approval Committee under Rule 49(1) of the SEZ Rules, 2006. Capital goods are allowed to be removed in DTA after use in a Special Economic Zone on payment of duty and depreciated value counted from the date commencement of production Rule 74 (4) SEZ rule,2006 . This is a special provision for the exiting units through which Dev. Commissioner has been allowed to permit the unit as one time option to exit from SEZ on payment of duty on capital goods into prevailing EPCG Scheme under the Foreign Trade Policy subject to eligibility criteria under the EPCG Scheme. The process of exiting is commonly known as de-bonding. The appellants are seeking to rely upon this provision relating to de-bonding to plead, that they can at any time on payment of duty under Rule 34 clear the goods under EPCG Scheme and not necessarily at the time of exit or de-bonding. We are unable to agree with such proposition and if the same is accepted, it will render the expression "as one time option, to exit from Special Economic Zone on payment of duty on capital goods under the prevailing export motion capital good scheme" in Rule 74 (4) redundant or otiose, we have therefore to make every word operative rather than making any null, while interpreting the statute. Maxim „ut res magis valeat quam pereat" will apply as aid to interpretation. It is thus, clear that the SEZ rules have made exiting of capital goods under the EPCG Scheme as one time option. Therefore, during the currency of the operations of an SEZ, while it is allowed to remove goods including capital goods to the DTA area, the same can normally be on applicable customs duty and not under EPCG Scheme. When the legislature has made a special provision by mentioning a particular export promotion Scheme to be availed only at the time of exit, same cannot be allowed to be freely availed at any time under a provision in which there is no prescription of capital goods to be cleared under EPCG Scheme is available. In this context, we are fortified in interpreting the provision of statute by the trite law that when a method has been laid down, , it necessarily prohibits the doing of the act in any other manner than that which has been prescribed, and thus, the prohibition in other provision not being mentioned specifically will not apply. In Taylor v. Taylor ((1875) 1 Ch D 426), as notably followed in Nazir Ahmed v. King Emperor [AIR 1936 PC 523] and a plethora of judgments of the Supreme Court, the most well- known being, perhaps, State of Uttar Pradesh v. Singhara Singh [AIR 1064 SC 358], conclude the issue, in law, in favour of the department. The legal principle, fossilised over a period of time, is thus enunciated, in Singhara Singh [AIR 1964 SC 358]

> "8. In Nazir Ahmed's case [AIR 1936 PC 523] the Judicial Committee observed that the principle applied in Taylor v. Taylor [(1875) 1 ChD 426) a Court, namely, that where a power is given to do a certain thing in a certain way, the thing must be done in that or nor at all and that other methods of performance are necessarily forbidden, applied to judicial officers making records under s. 164 and, therefore, held that magistrate could not give oral evidence of the confession made to him which he had purported to record under s. 164 of the Code. It was said that otherwise all the precautions and safe guards laid down in Sections 164 and 364, both which had to be read together, would become of such trifling value as to be almost idle and that it would be an unnatural construction to hold that any other procedure was permitted than which is laid down with such minute particulanty in the section themselves."
> 9. The rule adopted in Taylor v. Taylor (1875) 1 Ch D 426] is well recognized and is founded on sound principle. Its result is that if a statute has conferred a power to do an act and has laid down the method in which power has to be exercised, it necessarily prohibits the doing of the act in any other manner than that which has been prescribed. The principle behind the rule is that if this were not so, the statutory provision might as well not have been enacted."

Therefore in the present instance, stipulation of one time availment of EPCG Scheme at the time of exit cannot be read as permitting availment of EPCG Scheme under Rule 34 of SEZ Rules, 2006. Particularly under expression "on license" appearing in that Rule.

16. Further the Export Promotion schemes since 1994 after existence of W.T.O are being made by member countries as compliant to the W.T.O provisions requiring no element of subsidy to be allowed even entering through procedural mechanism. Switchover thus from one scheme to another of capital goods needs to be construed strictly through specific mandate of the legislature and not liberally. We find that E.P.C.G. till exit from SEZ unit is not available, nor has appellant produced any such mandate or opinion from administrative authorities like Dev. Commissioners approving such availment by customs. We are, therefore inclined to uphold the order of Commissioner (Appeals), which we find has dealt correctly with the issue.

17. In view of foregoing, we find that no merit in this appeal, accordingly dismissed the same.

When the matter was called, it was noticed that the hearing has been fixed number of times i.e. on 20.02.2023, 23.03.2023, 20.04.2023 and 04.07.2023 and no one appeared on behalf of the appellant. The notice was served through the Authorized Representative's office also however no one appeared. The appeal has been taken up for hearing ex-parte.

This appeal has been filed by Bhatia Shipping Private Limited against imposition of penalty for failure to properly perform the duty of CHA. A penalty has been imposed under Section 114(iii) for violation of provisions of Section 34, 40 and 51 of the Customs Act.

The claim of the appellant is that the goods are liable for confiscation under Section 113 and therefore no penalty can be imposed. It is seen that Clause (g) of Section 113 read as under:

"Section 113. Confiscation of goods attempted to be improperly exported, etc. –The following export goods shall be liable to confiscation:--

(g) any goods loaded or attempted to be loaded on any conveyance, or water-borne, or attempted to be water-borne or attempted to be water-borne for being loaded on any vessel, the eventual destination of which is a place outside India, without the permission of the proper officer;"

In the instant case, the goods were allowed to be loaded without let export order of the Custom Officer. It is duty of the CHA to ensure that properprocedure is followed. In these circumstances, we do not find any merit in the appeal. The same is dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO.A / 11695 /2023

DATE OF HEARING: 31.07.2023
DATE OF DECISION: 14.08.2023

SOMESH ARORA

Facts of the matter in brief are that the appellant filed Bill of Entry No.7032841 dated 02.07.2018 for clearance of 198.32 Mts of "Industrial Composite Mixture" classifying the goods under CTH 27101990, assessable value of which was declared as Rs.82,57,556/- involving duty of Rs.20,22,276/- The goods were given first check with order to draw sample and forward the same to CRCL, Kandla for testing. As per the test report of the Customs Laboratory, Kandla, is concerned, the imported goods were found "Light Oil, and not "Industrial Composite Mixture". The adjudicating authority found that the imported goods are classifiable under tariff heading 27101290 i.e. 'Other of sub heading Light Oils and Preparations'.

The adjudicating authority also found that goods falling under tariff heading 27101290 are allowed to be imported through State Trading Enterprises (STE) only as per Policy condition-5 of Chaptr-27 of ITC (HS), Schedule-1. However, the appellant is neither STE nor they have submitted any documents showing grant of such rights by the DGFT to import or export any of the goods notified for exclusive trading through STEs, therefore, they have violated the policy conditions of Foreign Trade Policy. The appellant had waived show cause notice and personal hearing. The adjudicating authority vide impugned order rejected the classification of the goods under CTH read with ITC (HS) Schedule-1's heading 27101990 and ordered to classify the same under CTH 27101290 and ordered to charge appropriate duty; confiscated the goods valued at Rs.82,57,557/- under Section 111(d) and 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962 and gave an opportunity to the appellant to redeem the confiscated goods on payment of redemption fine of Rs.13,00,000/- under Section 125 of the Customs Act, 1962; imposed penalty of Rs.2,00,000/- on the appellant under Section 112(a)(i) of the Customs Act, 1962; also ordered that the goods to be released on payment of appropriate duty, redemption fine and penalty. The order of the adjudicating authority was upheld by the Commissioner (Appeals) as well in totality. Being aggrieved, appellant has filed the appeal contending, inter alia, that:

2 The department failed to appreciate that on examination it was found that the goods were declared as "Industrial Composite Mixture", however, on the basis of test report, the goods was found to be light oil. There is no change in rate of duty in case the goods are light oil. Therefore, there is no case for confiscation under Section 111 (d) and 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962 as the goods are freely importable under CTH 27101290.

2.1 The department erred in holding that the goods merited classification under CTH 27101290 as light oil, which is without any basis and/or evidence as the density at 15 degree Celsius * 0.783g/ml. flash point-41 degree Celsius, aniline point-44 degree Celsius, initial boiling point M/s.M.M. Trading Company

2.2 (IBP) 158 degree Celsius, and final boiling point (FBP) = 212 degree Celsius can vary due to climate conditions prevailing at the relevant time. Therefore, there is no case for confiscation under Section 111 (d) and 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962, nor for any penalties.

2.3 The findings of the department are unsustainable and unjustifiable in law and on facts especially as regards claim of classification not been approved resulting in mis-declaration and a false declaration to call for confiscation under the provisions of Section 111(d) and (m) of the Act. Relied on the judgment in case of Northern Plastic Ltd. Vs Collector of Customs & Central Excise reported in 1998 (101) ELR 549 (S.C.)

2.4 The department failed to appreciate that the test report of the supplier clearly shows the goods as "Industrial Composite Mixture" and it has been rightly classified under CTH 27101990 in international trade. Therefore, there was no intent or knowledge on the part of the appellant to mis-declare and claim incorrect classification.

2.5 It is also settled law that fine and penalty cannot be imposed in case of classification of goods even when there is no duty difference.

3. The Learned, advocate for the appellant submitted that the Respondent-Department, as per note 4 of Chapter 27 seeks to classify the impugned goods under Customs Tariff Heading 27101290, as against Heading claimed by them under CTH 27101990. For the sake of convenience Sub-heading Note - 4 is reproduced here in below:

> "4. For the purpose of sub heading 2710 12," light oils and preparations" are those of which 90% or more by volume (including losses) distil at 210 C according to the ISO 3405 method (equivalent to the ASTMD 86 method)."

As per the test report the distillation has not been done in the present case. Therefore, the goods cannot be classified under CTH 2710 1290 as the goods do not confirm to the light oil.

3.1 The samples drawn have been tested for only 4 parameters on the basis of which it cannot be determined as light oil. The appellant has furnished a Certificate of Analysis along with the Bill of Entry which clearly goes to show that the goods are "Industrial Composite Mixture". The goods as per test report of the department bearing No. 1671 dated 12.07.2018, are composed of Mixture of Mineral Hydrocarbon oil having the following compositions:

i. Initial boiling 158°C
ii. Final boiling point 212°C
iii. Flash Point 41°C
iv. Density at 15°C 0.7830 gm/ml and is therefore light oil/SBPS

3.2 The appellant further say and submit that the order in original clearly records as follows: [para 05.]

> 'From the test report it is seen that the goods in question do not confirm the parameters of Motor Spirit.'

Further, the goods have not been tested for having anti-knock preparations, hence the respondent seeks to classify the goods under CTH 2710 1290 i.e 'Other'. However, there is no duty difference even if the goods had confirmed the test of anti-knock preparations.

3.3 The appellant say and submit that the said goods are used in paint and similar industries. To qualify as light oil the product needs to be tested in ad mixture with anything other than 'Mineral oil'. The respondent has not produced any evidence to classify the product as 'light oil falling under CTH 2710 1290. However, due to paucity of time and the detention charges the appellant waived the SCN and personal hearing and did not get the goods re-tested.

3.4 Further, the appellant had submitted the certificate of analysis at the time of filling of the Bill of Entry. Further, to classify the goods as light oil the following ingredients were required to be satisfied i.e.

i. Distillation range
ii. Density @ 15°C
iii. Copper strip, 3hrs 100 C
iv. Flash point tag (min)
v. Color, saybolt
vi. Gum existent
vii. Aromatic Content
viii. Doctor test
ix. Sulphur total

3.5 In the instant case only four test were done out of the total nine test as per the certificate of analsis. Therefore, it is out of purview of light oils and preparation. In this Context we rely on the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India in the case of Commissioner of C.

Ex. & S.T., Vadodara-II versus Gail (India) Ltd reported in 2023 (383) EL.T. 257 (S.C). Further the Hon'ble Tribunal in the case of Swarna Oil Services, SM Trading Company v/s Commissioner of Customs, Mundra reported in 2020(6) TMI 70-CESTAT Ahmedabad and in the case of Oil Energy verses Commissioner of Customs Jamnagar in Customs Appeal No. 01619 of 2020.

3.6 The policy condition -5 of chapter 27 does not apply in the present case as the said goods is not transportation fuel. It goods are used in paint and varnish industry. Therefore, the Foreign Trade Policy has not been violated. That being so the goods are liable to confiscation under Section 111(d) & (m) of the Customs Act, 1962 nor the appellant liable to redemption fine or penalty under Section 112(a)(i) of the Customs Act, 1962. Further, the appellants made added submissions vide their letter received on 11.08.2023 emphasizing, inter alia that only 4 test out of nine were done by the department.

3.7 The appellant therefore submits that the order imposing redemption fine and penalty be set aside with consequential reliefs.

4. As against this, Learned AR relied upon the order of both the lower authorities and the findings to justify the reasoning and the classification upheld by the Department as well as the confiscation and violations has analysed.

5. Considered. We find that the Learned Commissioner (Appeals) has in detail dealt with various submissions of the party as reproduced below:

> "6. In the instant case, the appellant has declared the imported goods as "Industrial Composite Mixture" and classified the same under CTH 27101990. As mentioned in the impugned order, sample was drawn and forwarded to CRCL, Kandla for testing. The test report No.1671 dated 12.07.2018 states that the imported goods is composed of mixture of mineral Hydrocarbon having initial boiling point 158 C. Final Boiling Point 212° C, Flash Point 41° C, Density at 15° C - 0.7830 gm/ml; it is light oil. Thus as per the said test report, the imported cargo was other than the declaration and they are other than Industrial Composite Mixture and it is Light Oil. After it is confirmed from the test report that the imported goods are Light Oil, the adjudicating authority has correctly observed at para 05 and 06 of the impugned order that the imported goods are appropriately classifiable under tariff heading 27101290 i.e. 'Other' of sub- heading 'Light Oils and Preparations'. The appellant has contended that even the goods imported are freely importable under CTH 27101290. However, being the goods falling under tariff heading 27101290, the same are allowed to be imported through State Trading Enterprises(STE) as per Policy condition-5 of Chapter-27. The policy condition-5 of chapter 27 is as under:
>
> M/s.M.M. Trading Company
>
> "5 Import allowed through 10C subject to Para 2.20 of Foreign Trade Policy, except for the companies who have been granted rights for marketing of transportation fuels in terms of Ministry of P&NG's Resolution No. P- 23015/1/2001-MKT dated 8.3.2002 including HPCL BPCL & IBP who have been marketing transportation fuels before this date."
>
> As mentioned in para 13 of the impugned order, the appellant is neither an STE nor has submitted any documents showing grant of such rights by the DGFT to import or export any of the goods notified for exclusive trading through STES therefore the appellant has violated the policy conditions of the Foreign Trade Policy.
>
> 7. Regarding confiscation, I find that as per Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962, if any goods which do not correspond in respect of value or any other particular with the entry made under this Act, are liable to confiscation. In the present case, the appellant has declared the goods as "Industrial Composite Mixture" and classified the same under CTH 27101990 which are "Light Oil" as per test report of CRCI. Kandla. Also as per Section 111(d) of the Customs Act, 1962, any goods which are imported or attempted to be imported or are brought within the Indian customs waters for the purpose of being imported, contrary to any prohibition imposed by or under this Act or any other law for the time being in force, are liable for confiscation. In this case, the goods being "Light Oil" falling under tariff heading 27101290, the same are allowed to be imported through State Trading Enterprises(STE) as per Policy condition-5 of Chapter-27. However, the adjudicating authority has found that the appellant is neither an STE nor has submitted any documents showing grant of such rights by the DGFT to import or export any of the goods notified for exclusive trading through STES thus the appellant has violated the policy conditions of the Foreign Trade Policy. The adjudicating authority has discussed in detail the confiscation, fine and penalty in the impugned order and I agree with the same"

5.1 Further in this matter, we find that the party had brought a test report with 9 parameters, which it asserts are relevant and decisive for determination of the nature of product and which was drawn purportedly in the country of exportation i.e Bandar Abbas. Same on analyses of 9 parameters including one Doctor test (which has been stated as negative), is reproduced below:

ANALYSIS
Distillation range	145-230
Desity@ 15°C	780-790
Copper strip, 3hrs 100°C	1a
Flash point, tag(min)	45
Color, saybolt	25
Doctor test	Neg
Sulphut total(max)	0.1
Gum existent (max)	5
Aromatic content	20(max)

The report at R/P 18 of the appeal memo is undated and bears no name of testing agency and its purpose nor does it correlate with impugned consignment.

5.2 As against this, Department relied upon the test report Bearing No. 1671 dated 12.07.2018, from CRCL Kandla, which indicated the imported goods is composed of mixture of Mineral Hydrocarbon which is reproduced below:

- Initial Boiling Point = 158°C
- Final Boiling Point = 212°C
- Flash Point =41°C
- Destity at 15 C = 0.7830 gm/ml

5.3 On the basis of above and a clear finding that the product was light oil has been arrived at, by the department. The learned Commissioner (Appeals), after detailed discussion upheld the classification proposed by the Department. As can be seen the report sought to be relied upon by the appellant was drawn behind the back of the department and in another country and therefore cannot be given precedence over the report relied upon by the Department, which has much higher credence, in the factual matrix of the matter, as the party's report does not even match on the parameters tested by the department. Further even by relying upon this report, the appellants despite advice of suppliers for second opinion and the sample re-test did not opt for same foregoing their right of SCN or personal hearing or even re-test in the matter and just pleading for minimum fine and penalty.

5.4 After having got the goods cleared by waiving Show Cause Notice or personal hearing and requesting for imposition of minimum fine, which were clearly brought in violation of EXIM policy relating to light oil at the relevant time as the same was a canalised item and was allowed to be imported only through State Trading Enterprises, as per the policy condition 5 of chapter 27. An after thought of the appellants cannot be allowed to help their cause. Reliance in this regard is placed on 1992 (9) T.M.I 111 (S.C) in Fine Chemical Suppliers to emphasize that when violation in relation to goods are accepted, penalties get attracted. Party had all the opportunity to seek re-test or even cross examination of Chemical analyst, if it found it to be erroneous, but it chose not to do the same. Having acquiesced with so termed erroneous report, it cannot now be allowed to resist it. Error, qui non resistitur. (An error not resisted is approved) will therefore, in any case apply in the facts and circumstances of the matter.

5.5 In view of the foregoing, and party having accepted the classification and the nature of goods without seeking any re-test of the sample, we find that the present appeal is devoid of merits both on classification issue as well as violation of ITC policy and penalties imposed. We therefore find no merits in the present appeal and uphold the order of Commissioner (Appeals).

6. Appeal is accordingly dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. 10063/2024

RAJU

DATE OF HEARING:06.11.2023DATE OF DECISION:05.01.2024

This appeal has been filed by M/s. Asia World Exports, against change in classification of goods imported by them.

2. Learned Counsel for the appellant argued that they imported “Glass Beads Chatons” and sought classification under Heading 70181020. The goodswere examined by Government approved valuer on 06.02.2014, and he certified the goods as “Glass Chatons” and described the goods as conical shaped stones resembling artificial diamonds without any piercing/ hole.

This according to the revenue was not confirming the definition of “Beads”, but appeared to be confirming to the “Chatons”. The Learned Counsel pointed outthat revenue sought to classify the goods not as beads but as chatons. The revenue was of the opinion that for anything to be classified as beads it has to be pierced. It was argued that while glass beads classifiable under Heading 70181020, the chatons are classifiable under heading 70181090 in thecategory “others”. Learned Counsel argued that Tribunal in the case of Art Beads Pvt Ltd had classified the said goods as beads. He argued that the saidorder was not changed by revenue and therefore is binding on revenue. He point out that in the said order the Tribunal had preferred to the HSN explanatory notes as well as letter F. No. 390/RTI/14-2011-JC dated 01.02.2011 of CBEC, wherein it was categorically stated that the said order ofthe Tribunal was accepted. Learned Counsel also relied on the decision of Supreme Court (2015) 321 ELT A202 (SC) in the case of M/s. VMB Impex - 2015 (321) ELT 522 (Tri.) was upheld. He pointed out that in the case of VMBImpex (Supra) reliance was placed in the decision of Tribunal in the case of Art Beads Pvt Ltd-2013 (292) ELT 472. In view of above learned Counsel sought relief.

3. Learned AR relied on the impugned order.

4. We have carefully considered the rival submissions. We find that theHeading 7018 of the Custom Tariff reads as follows:

7018	Glass beads, imitation pearls, imitation precious or semi-precious stones and similar glass smallware, and articles thereof other than imitation jewellery, glass eyes other than prosthetic articles; statuettes and other ornaments oflamp-worked glass, other than imitation jewellery; glass microspheres not exceeding 1 mm in diameter
7018 10	• Glass beads, imitation pearls, imitation precious or semi-precious stones and similar glass smallwares:	Kg.	10%	-
7018 10 10	---	Kg.	10%	-
7018 10 20	Bangles……	Kg.	10%	-
7018 10 90	…….	Kg.	10%	-
7018 20 00	---Beads. . . . . .
7018 90	---Other. . . . . .
	-Glass microspheres not exceeding 1 mm in diameter
7018 90 10	-Other:	Kg.	10%	-
7018 90 90	---Glass statues. . . . . .	Kg.	10%	-
	---Other.

4.1 It is noticed that the Sub-heading 70181020 covers only “Beads”. TheHSN explanatory notes to Heading 7018 described Glass Beads as follows:

> “(A) Glass beads (e.g., as used for necklaces, rosaries,imitation flowers, ornaments for graves, etc.; for decorating textile articles (trimmings, embroidery, etc.), handbags or the like; or for use as electrical insulators). These beads, whether or not coloured, are in the form of small pierced balls, more or less round in shape; they are obtained from tubes which are cut into sections of approximately equal length and diameter. The resulting small cylinders are then introduced, together with a mixture of powdery materials (charcoal, graphite, plaster, etc), into a metal drum revolvingover a furnace. Heat softens the glass cylinders and friction given them a more or less spherical shape, while the powderymaterial prevents them from adhering to one another.”

4.2 Thus, it is seen that the Harmonised System of Nomenclature (HSN) explanatory notes clearly describes Glass Beads “small pierced balls”. Therefore prima facie it is appears that the HSN explanatory notes clearly limits the definition of Beads only to those items which are pierced.

4.3 On the other hand the learned Counsel has relied on the decision of M/s.

VMB Impex which were upheld by Hon'ble Apex Court. It is noticed that the decision in the case of M/s. VMB Impex primarily relies on the decision of Tribunal in the case of M/s. Art Beads Pvt Ltd (Supra) and on the case of Starlite Corporation (supra). In the said decision there is no discussion whatsoever on the HSN notes. It would appear that the HSN note were not brought to the knowledge of the Tribunal and therefore could not come to theattention of Hon'ble Apex Court. The decision in the case of M/s. Starlite corporation (Bom.) reported under 1989 (39) ELT 538 (Bom.) was for a periodwhich was prior to introduction of the new Custom Tariff based on HSN notes.In the said decision reliance was placed on ISI specification to hold that piercing is not a necessary requirement for an items to be a beads. It would therefore appear that the facts in the case of M/s. Starlite were different in somuch as it was dealing with the different custom tariff, wherein no definition of beads was provided and therefore the definition of beads had to be imported from other sources.

4.4 In the case of M/s. Art Beads Pvt Ltd, the decision was based on the decision of Hon'ble Bombay High Court in the decision of M/s. StarliteCorporation. This decision also fails to take note of HSN explanatory notes.

- Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of M/s. Hewlett Packard India Sales Pvt Ltd-2023 (383) ELT 241 (SC) as observed as follows:

  "12. While it appears well settled that the HSN is to be normally takenas a safe guide for classifying goods under the First Schedule because it is based on an internationally recognized 'harmonized nomenclature [Collector of Central Excise, Shillong v. Wood Craft Products Limited - (1995) 3 SCC 454 = 1995 (77) E.L.T. 23 (S.C.)], a bare reading of theexplanatory note applicable to the sub-heading clearly lays out the factthat there is no mandatory condition for being operable without any external source of power. We are thus unable to agree with the Appellants that only ADPs with a built-in power source is necessarily required to be classified under 'Tariff Item 8471 30 10'. In other words,no element of 'functionality' is contemplated for the purpose of classifying the Concerned Goods as 'portable'."

- In the case of M/s. Theremax Ltd- 2022 (382) ELT 442

  6. The definition of a product given in the HSN should be givendue weightage in the classification of a product for the purposeof levying excise duty. This is because in the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Bill leading to enactment of CentralExcise Tariff Act, 1985, it was clearly stated that the pattern oftariff classification is broadly based on the system of classification derived from the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System (Harmonised System) with such contraction or modification thereto as are necessary, to fall within the scope of the levy ofCentral Excise duty. The tariff so suggested for the levy under the Indian Tariff Act is based on an internationally accepted nomenclature, in the formulation of which, all considerations, technical and legal, have been taken into account. This was done to reduce avoidable disputes on tariff classification. Besides, the tariff would be on the lines of the harmonized system. It was also borne in mind that the tariff on the lines ofthe harmonized system would bring about considerable alignment, between the Customs and Central Excise Tariffs, which in turn, would facilitate charging of additional customs duty on imports, equivalent of excise duty. It was therefore expressly stated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons thatthe Central Excise Tariff are based on the HSN and the internationally accepted nomenclature was as such taken into account, to reduce tariff classification disputes. Thus, it was suggested that a safe guide for classification is the internationally accepted nomenclature emerging from the HSN and in case of doubt, the HSN should be chosen advisory for ascertaining the true meaning of any expression used in the Tariff Act. In Wood Craft (supra), in the opinion written by Justice J.S. Verma, the following was pertinently opined in thiscontext:

> "12. … .. Accordingly, for resolving any dispute relating to tariff classification, a safe guide is the internationally accepted nomenclature emerging from the HSN. Thisbeing the expressly acknowledged basis of the structure of Central Excise Tariff in the Act and the tariff classification made therein, in case of any doubt the HSNis a safe guide for ascertaining the true meaning of any expression used in the Act. The ISI Glossary of Terms hasa different purpose and, therefore, the specific purpose oftariff classification for which the internationally accepted nomenclature in HSN has been adopted, for enacting theCentral Excise Tariff Act, 1985, must be preferred, in caseof any difference between the meaning of the expressiongiven in the HSN and the meaning of that term given in the Glossary of Terms of the ISI.
> 18. We are of the view that the Tribunal as well as the High Court fell into the error of overlooking the fact that the structure of the Central Excise Tariff is based on the internationally accepted nomenclature found in the HSN and, therefore, any dispute relating to tariff classificationmust, as far as possible, be resolved with reference to thenomenclature indicated by the HSN unless there be an express different intention indicated by the Central ExciseTariff Act, 1985 itself. The definition of a term in the ISI Glossary, which has a different purpose, cannot, in case of a conflict, override the clear indication of the meaning of an identical expression in the same context in the HSN.In the HSN, block board is included within the meaning ofthe expression "similar laminated wood" in the same context of classification of block board. Since the CentralExcise Tariff Act, 1985 is enacted on the basis and patternof the HSN, the same expression used in the Act must, asfar as practicable, be construed to have the meaning which is expressly given to it in the HSN when there is noindication in the Indian tariff of a different intention."

7. Commenting on the importance of taking guidance from HSN Classification and how a taxing statute should be construedin consonance with their commonly accepted meanings in the trade and popular sense, Justice Sanjiv Khanna in D.L. Steels (supra) also so correctly observed as follows :-

> "9. The Harmonised System of Nomenclatur[e9], developed by the World Customs Organisation, has been adopted in India by way of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975,though there are certain entries in the Schedules to this Act which have not been assigned HSN codes. The Harmonised System is governed by the International Convention on Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System, which was adopted in 1983, and enforcedin January, 1988. This multipurpose international product nomenclature harmonises description, classification, and coding of goods. While the primary objective of the HSN is to facilitate and aid trade, the Code is also extensively used by governments, international organisations, and the private sector for other diverse purposes like internal taxes, monitoring import tariffs, quota controls, rules of origin, transport statistics, freight tariffs, compilation of national accounts, and economic research and analysis. In the present times, given the widespread adoption of the Harmonised System by over 200 countries, it would be extremely difficult to deal with an international trade issue involving commodities, without adverting to the Harmonised System. The Code is the bedrock of custom controls and procedures. The HSN consists of over 5000 commodities groups, which are structured into 21 Sections and 97 Chapters, which are further divided into four and six digit sub-headings. Many custom administrations, like India, use an eight or more digit commodity coding system, with the first six digits being the HSN code.

10. Classification under the Harmonised System is done by placing the goods under the most apt and fitting sub- heading. This is done by choosing the appropriate Chapter, Heading, and sub-heading respectively. To facilitate interpretation and classification, each of the 97 Chapters in the HSN contain corresponding Chapter Notes, General Notes, and Explanatory Notes applicable to the Headings and sub-headings within that Chapter. In addition, there are six General Rules of Interpretationapplicable to the Harmonised System as a whole.

12. We would, at this stage, take on record the well- settled principle that words in a taxing statute must be construed in consonance with their commonly accepted meaning in the trade and their popular meaning. When aword is not explicitly defined, or there is ambiguity as to its meaning, it must be interpreted for the purpose of classification in the popular sense, which is the sense attributed to it by those people who are conversant with the subject matter that the statute is dealing with. This principle should commend to the authorities as it is a goodfiscal policy not to put people in doubt or quandary abouttheir tax liability. The common parlance test is an extension of the general principle of interpretation of statutes for deciphering the mind of the law-maker. However, the above rule is subject to certain exceptions, for example, when there is an artificial definition or special meaning attached to the word in a statute, then the ordinary sense approach would not be applicable."

From the above, it is apparent that the custom tariff itself was different whendecision of Tribunal in the case of M/s. Art Beads Pvt Ltd was given and the same was the condition when the decision of Hon'ble High Court of Bombay was given in the case of M/s Starlite Corporation. In both these cases the classification was not being examined under the new custom tariff and in boththese cases the explanatory notes given in HSN were not brought to the knowledge of the Courts. In these circumstances, the decisions given in the context of new custom tariff purely relying on the decision of Tribunal in the case of M/s. Art Beads Pvt ltd and that of Hon'ble High Court of Bombay in thecase of M/s. Starlite Corporation ignoring explanatory notes to the HSN on cannot be relied. In view of clear definition of beads provide in HSN, which isa most reliable guide for the purpose of classification under the custom tariff cannot be ignored. Thus, relying on the definition of the beads given in the HSN notes we hold that piercing is a necessary requirement for anything to be classified as beads. There is no disputes that the product imported byappellant is not pierced. Therefore, the same cannot be classified as beads.

5. In these circumstances, the appeal is dismissed.

Final Order No. 20869 /2023

Date of Hearing: 17.05.2023
Date of Decision: 23.08.2023

Per : R. BHAGYA DEVI

M/s. Ply Point, hereinafter referred, as the appellant is a proprietorship concern owned by Shri V. Habeeb Rahiman. They are engaged in the business of import and sale of items such as Medium Density Fibre (MDF) Boards and Particle Boards from Malaysia. On 20.04.2006, the office of DRI Cochin received information that the MDF boards that were imported by M/s. Ply Point were highly undervalued and there was large-scale evasion of customs duty. On investigation, the officers noticed that the actual supplier of the goods was M/s. V. R. Marketing SDN BHD from Malaysia and they located the under invoiced documents from the office of VR Marketing (M) SDN BHD at Egmore, Chennai which was operated by Shri Ramachandran, a Malaysiancitizen of India origin.

2. The officers of DRI located the relevant Bill of Entry No.176959 dated 19.04.2006 along with the commercial invoice for MDF boards where the value was shown as USD 10,888.10for the consignment imported in the containers. Accordingly, detailed investigations were conducted at Chennai VR marketing office. 15 consignments of MDF boards imported by M/s. PlyPoint from Green Panel Products (M) SDN BHD, Malaysia were taken up for detailed scrutiny. The godown of the importer at Cochin was searched and the officers seized 2169 numbers of MDF boards. Detailed investigations conducted by DRI; several incriminating documents were found and after recording statements from various individuals, notice was issued rejecting the declared value of the MDF boards in the above 15 consignments and for re-determination of the value at Rs.1,61,16,901/- (CIF) under Rule 4 of the Customs Valuation Rules, 1988 read with the Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962. Differential duty was demanded along with interest invokingprovisions for confiscation under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962, and penalty under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962.

3. The Commissioner vide impugned order dated 27.10.2009 redetermined the value of goods imported under the 15 bills of entry at Rs.1,61,16,901/- as against the declared value of Rs.61,01,811. Differential duty of Rs.35,49,849/- was confirmed; goods were confiscated; penalty of Rs.25,000/- and Rs.30,44,745/- on the appellant was imposed under Section112(a) and 114A of the Customs Act, 1962, respectively and penalty of and Rs.1,00,000/- was imposed on Shri Habeeb Rahiman under section 112 (a) of the Customs Act.

4. The learned counsel Shri Raghunath on behalf of the appellant submits that as per Invoice dated 10.03.2006, 10containers of Medium Density Fibre (MDF) Board "C" Grade was imported and cleared on 19.04.2006. On 20.04.2006, the officers of DRI, Kochi detained these goods – alleging that the MDF Boards were "highly undervalued" – without any physical verification and analysis. They claim that testing and analysis showed that the goods did not confirm to grade I or grade II. Itis submitted that on 21.04.2006, DRI searched the business place of V.R. Marketing at Chennai. During the course of investigation, statement of one Shri Sathyanarayana, Country Manager of V.R. Marketing was recorded where an Excel Sheet sent along with e-mail dt. 19.04.2006 by Rajeshwar Rao of V.R. Marketing was seized/recovered from the computer under a Mahazar, which according to department, showed name of the appellant with alleged details in respect of goods sent to them which contained details of several other traders also.

4.1 Further, the counsel stated that during investigation, statement of Shri Habeeb Rahiman was recorded on 05.05.2006 where he was questioned with reference to the Mahazar and the e-mail with the details in the attachment and was asked about the entries found in the Excel Statement admitted that the "ACT AMT" as noted in the e-mail dt. 19.04.2006 is the correct price and that he will "try to pay the customs duty on this price". This statement was immediately withdrawn by Shri Habeeb Rahiman on the ground that he wasthreatened, harassed and manhandled by DRI and the statement given was not voluntary.

4.2 The appellant also submits that during the course of adjudication proceedings, officers of DRI were cross-examined while the witnesses to the Mahazar could not be cross-examined since their whereabouts were not known and cross- examination of Shri Jacob Cherian, Appraiser who had conducted investigation could not be completed since he did not appear for further cross-examination nor did he produce certain material documents which he was directed to be produced – stating that he has been transferred to Mumbai. It is stated that the statement of Shri Sathyanarayana as well as an e-mail statement received in his e-mail ID from Principalsat Malaysia are inadmissible as he committed suicide and was unavailable for cross-examination. Referring to Section 32(2) of the Indian Evidence Act, they claim that Shri Sathyanarayana's statement was extracted from his memory. The statements show that all negotiations took place between the Malaysian Party and the Traders to which Shri Sathyanarayana was not a party and he merely stated that "Shri Rajeshwara Rao will negotiate the price and the terms regarding undervaluation and payments of declared amount and differential amounts with the customers".

4.3 With regard to the email recovered on 21.04.2006, they submit that the contents of email cannot be relied upon for thereason that the same does not contain any authentication by the officer who is alleged to have recovered the same but contains only the signature of Shri Sathyanarayana as well as two independent witnesses who could not be traced. Therefore, there is nothing to indicate that what is now used against the appellant was actually the one recovered from the computer as alleged.

4.4 The following are the basic submissions of the appellant:

a. Test report disclosed that the samples do not confirm to Grade I or Grade II and hence 'undervaluation' cannot be alleged;

b. The Statement of Shri Sathyanarayana was inadmissible since he had committed suicide and consequently, he was not available for cross examination.

c. That the Excel Sheet claimed to have been downloaded from the computer and seized under mahazar dated 21.04.2006 is liable to be rejected because all these attachments downloaded contained signature of Shri Sathyanarayana and two witnesses and did not containthe signature of officer who claimed to have downloaded the attachment and neither Shri Sathyanarayana nor the two independent witnesses have been made available for cross-examination,

d. The Statement of Shri Habeeb Rahiman was not to be used unless corroborated by other independent evidence, since the same was retracted and such statement hasbeen recorded without reference to the books of accounts.

5. The learned Authorised Representative of the Department reiterating the findings of the Commissioner stated that only after detailed investigations by the DRI, they could unearth materials evidencing under invoicing. He also submitted that though Shri Sathyanarayana was not cross- examined, his statements and records retrieved from his computer were corroborated with the statements by Mr. Habeeb Rahiman and others. Therefore, under-invoicing has been proved and hence, requested for dismissing the appeal ofthe appellant.

6. The first issue is that since the test report disclosed the samples which do not confirm to Grade I or Grade II, hence undervaluation cannot be alleged. In this regard, it can be clearly seen that the Commissioner in the impugned order has held that the notice did not allege undervaluation based on thequality of the MDF boards instead undervaluation was purely based on the evidences unearthed during the investigations.

7. The second issue is that Shri Sathyanarayana's statement is inadmissible as evidence since he had committed suicide and not available for cross-examination. Section 138B reads as follows:

Relevancy of statements under certain circumstances

(1) A statement made & signed by a person before any gazetted officer of customs during the course of any enquiry or proceeding under this act shall be relevant for the purpose of proving, in any prosecution for an offence under this Act, the truth of the facts which it contains-

(a) when the person who made the statement is dead or cannot be found, or is incapable of giving evidence, is kept out of wayby the adverse party, or whose presence cannot be obtained without an amount of delay or expense which, under the circumstances of the case, the court considers unreasonable; or

Section 32 of the Indian Evidence Act states as follows:

Cases in which statement of relevant fact by person who is dead or cannot be found, etc., is relevant. —

Statements, written or verbal, of relevant facts made by a person who is dead, or who cannot be found, or who has become incapable of giving evidence, or whose attendance cannot be procured without an amount of delay or expense which under the circumstances of the case appears to the Court unreasonable, are themselves relevant facts in thefollowing cases: —

(2) or is made in course of business.—When the statement was made by such person in the ordinary course of business, and in particular when it consists of any entry or memorandum made by him in books kept in the ordinary course of business, or in the discharge of professional duty;or of an acknowledgement written or signed by him of the receipt of money, goods, securities or property of any kind;or of a document used in commerce written or signed by him; or of the date of a letter or other document usually dated, written or signed by him.

7.1 From the above Sections, it is obvious that statements made and signed by the dead persons or who cannot be found remain valid and admissible as long as these statements are made in the course of business. Therefore, the Commissioner was right in stating that "Customs Officer is not a Police Officer - Statements made before him under Section 108 of Customs Act, 1962 are admissible in evidence and are not hit by Section 25 of Indian Evidence Act" as is held by the apex court in the case of Romesh Chandra Mehta Versus State of West Bengal - 1999 (110) E.L.T. 324 (S.C.) [CONSTITUTION BENCH] which is reiterated again by the Supreme Court in the case of Harbansingh Sardar Lenasingh Versus State of Maharashtra: 2004 (177) E.L.T. 13 (S.C.), where it was held that "The matter indeed is concluded by the decision of thisCourt in the case of Romesh Chandra Mehta v. State of West Bengal, (1969) 2 SCR 461, wherein it has been held that the statements recorded by an officer of Customs under the CustomsAct are admissible in evidence and are not hit by Section 25 of the Indian Evidence Act or Article 20(3) of the Constitution".

8. The next issue is whether these statements made by Shri Sathyanarayana was it done in the course of business and has it been corroborated with other statements and evidences on record. Though, we do not find any definition for the ordinary course of business; it is generally understood as the usual transactions, customs and practices of a business and of a company. It is an undisputed fact the appellant is in the business of import of MDF Boards. It is also a fact that Shri Sathyanarayana, the Country Manager of VR Marketing in India of the Malaysian supplier of the goods. It is also a fact that from the computer of Shri Sathyanarayana, certain documents which were inculpatory of the appellant was found. These documents indicated that the price was higher than the price quoted by the appellant at the time of import. An email was sent to ShriSathyanarayana by Shri Ramachandran (Rajesh), Managing Director of VR Marketing Co., which is corroborated by the statement given by Shri V. Habeeb Rahiman on 15.6.2006. The email and the documents recovered from Shri Sathyanarayana's computer categorically show the prices of the imported goods were different from what was quoted in the Bill of Entry and this fact was corroborated by Shri V. Habeeb Rahiman and these documents were found and seized from the office of M/s. V R Marketing at Chennai on 21.04.2006. Shri Sathyanarayana in hisstatement admitted under-invoicing of the goods supplied by a trading company in the name of Green Panel Products. Shri V. Habeeb Rahiman, Proprietor of Ply Point, his statement wasrecorded on various dates on 25.04.2006 and 5.5.2006. It is alsoseen that at a later date when the proprietor was issued summon and called for recording his statement, he filed ananticipatory Bail Application No.3396 of 2006 in the High Courtof Kerala and only on the direction of the Hon'ble High Court of Kerala dated 13.06.2006, he reported to the DRI officers on 15.6.2006 and here it says that the Hon'ble High Court of Kerala ordered to interrogate him and if found necessary to arrest him. Pursuant to this order, Shri V. Habeeb Rahiman reported before the DRI officers on 15.6.2006 along with his accountant Mr. M. V. Ahammed Nizar. The detailed statement of Shri Sathyanarayana which has been corroborated by Shri V. Habeeb Rahiman, theProprietor of Ply Point, cannot be held as non-admissible just because Shri Sathyanarayana was not there for cross- examination. In fact, all the records and the documents which were seized from the computer were cross verified with the proprietor which was once again admitted by Shri V. Habeeb Rahiman, hence, the authenticity of the documents cannot be questioned. The statements and the under-invoicing documents were also corroborated by other importers of MDF from Green Panel Products, Malaysia whose names figured in the attachmentof the incriminating email. It is also a fact that the other importers to whom show-cause notices were issued, approached the Settlement Commission Bench at Chennai. They admitted and paid the duty differences based on the incriminating email recovered from V R Marketing at Chennai and recovered under Mahazar dated 21.4.2006 as extracted below. The fact that the other importers accepted the incriminating email and under-invoicing documents, goes to prove the authenticity and correctness of all the documents recovered. In view of these corroborated evidences, it is seen that Shri Sathyanaraya's statement and the documents recovered from his computer (extracted below) are authentic, therefore, the Commissionerwas right in redetermining the value of the goods of 15 Bills of Entry as Rs.1,61,16,901/- [CIF] under Rule 4 of the Customs Valuation Rules, 1988 read with Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962. Accordingly, the differential duty of Rs.35,49,849/- demanded under proviso to Section 28(1) of the Customs Act, along with interest is also upheld.

Explained to Habeeb in Malayalam

9. Finally, it is claimed that statement made by Shri V. Habeeb Rahiman, statement recorded on 5.5.2006 was retracted on 11.5.2006. However, from the statement dated 15.6.2006 given by Shri V. Habeeb Rahiman after the retraction has categorically mentioned about the Chennai office of V R Marketing and their dealings with them as below:

"….. I have again, now seen all these documents signed by me and the Mahazar prepared on 21.4.06 at Chennai V. R. Marketing Office in the presence of witnesses and print-out copies of e-mails recovered as also the statement recorded from Sathyanarayana, Manager of Chennai Office of V. R. Marketing recorded on 21.4.06 under Sec. 108 of the Customs Act and once again these were read over and explained to me by my Accountant Ahamed Nizar. I have seen all the above documents and I am convinced."

10. Accordingly, it is very clear that these under invoiced documents were unearthed only after detailed investigation. Retraction is an "after thought" only to avoid and evade payment of duty.

Section 114A, which reads as under :-

"114A. Penalty for short-levy or non-levy of duty in certain cases.- Where the duty has not been levied or has not been short-levied or the interest has not been charged or paid or has been part paid or the duty or interest has been erroneously refunded by reason of collusion or any willful mis- statement or suppression of facts, the person who is liable to pay the duty of interest, as the case may be, as determined under sub-section (8) of section 28 shall, also be liable to pay a penalty equal to the duty or interest so determined:

Provided also that where any penalty has been levied under this section, no penalty shall be levied under section 112 or section 114.

The above penalty provisions clearly indicate that anywhere the duty has not been levied or has been short levied or the interest has not been charged or paid or has been part paid or the duty or interest has been erroneously refunded by reason of collusion or any wilful misstatement or suppression of facts, the person who is liable to pay the duty or interest, as the case may be, as determined under sub-section (8) of Section 28 shall, also be liable to pay penalty equal to the duty or interest so determined. Emphasis supplied.

In the present case the evidences unearthed and placed on record by the investigating officers clearly prove that the goods imported were under invoiced. The original invoices which were discovered during the search have shown that the price of the goods was much more than what was declared thus suppressing the actual value goods by colluding with the suppliers. Therefore as per the above penalty provisions when there is proof of suppression of facts which resulted in short levy they are liable for equal amount of penalty under section 114A. Moreover, the High Court of Karnataka in the Case of Commissioner of Customs, Mangalore Versus Tata Power Company Ltd. 2014 (306) E.L.T. 529 (Kar.) dated 29.1.2014 has held that:

"5. The Apex Court has held that imposition of penalty under the Act is not automatic. However, once the conditions which give rise to imposition of penalty exists then the penalty has to be imposed as prescribed under law. At that stage, no discretion is left to the Authorities in the matter of imposing penalty. The law provides that the penalty payable would be not less than equal to the duty payable. Further, the law provides, if the assessee pays the duty with interest within 30 days from the date of the order, then the penalty payable would be 25% of what is imposed. Therefore, the statute provides for the penalty payable and also reduced penalty payable. There is no discretion left either with the authorities or with the Tribunal or with this Court to reduce the penalty. However, the Tribunal, which had no jurisdiction, had proceeded to reduce the penalty from Rs. 59,77,432/- to Rs. 5,00,000/-. Whatever is the reason given by the Tribunal, it is not necessary for us to go into the said question because the question is, whether there is any jurisdiction left with the Tribunal to reduce the penalty. The law on the point is now well settled. Once the authorities decide to impose penalty, no discretion is left in the matter of imposing of penalty except as provided under law. Even the Tribunal also has not been vested with any power to reduce the penalty, which is imposed by the authority as prescribed under law, and therefore, the order passed by the Tribunal reducing the penalty is one without jurisdiction and, accordingly, it is hereby set aside. The substantial question of law is answered in favour of the Revenue Authorities and against the assessee". Therefore, penalty under Section 114A is upheld."

11. Based on the facts and circumstances discussed above, the goods are liable for confiscation and accordingly, the confiscation is upheld in all the 15 Bills of Entry. The High court of Kerala in the case Commissioner of Customs, Cochin vs. Office Devices: 2009 (240) E.L.T. 336 (Ker.) has held that 10% of the value as RF is reasonable and upheld the same, hence the redemption fine of Rs.2,00,000/- which is only 10% of the value is upheld. As per proviso to Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962, "provided also that where any penalty has been levied under this Section, no penalty shall be levied under Section 112 or Section 114." Accordingly, since penalty imposed under 114A is upheld, the penalty of Rs. 25,000/- on M/s. Ply Point under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act, 1962 is set aside.

12. In view of the above discussions, the appeal is disposed of in above terms.

(the importer) are engaged in the manufacture of uninterrupted power supply and inverters within the electronics hardware technology Park. The appellant imported used Enviro-tuff Liner (ETL) packing material classifying the product under 39232990. They claimed the benefit of Notification No. 52/2003 dated 01.03.2003. The Commissioner (A) in the impugned order held that the Enviro-tuff Liner (ETL) was neither used in the process of manufacture of the articles of exported goods nor it was used in connection with production or packing of exported goods.He observed that merely because the item is used for facilitating safe transportation of the export goods, it did not entitle the goods for the exemption as packing material as stipulated in the exemption Notification. The Commissioner (A) accordingly confirmed the demand of duty, redemption fine and penalty.

2. The Learned counsels Ms. Neetu James Ms. Shraddha Pandey,on behalf of the appellant submitted that the items to be exported are sophisticated electronic items containing circuitry which are highly susceptible to meet damage due to moisture and rainwater heat etc, hence, they had to ensure that the goods were transported with extra packing so that the goods are not damaged in transit. It is also submitted that Enviro-tuff Liner (ETL) is a fully woven liner which is hung into a general purposes ISO shipping container and allows for forklift loading and hand loading and slip sheet. Once loaded, it is completely sealed providing a closed off temperature and humidity-controlled environment for the goods inside, therefore, it is claimed that this being a packaging material the benefit of Notification should be extended.

3. On the other hand, the Authorised Representative on behalfof the Revenue submitted that the imported goods have nothing to do with the goods being exported and they are second-hand goods which necessarily have to be imported with necessary license as they are restricted items. He also relied on the judgement in the case of International Creative Foods Ltd. versus Commissioner of Customs (APPL.), Cochin: 1999 (105) E.L.T.92 (Tribunal) where under similar set of facts, the Tribunal held that the benefit of the Notification No.13/81-C.E. cannot be extended.

4. Heard both sides and perused the records. It is an admitted fact that the goods imported were used Enviro-tuff Liner (ETL) and on examination, it was found that it is a packing material to beused inside the 40 FT container to cover the goods inside the container. The question is whether these imported goods wereeligible for benefit of Notification No.52/2003 dated 31.03.2003. The relevant notification is reproduced below:

Notification No. 52/2003 – Customs

In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of section 25 of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962) (hereinafter referred to as thesaid Customs Act), the Central Government, being satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest so to do, hereby exempts,-

(a) all goods as specified in the Annexure -I to this notification, when imported or procured from a Public Warehouse or a Private Warehouse appointed or licensed, as the case may be, under section
57 or section 58 of the said Customs Act or from international exhibition held in India for the purposes of –

(i) manufacture of articles for export or for being used in connection with the production or packaging or job work for export of goods or services by export oriented undertaking (hereinafter referred to as the unit) other than those referred to in clauses (b), (c) and (e), or

ANNEXURE-I

1. Capital goods and spares and accessories thereof.

9. Consumables
10.Packaging materials

5. From the above Notification, it is amply clear that the items specified therein are meant for manufacture of articles for export orfor being used in connection with the production or packing of these goods for export by the EOUs. Admittedly, in this case, the imported goods are used as liners inside the container to ensure that the goods are safely transported. In similar circumstances, in the case of International Creative Foods Ltd. versus Commissioner of Customs, Cochin cited supra, the appellanthad imported refrigeration units to be mounted on trucks used for transport of raw materials. The Commissioner had held that the refrigeration trucks were mainly used for transportation and not for production or packing; therefore, the benefit of Notification No. 13/81-C.E. which was meant for material handling equipment was denied. The Tribunal observing that the refrigerated trucks were used for the transport of goods which was essential for transportingthe raw materials but that itself cannot be the reason to hold that the trucks have been used for production of the goods as envisagedin the Notification and accordingly, the benefit of the Notification was denied. In the case on hand, it is an admitted fact that theitem imported is used inside the container only for safetransportation and not for the production of exported goods. Moreover, the Notification does not allow any used items to be imported and therefore, the question of extending the benefit does not arise at all.

6. The items imported were also found to be used ETL Liners which are categorised as second-hand goods fall under the category of restricted items. As per Para 2.17 of the Foreign Trade Policy, all second-hand goods are restricted for import and byimporting used ETL liners, the importer had violated the provisions of Foreign Trade Policy thereby rendering the goods liable forconfiscation. In view of the above, the Commissioner (A) hadrightly confiscated the goods and imposed redemption fine and penalty. We, therefore, find no reasons to interfere with the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) and accordingly, we uphold the demand of duty of Rs.7,02,981/- along with interest.

7. In view of the various decisions of the High Courts observing that 10% redemption fine and 5% penalty are reasonable, wereduce the redemption fine from Rs.1,00,000/- to Rs.75,000/- (Rupees Seventy-five Thousand Only) under Section 125 of the Customs Act, 1962 and penalty from Rs.50,000/- to Rs.35,000/- (Rupees Thirty-five Thousand Only) under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act, 1962.

8. In the result, the duty demand along with interest is confirmed and redemption fine is reduced to Rs.75,000/- and penalty is reduced to Rs.35,000/-. The appeal is disposed of on above terms.

Final Order No. 20971/ 2023

Date of Hearing: 08/09/2023Date of Decision:08/09/2023

Per: Pullela Nageswara Rao

M/s Elite Green Pvt. Ltd., the appellant filed this appeal aggrieved by the impugned order of Commissioner (Appeals).

2. The facts in brief are that the appellant has imported high quality oats and cleared the goods against 25(twenty five) Billsof Entry, on payment inter alia of 4% Special Additional Duty (SAD) and filed 5(five) refund claims as per Notification No. 102/2007-Cus. dated 14.09.2007. The adjudicating authority sanctioned refund in respect of those bills of entry, where the 4% SAD was paid in cash and rejected the refund claims in case of other Bills of Entry, where the 4% SAD was paid through DEPB/Reward Scheme Scrips. The rejection of refund claim was based on the Circular 18/2013-Cus. dated 29.04.2013, wherein CBEC has extended the time limit for using the re-credited DEPB/Reward Scheme Scrips in case of 4% SAD up to 30.09.2013. The rejected refund claims in the said case are pertaining to the period after 30.09.2013.

3. The appellant in the grounds of appeal have submittedthat they have filed a representation to the Ministry of Finance and Directorate General of Foreign Trade (DGFT) and since therewas no response, they have filed a Writ Petition No. 7262/2016 before the Hon'ble High Court of Kerala with a prayer to stay theproceedings. They further submitted that Department ought to have awaited the outcome of the Writ proceedings before issuingthe impugned order. They further submitted that the adjudicating authority and the appellate authority failed to appreciate that as per Notification No. 102/2007-Cus. dated14.09.2007, 4% duty is collected as additional duty on import of goods and such amount collected from the importers has to be returned to the importer subject to production of evidence regarding payment of sales tax to the Customs authorities and there is no reason or justification to deny the benefit even after showing evidence regarding payment of sales tax. Further they have submitted that the adjudicating authority and the appellate authority have failed to appreciate the facts and that the office ofthe Commissioner of Customs is bound to issue public notice andstanding order for the guidance of trade and the Department andalso to inform the importers that they are not eligible to claim refund of duty paid through scrips. Further they have submitted that the original Bills of Entry, TR-6 challan, certificate from Chartered Accountant and sufficient documents to provepayment of sales tax and endorsement on each invoice to the effect that Special Additional Duty liability has not been passedto the ultimate buyer. In view of the above, the rejection of 4% SAD is unsustainable.

4. None appeared for the appellant despite the case having been adjourned on the last three occasions. Heard Shri Rajesh Sastry, Authorised Representative (AR) for the Revenue and he has submitted the copy of the judgement of the Hon'ble High Court of Kerela dated 25th July 2023 in Writ Petition(C) No.7262 of 2016, filed by the appellant.

5. I have considered the submissions of the appellant and thesubmissions of the learned AR and perused the records. In this case, I find that the adjudicating authority has rejected therefund claim of 4% SAD paid by the appellants on import of goods for the reason that the payment of 4% SAD was made through debit in the DEPB/Reward Scheme scrips. Board vide Circular No. 18/2013-Cus. dated 29.04.2013 have extended the time limit for using the re-credited DEPB scrips/Reward Scheme Scrips in case of payment of 4% SAD only up to 30.09.2013. TheCircular is a third Circular in the series of Circulars issued by CBEC on the same subject and Circular No. 18/2013-Cus. dated 29.04.2013 has clearly stated that the extension given for using the re-credited scrips is applicable only upto 30.09.2013. Furtherthe Circular was uploaded on the website of Ministry of Finance and DGFT. Hence the contention of the appellant that they are not aware of the Circular is untenable. In this case the Writ Petition No. 7262/2016, filed by the appellant before the Hon'bleHigh Court of Kerala was dismissed vide judgement dated 25th July 2023, which held as under:

"7. I find substance in the submissions of the learned Counsel for the respondents. Admittedly, when the petitioner has not paid the4% SAD in cash but in scrips despite CircularNo. 18/2013-Cus. dated 29/04/2013, he wasnot entitled to refund of 4% of SAD. I do notfind substance in the submission of the learned Counsel for the petitioner that the public notice was not issued regarding Circular No. 18/2013- Cus. dated 29/04/2013. If the said Circular was published on the official website of the DGFT, it amounts that the public notice was given about the Circular.

8. In view thereof, I find no merit and substance in the present writ petition, which is hereby dismissed. Interim order, if any, stands vacated."

6. In view of the above, the appeal is not maintainable and hence, dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. 20945-20946/2023

DATE OF HEARING: 19.05.2023DATE OF DECISION: 18.09.2023

PER: D. M. MISRA

These two appeals are filed against the Order-in-Original No. BLR-CUSTM-CITY-03-15-16 dated 17.07.2015 passed by the Commissioner of Customs, Bangalore City.

2. Briefly stated the facts of the case are that the appellant M/s Hikoki Power Tools India Pvt Ltd (formerly known as Hitachi KokiIndia Pvt Ltd) are the importer of brush cutters, grass cutters, grass trimmers etc. They have filed Bill of Entry No. 4388114 dated 18.01.2014 for clearance of 120 nos. of 'Brush Cutters' classifying thesame under CTH 8432 2990 claiming 'nil' rate of CVD. The goodswere later examined by the officers of SIIB in the presence of the Customs Broker and found that motors were packed in one box and the shafts were packed in another box separately. The 'user manual' retrieved from the box described the goods as 'grass trimmer/brush cutter'. Investigation was initiated on the classification of said products. After recording the statements, analyzing the catalogues etc., and on completion of said investigation, a show cause notice was issued to the appellants on 14.11.2014 alleging that the productsimported namely 'brush cutters' are classifiable under CTH 8467 8990 and not under CTH 8432 2990 as claimed in the respective Bill of Entry. The appellants accepted the said classification and discharged duty with interest amounting to Rs.49,72,134/- for the period from 18.01.2014 to 30.09.2014 under protest classifying the productsunder CTH 8467 8990. Further investigation revealed that similar goods were imported in the past by the appellants and consequently, demand notice was issued for the period from 18.11.2009 to 28.11.2013 demanding differential duty of Rs.93,37,120/- with interest and penalty with proposal for confiscation. Hence the preset appeals.

3.1 The Ld. Advocate for the Appellant submits that the goods imported were classifiable under CTH 8432 2990. She has submitted that CTH 8432 covers the products meant for the agricultural purposes. It is her contention that the imported goods are solely used for agricultural purposes and the same is evidenced by the approval/ test certificate issue by the Department of Agricultural Engineering, GKVK. She has submitted that essential character and functionality ofthe products are essential in order to determine the classification of the products. Further, she has submitted that the goods were sold tothe dealers on the product catalogue clearly state that the same are agricultural machinery. Hence, correct classification for the said products is under 8432 2990. At advanced alternative argument, the ld. Advocate submitted that the imported goods also be considered classifiable under CTH 8433 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 particularly, under CTH 8433 1190 of the CTA. She has submitted that CTH 8433 covers grass mowers, hay mowers and other machinery for cleaning and sorting. The entry for 8433 1190 specifically coves 'mowers powered with the cutting device rotating ina horizontal plane'. The imported goods being grass cutters/brush cutters have a rotating device at the end of the apparatus which is used for cutting the grass. She also submitted that the imported goods cannot be classified under CTH 8467 of CTA. It is here contention that the same tariff heading 8467 covers tools for working in hand which have self-contained electric or non-electric motor.Some of the goods covered under CTH 8467 are drills, hammers, saws etc. These products are tools used for general purposes and not specifically for agricultural purposes. She also submitted that the relevant HSN Explanatory Note to CTH 8467 refers to goods ormachinery in general used for trimming lawns and are not meant for agricultural purposes. Further, with regard to the manner of usage (worn on shoulder) and weight of the impugned goods, the same are not potable hand tools classifiable under CTH 8467, she has contended that CTH 8432 is more specific than CTH 8467 as the said entry refers to the machinery meant for agricultural purposes andthus the imported goods are not classifiable under CTH 8467. She further submitted that the appellants have paid the total amount of Rs.49,72,134/- prior to issuance of show cause notice and the sameis not disputed by the Department and in cases where the duty is paid with interest, then show cause notice should have not issued;also, in such cases, penalty is not imposable on the assessee.

3.2 She has further submitted that the show cause notice invoking extended period of limitation and confirmed by the Commissioner is not sustainable in-as-much-as the appellants have neither indulged inany suppression nor mis-declared the description of the imported goods with an intent to evade payment of duty. She has submitted that the appellants are importing the goods from November 2009 onwards classifying the same under CTH 84322990 of CTA,1975. Theappellants have been filing all the required documents such as bills ofentry, supplier invoices, packing lists etc. and they have not mis- declared the description of the imported goods in all the documents including bills of entry, which are correctly described as 'brush cutters' and the same have not been disputed by the Department.The imported goods have been duly examined and assessed by the Customs Officers and assessment orders have been passed accordingly. She has further submitted that extended period oflimitation cannot be invoked in cases wherein the goods have been assessed and the assessees have provided all the relevant documentsand materials during such assessment proceedings. In support, she referred the decisions in the cases of M/s Signet Chemical Pvt Ltd vs. CC, Mumbai – 2020 (10) TMI 289 – CESTAT MUMBAI and CCE & ST, Hyderabad vs. Sandor Medicaids Pvt Ltd – 2019 (367) ELT 486 (Tri. Hyd.). Further she has submitted that for claiming a wrong classification, extended period of limitation cannot be invoked. In thisregard, she placed the reliance on the decision of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Densons Pultretaknik vs. CCE – 2003 (155) ELT 211 (S.C.).

3.3 It is her contention that since the demand itself is not sustainable, imposition of penalty and interest also not sustainable. Further, she has submitted that personal penalty imposed on the co- Appellant is also not sustainable.

4. Per contra, the Learned A.R. for the Revenue reiterated the findings of the learned Commissioner. She submitted that as per the Explanatory Notes in CTH 8432 and 8433, one thing is clear that these two sub-headings cover 'machines' used in place of 'hand tools'for the mechanical purposes for the operations mentioned under the said Note. She also submitted that in the present case, the imported goods are not used as machinery but used as a hand tool, correctly classified under CTH 8467. Further, she submitted that on many occasions, the appellants have classified these grass cutters/ brush cutters under CTH 8467 and invoice of the overseas supplier also mentions the item 'brush cutters' under CTH 8467 8990. She has further submitted that the appellants without any valid reason changed the classification of brush cutters from CTH 8467 to CTH 8432 knowing fully well that the overseas supplier classified the sameunder CTH 8467. It is her contention that the change of classification was an act of mis-declaration with the intention to evade applicable CVD payable on such imports; therefore, the ld. Commissioner has rightly confirmed the demand for extended period of limitation. She has further submitted that the appellants on one hand, admit re- classification of the goods from January, 2014 to September, 2014 under CTH 8467 and claim that since they have discharged thedifferential duty, applicable duty under CTH 8467, they are now disputing the correct classification of the goods under CTH 8467.

5. Heard both sides and perused records.

6. The issues involved in the present appeals for determination are, whether: (i) the imported goods namely 'brush cutters' classifiable under CTH 8432 2990 or under CTH 8467 8990 of the Customs Tarriff Act, 1975; (ii) demand could be confirmed invoking extended period of limitation for the past period 18.11.2009 to 28.11.2013 and (iii) penalty imposable on the appellants.

7. The appellant in their reply dated 14/5/2015 before the Commissioner submitted that they are not contesting the classification of the product, brush cutter, on merit, but contested theinvoking of extended period of limitation. In the finding, the Commissioner recorded that the appellant has accepted the re- classification of the goods under CTH 8467 and the dispute is only for the demand invoking extended period. However, the Commissioner proceeded to discuss the classification on merit and also the demand for extended period. In the grounds of appeal, the appellant agitated the classification and during the course of argument the Advocate for the appellant also raised the issue on merit as well as on limitation.

8. Before analyzing the relevant entries in ascertaining the correctclassification of the imported goods viz. brush cutters, it is necessary to reproduce the competing entries of the Customs Tariff Act,1975 which is as under:

9. The claim of the appellants in the respective bills of entry isthat the declared product namely 'brush cutters' is classifiable under CTH 8432 2990 since this product is meant for agricultural purposes and cleared to the farmers. Its use for agricultural purposes has been supported by certificates issued by the University of AgricultralSciences, Bangalore.

10. In the alternative, the contention of the appellants is that if the said 'brush cutters' is not accepted to be classifiable under CTH 8432,the same could be classifiable under CTH 8433 relating to harvesting or threshing machinery etc.

11. Revenue's argument, on the other hand, is that CTH 8432 and 8433 cover only 'machinery' and not hand tools. The hand tools specifically covered under the scope of CTH 8467. In support, ld.

A.R. for the Revenue referred to the relevant HSN Explanatory Notes,which is reproduced as under:
"8.1 The Explanatory Notes to Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System (Fifth Edition, 2013) for CTH 8432 read as follows:

"The heading covers machines, whatever their modeof traction, used in place of hand tools*, for one or more of the following classes of agricultural, horticultural and forestry work, viz.:*

The machines of the heading may be hauled by an animal or by a vehicle (e.g. a tractor), or may bemounted on a vehicle (e.g. on a tractor or horse-drawn chassis). (In this context "tractor" includes "pedestrian controlled tractor") (emphasis supplied)

8.2 ---

8.3 As per Explanatory Notes, the goods covered underChapter 8433 are described as follows:

"The heading covers machines used in place of hand tools, for mechanical performance of the following operations:

The provisions of Explanatory Heading 84.32 apply,mutatis mutandis, to this heading, e.g., in respect of tractors fitted with harvesting, threshing, mowing or other interchangeable attachments, and in respect of motor rakes. (emphasis supplied)

The heading includes

(1) Lawn Mowers, whether worked by hand or motor driven. They may have a cutter bar like agriculture mower, rotary blades which cut the grass against a fixed horizontal blade, or rotating disc with knives on outer edge.
(2) Mowers (including Motor mowers) for cutting hay etc. They usually consist of a horizontal cutter bar and sections which cut by oscillating action of teeth between the fingers of cutter bar, or they may consistof rotating discs or drums with knives on outer edge.

(21) Machines for removing leaves from maize (corn) cabs; maize (corn) threshers.

However, this heading excludes portable machines for trimming lawns, cutting grass along walls, borders or under bushes, for example. Thes machines, which are composed of a self-contained internal combustion engine in a light frame or of an electric motor mounted on a metal handle and cutting device usually consisting of one or more thin nylon threads are classified in heading 8467. (emphasis supplied).

8.4.1 The Explanatory Notes to CTH 8467 are follows:

"This heading covers tools which incorporate an electricmotor, a compressed Air Motor (or compressed air operated piston), on internal combustion motor or any other motor (e.g. small hydraulic turbine)….

The heading covers such tools only if for working in hand. The expression 'tools for working in hand' means tools designed to be held in the hand during use, and also heavier tools (such as earth rammers) which are portable, that is, which can be lifted and moved byhand by the user, in particular while work is in progress, and which are also designed to be controlled and directed by hand during the operation. To obviate the fatigue of taking their full weight during operation they may be used with auxiliary supporting devices (e.g.

Tripods, Jacklegs, Overhead Lifting Tackle).However, certain tools for working in the hand of this heading have fittings permitting them to temporarily fixed to a support. They remained classified here, together with support if it is presented therewith, provided the tools are essentially "for working in hand" as defined above. Some of the tools covered by this heading may be fitted with auxiliary devices (e.g. ; a Fan Wheel and its dust bag to remove and collect dust during working)"

8.4.2 Further, the Explanatory Notes to CTH 8467 also specify the Tools covered under this heading and Sl.No. 18 & 19 of the list are reproduced below:-
"(18) Portable machine for trimming lawns, cutting grass in corners, along walls, borders or under bushes, for example. Such machine have a self-contained motorin light metal frame and a cutting device usually consisting of this nylon thread.

(19) Portable brush-cutters with a self-contained motor, a drive shaft (rigid or flexible) and a tool holder,presented together with various interchangeable cuttingtools for mounting in tool holder."

12. On a plain reading of the relevant Tariff Entry and said explanatory notes under CTH 8432/8433 and 8467, it is clear that theproducts mentioned under CTH 8432/8433 are referring to 'machineries'; 'hand tools' fall outside the scope of said entries;whereas hand tools explained in the explanatory note under CTH8467 at sr. no 18 & 19 includes 'brush cutters', hence the product in dispute would fall under CTH 8467. The use of the product for Agricultural purpose cannot be the criterion for determination of the appropriate classification. It is held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of M/s O.K. Play (India) Ltd vs CCE – 2005 (180) ELT 300 (SC) that use of an article as 'Toys' by children would not place in classification under 'Toys'. It has been held in a series of cases that the explanations for classification of particular product mentioned in the HSN cannot be brushed aside in determining the correct classification of a product. The Hon'ble Apex Court in CC, Bombay Vs.Business Forms Ltd. - 2002-TIOL-277-SC-CUS-LB held as below:
"These civil appeals arise on orders of the Customs, Excise and Gold (Control) Appellate Tribunal and they have to be allowed and the matters remanded for re-consideration by that Tribunal because, principally, the Tribunal has declined to place reliance upon the Explanatory Notes in the H.S.N. stating that, at best, these have onlypersuasive value.

2. This Court in Collector of Central Excise, Shillong v. Wood Craft Products Limited [1995 (77) E.L.T. 23] has said :

"We are of the view that the Tribunal as well as the High Court fellinto the error of overlooking the fact that the structure of the CentralExcise Tariff is based on the internationally accepted nomenclaturefound in the HSN and, therefore, be resolved with reference to thenomenclature indicated by the HSN unless there be an expressdifferent intention indicated by the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985itself. The definition of a term in the ISI Glossary, which has adifferent purpose, cannot, in case of a conflict, override the clearindication of the meaning of an identical expression in the same context in the HSN. In the HSN, block board is included within themeaning of the expression 'similar laminated wood' in the samecontext of classification of block board. Since the Central Excise TariffAct, 1985 is enacted on the basis and pattern of the HSN, the same expression used in the Act must, as far as practicable, be construedto have the meaning which is expressly given to it in the HSN whenthere is no indication in the Indian Tariff of a different intention." Clearly, therefore, the HSN Explanatory Notes are entitled to far greater consideration than the Tribunal has given there.

3. The Tribunal has also said that the Collector (Appeals) had not relied upon the HSN Explanatory Notes. That was clearly an oversight of the Tribunal because its order says, earlier, thus: "The Collector (Appeals) held that the photographic apparatus, as has been imported, for making printing blocks were excluded from Chapter Heading 84.38 vide

4. The civil appeals are, therefore, allowed. The orders under appealare set aside. The appeals before the Tribunal are restored to it for being heard and disposed of afresh. All contentions shall be available to the parties thereto."

Thus, the impugned goods in question i.e. 'brush cutters' is correctly classifiable under CTH 8467 8990 of CTA,1975.

13. The next issue for consideration is whether the extended periodof limitation can be invoked for demanding duty pertaining to past clearance of the imported 'brush cutters' for the period 18.11.2009 to28.11.2013. Resisting the confirmation of duty invoking extended period of limitation, the appellants have submitted that all the facts have been disclosed to the Department and the goods have been examined and assessed and thereafter, cleared by the Customs Department; they have enclosed examination report by the Customs Department in the appeal paper book (page 121 to 126). Hence, the allegation of suppression cannot be sustained. In their reply to the show cause notice, explaining the facts declaring classification of the similar goods in past under CTH 8467 8990, it has been submitted that since it was imported along with other products, therefore, the mistake could have occurred on their part in declaring the product brush cutter under CTH 8467. Further, they have stated that it is only in the case of imports from Singapore supplier, the classification of 'brush cutter' was mentioned in the invoice as CTH 84678900, which is nominal, whereas bulk quantity imported from Japan under CTH 84322990; hence, for uniformity they declared classificationunder CTH 84322990 and there was no intention to claim any wrong classification.

14. The Ld. Commissioner in the impugned order confirming the demand for extended period has observed that the description of the product in the relevant Bills of entry is declared as 'Engine Brush Cutter', or Brush Cutter, or Brush cutter (Engine). Further, he has held that from the explanatory notes, it is clear that these goods are portable tools or for working in hand, but nowhere in any of the documents, the appellant declared this vital information that theimported goods are portable tools for working in hand. Non disclosureof this vital fact during the self-assessment era, post 2011, resulted into suppression of fact. Further, he has observed that nondisclosure of these facts do not support the defence of the appellant that the goods were examined and examination reports produced.

15. We find that the differential duty of Rs.93,37,120/- has been demanded, as per annexure-1 to the show cause notice for the period18.11.2009 to 28.11.2013 for clearance of 6765 numbers of 'Engine Brush cutters' cleared against 116 Bills of Entry. The contention ofthe appellant is that they have placed all the necessary materials, including the catalogue of the said machines at the time of assessment. The goods were physically examined by the assessing officer and thereafter allowed to be cleared on payment of applicable duty. Since the goods were meant to be used for agricultural purposes, they classified it according to their understanding under CTH 84322990. We find that the appellant declared the description of the goods correctly all along during the said period. Also, the goods were examined and assessed by the Department. Once the catalogue has been submitted by the appellant during the course of assessment, therefore, it is the responsibility of the Department to ascertain from the catalogue and description its classification under the appropriate heading. This Tribunal has consistently held that oncethe description of the goods is correctly disclosed, wrong classificationof the said goods on the basis of description cannot be the basis for invoking extended period of limitation. Also, it has been held in a series of cases that merely because the goods are not classified correctly under the appropriate heading by an assessee even though all facts are disclosed to the Department, the allegation of misdeclaration or suppression of fact cannot be invoked for recovery of duty for the past period. In our view, it is not necessary for the appellant to disclose on the relevant bills of entry that the goods are meant to be used as portable hand tools; the basis of classification asper explanatory notes of HSN. The stray cases of classification of the imported goods in five bills of entry under CTH 84678900 by the appellant, in our view, cannot lead to the conclusion that in other billsof entry, the goods were declared under wrong heading knowinglyand to suppress the correct classification. The explanation furnished by the appellant that the mistake occurred when other goods of the same heading were imported along with the Brush cutters seems to be reasonable. Thus, invoking of extended period cannot be sustainedand hence the demand is barred by limitation. Consequently, the penalties on the Appellants not sustainable.

16. In the result, the impugned Order is modified to the extent of confirming classification of the impugned goods under CTH 84678990; confirming the demand and interest for the normal period and setting aside demand and interest for the extended period; also the penalty imposed on the Appellants is set aside.

17. Appeals are disposed off accordingly.

Date of Hearing: 05/07/2023Date of Decision: 08/09/2023

FINAL ORDER No. 20920 of 2023

Per R. BHAGYA DEVI:

Brief facts of the case are that the appellant, M/s. IBM India Pvt. Ltd., imported software "SPO" for 5691 XXX CATIA Hybrid Design vide Bill of Entry No. 276457 dated 27.11.2009 indicating the value of the software as US$ 21,49,953.610 as indicated in the overseas supplier's invoice No. CUM97711A dated 26.11.2009.This product was assessed by the group concerned on the basis of the declared value and the duty amounting to Rs. 84,64,975 was paid on 27.11.2009 and thereafter, the goods were cleared for home consumption. Later, the said imported software was sold to M/s. Tata Technologies Ltd. Pune vide invoice No. PCS020 dated 30.11.2009 in terms of the purchase order dated 25.11.2009. Theappellant then realised that they had erroneously declared value of imported software to be ₹10,27,30,275/- as against ₹1,91,24,415/- and filed an appeal to reassess their goods and seek refund of the excess duty paid by them. The Commissioner (Appeals) noted that the appellant being registered as an Accredited Client Programme (ACP) and the imports made by suchimporters are normally facilitated through Risk Management System (RMS); in other words, the goods were cleared without examination based on the transaction value declared in the Bill of Entry and there is no dispute that there was any irregularity in the assessment made at the time of import. The only defense of the appellant was that there was a clerical error committed by them where higher value was declared which resulted in excess payment of customs duty and hence, they sought to reopen the assessment and rectify a clerical error in terms of provisions of section 149 and 154 of the Customs Act 1962. The Commissioner (A) observed that section 149 allows amendment of a Bill of Entry after the clearance of the goods only on the basis of documentary evidences which were in existence at the time the goods were cleared for home consumption; while Section 154 deals with only clerical mistakes. He held that since, in this case, no such error was committed, Section 154 was ruled out and Section 149 could not be invoked by the appellant. Thus, in the absence of the goods which have already been cleared and specific identity of the goods not being available, the Revenue had no recourse route to read it in mind the intrinsic value of the software at a belated date. The Commissioner (A) also noted that the appellant had produced an amended purchase order dated 10.12.2009 amending the value ofthe imported software as USD 2,34,253.50 which was not inexistence at the time of import and did not indicate that the same is related to the transaction already completed. He also notes thatthough the supplier had indicated to the appellant that they wouldissue a credit note for the differential amount and there were no documents produced to show that the differential amount was credited and whether the transaction was finalised in their booksof accounts of both the supplier and the importer. Therefore, inthe absence of any verifiable means to determine the intrinsic value of the imported goods that were not available for examination, the request for reassessment of goods was rejected.

2. The learned counsel on behalf of the appellant submits that their quotation number dated 23.11.2009 given to M/s. Tata technologies Ltd. Pune quoted the correct price and on the basisof this quotation, they had placed the purchase order dated 25.11.2009 on IBM India and IBM India in turn placed a purchase order on "IBM USA" quoting an incorrect higher value on the basisof which the commercial invoice was issued by the supplier andn accordingly, excess duty was paid by the appellant at the time of import. It is stated that they realised their mistake and the appellant brought the same to the notice of the supplier and accordingly, the overseas supplier amended the purchase order. Since a Bill of Entry is an appealable order, they filed an appealfor reassessing the Bill of Entry. Since Section 149 allows for amendment of a Bill of Entry, they requested this Tribunal to consider the request to allow the amendment to the Bill of Entry so that they can claim refund of the excess duty paid by them. They also relied on following various judgements:

(i) PPN Power Generating Co. Pvt. Ltd. vs. CC, Trichy: 2016 (344) ELT 891 (Tri.-Chennai)

(ii) Steel Authority of India Ltd. vs. CC, Chennai: 2016 (343)ELT 602 (Tri.-Chennai)

3. The learned Authorised Representative on behalf of the Revenue reiterating the findings of the Commissioner (A) submits that since the goods were not examined at the time of import, thevalue was accepted by both the Department and the appellant,the question of reopening of the assessment does not arise. Moreover, the documents that were submitted before the Commissioner (A) were not available at the time of import but they happen to have revised the purchase order and revisedinvoice which was generated at a later period of time which cannotbe accepted as a transaction value for the said goods. Therefore, he submits that the goods that were not examined at the time of import cannot now be examined and hence, the question of revising the value based on the documents that were not availableat the time of import cannot allow either to amend the Bill of Entryor reassessment.

4. We have gone through the records of case carefully and findthat the facts that are undisputed:

a) Bill of Entry No. 276457 dated 27.11.2009 filed where goodswere declared as SPO for 5691 XXX CATIA Hybrid Design.

b) The goods imported by the appellant were not examined at the time of import as they were an ACP client. (Examination order placed below)

e) Amended Purchase Order No. G08659A dated 10.12.2009.

The goods were assessed and payment of duty was made and the goods were cleared for home consumption. Now, after clearance of the goods, the appellant claims that they paid excess duty not because there was an error either in the Bill of Entry or in the invoice but based on a revised purchase order and revised invoice generated at a later dated by the supplier on the request of the appellant. These documents were not in existent at the time of import and the claim of the appellant based on the quotation has no value in as much as a quotation is not a price which has been agreed upon. The purchase order and the commercial invoice for that purchase order are the legal documents in a commercial transaction. Moreover, the goods were not examined at the timeof import nor were made available to be examined at the time of their request to amend the value.

Section 154. Correction of clerical errors, etc. –

Clerical or arithmetical mistakes in any decision or order passed by the Central Government, the Board or any officer of customs under this Act, or errors arising thereinfrom any accidental slip or omission may, at any time, be corrected by the Central Government, the Board or such officer of customs or the successor in office of such officer, as the case may be.

In this case, Section 154 is not applicable in as much asthere is no clerical mistake committed in any of the invoices.

Section 149. Amendment of documents. - Save as otherwise provided in Sections 30 and 41, the proper officer may, in his discretion, authorise any document, after it has been presented in the custom house to be amended [1] [in such form and manner, within such time, subject to such restrictions and conditions, as may be prescribed]:

Provided that no amendment of a bill of entry or ashipping bill or bill of export shall be so authorised to be amended after the imported goods have been cleared for home consumption or deposited in a warehouse, or the export goods have been exported, except on the basis of documentary evidence which was in existence at the time the goods were cleared, deposited or exported, as the case may be.

(Emphasis supplied)

From the above provisions, it is abundantly clear that for invoking Section 149, relevant documents should have been in existence atthe time of import but in this case, obviously the invoice was revised based on the request of the appellant and the veracity of the genuineness of this invoice could not be verified since the goods were not examined at the time of import nor were availablefor examination.

5. We find that the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi in the case of

Terra Films Pvt. Ltd. vs. Commissioner of Customs: 2011

(268) E.L.T. 443 (Del.) held that:

"The facts leading to the filing of the present appeal need to be mentioned in brief. The appellant is a manufacturer of c-extruded multilayer film having their factory in specified area of Himachal Pradesh and availing exemption from customs duty. It exported commodities under 7 shipping bills during the period of September 2004 to April 2005. In the shipping bills, they had mentioned about the scheme under which exports were made as "DEPB/DEEC". The goods stood exported to the destination under this scheme. After a lapse of considerable period, the exporter/appellant vide its letter dated 27th January, 2006 followed by some more letters requested for permission to amend their DEEC/DEPB shipping bills into those DEEC/DEPB cum drawback scheme.

6. As per proviso of this Section 149, no amendment of a shipping bill was to be allowed after the export goods have been exported except on the basis of the documentary evidence, which was in existence at the time the goods were exported. The submission of the learned counsel for the appellant/exporter in this regard was that the exporter was in possession of all the documents at the time of export to show that it was entitled to claim under the DEPB/DECC cum drawback scheme. From the plain reading of Section 149, it may be seen that exporter could not claim amendment in routine and as a matter of right. The discretion vested in the Proper Officer to permit amendment in any document after the same has been presented in the Customs house. Though this discretion was to be exercised judiciously, but it was qualified with the proviso that the amendment could be allowed only if it was based on the documentary evidence in existence at the time the goods were exported. The Commissioner in the remand case has rightly observed that the present case in fact relates to the request for conversion of shipping bills from one export promotion scheme into another and was not merely of an amendment in the shipping bill. The request was made for conversion from one scheme to another after the lapse of long period of more than one year. It was a case of request for "conversion" and not of "amendment" inasmuch by converting from one scheme to another, it was not only addition of word 'cum' duty drawback, but change of entire status and character of the documents. Even if it was to be taken as a case of amendment, the proper officer may not be in possession of the documents sought to be amended after lapse of such a long period, particularly when the goods already stood exported. For enabling an exporter to draw the benefits of any scheme, not only physical verification of documents would be required, but as is noted by both the authorities below, the verification of the goods of export as also their examination by the Customs was necessarily required to be done. In the given factual circumstances, that was rightly held to be impossible. The Commissioner in the remand case rightly distinguished the cases cited on behalf of the exporter from the facts of the present. The finding of fact as arrived at by the Commissioner has been rightly upheld by the CESTAT.

7. We do not see any perversity or illegality in the discretion exercised by the Commissioner in rejecting the request of the exporter of conversion/amendment from one scheme to the other after a lapse of more than one year. There is no reason to interfere in the findings of the fact arrived at by the CESTAT. Since, there is no question of law involved, the appeal is dismissed. No orders as to costs. Ordered accordingly."

(Emphasis supplied)

6. The Hon'ble High Court of Madras in the case of Commr. ofCus. (Seaport-Export), Chennai Vs. Suzlon Energy Ltd. 2013 (293) E.L.T. 3 (Mad.) held that:

"18. A similar issue was considered by the Division Bench of Delhi High Court in the matter of M/s. Terra Films Pvt. Ltd. v. Commissioner of Customs [2011 (268) E.L.T. 443 (Del.)]. In the above decision, the Delhi High Court has considered the scope of Section 149 of Customs Act and found that the discretion vested in the Proper Officer to permit amendment in any document after the same has been presented in the Customs house has to be though exercised judicially, it was qualified with the proviso that the amendment could be allowed only if it was based on the documentary evidence in existence at the time the goods were exported. It is further observed therein that the request was made for conversion from one Scheme to another is a case of request for conversion and not of an amendment inasmuch as by converting from one Scheme to another, it was not only addition of certain word, but change of entire status and character of the documents. Thus, the Delhi High Court observed that the Proper Officer may not be in a possession of the documents sought to be amended particularly, when the goods already stood exported. For enabling an exporter to draw the benefits of any scheme, not only physical verification of documents would be required, but also verification of the goods of export and their examination by the Customs was necessarily required to be done. By observing so, the Delhi High Court upheld the rejection of the request of the exporter seeking for conversion of the Shipping Bill from one Scheme to another.

19. We are in full agreement with the reasonings given by the Delhi High Court in the above said case and by following the said decision [2011 (268) E.L.T. 443 (Del.)], we find that the 1st Respondent's claim seeking conversion is not maintainable and the same has been rightly rejected by the Commissioner of Customs. The Tribunal has not gone into any of these aspect in detail, even though it happens to be a final fact finding authority. It has simply allowed the conversion by resorting to the provision under Section 149 of Customs Act as if, it is a simple request for amendment. Therefore, we find that the order passed by the Tribunal cannot be sustained and accordingly, the same is set aside and the appeal filed by the Department is allowed. The questions of law raised in the appeal are answered in favour of the Department. No costs.

7. The High Court of Gujarat in the case of Anil Sharma Versus Union of India 2017 (350) E.L.T. 332 (Guj.) held that:

"6. Heard the learned advocates for the respective parties at length. At the outset, it is required to be noted that it is the case of the petitioner that though they imported the goods under the shipping bill under the Advance Authorization Scheme, through oversight and by mistake it was punched as duty drawback. Therefore, it is the case on behalf of thepetitioner that subsequently when they requested to amend the bill of entry, the case would fall under Section 149 of the Customs Act, which does not provide any limitation to make application to amend the shipping bill and therefore, the authorities are not justified in rejecting the application on the ground that the same is not within the period of three months, relying upon Board Circular No. 36 of 2010. Identical question came to be considered by the Division Bench of the Madras High Court in the case of Suzlon Energy Ltd. (supra). Relying upon considering the decision of the Division Bench of theDelhi High Court in the case of Terra Films Pvt. Ltd. (supra), Madras High Court has held that such goods would not fall under Section 149 of the Customs Act, but shall be governedby Board Circular No. 36 of 2010. In the case of Terra Films Pvt. Ltd. (supra), the Delhi High Court has considered the scope of Section 149 of the Customs Act and found that discretion vested in the proper officer to permit the amendment in any document after same has been presented in the Custom House has to be though exercised judiciouslybut it was qualified with the proviso that the amendment couldbe allowed only if it was based on the documentary evidence inexistence at the time the goods were exported. In the said decision, it is further observed that the request made for conversion from one scheme to another scheme is a case of request for conversion and not of amendment inasmuch as by converting from one scheme to another scheme, it was notonly addition of word "cum" duty drawback but change entire status and character of the document. The Delhi High Court has thereafter observed that proper officer may not be in possession of the documents sought to be amended after lapse of such a long period when the goods already stood exported. For enabling an exporter to draw the benefits of any scheme, not only physical verification of the documents would be required but also verification of the goods ofexport as also their examination by the Customs was necessarily required to be done.

6.1 Thus, the request of the petitioner which has been rejected by the respondent cannot be said to be a mere amendment in the shipping bill as contemplated under Section 149 of the Customs Act, but it will be case of conversion of one scheme to another scheme, for which, proper officer is required to verify whether the very manufactured final product which has been manufactured from the raw material has been exported or not.

7. The contention on behalf of the petitioner that as the case would fall under Section 149 of the Customs Act which doesnot prescribe any time limit and therefore, on the basis of material on record, which was available at the time of export, itcould have been verified whether final goods manufactured from the raw material imported has been exported or not, can be verified is concerned, as such, as observed herein above Section 149 of the Customs Act will not be applicable. Even otherwise, it is required to be noted that what is considered at the time of DEEC, the appropriate inquiry would be limited to the extent to satisfy the authority whether raw material which was imported has been used in manufacturing final product or not. So far as Advance Authorization Scheme is concerned, the appropriate authority is required to consider after holding appropriate inquiry that the raw material which was imported has only been used in the manufacture of final product and that final product has been actually exported.

Based on the above decisions of the Hon'ble High courts it is clearly evident for any amendment under section 149 the proviso needs to be strictly interpreted and any amendment cannot be claimed in a routine manner and as a matter of right. The discretion vested in the Proper Officer to permit amendment in any document after the same has been presented in the Customs house. Though this discretion was to be exercised judiciously, but it was qualified with the proviso that the amendment could be allowed only if it was based on the documentary evidence in existence at the time the goods were exported. It also held that for enabling the appellant the benefits of any amendment not only physical verification of the documents would be required but also verification of the goods and also their examination by the Customs was necessarily required to be done. Based on these observations the request for amendment was rejected.

Keeping the above observations of the judiciary let's examine as to how they are relevant for the present case where the issue is in relation to the amendment of value of the imported goods. In the present case the documents produced for amendment of the value were never before the assessing authority at the time of clearance and they were admittedly revised purchase order and revised commercial invoice. Secondly since the appellant is an ACP client the goods were not examined at the time of import. Therefore, the criteria laid down as held by the above decisions evident that it is clear that for any amendment under section 149 the proviso needs to be strictly interpreted and any amendment cannot be claimed in a routine manner and as a matter of right and the discretion is vested in the Proper officer to permit amendment in any document and the discretion was to be exercised judiciously. The proviso to section 149 allowed the amendment only if it was based on the documentary evidence in existence at the time the goods were imported/exported and to enable any benefits of any amendment not only physical verification of the documents would be required but also verification of the goods necessarily required to be done. In the present case these conditions were not satisfied and hence rejected.

8. The Supreme Court in the case of Escorts Limited Versus Union of India, 1998 (97) E.L.T. 211 (S.C.) observed that "it may be noticed that the Act does not prescribe any particular formin which the order of assessment is to be made. In the verynature of things, no formal order of assessment can be expected when there is no dispute as to the classification or the rate of duty, no formal order can be expected in such a case, it is more like `across-the-counter' affair. …… The bill of entry presented by the appellant was signed, signifying approval by the assessing officer. That itself is an order of assessment in such a situation.We are, therefore, not prepared to agree that there is no order of assessment in this case, and therefore, the limitation prescribed inSection 27 did not begin to run. Section 27 is emphatic in language. It says that an application for refund of duty shall be made before the expiry of six months from the date on which the duty was paid. In the face of this provision, the authorities under the Act, including the Government of India, had no option but to dismiss the appellant's application."

9. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Eicher TractorsLtd. versus Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai, 2000 (122) E.L.T. 321 (S.C.) dated on 14-11-2000 observed that:

"6. Under the Act customs duty is chargeable on goods. According to Section 14(1) of the Act, the assessment of duty is to be made on the Value of the goods. The value may be fixed by the Central Government under Section 14(2). Where the value is not so fixed the value has to be determined under Section 14(1). The value, according to Section 14(1), shall be deemed to be the price at which such or like goods are ordinarily sold, or offered for sale, for delivery at the time and place of importation - in the course of international trade. The word 'ordinarily' necessarily implies the exclusion of "extraordinary" or "special" circumstances. This is clarified by the lastphrase in Section 14 which describes an "ordinary" saleas one "where the seller or the buyer have no interest in the business of each other and the price is the sole consideration for the sale.....". Subject to these threeconditions laid down in Section 14(1) of time, place and absence of special circumstances, the price of imported goods is to be determined under Section 14(1A) in accordance with the rules framed in this behalf.

7. The rules which have been framed are the Customs, Valuation (Determination of Price of Imported Goods)Rules, 1988. Under Rule 3(i) "the value of imported goods shall be the transaction value". "Transaction value"' has been defined in Rule 2(f) as meaning the value determined in accordance with Rule 4. Rule 4(1) in turn states "The transaction value of imported goods shall be the price actually paid or payable for the goods when sold for export to India, adjusted in accordance with the provisions of Rule 9 of these rules."

8. Reading Rule 3(i) and Rule 4(1) together, it is clear that a mandate has been cast on the authorities to accept the price actually paid or payable for the goods in respect of the goods under assessment as the transaction value. But the mandate is not invariable and is subject to certain exceptions specified in Rule 4(2) namely:

(a) there are no restrictions as to the disposition or use of the goods by the buyer other than restrictions which -
(i) are imposed or required by law or by the publicauthorities in India; or
(ii) limit the geographical area in which the goodsmay be resold; or
(iii) do not substantially affect the value of the goods;

(b) the sale or price is not subject to same conditionor consideration for which a value cannot be determinedin respect of the goods being valued;

(c) no part of the proceeds of any subsequent resale, disposal or use of the goods

by the buyer will accrue directly or indirectly to the seller, unless an appropriate adjustment can be made in accordance with the provisions of Rule 9 of these rules; and

(d) the buyer and seller are not related, or where the buyer and seller are related, that transaction value is acceptable for customs purposes under the provisions of sub-rule (3)."

9. These exceptions are in expansion and explicatory of the special circumstances in Section 14(1) quoted earlier. It follows that unless the price actually paid for the particular transaction falls within the exceptions, the Customs authorities are bound to assess the duty on the transaction value.

12. Rule 4(1) speaks of the transaction value. Utilisation of the definite article indicates that what should be accepted as the value for the purpose of assessment to customs duty is the price actually paid for the particular transaction, unless of course the price is unacceptable for the reasons set out in Rule 4(2). "Payable" in the context of the language of Rule 4(1) must, therefore, be read as referring to "the particular transaction" and payability in respect of the transaction envisages a situation where payment of price may be deferred.

If the phrase 'the transaction value' used in Rule 4 were not limited to the particular transaction then the other Rules which refer to other transactions and data would become redundant.

14. It is only when the transaction value under Rule 4 is rejected, then under Rule 3(ii) the value shall be determined by proceeding sequentially through Rules 5 to 8 of the Rules. Conversely if the transaction value can be determined under Rule 4(1) and does not fall under any of the exceptions in Rule 4(2), there is no question of determining the value under the subsequent Rules".

(Emphasis supplied)

10. The Supreme Court in the case of India Century Metal Recycling Pvt. Ltd. vs. Union of India 2019 (367) E.L.T. 3 dated on 17-5-2019 held that:

"9. As per Section 14(1) of the Act, value of the imported goods shall be the transactional value of such goods, which means the price actually paid or payable for the goods when sold for export to India where the buyers and sellers are not related and the price fixed is the sole consideration for sale. As per the first proviso to Section 14(1) of the Act, the transactional value for the purpose of Customs duty would include amounts paid or payable as costs and services like commission, brokerage, engineering, design work, cost of transportation, etc., as may be specified in the rules made in this behalf. These amounts are to be added to the declared transactional value. Accordingly, in terms of Rule 10 of the 2007 Rules, the value and price of costs and services are added to the price actually paid or payable for the imported goods for determining the transaction value.

15. The requirements of Rule 12, therefore, can besummarised as under:

(a) The proper officer should have reasonable doubt as to thetransactional value on account of truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to the imported goods.

(b) Proper officer must ask the importer of such goods further information which may include documents or evidence;

(c) On receiving such information or in the absence of response from the importer, the proper officer has to apply his mind and decide whether or not reasonable doubt as to the truth or accuracy of the value so declared persists.

(d) When the proper officer does not have reasonable doubt, the goods are cleared on the declared value.

(e) When the doubt persists, sub-rule (1) to Rule 3 is not applicable and transaction value is determined in termsof Rules 4 to 9 of the 2007 Rules.

(f) The proper officer can raise doubts as to the truth or accuracy of the declared value on 'certain reasons' which could include the grounds specified in clauses (a) to (f) in clause (iii) of the Explanation.

(g) The proper officer, on a request made by the importer, has to furnish and intimate to the importer in writing the grounds for doubting the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to the imported goods. Thus, the proper officer has to record reasons in writing which haveto be communicated when requested.

(h) The importer has to be given opportunity of hearingbefore the proper officer finally decides the transactional value in terms of Rules 4 to 9 of the 2007 Rules.

11. In view of the above observations of the apex court, the changes to be brought about in valuation of goods is not just a simplicitor amendment, Section 14 of the Customs Act along with the Customs Valuation Rules clearly laid down the procedure for any assessment under this Specialized Act. Once an assessment isdone, only on appeal, reassessment is possible and anydemand/refund on account of reassessment on account of valuation or for any other reason has to be within the frameworkof laws as laid down under Section 28/27 of the Customs Act, 1962. Therefore Section 149 amendments cannot be read in isolation making these sections with regard to classification or valuation redundant. Reassessment of any assessment cannot be equated with an amendment under Section 149. The legislature, in the interest of justice, has not laid down any time limit under Section 149, does not take away the fact that any changes in valuation should not be in tandem with the laws laid down for refund or demand or else there will be no end for amendments which will result in utter chaos and de-stabilize the entire gamut of the Customs Act, 1962.

12. In the present case, first of all, no documents existed at the time of assessment and the documents produced for amendment were not available at the time of assessment, these surfaced at much later date. The goods were not examined and the invoice produced by the appellant at the time of import had no factual errors and therefore to change the value of the imported goods based on an amended purchase order and revised invoice will not be a simplicitor amendment envisaged under Section 149. Moreover, the Commissioner (A) has clearly observed that there isno evidence to indicate that this revised purchase order and the revised invoice related to the transaction already completed. He also notes that "the amended purchase order dated 10.12.2009, inter alia continue to indicate the date required delivery as 10.12.2009, payment to be made within 30 days documents to besent as soon as shipment is sent etc;" which clearly shows thatthe revised documents cannot be related to the imported goods which have already been cleared for home consumption. Further, it is also observed that the supplier had indicated that on 11.01.2010 credit note would be issued for the differential amount and no evidence is produced till date. There are no evidences produced till date with regard to the revised transactions as to how the differential amounts reflect in the books of accounts of the supplier as well as the appellant. In view of the above, the question of considering change in value as mere amendment as per Section 14 read with Section 149 is ruled out. Therefore, the Commissioner (A) was right in rejecting these changes and in disallowing reassessment of the imported goods.

13. In view of our observations above, the appeal is rejected.

Final Order No. 21337 /2023

Date of Hearing: 04.12.2023
Date of Decision: 04.12.2023

Per : D.M. MISRA,

This appeal is filed against Order-in-Appeal No.90/2012 dated 30.05.2012 passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals), Bangalore.

2. Briefly stated the facts of the case are that the appellant had filed Bill of Entry No.860886 dated 19.9.2008 declaring goods as inverter unit – frequency converter classifying thesame under CTH 9032 9000 and claiming concessional rate of duty. The Department has reclassified the product under CTH 8504 4010 as 'inverter'. Aggrieved by the said assessment, they filed appeal before the learned Commissioner (A), who in turn upheld the order of the adjudicating authority and rejected their appeals. Hence, the present appeals.

3. At the outset, the learned Authorised Representative forthe Revenue submits that on similar issues for subsequent period, this Tribunal had already decided the appeals filed by the appellant classifying the product under CTH 8504 4010 as against claimed classification of CTH 9032 9000. Therefore, the present appeal be decided accordingly.

4. Learned advocate for the appellant does not dispute the said facts.

5. Heard both sides and perused the records. We find that theissue has already been considered by this Tribunal taking note ofthe various aspects on the issue and precedent. After analysing the submissions from both sides, this Bench vide Final Order No. 21151 – 21152/2023 dated 20.10.2023 has held as follows:

"21. The reliance placed on by the learned counsel on note 1(m) of Section XVI which states this Section does not cover articles of Chapter 90 is totally misplaced as seen from the chapter notes and the explanatory notes supra. The learned counsel has also relied on the explanatory notes where it states "automatic voltage regulators are classified in heading 90.32,conveniently ignoring the HSN explanatory notes under Chapter 8504". As discussed above, the items imported are not automotive regulators but frequencyinverters and going by the Technical Literature provided by the appellant, they are rightly classifiable under Chapter 85.04. The reliance placed on Koneelevators by the appellant does not support the case of the appellant in as much as the product there was being classified under 8504 based on the expert opinions which was not rebutted by the revenue.

6. The learned Authorised Representative has rightly relied on the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Larsen & Toubro Ltd. V. Commissioner of Central Excise Mumbai 2005 (189) ELT 439 (Tri- Mumbai) wherein the similar products under dispute,the Tribunal upheld the classification under 8504 as against the classification under 8537 as claimed by the Revenue. The facts of the case are that the static converters manufactured by the appellant where the primary function of the subject goods was to convert electrical energy in order to adopt it for further use namely direct current - alternating current - direct current or alternating current - alternating current.The subject goods technically known as 'frequency inventors, convertors for speed control of D.C. Motors,Chopper Controllers, A.C. Regulators'. The dispute involved in the present case relates to the classification of the said "static convertors" manufactured by the appellants. The appellants claimed the classification ofthe said products under Chapter subheading 85.04 of the Tariff Act and cleared the products at appropriate rate of duty accordingly. By the order impugned in this appeal, the Commissioner (A) classified the said products as "'Panels'' under Chapter Heading 85.37 ofthe Tariff Act. But based on the primary function of the product, the Tribunal found classification under 8504 to be appropriate.

7. In the case of Pioma Chemicals v.Commissioner of Customs, Nhava Sheva-I: 2019 (370) ELT 301 (Tri-Mumbai) held that:

"In our view all the published literature support the findings recorded by the Commissioner in the impugned order to the effect that the goods imported are nothing but re-esterified fat/oil. On going through the published literature referred above, and also the fact that as per the rulings relied from US Customs and Kenya Customs we do not find any error in the classification of the goods determined under Chapter 1516 20 91. It is true that the Rulings of the US Customs and Kenya Customs may not be binding but definitely have great persuasive value as the Classification Code followed by all these countries, are based on, which the classification system adopted by Indian Customs is also aligned. It is only beyond six-digit level that local jurisdictions have their own expansions."

8. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of India in the caseof Thermax Ltd. Versus Commissioner of Central Excise, Pune-I: 2022 (382) E.L.T. 442 (S.C.) datedon 13-10-2022 the Supreme Court held that:

"6. The definition of a product given in the HSN should be given due weightage in the classification of a product for the purpose oflevying excise duty. This is because in the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Bill leading to enactment of Central Excise TariffAct, 1985, it was clearly stated that the pattern of tariff classification is broadly based on the system of classification derived from the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System (Harmonised System) with such contraction or modification thereto as are necessary, to fall within the scope of the levy of Central Excise duty. The tariff so suggested for the levy under the Indian Tariff Act is based on an internationally accepted nomenclature, in the formulation of which, all considerations, technical and legal, have been taken into account. This was done to reduce avoidable disputes on tariff classification. Besides, the tariff would be on the lines of the harmonized system. It was also borne in mind that the tariff on the lines of the harmonized system would bring about considerable alignment, between the Customs and Central Excise Tariffs, whichin turn, would facilitate charging of additional customs duty on imports, equivalent of excise duty. It was therefore expressly stated in theStatement of Objects and Reasons that the Central Excise Tariff are based on the HSN and the internationally accepted nomenclature was as such taken into account, to reduce tariff classification disputes..... ".

In view of the above, the decision of the WCO cannot be ignored and also the fact that the suppliers invoice classified theproduct under Chapter Heading 8504.

9. Therefore, based on our above observations and the various decisions as discussed above, we find that the goods are rightly classifiable under Chapter Heading 8504 as against the classification under Chapter Heading 9032 as claimed by the appellant.

10. We do not find any reason in not following the said orderof the Tribunal. Consequently, the product in question merits classification under CTH 8504 instead of CTH 9032 as claimed bythe appellant. Consequently, the appeal is dismissed.
(Order dictated and pronounced in Open Court.)

Date of Hearing: 24.07.2023 Date of Decision: 20.10.2023

FINAL ORDER No. 21155 of 2023

Per R. BHAGYA DEVI:

M/s. Kronos System India Private Limited, Bangalore, the respondent had imported '553 series for 4500 Full A/N Prox. Exp Memory'. The importers had claimed that this item was to be part of computer and accordingly classified items under Chapter Heading 8473 3020 as part of the computers. On examining the samples, the operation manual and the catalogue of the goods, it was found that the item imported was described as data collection device. There are known as kronos 4500 Touch ID terminal chips with an integrated badge reader. It has integrated bar code reader, integrated proximity reader and integrated magnetic reader. When an employee swipes his card in the card reader slot or enters his pin through the alphanumeric keys, the machine identifies the employee and marks his attendance and exit. The data so collected is rooted to a central server which is further processed. Based on the above description and referring to Chapter Note 5(E) to Chapter 84, those in authority states that the data collection device functions like a badge reader which works in conjunction with a central server and such proximity such badge readers are rightly classifiable under chapter heading 8543 7099.

2. The appellate authority in the impugned order after analysing the Chapter Headings of 8543 and 8471 states that 8543 is meant for "Electrical machines and apparatus having individual functions". From the description of the product catalogue submitted by the respondent, the same does not fall in this category. The product under import has a Central Processing Unit (CPU) runtime memory, storage memory, operating system and application software. As is the case with automatic data processing machine unit under import has the ability to accept and process data locally. The installation guides submitted by the respondent confirms the above statement and items under import prescribed to Chapter Note under Chapter Heading 84. He further submits that "I am of the opinion that this classification is more appropriate as it has functions of an automatic data processing machine and is a standalone function. I accept the contention of the appellants that the 4500 Terminal is not itself a badge reader, but rather includes one as one of the several possible input devices." Accordingly, he classifies the imported item under Chapter Heading 8471 4190 by setting aside original authority's classification under Chapter Heading 8543. Aggrieved by this impugned order, Revenue is appeal before us.

3. The grounds on which the appeal is filed by the Revenue is that the Commissioner (Appeals) had ignored the findings of the original authority that the item was not a data processing machine or any part or accessory of the same even though the product is a CPU keyboard and display. Since item imported only collect the data as and when the card is swiped and pin is entered but does not process the data, it cannot be construed as an automatic data processing machine and hence, are rightly classifiable under chapter 8543. The authorised representative on behalf of the Revenue reiterating the grounds of appeal submits that the device itself is not able to perform any data processing operations; it only acts upon the program run by the central server; it has the functionality and the characteristic of proximity card reader and hence, are rightly classifiable under Chapter Heading 8543. He further submitted that there was an error in the impugned order classifying the product under a classification which was not pleaded before the original authority and prays for upholding the order of the original authority.

4. None appeared for the respondent.

5. The Original Authority at para 5 of the order has stated that the importers claimed the impugned goods i.e., data collection device as parts of computers falling under Chapter Heading 8473 3020. However, the Commissioner (A) in the impugned order classifies the item under Chapter 8471 41 90 as Automatic Data Processing Machines which was never claimed by the importer. The Apex Court in the case of Precision Industries Pvt. Ltd. 2016 (334) ELT 577 (SC) held that no new case could have been set up or decided contrary to the show-cause notices for the classification other than what was part of the notice. In this case, the importer admittedly had requested for classification under Heading 8473 while the Department classified the items under 8543. The Commissioner (A) should have restricted himself to these headings and cannot classify the item entirely under a different heading which was not part of the order of the lower authority. Hence, the Commissioner (A)'s order is bad in law.

6. Now the question arises as to whether the item is classifiable under Chapter 8543 as claimed by the Revenue. From the catalogue, it is noticed that:

"-The item is described as 'Data Collection Device'

-Every Kronos 4500 badge terminal or Kronos 4500 Touch ID Terminal ships with an integrated badge reader. These readers identify users in a consistent and reliable manner, facilitating faster time and labor transactions. The machine also support connection of customer supplied external readers, including contact less MIFARE and iCLASS smart card readers.

-It has integrated Bar code reader, Integrated Proximity reader and integrated Magnetic reader.

-The employ may swipe his card in the card reader slot or enter his PIN through the alphanumeric keys on the machine.

-upon swiping or entering the pin the machine identifies the employee and mark his attendance and exit.

-the data so collected will be routed to the central server through Ethernet cable connection/modem.

-the central server process the data of the employees for further processing and data is archived there."

7. As seen from the above and as noted by the original authority, the device captures the data from the employee's card or the data of the particular employee who key in the PIN into the device. The device does not do anything except for collecting the data at the time of entry or exit and this data is transmitted to a central server for further processing like marking the attendance, preparation of payroll or for other purposes. These facts are not in dispute. Based on the General Rules of Interpretation and the Chapter Notes, the item needs to be classified in the heading akin to it or where the specific description is provided. In this case, the data collection device imported by the respondent is nothing but a card reader working in conjunction with the server. Thus, this device functions such as proximity readers/badge readers, which are specifically classified under Chapter Heading No.8543 and as per Chapter Note 5(E) to Chapter 84.
"Chapter Note 5(E) to Chapter 84 "Machines performing a specific function other than data processing and incorporation or working in conjunction with an automatic data processing machine are to be classified in the headings appropriate to their respective functions or, falling that in residual headings".

8. Since the specific function of the imported item is to mark attendance or to take note of the persons of the employees for the purpose of attendance or payroll or leave, they cannot be classified under Chapter 84 as it excludes from this Chapter as per the Chapter Note 5(e) discussed above.

9. In the case of Commissioner of Customs, Bangalore vs.

Scatia: 2019 (370) ELT 703 (Tri.-Bang.), a similar product viz., fingerprint scanner was classified under Chapter Heading 8543 7099 as per the observations made by the Tribunal at para 5.1, wherein it has held that:

"5.1 The Department contended that CTH 8543 70 99 is more applicable due to the fact that the item imported basically operates on electrical/electric technology. We find that the Head 8543 covers electrical machines and apparatus having individual functions not specified or included elsewhere in the chapter. Therefore, the classification of the Finger Print Reader would be more appropriate under this heading. We also accept the Department's contention that when the item is prima facie classifiable under two headings in terms of Rule 3(c) of General Rules of Interpretation of Import Tariff, the goods should be classified under the heading which occurs last in numerical orders among those which equally merits consideration. We accept this contention. Going by merits as well as by the Rules of Interpretation, we hold that the impugned product merits classification under CTH 8543 70 99 as contended by the Department."

10. Hence, based on the discussions above and by following the decision of this Bench, we find that the product is rightly classifiable under chapter 8543.

11. The appeal is allowed.

Date of Hearing: 27.07.2023 Date of Decision: 20.11.2023

FINAL ORDER No. 21259 of 2023

Per R. BHAGYA DEVI:

The appellant M/s. Glass House filed a Bill of Entry No. 238994 dated 12.01.2009 for the clearance of "Dark Green Reflective Float Glass" which was imported from China. On examination, the officers found that as per the Notification No.4/2009 Cus. dated 06.01.2009, the imported goods were liable for anti-dumping duty, however since the appellant disputed leviability, the goods were cleared with a provisional bond. On finalisation of provisional duty, the original authority confirmed the duty amount of Rs. 1,50,649/- along with interest under Section 18(3) of the Customs Act 1962, in view of the Notification No.4/2009 Cus. dated 6.01.2009.

2. The Commissioner (Appeals) also confirmed the anti- dumping duty on the ground that there was a specific exclusion for Reflective Glass from the purview of the anti-dumping duty under Notification No. 165/2003-Cus. dated 12.11.2003, but Notification No.4/2009 dated 06.01.2009 there was no such exclusion for Reflective Glass. Aggrieved by this order, the appellant is before us only on the limited ground that they are not liable to pay anti-dumping duty in as much as prior and after to the Notification No.4/2009 dated 06.01.2009 as there was admittedly no anti-dumping duty and therefore, for the relevant period there appears to be an omission in the Notification in not excluding the Reflective Glass from the anti-dumping duty.

3. The learned counsel on behalf of the appellant submitted that the facts are not in dispute. The Reflective Glass imported by the appellant was in fact excluded in the Notification No. 165/2003 dated 12.11.2003 and Notification No. 51/2009-Cus. dated 22.05.2009 but by omission the Reflective Glass did not find place in Notification No.4/2009 dated 06.01.2009. According to the appellant, the authority for imposing anti-dumping duty on a product is the Director-General of Anti-dumping and in the final findings of the DGAD referred to subject goods falling under Heading 7005 and the subject goods included the items imported by them. Therefore, the Customs Authorities cannot exclude the item in their Notification in as much as it has not been approved by the DGAD. It is also submitted that as per the sunset final Notification findings issued by DGAD, the product under consideration remains the same as the subject goods and therefore, imposing anti-dumping duty on the items imported by them was illegal and hence, the appeal.

4. On behalf of the Revenue, the Authorised Representative for the Revenue submitted that Notification No. 165/2003-Cus. dated 12.11.2003 excluded Reflective Glass from its scope, however, there is no such exclusion for Reflective Glass in the Notification No.4/2009 dated 06.01.2009. The exemption Notification No. 51/2009 dated 22.05.2009 once again provided exemption to Reflective Glass and therefore, since the relevant Notification during the time of import did not provide any exemption from anti-dumping duty to the appellant. It is also submitted that the Hon'ble High Court of Kerala while deciding Writ Petition (C) No.7563 of 2009 (M) in the case of K. Kochumon vs. Union of India as reported at 2011 (273) ELT 187 (Ker.) wherein it was held that:

"6. Therefore, prima facie, I am not satisfied that the reflective glass are excluded from the description of Float Glass in respect of which anti-dumping duty has been levied. In view of this, I am not persuaded to accept the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner that the levy of anti-dumping duty is without jurisdiction.

7. True, the learned counsel for the petitioner made reference to Exts. P11 & P12. According to him these documents would show that reflective glass, were allowed to be imported in certain other ports in the country without levying anti-dumping duty. This Court can be guided only by the description of the commodity as available in the notification and even if there has been any omission on the part of the Department in levying duty at any place that will not justify interference levy of duty, if it is otherwise legal. Therefore, this court will not be justified in granting any relief in the writ petition and it is accordingly dismissed. However, it is clarified that the findings in the judgment will not stand in the way of the petitioner agitating his liability before the appellate Forum that is available under the statute, which, shall decide the matter untrammelled by any of the observations made above."

In view of the above, the Revenue prayed that the appeal should be dismissed.

5. Heard both sides. The limited issue to be decided is whether the importer is eligible for the benefit of exemption from anti- dumping duty during the relevant period i.e., from 06.01.2009 to 22.05.2009. To understand the issue let's examine the Notifications that are relevant to the issue. Notification No. 165/2003-Cus. dated 12.11.2003 reads as:

Anti-dumping duty on Float Glass of specified quality, originating in, or exported from, the People's Republic of China and Indonesia

WHEREAS, in the matter of import of Float Glass of thickness 2 mm to 12 mm (both thickness inclusive) of clear as well as tinted variety (other than green glass) but not including processed glass meant for decorative, industrial or automotive purposes (hereinafter referred to as the subject goods), falling under heading 7005 of the First Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975), originating in, or exported from, the Peoples' Republic of China and Indonesia (hereinafter referred to as the subject countries), and imported into India, the designated authority vide its preliminary findings, No. 14/19/2002-DGAD, dated the 20th November, 2002, published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, Part I, Section 1, dated the 20th November, 2002, had come to the conclusion that -

(a) the subject goods, had been exported to India from the subject countries below the normal value;

(b) the domestic industry had suffered material injury;

(c) the material injury had been caused by the dumped imports from the subject countries;

and the designated authority had recommended imposition of provisional anti-dumping duty, pending final determination, on all imports of the subject goods, originating in, or exported from, the subject countries;

AND WHEREAS, on the basis of the aforesaid findings of the designated authority, the Central Government had imposed an anti-dumping duty vide notification of the Government of India in the erstwhile Ministry of Finance and Company Affairs (Department of Revenue), No. 7/2003-Customs, dated the 7th January, 2003, published in Part II, Section 3, Sub-section (i) of the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, dated the 7th January, 2003 [G.S.R. 14(E), dated the 7th January, 2003];

AND WHEREAS, the designated authority, vide its final findings No. 14/19/2002- DGAD, dated the 22nd August, 2003, published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, Part I, Section 1, dated the 22nd August, 2003, has come to the conclusion that -

(a) Float Glass of thickness 2 mm to 12 mm (both thickness inclusive) of clear as well as tinted variety (other than green glass) but not including reflective glass, processed glass meant for decorative, industrial or automotive purposes have been exported to India from the subject countries below their normal value;

(b) the domestic industry has suffered material injury;

(c) the material injury has been caused by the dumped imports of the subject goods from the subject countries, and the designated authority has considered it necessary to impose final anti-dumping duty on all imports of Float Glass of thickness 2 mm to 12 mm (both thickness inclusive) of clear as well as tinted variety (other than green glass) but not including reflective glass, processed glass meant for decorative, industrial or automotive purposes, originating in, or exported from the subject countries so as to remove the injury to the domestic industry;

NOW, THEREFORE, in exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of section 9A of the said Customs Tariff Act, read with rules 18 and 20 of the Customs Tariff (Identification, Assessment and Collection of Anti-dumping Duty on Dumped Articles and for Determination of Injury) Rules, 1995, the Central Government, on the basis of the aforesaid findings of the designated authority, hereby imposes on the goods, the description of which is specified in column (3) of the Table below, falling under tariff item of the First Schedule to the said Customs Tariff Act as specified in the corresponding entry in column (2), the specification of which is specified in column (4) of the said Table, originating in the countries as specified in the corresponding entry in column (5), and exported from the countries as specified in the corresponding entry in column (6) and produced by the producers as specified in the corresponding entry in column (7) and exported by the exporters as specified in the corresponding entry in column (8), and imported into India, an anti-dumping duty at a rate which is equal to the amount as specified in the corresponding entry in column (9), in the currency as specified in the corresponding entry in column (11) and per unit of measurement as specified in the corresponding entry in column (10), of the said Table.

[Notification No. 165/2003-Cus., dated 12-11-2003]

Anti-dumping duty on Float glass of specified quality, originating in, or exported from, China and Indonesia

Whereas, the Designated Authority, vide its Notification No. 15/1/2007- DGAD, dated the 13th December, 2007, published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, Part I, Section 1, dated the 13th December, 2007 had initiated a sunset review in the matter of continuation of anti-dumping on imports of Float Glass of thickness 2 mm to 12 mm (both inclusive) of clear as well as tinted variety (other than green glass) but not including processed glass meant for decorative, industrial or automotive purposes (hereinafter referred to as the subject goods), falling under heading 7005 of the First Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975), originating in, or exported from, the Peoples' Republic of China (in short 'China PR') and Indonesia (hereinafter referred to as the subject countries), and imported into India, imposed vide notification of the Government of India, Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue), No. 165/2003-Customs, dated the 12th November, 2003 published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, Part II, Section 3, Sub- section (i) vide G.S.R. No. 887(E) of the same date;

And whereas, the Central Government has extended the anti-dumping duty on the subject goods, originating in, or exported from, the subject countries vide notification of the Government of India, Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue), No. 4/2008-Customs, dated the 4th January, 2008, published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, Part II, Section 3, Sub-section (i) vide G.S.R. No. 12(E) of the same date, up to and inclusive of the 6th January, 2009;

And whereas, in the matter of sunset review of anti-dumping on import of the subject goods, originating in, or exported from the subject countries, the Designated Authority vide its final findings No. 15/1/2007-DGAD, dated the 2nd December, 2008, published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, Part I, Section 1, dated the 2nd December, 2008 has come to the conclusion that -

(i) The subject goods are entering the Indian market at dumped prices and dumping margins of the subject goods imported from China PR are substantial and above de minimis;

(ii) The subject goods are likely to enter the Indian market at dumped prices and the likely dumping margins in respect of imports from China PR and Indonesia is substantial and above de minimis;

(iii) The subject goods are likely to enter Indian market at dumped prices, should the present measures be withdrawn;

(iv) Even though the domestic industry has improved its performance during the POI, the withdrawal of the existing anti-dumping measure on subject goods from subject countries is going to cause a substantial injury to the domestic industry. Further, should the present anti-dumping duties be revoked, injury to the domestic industry is likely to intensify; and has recommended continued imposition of the anti-dumping duty on the subject goods originating in, or exported from, the subject countries in order to remove injury to the domestic industry; Now, therefore, in exercise of the powers conferred by sub-sections (1) and (5) of section 9A of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975) read with rules 18 and 23 of the Customs Tariff (Identification, Assessment and Collection of Anti-dumping Duty on Dumped Articles and for Determination of Injury) Rules, 1995, and in supersession of the notification of the Government of India in the Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue) No. 165/2003-Customs, dated the 12th November, 2003, except as respects things done or omitted to be done before such supersession, the Central Government, after considering the aforesaid findings of the Designated Authority, hereby imposes an anti-dumping duty on the imports into India of subject goods falling under Heading 7005 of the First Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975) at an amount, which is equal to, -

(a) US $ 133 per metric tonne in case of imports of subject goods originating in, or exported from, China PR; and

(b) US $ 81.21 per metric tonne in case of imports of subject goods from Indonesia, except that in respect of imports from PT Mulia Glass, Indonesia (exporter), the anti-dumping duty shall be levied at an amount which is equal to US $ 71.16 per metric tonne.

2. The anti-dumping duty imposed under this notification shall be effective for a period of five years (unless revoked, superseded or amended earlier) from the date of publication of this notification in the Official Gazette and shall be paid in Indian currency.

Explanation. - For the purpose of this notification, rate of exchange applicable for the purposes of calculation of the anti-dumping duty under this notification shall be the exchange rate specified in the notification of the Government of India in the Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue) issued from time to time, in exercise of powers conferred under sub-clause (i) of clause (a) of Explanation to section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962) and the relevant date for determination of the rate of exchange shall be the date of presentation of the "bill of entry" under section 46 of the said Customs Act.

[Notification No. 4/2009-Cus., dated 6-1-2009]

Anti-dumping duty on Float glass, originating in, or exported from China and Indonesia — Reflective glass excluded — Amendment to Notification No. 4/2009-Cus.

Whereas, in the matter of import of Float Glass of thickness 2 mm to 12 mm (both thickness inclusive) of clear as well as tinted variety (other than green glass) but not including processed glass meant for decorative, industrial or automotive purposes, falling under heading 7005 of the First Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975), originating in or exported from the Peoples' Republic of China and Indonesia (hereinafter referred to as the subject countries), and imported into India, the designated authority vide its final findings No. 14/19/2002-DGAD, dated the 22nd August, 2003, published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, Part I, Section 1, dated the 22nd August, 2003, had recommended to impose final anti-dumping duty on all imports of Float Glass of thickness 2 mm to 12 mm (both thickness inclusive) of clear as well as tinted variety (other than green glass) but not including reflective glass, processed glass meant for decorative, industrial or automotive purposes (hereinafter referred to as the subject goods) originating in or exported from the subject countries so as to remove the injury to the domestic industry;

And whereas, on the basis of the aforesaid findings of the designated authority, the Central Government, in exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of section 9A of the said Customs Tariff Act read with rules 18 and 20 of the Customs Tariff (Identification, Assessment and Collection of Anti-dumping Duty on Dumped Articles and for Determination of Injury) Rules, 1995, imposed an anti- dumping duty on the subject goods vide notification of the Government of India, Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue), No. 165/2003-Customs, dated the 12th November, 2003, published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, Part II, Section 3, Sub-section (i) vide G.S.R. No. 887(E), dated 12th November, 2003;

And whereas, the designated authority, vide its Notification No. 15/1/2007-DGAD, dated the 13th December, 2007, published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, Part I, Section 1, dated the 13th December, 2007 had initiated a sunset review in the matter of continuation of anti-dumping on imports of Float Glass of thickness 2 mm to 12 mm (both inclusive) of clear as well as tinted variety (other than green glass) but not including processed glass meant for decorative, industrial or automotive purposes, falling under heading 7005 of the First Schedule to the said Customs Tariff Act, originating in or exported from the subject countries and imported into India;

And whereas, the designated authority vide its final findings No. 15/1/2007-DGAD, dated the 2nd December, 2008, published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, Part I, Section 1, dated the 2nd December, 2008 had recommended continued imposition of the anti-dumping duty;

And whereas, in exercise of the powers conferred by sub-sections (1) and (5) of section 9A of said Customs Tariff Act read with rules 18 and 23 of the said Customs Tariff Rules, and in supersession of the notification of the Government of India in the Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue) No. 165/2003-Customs, dated the 12th November, 2003, except as respects things done or omitted to be done before such supersession, the Central Government, after considering the aforesaid findings of the designated authority, has imposed an anti-dumping duty on the imports into India of Float Glass of thickness 2 mm to 12 mm (both inclusive) of clear as well as tinted variety (other than green glass) but not including processed glass meant for decorative, industrial or automotive purposes, falling under Heading 7005 of the First Schedule to the said Customs Tariff Act, vide notification of the Government of India in the Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue) No. 4/2009-Customs, dated the 6th January, 2009, which was published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, Part II, Section 3, Sub-section (i) vide G.S.R. No. 14(E) of the same date;

And whereas, in terms of rule 4 read with rule 23 of said Customs Tariff Rules, the designated authority is required to investigate as to the existence, degree and effect of any alleged dumping in relation to import of any article, to identify the article liable for anti-dumping duty, to recommend the amount of anti-dumping duty equal to the margin of dumping or less, which if levied, would remove the injury to the domestic industry and to review the need for continuance of anti-dumping duty on such article;

Now, therefore, in exercise of the powers conferred by sub-sections (1) and (5) of section 9A of said Customs Tariff Act read with rules 4, 18 and 23 of the said Customs Tariff Rules, the Central Government hereby makes the following amendment in the notification of the Government of India in the Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue) No. 4/2009-Customs, dated the 6th January, 2009, namely :-

In the said notification, in the opening paragraph, after the words, “as well as tinted variety (other than green glass) but not including”, the words “reflective glass,”, shall be inserted.

[Notification No. 51/2009-Cus., dated 22-5-2009]

6. As can be seen from the above Notification No.165/2003- Cus. dated 12.11.2003 read that the "Float Glass of thickness 2 mm to 12 mm (both thickness inclusive) of clear as well as tinted variety (other than green glass) but not including reflective glass, processed glass meant for decorative, industrial or automotive purposes have been exported to India from the subject countries below their normal value". Whereas, the Designated Authority, vide its Notification No. 15/1/2007-DGAD, dated the 13th December, 2007, published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, Part I, Section 1, dated the 13th December, 2007 had initiated a sunset review in the matter of continuation of anti- dumping on imports of Float Glass of thickness 2mm to 12mm (both inclusive) of clear as well as tinted variety (other than green glass) but not including processed glass meant for decorative, industrial or automotive purposes (hereinafter referred to as the subject goods), falling under heading 7005 of the First Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975)."
As can be seen from the above Notifications, it is seen that though the Notification No.165/2003-cus. dated 12.11.2003 and Notification No.51/2009-Cus. dated 22.5.2009 excluded reflective glass from the levy of anti-dumping duty whereas the Notification No.4/2009-Cus. dated 06.01.2009 did not exclude Reflective Glass. As claimed by the appellant, there could be an omission but that omission cannot be set right by the Customs authorities in as much as the Customs Notifications are issued only on the basis of the findings of the DGAD and their notifications.

7. In the case of Dilip Kumar, the Supreme Court held that:

"43. There is abundant jurisprudential justification for this. In the Governance of rule of law by a written Constitution, there is no implied power of taxation. The tax power must be specifically conferred and it should be strictly in accordance with the power so endowed by the Constitution itself. It is for this reason that the Courts insist upon strict compliance before a State demands and extracts money from its citizens towards various taxes. Any ambiguity in a taxation provision, therefore, is interpreted in favour of the subject/assessee. The statement of law that ambiguity in a taxation statute should be interpreted strictly and in the event of ambiguity the benefit should go to the subject/assessee may warrant visualizing different situations. For instance, if there is ambiguity in the subject of tax, that is to say, who are the persons or things liable to pay tax, and whether the revenue has established conditions before raising and justifying a demand. Similar is the case in roping all persons within the tax net, in which event the State is to prove the liability of the persons, as may arise within the strict language of the law. There cannot be any implied concept either in identifying the subject of the tax or person liable to pay tax. That is why it is often said that subject is not to be taxed, unless the words of the statute unambiguously impose a tax on him, that one has to look merely at the words clearly stated and that there is no room for any intendment nor presumption as to tax. It is only the letter of the law and not the spirit of the law to guide the interpreter to decide the liability to tax ignoring any amount of hardship and eschewing equity in taxation. Thus, we may emphatically reiterate that if in the event of ambiguity in a taxation liability statute, the benefit should go to the subject/assessee. But, in a situation where the tax exemption has to be interpreted, the benefit of doubt should go in favour of the revenue, the aforesaid conclusions are expounded only as a prelude to better understand jurisprudential basis for our conclusion".

Finally, the conclusion arrived at by the Apex court was as follows:

(1) Exemption notification should be interpreted strictly; the burden of proving applicability would be on the assessee to show that his case comes within the parameters of the exemption clause or exemption notification.
(2) When there is ambiguity in exemption notification which is subject to strict interpretation, the benefit of such ambiguity cannot be claimed by the subject/assessee and it must be interpreted in favour of the revenue.

8. The Supreme Court of India in the case of State of Gujarat Versus Arcelor Mittal Nippon Steel India Ltd. 2022 (379) E.L.T. 418 (S.C.) held that:

"20.3 In taxing matters, the doctrine of promissory estoppel as such is not applicable and the Revenue can take a position different from its earlier stand in a case with established distinguishing features. [See Commissioner of Central Excise, Bangalore-1 v. Bal Pharma Limited, Bangalore and Ors., (2011) 2 SSC 620 = 2010 (259) E.L.T. 10 (S.C.)].

20.4 The rules of promissory estoppel and estoppel by conduct may not be applied to alter or amend the specific terms and against statutory provisions. All the terms and conditions contained in the exemption notification shall prevail and the person claiming the exemption has to fulfil and satisfy all the eligibility criteria/conditions mentioned in the exemption notification.

21. Now, so far as the submission on behalf of the respondent that prior to 14-11-2000, there was no demand of the purchase tax and/or the exemption from payment of purchase tax was made available in the earlier assessment years and, therefore, in the subsequent assessment years also, the respondent-assessee shall be entitled to the exemption is concerned, the aforesaid has no substance. In the taxation matters, every assessment year/period is a different year/period".

9. In view of above observations of the Supreme Court, the question of interpreting the exemption Notification has to be done in the manner specified in the Notification. In the present case, since Reflective Glass is not found in the Notification No.4/2009- Cus. dated 06.01.2009 for exempting them from anti-dumping duty, question of extending the benefit does not arise. The Commissioner (Appeals) has rightly held that no attempt can be made to infer the motive or meaning of the Notification other than what is emanating from the plain language of the Notification.
Therefore, we uphold the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) and dismiss the Appeal.

10. The Appeal is dismissed.

HON'BLE MRS R. BHAGYA DEVI, MEMBER (TECHNICAL)

Date of Hearing: 04.08.2023 Date of Decision: 30.11.2023

FINAL ORDER No. 21316 of 2023

Per R. BHAGYA DEVI:

The respondent M/s. Larsen and Toubro Ltd. imported G-24 PL 001 GSM Chipset Wavecom (modem) vide Bill of Entry No.2120004 dated 02.09.2009, classifying them under chapter Heading 8517 6230. The supplier invoices described the imported goods as "electronic components for metering production system", and on examination, officers found that the goods imported were a chipset mounted on printed circuit board and as per the Technical Write-up, the circuit boards were wireless CPU-a powerful programmable processor. Based on the above description and with reference to HSN Explanatory Notes, the items were classified under Chapter Heading 8537 1000 by the Original Authority as against the classification claimed by the respondent under Chapter Heading 8517 6230. On an appeal before the Commissioner (A), the Commissioner (Appeals) based on the catalogue produced before him found that the wireless CPU wavecom includes ARM microprocessors that can process data, listen to more than 50 peripheral devices, address complex display driver interfaces, etc; thus describes the modem to be a powerful programmable processor which can also connect to cellular networks anywhere in the world. Thus, classified the same under Chapter Heading 8517 as claimed by the respondent. The Department is in appeal against the above impugned order.

2. The matter came up for hearing today and the learned Authorised Representative on behalf of the Revenue submitted that the item imported is a programmable processor mounted on a printed circuit board and based on this description, the goods were rightly classified under Chapter Heading 8537 by the Original Authority. It is submitted that the classification should be based on the description and function of an item as it is imported and not based on the end-use of the same. The Commissioner (Appeals) classified the items based on the end-use that they were used in the manufacture of modem which is inappropriate; hence, the impugned order needs to be set aside.

3. The learned counsel on behalf of the respondent submits that Chapter Heading 8537 merely consists of Boards, panels for electric control and distribution of electricity and items imported by them is nowhere connected to this description. It is their claim that the goods are rightly classifiable under Chapter Heading 8517 as the goods are used for transferring the data from the electric metre to the control unit and to be treated as networking equipment and these items are used in the manufacture of modems which are classifiable under Chapter Heading 8517. Thus, requests to dismiss the revenue appeal.

4. Heard both sides. There is no dispute that the items imported are a programmable processor mounted on a printed circuit board. The Commissioner (Appeals)'s classification under Chapter Heading 8517 is misplaced in as much as this Chapter includes Telephone sets, smartphones and other telephones for cellular networks or for other wireless networks; other apparatus or for the transmission or reception of voice, Images or other data, including apparatus for communication in a wired or wireless network (such as a local or wide area network), other than transmission or reception apparatus of Heading 8443, 8525, 8527 or 8528. He further observed that based on the flowchart produced by the respondent, the imported item is a component to be used in the manufacturing of a modem and any part which goes into the manufacture of the same, needs to be classified under Chapter Heading 8517. It is a settled fact that the principles of classification endorses that any classification should be based on the description and function of an item as it is imported and not based on its end-use as held by the Supreme Court in number of cases. In the case of Commissioner of Central Excise, Delhi Versus Carrier Aircon Ltd. 2006 (199) E.L.T. 577 (S.C.) decided on 5-7-2006 the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that:

"15. End use to which the product is put to by itself cannot be determinative of the classification of the product. See Indian Aluminium Cables Ltd. v. Union of India and Others, 1985 (3)

S.C.C. 284. There are a number of factors which have to be taken into consideration for determining the classification of a product. For the purposes of classification the relevant factors inter alia are statutory fiscal entry, the basic character, function and use of the goods. When a commodity falls within a tariff entry by virtue of the purpose for which it is put to, the end use to which the product is put to, cannot determine the classification of that product".

5. Now let's examine the rival tariff entries which read as under:

8517: Telephone sets, smartphones and other telephones for cellular networks or for other wireless networks; other apparatus or for the transmission or reception of voice, Images or other data, including apparatus for communication in a wired or wireless network (such as a local or wide area network), other than transmission or reception apparatus of Heading 8443, 8525, 8527 or

8537: Boards, panels, consoles, desks, cabinets and other bases, equipped with two or more apparatus of Heading 8535 or 8536, for electric control or the distribution of 8537 10 00 electricity, including those incorporating instruments or apparatus Of chapter 90, and numerical control apparatus, other than switching apparatus of Heading 8517.

6. The HSN Explanatory Notes to Chapter Heading 8537 states that this heading covers 'programmable controllers which are digital apparatus using a programmable memory for the storage of instructions for implementing specific function such as logic sequencing, timing, counting and arithmetic to control through digital or analogue input/output modules, various types of machines'. It is also a fact that the appellant are manufacturers of electric metre and their products are classifiable under chapter heading 90283010 and it is also an admitted fact that these impugned goods are used in automatic metering system. Therefore, Commissioner (Appeals) justification for classification under Chapter Heading 8517 as part of modem is inappropriate. Since programmable controllers are specifically covered under Chapter Heading 8537, they are rightly classifiable under this Heading and not under Chapter Heading 8517 as part of modem. The Board vide Circular No.49/3/97-CX dated May 9, 1997 has classified the programmable logic controller under Chapter Heading 8537, which is reproduced herein below:

ORDER NO. 49/3/97-CX, Dated: May 9, 1997

Classification of Programmable Logic Controllers and Programmable Process Controllers-order under Section 37B of CEA, 1944

Attention is drawn to the Board's Section 37B Order No.45/3/96-CX dated 06.08.1996 clarifying that Programmable logic controllers and other forms in variations such as DCS (distributed Control System), PCE (Process Control Equipment), TDC (Total Distributed Control System), LCS (Logic Control System) and PM (Process Manager) etc. shall be classifiable under heading 85.37 of the Central Excise Tariff.

2. Representations have been received from trade pointing out that programmable logic controller and Programmable process controllers such as process control equipment/distributed control system are two different types of controls classifiable under different headings of Central Excise Tariff i.e., heading 85.37 and heading 90.32 respectively. The following specific differences have been pointed out between two types of controllers:-

grammable Logic Controller	rammable Process Controller
1. These are controlling various types of machines.	These are for controlling various types of processes
2. Operation depends on set of pre-determined operations	Operations depend on factor to be controlled
Programmable Logic Controller	rammable Process Controller
3. Operation based on desired sequence of operations.	Operation operates basically by continuously monitoring and maintaining the variable to be controlled such as pressure, flow, temperature, level etc. with/at pre- determined level.
4. No regulatory function.	Regulatory function by continuously monitoring the desired value with actual value and bringing variable to be controlled to the desirable value.
5. Conventionally it is relay- based panel for electric control with timer and switches.	Regulating apparatus for process control for continuous process governing.
6. Relay-based panel has been upgraded to programmable controller commonly known as programmable logic controller by using microprocessor for storing and doing sequence of operations.	Microprocessors are used for doing complex storing and algorithms primarily for controlling. These are commonly known as controllers e.g., digital distributed control system, distributed control system.

3. the matter has been re-examined by the Board in consultation with the department of electronics. Their opinion is reproduced below:-

i) The programmable controllers covered under heading 85.37:- They perform specific functions such as logic instruments timing etc. to control various types of machines in a plant.

ii) The automatic regulating or controlling instruments and apparatus under the heading No.90.32:-

They may be considered as industrial process control systems satisfying criteria mentioned in No.90.32. These are primarily used for controlling/maintaining the flow, level pressure or other variables of liquids or gases, or for automatically controlling temperature of a process (may be refinery, steel, chemical industry) at the present level. They can perform functions both sequence logic and different control strategies like Proportional - Integral - Differential (PID) control and other forms of control.

4. It is observed that opinion of the Department to Electronics is also in conformity with the Explanatory Notes of HSN.

5. Now, therefore, in exercise of the powers conferred under Section 37B of the Central Excise Act, 1944 and in supersession of Board's Order dated 6.8.96 referred to above, and for the purpose of ensuring uniformity in the classification of the goods in question, Board hereby orders that programmable logic controller as describe in para 2 and other similar forms will be classifiable under heading 85.37 of the Central Excise Tariff and programmable process controller as described in para 2 and other similar forms will be classifiable under heading 90.32 of the Central Excise Tariff.

[F.No.154/8/94-CX.4]

7. In view of the above observations, we hold that imported item viz., G-24 PL 001 GSM Chipset Wavecom (modem) are rightly classifiable under Chapter Heading 8537. Consequently, the impugned order is set aside and the appeal filed by the Revenue is allowed.

None present for the appellants.

2. The matter had been adjourned on all these occasions i.e. on 30.05.2023, 20.06.2023, 30.06.2023, 01.08.2023, 29.08.2023, 18.09.2023 and 03.11.2023. Accordingly, the matter is taken up for hearing after hearing learned Authorised Representative for the Revenue and records.

3. Briefly stated the facts of the case are that the appellant had imported wood working machines falling under CustomsTariff Heading 8465 9990. On the basis of intelligence that the appellant was involved in import of wood working machines from various suppliers at Taiwan, Spain and Italy by under invoicing the imported goods to the extent of 40% and later, the amount was transferred to the suppliers by means of non-banking channels; investigations were initiated against the appellant by recording statements of Shri Madan Raj, Marketing Director and others. On completion of the investigation, a show-cause notice dated 5.11.2008 proposing enhancement of value and demanding differential duty of Rs.14,97,179/- under the proviso to Section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962 along with interest and penalty under various provisions of Customs Act, 1962; also, it isproposed to appropriate an amount of Rs.17,53,595/- paid by them during the course of investigation. On adjudication, the demand was confirmed by enhancing the assessable value to

Rs.1,56,71,221/- with interest; imposed penalty ofRs.14,97,179/- and equal interest under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962; also, he has imposed penalty of Rs.3,00,000/- on Shri T. Gopi, Managing Director and Rs.2,00,000/- on Shri D. Madan Raj under Section 112(b) of the Customs Act, 1962.

4. In the present appeal, the appellant had not challenged the payment of differential duty along with interest but vehemently contested imposition of penalty on the appellants. They have argued that since the amount has been paid with interest before issuance of show-cause notice, therefore,imposition of penalty under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962 cannot be sustained. It is their contention that their case is squarely covered under provisions of Section 28(2B) of the Customs Act, 1962. Also, they have submitted that personalpenalty on other appellants cannot be imposed.

5. The learned Authorised Representative for the Revenue has submitted that in the present appeal, the appellants have challenged imposition of penalty of Rs.14,97,179/- under Section114A of the Customs Act, 1962. It is his contention that appellant had knowingly mis-declared the value and fraudulentlytransferred the excess amount of the value to the overseassellers by non-banking channels. In their statements furnished, the Managing Director Shri T. Gopi as well as other persons conceded to the said undervaluation and transferring the under invoiced amount to the overseas sellers. It is his contention that during the period, they had accepted that they had imported totally 14 consignments and suppressed the value, hence imposition of penalty on the appellant under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962; as also imposition of penalty on other appellants under Section 112(b) of the Customs Act, 1962 is justified.

6. I have carefully gone through the records of the case and submissions advanced by the learned Authorised Representative by the Revenue. The short issue involved in the present appealis whether the penalty on the appellant-company is rightly imposed under Section 114A equivalent to the duty short-paid and personal penalty of other appellants under Section 112(b) of the Customs Act, 1962. The undisputed facts are that the appellants are engaged in the business of import of wood working machines falling under Customs Tariff Heading 8465 9990 from countries like Taiwan, Spain, Italy, etc. During the relevant period, they have suppressed/mis-declared the correct value of the imported goods, hence, investigation was initiated against them for ascertaining the correct assessable value. After recording the statements and analysing the evidences, later a show-cause notice was issued to the appellant for enhancement of the value to Rs.1,56,71,221/- and differential duty of Rs.14,97,179/- payable on the enhanced value was demanded under proviso to Section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962. The learned Commissioner while confirming the allegations of the department observed as follows:

"23. The main issue for decision before me is whether the value of the woodworking machines and parts imported by M/s WCPL vide 14 Bills of Entry shouldbe revised to include the extra consideration paid to the suppliers in cash, in terms of Section 14 of theCustoms Act, 1962 and whether the differential duty has to be demanded from them. It is evident that M/s. WCPL imported a total of fourteen consignments ofwood working machines and parts through ICD, Bangalore as detailed in the worksheet and filed Bills of Entry at Inland Container Depot, Bangalore, seeking customs clearance of the said goods after declaring thevalue which was approximately about 40% less than the actual value of the goods paid by them to their suppliers. The differential value of the imported goods was transferred to the suppliers abroad by means of non banking channels. They have, made payments through Bank for only 60% of the total value of the machinery and the balance 40% was paid to the supplier in cash through an agent by name M/s. Shivam Forex. They have also accepted that they had imported machineries or an agreed consideration and in reality not declared the actual consideration paid to the suppliers but undervalued the machineries for thepurpose of assessment under various statutes including the provisions of Customs Act, 1962and thus failed to discharge full duty and levies payable on such imports and evaded payment of appropriate duties by suppression of facts. It is also seen that when the party was confronted with all documentary evidences of their fraud and wilful mis-statement andsuppression of facts, they agreed to pay the duty on the value of the extra consideration i.e. 40% of the value which was paid to the supplier through other than banking channels. It is also seen that the party after clearance of the goods had added the above said 40% of the value so under-invoiced in the importdocuments, to their sales invoices along with other costs and had charged the total amount to their customers. The noticees have not challenged the revaluation of the goods at any time during the proceedings and have accepted the duty liability. M/s.WCPL have contravened the provisions of Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962 in not declaring the correct value of goods for the purpose of payment of duty. They are liable to pay the differential duty. The actual price of the goods was wilfully mis-stated and payment towards imported goods was effected through non-banking channels, which was suppressed with an intention to defraud the Revenue. Since M/s WCPL had mis-declared the value of the said goods, the sameare liable to confiscation in terms of Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962.

24. The next issue which has to be decided is whether M/s WCPL are liable to penalty under Section 112 (a) and Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962. As discussed above since M/s WCPL have rendered the goods liable to confiscation in terms of Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962 they are liable to penaltyunder Section 112 (a) of the Customs Act, 1962. Since the short levy/levy of the duty/interest has arisen due to the wilful misstatement and suppression of the facts, M/s WCPL are liable to pay penalty equal to the duty and interest under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962.

31. From the facts of the case as it emerges, it is amply clear that the party had wilfully committed thefraud by deliberately suppressing the value of the goods with an intention to evade duty. The party hadfurther made its fraudulent intentions clear by making conscious efforts to suppress the invoice value by 40%which was subsequently paid to the suppliers through non banking channels by misrepresenting thefacts to the Forex Dealer. Further, the party after getting the goods cleared from Customs added back the said undervalued amount into their sales invoices along with their other charges, sold the goods to their buyers. This goes to prove that the party had only one intention, and that was to defraud the Revenue. The case laws cited above squarely answers to the schemings and machinations utilized by the party to evade duty."

7. From the aforesaid findings of the learned Commissioner,it is clear that the mis-declaration of the assessable value by the appellant resulted into short-payment of

Rs.14,97,179/-, hence imposition of penalty equivalent to the said differential duty of Rs.14,97,179/- under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962 on the appellant is justified. I do not find any error of facts or in application of law in arriving at the said conclusion by the learned Commissioner when the allegation of gross undervaluation of the product and transferring the suppressed amount later through non-banking channels have been accepted in the statements of the Managing Director and other persons of the appellant-company; consequently, the penalty imposed on the appellant-company is hereby upheld. Also, I do not find any reason to interfere with the findings of the learned Commissioneron the personal penalties imposed on each of other appellants who were actively involved in the gross undervaluation.However, considering the gravity of offence committed and the facts and circumstances of the case, the penalty imposed on Shri T. Gopi, Managing Director is reduced to Rs.2,00,000/- (Rupees Two Lakhs Only) and the penalty imposed on Shri D. Madan Raj, Marketing Director is reduced to Rs.1,00,000/- (Rupees OneLakh Only) under Section 112(b) of the Customs Act, 1962 to meet the ends of justice.

8. In the result, the appeal filed by the appellant-company is dismissed and the appeals of other appellants are partially allowed to the extent mentioned as above

9. All the appeals are disposed of accordingly.
